A. Here in Nurnberg, I, of course, thought about this matter. I can only explain this matter as follows: In the area of Rostov and vicinity there were no Jews, outside of a few individuals, and therefore the passing on of this order to me was no longer necessary. It is not impossible that my profession, which Thomas had remembered, was the reason why he did not give me such an order, since the order had no importance in my area and since he knew that I wanted to leave anyway pretty soon. Furthermore, the order was secret and there was a general directive -- I think it was an express Fuehrer Order which had been laid down in written form -- that only so many people should know about secret matters as was absolutely necessary. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Well, do you think that a secret order becomes so secret that it isn't even transmitted to the person who is to execute the order?

A. I have already said that I had the impression that there were no Jews there.

Q. Well, that's the reason you give.

A. Yes, I gave that as the first reason.

Q. And another reason is that Thomas was very much concerned about your religious background. That's also a reason.

A. Yes, these are the possibilities and I do not know what caused Thomas to act the way he did. These are only the thoughts which I thought over here in Nurnberg.

Q. Didn't occur to you, while you are thinking about that subject, that, if Thomas was disinclined to pass on the order to execute Jews out of deference to your religious background that he also would have done something to relieve you of the duty of conducting any kind of an execution?

A. He did so by the fact that he sent me Sturmbannfuehrer Nehring.

Q. Well, would he not then have seen to it that you would not be required to witness an execution?

A. I attended them in order to get to know the activities of the kommando, as Thomas had ordered and then to report to him my impressions.

Q. Well, Thomas ordered you to witness an execution?

A. No, Thomas ordered me at that time in September to go to the kommando and then after inspecting matters, to report to him and tell him about my impressions.

Q. Then you witnessed an execution of your own free will?

A. Yes, because of the assignment which had been given to me.

Q. Well, did he order you to witness an execution?

A. No, not specifically, but if Dr. Thomas tells me that I should describe to him my impressions, that is, to give him a report about what I felt, then that includes my looking at things down to the last detail, even looking at an execution, for otherwise, my report would be wrong.

Q. Then did you make a report on the execution?

A. I told him about what I had seen, yes.

Q. And did you tell him how you felt?

A. Yes, I explained to him, as I have already said, that all these matters, the sentences and the executions, were against my feelings.

Q. You didn't know that before you witnessed the execution that you would have a feeling of revulsion against the execution. You didn't feel that before you actually witnessed the execution?

A. Of course not, Your Honor, for before I had never seen an execution.

Q. So you had to see an execution in order to know that it offended against your sentiments?

A. Yes, I had to see what kind of an effect this would have on me.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q. Witness, you've already told us that you only heard once about Jewish executions. That was in June, 1943, during your stay in Kiew in connection with crimes such as arson and explosions.

A. Yes, that is what was mentioned to me.

Q. Did you also hear about the executions of Jewish women and children?

A. No, at that time nothing was said about this and I heard nothing about it.

Q. What activity did you carry out in Rostov?

A. I already mentioned that the inspection of the work in the Offices 1, 2, and 3 had been given to me. My activity included the actual command of the kommando, especially to represent the kommando's interests to the other agencies, especially towards the German and Rumanian armies. I did not detail any liaison officer for this purpose, but I took care of this activity myself. Thus almost daily I had discussions with the G-2 of the Army area Don, especially when the military situation became very serious around Rostov. That is, when the withdrawals of the Army started. I also assisted the administration officer in the care and the supply questions of the kommando by negotiating with the military agencies. I also had connections with G-2 of the German Liaison Staff with the Rumanian Army in Rostov. I also was the disciplinary superior of all men in the kommando. As such, I was in charge of the personal files of the men, that is, recommendations and judging their type of service and taking care of their individual matters by conferring with them personally These jobs were the special duty of the kommando leader.

Q. Did you have anything to do in reference to administration?

A. Yes, of course. I was the only one who could sign papers. In addition, the kommando had two agricultural estates which had to be administered. One was a small estate with an orchard. It was to be a rest area for German combat troops in the Einsatzgruppe C and had to be arranged for that purpose. Since the Army wanted to use this place for its purposes also, there were often long negotiations with the various agencies. The other was an estate of 1,000 hectars with agriculture and live stock for whose upkeep and maintenance the kommando was responsible.

Q. Witness, did you have anything to do with the future civil administration of Rostov or its reorganization into a future civil administration?

A. Yes, as Dr. Thomas told me, and as the presence of the future SS and Police Leaders in Rostov showed.

Q. Please give the name.

A. Haencke. The taking over of this area by the civil administration was at hand. In order to have the necessary material for the civil administration about the various problems in that area, various extensive investigations and reports had to be made out. These extended to the presence of certain ethnic groups and to their political espectations, as, for example, in this area, the Russian-Germans, who were very small in number, but especially the Cossacks and then the Armenians and the Karaims. Furthermore, the investigations extended to the presence of cultural institutions, such as schools, universities, technical schools, libraries --

Q. That is sufficient.

A. And of grest interest was the presence of Russian scholars from the Pre-Bolchevist time. I had the opportunity to speak to such scholars of former European repute and to receive them in my office. Their condition impressed me deeply and to see to it that their old activity were again taken up under the German Army.

In this connection there was a Russian professor who already served for the Reichsfuehrer SS who had a special mission to excavate graves of the Goths from the time of the Eastern Gothic king Ermanerich, whose empire once extended down to the Volga River. He was with my kommando and received German supplies. One day before Christmas 20 trucks appeared at my agency in Rostov with the mission from the Reichsfuehrer to go to the Museum in Novotscherkask and transport it to Western Russia. Since this was the Don Cossack Museum, which was considered a sacred national symbol by the Don Cossaks, I sent a teletype to the Reichsfuehrer SS where I spoke of a positive cultural cooperation with the Don Cossacks and I asked that this be reconsidered. The instruction came down that the Museum was to remain in Novotscherkask. Then there were reports about the existence factories, about mines, food supplies, and about the ability to carry on with these factories, and also about hospital and medical facilities.

A. .......and then Prof. Brandt gave me the mission .....

Q. The details are not interesting, witness. This is sufficient. Just proceed.

A. -- Reports about agriculture, about institutions, about rubber plants, then the food situation among the civilian population; as an example I might give, that after a conference with me the Army decided not to forbid the black market in Rostov, since through it more food got into the city than if the German troops had attempted to bring food to Rostov on their vehicles. All these things I had to deal with, since the actual SD export of the kommando, that is, the Chief III was in close collaboration with the garrison headquarters and was occupied almost exclusively with the building of a theatre with Russian Forces for the troops and he was very successful in this.

Q. Witness, I would like to get one other thing. I interrupted you when you spoke about the mission of Professor Brandt and I gave the impression that I wanted to keep something away from the court. Please describe this matter briefly since this mission was completely harmless.

A. As far as the mission of Professor Brandt is concerned, the following is to be said here. Under the Russians here was an institute in Rostov for studying the plague. This institute had sub-departments down as far as the Kaukasus. It was in the interest of the health of the German Army to restors and resume the activity of this plague institute. Thus, I was given the mission to get all material about this plague institute, above all to find out Where these sub-departments were and to find out where the workers of these departments were and to win them over for this Work.

Q. This suffices. Witness, did you do anything for Paul Hennicke of the SS and Police Leaders who was to be appointed?

A. The leader Hennicke was not yet in service. Therefore he was there as a private citizen. I helped him in all matters in order to make him find his way into the work and into the life of this area, what work had already been done about this area, and I gave him the material for his own information.

Furthermore, he used me as a guide for all enterprises which were connected with installing his own office and he used me as an impartial witness during conferences which he had with Army generals when they visited him or when he visited them.

Q. This suffices.

A. May I add that, since we were pretty far apart in the city, he had his own telephone line.

Q. Witness, what general military situation did you find in Rostov?

A. I already said that the activity of the Einsatzkommando was restricted to the area of the Army Croup Don. This Army Croup consisted of a German Army under Field Marshal Paulus with the objective of Stalingrad and of Romanian Armies at both flanks. Through the flight of these Roumanian Armies a very serious situation arose, which has been designated by the name Stalingrad. The desparate struggle for this city threw its shadow on the Army Croup Don and also on the activity of the kommando. Rostov became more and more the next objective of the Red Army. Even during the struggle for Stalingrad small units of Red Army people advanced toward Rostov, As early as in December they tried in the north and in the south, by tank attacks to regain the city by sudden attacks. The military situation, especially after the fall of Stalingrad was very bad and very serious. At the time we counted on an all-out defense of Rostov.

Q. Witness, was there any reason that in your district proceedings had to be carried on to a large extent against members of the civilian population who had violated orders?

A. Whether this was the case, I do not know, but it is true that this desperate situation encouraged the illegal activity of all Bolschevists and therefore this made many proceedings necessary. Through the disorderly and undiscuplined flight of the Rumanian unrest and confusion arose everywhere in the Army area. Attacks, plundering, looting and rape were common, namely through the fleeing marauding Rumanians.

Therefore it was very easy for the underground agitators to win the population over for crimes against the German Army on whose account the Rumanian Army had come. Much more acute was the danger that the civilian population was taking possession of the arms which had been thrown away by the Rumanians. One could find guns which had been abandoned in hedges. The Rumanians even sold their arms for food and tobacco and liquor, not only to the German soldiers, but as has been proven to the Russian forces. Finally, this whole area around Rostov did not actually belong any more to the Ukraine, but here Asia became noticeable with its brutality and ruthlessness unimaginable to the Western mind.

German troops, wounded ones and prisoners found terrible examples of this, as they became eveident through the two-fold occupation of Rostov. Investigations of the Russian auxiliary police have shown innumerable cases, since the civilian population after the Russians recaptured Rostov in 1941 not only killed German prisoners of war but mistreated German wounded people who were being cared for in Russian or Rumanian homes and killed these together with those families in a most brutal manner.

One did not even leave the German soldier at rest after he was in his grave. One excavated German graves and tore apart the bodies and chopped them to pieces and threw them away. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Witness, do you know this of your own personal knowledge?

A. I just wanted to say I read this expressly in the interrogation report which was submitted to me.

Q. When?

A. At the time when I was there. The case was investigated by the Kommando.

Q. Very well.

A. As an eye witness reported to me -- in another case the Russians dragged a German officer who had been captured to death. They hit him on the chin and chained him to a car which drove so long until the officer was dead. But the most terrible which I experienced was the following, that is, I heard it from eye-witnesses who saw it. It is well-known that the Russians buried prisoners up to the head so that they could not flee. When the Germans advanced toward Rostov a German soldier was found who had been buried up to his head. He was shouting with all his powers. They called back to him that help would come. He could not answer back, he could merely shout so that he was foaming at the mouth. They excavated him while he was shouting and raging. They found the following, the soldier had been covered by blankets. When the blankets were removed one found that a steel helmet had been tied to his body and under the helmet there was a living rat which had eaten its way into the body of the soldier.

BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q. This case was also being investigated?

A. No. This was a report from eye witnesses---German eyewitnesses.

Q. I now come to your affidavit which is in Volume 1, that is, it is the fifth to the last, Document No. 4314, Exhibit 29, page 111 in the English. You speak in this affidavit of the fact that in your commando two or three thousand executions were carfied out. Can you recall that you said this, and is this number correct?

A. The figure which I give in my affidavit is meaningless since I cannot give such a figure to the best of my knowledge. It came to be given in the following manner. During an interrogation under oath at the camp Eselheide near Paderborn in the British Zone by an American interrogation officer I was requested by the interrogator to give the figure of those who were executed by the BK 6 during my time. Since I did not know it, and since I was not skillful at making an estimate, I told the interrogator that I could not even give him an estimate. The interrogator would not let go. Finally, he said it would not have to be so exact, a thousand more or less did not matter, thus he gave me the cue, and I said "Two to three thousand". That is how this number came to be put in the affidavit shich wasmade out at Eselheide. During my interrogation here at Nurnberg I had the same figure put in, even though I knew that this figure had just been given ny me arbitrarily. But since I saw that certain other statements were not exactly correct anyway, and since the interrogator, when I pointed this out to him, answered me that I would get an opportunity to make additional statements, I did not want to argue with him any more, but I wanted to correct this matter at the occasion which was promised to me. If I am now asked how high the figure of those executed by EK 6 during my time was, I can say truthfully that I do not know this figure.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q? Excuse me, Dr. Bergold. You say that the interrogator indicated that even if you erred to the extent of 1,000 that it didn't matter, and then upon that declaration you estimated the deaths to have been from 2,000 to 3,000 is that correct?

A. No, not quite.

Q. No, no. I am merely repeating -- I am trying to repeat what you said -- is that what you told us?

A. I did not say that.

Q. Well, then please repeat just what the interrogator told you.

A. The interrogator wanted to know the figure. I told him, "I do not know the figure". The officer said I should estimate the figure. I said, "I cannot." Then he said, "Well, it doesn't have to be so exact; I don't care whether it is a thousand more or less. Whether you can give it exactly by the thousand I don't care", and when I heard t the word "thousand", I said, "Well, just two or three thousand."

Q. Well, he said it didn't matter if it was incorrect by a thousand more or less?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, let us suppose that these figures are wrong to the extent of 1,000 as the interrogator suggested, it wouldn't matter if it was wrong to 1,000, would you then say that your estimate would be, allowing for all those errors, one to two thousand instead of 2,000 to 3,000?

A. I cannot say, Your Honor at this time, as I already explained it. I do not know the figure, and I only finally was persuaded to give it because he did not seem to bother about the figure, because I told him that the cases were all investigated, so that I personally did not exactly care about the number, and now I let him persuade me when he said"two or three thousand" without thinking much about it.

Q. Well, he said, "Give us an estimate", you said, "I cannot give you an estimate", he said, "Well, even if you make a mistake as high as 1,000, it still will not matter", "now give us your estimate" and then you said "two to three thousand"?

A. Yes, I just said that impulsively.

Q. So you allowed yourself a margin of error of 1,000 in accordance with his suggestion?

A. No. It isn't to be taken this literally. If he says, "Don't worry about a thousand more or less," this means, "Well, just give me any figure, it doesn't matter, a thousand more or less."

Q. Well, that is what you have now told us two or three times, that he said that if you made a mistake by a thousand it wouldn't matter, and that you gave your estimate?

A. Yes.

Q. Your estimate as you gave it that day would be within a thousand of being correct?

A. I cannot give any information about this because I do not know the figure, and any estimate would be wrong.

Q. Well, then you do not know how many were executed?

A. No.

Q. And you allowed this interrogator to persuade you to give some kind of an estimate?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. How, these executions occurred in 1941?

A. 1942 - 1943.

Q. Very well. So that four to five years have passed since then. Can you give us an estimate today how many were executed during the nine months that you were in Russia?

A. I was only four months in Rostov. Afterwards, I was in Taganrog and no more executions took place there.

Q. Well, all right. Then within those four months how many executions occurred?

A. I do not know since I never saw them -- I never saw the f figure.

As I have explained, I did not bother about these matters because Brigadier General Thomas gave me Sturmbannfuehrer Nehring just for this purpose.

Q. Well, can you give us some figure of the number that you know of your own personal knowledge were executed?

A. I know of none of my own knowledge, your Honor.

Q. Can you give us a figure of the number that you know were executed -- any figure that you know of your own personal knowledge were executed?

A. Then it could only be that figure which was executed during those two executions.

Q. And how many were they?

A. I don't know this number exactly, either, the first time during the gas executions it was one vanful. The gasvan then was fully occupied. What the capacity of the van is I don't know, but I think 40 or 50; and during the shooting -- at the most 15 persons.....

Q. Well, just a moment. Let's take care of the gasvan, please. Now, you say there were 40 to 50 people in the gasvan?

A. Yes.

Q. And you stand on that figure?

A. Yes.

Q. Why is it in your affidavit you said "50 to 60"?

A. It could have been 50 to 60. I don't know the capacity, I just thought it was higher then.

Q. Ten, more or less didn't make much difference to you?

A. I had no insight into these matters, I heard here......

Q. Well, you had eyesight, didn't you?

A. Yes, but I didn't count them,

Q. Well, you looked at them?

A. Yes, I saw them, but didn't count them. I only know approximately what the capacity of this gas-van is.

Q. Well then you saw the bodies -- it wasn't the capacity, you say the bodies?

A. Yes. I saw the bodies but I didn't count them.

Q. When you made your report to Thomas on your reaction to the execution, did you tell him how many were executed in the van?

A. No, I did not.

Q. It didn't occur to you in a report of an execution to tell your superior how many were executed?

A. No. That was not the point at issue. He merely wanted to know what my impression was of what I had seen, and how I felt about it.

Q. Well, all right. You are making a report to your superior and you are telling him that you witnessed an execution by gas in a van. Wouldn't it be the most logical thing in the world to say, "in this gas van there were so many people?"

A. No. It was not an official report about the execution. I did give him a report about the execution, but I merely gave him a report about the impressions which I had in Rostov, that includes an execution.

Q. Now, you studied the corpses rather carefully, didn't you?

A. Yes. Not individually. The gas van was opened and I looked into it in order to look at the condition inside, and when I did that I saw what I have already explained.

Q. Well, you looked at their faces, didn't you?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you looked at most of the faces, didn't you?

A. I cannot say.

Q. Well, you looked at the majority, didn't you?

A. No.

Q. Well, then, how could you give a report on the appearance of the faces if you didn't look at the larger number of the faces?

A. Your Honor, what I saw is that these faces had a completely peaceful expression.

Q. How many faces did you see of these 40 to 60 corpses?

A. Considering such an experience, the number does not make an impression, only what one sees.

Q. Well, what did you see, how many faces did you see?

A. I said I do not know the number. This was not important for me. It was merely an impression which I had to report.

Q. Well, but you cannot get an impression of faces unless you look at the faces. You described the appearance of the faces in your statement here. Now, you had to see some faces. How many faces did you see?

A. If I look into the van I see the people lying in the van. They were still sitting, in face, part of them, and this impression which I gleaned from this was the one that, in their position and in their expression they looked peaceful.

Q. Well, all right. You saw their expression,-- facial expressions. Now, how many did you see?

A. I do not know. I only saw a general impression.

Q. Yes. You cannot tell us how many faces you actually saw?

A. No.

Q. So that if you only saw some of the faces, it is very possible that the faces which you did not see carried the distorted expressions and carried expressions indicative of great pain? That is possible, isn't it?

A. Whether this is possible, I cannot judge.

Q. Well, now let's be logival about it. There are 60 people in the van, and let us say that you see about 10 faces, and on the expressions which you witness you find complacency, peace, and tranquility. Now, it is within the realm of possibility that on the faces of the other 50 you will find registered terror, pain, and great suffering. That is possible, isn't it?

A. It would be strange that I just happened to see those faces which looked peaceful. It was an average which I saw, and this had the effect which I described.

Q. Very well, all right. And you cannot give us any better estimate than what you gave of the number in the van?

A. That is right.

Q. Very well. Now, hour many were shot in the execution which you witnessed.

A. Fifteen men, approximately.

Q. Yes. All right, then 15 added to 50, taking the average, would give you 65 executions. Now, you personally know there were 65 people killed by your commando?

A. Yes, I saw that.

Q. Yes. Now, you made up reports right along, didn't you, to send to the Einsatzgruppe headquarters?

A. Yes, reports were made out.

Q. Yes, and didn't these reports carry the number of executions?

A. I assume so, but I do not know since these reports were made out by Nehring.

Q. Well, did you see the reports before they were sent in?

A. No, I did not. Department 4 was in charge of Nehring and he had to do it himself.

Q. And you did not see these reports?

A. No.

Q. If Thomas were to ask you at that time, at the determination of your encumbancy as to how many executions had taken place, you would not be able to give him any figure?

A. No, I could not have given him a figure.

Q. So that after four months of activity at Rostov you left not knowing how many people were killed by your kommando?

A. That is correct.

Q. Yes, but you do know, however, that every person killed had had a trial and his case had been investigated?

A. That was the general directive in the kommando.

Q. Do you know whether every person executed had had the opportunity to explain his case?

A. As far as I know, every individual was interrogated and was heard.

Q. Do you know as a matter of fact, as the head of the kommando that there was an investigation in each case which resulted in an execution?

A. In every case not, because I did not see every case.

Q. Well, then, there were people executed by your kommando that you knew nothing about?

A. The most of them, because this was not my mission. Brigadier General Thomas took this job away from no expressly.

Q. Yes, all right. How many cases do you know of which were investigated?

A. I do not know any. I can't say anything about it.

Q. Well, yes, you can say something about. You are here on trial, and you will say something about it. You said that the interrogator was demanding that you give an estimate of the number killed you said, "I am not interested in that because each case was investigated."

A. No, I said, "I do not know, I do not know the figure, and I cannot know it because I did not work on these matters."

Q. Did you not tell tills Tribunal during the last hald hour that when the interrogator questioned you as to the number who were executed, you replied that you did not know the figure, you were not interested because there was an investigation of each case of death anyway, did you say that?

A. Yes, yes, that is how it was ordered for the kommando.

Q. Then every case was investigated, wasn't it?

A. As far as I know, yes, for I did not investigate it myself.

Q. As the man in charge of the kommando, did you order that there would be an investigation before a person was killed?

A. No. I already said that all these directives already existed when I arrived at the komnando; they had all been ordered by my predecessor, by the lawyer, Regierungsrat Moor.

Q. Did you carry out that order that there should be an investigation of each case before an execution?

A. I said that this was to be continued in the old manner in which Moor had started.

Q. Then you reaffirmed the order?

A. Yes.

Q. Then you know that investigations took place?

A. Yes, I said that.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, now, between now and 1:45, we will give you time to recollect how many cases were investigated. The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

( A recess was taken until 1335 hours.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 21 November 1947)

THE MARSHAL: The Tirbunal is again in session.

DR. KOBELT for von Radetsky: Your Honor, I ask for your permission that the defendant von Radetsky be excused coming Monday 24 November from the morning and afternoon sessions.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant von Radetsky will be excused from attendance in Court next Monday all day. BY THE PRESIDENT: to you. Now let it be known beforehand that you are not required to answer that question or any question which is put to you if you do not desire to do so. No one is compelled to answer. No defendant is required to take the stand if he prefers not to but once a defendant goes onto the stand voluntarily and makes certain statements it inevitably follows that those statements will be scrutinized and if a statement is made which challenges common observation or logic or rules of cause and effect then inquiry will be made. So these questions which are put to you are only for the purpose of ascertaining the truth but we repeat that you are not compelled to answer them if you do not desire to. If you do not answer a question when the discussion has reached a point where the answer would considerably illuminate such matter then whatever inferences might naturally follow will, of course, have to follow. Now, you were asked just before the recess how many investigations were made of cases prior to execution. The reason that question was put is that in your affidavit you stated that during your time of office as commander of Einsatzkommando 6, between September 1942 and June 1943, there had been some 2000 to 3000 executions performed in the area of your Einsatzkommando. Asked about this this morning you said that you told the interrogator this number because apparently he did not insist upon precision and, therefore, you gave him this number. And you added, also, that it didn't matter how many were executed because there was an investigation in each case.

So now you are asked, since you yourself said there was an investigation in each case, how many cases were there? not only in this noon recess, and even now I can only say one thing I do not know the figure. I do not intend to refuse to make an answer but I want to testify everything that helps to point out the truth but if I am to state a figure here it is not the truth in any case because I simply do not know the figure. you were the commander, you were the leader, the commanding officer, a certain number of men in the field to insure security to the German troops, that although you were involved in an action which was bound to result in death, and although as commanding officer you were bound to know that reports were made on some of these deaths at any rate. In spite of all that you do not know how many executions there were. Now you are willing to let the record remain that way? mate number? THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Bergold. BY DR. BERGOLD: made. The way I understood it you explained that in every case an investigation took place and you explained that it was ordered by Herr Mohr, your predecessor, who was a trained lawyer, and that you kept up this order and continued with it. I now ask you how do you know that this order was carried out.

a proper investigation had been taking place. carry out your orders and disobeyed and deceived you? personal impression I had of them was that if they tried to deceive me any one working in the Einsatzkommando did not notice it or any other irregularities among them.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, please develop that point. It isn't clear just what that answer was. He said that - at least we got it that if the men tried to deceive him - is that what he said?

DR. BERGOLD: Whether he convinced himself that nobody deceived him in such a manner.

THE PRESIDENT: It is not clear. Did the men deceive him or not?

DR. BERGOLD: No. It is my opinion, your Honor, that if when a leader of a Kommando has been given an order to a certain effect every now and then he had to convince himself whether the order is being carried out. I asked him if he did this and he said he made spot checks. I understand he did not check up on every case and I, therefore, asked him whether with respect to other activities he found that cause existed which proved that these people deceived him in some manner and allowed irregularities to occur and he told us he did not find any such things. That is the only manner in which a subordinate can check up on his people, that he was always watching them, and see whether they were carrying out orders. A superior can only make spot checks when he has such a large field to cover to find out if one is deceiving him.

THE PRESIDENT: The word is coming through that a subordinate would check. I don't know whether it is the interpreter or the lawyer who is saying that. Naturally what is meant is that a superior officer makes the check.

DR. BERGOLD: The officer has to check upon that. In this case, the defendant.

BY THE PRESIDENT: you?

Q And you were satisfied that they were very obedient soldiers? received?

Q Now did they themselves receive the Fuehrer-order?

Q Did you talk with the men?

AAbout this no. I could not, your Honor, because I did not know anything about it. unless you talked with them?

Q Well, did you talk with your men, that's the question? Fuehrer-order?

Q Did you talk with your men, that's the question?

Q Yes, and how long were you the leader of this Einsatzkommando? your men the question of executing Jews never came up once? Communist Functionaries?

A No. I only know one thing about this that somehow, even before my time, Thomas gave an order that Communist Functionaries were to be sent to Kiev for further investigation. I happen to remember that.

Functionaries?

A No. During my time that did not have to be, only in connection with the procedure.

shoot Communist Functionaries? Gypsies?

A Gypsies were never mentioned. I never saw Gypsies. made to shooting Asiatic inferiors? made which challenges the usual routine an inquiry naturally follows. Now, can you explain why it is that all the other defendants in this case knew of this order, or at least all those who have testified, have spoken, have made some reference to it. What mysterious process shielded you from this order? From even the knowledge of it? Can you offer an explanation?

Q Well, give it new. Just what mysterious process it was that took you apart, the commanding officer of an Einsatzkommando, and although every other Kommando leader and sub-Kommando leader, knew about the order to shoot Jews, that by some miracle you were saved from even the knowledge of this shocking order which you heard of for the first time when Ohlendorf took the stand in this very Courtroom. Can you give an observation, can you give an explanation as to what it was that protected you, one person out of all the others that were involved? anything certain about this but only possibilities that might explain this, the fact that in this territory there were hardly any Jews. Therefore, it was not necessary to give such an order. There just were no Jews and, therefore, one did not have to get this order. Apart from that from the very beginning I told Gruppenfuehrer Thomas that I wanted to leave, that I have been a clergyman.

I told him that they could not expect me to carry out executions. All these are matters that are in line and which might have caused it. that you didn't conduct executions of Jews. We ore merely wondering why it is you didn't know about it. Now, were your sub-Kommando leaders all preachers, ministers, Lutheran ministers? with the men in that respect because I was not interested in this at all.

Q Now please answer the question. You were a Lutheran pastor, you were a minister of the Gospel, and you have explained to us that that may have been one reason why Thomas didn't ask you to execute Jews. Is that correct? That is what you told us. Gospel?

Q So, therefore, there would be no reason on Thomas' part to abstain from telling them about the execution of Jews would there on that basis?

A I said that I do not know the way Dr. Thomas thoughts. I only found that no Jews existed in that territory and, therefore, I drew the conclusion that order had no legal importance for that territory. you do tell us that some people were shot - you saw them being shot. Now, what nationality were they,who were they? investigated. That is possible.

Q Well, then there were Jews in that territory. You told us a little while ago there were no Jews.

Q About how many Jews were there?

A That I don't know. beginning, that when you make a statement which is a challenge to common sense you must give an explanation. You say first there were no Jews. Then you indicate there must have been some Jews. Then we question you about that and you say some and now we question you about how many. If you say there were some you would have an idea about the number. Now, tell us how many Jews were in that territory?

A I cannot give any information about this. I do not know

Q You said there were some Jews. Now, what do you mean about some?

Q Well, not this morning. What do you mean by some?

Q Very well. What kind of people were shot? the Army territory Don.

Q You saw 65 people executed. Now, what kind of people were these 65?

A What people, you ask me?

Q Were any of them German? Were any of these 65 Germans?

A I don't think so.

Q All right then what were they?

Q Russian citizens. Now was there an investigation made in each one of these cases of these 65?

A I did not see the files of these 65 cases. I only know that men of the Kommando had received orders ever since the time of my predecessor to investigate the cases. investigated? These 65 deaths?

Q No. So, therefore, you permitted 65 people to go to their deaths without knowing yourself whether they were guilty or not?

Q Did you make any spot checks in these 65? to go to their deaths without even a spot check.

Q Yes. Now we come back to the original point about sub-Kommando leaders. In the ordinary course of events the sub-Kommando leaders would know about orders by the Fuehrer in connection with activities in that area, wouldn't they?

Q And you spoke with your sub-Kommando leaders from time to time? once did the question of the Fuehrer-order with regard to execution of Jews come up?

Q Very well. Take the witness, Dr. Bergold. BY DR. BERGOLD: your Kommando in general that you had been a clergyman for many years? your general attitude and opinions? me than with my predecessor.

Q Did people have to notice this?

generally known you were a clergyman? did not consider you a normal human being or did they consider you as good as anybody else?

A In general the clergymen, did not have a very good reputation. They were always afraid of the church which might stop people from putting in all the strength for tasks that might be demanded of them. BY THE PRESIDENT: in 1941 and 1942? with ones whole soul one remains for the rest of ones life.

Q But in 1935 you gave up your parish, didn't you?

Q You were in no way connected with the church after 1938 were you?

Q You left the church in 1938, didn't you? the church in 1938?

A If the term "clergyman" is understood as the word for a profession, as a main job, I no longer held that profession, but after all a clergyman is not tied down to practicing his profession in a certain manner. I trained for this profession and it will he part of me as long as I live.

Q But you severed all connection with the church. It is by being a member of a church and by preaching to the members of the church that you are a clergyman. You repudiated the church in 1938. How can you still claim to have been a clergyman in 1942? to the churches.

Q We are not speaking about religious life. In order to be a clergyman you must have a church, mustn't you? Ecclesia Invisibilis, a church which cannot be seen.

Q You were a clergyman of an invisible church? ready explained, to create a parish of my own, a community of my own.

Q Where do the members of this invisible church gather?

Q Where was this invisible church in Rostov in Russia? You were parading as a pastor there, asking certain privileges because you were a clergyman. Did you have an invisible church there?

A Your Honor, the matter is like this. If two people talk about religious problems and their beliefs, yes. Then these two form an invisible church.

Q That makes a church. Two people talking about religion makes a church. Now, did you have church services with your sub-kommando leaders and your commando members? tions from me on that subject which were valuable to him. At Christmas and on New Year's Eve I talked to my kommando in Rostov, and what I said on that occasion were not only masters dealing with outer matters, but inner matters which go deeply into the soul and the matters of the church and God. I know what kind of impression it made on my men. On Christmas Eve - in general I don't like to talk about this - Nehring came to me, took my hand, and said, "What you have learned, you have learned." What he was trying to say was, "You know how to deal with these things and can talk to people, in particular about these innermost things."

Q Did you have a religious service on Christmas?

Q That is a question. Now, answer it directly. Don't take us all the way to Russia. Just answer it directly, did you have a religious service in Russia on Christmas?

Q "Wherever there are two or three gathered together in my name, I shall be among then", says Jesus, and wherever people gather and talk about religious questions, that is a religious service.

Q Did you speak about the divinity of Christ on Christmas? your invisible church, every say to you, "I am in distress. I am being compelled to shoot people, and I have a struggle with my soul, and it is hard for me to do this. Can you assist me and give me comfort in this very difficult job which I have, to snuff out the lives of my fellowmen." Did anyone everyday anything like that to you? this. I mean, they knew what they did, that these judgments and these executions were done because these people were criminals, and had committed criminal acts.

Nothing unjust was requested of them,

Q Therefore it was a perfectly easy thing to shoot a man? soldier in the field does not find it easy to shoot the soldiers on the opponent's side. and night kill him unless he fired first, but in executions, you take the victim, you lead him up to a grave already dug, he looks into this hole in the gound, and he is shot in the back, so there is a great difference. There is a greater spiritual fortitude required on the part of the executor to do that kind of killing than there is to kill in the heat and the passion of battle. I think you recognize that. comfort and never once talked to you about executions. We will let it remain that way. Is that right? discussed in particular. with your men?

A I don't think so, no.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, will you please continue?

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. BERGOLD: deviated, so far, and talked about matters of the soul, this affidavit in which you stated that two to three thousand, executions were carried out by you. I now ask you, is the affidavit which was submitted to the Tribunal, is it correct in that form?

A No. This affidavit does not contain a great number of important points which I made in the general interrogation, and according to my conviction, I think, Your Honors, in order to understand me correctly - for example, during my interrogation I discussed in detail, as I have done here, what procedure was kept to until the death sentence was carried out. happened before the affidavit was set up, you made the following statement?

DR. BERGOLD: Your Honor, a moment, please. May I add the following to this? I have seen and read the record of this interrogation of the defendant. I know that this was a mistake, and I want to read something out of this affidavit, and I want to ask him whether he said this. I quote.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Just a moment, please. Dr. Bergold, of course, is at liberty to ask the witness questions. Dr. Bergold hasn't got the affidavit, and he himself admits he read it by mistake. I don't think it is proper that he reads something out of the affidavit. He may ask the witness whether he remembered that and that, having said that and that, and in any case the witness was interrogated. It is not so long ago. If it is so important the witness will certainly remember, and I do think it is only proper that the witness says what the witness remembers, not what Dr. her Bergold remembers.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, is Dr. Beregold -

DR. BERGOLD: Just a moment, may I say one thing? I think that the defense has the same right as the prosecution, and I have been active here as a defense counsel for sometime now, and I can remember a lot of cases when during the cross-examination the prosecution asked the defendants, "Witness, is it right that during the interrogation you said, this or that, yes or no?" And in all these questions this manner of questioning was allowed. It is, therefore, my opinion -

THE PRESIDENT: We think in the first place, Dr. Bergold, your illustration is not a good one. I am not saying your point is not a mood one, but the illustration is very had because you are talking about cross-examination. This is direct examination. Anyhow, that point is out. Now, submit something else. That is not a proper illustration. That is cross-examination. You can cross-examine in the same way. How, give us your other reason.

DR. BERGOLD: A moment, Your Honor, please. Please tell me how one should do this? I am quite willing to receive some instruction, A person who has made a statement some months ago I want to ask him whether he has made it, because no one in the words has such a memory that he can verbally remember what he said during an interrogation several months ago, namely,in July, 1947.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is not yet aware of just what you are about to do, Dr. Bergold. Mr. Hochwald intervened, so we really don't know what you have here, and if you will let us know, of course, we will rule on it.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If I may suggest, Your Honors, I had the impression from the question of the defense counsel for the Defendant Biberstein, that he wanted to put the answer of the witnessin the witness' month by quoting, that was something that was not in the document.

THE PRESIDENT: No, as I understood all that Dr. Bergold wanted to do was to read from the affidavit, and he certainly has the right to do this.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I do think, Your Honors, that I understand probably I am mistaken - I did understand Dr. Bergold that way, that he wanted to quote something out of an interrogation which he read, an interrogation of the witness which he read which, however, is not in evidence, and which he admittingly read by mistake, by mistake of the prosecution, of course. So what he wants to do is to quote something which is not submitted in evidence and which is not before the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold -

DR. BERGOLD: One moment. May I add something? I, and I say this quite frankly, I want to prove here that this affidavit is not in order, Hey dear opponent already pointed this out yesterday in a letter, and he submitted, he agreed at the time I made the application, that this written record be submitted so that it can be proved that this affidavit is not in order. At the time the prosecution told me, no, we don't have to submit that, that is not the custom. But I have read the record and I know that things are contained in it which in my opinion should have been put into the affidavit, according to the principle which Lord Justice Lawrence announced in the IMT, namely that the Prosecution should order everything incriminating, as well as everything that is exonerating, heard. How I have no other way of doing this to prove the truth, that my statement is wrong. The prosecution told me that I should either withdraw my statement or prove it. I am just trying to prove it, but they make it impossible for me to prove it. I don't know what kind of method that is.

THE PRESIDENT: New, just a moment , Dr. Bergold. Here is an affidavit, and you want to attack this affidavit?

DR. BERGOLD: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, you question, the witness and you attack the affidavit. The witness is here. The witness certainly knows what are the facts and what are not the facts. Let the witness state what the facts are, not counsel.

DR. BERGOLD: Your Honor, may I point out one thing? My last question refers to the previous question. I asked him whether the affidavit was in order. He said, "No, for example the procedure was not recorded concerning the executions, although I explained it in detail." And now I wanted to show him these words which he said concerning this procedure during his interrogation, but it is impossible to do this verbally. Nobody can do that.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, it is absolutely not necessary that the witness quote word by word what the witness said four months ago, but the witness certainly will know what the witness said four months ago, and, therefore, Dr. Bergold is at liberty to ask the witness what the witness knows, but Dr. Bergold is not at liberty to ask the witness what Dr. Bergold knows.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, suppose you and Mr. Hochwald have a conversation which lasts for two hours, and then after your conversation is ended you go into your office and prepare a statement which contains the salient features of the conversation. You go to Mr. Hochwald and say, "Mr, Hochwald, I would like to have a little record of what we talked about. You please read this. There is no use putting down all we said in two hours, because much is irrelevant, but these are the salient features. Now, please look at it. If you agree with it, all right; if you don't all right too." You look at it and Mr. Hochwald looks it over very carefully. Finally he says, "Yes, this contains the salient features," and he signs it.

DR. BERGOLD: Now-

THE PRESIDENT: Now, just a moment, Dr. Bergold. Then later on, you want to point out that there were other things said which are not in this document. Then you take the stand and you tell about the other things.

Now, that is the situation you have here. The witness was questioned for some time, and from what he said a paper was drawn up, and the paper was given to him to sign, and the paper very clearly indicates, "I have had the opportunity to make alterations and corrections in the above statement, and I make this declaration voluntarily without any promise of reward, and I was not subjected to any duress or threat whatsoever," Now, you have indicated that he wants to attack this, and he has every right in the world to attack it, not anybody else. Now, you ask him to point out wherein this affidavit is wrong, wherein it is incomplete, wherein he was compelled to make a statement against his wishes, wherein he was persuaded to say something which he did not agree with. The field is open, to him. There is no limit to what he can tell here from the witness stand, but it must be the witness,,

DR. BERGOLD: Your Honor, the example does not quite apply, because the witness said on one occasion already that he wanted to make corrections from the start, but too interrogator said he could do this later, and may I point out that Mr. Wartenberg, who was cross-examined by Dr. Ficht at my request, said it was possible, and he cannot deny it, that he told the witness that he could make corrections later on. That is shown in the record by the interrogation through Herr Wartenberg.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: As Dr. Bergold pointed out, there was a possibility to question Mr. Wartenberg on this particular subject. Dr. Bergold has another possibility, to question the witness on this subject, the two persons who were present. I do think that this should be completely sufficient to prove the point. There is no necessity to try to prove something which is not before the Tribunal, Your Honor, I only want to make for the record a statement as to the ruling of the IMT to which Dr. Bergold referred in his opening statement, and namely suggests the prosecution is compelled, Dr. Bergold said it was ruled before the International Military Tribunal that it should be the duty of the prosecution also to submit evidence which is favorable for the defendants, not only which implicates them.

Mr. Justice Jackson has vigorously objected to this motion of Dr. Bergold. But as far as I remember the ruling of the International military Tribunal was only that if a document is submitted in evidence it should be submitted in full. I don't know that the International Military Tribunal ruled ever that the prosecution has to submit documents which are in favor of the defense or-

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, if the International Military Tribunal did not so declare, this Tribunal will declare that whatever the prosecution has which is favorable to the defense must be submitted. Nothing will be permitted not to be presented which will be of benefit to the defense.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honor please, I don't want to challenge this statement. I only wanted to explain here what the International Military Tribunal ruled, nothing else. I did not want-

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if the International Military Tribunal said that, this Tribunal overrules the International Military Tribunal because it is not in accordance with the principles of justice that either side may retain anything which may shed light on the issues before the court.

MR. HORLICK-HOCKWALD: If your Honor please, I only wanted to clarify. I had not the slightest wish to request a ruling from the Tribunal on that point. I only wanted to clarify the statement of Dr. Bergold, and I am absolutely sure that Dr. Bergold agrees with me the procedure before the IMT. Is that correct?

THE PRESIDENT: We won't debate now what took place before the IMT. The IMT--It seems I am having trouble with the interpreters here. I will state a little more slowly so I won't get into trouble with my friends in the cage, that whatever evidence is available which will shed light on this most serious issue which we must decide must be presented. Now, so far as the present situation is concerned, Dr. Bergold, I would recommend to you that at least for the moment you question the witness and have him point out wherein the affidavit does not represent what he said or corresponds with the facts.

Have him point out where it does not go far enough, Point out where it is in error. Point out where he would  add to it, and then he can also say, "I told this to the interrogator; he didn't put it in the affidavit." Everything.

DR. BERGOLD: Very well, your Honor, I shall try, but as far as I was informed, my client was interrogated for a very long time. He cannot remember all of that, the defense, all concerning that. I dad not want him to talk for too long, but I will ask him now.

Q (By Dr. Bergold) Herr Biberstein, can you tell me what is not contained in the affidavit and what seems important to you? in this affidavit, which was made in Nurnberg, it is not contained that the executees who were executed, by Einsatzkommando VI were cases where a crime had been committed and which had been dealt with in the proper manner, Because this is missing it gives the impression several of these executions would have been made arbitrarily. In my affidavit of Esel-Heide, this point is still contained, and I pointed out when the affidavit was made, and I referred to this affidavit in Esel Heide, and there I was told, "Yes, we know that," but as I said, it is not recorded and that is what I objected to, and then I said told, "Well, you can do that later on." But because this was missing, I was rather confused because I always told myself, "This will give the wrong impression," and that is how I explained to myself that some other points might have been overlooked but not completely. That is the point which states that one execution was carried out under my supervision. This word "supervision" I did not notice, I overlooked it. This is the execution which I witnessed.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment until we find that place in the affidavit, Will you point it out, Dr. Bergold?

DR. BERGOLD: Yes. It is on Page 2 of the original, Page 112, the first sentence on the top after the sentence with the 2,000 to 3,000 executions. There it says, "I personally superintended an execution in Rostov which was performed by means of a gas truck:"

THE PRESIDENT: Well now, you want to change that?

DR. BERGOLD: Yes, the defendant says that he did not express himself in that manner, and that he overlooked it because he was excited that so much had not been recorded, BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Tell us just how you would word that? In order to have it correct, suppose that as you were reading the affidavit you noticed that this was in error, and you wanted to correct it. Just how would you state it instead of the phrase, "I personally superintended an execution"? Just how would you say that? Show him the affidavit, Dr. Bergold so that he can make the correction right here. Let him have the affidavit. Does he have the affidavit?

A No, I don't have it. As I already said during my interrogation at the time I asked Chief IV at the time to show me an execution by means of the gas van. I took part in this in order to gain an impression about this manner of execution. This was Chief of Department IV.

Q Well now, you have used the phrase, "I took part in this ,"

Q Then your correction is you did not superintend it; you merely witnessed it?

Q So that if we change for the word "superintended" the word "witnessed" then that would correctly express your thought, would it?

Q The correction will be made. Are there any other errors or incomplete statements?

MR. WALTON: May it please the Tribunal, I would like to ask, for a point of information, if Your Honor's order, nunc pro tunc, for making these changes it stops the Prosecution, in their rebuttal, from putting in evidence as to the original form of the affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: No. What eve are doing here is allowing the witness to tell the story as it occurred. There is no order being made at all, Your exhibit which you have presented is an exhibit, and naturally it remains as you presented it.

MR. WALTON: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: But now, for the information of the Tribunal, we are having the witness indicate wherein he declares that an error was made.

MR. WALTON: That is all I wanted to know, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: That is right. BY THE PRESIDENT: the number of executions.

A No, not about the figure as such. I did not discuss this with the prosecutor at the time here in Nuernberg, but I had intended to do that later on, which he said I could. However, I would like to have added that these executions were done according to a proper procedure, owing to a certain activity of the person concerned, That is, the person was not shot arbitrarily, but after a carefully detailed examination That is not expressed here. the affidavit regarding the executions that in each instance, before the man was shot, there was an investigation to determine his guilt?

Q Are there any other corrections you desire to make? that the Einsatzkommando had a surplus of 100,000 marks derived from people to be executed. It states, and I quote: "This amount originated from the people who were to be executed, who had to hand over their money and valuables."

This sum of 100,000 marks came about like this. In August or September. 1943, when I was in Germany, my bookkeeper at that time, who kept books in Berlin, visited me because certain papers had to be signed by me, which I had not yet signed. On that occasion he told me that the money affairs and his settlement were in order, and that there was surprise in Berlin that he had a surplus because this, did not occur in other Commandos, On that occasion he named a figure to me, which I remember was 100,000 marks. I only happened to hear about this, but did not see it. necessary to ascertain this. Nor did I ever say that in this 100,000 marks certain amounts were included which, as I explained this morning, were used for the benefit of the Reich and were confiscated by the Reich from the people who were condemned to death and executed. further information insofar as I ordered, for example, that the black cash register which existed in the Commando be dissolved. That was done by me because it was not permissible for legal funds. This money was then put into the cash register of the entire Commando. I do not know where these funds originated; I found them there.

A Please? to you by the bookkeeper.

Q Yes. Now, was there actually that much money available? Did that much money exist?

A I don't know in detail, but I presume so.

Q All right. Now, where did this money come from?

A I just explained that. It could only have come because, on the one hand, we were very economical, and, on the other hand, because of that illegal fund which was kept in the Commando. This was a fund which was unofficial, which was kept separately. executed?

A I do not know about the origin of this illegal fund; I don't know where it came from. the money was derived from people to be executed? Did you say that to him?

Q Oh, I see. Some of the 100,000 marks represented money taken from people to be executed?

Q You don't know how much of that?

A No, that I can't say.

A Very well; we will make that correction ourselves. All right, any other correction?

A Yes. The decisive point of the whole matter is what I explained in detail today concerning my entire attitude and position within the Commando:

Brigadefuehrer Thomas obliged me by the fact that he sent Sturmbannfuehrer Nehring to help me, to deal with all these questions which had to do with the security of the army territory. For me, this seems to be very important, and this is missing completely.

Q Any other observations on the affidavit?

A Well, at the moment I can't see anything.

Q Well now, we have two affidavits. You are, of course, referring to the one of July 2, 1947.

Q Then there is the one dated 25 June. Do you want to offer any comments on that?

A In Esclheide? from my document book, yes.

Q That is correct. You are not making any observations on this? affidavit: When I was in Esclheide and was interrogated there for the first time, a member of the American Army approached me, and I had full confidence in him at that time. May I point out that before signing this affidavit I did not read it because I had left my glasses in the cell. However, he pointed out to me that that might cause difficulties, but I said that I trusted him blindly because I had a member of the American Army in front of me, and therefore I was not afraid. Up until that time I had not seen the affidavit again. I only have some vague memories about it, but I know that something is contained in this affidavit about the Jews, as I stated, today.

These matters are not contained in the Nuernberg affidavit. therefore I cannot pass judgment on this from memory.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, suppose he looks at it during the recess, and then looks at both affidavits. And then, when we reconvene in 15 minutes, let him give us a complete up-to-date account of what the affidavit should have said.

( A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: Please take your seats. The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may continue, Dr. Bergold

DR. BERGOLD: Yes. BY DR BERGOLD: davit?

A First of all the affidavit of Nurnberg. Here I would like to say that on page -- I think page one of the originals. it says, "The people destined for execution after their money, valuables, and sometimes even clothing was taken away from them," End of quote. In my interrogation I have already said that money and valuables customarily were taken away as soon as the persons ware brought into prison, and not only when the execution took place. Furthermore, it said, sometimes clothing, too. The word "sometimes" may give an erroneous impression insofar as the talking "way of clothing happened in individual cases, if a piece of clothing was needed for other prisoners, where was no definite system for this and there was no definite order to take away the clothing from these people, Concerning the fact given, here, that during execution by gas-van, it says, a few lines farther, "There was no physician present when the bodies were unloaded to certify that the people were really dead." One would have to add that this typo of gas execution guaranteed certain death, and, therefore, a special examination was not necessary. Furthermore, on point five at the end of the paragraph, it says: "In this type of execution no physician was present either." Sofar as I recall I said that in the individual case it was determined whether the person concerned was dead.

THE PRESIDENT: Without any reference to a physician, you didn't mention it, do I understand that what you told the interrogator there, in the individual cases it was determined that the victim was dead but you said nothing about a physician.

Is that what I understand. I just want to find out what you said?

THE PRESIDENT: I understand that. Now you are commenting on paragraph 5, and it is not clear to me--

THE PRESIDENT: Just what change you desire to make in the statement in the affidavit about the physician, that is not clear? cution no physician, was present either. The sentence would have to continue, but in every case it was determined whether the persons concerned were dead, not through a physician, to be sure, but at most by the medical non-commissioned officer. About the affidavit made out at Eselheide, I only have one thing to say. That near the end it says, "I didn't find Jews in Rostov any more." It looks as if I knew something about their presence. I might have said, "I didn't find any Jews in Rostov." By this I mean as I have already said today, I saw no Jewish settlement. The word "more" gives a wrong impression. BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q Is this all that you have to say about this?

DR. BERGOLD: Your Honor, may I now ask the following. As for the ruling which the Tribunal made before, about presenting all exonerating material, I understood that the Prosecution was asked to submit the interrogation transcript.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, if I am not mistaken, I don't think Dr. Bergold will agree with me on that, Dr. Bergold me de application.

DR. BERGOLD: Yes.

MR. HOCHWALD: For this interrogation record, the Prosecution has answered the application of Dr. Bergold.

DR. BERGOLD: Yes.

MR. HOCHWALD: And he is in possession of an order of the court saying that interrogation transcript must not be submitted by the Prosecution. Moreover, the Prosecution intends to use this transcript at a later time.

DR. BERGOLD: I thank the Prosecution. BY DR BERGOLD:

Q Witness, now I come to your testimony itself. In this affidavit, it says that you made your testimony voluntarily. Would you also like to maintain this statement, or would you like to change it?

A I didn't make this testimony voluntarily.

Q Why. What reasons could you give for this?

Q What were you told after you took the oath?

A I was told; you know that it is considered just as serious an offense to omit something from your testimony than if you give some false statement under oath.

Q What conclusions did you draw from this statement? I was asked about. would incriminate you personally? served to you?

A No, I was not told that. The manner of the interrogation gave me the impression that I was to be examined as a witness.

DR. BERGOLD: Thank you. Mr. Hochwald, yesterday, we had a disagreement about the fact that you reproached me on the fact I had made slanderous remarks about the Prosecution, and that I had no proof for it.

May I now point out to you. Mr Hochwald, that in my opening speech I listed three points in which I criticised your procedure. These were briefly the following three points: First, that something had been omitted which was exonerating; secondly, one had told the defendant that he could correct his affidavit later on; and thirdly, that he was not told that he could refuse testimony. In reference to the last mentioned point, Mr Wartenberg admitted during his interrogation that he didn't explain this to the defendant. I would like to say one thing now. I have great esteem for the Prosecution, but I believe that it would be democratic to be allowed to exercise criticism for this thing which is not supposed to be a slander. Criticism is the duty of a lawyer, and I would like to interpret the democratic right, as a son of autocratic Germany, different to the Prosecution, or, perhaps I have too high an opinion of Democracy, but I did only want to criticise, and I didn't want to make any slanderous remark, and, I hope that Mr Hochwald is now convinced I don't want to slander the Prosecution, but merely want to criticize it.

MR HOCHWALD: If Your Honors please, criticism on the part of Dr Bergold is, of course, invited also from the part of the Prosecution, wherever he is in a position to criticize our way of procedure, he certainly is at liberty to do so, and, nobody will object, nor say at least that the Prosecution will try to stop him of that. The only objection is against the form and not against the facts, so I think then that Dr Bergold should not hesitate to say that the form was a little bit too sharp.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. BERGOLD: Mr Hochwald, if one fights one has to use strong weapons, that is the battle order, this is not a cozy conversation or a bridge game, but it concerns life and death, and it is a very serious matter, and, therefore, I have to be harsh because I want to save the life of my client, and, in view of this serious background one must be a little more harsh, but we agree and I am glad that this misunderstanding has been clarified.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, the Tribunal shares your happiness in it. BY DR. BERGOLD: carried out the investigations, and the general penal procedure. Do you have any proof for the fact that the Russians considered this procedure as inhuman?

A No, on the contrary. First of all Russians usually first denounced the perpetrators; secondly, it was the Russian who did preliminary work on the case before submitting it to the commando; and, thirdly, the Russian civilian population was accustomed to something completely different in this respect, Through an interpreter I heard that the Russians, in view of the activity of the commando, had the following to say: "Germany will never win the war since the Germans are not harsh enough." These words male a deep impression on me at the time and disquited me. I often found out with deep concern how little value human life had for a Soviet Russian Citizen, and how easily he dealt with human life, but it is completely so that it is of no matter at all in this case whether he takes some one's life, or whether he is to give his own life.

Q Witness, let's now leave Russia at last. When did you make your application for transfer from your commando? made this application on 9 November 1942. I made this in duplicate, one going to Brigadier General Thomas personally, and the other to the RSHA. Attention Gruppenfuehrer Streckenbach.

Q Did you know that no such application was allowed to be made?

A No, I didn't know this. My case was different anyway, since I could refer to the agreement with Heydrich, and which I had already presented as documentary evidence for Berlin.

Furthermore, I had spoken to the Obersturmbannfuehrer Trautmann in Berlin, and also with the Einsatzgruppen Chief, Dr. Thomas.

Q When did you get an answer to your application? returned to Russia after a leave.

Q How did this answer say?

A It contained only three sentences. It read approximately as follows: As concerns your application of 9 November 1942, I release you from the Security Police, and I have got in touch with the Reich Ministry of Interior about your employment in the Interior Administration. After your return will you please report immediately to the Reich Ministry of Interior.

Q Who signed this? Office-I.

Q What date did it bear?

Q Then it was a long time until this reached you. How do you explain that? communications, such letters unfortunately were often delayed in Russia.

Q Until when were you in Rostov? Army, I had to evacuate the city. Rostov? had actually been completed. On order of the Army, the supply column of the commando was moved back into the rear area, that is, into an area where the civil administration was functioning. Only the staff with a few officials remained in Taganrog, in order to put itself at the disposal of the Division stationed in Tagenrog.

The men of the commandos were at rest, and were recalled by Dr Thomas gradually for the purposes of partisan warfare around Kiev.

Q Were you ever absent from EK 6 and when? 1943 there was a conference in Kiev. Afterwards I went on furlough for four weeks to Germany, and I extended this by having Thomas give me his approval from Kiev by teletype and permitting me to attend a conference in Berlin. Thus it came about that from the beginning of April 1943 until about the 20th or 22nd of May 1943 I was absent from Russia. May 1943 which is contained in Document Book III C, the third to the last, Document Number 2901, Exhibit 145, on page 70 of the English text. Do you recall this teletype message?

Q How do you understand this teletype message? to two other teletype messages which I had received from Kiev, These two messages referred to the recall of the commando from Taganrog into the partisan area. The first teletype message is a general announcement, and the second message is a direct order. It says in there that I was to subordinate myself to the commander at Rowno. I sent this teletype message to Kiev because at the time I already know that my recall was being kept in Berlin. I wanted to point out to the group that it, the group, could not subordinate me to the commander at Rowno since it, the group, could not take the commando away from me. I wanted to prevent my getting a new mission for it is a well-known fact that, if one comes into a new situation, it is sometimes difficult to get out of it again. Upon my teletype message 1 expected some information from Kiev that my order to lead EinsatzKommando 6 would be rescinded and that I could return to Germany.

When I did not got any answer to this teletype message, I personally went to Kiev.

A In Kiev I was not received by Thomas. His adjutant told me that I should immediately put the commando into the partisan area as had been ordered, and now came the decisive thing for me, namely, for me to go to Germany via Kiev.

Q Did you carry out this order in this manner? not ready to proceed, therefore, I had to transport it by rail

Q You don't have to give us all the details. was very difficult under the conditions and could only be approved by the army transportation corps.

Q When did you leave the EK 6?

A On the 16th of June 1943. The train with the commando left for the partisan area where, while 1 went to Kiev by motorcar.

Q What happened in Kiev? with the group told me that Thomas had ordered him to start an investigation against me because of passive military disobedience. This message distressed me greatly, since I knew what kind of an attitude the SS and police court had about military disobedience. I was reproached that I did not move quickly enough. In the meantime, however, I heard that Thomas had reported, to the SS and police leader, that my commando was ready for action too early; since the commando then did not show up for that occasion, he was reprimanded.

Q What punishment were you given then?

A I was glad that I got off easy. I was punished 12 days of house arrest because of passive military disobedience. I was told about this when I bid farewell to Thomas. He said that he attached importance to the fact that we should separate in a friendly manner. Therefore, he would permit me to leave immediately.

Q When did you return to Germany?

Q What did you do in Germany? the RSHA and to the Reich Minister of the Interior, as I had been instructed to do. Interior? the ministerial director. Kramer, who was mentioned to me in the RSHA as the expert about my transfer into the interior administration. From him I learned that it was intended to use me in the Civil Administration in Italy,

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, the date came through as June 1942 when he returned to Germany. I presume it is 1943.

THE WITNESS: '43. BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q When did you get your order to report there? assignment end of February 1944. It told me to report to the Reich Commissioner in Klagenfurt to be employed in the German Civil Administration in the operational area of the Adriatic Coast down to Trieste.

Q Then you were an official in the Civil Administration?

in Trieste.

Q In what department were you active?

Q What was the mission of this department? subdepartment for black market affairs. This subdepartment for blank market affairs was the central organ of the Supreme Commissioner, which cooperated with all agencies dealing in black market affairs. That is, it had to make directives for all German and Italian agencies.

Q Until when were you in Trieste?

A Until the 29th of April 1945. On that day I left the city of Trieste with the last officials following orders and returned to Germany via Klagenfurt.

Q Now, I just have a few more questions. What position did you have in the SS? SS as an Untersturmfuehrer, and I was assigned to the SD main office in an honorary position. I never was an active SS man, that is, one who does his job in full capacity or in honorary capacity, but like many ministry officials, as an honorary, officer. I was a passive member of the SS, that is to say, I had the honor to be allowed to wear the SS uniform but I was no leader of a formation. I had no competence, and I had no other duties other than to behave myself decently as an SS man. On the 30th of January 1939 I was promoted for the last time to Sturmbannfuehrer. Thus I reached the rank which I could customarily reach as an honorary officer and a government councillor, namely, one rank below the rank of officials. Since I remained a government councillor, I was not promoted in the SS. As an honorary officer in the SS with the rank of a Sturmbannfuehrer, I was not an officer, that is, major in the sense of the army or the police because in 1940, even though I was SS Sturmbannfuehrer, I was drafted as a private in the army, and I was discharged as a noncommissioned officer, as an honorary officer.

Does that mean that you were an SD member?

A No. I did not belong to the SD because I had made no application for membership in the SD. Furthermore, in the spring of 1937 through the intervention of a government councillor Flesch, I had given an affidavit for Heydrich that I was not in the SD and had not been given any orders by Heydrich. And, finally, 1 did not do any work for the SD.

Q Were you a member of the Gestapo?

A I was not a member of the Gestapo. As a soldier in 1940, by an order of the army, without knowledge and without my will, I was drafted for war service and I was ordered to go to the chief of the security police and SD, and I was used by him provisionally for one year as a state police officer where in pointing out always my spiritual profession this type of work. Only after this provisional year if I had wanted to do so, the final acceptance of me in the Gestapo could have come about. This did not happen, rather on my application I left without any difficulties. Because of this war order -- because of this provisional war order, I was not given an equivalent rank as official to that in the SS, as this was customary in the police, that is, I was not promoted to Obersturmbannfuehrer as this would correspond to my rank as Senior Government Councillor.

Therefore, I was transferred there as an auxiliary provisional war member and I was not a member of the Gestapo.

Q. And now, the last. You have told me that you wanted to make a correction about the testimony when the President asked you whether you saw a report which mentioned executions. You informed me that you would like to make a statement about this. Please do so now.

A. This morning, Your Honor asked me for the number of people executed by the commando. I said in this connection when the reports were shown to me, as far as I remember, that these reports were made out by Nehring and not by me, that I therefore, saw no reports. It is absolutely possible that during this time I happened to sec a report in which a number was given for a certain period of time. I do not recall such a thing, but to be quite exact, I must point out to this possibility.

DR. BERGOLD: This concludes my direct examination. I would like to thank the Tribunal for their patience and their fairness with which they listened to this difficult case, and I also thank the prosecution that they were so patient.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Do any of the defense counsel desire to cross examine the witness?

DR. BELZER: Belzer for Graf. BY DR. BELZER:

Q. Witness, if you look straight ahead you see this diagram and you see under EK 6 your own name, Biberstein, and below it the name of Graf. I would like to ask you since when do you know the defendant, Matthias Graf?

A. I know the defendant, Matthias Graf, since my stay here in Nuernberg after the indictment was served.

Q. Thus you did not meet the defendant Matthias Graf, at Einsatzkommando 6 either in an official manner nor did you ever hear that name at the trial?

A. During my time with the kommando I had no official contact with Graf. I had no contact whatever with him, but in the Kommando I heard the name of Graf somewhere in some connection.

Q. Did you hear anything of the name, Matthias Graf before you came to Nuernberg and outside of your service in Kommando 6?

A. No, but I add that I never heard the first name. At the time I heard something about a man named Graf but I heard the name, Matthias, I heard the first name for the first time when I was interrogated in Eselheide. I was asked by the interrogator whether I knew a certain Matthias Graf, which I denied because it was the truth.

Q. I understand your answer to me that you do not know anything about a special mission which the defendant, Matthias Graf, had in October 1942 in Rostov and which he is alleged to have carried out there?

A. No, the interrogator asked me about such a special mission. I was not able to give him any information about it.

Q. Since you only got to know Graf here and did not know anything about him before in an official manner, I must submit to you two statements before I can ask my next question. According to his own statement, the highest rank of the defendant, Graf, during his membership in EK 6 was Oberscharfuehrer. According to his further statement, Herr Graf only was concerned with making out SD reports about Department III. I now ask you according to your official knowledge-

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, the defense counsel for the defendant, Graf, has questioned the witness now for several minutes and the witness has answered several times COURT II CASE IX that he did not know Graf, he had no knowledge about his position, and so on.

I do think this question which the defense counsel is just going to ask is not admissible. He said he did not know him, that is all he can say. I do not think that he can ask him whether he know that something was not said. He did not know anything; he heard the name of Graf, and nothing also, and I do think that that covers the ground the defense counsel is supposed to cover with this question.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Belzer, if somebody excludes all knowledge on a subject, then it is unnecessary to ask him if he is also ignorant of the little bite which fit into this all ignorance.

DR. BELZER: I am coming to the question, "Could Graf have been the Chief of Department III or was he only an expert?" That was the purpose of the question.

DR. HORLICK--HOCHWALD: But I do think, Your Honor, that this question is absolutely inadmissible.

THE PRESIDENT: If someone says he knows nothing about Abyssinia, then could you ask him, "Well, is it possible that Mr. X is the Chief of Police there?"

DR. BELZER: Not in this form, but I can put the question generally, "Could an Oberscharfuehrer be head of Department III?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, that's a different thing. Then you qualify this man as an expert in SS -

DR. BELZER: Yes, as a kommando leader, according to his official experience in the departments of EK. 6.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, that would be proper, If you want to ask him whether someone with a certain rank could hold a certain position, yes, that's proper.

Q. (By Dr. Belzer) Then I ask you generally, Witness, could a Scharfuehrer or an Oberscharfuehrer in the Einsatzkommando 6 be the Chief of Department III?

A. From what I found in EK 6, the chiefs of the various departments in the staff of the Einsatzkommando were officers. The Chief of Department III was SS Obersturmfuehrer in my kommando.

Q. Then I have one final question. In Einsatzkommando 6, as far as you knew the conditions, were the Experts III used for police measures in Department IV?

A. No, for they had enough to do with their SD work, because partly they were not experienced men and therefore they needed a long time to get accustomed. I cannot remember such a case.

DR. BELZER: I thank you. I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Any other defense, counsel who desires to cross-examine the witness may do so.

MR. Hochwald, there being no other cross-examination on the part of defense counsel, will you now proceed?

DR. BERGOLD (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT BIBERSTEIN): Your Honor, I have a request. I observe that my client has become blue in the fact. He has a heart ailment and after this strenuous day I want to know if he is able to stand it; I don't want him to get sick.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, it is a quarter after four and we are certainly willing to accept your suggestion that the Tribunal will now recess. 9:30.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 24 November 1947, at 0930 hours.)

A. Musmanno, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

ALBERT HARTEL, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows;

JUDGE SPEIGHT: Raise your right hand and repeat after me: pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

( The witness repeated the oath.)

JUDGE SPEIGHT: Be seated. BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q. Witness, please speak slowly because of the translation. Furthermore, I ask you to pause after each of my questions so that the interpreter can finish translating the question before you gegin with your answer. Do we understand each other?

A. Yes.

Q. Thank you. What is your name; when and where were you born?

A. My name is Albert Hartel, H-A-R-T-E-L. I was born on the 13th of November, 1904, in Ross-Holzen, Upper Bavaria.

Q. Who were your parents?

A. My father was Albert Hartel, a teacher. My mother was Babette Hartel. Her maiden name was Obermayer.

Q. What was your original profession?

A. I studied philosophy and Chatholic theology, and I was originally a Catholic theologian.

Q. What did you do during the Third Reich down to the end of the war?

A. Down to the end of 1933-1934 I was a teacher of religion at different seminaries and higher institutions of learning. Around the trun of the year, 1933-1934, for reasons of religious conviction, and for reasons of common sense, I left the church service. I was asked by the church to return several times. When I did not comply with this request I was suspended from my offices for reasons of refusal to obey the church order. At the beginning of the year, 1934, Himmler whose father and cousin I knew very well, gave me a scholarly commission, and in 1940 I got the order to take care of the Church Information Service in the SD Main Office, that is to say the later RSHA, and to build this service up. It was my job in this to get in touch with high-ranking church personalities of all confessions and to win them over for cooperation with the SD. Around the turn of the year, 194142, I was sent to Russia. There I obtained a special mission to study the spiritual situation in the Soviet Union, and in the second half of the year 1942, I was temporarily charged with leadership of the Departments I and II with the command of the Security Police in Kiev. The first half of the year 1943 I spent in several hospitals. After that I left the service in the full capacity and lived as a free-lance writer, and was known as a so-called V-man, in which capacity I worked for Office VI of the RSHA.

Q. When did you get to know the Defendant Biberstein?

A. I met him about the end of 1935 or beginning of 1936.

Q. On what occasion did you meet him?

A. Biberstein was in the church Ministry. He was a liaison officer from the Church Ministry to the Gestapo, and merely the facr that he was a Protestant thrologian and I was a former Catholic theologian, of course, brought with it many common interests.

Q. Is the fact that Biberstein was liaison between the church Ministry and the Gestapo, was that something special, or did the Ministry have liaison officers to other agencies?

A. All ministries had liaison officers to all kinds of agencies and in the Church Ministry too there were liaison officers detailed to various agencies, such as the Office Rosenberg, and to similar agencies.

Q. Do you know that the Catholic department in the Church Ministry had a liaison man to the Gestapo?

A. On the Catholic side the situation was as follows: A Catholic priest, Joseph Roth, was himself a director of the Catholic department in the Church Ministry.

Q. Was he a liaison man with the Gestapo?

A. He maintained contact with the most varied agencies. Mr. Roth, the catholic priest, was, for example, liaison man between the Church Ministry and the Office Rosenberg. In addition to that the Catholic Church also had another institution. It had its own Bishop Wienken, who had his own office in Berlin where he maintained contact with all Reich Agencies.

Q. Was this man Roth active without the approval of the Catholic Church, or did Cardinal Faulhaber approve?

A. According to the Concordate between the Vatican and the Reich Government, the regulation was that Catholic Priests who wanted to have a State Office needed the approval of the Catholic Church, or of their Bishop. That applied to all the religious teachers, theological teachers, and so forth since they all were civil servants in the Third Reich. Roth, before he came to the Church Ministry was already a religious teacher at the Maria Theresia High School, thus he did no longer need a formal approval before he could take over the position at the Church Ministry. Of course the church could have revoked the approval at any time. Such a revocation did not take place, and, therefore, Roth was considered an official recognized by the church. He always was on terms of cordian understanding with the various Bishops, they frequently called on him. He also enjoyed great respect with the Party, and, for instance received honorary tickets for the Party rally from Hitler for the Papal Easter Celebrations in Rome.

Q. That suffices. What job did these liaison men to the Gestapo have?

A. Their mission was partly merely a missenger role when it was a matter of transmitting requests or messages from the Bishop to the Chief of the Gestapo, and partly when it was a matter of subordinate a gencies, as of the office chief of the Gruppen-leiter of the Gestapo.

Then he had in all matters that concerned the Gestapo and the Church Ministry mutually to negotiate directly.

Q. Did these liaison men thus become members of the Gestapo?

A. No.

Q. Did they become members of the SD in this way?

A. No, they didn't.

Q. Are you of the opinion that Biberstein because of these activities already had an exact insight into the activities and aims of the Gestapo or the SD?

A. No, this in itself contradicted the purpose of the Information Service.

MR. HOCHWALD: Your Honor, I would think that is is necessary to rephrase this question. Dr. Bergold asked the witness what was his opinion: it would probably be good to have the witness say why he came to that conclusion, what the basis of this opinion was.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Dr. Bergold, it is not a question of opinion but a question of what he knows?

DR. BERGOLD: No, it is a question of his judgement here. He cannot know exactly what Biberstein knew, but he can only judge in general, whether it was possible or impossible, but then I shall ask him how he came to this judgment?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: It was in contradiction to the manner of conducting the Information Service to allow an outsider any insight into the details of activity. That was the basic principle with every Information Service. If the Information Service had to give the newest and often most secret information to these official agencies, then this must not be immediately publicized, and later there was an express order from Hitler that no one must learn about anything except what was absolutely necessary for his special activity. Furthermore, the SD Main Office handled matters in such a way, that within the various departments, there was a law of secrecy, and there were many secrets, and no department would initiate another department into its activity as long as it was not absolutely necessary, and this was certainly true for an outsider.

Q. In the course of these activities, did Biberstein get into any contact with the SS?

A. In the course of the activity, he was taken into the SS as an honorary officer. I do not know exactly whether as an Untersturmfuehrer, or as an Obersturmfuehrer, but in any case it was one of the lowest officers rands.

Q. Did this appointment result in the fact that he had to perform a professional activity for the SS?

A. This appointment didn't change anything in the activity he was carrying out.

Q. Was Biberstein promoted quickly in the SS, or was he not promoted quickly?

A. Up to the rank of Sturmbannfuehrer he was promoted normally. After that he was no longer promoted. He didn't even get the rank to which he was entitled on the basis of his official position, because he was in the Senior Government Counsellorship, but he remained a Sturmbannfuehrer, however.

Q. Can you tell me for what reason the promotion didn't go through? Do you know the reason?

A. In the later time there was a strong lack of confidence and a great distrust for all theologians: partly there was a fight against former theologians. They were suspected of being Jesuits, and were not promoted in the same degree as they had been previously. At the same time it must be added in the case of Biberstein, that he was considered very soft, and, therefore, it was said about him that he didn't fit into the Gestapo.

Q. Did the activity of Biberstein in the Church Ministry proceed in a satisfactory manner, or did he have differences of opinion with the Ministry?

A. With the exception of the early days, Biberstein had very many differences with the Church Ministry. His Chief, Minister Kerl was of a very explosive temperament, on the one hand he would decide this way today, the other way tomorrow, and on the other hand, he had a basic principle in his church policy, which contradicted our philosophy, for we from the SS tried basically to achieve a peaceful separation between the church and the State in an agreement with the Vatican, the way it was done in many Democracies. The Church Ministry, however tried to achieve a State Church which according to our convictions, was absolete. Thus there were great objective differences outside of the personal differences between Biberstein and his chief.

Q. What results did these differences have as far as the promotion of Biberstein was concerned?

A. Biberstein was no longer promoted, whereas his Catholic Colleague, the Catholic Priest Roth very quickly was promoted Ministerial Director, but Biberstein was taken into the Ministry as a Senior Government Counsellor, as it corresponded to his previous position -- the position of Dean -- and then he was no longer promoted after that.

Q. Can you tell me -- I withdraw the question. What picture do you have of the character of Biberstein; was he an idealist, or just an ambitious man?

A. May I answer this question at the end, please?

Q. Yes.

A. I think it will become clearer then.

Q. Do you know that Biberst ein was drafted in the beginning of the war?

A. Yes, at the beginning of the war Biberstein was drafted, and he had a very low rank in the Army. I once saw him in uniform, and I believe he was a PFC, or at the most a corporal.

In any case, he wasn't more than a corporal.

Q. Do you know for what reason Biberstein was disignated indispensable, and was transferred to the SD?

A. Yes. One day I was ordered to report to Heydrich, and Heydrich told me very harshly, "Hartel, what do you have against Biverstein? Why do you want to see him out of the Church Ministry?" I told him that I had nothing against him, but that he himself had personally expressed the wish to leave the Church Ministry at the very next opportunity. Heydrich thereupon told me, "Good, I will get him out of there," and shortly afterwards Biberstein was made indispensable for the Reich Ministry, or the Gestapo. I don't know exactly what it was.

Q. Did Biberstein apply for such a transfer?

A. Biberstein told me at the time that he didn't know anything about it previously.

Q. Is it correct then that this transfer resulted merely from a conference between Heydrich and you, in your opinion?

A. Yes, but I never heard of the reasons by which that question of Heydrich of what I had against Biberstein could have been caused.

Q. But you understood the question to mean..or, how did you understand the question, whether Heydrich wanted to keep Biberstein in the Church Ministry, or whether he wanted to get him out of there?

A. First when Heydrich wanted to know whether I had any objections against Biberstein, or was he my enemy, or if I had anything against him. He must have heard from somebody, or sother, a remark to the effect that it would be a good idea if Biberstein would leave the Church Ministry, but I don't know the exact background. In any case, the result of this conference was that Heydrich immediately planned on his part to get Biberstein out of the Ministry.

Q. What job or position did Heydrich want to give Biberstein?

A. Heydrich wanted to make Biberstein a Police President, or at least a Police Director.

Q. And what position did he get?

A. There were continuous tensions at the time between the regular police and the security police, and, therefore, as he told me later, Heydrich didn't succeed immediately to get Biberstein a position as Police president, because there were many applicants for that position within the regular police ranks, and Heydrich explained to me that until a position as Police President became available, he would make Biberstein the head of a State Police Agency.

Q. Was this command to be his final position, his final mission?

A. No. Heydrich told me from the beginning that this was only a temporary solution until he would get a position as Police President.

Q. Because of his former profession as a Priest, did Biberstein have difficulties among the Gestapo people, or didn't his early profession make any difference?

A. Biberstein had great difficulties. I was a witness when the then Chief of Office I, Streckenbach, told the then Chief of Office IV, Mueller, by telephone that he had received the order to give Biberstein a State Police position, and that both were angry due to the fact that Biberstein had no previous training in the police department, and that in view of his soft attitude it was senseless to give him such a position.

Q. Did you see Biberstein again during the war?

A. Biberstein was commanding officer of an Einsatzcommando in Rostov, and I do not know exactly whether it was the name of Einsatzcommando, or a special commando, or a commander I don't know, and his job was of two-fold mission, Information Service and Executive; the two missions which in the Reich were subdivided, one to the Gestapo and the Criminal Police as Security Police, and the other to the SD, as the Information Service.

Q. Did he thus become a full time member of the SD through this activity?

A. Through this activity he didn't. There were a number of people from other agencies who had been detailed for the Einsatz, but through the fact of the Einsatz they didn't automatically become members of the SD.

Q. When you met Biberstein again in Kiev, did you hear from him that he had made an application to be transferred back to Germany?

A. Whether he told me about this, I don't know. In any case, he was very unhappy in this position, was very angry, and explained again and again that he wanted to get out of this "pig-sty".

Q. Did Biberstein have a deputy in his office?

A. Originally he had not, but in the course of time, I don't know exactly when, so far as I recall, a Sturmbannfuehrer or Obersturmbannfuehrer Nehring was given to him as a deputy.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, just what was Biberstein referring to as a "pig-sty"?

THE WITNESS: Well, I had used the term "sauladen", but it is about the same. I think he was disgusted.

Q. Well, naturally, he was disgusted, but just what did he mean by a "pig-sty"? When you call something a "pig-sty" certainly you are disgusted, but just what were you referring to?

A. He referred partly to his chief or commander of the Einsatzgruppe, Dr. Thomas, with whom he had very violent differences, and then it referred to his entire activity. It did not agree with his character to carry out executive measures.

Q. What do you mean by executive measures?

A. Execution of sabotuers, or other cases, I didn't know what were the individual cases.

Q. Well, did you understand that Biberstein was conducting executions himself?

A. Whether persoanlly, I don't know, but he gave the order, to rather, sofar as I remember after a through investigation he probably had given the order.

Q. Did he himself give the orders for executions?

A. That was the mission of a commander, to decide these things so far as I know.

Q. How many executions did he order, do you know?

A. I don't know. BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q. Witness, did you see or did you observe Biberstein in his ac tivities in Rostov?

A. No, at the time he was in Rostov I was not in Rostov, but I observed the activity of his predecessor in Stalino, or rather I heard people tell about it.

Q. You only saw Biberstein in Kiev?

A. Yes.

Q. As you say, in June 1943?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Is that the correct year? He then went back to the Reich with you?

A. Yes, that is right. We travelled together for a short distance, and somewhere in Rovno we separated.

Q. Do you know whether in the District of Biberstein, mass executions took place at any time?

A. I didn't hear anything about this.

Q. What job did Einsatzgruppefuehrer Thomas have primarily?

A. From the Spring on, when I could observe his activity, Dr. Thomas considered the partisan warfare as his basic mission. The partisan problem in 1942 was the center of his whole activity.

Q. Do you know anything about Thomas' motive for such a specific activity?

A. That was a two-fold motive: For one thing the partisan danger in the north of his area, and in the forests, in the Pripjat marshes, in the upper Dnjepr River, was very great; whereas, in the south, in the plains, where there were no forests, there were, of course, no partisans to this extent, and in the south, therefore, the partisan danger was actually very great and the Army, complained about the interruption of the supply lines by the partisans, and the civil agencies, especially the agricultural leaders, had very much to suffer from the partisans; that was a very objective necessity. At the same time Dr. Thomas was very ambitious, and he wanted to earn his medals, he had a "sore throat", as we used to say.

That also probably played a part, but the basic reason which was the objective necessity.

"sore throat" means in German War language. which one wore around the neck. keen nature of this partisan warfare?

A Yes. Dr. Thomas set up his own partisan combatting staff into which a number of officers were called and the higher SS and police leader Pruetzmann also set up his own partisan combatting staff. Then they took care of the ordnance supply which was necessary to fight partisans, for instance mortars. During the second half of the year 1942 I had the temporary direction of the supply of arms which belonged to Department 2, and I had to worry about mortars and heavy arms in order to combat the partisans. The people of the partisan staff always had access to Thomas, whereas the other people often had to wait very long to see him. Then he himself flow around with an airplane, or he travelled in a special train in the especially crucial partisan areas.

Q Such arms which you have just mentioned weren't they usually with the Einsatzkommandos or Einsatzkommando groups? the army.

Q Is it true or don't you know whether Thomas had a special partisan fighting staff within his staff?

A Yes. I think I have mentioned that he had his own partisan staff. The chief of his partisan staff was simultaneously the G-2 of the partisan fighting staff of the Obergruppenfuehrer Pruetzmann.

units in order to fight the partisans. any statements from Thomas on the subject? he did not like the former theologians and because Biberstein was much too soft for him. Furthermore, Biberstein had a disciplinary proceeding at the end, but what the matter concerned was, I don't know exactly. It was some kind of a complicated matter, but Thomas was very furious and even threatened to have Biberstein shot for military disobedience at the front, but afterwards this proceeding must have been pigeon-holed.

Q Who was Biberstein's predecessor in the EK-6? not know. I know the predecessor in Stalino. I think that was EK-6 but I cannot say this exactly. I was in Stalino twice and there I met Sturmbannfuehrer Moor. Perhaps he was his predecessor, but I do not know exactly.

Q That is correct. Did you have a conference with this Moor about the executions? through southern Russia, and make an extensive report about the spiritual situation in the Soviet Union. At this occasion I visited hundreds of artists, scholars, bishops, etc. and I visited all the scholarly institutes in this area, and I also visited the Einsatzkommandos and asked their commanding officers about the spiritual life in their area. During this conference Moor also told me about his activity, and he told me that after very thorough investigations, after exact examinations he frequently had to have executions carried out. I also remember a statement made by Gruppenfuehrer Dr. Thomas that he was not very sympathetic to this method.

He once objected very strenuously to it that once could not get anywhere with these pedantic legal methods as practiced by Moor .... BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q We don't know who the "he" is. You spoke of Thomas and Moor. Then you have been using a pronoun since, "he". Now, do you mean "Moor" or "Thomas"?

A The last time I meant Thomas. Thomas told me that he had no patience with the correct methods of Moor, and likewise with the correct methods, the way Herr Ohlendorf carried them out, that he did not agree with these methods. Thomas had great antipathy for Ohlendorf just because of his bureaucratic pedantic correctness, as he called it. Thomas said that in Russia one would have to be more generous. BY DR. BERGOLD: explained that he was carrying out executions only after exact investigations? second time in June, I think. The second visit was occasioned by a report which the local SD expert, Graf, had made about the orthodox theologians and their various contacts with the NKVD or to the monarchists or other circles. And this report of the intelligence man at that commando, Graf, interested me very much, of course. So that I visited Stalino once more. Whether the conversation took place during the first or the second visit, I cannot say any more. there were Ukrainians -- Ukrainian militia competent for investigations?

commanders that members of the Ukrainian militia were in the office of the commanding officer and handed in reports about certain occurrences. activity in Russia altogether, did you get to know the so-called Jewish Order, that is an order by Hitler according to which Jews, according to their membership in the Jewish race had to be executed? an order, but on the basis of various facts I concluded that somebody, namely, a very high instance, had given such an order. within the RSHA? BY THE PRESIDENT: spiritual life in Russia? my report. I made out a very extensive report at the time.

Q Did you see him from time to time in Russia?

A No. I only saw him in Russia in 1943 when he had his proceeding against him.

Q Where was this? and he was also in Kiev at the same time because of a disciplinary proceeding. He had been called away from his headquarters. He was inactive in Kiev at the time, and I was inactive and because of our former acquaintance we, of course, talked about various matters.

spiritual things, did you not? specific problem which we might have discussed. each of you found it through your own theological eyes? any specific details about this conversation because I talked with many people about my observations. churches in Russia, the different denominations? there were still smaller groups, such as the Baptists, the Mennonites, and similar groups, but the Orthodox church was subdivided into three main tendencies.

Q I don't mean for you to give me the description of the various churches, you also naturally discussed the Jewish religion, didn't you - the Jewish church? out of my sphere. There was a completely independent Jewish department. It is true that, before the beginning of the war, I was supposed to direct the Jewish Department 2, but .....

Q Well, now, just a minute. You went to Russia to study the spiritual attitude of the people, and you called on various commando leaders and asked them what they found among the population from the spiritual point of view, that is correct, isn't it?

of the Jewish attitude would come up, would it not, from the spiritual side? it would be the natural thing talking about these various churches, the Orthodox Church, the Baptist Church, and so on, also to say something about the Jewish spiritual attitude in Russia? remote because as far as I know there were very few Jews in this area. had many discussions with him, you were both there awaiting some further orders. You had leisure time, and you talked. Now, in these various conversations it would be a natural thing in talking about those churches, the different religions, to say something about the Jews also, wouldn't that be the natural thing, especially for two theologians in conversation? the Jewish problem was such an unpleasant problem for all of us, and such a delicate problem that if one had nothing direct to do with it, one evaded it. interesting subject to you, would it not, your discussing the spiritual values of a people and there are many Jews among those people - wouldn't you naturally, especially in conversation with a brother theologian, say something about what you found among the Jews, or what people said about the Jews?

Q No, No. We are talking about your conversation with Biberstein. I cannot remember that we discussed this problem in detail.

Q In your report did you talk about the Jews? you did not discuss the Jewish situation in detail, but you did make some reference to the Jewish situation in Russia, didn't you?

A I did not say that I didn't say anything about it, but I merely cannot remember any specific detail. conversations?

A Yes. We discussed various things, but whether during my conversation with Biberstein, I do not know, but in various conversations I had.

Q I am speaking about Biberstein. Now, please, in your conversation with Biberstein, did you not, as two brother theologians, make some reference to the Jewish situation and talk about it, it would be the most natural thing in the world, I see nothing illogical about that? natural, of course, it is very probable that we talked about it.

Q All right, now, if you talked about it, wouldn't the most logical thing in the world be to discuss this business of the execution of the Jews? Wouldn't that be natural? That would be the biggest subject, the Jews were being killed and you didn't approve of it, and wouldn't you mention that to him, you know about this, you didn't see the order, but you had heard about it as you have told us, on the basis of certain facts you came to the conclusion that someone in high office had ordered the Jews be killed, and here you are with your brother theologian discussing things leisurely, and you talk about Jews.

Now, wouldn't it be the most logical thing to talk about this order, about killing the Jews? rather I would have to lie if I said we talked about it because I cannot remember that we did, but it is very possible, in fact, very probable that we talked about it. BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q Witness, but you know nothing definite? basis of what the president has said? talked about it, but I cannot remember details. was housed in a special building separate from all the others?

A Yes. It was in its own building under the leadership of Eichmann. This building in the Kurfuerstenstreet was completely separate and was guarded, and no member of any other department of the RSHA was able to enter if he had no proof that he had some official business there. RSHA about the so-called "Jewish Order"? about this order and didn't hear anything. I didn't see the order myself nor did I read it, nor did I hear its wording, but I knew from various facts, or rather, I could conclude from various facts that such an order had been given.

of the RSHA told you positively about the order.

Q Then I have a last question. When did you see Biberstein the last time in Russia?

Q Thank you. Oh pardon me, I have another question. Witness, please give a picture of Biberstein's character as it appeared to you. This is a question which you didn't answer before. I knew from people who know him in his capacity as dean, for example, Brigadier General Hahn, who lived in the same community in which Biberstein was dean, that Biberstein was a great idealist, and he was a national socialist because of full conviction and idealism. I do not consider him as a more ambitious man, but as an absolute idealist. On the basis of the conversations in Kiev, this picture became a little more complete. If I want to mention this, I must go into some detail. I got to know three main groups of people in the Einsatzgruppen. The one group consisted of those who carried out their orders correctly and exactly and for whom the authority who gave the orders was valid, who were very conscious about exact investigations and proceedings the way Thomas reproached Ohlendorf, who either because they were accustomed to comply with the orders exactly or because of their blind adoration of Adolf Hitler carried out the orders and who did not consider themselves competent to criticize these orders in any fashion.

The second group were people who received their orders, but, because they were somewhat different people, soft people, they immediately developed conflicts between their conscience and these orders, who suffered very much, because of these orders and because of their activity. I got to know people who went completely to pieces, who were completely broken and sometimes there were even individual catastrophes. Certain cases -

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Bergold, now he has mentioned Group No. II. Now if he is going to start to give us a lot of individual cases, I think we might be drifting quite far afield, don't you think? He mentioned a third group. I should like him to start on group 3.

THE WITNESS: The third group consists of people who also developed conflicts about these orders and immediately tried to got out of the kommando as soon as possible or who knew how to evade the orders and who very soon were relieved because they were too soft, as one was telling in general about Brigadier General Schulz. It was said that he was relieved because he was too soft. Whether this is correct I do not know, but that is what people were saying.

Q (By Dr. Bergold) Witness, now it would interest me to have you say something about Biberstein.

A Biberstein belonged to this third group. He tried by all means to get out of these conflicts and to get into some other activity.

DR. BERGOLD: Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: I would really like to say, Dr. Bergold, I think we ought to inform Dr. Mayer for the Defendant Braune that in the event the Defendant Biberstein is not well enough to take the stand for the cross-examination which is still pending then, when you have completed with this witness entirely, Dr. Mayer will take up the defense of the Witness Braune.

Very well. The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. RIEDIGER (for defendant Haensch): Your Honor, I would like you to permit me to put a few questions to the witness, for the defendand Haensch.

THE PRESIDENT: Certainly you may do so. Just before you begin, I would like to make an announcement for the benefit of Dr. Bergold. Dr. Bergold, it seems that your client will be in condition to come to the courtroom to testify and I think it would be much better if we could dispose of the cross examination today rather than put it off to a later time.

Very well. You may proceed. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q Witness, do you know the defendant Haensch?

Q Where did you meet him? Office.

Q When and how, and in what capacity, was he active in this office? my memory, joined the SD Main Office. At that time he was in charge of disciplinary and welfare questions in Office I. If I am not mistaken this department was formed into a Gruppe later on.

Q How long was he in this office, in your opinion? campaign.

Q Do you know when that was? because when, in the beginning of January, I arrived at Kiev he was not yet there. That was during the first days of January. Reich Security Main Office went to the Gruppe leaders of Office I.

A I do not think so. Reports from the East, according to my memory, were only submitted to those people who had something to do with the contents of those reports - that is, the Eastern situation. I myself received the Eastern reports as long as I was active in the Berlin office because on various occasions notices were brought in about connections of the NKWD and the Orthodox clergy and other problems. These were mentioned quite shortly, by the way. According to the secrecy decree, I consider it impossible that a sub-department chief, or Referent of Office I, ever received these reports. Even later, during the first half of 1942, when I was, very briefly, in charge of Departments I and II in Kiev, I did not receive these reports any longer, but only during my activity in Berlin, that is, until the end of 1941. As I said, therefore, according to my experiences I deem it impossible that these department chiefs and Referents of Department I ever received these reports. Russian campaign. Will you please do so now.

A That was in the end of 1941 end the beginning of 1942. At the end of 1941 I received the order to go to Russia and in the beginning of 1942, the beginning of January, I arrived in Kiev.

DR. RIEDIGER: Thank you very much.

THE PRESIDENT: Any other defense counsel desiring to cross examine the witness will please step to the podium. BY DR. HEIM (for the defendant Blobel): examination, you arrived at the end of 1941 or the beginning of 1942.

Q Where were you during the first half of 1942?

A I was partly in Kiev, partly on the way; but I always arrived back in Kiev.

that time? because I was subordinated to him.

Q That suffices, witness. Witness, do you know where SK 4-a was stationed at that time?

Q Do you know who was the leader of SK 4-a at that time?

A I do not know. I am not acquainted with the figures. I always had a bad memory for figures, and if you tell me now where the SK-4 was stationed I might be able to find it because my memory for locations is better than my memory for figures.

Q Do you know where Blobel was at that time? remember - he was at Charkov.

Q Do you know how long he was there? mately... it was either at the beginning of March - in fact, it is very probable it was in the beginning of March - that Heydrich was in Kiev, and on that occasion Blobel was also in Kiev, and he told me that Heydrich had informed him that he was going to be relieved and that he had a new assignment for him, but that before this would take place he would go on recreation leave.

Q Do you know when Blobel arrived back in Berlin?

A I assume, if he wasn't in Berlin before this transfer, that he must have arrived in Berlin immediately after. That must have been in March or April - presumably, at least, and he must have gone on recreation leave after that. Any way, he was not in Kiev at that time. This visit of Heydrich was a short while before he was shot. According to my memory Heydrich was shot at the end of April 1942. The visit, therefore, was before that. At the same time there is another date which I remember. That is the fact that Heydrich at that time said, "Hartel, your three months in Russia are almost over now.

I shall fetch you back to Berlin very soon. I shall no longer need you here." But this transfer did not come about because Heydrich was shot. According to this, therefore, I can assume that the visit must have been approximately at the beginning of March because he said that three months of my assignment would be over soon.

Q Did you know Dr. Thomas, witness?

A Yes. I knew him. I had known him since the first beginnings of his activities in the SD. It was in Wiesbaden at that time. I think he held the rank of Hauptscharfuhrer, or something of that sort, and I certainly watched his rapid promotion to Gruppenfuehrer.

Q Witness, do you know that Dr. Thomas had an estate in the vicinity of Kiev, by the name of Birkenhof? put at the disposal of Dr. Thomas? not move until Spring 1942. That is my estimate. Of course, I am not quite certain but he wont there quite often in winter already because it was being worked upon; but I believe that he only moved in in Spring. the Prosecution. In this affidavit you maintain, under number 3, that in March or April 1942 you met the defendant Blobel in Kiev and that on that occasion you had a little drive to the estate of Dr. Thomas.

A Yes, yes...along that road, in the direction of the estate... because that was the usual road if one wanted to go into the neighborhood for some fresh air...it was quite beautiful as far as landscape was concerned, and if one did not want to take the other possibility, over the Dneper, one went there because the Dneper road was really not so good, and there was a lot of traffic there, one could not go there so quickly. If one wanted to get some fresh air this was the best road, in the direction of the estate.

the first half of 1942, Blobel had been... that according to your opinion he had been in the vicinity of Charkov. beginning of 1942.

Q Where was Blobel in February or March or April 1942?

Q When did he go on leave? because he said that Heydrich had told him that he would go into a new assignment but before that he would go on leave, because physically Blobel was in a bad condition, and even psychologically he seemed somewhat exhausted and Thomas told me at that time, in his own way of speaking... he said that with Blobel the film constantly tears -- that means that psychologically he was extensively exhausted because he could no longer carry out decent work. in Kiev in the presence of Heydrich... you saw him there.

A Yes, at least during those days. I cannot remember it exactly. It must have been during those days because the conversation revolved around this subject about Heydrich's activities. that, or just once?

A I do not remember. In any case, I don't remember any discussions lasting any length of time. Blobel to Birkenhof? according to my memory, at the beginning of March. Originally I thought that it might have been a little later than that, but now, realizing the connections I believe that according to what Heydrich said at that time it cannot have been later than the beginning of April because Heydrich was no longer living then, and it could not have been in February, in my opinion, because at the latest or the earliest day it could have been the last day of February because Heydrich said to me on that occasion that my three months are almost up and he would take me back to Berlin.

From that I must conclude that it must have been at the beginning of March.

Q Witness, did you go by car?

Q Was that the service car of the Defendant Blobel?

A No, I believe not. I think it must have been an office car.

Q Witness, did you meet Dr. Thomas on his estate at Birkenhof? Thomas or some such person, but it was only our intention to have some fresh air, and I don't think that Thomas on that occasion lived at Birkenhof yet. statement, I mean, to the effect that you took a common drive to get to the estate. I did not say in the affidavit that I went for a discussion with Thomas. We just drove along the road because it was the nicest and the most comfortable road, and that is why we went there. That was the locality where one could go if one wanted to leave the town for a bit and where one could have some fresh air. pointed out a place to you in the vicinity of the cemetery saying that Jews had been buried there who had been executed by him and his commando.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Heim, can you refer us to that document?

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, I only have the document number. The document number is NO-5384.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, this document was offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 180 during the cross-examination of Defendant Blobel, but the Tribunal ruled that the exhibit should be accepted after the examination of the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Oh, I see.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: So it was only offered for identification then.

THE PRESIDENT: So that we physically do not possess it?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: The copy was handed to the Tribunal, and I do think that also the exhibit is in the archives of the General Secretary, but I am sure that your Honors have received copies of the affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q (By Dr. Heim) Witness, I repeat my question. In your document, you said, I quote. It is on Page 1 of the original document, Page 2 of the German copy, "On a common drive to the estate of the Commander in Chief in Kiev, Dr. Thomas, in the vicinity of the town near a cemetery, Blobel pointed out a place to me, told me that Jews had been buried there whom he had shot with his commando." That is the end of my quotation. Witness, is this statement exactly - is it correct as it is put in the affidavit?

Q In the affidavit it says, furthermore, I quota, "There was an old tank ditch which was dug Later." That is the end of my quotation.

THE PRESIDENT: Not which was dug later, which was later filled in. There is a great difference.

THE INTERPRETER: Yes, that is a mistake on my part, I think, my mistake. I didn't hear. Which was patched later or filled in, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: All right.

Q (By Dr. Heim) Witness, if that had been a ditch and had been filled in, how could you see that it had been a tank ditch? a shattering impression on me at the time. It was snowy, and on one particular spot we touched the spot, the earth still exploded. There were some kind of eruptions , a kind of explosion, and I asked Blobel what that was, and he said, "Here my Jews are buried." And it was that in this tank ditch there were so many corpses heaped up that when they disintegrated, the dirt over this ditch, this earth, of course, tore on occasions.

Q Witness, you haven't answered my question. How could you see that on this point former tank ditches had been? buried whom he had executed with his commando?

Q Or did he say to you, as you just said, "Here my Jews are buried"?

A He said, "Here my Jews - here are my Jews." And when I asked him, he told me that this was tank ditch, had been a tank ditch, and that there were two points in the vicinity of Kiev, the one place which we were just touching, and there was another place or another spot which I do not know and I did not know, and I didn't ask for, and he told me that on this spot he had shot Jews with his commando, and thus the explanation, "Here are my Jews," has to be understood.

Q If I understood you correctly, Dr. Hartel, you contend that Blobel, on that occasion, told you that the Jews buried there had been shot by his commando on his order in his presence?

Q Have you not been under a disciplinary punishment once?

Q Was there no disciplinary procedure against you in 1943?

A That wan't a disciplinary procedure. Then there was only a preliminary investigation against me. In 1941 there were two disciplinary procedures. One ended with four days' house arrest. I had to remain in my apartment for four days. The second ended without any result because I was sent into the Einsatz assignment. reproached with being after the female personnel of the German offices? the Sturmbannfuehrer Hilf was asked to carry out a preliminary investigation, and when a number of female witnesses were heard he came to the conclusion that during my whole stay in Russia I had never had intimate sexual relations with any female member of the personnel, but only sometimes, of course, hearty friendly relations, but without any intimate connection.

The reason for my recall to Berlin, as you have just touched upon, since you put this confessor question, was the following. I had expressed a number of misgivings to Thomas by writing concerning his activity and his kind of a administration, his way of administration, and these misgivings, of course, were highly unpleasant to him. Therefore, he looked for a reason, a pretext, in fact, to got rid of me, and when he dismissed me - you, of course, force me through your question to say so - when he dismissed me in fact he said, "You go back to Berlin. I warn you not to mention any word whatsoever about me or against me in Berlin. If you say the slightest detail about me in Berlin I shall, within a few hours, arrive in Berlin, and I shall eliminate you."

Q Witness, that is enough. I now want to confirm and I want to establish the fact that I have nothing to do with confessing. That used to be your concern in former times.

Q Witness, were you interned in Hammelburg in the internment camp?

Q Did you lecture on religious matters on that occasion? the CIC, partly supported by material of the American Protestant priest, and sometimes even in the camp of Westheim and supported by material of the CIC officer, I lectured with the basic tendency of tolerance. The basic tendency of these lectures was the sentence by Nikolaus Kusanus that all religions of humanity are rays of devine light and that the individual religions of humanity, only in, of course, its various degrees and various kinds, display device wisdom and devine completeness, and in every lecture I pointed out this thought of tolerance, and therefore admittedly I was

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment please, Dr. Heim. It seems that we are going far afield.

You have questioned him about his private sex life; you have questioned him about his fresh-air trips. Now you are going to have him repeat to us his lectures. I am afraid we don't have time to listen to all those lectures.

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, I have a few questions to put which refer merely to the credibility of the witness. I did not intend to have the witness repeat his lecture which he has given, and I would like to ask the witness to give brief answers to the questions I put to him and only answer the question and do not make any other remarks.

Q (By Dr. Heim) Witness, did your lectures not attack Christianity and religion?

DR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, this question certainly is not admissible. The witness has said that he has lectured with the permission of the CIC, with the permission or support of American authorities. If Dr. Heim wants to challenge him on that he can prove he had not the permission to lecture, but I do think it is absolutely incorrect to ask the witness this question which Dr. Heim just put.

DR. BERGOLD: I subscribe to the opinion of the Prosecutor. I think this is not a part of the subject that the witness should be asked about, and I think the content matter os his lectures is reasonable but has nothing to do with the actual subject, and I should like this question not be be admitted.

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, the content matter of these lectures has not been criticized by myself, but I only asked the witness whether his lectures attacked Christianity, as I deem this question concerning credibility very important.

DR. BERGOLD: I may just say that my colleague is wrong. If anybody thinks that this lecture has a damaging effect and the witness thinks that the lecture is not damaging Christianity, the lawyer cannot prove anything at all. He can only prove that another authority or another person can be of a different opinion, but this does not speak against or for the credibility of the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Heim, it would seem that the majority is against you. You have the Prosecution and the defense firmly allied against you on this point.

DR. HEIM: I understand.

THE PRESIDENT: That isn't so sad for you as it is that the Tribunal also is against you on this point. You see, Dr. Heim, I know you are attacking the credibility of the witness, and that is entirely proper, but to question him on what he talked about in a religious lecture, and in an attempt to draw from his answer something unfavorable to the witness, you would need to assume that the person deciding that question would have to have a certain religious attitude on that particular point, and naturally we are not here to pass upon religious attitudes. We are here to ascertain the facts in an absolutely impartial manner insofar as those facts appertain to the charges in the indictment. The objection in sustained from both sides. Proceed with your next question, Dr. Heim.

church, is that correct?

A Yes. The church, since 1934, with great care and with motherly love, tried to get me back.

Q That is enough Witness. Witness, did you not, in the Third Reich, did you not denounce Herr Regens in Freysing when he was sentenced to imprisonment for nine months? in detail as it actually was.

THE PRESIDENT: Not in detail. Now, he has asked you a question and you have answered in the affirmative, you did denounce this individual. Now, Dr. Heim, take up your next question.

THE WITNESS: I did not denounce him.

THE PRESIDENT: Oh. Well, I am sorry.

THE WITNESS: Yes. I told the Mayor of Freysing, who was the brother of my best friend and a Catholic theologian, about these things. He reported this matter further on. I had assumed I could tell things like this to the brother of my friend who was a clergyman himself. Therefore the thing happened. The Gestapo found out about it and I had to confess the truth, and he, therefore, was sentenced for nine months in prison. That is the actual fact of the matter.

Q (By Dr. Heim) Was not that the reason why your activity why you liquidated, as it were, your activity as a clergyman? to tell you in answering this question. That would mean the development of a young man, how psychological religious difficulties arise, from what points of view one can doubt the dogma and the church itself, or the tie to the church service, and how one can be irritated by such matters. I should then have to tell you about my journey to Rome, and if you-

THE PRESIDENT: Now, Witness, I don't know whether you went to Rome for fresh air or for some other reason, but we really don't have time for an additional travelogue.

Now, Dr. Heim, let your questions be very specific, and see that he answers specifically, and don't let him get away from you.

Q (By Dr. Heim) Witness, please answer my question, if you can, by yes or no. Did you, in 1933 or 34, did you not ask for protection of the Gestapo?

A I was arrested in protective custody. That was the matter of Rosberger, which was the outside pretext to be connected about my leaving the church, but that was not the psychological reason.

Q Witness, did you adhere to the German movement of believers? but inside I confess to being a free religious man who believes in a divine power without adhering to any dogma.

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, unfortunately I only have German copies of this document as the translation of individual documents is not admissible. I shall submit the English translation at a later point.

THE PRESIDENT: Has Dr. Bergold received a copy?

DR. BERGOLD: No.

THE PRESIDENT: He should have one.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honors please, as far as I see from the copy which I have received from the copy which I have recieved from defense counsel, this is a letter to Dr. Heim from a representative of Mr. Buchwese, representative of the ordinary - I do not know how to translate it - "ordinariat" of the Archbishop in Munich. This letter obviously should substitute or is supposed to substitute either for affidavit or testimony. According to the rules of the Tribunal such a letter is inadmissible and I therefore object against this document.

DR. BERGOLD: Your Honor, I subscribe to the views of the Prosecutor, and I point out that in the decisions of the IMT it was constantly refused to accept letters. That was always explained and on various occasions repeated by the IMT.

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, I do not intend anyway to submit this as a document into evidence, but I only want to show this document to the witness in order to refresh his memory and in order to have him identify it. I don't know whether he can refresh his memory in so short a time.

DR. BERGOLD: My colleague apologized that it wasn't in English and he said he would add it to his document book. That I understand to the effect, as I am quite well aware of the German language, as a statement that this document he intends to submit as an exhibit. I may point out that it is printed here, "Document Blobel No. 5 Exhibit No."

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, dealing with the objection from all sides, I have now decided to submit it only for identification.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: It is obviously a letter to Dr. Heim is at liberty to question the witness to information that he has received in the letter, but I do not understand why he hands this letter to the witness. The witness cannot identify this letter as this letter is neither written by the witness nor sent to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: It isn't necessary to argue this point any furthery. It is very clear that the document is not admissible as a document. Dr. Heim may refer to any information contained in the letter and may cross-examine the witness on that information, but not on the letter which the witness does not know, never saw before and has no knowledge of.

Suppose, Dr. Heim, we recess now and you can take that up immediately after the recess? I might say, please, that the Tribunal will reconvene at two o'clock today.

(A recess was taken until 1400 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. ULMER: Dr. Ulmer for the defendant Six. Your Honor, I ask permission that I may draw your attention to an incident which prevents the defense, and my colleague Dr. Durchholz seriously from work. Apparently electric bulbs had been stolen from the building, in the wing of the building in which the defense has its offices. Therefore, Captain is has announced that these bulbs can not be replaced, and that the defense counsel have to replace the bulb themselves. The treatment of the Counsels they are subjected to is such as if they were the thieves. Last Thursday, around five o'clock there was a cordon of guards around the defense offices, and all members, and all users of the offices in the wing of the defense who wanted to leave the building were stopped by these guards and were searched bodily down to the watch pocket, where certainly there would be no electric bulbs hidden, and, then finally they were let out, When after seven or seven-thirty o(clock, the time for conferences with the defendants in Room 57 was over, this search was continued, and so that all the defense counsel could be searched who must work later, and then the light was turned off, and thereby it was accomplished that those people who were still working in the offices had to come out. On Friday afternoon another such cordon of guards was drawn up and the electricity was turned off again in the wing used by the defense counsel, but I can not say, neither do I claim that it was done intentionally. However, it produced the result that when Dr. Durchholz was ready to read a document, he could not do so without having to go out into the corridor.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ulmer, what you are leading up to, apparently, is a request that you get more light?

DR. ULMER: No, Your Honor, I have this request, that outside of the Tribunal one is recognized in the position of which one can be so proud as inside of this court. I would like to see to it that it be avoided that I personally as Defense Counsel, would be forced to visit the building only at such time when I appear before you. Your Honors, and have complete protection of my honor and that I would not like to be forced to have to spend any time outside where I am treated in such a manner, and that I can not be treated in such a manner, and I cannot perform my necessary work outside of this court-room under the circumstances, at least not with as much dispatch and joy which you would want me to and in which I would want to do it.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ulmer, the Tribunal, of course, knows nothing of these facts, but we are ready to go immediately upon record as condemning any act which casts any reflection on the honesty of the counsel who have appeared before this Tribunal, and if now you are in need of electric bulbs in order that you may perform your work properly, the Tribunal will be happy to interest itself at once to see to it that the quarters in which you work are adequately illuminated.

DR. ULMER: Thank you very much for this, your Honor, but it is not so much the requisitioning of bulbs. If a bulb is stolen in my room, I didn't steal it, but I certainly will find a way of replacing it, but I would like to avoid that, if any bulbs are stolen anywhere, that I be treated in such a manner as though I might be the thief.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we have been placed upon the record and we repeat it, that this Tribunal regrets considerably that there should be even a remotest suggestion here that you could in any way have been responsible for the disappearance of those bulbs, and the Tribunal will go further, and communicate with the official in change of this room in which you work to see to it that not only lights are furnished but that you be treated with the respect and the decorum, which is your due as an attorney at this Bar.

DR. ULMER: Thank you very much, Your Honor.

DR. HEIM: Dr. Heim for the Defendant Blobel.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Heim, just before the recess you put a question which we excluded. My colleague, Judge Speight, has called to my attention a certain feature of that question which we would like to put to you. If you asked this witness what doctrine, what religious doctrine he was teaching and you asked if only for the purpose of ascertaining what the doctrine was, properly, that question is excluded. But if you asked the question for the purpose of contrasting his answer with some previous statement thereby to show an inconsistency and thereby attacking the credibility of the witness, that question would be in order.

DR. HEIM: Thank you, Your Honor. testified further as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. HEIM: to be identified by you. I would like to submit it once more.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, as far as I remember, the prosecution has objected against this document which is a letter to Dr. Heim from a person different from the witness. There is no possibility for identification for the witness. The witness has neither seen nor is he the writer of the letter and I object against the fact that this document is handed to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Dr. Heim, the witness never saw this document so far as we understand, so, therefore, he would have no way of identifying it.

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, I shall withdraw this document and I will merely ask questions and will make an affidavit about it later on.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. HEIM: possible, with Yes or No in order to abbreviation the proceeding. In your capacity as prefect in the boys seminary of the Archdiocese in Freising did you denounce a certain man by the name of Rossberger?

MR. HOCHWALD: If I am not mistaken, this line of questioning was already taken up by Dr. Heim before he handed the letter to the witness. I do think he has covered the ground. The witness has answered she question. If Dr. Heim wants to add something to his question, it will be perfectly all right, but this question was certainly already asked. DR. HEIM: Witness, I shall do without the answer to the question.

THE WITNESS: I have answered the question. I spoke to the mayor and the Kreisleiter.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, you have answered the question. You don't have to -

DR. HEIM: I shall do without it. BY DR. HEIM: articles?

A No. I wrote articles for the official party correspondence which was edited by Suentermann. In this paper I wrote articles for the official party bulletin, and all German papers were entitled to copy and reprint articles from this official correspondence. Later these articles were published in book form under the name of Anton Holzner as I have already stated a dozen times.

There the lawyer can see in the preface that these articles were originally written for the party correspondence and, of course, it was free to all newspapers to reprint these.

Q Witness, I have another question to this. In your lectures in Hammelburg didn't you put the Christian religion on the same level as the Buddhist?

MR. HOCHWALD: Just a minute, If I understood the Tribunal correctly the Tribunal admitted this question only in connection with the previous answer of the witness, in order to impeach his credibility. If Dr. Heim asked the question in this form, it is impossible to figure out how he will impeach the witness. It would be necessary to ask the witness first, didn't you say in your previous question that and that, and then ask him the question he wanted to ask.

THE PRESIDENT: It might be clearer, Dr. Heim, if you evidenced the contrast, if you indicated first just what the witness said which you now claim is in contradiction to what he is about to say.

DR. HEIM: Your Honor, it was merely my intention to have this question answered merely with "Yes" or "No" because at the proper time I shall introduce affidavits concerning this subject of statements of the witness. I would, therefore, like this question to be answered.

MR. HOCHWALD, If I understood correctly that was just the way the Tribunal ruled the question out before the recess it was just what the Tribunal did not consider admissable.

THE PRESIDENT: If it is Dr. Heim merely to point out what doctrine he taught and then -- because you might not agree with that doctrine -- you will attack his credibility, that would not be proper because everyone has the right to teach what he pleases, everyone has the right to worship as he chooses.

If, however, you claim that on Monday he preached one thing, one Tuesday he preached something else, on Wednesday still another thing, then you can show the contradiction in his own statements and in that way you can argue that his credibility has been impeached.

DR. HEIM: Witness, I want to go over to another subject now.

THE WITNESS: I can answer this question if you attach any value to it.

DR. HEIM: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Thank you. BY DR. HEIM: ditch you saw some explosions which were the cause of the gasses of decomposition coming out of these ditches, and that through these explosions the ground allegedly lifted itself. Did I understand this correctly?

A Generally, yes. Only, of course, you must not regard it as a big explosion but it was a small one, sort of an earth fountain. Not any extensive shakings, but just a small loosening of the frozen earth, and there was a small earth fountain. That was only for a moment. lifted itself -- became loose? So at that time the ground was still frozen?

Q You mean to say that the earth was still frozen?

A How long?

Q Witness, please answer just my question. Was the earth frozen at that time?

A Yes. Snow was still lying and, therefore, the earth was still frozen.

Q Thank you, Witness. Is it known to you that a decomposition of corpses cannot take place if the corpses are frozen?

A That I don't know because -- but sometimes, of course, the sun is very hot. The sun was shining, and if you know the climate of southern Russia and especially this territory, you would know that sometimes in January the sun shines very hotly, and there were hot days in January and February, and then, of course, it became cooler then. It therefore, caused a change, it is possible that on one day it was so hot that one became quite sunburnt in the midst of winter. and a few days after that the grounds frozen again. in January actually thaws the frozen earth there?

A I don't think so. Certainly not in January, but it wasn't January, it was later.

Q You have just said that it was the sun in January? sometimes, but did not say at that time it was January. In order to give you an example of the climate in southern Russia, I gave you that particular example stating that in January it was even very hot in January. On the other hand there were very cool nights in summer, sometimes. Russia. Please answer the following question. Do you think it possible that in spite of the frozen earth corpses underneath could be in decomposition?

they must have bean under the earth for quite some time. The actual chemical process I do not understand, I can only say what I saw at that time, about the chemical details. you have to ask somebody else.

Q Witness, did you know Erlinger? ditch for a mass grave for executed Jews?

A I can't imagine that at that time in 1942 there were any mass executions. I don't know for certain, but I heard nothing about it -- as far as minor executions are concerned, about a hundred people, that has actually taken place. which you mentioned this morning. Is it known to you that at the time Heydrich visited Einsatzgruppe A as well as Einsatzgruppe B?

A I do not know. I only know that he visited Einsatzgruppe C.

Q You know that he visited Einsatzgruppe C? examination that during the second half of 1942 you had been the chief of 1 and 2? I mean I could be called the chief of both these offices. Sturmbannfuehrer Heinz was the leader I with Dr. Thomas?

A Yes. He had this office shortly before, until September approximately and the remainder of the year I was the chief.

quarter? A number of things happened before, but at that time Heydrich was Chief of 1, and 2, and when I came back to Berlin I took over both departments 1 and 2. I believe it must have been September. I did not say that only during the whole second part of the year I was in charge, I only said that during the second part I was the chief of 1 and 2.

Q Were you not in SK 4A for sight week's when this was under the leadership of Dr. Weinmann?

A I can't remember the exact time but approximately two months I stayed at Gharkow, and I visited all the scientific institutes and old museums and scientific institutions. I took part in examination etc, and I started with the institute of atom splitting up to agricultural institutes. All institutes existing in Gharkov were visited by me. I spoke to a number of scientists, professors, artists, and I also met von Radetzky, who introduced me to a number of people, and I lived in the head quarters of the Commander of the Einsatzgruppe. BY THE PRESIDENT: up to agriculture. Did you consider atom splitting very simple?

A No. I said I visited these institutions for the atom splitting up to the smallest agricultural institutions. I saw these. I visited them. I am not a specialist in this field myself, therefore, I could only be informed of What others performed there. I was more interested in other institutes of a more spiritual kind.

BY DR. HEIM: Document No. 5384, you say in the third sentence or Number 2, which in the first page. I quote, "In spring of 1941 I arrived at the office IV". That is the end of my quotation. Can you tell us what office IV of the RSHA meant? Office IV Was that the Criminal Police?

A No, It was Gestapo. I was detailed for this particular office.

Q What did you do there? information service which I had to deal with before. For executive questions, government councillor. Roth was active and another government councillor. Office III the SD was competent for information questions. Can you not give us any more details concerning your activity in Office IV? one office to another. First, it was in the office E. It was in the main department of that, then it came to the information department, then it came to office 2, then to office 3, then for a short while to office 7, then for a short time it came to office 4, and then it left. The task I had to deal with, that is information service for this subject dealing with church matters in the field of the various religions which existed together with these church liaison men whom I have just mentioned, and this task generally was always the same but then, of course, it was detailed a little, one part of it, for instance was given over to office 3, that is religious life as a domestic sphere.

That was given over to office 3, but the actual information service of the various churches was an assignment of office 4, for a short while and as I have already mentioned, I was in the office 6, my task I only had to deal with matters of office 6. Therefore, it changed all the time.

Q I have only another three or four questions. When you made out your affidavits concerning the charges of the defendant Blobel, did you not make a mistake as to the personality concerned? I remembered with great intensity. However, it is thus Dr. Thomas said at the time, as I have already mentioned, that Blobel's film was tearing all the time, i.e, that Blobel physically and psychologically was exhausted and was a broken man so that it is possible that Blobel said something at the time which he did not know any mere afterwards and even that, if I may use that phrase, his film had been torn, but I can only say what Blobel told me at the time himself. voluntarily, or were you asked by the prosecution to make the statement?

MR. HOCHWALD: I do think it is necessary that Dr. Heim specifies a little bit as requested by the prosecution, whether he was questioned by the prosecution or whether the prosecution asked him to make this statement or whatever it is, but I do think this important question should be a little bit more specific.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, but Mr. Hochwald, this is cross examination and he can put it in the best possible way that he can for his own client. He can put any question at all practically.

BY DR. HEIM: put to you. shootings of Jews and whether I knew the order. Thereupon, in criminating myself, I declared that I did not know the order, but that I had to assume that such an order was existing, so these were the two points I made. Then I was asked what made me conclude that this order was existing, practically that meant my incriminating myself. I knew of the eastern reports, that means the resorts of the UDSSR which I got until 1944. I also knew it from conversations, for since I was in the East it could not be avoided to be told about it, and then I was questioned for details. There was a second element. I had to answer this question in order to exonerate the defendant Radetzky, who also was charged with it. I had to free him from any charges that may be made against him, but the prosecution had nothing to do with it. last fortnight, to the effect that when you made out the affidavit you only had the choice between incriminating either the defendant, Radetzky or the defendant, Blobel. and that you would rather incriminate the defendant Blobel than the defendant Radetzky?

MR. BERGOLD: Your Honor, I object to this question; it is a result of a discussion that I had with my colleague, Heim, in the course of which he misunderstood me. In this form, as my colleague is putting it here, I, myself, did not tell him.

THE WITNESS: But I want to answer the question. I have stated:

In the case in which it is the question whether two people are guilty or whether one man whom I personally deem innocent, while I knew for certain that the other called himself guilty, that in this case I would, of course, certainly have to speak the truth, that if a psychological incriminate one and declare the other one innocent, I had to say what I considered necessary from my own conscience. By DR. HEIM: the moral quality of a man who being a priest denounces another clergyman.

DR. BERGOLD: Witness, you need not answer the question.

THE PRESIDENT: Any other defense counsel desire to cross examine the witness? BY THE PRESIDENT: question that at a particular place there was only a small execution of 100. Do you consider the killing of 100 people as a small matter?

A Not at all. Not at all. I think it is a grays offense, but I only used it in relation to the rather larger mass executions about which the reports speak. I want to object to the opinion that I might regard the execution of 100 people as a negligent matter. with the large figures which had been stated in describing mass murders?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. All right. Proceed please. By DR. RATZ (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT VON RADETZKY). in Charkov and that on that occasion you visited scientific institutions beginning with the Institution for Atom Splitting and going on to Agricultural Institutions and that on that occasion you also met the Defendant Radetzky. I now want to ask you do you know what functions Radetzky had to deal with in Charkov at the time? also by Chief Radetzky himself, as well as other personalities. Radetzky owing to this linguistic capabilities was merely employed as an interpreter. It was late that he was assigned to other tasks, being employed first as a liaison officer between the Einsatz Commander and General Paulus, the then Supreme Commander of the 6th Army. At the same time he was liaison officer with the authorities of the Ukrainian Service Government, mainly the Ukrainian municipalities. This I only know from statements of the SD itself and also from Ukrainian people especially those living in Charkov, a professor of chemistry with whom I had a number of interesting discussions, told me on various occasions -about Radetzky whom he liked very much and to told me that Radetzky was taking care that the town Charkov was supplied with food and that in this manner he was well acquainted with municipal matters in the Ukraine and he was in close touch with himself -- with Professor Katicuitz. when you saw him in Charkov and you spoke to him that he was participating in any executions whatsoever.

A No. I cannot imagine that very well. First of all, I did not hear anything at all myself, of executions at the time, but I think it impossible because Radetzky was fully occupied with his two special tasks. He had to travel between the offices of the SD commanders and the offices of General Paulus and then again he was with the Ukraine administrative offices.

I cannot imagine, therefore, that in addition to this he could have been employed for other matters. about the personality of the Defendant von Radetzky, especially whether you are of the opinion that Radetzky might have placed himself at disposal for execution on his own initiative?

A I don't think so, because Radetzky was one of those people whom one designated as being soft at that time. Of course I don't know him too well, but the impression that I got of him at the time according to this impression, I think it impossible that he in addition to his other tasks, would have pieced himself at disposal for executions. I think it is impossible. Radetzky took part in executions in any way whatsoever?

A I don't think that is possible, for the reason that he was mainly employed as an interpreter previously, as many people told me, and interpreters were at the time a very rare group of people. There were so few people who really knew any languages at the time so that in my opinion one could not take the liberty of sending these interpreters to an executive job.

DR. RATZ: Thank you. Your Honor, I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Any other defense counsel ready to cross-examine?

Mr. Hochwald, you may cross-examine this witness BY DR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: are you a personal enemy of the Defendant Blobel?

DR. HEIM (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT BLOBEL): Your Honor, I object to the adminissibility of this question. The prosecution is asking the witness for a judgment, that is, an opinion, but we are just trying to find out facts.

MR. HOCHLICK-HOCHWALD: Your Honor, the reason why I asked this question was, I just wanted to ascertain whether this question ---

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Heim, the pure truth can come only when the speaker is uninfluenced by emotion or by incorrect observations. You have attempted in your cross-examination to show that the witness could not have spoken the pure truth, because he did not observe carefully. In other words, there was some defect in his observation, physical observation. Now Mr. Hochwald wants to inquire if there was any defect in his intellectual appraisement of the Defendant Blobel, because of any emotional interference which would come from one who is an enemy. The question is entirely in order, Dr. Heim. completely exhausted by all the events in the East and by his activity. This impression became even stronger later on when in 1945 -- it was about Spring -- the first months. or, it might be the last months of 1944, I met the Deputy of Blobel in Yugoslavia, where I -

THE PRESIDENT: Don't make these answers too long. You have answered the question. on this journey by car and he told you the story about the mass grave where the Jews killed by him and his Sonderkommando were burried, did you have the impression then that Blobel was not in possession of his mental faculties? seemed most exhausted but according to what I heard from Thomas I had to come to the conclusion that he was psychologically exhausted as well or at least to a large extent and this condition, according to the judgment of other people, became even stronger towards the end of the war. not deranged mentally, is that correct?

A I don't want to say that I had the impression that he was mentally deranged in any way, but he seemed very nervous and psychologically somewhat weak.

That was my impression. It was my impression that physically and physiologically he was in a bad condition. Where as Thomas used the word, "the film had torn" that would mean that he was somewhat mentally deranged, but in my own observation was not that of a mentally deranged man. these killed Jews, had no reason whatsoever to doubt the correctness of his statement? made to you?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Dr. Hochwald, he has stated very clearly now what Blobel said to him, what his observations were that the man was physcially exhausted, somewhat psychologically exhausted, but not mentally affected. That seems to cover it.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: That is what I wanted to cover. Your Honor, personally.

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) I want to ask you Witness, a few questions about your affidavit to which you swore and signed on the 9th of October, 1947.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Your Honors, this is Document No_5384, for which Exhibit No. 180 was reserved and I would like at this time to offer it in evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: Exhibit 180 by the prosecution?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: 180, Prosecution Exhibit 180-

THE PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 180 -

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: - will not be accepted as part of the record.

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) Is it true, what you stated in this affidavit, that you had opportunities to make changes and corrections in the affidavit?

Q Did you make this statement voluntarily? within my interrogation.

Q Were you promised any rewards?

Q And were you subjected to duress or threat of any kind?

Q I asked you only in connection with the affidavit, Witness. You came to the East at the end of 1941 or beginning of 1943, Is that correct? beginning of 1942. already present at this unit, is that correct? at the time when he arrived I happened not to be present in Kiev.

Q Do you know when he came there?

A I can't say exactly. I can only state that he arrived a short while after I arrived but when exactly that was I don't know, whether it was in summer or fail of 1941.

Q Aren't you mistaken: Wasn't it 1942?

A I mean 1942, of course. I only arrived in January 1942.

deputy in his command in the person of a Sturmbannfuehrer Nehring, is that correct? and this Nehring then came to Rostov.

Q Can you tell the Tribunal when that was? at the end of 1942, in any case in the second half of 1942. It could not have been the first half of 1943.

Q You are not able to give the date a little bit more explicitly? What do you call the second part of 1942? for instance, but I can't give an exact date because I can't do it.

Q Could it have been before the end of October 1943?

A I don't know, but I think it very unlikely. an order that all Jews were to be killed, that means that you never heard about this order officially, but that you know that such an order must have existed, as it was clear from everything that happened in the East, is that correct? of it, but from all the conditions I had to conclude that such an order was in existence.

Q When did you learn first about this fact? How long were you in the East before you learned that? because I had always taken notice of the Eastern reports.

Q So you came there and knew already about it? East without having any knowledge of such an order?

Q Immediately after your arrival? immediately, during the first few days, but very soon after that. Einsatzgruppen, Sonderkommandos, and Einsatzkommandos must have known as a matter of course of the existence of such an order? to answer your question in detail. I can only say what I was told when I arrived in the last and that is that Mueller told me at the time "You are to go to the last," or he said, "You have to go to the last, because you must gain the necessary toughness because actually you should have been called 'Weichel' and not 'Hatrel'. That means "soft" and you have to learn in Russia that a sort of exaggerated comradeship is not a good thing and you will not get on with it in life." Furthermore Mueller told me "In order to get this toughness, you are to take part in the shootings." commanders. Was it known as a matter of course among these people that there was a very high order, an order from very high up. to kill all the Jews? have carried out these measures without having received orders from the highest authority. impression or whether you knew that all these commanders and officers knew as a matter of course of this order. time when the kommando leader is actually in charge of the kommando, if Jews were actually living in the territory that in that case he would just be told about this order by his chief, that is the chief of the Einsatzgruppe. such executions?

of the Einsatzgruppe was competent, the chief, in fact, who was partly in agreement with the Wehrmacht agencies, partly in agreement with the Higher SS and Police leaders who carried out these actions. There were various channels of command. The commander of the Security Police and the SD was on the one side subordinated to the SS and Police Leaders, that is the local leaders. On the other hand however, he came under the command of the Security Police. At the same time he also had contacts with the Wehrmacht, that is, the Army and he had to inform the Wehrmacht about these happenings so that there were various channels of command in relation to each other had not just a one sided subordination to the Einsatzgruppe Chief. It depended entirely on the personality in each case. In some cases the Wehrmacht bothered a lot, in some cases very little and sometimes the Higher SS and Police Leader was not interested at all, and sometimes he was interested in dealing with the matters himself in order to gain some merits, thus there were different channels of command -the Einsatzgruppen, the Sonderkommandos, and the Einsatzkommandos took responsibility for such executions. Can you answer that with yes or no. ority, but he was tied down to the order and to the other authorities. However, he, of course, had a very important voice in this, of course, he had the power of decision, but there were other authorities who also had to decide and to be in agreement. That is, one couldn't say that it was the commander himself on his own authority who was responsible, but there were other authorities responsible too.

THE PRESIDENT: Shall we recess, Mr. Hochwald fifteen minutes?

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is agin in session.

DR. MAYER: (for the defendant Klingelhoefer): Your Honor, I would like the defendant Klingelhoefer to be excused tomorrow and the day after tomorrow because I want to prepare his defense with him.

THE PRESIDENT: For tomorrow, did you say?

DR. MAYER: Tomorrow and the day after tomorrow.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Klingelhoefer will be excused from attendance in court tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday.

DR. MAYER: Thank you, your Honor.

DR. RATZ (for the defendant von Radetzky): Your Honor, I also would like the defendant von Radetzky to be excused from attendance in court tomorrow and the day after tomorrow in order to prepare his defense with him.

different groups of commanders, according to your experience, commanders who carried out their orders faithfully and correctly; commanders who were unable to carry them out as they were too soft for such jobs, and a third type who, when he received these orders, tried to get himself transferred or to circumvent these orders, you have stated that the defendant Biberstein belonged to the third type, is that correct? and Sonderkommandos who never received such execution orders? people... do you mean the execution of saboteurs, and the like, or do you mean order for the shooting of Jews? Orders for the shooting of Jews, according to my opinion. only such commanders received them in whose area jews were still existing at the time. On the other hand, orders for the executions of saboteurs according to prescribed procedure, and so on, in my opinion all commanders received them, because that was in their field of activities and there was also the possibility for all commanders to have such men in their area. Haensch from 1936 on? gruppe C? first days of January 1942, when I arrived in Kiev, he was not there yet but he must have arrived shortly afterwards. I don't know how many weeks afterwards. And according to my memory he wasn't there for a very long time. In any case when I arrived he wasn't there.

Q To what type of commanders would you count Haensch ... was he type one, type two, or type three, as you have explained to the Tribunal?

types in between but as I know Haensch one can say that he is a very conscientious lawyer, and that in the SD Main Office he with tremendous conscientiousness dealt with disciplinary matters -- in fact, such conscientiousness that some people called it bureaucracy, but I believe that simultaneously he was a very humane and sometimes even soft man, so that I would put him in the second or third category. that Haensch would certainly be a person who would carry out an order to the last letters? Is that correct? conscientious and correct, and as an excerpt dealing with disciplinary matters, as I have stated already in my affidavit, he could be called a fussy person, conscientious to the last degree, and very correct, and in this manner he carried out his order. I am referring to the interrogation which was carried out by the Prosecution on the 16th of July 1947. Did you not, in this interrogation say that Haensch would have been a person who would have carried out every order he received to the last latter? Will you answer this question please with yes or no?

A In this decisive form I cannot remember. I only made the statement that he was very correct in the office procedure, and according to my foiling, and according to my memory, that is all that I said to the lawyers at the time, that he carried out the orders he received very correctly and conscientiously. I know that this statement, of course can be interpreted to the detriment of Haensch, but --

Q That is sifficient, witness, I think. Isn't it true that in Einsatzgruppe C, when Thomas was in command, it was possible for a commander of an Einsatzgruppe who did not want to carry out an execution, to refuse orders?

who could not reconsile with their conscience to carry out such orders, should be sent back to Germany or should be assigned to other tasks. Thus, at the time a numner of people, also commanders, just because they were too soft to carry out orders, were sent back by Thomas to the Reich. But I want to emphasize that this was only so under Thomas. How other commanders, or at least other chiefs of Einsatzgruppen, who had a stronger and more severe discipline, required an unconditional obedience to orders, but in Kiev it was so that people who were too soft were sent back. Also, people - especially SD experts could stay away from executions -answered the question I put to you. Can you tell the Tribunal how long Thomas was in command of Einsatzgruppen C?

in June, 1943, when I left Kiev after having been in the hospital for a very long time, together with Biberstein. He was still the commander of the Einsatzgruppe, and when I arrived in Kiev in January, 1942, he had by then taken over the job, but I think it was then, he then held the rank Chief of the Einsatzgruppe. That is what he was called at the time, and later on he was called Commander of the Security police and SD. is that correct? it was immediately sent back. He was released and came to Vienna. stayed in his position he must have approved and ordered executions? that somebody kept quiet about these matters and tried not to deal with these tasks without expressly refusing it. is that correct?

A He would have sent him home saying that he was too soft. In a number of cases this happened, that Thomas actually sent these people back to Germany.

Q Will you tell me a last question, isn't it a fact that all German personnel of Einsatzgruppen Einsatzkommandos. Sonderkommandos knew that Jews, Communists and other undesirables were being killed without trial?

A How it was until the time, until I came to Russia, I don't know; later on when I myself stayed in Russia, that is from the beginning of 1942, I myself learned personally that just before a number of Jewish executions on a large scale had taken place, and I presume that a number of other people learned it from conversations.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: No further questions.

BY DR. BERGOLD:

Q I have only two very brief questions. You said that you found out about the shootings in the East. Is there a difference to be made, a distinction to be made between the first part of 1942 and the second part of 1942, or is the statement valid for the whole year, 1942?

A That in the East there were no large scale shootings?

A I did not say that it was so. I only said in my opinion a number of people will have found out about these shootings. I personally found out about them. How the later development, when these matters became less and less important and then only partisans were fought, how at that time it was, I can't testify to now, but at the time in the second half of 1942, the partisan warfare was the so-called point of any discussion, and I believe that on occasions, of course, such an important matter must have been touched on in a discussion, but whether everybody must have learned about these matters, I couldn't say now.

DR. BERGOLD: Thank you.

DR. RIEDIGER: Dr. Riediger for Haenach. BY DR. RIEDIGER: the Einsatzgruppen knew the Fuehrer extermination order, you said then that this knowledge was existant as long as such eliminations and shootings actually took place. When do you think that in Einsatzgruppe C these executions were terminated? see any more Jews there. to Einsatz Gruppe C -- in the middle of March a commander had received the command over such a unit, would there have been any Jewish round ups of any kind, and did any shootings, therefore, take place at that time?

that is in the more distant vicinity, and in February, 1942, I never saw any Jews. SK-4b, that is in the middle of March was taken over by a new commander, would he ever have found out about it?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honor please, I do think that the question as put by Dr. Riediger is inadmissible, he has asked one hypothetical question. The witness has answered this hypothetical question in the negative by saying directly that he never was in Gerlowka, which is exactly in the place where Defendant Haensch was, with his H.Q. I do think that a number of further hypothetical questions to the same effect would not give any information, any correct information to the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: If the witness was not there, how would he know what conditions were?

DR. RIEDIGER: The witness was with Einsatzgruppe C. Part of this Einsatzgruppe C were Special Kommandos 4a and 4b. Both these kommandos were subordinate to Einsatzgruppe C whose commander was Thomas. But since the Prosecutor objects to this question, I can put it in another way, and I will ask the witness-

Q (By Dr. Riediger) Do you believe that as from the middle of March 1942 in the the area of the Einsatzgruppe SK-4b or 4a, whether at the time any shootings of Jews took place?

THE PRESIDENT: Your Objection?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, the objection is the same as to the first question. The witness has stated that in Stalino there were no executions of such kind, that he himself was not in Gerlowka, so he cannot say anything about Gerlowka obviously. I do think he has answered this question. From the part of Dr. Riediger there is no further question Dr. Riediger can ask him. He expressly stated, "I was in Stalino.

There were no such executions. I was not in Gerlowka."

DR. RIEDIGER: I may take the liberty to point out the following. Part of Einsatzgruppe SK-4b in the area of this Einsatzgruppe, it was not only Gerlowka and Stalino but it was a much larger district, and there were a number of other localities, and the question to the witness is to the effect whether in the whole area any executions took place.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, in the whole area of what?

DR. RIEDIGER: In the area of SK-4b, and I take the liberty to point out-

THE PRESIDENT: Well, first we must find out if the witness knows what area was covered by SK-4b during the period that you have in mind. First establish that.

Q (By Dr. Riediger) Witness, do you know the area of SK-4b, I mean geographically speaking? the industrial area, but I can't give any details, and I can't say what localities were part of this particular area. were also within this area?

A I don't know, but I know that it is within the general area of the Southern Russian industrial area of the Don territory. spring of that year?

A I have already answered this question. In those towns which I passed, for instance, Stalino, Makayev, I met no Jews, and I saw none, and I never heard of any executions of Jews. extensive previously that all Jews were eliminated more or less.

MR. HORLICK-HOCKWALD: If your Honors please, the Witness has given everything what the witness knows, but the defense counsel requests answers, yes and no, for an opinion which the witness cannot give if the witness was not there before 1942, and it obviously is a leading question.

to put answers in the mouth of the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: The leading question matter does not enter here because it is cross-examination, but it isn't clear to the Tribunal that the witness knows the specific area controlled by SK-4b. We would only go so far as to say that it was in the vicinity of the industrial area. That is rather vague.

DR. RIEDIGER: The witness ought to know whether in the areas which came into the field of activities of the Einsatzgruppe, that is Einsatz SK-4a and SK-4b, in the spring of 1942 any executions took place.

THE PRESIDENT: You say he ought to knew. It isn't a question whether he ought to know. It is whether he did know.

Witness, what area was covered by SK-4b; do you know? Do you know of your own knowledge what area was covered by Kommando SK-4b, please?

THE WITNESS: No, not in detail.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, then how can you ask him what conditions were in that area when he says he doesn't know the area?

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, I went on the assumption that SK-4a came under Einsatzgruppe C, that the witness knew this area because SK-4b was part of the Einsatzgruppe C.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but Einsatzgruppe C covers a much larger area than the mere kommando. You are inquiring about the kommando area, are you not, about SK-4b, that is what you are asking about?

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Well, then you have to find out if he knows what territory was covered by Kommando SK-4b and if he says he doesn't know, how can he answer your question?

THE WITNESS: I did know the general territory, but I don't know the concrete borders. I know that it was in a general district of the southern Russian industrial area, but I can not say that this particular locality was part of it.

DR. RIEDIGER: This answer is sufficient for me for since it is without the slightest doubt that SK IV-B came under Einsatzgruppe-C, it is of no importance whether the localities are mentioned, but that mainly whether there were any executions which took place at the time in the whole area. I have only one more question for the witness. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q The witness just mentioned Stalino. Witness, do you know that Stalino was not in the area of SK IV-B; that Stalino was supposed to belong to SK VI?

A I already stated that I don't remember the exact borders, or the exact names of these commandos, but I know that Moor, Sturmbannfuehrer Moor was the commander in Stalino, because I talked to him. Whether this Commando was called SK-VI, or what it was called, I can not say under oath, but I know that the commando was called Moor.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q Witness, have you ever been in Gorlowka? Gorlawka? Is that correct? ern Russia industrial area, and not especially this locality of Gorlowka.

THE PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused, and the defendant Biberstein will be returned to the witness stand immediately.

You may proceed, Mr. Hochwald.

BY MR. HOCHWALD: heide on 25 June 1947, which is your Exhibit No. 3, and another here in Nurnberg, on 2 July 1947, which is prosecution's Exhibit No. 29. Is it correct that the affidavits which you made in Eselheide contained essentially the same facts as the affidavit which was submitted by the Prosecution?

A I didn't quite get the question, whether the contents -

Q (Question repeated to the witness.) essentially the same, is that correct? Nurnberg, it is omitted that executions took place according to a certain procedure. that correct? You have pointed in which incidents the affidavits do not or are not alike?

Q But certain points there are essentially the same, are they not? burg.

A Reward? No, never. affidavit? the affidavit? wrting before you signed the affidavit in Eselheide?

A In Eselheide as I said when signing the affidavit I didn't have my glasses with me, and I did not read the entire affidavit, but I told the interrogator to please read it to me, as "I have confidence in you," and I signed it.

Q But he read it to you aloud, did he not? signed it, and you would have had the possibility to make changes if you would have wanted to do so, is that correct? Eselheide and your first interrogation in Nurnberg? on the proceeding Monday I think I was interrogated in Eselheide.

Q So approximately a week, is that right?

Q Who made your first interrogation in Nurnberg?

A I was only interrogated once. The second time I merely was given the prepared affidavit for my signature, and that was by Mr. Wartenberg, as I have learned here. At the time I didn't know his name. of any kind for any statement which you made in the interrogation or in the affidavit? an interrogation here in Nurnberg? statements from you while you were here in Nurnberg? interrogated very long hours. How long at any one time have you ever been questioned by an interrogator here in Nurnberg?

A That was on Sunday morning. I don't know the exact time.

Q Was it more than two hours? with the interrogation that I didn't look at the watch, and I am very bad at estimations.

Q Was it more than three hours? my time for the meal. excessive time?

A Well, I don't know how long an interrogation had to take. I never had an interrogation before.

Q Were you exhausted? During this interrogation? does not always proceed without leaving any trace of it. hours, were you? interrogated? hours? fess to your activity in Einsatzcommando VI? of your mental faculties?

Q Were you suffering from delusions or hallucinations?

Q So you were in possession of your mental faculties, then? examined Mr. Wartenberg concerning the circumstances of the taking of your affidavit, is that correct?

A Yes. That was the assistant, yes.

Q I wanted to know if you were present, Mr. Biberstein?

Q Were Mr. Wartenberg's statements in accord with the events that took place during your interrogation by him?

A I can not remember any details what Mr. Wartenberg said, but I think I seem to remember that something that he said was not correct? If I am not mistaken, but I can not say exactly, that it was concerned with a correction, or with changes, which I would have liked to have made, and, where he said to me at the time during the interrogation that I would later have an opportunity to make these additions. I think Mr. Wartenberg didn't confirm this here, if I am not mistaken.

Q If I am not mistaken, Mr. Wartenberg said that's entirely possible that a thing he answered you in that way, but can you remember whether it was during the first or during the second interrogation, the second interrogation when the affidavit was presented to you?

Q. If I understood your direct testimony correctly, you stated that you were compelled to tell the whole truth by the nature of the oath which you took. Isn't it true that your religious training and your inner convictions compelled you so strongly to tell the truth in your affidavit that you were unable to resist it?

A. That is probably true of every man because an oath is an important matter and a person has the obligation to testify to the best of his knowledge and to the best of his conscience.

Q. Mr. Biberstein, would you have withheld certain facts if you had been told you are entitled to refuse testimony?

A. Well, I am thinking of mentioning names. Yes, I think I mentioned a few, and I said, -- you see, thats ---

Q. I do not recollect that you -- but with the exception of these names, let's go away from the names. Would you have told the whole story as you told this story in your interrogation and as you signed it in your affidavit even if you would have been told that you are in a position to refuse this?

A. Certainly.

Q. You would have?

A. Probably I would not have mentioned a few things the way I did. That would be possible -- it is possible.

Q. Why?

A. Only because one can construct an incriminating fact out of it for me, because opinions are different about different problems.

Q. Would you tell the Tribunal then you would not have said the truth if you would have been informed that you can refuse testimony?

A. If I get the right to refuse testimony, then I make use of a right which has been given me without my saying an untruth.

Q. I do think the whole truth is just telling the truth without withholding anything, but in this respect we may be of a different opinion. Would you have refused to give testimony about executions which you witnessed?

A. I testified to everything, the other questions are all hypothetical. I testified as far as I could.

Q. Regardless of what inner motives impelled you to relate these facts, in your interrogation here in Nurnberg and in your affidavit, are not these facts as true today as at the time when you, compelled by the oath, related then first to Mr. Wartenberg?

A. As far as I remember, I described matters as I did here to Mr. Wartenberg.

Q. So what you then told in these two affidavits and in your interrogation of 29 June, I think is the date, that is the whole truth without withholding anything -- the whole truth, is that correct?

A. Not the affidavit. The affidavit is only an excerpt.

Q. I said everything together, the two affidavits, one at Bielheide, the one here, and the interrogation of yours of the 29th of June together are the whole truth about that what you have to say about Einsatzgruppe 6, is that correct?

A. No. I did not have the request to relate everything I have experienced. I answered to questions, and if I am not asked about anything, I did not make any testimony about it.

Q. You have testified here that you were told that the withholding of certain facts would be a breach of your oath in the same way as giving a false testimony, and that compelled by this statement, you told your story in this interrogation, is that so?

A. No. I merely answered the questions of the interrogating officer.

Q. That means you have not told the whole truth?

A. I was not asked for the truth, the complete truth.

Q. Is it not true that you have been told by the interrogator that the withholding of certain statements would be as much a branch of oath as giving a false statement?

A. Only if it is in a question which he put to me.

Q. That is how you understood it, is that right?

A. Yes. That is how it is to be understood.

Q. So it is then correct that you understood it in that way?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you answer now the question which you did not answer? These things which you told Mr. Wartenberg are the truth?

THE PRESIDENT: What is the question now. I don't know that I catch the question?

MR. HOCHWALD: I asked him whether he, giving testimony, or relating his story to Mr. Wartenberg, spoke the truth, nothing else?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Do you mean by "complete" the extent?

MR. HOCHWALD: I do not recall to have said "complete". I said the truth. Did you tell Mr. Wartenberg the truth in answer to his questions?

THE WITNESS: It is a strange question. I must confirm it, of course, for I think - - - BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. I am going back now to 1926 . Mr. Biberstein, you told the Tribunal that under the influence of your mother, and of the "Voelkischer Beobachter" you became a member of the Nazi Party in 1926, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you continue in later years to read the "Voelkischer Beobachter"?

A. Yes, as far as it interested me.

Q. Did you read this newspaper or other German newspapers until the end of the war?

A. No. I was not always in Germany.

Q. You had no newspapers in the East?

A. No.

Q. But when you were in Germany you read German newspapers, did you not?

A. I hardly think so. The various political things did not interest me because they were all somehow stereotyped.

Q. Did you ever read the "Angriff" of Dr. Goebbels?

A. In the earlier years, occasionally.

Q. May I ask you what you call the "earlier years"?

A. When I was in Berlin I sometimes bought am "Angriff".

Q. Will you tell the Tribunal just the times, the years which you read it?

A. I do not know, when I was in Berlin , 1935 to 1940.

Q. Did you listen regularly to the German radio?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever listen to the frequent speeches which were made by Hitler?

A. Yes. I heard Hitler's speeches over the radio.

Q. All of them?

A. I cannot say. I don't think so, I was not always in Germany.

Q. In the spring of 1939 you were in the Reich, were you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall particularly one speech which Hitler made in the spring of 1939 after the occupation of Czechoslovakia ?

A. After the occupation, I do not remember such a speech. As for its content, I assume that he spoke and that he made a statement, but unfortunately I cannot say anything about its content. If I have to give any information about this, I would have to lie. One would have to submit the speech to me so that I could maybe remember one or the other expression, otherwise, I do not know.

Q. Do you remember that Hitler threatened in this particular speech that if war should break out that the European Jews would be exterminated

A. No, I don't remember. I consider this out of the question, since in 1940-41, I heard about a completely different plan about the Jews.

Q. Was it known to you that a national socialist state and a national socialist party were violently anti-semitic?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the name "Streicher" known to you?

A. Unfortunately.

Q. You yesterday gave the Tribunal a description, or was it Friday, I am sorry, -- a description of national socialists and of Hitlerites. To what type do you consider belongs Streicher?

A. I only know Streicher from his papers, otherwise , I know nothing about Streicher.

Q. You cannot say whether he was a national socialist or Hitlerite, is that right?

A. I don't know him personally, I could only judge on the basis of his paper.

Q. Do you refer to the "Stuermer" when you speak about the "newspaper"?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you read this newspaper?

A. In the early days, Yes, but never again afterwards. It was a dirty sheet.

Q. Is it known to you that in November 1938 when the synagogue in Germany was burned that it was Streicher in Nurnberg who led the destruction of then here?

A. I do not know.

Q. You did not learn that in the Ministry of Church Affairs?

A. No. Officially, I certainly didn't.

Q. You were at that time in the Ministry of Church Affairs, that is correct, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. May I presume that in this Ministry, among your colleagues, these events were widely discussed?

A. Yes. In the Ministry I heard from my officials what had happened during the night.

Q. You disapproved of this burning for religious reasons, is that correct?

A. Basically, I didn't.

PRESIDENT: I didn't catch it. Would you please repeat it?

INTERPRETER: I did not on principle approve of this. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. What principle was this, if it was not religious?

A. That was an action which was completely illegal and we lived in an orderly state, and there can't be suddenly overnight some kind of events which contradict every legal order and order in generals.

Q. Did you approve of the other measures against the Jews just for the simple reason that they were legal?

A. Which measures do you mean, Mr. Prosecutor?

Q. The Nurnberg laws, the depriving of professions, of personal property, of citizenship rights, of living in certain quarters, of hundreds and hundreds of things which were known to every German citizen, whether he was an official or not, as every German citizen could read them every day in the German newspaper, hear them every day on the German radio, and see them every day on the street. So will you tell me now whether you approved of these measures just for the simple reason that they were so-called "legal"?

A. First of all, they were law, and secondly, the laws had a certain justification, in my conviction.

Q. Do I understand you correctly that you approved of them then?

A. Well, I did not have any influence specifically on their extent, but that something, had to happen in order to remove certain irregularities within the German people was clear to me and seemed a matter of course to me.

Q. You did approve then of these measures, Please answer with "Yes" or "No".

A. Nuernberg laws, Yes. What else did you mean?

Q. Everything else which was decreed by the German state between 1933 and 1945 against the Jews? It was common knowledge of the German people?

A. No. This was not known, I do not know what you mean by this. You would have to tell me specifically what measures you mean.

Q. For instance, the wearing of the "David Star", which was completely legal in Germany, as it was a decree to work. Did you approve of this decree, completely legal?

A. It was a matter of taste, but that some kind of an insignia would be worn, I did not consider unjust.

Q. You did approve of it then?

A. Yes.

Q. You only disapproved of the burning of the synagogues?

A. Because it was an act of violence.

Q. Did you voice your disapproval to somebody concerning the burning of the synagogues?

A. At home. Certainly, I told my wife about it. Whether we talked about it in the office, I assume so. Yes. I remember at the time I had a conference with a man from the Gestapo Office and we spoke about it and he told me that, "You can gain some merit here". Yes, we have instructions to determine by whom these measures were taken and at this occasion we spoke about them. Mr. Prosecutor, you are smiling, because by now you probably have found out differently, but I also heard about them, but at the time matters were this way, andyou must believe me if I tell you that this was told to me, and that many circles within the people were firmly convinced of the fact that the Fuehrer not only did not know anything about it, but that he was enraged about it.

Q. So, do I understand you that you say that these measures were not ordered by the Nazi State, is that correct?

A. I cannot imagine.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal by whom these measures were ordered and carried out?

A. It was later claimed that it was Goebbels who was alleged to have given these instructions, otherwise, I know nothing.

Q. What did you think who did do that when you heard of it the first day, the first morning after your employees came and told you that that happened?

A. We were told that it was the So.

Q. So you knew as a matter of fact that it was a party organization who carried out these measures?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also know that the SS participated in the thing?

A. I know that the SS did not participate, but I heard in Berlin that the SS was partly committed in order to limit these measures.

Q. But you know as a matter of fact that a party organization had carried out these measures?

A. Yes. There were quite a few party organizations which did bad things.

Q. You were a member of the Party then, were you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you not leave the party when you were so much opposed to those measures?

A. The question of leaving is a question which has much deeper roots than that, it could be solved by one single measure. I explained in my direct examination that I joined the Party at the time because it represented a great and lofty ideal, we clung to this ideal with the first love of a young man. That was the first Party I joined.

Q. I do not want to interrupt you, of course, but I do think the Tribunal knows, and I understood perfectly why you did not leave the Party, you were just too much interested in national Socialism in order to do that for just one incident, is that what you wanted to say?

A. No, No, it was an individual incident.

Q. That is what I wanted to say.

A. As I heard, it was not even approved. If somewhere people do stupid things, and I could mention more such things, then one could have left it a long time ago, then one would leave any party, for stupidities are carried on everywhere and human beings for some reasons are always going beyond the limit somewhere.

Q. Did you learn at that time, too, that at the same time when the synagogues were burned great numbers of Jews were arrested and put in concentration camps?

A. No. I did not hear anything about this at the time. I heard it here in the courtroom for the first time.

Q. You joined the SS in 1936, Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You have told the Tribunal that the SS was known at that time as the most ideal and nest unselfish representative of National Socialism and was highly regarded by the population, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. May I assume that you also were of this opinion?

A. Yes, of course, otherwise I wouldn't have said it.

Q. That was in 1936, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you between 1936 and 1945 changed your opinion about the SS?

A. You mean until '45?

Q. Between 1936 when you joined until 1945 when Germany collapsed --May, 1945 to be perfectly correct?

A. No. If I look at the entire matter, I did not.

Q. Will you explain this statement. If you considered the entire matter, you said--if you consider details, what is it then?

A. The important thing about the SS was the Waffen SS, and as far as I am convinced, it belonged to the best German troops there were, whom I always look up to in admiration and gratitude.

Q. What about the other SS organizations?

A. They hardly appeared during the war.

Q. Do you intend to tell the Tribunal that there Was no Gestapo during, the war in Germany, in the occupied countries, for instance?

A. These were not actually SS men, as far as I saw it for they had a professional activity, that is, not so much a Party mission as SS officers.

Q. Is it then correct that it is your opinion that only a member of the so-called "General" SS or later, the Waffen SS, is an SS member at all, and everybody else, whether the Totenkopf, or SD, I don't knew what all organizations existed, was not a member of the SS just for the simple reason that he had a fulltime job with the SS. Will you tell that to the tribunal?

A. As far as I know, the members of the SD and the Gestapo were more or less taken into the SS on a compulsory basis, as a result of their profession.

Q. Would you consider Himmler a member of the SS?

A. Yes, of course.

Q. Thank you, that answers my Question. Was Heydrich a member of the SS--Heydrich?

A. Yes, Yes, he was in it.

Q. Was Kaltenbrunner a member of the SS?

A. I said, all the members of the Security Police and the SD were professionally SS officers and SS members.

Q. when you were an official in the ministry of Church Affairs, did you also have to deal with the affairs of the Catholic Church?

A. I said that I had two departments. First of all, I was liaison man to the Gestapo, and there I had to deal with Catholic matters also.

PRESIDENT: Witness, why don't you answer the question directly. You did tell us all that-You heard the Question of Mr. Hochwald, it was very specific. Now, please answer that directly.

THE WITNESS: Yes. As a liaison man to the Gestapo I had to deal with Catholic matters, too; as expert in church matters, I had to deal only with Protestant matters. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Will you tell the Tribunal whether it is true or not that National Socialism was strongly opposed to the Catholic Church for the reason of its internationality and of its position in the racial Question?

A. I didn't suite yet the question.

Q. I asked you whether it is true that National Socialism was strongly opposed to the Catholic Church for the reason of its internationality and of its position in the racial Question?

A. As far as I knew, these were not the reasons, why the National Socialist state was supposed to have had a hostile attitude against the Catholic Church.

Q. Is it true that National Socialism was opposed to the Catholic Church?

A. The National Socialist as such? No. There were innumerable Catholics in the Nazi Party.

Q. Then I do not think that you answered the Question. I asked you, whether National Socialism was opposed to the church, not to certain Catholic members of the church who preferred to join an antichurch party. It has nothing to do with the individual.

A. No.

Q. But I am speaking now is the organization of the Catholic Church in Germany.

A. Against the organization of the Catholic Church as such, National Socialism had no hostile attitude, for I have already said that even the members of the Catholic Church were members of the Party.

Q. All right, now, I just asked you that I did not want to ask you about individuals but about a complete organization--but I do not think it is such an important Question, so I will have the question.

PRESIDENT: He is going to give that to you whether you want it or not, so there is no use your trying to refuse it. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Did you once learn when you were an official in the Ministry or later that in Germany program for the extermination of insane and feeble-minded existed, the so-called Euthansia program?

A. Yes, I heard about that.

Q. Where did you learn about it?

A. If you ask me where and when, I could not give any exact answer, and I cannot say when this was first mentioned. I could not state it specifically because this was outside of my sphere.

Q. Was it known to you that this program was violently opposed by the Catholic and by the Protestant Church?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you, having been a Protestant minister, approve of this program?

A. This question is very crucial, and I cannot merely answer this with "Yes" or "No". I personally asked myself this question frequently, and I came to the conclusion that if I personally had a child which was incurable, I would have given my approval as a father to have this child freed from his sufferings in this manner. Certainly, I know the philosophy of the church that in every insane person it sees a divine will, namely, that the child would yet special love, but I personally came to the conviction that it would be a greater love of your neighbor to prevent the birth of such poor people, and if these who have legal responsibility for these people give their approval to put an end to the suffering by way of Euthanasia, the suffering of these people who no longer are human beings, that they be eliminated in this fashion, I did not have anything against this from my religious point of view, but this question is so difficult and so important that to judge it one has to be an attorney in order to know what conclusions to draw and what consequences this could lead to.

Q. I did not ask you about the consequences, but I do understand your answer, that in spite of the fact that you knew that there were strong religious objections you approved of the Euthanasia program in principle, is that correct, is that what you just explained to the Tribunal?

A I mean, one cannot act against the will of the relatives, I'm against that, but with the approval of the family would favor it. Moreover, this has been a contraversy among physicians for decades and many points of view have been expressed on the subject.

TEE PRESIDENT: Witness, did you know that in many instances invalids were executed because they could not work?

THE WITNESS: No.

THE PRESIDENT: You didn't know that?

THE WITNESS: Because they did not want to work?

THE PRESIDENT: No, no, no, because they could, not work. They were invalids, they weren't insane and they weren't completely helpless, but they could not work. Did you know that in many cases they were executed?

THE WITNESS: No, never.

THE PRESIDENT: Could you see that the euthanasia program could lead to very grave abuses and that people could be killed not for medical reasons, but for ideological reasons, could you see that?

THE WITHESS: No, I would never have considered, it possible, because this could only concern a case when the physicians are convinced to the best of their knowledge that this human being cannot be cured.

THE PRESIDENT: And do you know that physicians could, sign a statement indicating that the invalid was to be executed although the physician knew that the invalid did not fall into that category of incurable? Did you know that?

TEE WITNESS: No, I do not consider that possible, because a physician has an obligation towards life and this question always played a big role among physicians and was a matter of conscience, and I am convinced that even though it was forbidden physicians did something like that here or there; I could, tell something from my own time as a priest. Of course, I don't know the details, but I saw the most varied illnesses -

THE PRESIDENT: That is enough. You answered the question. Proceed, Mr. Hochwald. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q Thank you. Did you know that concentration camps existed in Germany?

Q When did you learn for the first time that such camps existed? detail, but I think it happened right after 1933, because thus a bloody revolution in Germany was prevented, as it happened in other countries where it resulted in the deaths of thousands.

Q Which concentration camps did you know about? Dachau, Buchenwald, Oranienburg, Auschwitz, and Lublin?

A That is asking too much. At what time?

Q Let's say 1940. had an official who lived in Oranienburg and thus I got acquainted with an SS officer who was on duty there. Later, of course, I got to know the names of various concentration camps, since they were made generally public.

Q Did you know that Auschwitz was a concentration camp? the Gestapo office in Oppeln that prisoners of war who were Bolshevists were sent to Auschwitz?

Q It was known to you?

A Yes, but not what they were supposed to do there. In Auschwitz there were many buildings being put up and many people were sent there to work there.

not? were sent to concentration camps, isn't that a logical effect of what you said? office in Oppeln that Jews were sent to the Theresienstadt in Czechoslovakia, did you know that?

Q Were they sent from Oppeln at the time when you were there?

A Yes. I have already said during my interrogation that a transport went there on instructions from Berlin. so-called model ghetto, a town which had been when to the Jews completely, in which they were by themselves and in which they had their own municipal institutions without other people being there. liberty or that they were imprisoned there?

A They were not in prison. They lived in houses like any other human being.

Q Were they at liberty to leave the place?

A I don't know the directives, because I wasn't there. the Gestapo in Oppeln? Were you of the opinion that the Jews were resettled in Theresienstadt and when they did not like to stay in Theresienstadt they could take the next railway and go by train back to Berlin or back to Oppeln, or back to I don't know where they came from?

had about Jews and I could understand if they were collected in order to send them to Madagascar. whether these Jews who were sent to Theresienstadt had committed any crimes?

A No, no, not at all, that wasn't the point. This was the solution of that question which had for many years played a role in Germany. that these people were deprived of their personal liberty, is that what you want to tell the Tribunal? A No, that's only a temporary condition. The misfortune of the Jewish people is that they have no homeland on this earth. Q I do not think that you answered the question, but I do think it is unnecessary to answer this question. You have told the Tribunal and just referred to it now that before you were appointed Chief of the Gestapo in Oppeln you went to the RSHA in order to get acquainted with the different departments of this organization, is that correct? you saw the Jewish Department concerning the resettlement of the Jews in Madagascar?

Q When exactly was that? When was that? Jewish Department of the RSHA?

Q Do you know what the task of this Adolf Eichmann was?

A Yes, he was an expert for Jewish questions. That is why he described this plan to me.

the Jews, out to exterminate all of them?Wasn't that the official task he had received?

A No, I hear this for the first time. Then, he wouldn't have been able to tell me this or he would have deceived me. for the first time now?

A What?

Q That Eichmann had the task to exterminate all the Jews?

Q You heard that just now in this courtroom for the first time? on it and what it was I don't know. I only saw this man once and never again. Oppeln, you volunteered to carry out this job, is that correct? refuse this assignment? Didn't you say that in direct examination? been unpleasant for me. One could refuse any order, but one would also have to know what was behind it. Furthermore, I was under military law and I was detailed by the Army to take further orders from the Security Police and SD: As I said in the examination, I had reported to the military administration as a soldier and I personally could, only have wished that I would not have gotten this deferred status. choice between a position with an Einsatzkommando and a position with the Gestapo Office in Oppeln, is that correct?

A No, no. The two things are not opposed to each other. These were two different questions.

First I was asked whether I wanted to go to the Einsatzgruppe and I said no, and mentioned, the reasons

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, may I interrupt, please. Dr. Bergold, would you please come to the podium?

DR. BERGOLD (Attorney for the defendant Biberstein): Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you think, Dr. Bergold, you could come here tomorrow morning and still get away in tine for your other appointment. You see, we are in a very peculiar situation here now. We are in the very midst of a cross-examination and we can't let a dry go by.

DR. BERGOLD: Yes, I know that, but I thought that the witness could be cross-examined this morning and the whole thing dragged out for a pretty long time and because Hartel was brought to court another day was lost and now my own hopes and calculations are all wrong.

THE PRESIDENT: What time must you be at your appointment?

DR. BERGOLD: At 8:30, I must leave with a car; otherwise I would have to leave by train at six, but I am getting a car, Your Honor. I don't went to make any difficulties for the Tribunal. I hope that Dr. Ficht when I sent away for some job will return, as we agreed, and that perhaps we can reserve the right for me to conduct my redirect examination when I get back.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. BERGOLD: I entrust my fate to the Tribunal; so that no questions will be admitted which are inadmissible and I trust in my opponent, that he will be correct.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, will Dr. Ficht be here tomorrow morning? You are sure of that?

DR. BERGOLD: I hope that he will be here. I hope so. I sent him away with a definite order, and one cannot know today whether the communications are such that a plan can be carried out to completion. The communications are not certain. Trains may be late, so that he may not come at the right time, but he is to appear here.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I do think that if the Tribunal reserves the right of redirect examination to Dr. Bergold for a later date and Dr. Bergold appoints one of his colleagues as his deputy for tomorrow, objections against questions on the part of the prosecution can naturally only be on just a formal basis. An objection on a formal basis can be raised by any one of the defense counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, suppose we agree upon this plan. We hope that Dr. Ficht Will be here tomorrow. If he is here, of course he will handle the situation completely, and we will always reserve the right to you, Dr. Bergold, to call your client for any question which you wish to put to him because of what has arisen in the cross-examination. In the event Dr. Ficht cannot be here, we would appreciate your appointing one of your colleagues to stand by for the purpose of controlling objections which might be in order during the crossexamination.

DR. BERGOLD: I ask that my colleague Belser would take over this job.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, and I assure you that you have selected a very able attorney to handle your affairs in your absence, because we know Dr. Belser very well. thirty.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 25 November 1947 at 0930 hours.)

Otto Ohlendorf, et al., defendants, Sitting at Justice Michael A. Musmanno presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

DR. RIEDIGER: Dr. Riediger for the defendant Haensch. Your Honor, I should like the Defendant Defendant Haensch to be excused all day today, and to be taken to Room 57.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Haensch will be excused from attendance in court all day today. He will be immediately taken under guard to Room 57 so he may confer with his attorney. Mr. Hochwald, you may resume the cross examination.

Also you had no idea what such an assignment would be, and you asked him not to put you into such a position by pointing out that you had served in the First and in the Second World War, and that you just had returned from the Western Campaign. Then you said Heydrich agreed to this, and said that actually he had intended me to be a police director or a police president but owing to my knowledge of the church and church politics, he considered it suitable to employ me in his office. The question of your counsel then was, what did he suggest in this connection, and, you said, he suggested to me I should take over the State Police Office. Doesn't that indicate, Herr Biberstein, that you actually had the choice between taking the position in an Einsatzkommando, of which according to your own testimony you didn't know anything, or, the office of the State Police in Oppeln, of which you didn't know anything, either. Would you tell the Tribunal whether you were forced by Heydrich to take this position in Oppeln?

A This question, Mr. Prosecutor, which you just asked me I had already answered in my direct examination as far as I know. I said I think that I could have refused that but what would have happened then I must have had in "inkling of" because I was under military law and by military order I could be employed in other tasks of war, and had been put at the disposal of the SD and the Chief of Security Police. What I just read to you was that what you said about it.

Will you tell the Tribunal whether it is not true from your own testimony that you actually had the choice to take this position?

A The choice between what offices? Police Office in the Gestapo Office in Oppeln. between these two agencies. The first question of Heydrich's as to giving the assignment had nothing to do with the second matter. is that correct?

Q All right. Why where you then not in a position to refuse the second one?

A The second assignment? He said in the second assignment, that he wanted to make me a police director, and apart from that I told him on the first occasion - you forget this - that I was not the man for this job, therefore, we compromised, and I accepted this compromise suggestion, and I had no other choice, and that is not voluntarily. I didn't go to him voluntarily at all. suggestion, so if you had to agree your voluntarity is, in my opinion, quite obvious, but possibly you are not - - Oppeln, you testified that you were also Political Referent to the Regierungspraesident, is that correct?

Political Referent in more detail? for families who had children. I had a number of files which dealt with this question only.

Q Which question is that? which even non-employees or people who were not officials could receive money for children through this welfare. That was the assignment of the Landrat, District counsel. These files would come in as complaints to the Regierungspraesident, and I handled a great number of these files together with the Vice-president in the government office in Oppeln. I was not fully employed there.

THE PRESIDENT: Why not place the microphone on the left side, since naturally he will look towards the crossexaminer. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q It was your only task as Political Referent? In any case there were not many tasks. I, of course, consulted with the Vice-president, on occasions when we want through the files and discussed them, but I can not remember at the moment any details. In any case, there were no "exciting"matters to deal with. described a political one? objected to the granting of this child welfare support. to the Regierungspraesident, is that correct?

A Well, I don't know, I only saw the files, and in the discussions which I had with the vice-president these files were handled, and that is all.

I can not remember anything else. the Regierungspraesident was in charge of the entire police force in the District of Oppeln?

A Mr. Prosecutor, if you are going to ask me details about the channels of command, you will find no unable to give an exact answer. I can only speak about my impressions and not about the legal and actual matters. what you did as Chief of the Gestapo, you said, I didn't do a thing but I was Political Referent to the Regierungspraesident, I was active in this field, and I asked you, what did you do in this field, and the answer to my question was again negative; so may I then assume that all the time you were in Oppeln you just didn't do a thing, is that correct? That you didn't know what happened in the Gestapo; you didn't know what happened at the Regierungspraesident; you do not know the chain of command; you just do not know a thing which happened in Oppeln, is that correct?

A Mr. Prosecutor - -

DR. FIRCHT: Dr. Ficht for the defendant Biberstein. Your Honor, I would like to object to this question, insofar as the statements of the Prosecutor are not correct. The witness didn't say that he didn't do anything when he was in this Gestapo Office or the State Police Office. On the contrary he told in detail his activity. It is not that he denied it that definitely, but in my opinion the facts as of his own statement which are now being discussed are misunderstood, or at least a little distorted.

THE PRESIDENT: That is right. The cross-examiner always attempts to take the worst possible interpretation from what his victim has said, and it is up to the man who is on the fire to extract himself as best he can. That is what cross-examination is. It is a very cruel process.

THE WITNESS: May I say something about the last statement which was mentioned by the Prosecutor. If it has not yet been brought out from my direct examination, I want to emphasize again that during this whole period I hold a very miserable position, and I would like to consider whether it is not understandable how a human being with my training feels in such a position. It was the most unfortunate and unhappy time of my life. There was only one hope and that was that Heydrich gave me only a year in this activity after which I could leave this job. It is not so unnatural that I should have felt unhappy there and remained inactive. I should like to consider this.

your life, is that correct? Einsatzkommando 6 was more agreeable than in Oppeln? periods. It is one concept for me, that is, my activity with the SD and the security police. I always combined these activities and regarded them as one.

Q How long were you in Oppeln? two minutes ago that this was the most unhappy year of your life. You have been another year in the Einsatzgruppen. May I assume then that your first remark was just referring to your activities in Oppeln?

A You misunderstood me, Mr. Prosecutor. It is absolutely clear for me and I emphasize this, that far be it from me to distinguish between the state police and the assignment in the cast. I have said quite clearly, and I have explained my attitude to the Einsatz; in my direct examination I gave details of it. It had its consequences, too, but I must emphasize again that I did not want to leave the Einsatz alone; I did not only want to be dismissed from the Einsatz alone but also from the assignment of the state police, and I always combined these two. office in Oppeln in your time had a special department for Jewish affairs?

Q Was this department under your supervision?

A Yes. It was part of the Gestapo state police in Oppeln. reported to the commander of Einsatzgruppe C, Thomas, in Kiev, is that correct? in your new assignment, you reported to the commander of Einsatzgruppe C, Thomas, is that correct?

Q When was that, Herr Biberstein?

Q The first days of September, what days in September? days. I stayed in Kiev. I presume I must have left Oppeln on the 3rd or 4th of the month, so on the 6th I would have arrived in Kiev. the commend?

Q You took over the commando 6? Kommando 6 was?

Q How many subkommandos? Novocherkassk, and Schachty.

Q How many officers were in the commando?

In the staff there was the Einsatzkommando leader, his deputy, and the leader of 1 and 2, an officer, also the leader of 3 and 4, an officer. They were also leaders, officers. Then there was also one officer at the outpost Schachty, and one in Novo-Tscherkask. And then there was another officer in Solchose. that correct?

A Nine, yes. Yes, and that would make nine officers. I had miscounted. in each subcommando?

Q Then only three?

A No. At my time there was no officer stationed at Taganrog. He was only a Sturmscharfuehrer, who was a noncommissioned officer at that time. officers at the subcommandos, is that correct -- six officers at headquarters and three officers at subcommandos, is that what you said -- I only want to keep the record straight. If you are mistaken, you can make a correction. Is that correct?

A I must count again. I left somebody out, and I want to point out that my heart attack which I had on Friday has not been fully cured yet. This is not supposed to be an excuse though. I am trying hard to follow and I am trying to answer all the questions.

As I said, deputy officer, 1, 2, 3, 4. That is five officers in the staff. Then one in Solchose, one in Schachty, and one in NovoTscherkask. There are only eight. and three officers in subcommandos, and there was a fourth subcommando which was under the command of a noncommissioned officer?

A No. He was wearing an officers' cap.

Q Warrant officer?

A He had the insignia of an officer and an officer's cap, but he had not quite the officers' rank.

THE PRESIDENT: You may not have In the German army an officer who is known as a "warrant officer" in the American Army. A warrant officer is one who holds a commission from the War Department and not from the ruler or the chief executive officer of the country, which would be the President in the United States. He is higher than a noncommissioned officer, and not quite a commissioned officer. We call it a warrant officer. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q How many officers were in Office 4, Herr Biberstein? was the chief of the subcommando Rostov. As I have already said in my direct examination, he was the only one. were carrying out investigations and passed sentences and ordered executions?

A Only from the subcommando up. It depended on the position that the person concerned held. An administrative officer was not entitled to do so.

Q My question is, how many of these could do it. You have enumerated to the Tribunal that you had eight officers, together with you, that you were eight. In office 4 there was only one. In every subcommando, with the exception of one, was only one. In one there was no commissioned officer at all. My question is now, who of these persons was entitled to carry out investigations, entitled to pass sentences, and to order executions?

Q All in all?

A Yes. The others were not entitled to do it. subcommando leaders and the leader 4?

A No. The leader 4, as I said, in Taganrog there was no officer. In Schachty and Novo Tscherkask, and Rostov. There were five. Aid then Nehring and, of course, I also was authorized.

Q Five?

Q How many people carried out executions? out -- you mean shootings? That I don't know. That are the subcommandos, Schachty, Novo Tscherkask, and Rostov.

Q How strong were the three commandos? You do not know?

A That I cannot say. The men were detailed for these assignments. instructions about your task as commander of Einsatzkommando 6, is that correct?

A Yes, that is correct. I only got the directives to go to Rostov, take over the commando, and to inspect it and then report about it. when you came on the 18th of September to Rostov?

A No one informed me about my tasks. The commando was shown to me, I inspected it, and the leader 4 arranged this.

Q That was all you did. You did not question anybody, "What am I supposed to do as commander of Einsatzkommando 6"?

A I told him, "What do you do, and how do you do it" and "Please show me". information?

Q Can you tell the Tribunal his name?

A Yes. This is already in the files. His name is Heidelberger. Thomas to give you information on your task? do not know.

A He never told me that he had any such order. In any case, I do not remember. had no experience in security matters, is that right?

of war to an important unit as its leader and neither information you about the security tasks or aid he instruct anybody to give you at least the basic information which was necessary for the carrying out of your tasks?

A I have dealt with this in detail in try direct examination. From my training, my professional training and my attitude to these matters, he drew the conclusions. He did not order me to this particular position, but I was sent there from the Berlin office. Berlin detailed me to this position, and I discussed the question in detail as to whether Thomas could not have, given me another assignment. He just couldn't do so. He found a solution which satisfied both parties. would be logical to me what he would have tried to make yourself acquainted with this job, just for the simile reason that he knew that you had to stay there as commander. He should have done something to make you able to fill out this position.

AActually, of course, I can't understand it. I told Thomas that I wanted to leave, I wanted to apply for a release. This he accepted. He said, "Well, go there. Of course, you have been detailed there by Berlin; one cannot do anything about it, but please go to that place and inspect it, and we shall see about it". That I did according to my duty, and he came to the decision, as I have already said, that the leadership task within the commando should be divided between Nehring and myself.

Q That was and of October, wasn't it? you were in command of the entire Einsatzkammando 6, is that right?

A No, not quite. I think we misunderstood each other. Nehring arrived the end of October end the meeting was at the beginning of October, which I already said in my interrogations--on the 13th of October I returned to Rostov.

beginning of October--when you went to Kiev--in command of the entire Einsatzkommando 6?

Q When did you learn about this fact for the first time?

Q When?

A Well, the word, "final solution," I heard for the first time here.

interrogation?

A In the interrogation. I don't know whether I was asked for it then. I can't say anything about that. I can't say whether I heard it here or somewhere else, but here one is so mixed up that one doesn't really know where it is.

Q You did not hear about the so-called "final solution" before you came to Nuernberg?

Q Then you don't remember whether you were interrogated by Mr. Wartenberg about the extermination of the Jews?

A I don't think so, but I can't say with certainty. I can't remember it.

Q Well, it is an important matter. I do think you should have a recollection when you heard about that. You do not know?

A I said yesterday, if one is interrogated, one can't keep all the impressions that one gets, especially if there are strange matters which one isn't used to.

Q You just don't know any more? described to the Tribunal and which you witnessed, one by gas van and one by shooting, were carried out between the 18th of September and the beginning of October 1942?

Q Who was chief of the detachment who carried out this execution? particular service. I don't know who it was at that time, but I went there with Heidelberger, at least, I drove there with him.

Q Did you have a special execution section in your Einsatzkommando?

A No, No. I already said the whole subcommando took part in it.

The men were detailed for these tasks, with the exception of the administration and the kitchen, of course.

Q Everybody else?

A Yes. Well, according to the requirements of the officer, who orders how many people are to be employed in it, and I did not have to deal with it. the exception of the personnel of the cookhouse and of the administration took part in -

A Well, I don't know. I couldn't say anything else.

Q You watched an execution by asphyxiation? according to German criminal law? I said that I did not order this particular way of execution, but I found it when I arrived, and I had to assume that a lawyer had regulated it, and that all decrees had been examined, and I could not pass judgment myself. that kind? the outfit, and that all the people who carried out these orders were under your command, and I do think that it would have been necessary if you had satisfied your own conscience if that which was going on around you, and under your supervision, was legal or not.

whom am I supposed to ask. I knew that everything was all right, or at least I thought I knew, and I myself had no power of judgment concerning these matters.

Q So you never made inquiries in this respect?

A What do you mean--what happened? I saw that the execution by gas van was carried out according to order, and I saw that it was not a wild, extreme measure which somebody was doing, but that was an orderly matter which had been instituted by the authorities. in this place?

A Yes. I said in my direct examination that I never noticed any Jews. that there were no Jews any more when you came there?

A I can't testify anything about this because I don't know anything about it.

Q Will you tell the Tribunal how many inhabitants Rostov has? If I am correct--or at least according to my memory, vaguely, there must have been 200,000.

Q 250,000 now, correct?

A 250,000? Yes, about.

Q Do you know how many of these inhabitants were Armenians?

A No, I couldn't say that because I don't know whether in these 200,000 the suburb Nahichova is included. living in this suburb?

A No, I don't know how many Armenians lived there. I did not inquire about ethnic groups.

possible that there were some Jews, not very many in Rostov, how many would that be?

A I don't know. I said I don't know that there were any Jews. That does not mean that there is no Jew actually living there because this question was never brought up. I onlu know in general that there were no Jews, but that doesn't mean that Jews didn't come there. There was a constant wandering between the towns and villages. The town, Rostov, did not have a fixed population. Those who saw this constant migration must have been most amazed about these tremendous wanderings by all these Russians over these distances. The population fluctuated largely, some had escaped and, of course, returned on occasions to the places they came from.

of the population in Rostov Jewish?

A I can't testify anything concerning this because this question was never mentioned at the time. not to inform you about the Hitler order, as this order was not valid for Rostov as there were no Jews, is that correct?

A The answer to this question can only be my opinion. Yes.

Q How was it then with Taganrog? In Taganrog there were Jews, were there not? of June in 1943, and quite accidentally without any particular excitement about this fact.

Q But you knew that these Jews were registered, were they not?

Q So there were Jews in Taganrog, were there not?

Q Will you tell the Tribunal approximately how many?

A That I did not know. I didn't interest myself in it as there was no cause for doing so. for these Jews in Taganrog?

A That question I asked myself. I ask myself this question today. There were Jews. the first step to their extermination? by Mr. Wartenberg?

A The Jewish question was mentioned in Eselheide. Whether, however, it was mentioned here I can't say, because in the affidavit nothing is mentioned which surprised me at that time.

Q I think there is mention, I am not quite sure. But I want to ask you another question. Is it not ---

Q Is it not true that Mr. Wartenberg asked you whether Jews were exterminated by you or by your unit and your answer was, approximately, "That I cannot say. I only know the Jews were registered in Taganrog. Could that be?

A No, I said the same as I said here. The other statement is a combination. the arrival of Nehring -- in charge of the Einsatzkommando from 18 September to -- what was the date when you went to Kino -- beginning of October, is that right?

Q Did you forward these reports to Einsatzkommando 6? the reports. That does not mean that I remember a figure or a special event. went to the Einsatzgruppe?

A whether I always saw them, I don't know. At that time, exactly as it was later, I had the deputy Heidelberger work on as he had done before my time, and this situation Thomas regulated to the effect that as the responsible man between myself and Heidelberger he put Nehring.

Will you please explain to the Tribunal what you understand by the expression "orderly procedure?" explain this in my direct examination the best I could. As far as I knew, the case arrived, -- it was the Russian police who found out about the facts by investigations and sent the criminal with the documents concerning this case to the local Kommandatura. Then the Commando started working, that is, the sub-commando Rostov, investigated this case again. New interrogations were carried out and a final report was made. Then, according to my knowledge, a meeting took place with the chief of Department 4, who was the subcommando leader, and in this meeting the sentence was established.

Q How long would such a procedure take, usually?

A That varied. I again cannot make any statements concerning this, because I did not deal with anyone of those procedures, but there was a prison where these men were imprisoned and we had enough time to deal with each individual case according to order as it had been regulated by my predecessor.

Q An approximate time, one hour, one day, one week?

A I can't say, because I did not take part in such matters. I have tried to explain and I can only repeat it again, that I wasn't to deal with such tasks as I did not know anything about them, even less than the officials. They were all criminal officials who dealt with these matters.

Q Some of them?

Q How many people would that be in every case?

A I don't know, I wasn't present at such a meeting; therefore, I can't give any details of it. I wasn't supposed to deal with such matters and I did not want to do so. not?

A If you like to put it that way, yes, but I didn't give any orders as far as that is concerned. Q Did you ever investigate one of the prisoners your self?

A No, never. I did not have any practice in interrogations. Also, it is not the task which I can deal with. I regard it as something awful not that I am thinking of myself now. number, how many executions were carried out by Einsatzkommando 6 in your time, and that the two estimates which you gave in your two affidavits may be correct and may be incorrect. You just can't say, is that correct?

Q Let's presume for a moment that the number which you gave in these two affidavits, 2 to 3,000 is correct. You have said here in your statement that only during the four months you were in Rostov executions were carried out by Einsatzkommando 6, is that correct? Only during four months when you were in Rostov there were executions carried out all of the time when you were there?

A You mean in Rostov? carried out only during the four months you were in Rostov?

Q All of the time?

A Yes, yes, but I don't know how many there could have taken place in Taganrog, because at that time we worked in collaboration with the divisions and the divisions acted on their own, independently, and I put this commando at the disposal of these divisions only for purposes of investigations and interrogations. I remember cases in which, for instance, the Wehrmacht put the commando into action. Whether the commando at that time independently carried out executions, I don't know. It is possible, but I don't know. In any way, they collaborated with the Wehrmacht. That was combat zone at that time. numbers of executions were still reported to the RSHA, that means from you to the Einsatzgruppe, not to the RSHA?

A You mean that reports went from the E. K. 6 to the Einsatzgruppe 6? It must have been assumed. been already detached.

Q Let's go back to our first question. Let's assume for a minute that the number of 2 to 3,000 is correct.

You have been in the east for 9 months, haven't you? during this time, if Einsatzkommando 6 carried out executions daily, including Sundays, including Christmas and including Easter, there would be a daily average of 8 to 10 executions, provided that the number in your affidavit is correct, is that correct?

A I haven't calculated it yet, but if you did then it must be correct. four investigating officers -- and they were the people who investigated the cases -- could have been able to investigate, pass sentence and order executions of 8 to 10 cases a day?

A You seem to overlook one fact, Mr. Prosecutor. The interrogations are not being carried out in the commando by the officers, but by the criminal officials. You use the word investigation officer, the secretary, the chief secretary -- all these are criminal officials who carry out investigations. The officer, the leader, is only responsible for the decisions but not for the interrogations and investigations.

A I can't give you an opinion, because I cannot think myself into the situation. Whether this is possible or whether it is impossible I cannot decide. manner, that 8 to 10 sentences --approximately correct, is that right? heide and the second time here. I think these statements I made were quite clear and I reserved the right, and I tried to express that, that I should be allowed to a statement concerning this figure here before this Tribunal.

Q When did you do that, in your first interrogation here?

Q Your first interrogation here? sent to Einsatzgruppe C, is that right?

Q How often did you read this report?

A I don't remember.

Q Regularly? during the winter there were no written reports issued.

Q But there were reports by radio, were there not?

A Yes, that is possible they went by radio, but I don't know how often. I don't remember any details.

Q I do think that you misunderstood my question. I asked you how often did you read them, not how often were they sent.

A That I also do not know. I cannot give any details. reports?

A What was the question?

Q When you were interrogated by Mr. Wartenberg?

A Whether I was interrogated concerning this question? Yes, I assume that I was, I can't say. sent by Heidelberger and later by Nehring, is that correct?

A Yes, and it is possible that I signed such a report. It is possible that I was shown a report and if I saw it I must have signed it, but I don't know in detail because it was not one of my assignments.

Q Don't you remember that you stated, when Mr. Wartenberg asked you about the number of executions carried out, that you had reported in these reports the number of 2 to 3,000 people?

Q No, I asked you something completely different. I asked you whether you did not say that you have reported 2 to 3,000 killings in these reports which went to Einsatzgruppe C, nothing to do with the Eselheide affidavit? mentioned it in Eselheide. question with yes or no -- did you say to Mr. Wartenberg, according to your recollection, that you personally, you, Mr. Biberstein, reported to Einsatzgruppe C 2 to 3,000 killings?

Q You never did?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, could your refreshment take place during the recess?

MR. HOCHWALD: If your honor please, it takes one minute. I do think it would be ---

THE PRESIDENT: All right. You would prefer to do it now? Very well.

MR. HOCHWALD: I hand the original first. I offer at this time Document NO 4997 as Prosecution Exhibit 183. This, your Honor, is the interrogation of the defendant Biberstein, which was requested by Dr. Bergold. I then, in answer to the request of Dr. Bergold, I informed the Tribunal that the Prosecution will use this document at another time. I offer it now. Will your Honor turn to page 13 of the document?

DR. FICHT: Ficht, for Biberstein. Your Honor, I may make the following remark on the occasion of the presentation of this document.

As the prosecutor has already mentioned, we have requested this document at a period, when we would have been in a position to question Mr. Wartenberg about this document. I see that the document is not signed by the defendant Biberstein. Therefore, I am not in a position today to question Mr. Wartenberg today in cross examination as he has already left, but as Mr. Wartenberg has been examined in this case and could have been questioned by the Prosecution as well, I object to the submission of this document in evidence.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, this is a transcript of an original record. Mr. Wartenberg has testified here as to the interrogation of the defendant Biberstein. Dr. Ficht was in a position to cross examine him, and did cross examine him. Dr. Ficht has at his disposal the defendant Biberstein. I do not see why this document should not be admissible in evidence. However, I only wanted to fulfill the wish of Dr. Bergold, which was certainly mentioned a long time after Mr. Wartenberg was on the stand here. Dr. Bergold made his application for this document last Friday, if your Honors remember. I do not see any reason why I should not be in a position to offer it.

DR. FICHT: Your Honor, I want to state that even before the examination of Mr. Wartenberg we asked for this document and that I am not in a position, and I was not in a position, at the time, to question Mr. Wartenberg in cross examination concerning these matters which are now to be submitted.

MR. HOCHWALD: The Tribunal will certainly recall that I yesterday I asked the witness very carefully and very specifically whether he was mistreated, whether something -

THE PRESIDENT: Just a minute... Dr. Ficht, please... didn't Dr. Bergold, as late as yesterday, ask for this very interrogation?

DR. FICHT: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, now, why do you object to its being presented?

DR. FICHT: That it is being submitted in evidence by the Prosecution, because I am not in a position now to cross examine Mr. Wartenberg.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, but you were not in a position to cross examine Mr. Wartenberg yesterday.

DR. FICHT: That is correct. But after I would have had the document I could have seen whether I would submit it as a document or not, and I would only nave introduced it if I had not deemed a cross examination of Dr. Wartenberg necessary.

THE PRESIDENT: But yesterday you asked for the document. Now the document is here. Now, why don't you want it since you have been asking for this?

Dr. Bergold has made several references to this very interrogation, indicating that he needed it, and he wanted it, to establish that the testimony of his client was being confirmed.

DR. FICHT: Your Honor, I believe that there is a difference as to who introduces a document -- whether it is the defense or the prosecution and the defense wanted this document in order to make up their minds.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, if a copy of this interrogation would have been handed to the Defense it is absolutely clear that that would not have prevented us from putting in this very document for cross examination if we would have liked to.

DR. FICHT: I do not object to the questioning in the cross examination, but to the submission of the document as evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: Have you seen this interrogation before?

DR. FICHT: No, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Prosecution will hand a copy of the interrogation to the Defense counsel and he will have an opportunity to look it over during the recess and then the Prosecution may continue its cross examination immediately after the recess.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. FICHT: Dr. Ficht for Biberstein.

Your Honor, I only want to formulate my motion. I object to the submission of this document as evidence for the following reasons: First, because the 24-hour period has not been adhered to; secondly, because Mr. Wartenberg was here on the witness stand, and the Prosecution could have addressed appropriate questions to Mr. Wartenberg; and thirdly, because this is a transcript not signed by anyone, a transcript of an interrogation signed neither by Mr. Wartenberg nor by Herr Biberstein, and I am not able, through cross-examination of Mr. Wartenberg, to show inconsistencies in this long transcript. As for the question of the President, why I object to this after having asked for this document, may I mention that I am objecting now because the prosecution did not give us the document until now and therefore wanted to gain a tactical advantage by using it in cross-examination. That is why I object.

THE PRESIDENT: The 24-hour rule, if one side insists on it, must be adhered to, so, therefore, the document will not be introduced as evidence now. It may, however, be used in cross-examination of the witness.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Do you have a copy, witness?

(The witness was handed a copy of the document)

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honors will turn to Page No. 13, which is also Page N o. 13 in German -Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) You were asked, Herr Biberstein, by Mr. Wartenberg, "How many people have been executed during this time?" It was the time when you were in command. Your answer was, "I cannot say with any certainty. I had to submit the reports less in writing than by radio."

Next questions: "How many then?" Answer: "I mentioned there from two to three thousand." Is that correct?

A This "there" refers to the two to three thousand mentioned in the Eselheide affidavit.

Q Witness, will you look again at this thing? There are many questions before which were asked you. None of them refers to the Eselheide affidavit. You said something about an Eselheide affidavit but in a completely different connection, and there is a sentence, an answer just before you said, where you said, "I had to submit the reports." So it seems to me completely impossible that you, by the word "there" meant the Eselheide affidavit, which is not mentioned in this connection at all. Will you, witness, change your testimony to the effect that not you -- that not Nehring or Heidelberger made these reports to Einsatzgruppe C but you?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Mr. Hochwald, why not find out first if this transcript is correct. Now, Witness, you read -- Witness, please, you have seen in the document which Mr. Hochwald has submitted to you a list of questions and answers, yes?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Now, do they conform to what actually transpired in the interrogation? Did you actually give the answers which appear in this paper?

THE WITNESS: I don't know exactly any more. I said before that if I talked about two to three thousand, it always referred to this figure which I gave at Eselheide, and I also assume that I said here that an affidavit was made in Eselheide where I mentioned the figure two to three thousand, and that is why it is here.

THE PRESIDENT: But did you actually give the answer which appears on Page 13, "I mentioned in the reports from two to three thousand"?

THE WITNESS: This answer is not given here. It says here, I said so, "there".

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honor please, the correct translation would be, "I mentioned there", instead of "I mentioned in the reports."

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, proceed. Proceed, Mr. Hochwald. BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD:

Q Did you give these answers to these questions?

A I cannot say that any more in this connection. I repeat that if I talked about two to three thousand, I only thought of those two to three thousand, which I had mentioned in Eselheide. Not that I suddenly made a difference here and said here that I had reported two or three thousand to Kiev; it is the same figure which I gave in Eselheide. There I said two to three thousand. that you had to submit reports?

Q You, not the Kommando. You said here, "I had to submit the reports."

A I was the leader of that kommando, and "I" is equivalent to "Kommando". that you, and not Nehring or Heidelberger, submitted these reports to Einsatzgruppe C, is that correct?

A That I did that? No. I is the kommando. I was the kommando leader, and after all I am responsible for the kommando.

DR. FICHT: Dr. Ficht for Biberstein. whether the witness wishes to change his testimony. In my opinion it has not been established yet that he made any different statement.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honor please, Dr. Ficht is mistaken. I asked him whether he wanted to change his testimony in direct examination that not he but Nehring and Heidelberger made these reports. That was my question, and I do think that Dr. Ficht will agree with no on that, that the witness has repeatedly said here that reports to Einsatzgruppe C were made, first by Heidelberger, and later by Nehring. So my question is whether he wants to change his testimony and say that these reports were made by him.

DR. FICHT: Your Honor, my statement only referred to those questions which are contained in this document. That was the way I understood it.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Q (BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD) So, do you want to change your testimony, that Nehring and Heidelberger made these reports?

A No, I do not want to change my opinion. I say this is a false interpretation of the word "I". Something is interpreted that I did not express, because "I" is the kommando. number of two to three thousand? Do you want to admit that a number of two to three thousand was given by you on the basis of your recollection of these reports which you made, and that the estimate of two to three thousand therefore is correct?

thousand to Kiev, neither I nor the kommando. The figure two to three thousand always refers only to the question, "How many did the kommando execute during that time?" this two to three thousand were executed by your command in the time when you were in command of Einsatzkommando 6? question of the President, I explained that I cannot give the figure of those executed by the kommando. own answers given to Mr. Wartenberg, you do not change your testimony here?

A I do not understand how I should change it. Please give me more detailed information.

THE PRESIDENT: He has said he does not change it, that he stands on it.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: No further questions, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you have any question, Doctor?

DR. FICHT: Just a few, your Honor. BY DR. FICHT: about the discussion with Heydrich. You were asked to the effect as if you had said during the direct examination that you know very well what an Einsatz assignment meant. What did you imagine an Einsatz assignment to be, or what did you say during the direct examination to that effect?

that actually I did not know what an Einsatz assignment meant. I only know that it was abroad and probably involved State Police tasks.

Q Did you mean the Einsatzkommandos by this?

A No, I did not know any details about Einsatzkommandos; I know that it would be an Einsatz assignment abroad.

Q Wasn't it like this in Germany, that the word "Einsatzassignment" was used generally if a soldier was assigned to some soldierly task?

A Yes. Also one says that officials have assignments given to them. That is a general expression for a special task. the State Police office in Oppeln, did you not refuse at the beginning, as you said in the direct examination, to take over this post? knowledge to be in charge of a State Police office. I pointed out from what profession I came. I pointed out that I was not a lawyer, not a trained police official, and that I wasn't even an officer.

you this office? which you made concerning the exact interrogation and examination in Rostov. You said that investigations were carried out here about the defendants themselves. Did you not have witnesses then?

Q Were these only odd sheets, or were they whole files? weren't they? took in such cases. I want to ask you now, surely according to the documents you saw, it took at least several days, such an investigation?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Just a minute, if the Tribunal please. The witness has said that he is unable to give an estimate. I do object against the question for the simple reason that Dr. Ficht gave a very strong lead by saying several days. I do think the question is not admissible.

DR. FICHT: Your Honor, I withdraw this question because that is sufficient for me. I have no further questions about the crossexamination. I only would like to reserve the right that if this document is to be submitted after all, to be able to address further questions to the witness in the witness stand.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I do think Dr. Ficht should be able to put the questions out of the interrogation now to the Defendant Biberstein. It is the general rule in cross-examination, always as long as the witness is on the stand, that questions are put to him. The prosecution declares that the prosecution intends to offer the document as Prosecution Exhibit 183 as soon as the 24 hours are expired.

DR. FICHT: Your Honor, for purely practical reasons I cannot do this because this transcript is so long that in the recess I was only able to read through it once.

but in the end refers to this. May I read this?

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ficht, now you are going into something which I don't think Mr. Hochwald mentioned in the cross-examination. Now it would appear that you are having a redirect examination on the on the document generally. If you intend to do that, that is entirely proper.

DR. FICHT: Your Honor, I only know that one point, because I noticed this particularly and because it is also connected with the questions asked by the prosecution, namely the Eselheide affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q (By Dr. Ficht) It says here, the second part, if I may come to that now, "I have already given an affidavit about this, but you only read this to me, and I believe that there is a word too much written in it, one word or two too many in fact." Then there is a second question, "We shall make our own affidavit." That is what Mr. Wartenberg said.

I now ask you, Witness, what did you mean by saying, "There is a word or two too many in it"?

A This referred to the word, "No more Jews in Rostov."

Q No, I mean in general. Which testimony?

Q The Eselheide affidavit? Isn't that mentioned here?

DR. FICHT: I have no further Questions now, your Honor. I hope no further cross-examination will be necessary. I only make this reservation just in case.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY THE PRESIDENT: means of the gas van, the execution which you witnessed, you didn't specify who the individuals were that you saw. Were there any women in the gas van?

Q Were there any children?

Q I see. When you first testified, that is during the first few hours of your testimony here, you asked - or rather you stated , that one of the reasons why you joined the National Socialist Party was that you were quite disturbed about the Versailles Treaty?

Q You are student of history, are you not?

Q But you have read history? of history.

THE PRESIDENT: That was purely on the matter of history and had nothing to do with the trial. Thank you very much. The defendant will now be -

Q Yes, and then did you check on them for accuracy? general regulations had been followed in the way the whole files were drawn up. would you check to see that that number was correct?

A The figure in the report and in the files?

A No, I assumed that that was right. That is not so important. To me it was more important that the procedure as such, as far as I could see was carried out in the proper manner, and I gained that impression during the spot checks which I made. the actual facts?

A No, I did not do that. Department IV was responsible for this, and I did not think that they could change the figures at all, and I saw no reason for doing this. Why should they falsify the figures?

THE PRESIDENT: All right, thank you. The witness will be returned to the dock, and the Defendant Braune will be taken to the witness box.

(Witness excused).

ERNST BRAUNE, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows:

DR. MAYER: Dr. Erich M. Mayer for Braune. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant be examined by me as a witness on his own behalf.

JUDGE DIXON: Defendant, raise your right hand and repeat after me, the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath).

JUDGE DIXON: You may be seated.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Payer, what is the pronunciation of the defendant's name? I think perhaps I mispronounced it very badly.

DR. MAYER: Browna.

THE PRESIDENT: Just Brown?

DR. MAYER: Browna.

DR. FICHT: Dr. Ficht for Bibwrstein.

I beg your pardon, your Honor. I ask that Biberstein be execused for this afternoon so that his medical treatment my be continued. He is under medical care just now.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, the Defendant Biberstein will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon.

Q Witness, please tell the Tribunal your full name?

Q When and where were you born? in Thuringia.

Q From where did your parents originate? my mother comes from Thuringia of a farmer's family.

Q Are you married, and if so, how many children do you have? years of age. school? the elementary school from 1915 until 1920.

Q Where did you go to school after that? attended this from 1920 until 1928, and in 1929 I graduated there. activity? older students were very depressed at the time about the political situation, and the weakness among our people. political events which you will always remember? age, I saw how the Communists from the neighboring town would come to our village and take the cattle from the farmers. I would like to say that the Communists in Central Germany already were very strong at that time.

Q What did you do after your graduation? in Bonn, and then the Summer Term of 1930 in Munich, and the final terms from the Ball of 1930 until the Summer of 1932 in Jena.

On 9 July 1932 I passed my Referendar examination. time?

A Our professional prospects were very "poor," I wanted to become an educator, but my teachers advised me against it, because there was no chance of ever getting a job as a teacher. possibilities in the legal field?

A No, it was not better for the lawyers, either. At the time in Prussia alone there were about six-thousand surplus assessors and it was not rare that in the large cities trained lawyers served as cab drivers and porters. My teachers advised me to study this subject because it was their opinion that the legal profession offered most varied opportunities all the way around, and, therefore, I became a lawyer.

Q Your father was a minor employee. Did he have the financial means to let you study? to send me to high school, and to let me study. Already as an older student I gave lessons myself in order to earn a little money, and as a student from the first term onwards, and during the holidays I worked for a lawyer in order to help to pay partly for my studies. the first time? several students and myself attended a National Socialist meeting, and joined them. the attendance at that meeting?

A I must say I was very much impressed and enthusiastic. We students had mostly national views; we suffered greatly from the political dissension and weakness in Germany; class struggle and class hatred governed public life.

The moral decay increased. For the first time I came across a movement here which didn't want to separate people. They didn't want to emphasize class differences. but they emphasized that all Germans were alike, who were bound together by fate, and they belonged together; but I got the deepest impressions from the fact that here for the first time a movement tried to combine nationalism and socialism. impression which you then gained, did you continue to attend meetings of the NSDAP? from conversations and by reading the newspapers I continued to take an interest in National Socialism. My next meeting I attended in the Summer of 1930. I remember this so exactly because it was the first public meeting where I heard Adolph Hitler speak. At the time Hitler opened the campaign for the historic election in September 1930. With the election in 1930 the National Socialist movement increased from twelve to one-hundred and seven delegates in the Reichstag.

Q During that election did you vote for the NSDAP?

Q When did you join the NSDAP? was 15 May, and I was accepted in the membership book on 1 July 1931.

Q Why did you join? Bolshevism was gaining strongly in Germany, and I, as a convinced National Socialist, which I was at the time, wanted to be active in the political happenings.

Q After that, when did you join the SA?

Q Were you active in the Party life then? meethings, marches, distributed leaflets, and advertised the movement from house to house. One of the nicest political tasks I ever had at the time was in a small farm village near Jena which was assigned to me, where together with a comrade, I promoted National Socialism, and I shall never forget how the people in this village, the poor farm workers and the rich farmers with their farms, who previously were almost enemies, came together under our ideas, and finally marched side by side. Sturm to which you belonged? Sturm unit; the Reichbanner, or the Iron Front, the combination of Communists and Social Democrats at the time at least twenty to thirty times as many members as we did. you Wave a rank in the SA? I have a rank. I was a simple SA man.

Q When did you finish your studies? examination as a Referendar.

Q In Jena? what were your prospects in the profession?

A The prospects had become worse rather than better. The conditions which I indicated before had become worse and in that time in Germany there were seven million unemployed. The referendar exams were made more difficult during my time, about fifty percent of all candidates failed.

Q When did you pass your Doctor's exam? I wrote my doctor's thesis, and on 27 January, and not on 27 February as shown in the SS personnel files, I passed my Doctor's exam in Jena with, the doctor's thesis, Zwangsvollstreckrung, distraint.

Q What did you do after the doctor's exam? at the local court with the district attorney in Sonderhausen. From the Fall of 1933 until April 1934 I was at the County Court in Meiningen as referendar, and, from April 1934 until the Fall of 1934 I worked for a lawyer.

Q When did you join the SD?

Q At the time were you already a member of the SS?

A No, as before I was a member of the SA. I was a SA Obertruppfuehrer, that is the same rank, if you compare it to a military rank, as sergeant.

Q Did you ever belong to the General SS, or the Allgemeine-SS? I was immediately transferred to the SD. I thus became a member of the SS formation, the SD.

Q Through whom did you get to the SD? cause why I went there. He wrote to me that I should visit him in Berlin, and I did that. There he introduced me to Professor Hoehn.

Q Who was Professor Hoehn, whom you just mentioned? special professor for State and constitutional law at the University of Heidelberg. He was a lecturer there. I knew him from my time as a student in Jena, because ther he prepared me for my exams as a referendar.

Q What did Professor Hoehn tell you during that first meeting? What did he tell you about the SD? set up a new department in the SD. This department, in contrast to the work which so fax was to deal with the various opponents of Optional Socialism was to handle the different domestic spheres, that is, the situation concerning law, administration, education, economics, public health, science and the arts, and so forth. new department should he founded? stronger, to says yes from the lowliest to the highest, and to say that everything was under control. Apart from that there was a tendency that a steadily growing number of leaders ceased to criticize at all, and demanded that everybody obey unconditionally. Thus, the leadership of the Reich didn't get an objective impression of the actual situation in the different spheres, and of the feelings and needs of the German people, and didn't hear anything about the effects of its measures; all of that made it necessary that an information service be established, and in particular, as public criticism didn't exist very much any more. Already then, Hoehn expressed the idea that this information service after all should be subordinated to theSupreme Commander of the State in order to give him a chance to hear about all difficulties, and all power struggles and all the troubles within the State.

Q Why did Professor Hoehn choose you in particular? he picked me was my critical views, my search for the truth, and my tendency not to say yes, to everything I was told.

Hoehn described to you through discussion and explained to you? very strongly, because I was also convinced that this development which I tried to indicate before was not a fortunate development, and that it didn't conform in every sense to what we had struggled for during the time of our fight. had gained during the time of your fight? and I can only indicate it. I know that they were not enthusiastic at the time about the inflating development of the various units. An innumerable amount of people joined the movement, and a great number didn't quite know what National Socialism actually was? and, again, people had influence in this movement who really were a danger; a danger insofar as we were afraid that our ideas might be misunderstood in a way. Also, due to the power which many people had suddenly acquired overnight, they could not quite digest it, and it went to their heads, and the tendency grew to demand that what they did should be accepted without criticism. In all those matters there was a, certain danger, and at the time I was convinced that through objective and extensive reporting, sources of dangers and misdevelopments would be shown up on the National State, and in that way we would be able to help to stop them.

doubt about the National Socialist idea and its truth in your mind?

A No. They never awakened any doubts. We had the opinion that these were growing pains; after all every revolutionary, spiritual movement has to go through this.

Q This didn't keep you from joining the SD on a full-time basis? joined the SD, believing that I would be able to do my small part to do away with these bad conditions. Hoehn at the time? I would be dealing with the legal and administrative questions in the SD. These were, therefore, questions which concerned my own profession, and I hoped to be able to increase my knowledge and to enlarge it. cision?

A Yes, there were also economic reasons. I already said that my parents were not in very good financial condition, and at the time I was happy to be able to earn my own living.

Q When did you start to work for the SD?

Q I must correct something there, witness. Surely you mean 1934?

Q What official situation did you find when you joined the SD? in its very early beginnings, and, actually I found the following situation: outside of Professor Hoehn who travelled to Heidelberg twice a week to give lectures, there were two referendars and I active in this department. Apart from that there were three assistants. We had neither a file department nor a file cabinet, nor did we have a record department according to subject matter. All the documents consisted of two or three loose bundles, and five or six men carried on the work in three attic rooms in the Prinz Albrecht Palais.

DR. MEYER: Your Honor, I have finished, one phase, and shall now come to the acceptance in the SD, and I think it is a splendid time to have the noon recess.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I think that is a very good idea. The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1345 hours.

(The court recessed until 1345 hours, 25 November 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, the Tribunal has granted me that in the case of Haensch, Mrs. Elisabeth Reimann will be heard as a witness. The witness is present. She is in a very delicate position because her father, who is 75 years old has to be operated upon. It is a complicated operation, and the father only wants to be operated upon if he can see his daughter again before undertaking it. The physician cannot wait the operation, and I would, therefore, like the Tribunal to grant me to hear the witness, Reimann, in the witness stand tomorrow morning. The prosecutor and also the defense counsel of the defendant Braune agreed to it. The examination will only take a very short time as the witness is only supposed to be asked when Haensch left fot the front.

PRESIDENT: Yes, especially in view of the fact that you tell us that the examination won't take too much time. I don't think that that little interruption will unduly spoil the continuity of the present defendant's case; so that it will be entirely in order for you to present that witness tomorrow morning.

DR. RIEDIGER: Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Yes. We might make an announcement to the defense counsel now about the weekend. Thursday is a holiday known as Thanksgiving. It is an American holiday. It comes the fourth Thursday of each November, and since it comes toward the end of the week and many like to avail themselves of that continuous three or four day period, we won't have court on Friday either, so that when we recess tomorrow afternoon we will reconvene the following Monday at the usual time. And while we are discussing things of this character, it might be well that the defense counsel who have already completed their cases see to it now that their document books are presented without undue delay to the defense information center so that the translation and the mimeographing may be done now, because if you wait until later there will be such a congestion that it will be impossible to get out all the document books. So, please, those who have completed their cases, get their document books in as soon as possible.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, before I begin with the direct examination of the witness, I would like to make one little observation. When before the recess I asked the witness for the subject of his thesis, he mentioned that the subject of his thesis was the Distraint. This was not contained in the translation of the interpreter. In order to prevent any doubts or any distortion, I want to mention here that this thesis from civil law, it dealt merely with the question, how a sentence, resulting from a personal action of an obligee can be carried out in practice. It has nothing to do with the police matters or with the subject of police.

PRESIDENT: That explanation is very clear and it will now appear in the transcript, of course.

DIRECT EXAMINATION - (Continued) BY DR. MAYER: and you explained to us the situation which you found after your arrival in Berlin. With this, we now want to come to the subject of your activity within the SD, and I ask you to explain to the Tribunal your activity in Berlin during the first months. practically nothing, therefore, the first month was spent in organizing, in creating the technical organization and the general organization. We started files, and a card index. Apart from that, in the rural districts, in the sectors in the then prevailing SD sectors, people had to be found who were capable of dealing with such tasks and problems. After this was done, in March or April 1935, these new collaborators were called together in Berlin and here for the first time the new collaborators were told about these new tasks and the purpose of this new department. ceived by the old SD man? fight difficulties. These difficulties varied from the lack of understanding until open refusal. As people who had studied, we were called members of the intelligencia.

Q What was Heydrich's own attitude concerning this new assignment? judging from the situation at the time, I presumed that he was in favor of this particular department, at least at the time. men?

A No, unfortunately not. In the course of years, I began to realize that Heydrich did not do anything about these contrasts but on the contrary that he supported them. He did not want unity but he was of the opinion, Court No. II, Case No. IX.

divide and rule. with Heydrich. Is that quite true in spite of your activity of three and a half years in the SD main office?

A Yes, that is correct. I never reported to Heydrich officially, although I was for almost four years in the SD main office. I only heard Heydrich speak on bigger meetings.

Q Is the same true for Himmler?

Q What, was your actual work in the SD? istration was my task. In addition I was given the department education where I had to deal with student and university matters and also the department party and state which, however, never got over a sort of embryonic state. of the SD?

A I shall illustrate it with a few examples. On the legal field, the problem of the contrasts of the legal institutions of the state and the legal institutions of the party was dealt with. The contrasts, for instance, between the Reich Ministry of Justice on the one side, and the National Socialist Lawyers League, that is the Academy for German Law under the later Reich Minister Frank were so strong that I experienced that the Minister of Justice officially prohibited his own officials to participate in dealing with legal problems which the Academy of German Law had taken up and forbade them to participate in any of the work of the German Academy of Law. We also reported about the training problem. While until 1933 numerous assessors were without work, in 1935 already there were the first symptoms of a lack of lawyers. This again has had as its consequence that for the new generation of lawyers, conditions were made easier which were looked upon in a critical way for the purpose of agood legal training. This also was reported about. Generally, reports were made about new laws and their practical Court No. II, Case No. IX.

effects and their reception in lawyers' circles, and in larger circles of the population. In the field of administration there was the problem of the Reich reform which was dealt with mainly. The question of the increasing subdivision of the administration and in this connection the problem of a unified administration, here again, contrasts were pointed out of the lower authorities, for instance, I think in particular about the contrasts in district areas between the local counsel and the area leader, the kreisleiter. In the field of education, I remember in particular a detailed report concerning the Adolf Hitler schools. I am still convinced until this very day, that is, thanks to the SD, that these schools were not as largely as was planned,before, instituted in all districts and areas, but that it was only one of the experiments on the way to a final school reform and was also regarded as such. We reported about the problem, Hitler Youth, Parents and School, which concerned larger circles, especially after 1933. On many occasions we pointed out how unfortunate it was that the then Reichsjugendfuehrer, the leader of the German Youth, Baldur von Schirach, did not try to achieve a cooperation between the parents and school and Youth Leader, but by attacking the teachers increased these contrasts. We were of the conviction that he did not do a good service to the German youth with that. criticised the existing institutions. Did you want to say that you worked against national socialism?

A No, on the contrary. If we criticized, for instance, the Adolf Hitler schools, then this happened for the reason that we were of the conviction, and this was clearly expressed from all the voices coming from all over the country, from national socialist circles as well as from educators, that these Adolf Hitler schools were, if expressed in a slightly exaggerated manner, were very bad for national socialism. I don't want to maintain in any way that we worked against national socialism as it was understood by us. Just the contrary was true.

Q Did you deal with matters of students and universities at that time?

A Yes, I was particularly interested in student problems. And I believe that the information service of the SD contributed to the fact that at the end of 1936 or 1937, I don't remember exactly, that the then student leader was released and that that was the end of a very unfortunate development which had taken place until then. training?

A Yes, but it was not easy. I either had to do my work in the evening or at night, or if I was working in the law courts in the daytime, I had to do my SD work at night.

Q What salary did you receive when you were in the SD? per month. Later on 300 RM gross amount. My first salary when I was married in 1936 was as chief of a department just under 300 reichsmarks net.

Q But you were in charge of the main department, were you not?

A Yes. From April 1945 I was practically in charge of a main department which, however, was in its early stages at that time. I am sorry, that was 1935. The salary as chief of a main department, I never received. Until '37 or the beginning of '38 I was paid as a referent, and later on I was paid as a chief of a department.

that it could not pay its officials betters.

Q When did you pass your assessor examination?

A On the 11th of May, 1936. I graduated as assessor at the Reich Legal Commission in Berlin.

Q What was the course of your official career? official.

Q But you were an Oberregierungsrat finally?

A That is correct. That, perhaps, I may explain very briefly how this came about. After I had left the state service for one and a half years, the budget was cut down and the SD came into financial difficulties so that it could not pay its officials any longer. At that time the personnel chief, and I also thing the staff leader of the Main SD Office, approached my and asked me to have myself appointed as assessor formally with the Gestapo but only for a short time. I was assured that it was only a matter of form in order to save the SD from paying my salary. My practical activities would not change. I would work in the SD as I had done before.

Q Did you agree to this arrangement? which was done for financial reasons in the interest of the SD, not in my own interest, I agreed.

Q Was this promise then kept?

A No, unfortunately, if was not kept. As early as spring, 1938, Dr. Best, the deputy chief of the Gestapo Office, requested that after all, since I was paid by the State Police, that I should also serve in the State Police.

Q Were there any other reasons which moved Dr. Best to take up this attitude?

the authorities, between the department law and administration in the Gestapo Office, which was subordinated to Dr. Best, and between my department, law and administration. Perhaps I may, in order to throw light on this development, in order to make these conflicts understandable. From the very beginning, that is, from early 1933, Heydrich on one hand was Chief of the SD, and on the other hand, he was first of all inspector of the Gestapo, but only in Bavaria, because both these agencies were in Munich at the time. It autumn, 1934, the SD Main Office was transferred to Berlin and became an independent office of the SS, and Heydrich became chief of the Gestapo Office in Berlin. The situation at that time was such that the SD, through its intelligence service, was legitimised by the party but not through its activity in the domistic service information which were dealt with at the time by Professor Hoehn. The next stept of development was, I think in November, 1936, when the Main Office Security Police was created after the appointment of the Reichsfuehrer SS as Chief of the German Police. At that time, there were certain tensions between the State Police and the SD in its enemy intelligence service, because the State Police, which dealt with the problems of opponents of the Reich, wanted for reasons understandable that they should also have to deal with the intelligence service in this particular field and thus it came about that eventually even the intelligence service was taken over more and more by the State Police. The decree concerning the separation of these two spheres from 1938 was to a certain degree only the confirmation of a state of affairs which had already been largely created before, and only 1939, when the RSHA was founded, brought a clear and final solution of these problems. All the activities concerning enemy intelligence became the task of the State Police, and Office 3 became an office merely dealing with domestic spheres. In the course of this development, the Secret State Police Office went further and expressed their misgivings and claimed authority in the field of law and administration.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, a certain amount of background is not only in order, but really necessary; however, do you think that it is necessary to go into a great deal of detail on these various office ramifications?

THE WITNESS: I think I may answer this. I had, just finished. I only wanted to say now that Dr. Best claimed tasks for the State Police which we claimed for the SD, and those were the conflicts which I tried, to explain, and therefore I tried to display the development. Dr. Best used this pretext and tried to solve the problem by insisting that I be appointed to the State Police Office, and therefore the source of all the trouble was once and for all eliminated. these promiese, without objection?

A No, I did not. In autumn, 1938, I was transferred as the Deputy State Police leader to Muenster.

Q Why did you not leave the SD at that time? of the opinion that one must go on with a task which one has recognised as justified, that one must not give it up just because one doesn't succeed, the first time. Furthermore, I succeeded, with the aid of Herr Ohlendorf to be appointed the Chief of the SD office in Muenster, so that I practically remained in the SD service. combined when you were in Muenster?

A No, it could not. I did not want to combine these two tasks because I wanted to force my remaining in the SD, and therefore I did not indulge in any activities as Deputy Chief in Muenster, but I only dealt with my SD work.

Q Did you Stapo chief approve of your attitude?

A No. After, a few months, I think it was in February 1939, he left for Berlin. He complained about me, said that I was not doing any work, and he asked for my release.

Q Were you then transferred? Instead of returning me to my SD activities, I was taken out from the SD completely and I was transferred to Koblenz as Deputy State Police Chief without giving me an SD office.

Q Were you content with this transfer?

A No, I wasn't. I tried again to return to the SD, and in summer, it was in July 1939, I had actual hopes that I would be eventually succeed. In the course of the planning of the new Office III in the RSHA, which was founded in September 1939, I was recalled from my leave by Herr Ohlendorf, in order to assist him with the working-out of an organization plan of the new Office III. During this collaboration, Ohlendorf told me that he had asked Heydrich to transfer me into this office which was to be created and that Heydrich had agreed to it. It had already assumed, such concrete shape that Herr Ohlendorf asked me to look for a new apartment in Berlin and to prepare my moving.

Q Why did this plan fail? this re-transfer and he achieved his aim, which was that I should remain in Koblenz. This I found out shortly after the outbreak of the war, when the new Office III had. already been created and I was not called to Berlin. I went to Berlin, and there I found out through Ohlendorf that Dr. Best had prevented my recall.

Q Why did you then not leave the State Police?

A War had broken out meanwhile. I was appointed for the Security Police for a war essential task, and all attempts to go back to the SD had failed and now I could not do anything because during the war there was only one motto for all of us, which was to obey and do one's task where one was put.

I may add I did not try to be re-transferred to the SD from the State Police, not because I was against this work as such, because I regarded it as necessary and absolutely legal, but from the very first beginning of the SD I was so interested in this vital task of the SD that I wanted to go back to it. Police activity was not my line. as having joined the State Police voluntarily?

A No, I must reject this. Concrete promises were made and assurances which induced me to join the State Police formally, but no actual activity was connected with it. One had promised me expressly that I would remain in my SD work. This formal joining of the Stapo in connection with certain promises, was then used in order to command, to order me about. I tried to have these orders revoked, and in summer 1939 I had concrete hope that this was really only a temporary state of affairs and that I would he able to return to the SD very soon, but now I found out shortly after the outbreak of the war that this effort had failed and I was under the war law assigned to State Police work, and I had no possibility now to leave the Stapo and return to the SD. This was made impossible by the legal decrees from Berlin at that time. I think this was confirmed explicitly during the IMT. return to the SD Hauptamt, Main Office? What consequences did it have for your SD membership? ship because I remained SD Abschnittsfuehrer -- that means leader of a section -- in Muenster, and therefore I was still in the SD. Also, my transfer to Koblenz in April, 1939,I did not regard, as an actual leaving of the SD but only as a temporary state of affairs, as I expected to be called into the newly created Office III to Berlin. As my final leaving the SD, I regard that moment when Dr. Best presented my being recalled to office III. That must have been August or September, and I found out about it in the end of October when I was in Berlin. That was actually the date when I left the SD. From that moment on, as every other member of the State Police in my position. I only were the SD uniform I had no function within the SD and no activity. I only were the uniform, the SS uniform with the SD insignia.

Q When were you transferred to Wesermuende?

April, 1940, If I remember correctly.

Q For how long were you active in Wesermuende? to Halle on the Saale River, also as the Chief of the State Police Office.

Q What were the reasons that Caused your new transfer to Halle?

A I never learned the reasons. I can only say that I wasn't very pleased about this new transfer, but I already said that I was unable to protests. We had to obey. questions. First of all, the one -- were you ever favored as an official promoted by favor?

A No, I think I can say the contrary. According to the regulations of the Ministry of the Interior, I could have claimed as a Praedikatsjurist, an honor graduate to be promoted to government councillor (Regierungsrat) after two years. I may explain here, of course, that the word "praedikatsjurist" is difficult to translate. I must point out here that it means that both exams are passed with honors, above average. As such a lawyer, I could have become a government councillor after two years, but I only was appointed Regierungsrat, government councillor after three and a half years, and until my promotion to the chief government councillor, senior government councillor, it took more than four years. Even there, it took exceptionally long.

Q What do you think are the reasons for this? Berlin and then later in Muenster provoked a certain anger with Heydrich and Best and also the Chief of the Office IV. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q What were you angry about? silence, but that I objected, I put up a fight, and also that in Muenster I did not carry out any activity.

Q Put up a fight against what? in Muenster, and I put up a fight and I tried therefore to suceed by not doing anything in my job; therefore the chief went to Berlin and said, "Braune is not working, therefore he must berecalled," and that contributed towards my transfer and I was no longer in charge of an SD sector. The State Police was then my main job in Koblenz, and even there I made efforts supported by Ohlendorf to get away, contrary, to the order from Berlin.

Q You were transferred to the State Police in April, 1939?

A No. First in August or September 1938 I was taken from the SD office and I became Deputy Chief of the office in Muenster, of the Gestapo office. There I achieved that I should at the same time get the SD sector, and with this, of course, they were not pleased.

Q But you finally were transferred from the SD into the Gestapo?

Q All right. Then you worked In Muenster, you worked in Koblenz, and you worked in Halle?

A In Muenster, I did not do any work. Through the very fact that I did not do any work I tried to achieve my re-transfer to the SD and therefore people were angry with me. sent you to Koblenz, is that right?

Q And how long did you remain in Koblenz?

Q Well, one year is a long time. You say "only one year." Now, in your whole one year, did you do any work in the office of the Gestapo?

Q Then what were they angry about? You said that you were constantly fighting with them? What was the fighting about?

Heydrich did not like it.

Q How were you fighting? This word "fight" is rather a broad term. Just what did you do? You were there in Koblenz and you were carrying out the duties of your office, weren't you?

A Perhpas, Your Honor. I should say I tried very hard to come back to the SD.

Q Yes, but in Koblenz you carried out the duties of your office? which was not without reason because I had told him that I wanted to come back to the SD.

Q. Yes, we understand that, that you were always eager to get back to the SD, out at the same time you were holding the office as Chief of the Gestapo, and you worked at that for a whole year.

A. In Koblenz I was not Chief; I was Deputy Chief.

Q. All right. AS Deputy Chief, then, you worked for a whole year.

A. Yes.

Q. Then you became Chief of the office in Wesermuende.

A. Yes.

Q. How long did you remain there?

A. There I remained one year.

Q. Yes. That was another year there. So that in two years you worked at Gestapo work?

A. Yes.

Q. And you threw all your energies into that job as a public servant would?

A. I think I have done my duty there.

THE PRESIDENT: That is all I want to find out. Proceed, Dr. Meyer.

DR. MEYER: Your Honor, I want to point out a mistake in the translation. The witness said in his examination that his promotion to government councillor took three-andone-half years. The translation said three years. I should like to rectify this mistake.

THE PRESIDENT: That it took him three-and-one-half years to get the promotion, instead of three? Very well, the record will show that correction.

DR. MEYER: With this, your honor, I come to a new set of Questions.........Questions dealing with the assignment of the witness in the East.

Q. (By Dr. Meyer) Witness, how did it cone about that you were assigned to the East?

A. In Halle, I think during the first days of October I received the order iron RSHA that I had been assigned to the eastern assignment and that I had to report at Nikolajew; and there I was to report to the Chief of Einsatzgruppe D, Oberfuehrer Ohlendorf. The original document of this order will be submitted in my Document Book.

Q. What did you do when you received this order?

A. After I had concluded all my affairs in Halle and passed them on to my Deputy, I went to Berlin, where I tried to get some transportation to Nikolajew.......after all, it was more than two thousand kilometers.......I tried with the assistance of the commanding officer of the Wehrmacht to get courier plane passage.

Q. Were you informed by the Reich Security main Office about your new tasks?

A. No, I received no information about my tasks in one East.

Q. Had you been informed by somebody else what tasks you would have to carry out in the East?

A. No, I was not informed by any one. When I left for Russia I did not know any detail of the tasks I was to deal with. The picture I had of at was the usual SD and Security Police work, as it had been carried out in the Western occupied territories. When I left I did not even know what my position would be, because not even that was contained in this order.

Q. Was not the task of a commando chief the only possible one for you?

A. No, not at all. I could have been a liaison officer with the Wehrmacht, apart from kommando chief; or I could have obtained a position in the staff of the Einsatzgruppe.

Q. How did you get from Berlin to Nikolajew?

A. When I tried to get some transportation to Nikolajew in Berlin I met, I think it was in the anteroom of Ohlendorf, Ohlendorf, who happened to be in Berlin to carry out some official tasks..........I told him that I had been assigned to his Einsatzgruppe.

Q. If I understand you correctly, Ohlendorf did not know at the time about your assignment to his Einsatzgruppe?

A. No, he was just as surprised, and I think that I can say that he was as pleased as I was that I was to join him. He had not known about it. But he only learned about it from me.

Q. Did you then go to Nikolajew together with Oberfuehrer Ohlendorf?

A. Yes, I even remember the day. On the 18th of October we left Berlin, with three cars altogether, and arrived in Nikolajew in the night of the 20th or 21st of October. Ohlendorf had with him the Norwegian Police Chief Lie, who inspected the East for about a fortnight in order to get acquainted with the conditions prevailing there.

THE PRESIDENT: Please let me have those dates again. You left Berlin October 18th, and you arrived in Nikolajew when?

WITNESS: In the morning of the 18th we left Berlin, your honor, and we arrived either in the night of the 20th or 21st, or in the night from the 21st to the 22nd of October.

THE PRESIDENT: And when had you met Ohlendorf in Berlin?

WITNESS: That was two or three days before our departure, when I tried to get a plane passage. Of course, when this new situation came up I got a car with a driver in order to be able to accompany Ohlendorf by car, because it was at that time that he assigned me the tasks of taking care of the Norwegian Police Minister Lie, and he attached particular importance to my going with him.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. MEYER:

Q. Therefore, after your arrival in Nikolajew your first task was to look alter the Norwegian Police minister Lie?

A. Yes, after we had arrived in Nikolajew, Ohlendorf asked me to look after the Norwegian Police minister and to acquaint myself with the tasks in the Eastern assignment by asking comrades, or by reading files and reports, and so on.

Q. Had you meanwhile learned what position you were to take over?

A. Yes, a few days after our arrival, Ohlendorf told me that I should take over the Kommando 11-b as the Kommando Chief who had been Chief up to now had been transferred to Berlin. Whether my appointment from Berlin had already been received at that point I cannot say now; it is possible that it only had been officially received from Berlin a few days later, but I am not quite certain about this.

Q. How did you find out about the tasks you were to deal with?

A. During the Vary first days I found out about the tasks of an Einsatzkommando from discussions with comrades in the staff of the kommando; also through discussions with the two kommando chiefs, Bersterer and Zapp, who were present at Ohlendorf's office for the purpose of reporting; also by reading files and reports.

Q. What aid you Earn concerning the tasks?

A. There I learned that it was the task of the Einsatzgruppen and Einsatzkommandos to combat enemy sabotage and terror, and to combat enemy intelligence and to carry partisan reconnaissance and SD reporting and information service, as It was done in the Reich; to look after the Ethnic Germans, as far as there were any in existence; and, finally, the difficult task of eliminating Jews, Gypsies, and Communist functionaries and active Communists, on the basis of a Fuehrer order, as far as they could be caught.

Q. Did you have any conversation concerning this task with your Chief?

A. Yes, I had a conversation with Ohlendorf as my superior, a few days later. On that occasion he confirmed these tasks about which I had learned from previous discussions with my comrades and from reading files and reports.

Q. Did he also confirm the order for the shooting of Jews, Gypsies, active Communists?

A. Yes, this also was confirmed by him as an order of the Chief of the state and Superior Commander, Adolf Hitler. Tales hears from him which I had already heard in discussions with comrades, that this order had been made known in Pretzsch and Dueben shortly before they left for Russia, by the Chiefs Streckenbach and Mueller, to all Gruppe chiefs and kommando leaders as an order of Adolf Hitler.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Meyer, would you mind deferring now until after recess for the continuation of the examination?

DR. MEYER: Yes, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. FICHT: Dr. Ficht representing Hoffmann for Nosske. his defense.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Nosske will be excused all day tomorrow from attendance in court in order that be may prepare his defense.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. MAYER: in Nikolaev, and you said that, apart from looking after the Norwegian Police Minister we who was there as a guest and that your superior, Ohlendorf, you received information concerning your tasks, and that Herr Ohlendorf also confirmed the Fuehrer Order to you. Did you believe in this confirmation by your superior? something that was not true. Apart from that, already during the first few days I got some definite instructions concerning this. All comrades to whom I talked about this remembered very well that Himmler had been in Nikolaev at the beginning of October. According to all my comrades, Himmler also talked to the leaders and the men there. Among other things he said that he knew very well how very difficult it was for every individual to carry out this Fuehrer Order, but this Fuehrer Order had been issued by Adolf Hitler as being absolutely necessary in the fight against Bolshevism, a fight for our very existence, and had to be carried through under all circumstances. Adolf Hitler and he, Himmler, alone were responsible for this order and its execution and not the individual leaders or the men who were forced to carry out these orders during the war at the front under martial law. This speech and this manner or speaking was confirmed to me by Herr Ohlendorf expressly, in his capacity as my superior.

issued by Himmler and not by Hitler?

A I considered it quite impossible, and I still do now. that Himmler could have issued such an order of such tremendous significance on his own authority, but it seemed quite impossible to me that he would tell all leaders and men in his speech that this order was definitely confirmed unless this conformed with actual facts

Q Did any other fact show, that this was a Fuehrer decree?

A Yes, several. First of all I thought it impossible that the office chiefs, Streckenbach and Mueller, should announce such an order before the leaders in Dueben and Pretsch unless it was a Fuehrer Order. Furthermore, already during the first few days, I saw from a few reports which I read in the group staff that this order was to be carried out along a front approximately two thousand kilometers long. Also, this order was to be carried out under the sovereign right and the executive power of four Army group chiefs, and fifteen German Army leaders In addition there was the fact that about sixty or seventy reports, contained in the reports of events were given to various agencies, which showed that this order had been carried out, and that reports even up to 100 copies were passed on to Reich Ministries. The prosecution submitted one here which shows that within one month more than twenty thousand Jews were shot. This report, as I saw myself from the original document was shown to about ten people in the Foreign Office. All this confirmed to me without doubt that this could only be an order by the Supreme Commander and head of the State. 6th or 9th of June, 1941, was given in writing, but the Fuehrer Order was not given in writing? Please comment about this question and refer to the documents NOKW-1076 and NOKW-484.

THE PRESIDENT: What page, please?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, these documents were not submitted by the prosecution, but I shall introduce both documents in my document book.

I only ask the witness to identify them and to make statements concerning these documents which are of importance to the court.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, it would help very much if you could introduce them as you go along.

DR. MAYER: Of course, I only have the two documents at my disposal which belong to the prosecution and were only out at my disposal Actually I have to return both documents to the prosecution. I have so far not had any copies adds.

THE PRESIDENT: MR. Walton couldn't you assist Dr. Mayer in having these documents reproduced immediately so that they can be before the Tribunal while Braune is actually presenting his case?

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, I hesitate to answer that question until I know the length of the document.

THE PRESIDENT: I see.

MR. WALTON: I will have to make some estimate because our stenographic force is only so large.

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't mean your own personal staff, I meant in the regular procedure, if we could get the reproduction section.

MR. WALTON: I think we had better depend on the stenographic staff for matters of expediency from former experience with the regular channels of reproduction. In this connection, sir, the prosecution would have no objection to his introducing them or treating them in this way if the Court will reserve to the prosecution the right of objection, if such is pertinent, at such tine as the prosecution can examine the particular document.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, that right is always reserved to either side when the opposite side presents a document, but we are only saying for the benefit of the defense, in order that the Tribunal can follow the argument which is being presented at the time, it will be quite helpful if we could see the document.

MR. WATSON: Very well. I presume, sir, that Dr. Mayer got these particular documents from the photostatic copies which have been made available to all defense counsel and to all defendants through their counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, how long are these documents?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, there is only one very brief point I want to establish by this, and perhaps the witness could read this into the records so that these short notices be made known to the Tribunal. We merely want to establish from the headings of the documents that these orders, which are also extensive orders, only went to the very highest authorities but were not given to lower authorities in writing. That is all I want to prove by these documents. May I ask the Tribunal, with their Permission that the witness read our these passages into the record?

THE PRESIDENT: That is entirely in order, Dr. Mayer, I would only make this suggestion that if you have an extra copy it be given to the interpreter so that the translation won't need to demand entirely upon the oral hearing of the document.

DR. MAYER: That will be rather difficult since I myself did not have any copies made of this document.

THE PRESIDENT: I thought you said there were two copies.

DR. MAYER: No, two documents.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, Then release read very slowly.

THE WITNESS: This is Document NOKW-484. The heading is "High Command of the Wehrmacht" and there is a distribution list of about ten agencies. I now quote four lines of this letter signed by General Warlimont. I quote, "It is requested that distribution only be made to the highest commanders of the Army and the Air Force Chiefs, and the further announcements be made to the commanders orally." This is a letter which does not bear a date, but in the second document which has the head, "Commander in Chief of the Army" and which is dated 8 June 1941, there is a reference made and it says, and I quote: "The following order by the OKW of 6 June 1941 is announced." In this second document, NOKW-1076 the Commander in Chief of the Army now forwards this order again, namely this Commissar Order, to a certain circle.

The result is, and it is shown here, that the Commissar Order, to a certain circle. The result is, and it is shown here, that the Commissar Order of the Fuehrer again was only distributed as far as the Commanders in Chief of the Army in writing, but subordinate officers were only informed of this orally. to your highest officers, that is Himmler and Heydrich, in writing?

A Of course I don't know that, but I presume that the order about the shooting of the Jews, gypsies and Communist functionaries was made known to the highest authorities in writing, but apart from that it was to be made known orally, as Streckenback and Lueller had actually done in Dueben and Pretsch. had received a written order by Hitler? must have had this order made known to them, because otherwise the execution of this order would have fallen to the competency of the Armies, under the executive power of the commanders in chief, and the documents show in many cases, that active participation in the carrying out would have been unthinkable. I do not think the Army commanders would have helped to carry out such an order if it had not been a Fuehrer Order. over the commando in Odessa?

A Yes. When I arrived in Odessa during the first days of November, my predecessor confirmed to me that this Fuehrer Order had been announced in Pretsch. He personally was a close friend of Gruppenfuehrer Streckenbach, and he told me that Streckenbach had already expressed in Pretsch that he himself objected to this order but could not change it because it was a Fuehrer Order and that had to be carried out.

as well? me about this statement by Streckehbach, but I am not quite sure of it anymore. defenseless people, women and children?

Q What do you mean by humane reasons? having defenseless People killed and shot, and I cannot imagine that there is any human being who does not feel this inner struggle. this feeling within you? for me to answer this.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q.- Witness, I would just like to refer to your previous answer, and of course, then you will be able to take up the question which your counsel just put to you. You said that you could, not imagine that any human being could execute such an order without having some kind of an inner objection to it. Did I understand you correctly?

A.- Yes, your Honor.

Q.- Do you exclude the possibility that there could be any human being at all that could execute such an order willingly and with entire assurance morally, inwardly, and in every way?

A.- Your Honor, that would nave to be a person without a heart and without a soul.

Q.- Well now, I am merely taking up this statement of yours, and I want to see how you appraise it. You say you cannot imagine a human being, Now, a human being in a walking anatomy. You know what a human being is, a person?

A.- Yes.

Q.- With a brain?

A.- Yes.

Q.- Very well. Don't let us deal in abstractions and say "without a heart and without a soul". You say you cannot imagine a human being affirming such an order. Now, do you stand on that statement?

A.- Yes, that is my opinion, unless it is a person whose whole mentality I cannot understand.

Q.- Well then, you do make an exception then, you say that there could be such a human being?

A.- Well, your Honor, after all there are people who are born as criminals who become mass murderes, these are, of course, exceptions.

Q.- Then if you mean you did not mean your statement when you said you cannot imagine a human being executing such an order without some inner revulsion, that statement is not correct, is it?

A.- I did not think of that exception, your Honor. That is right.

Q.- Then you say that there can be human beings who would kill defenseless people and yet not feel any inner remorse?

A.- Will your Honor permit me to gave an example, which I don't want you to misunderstand. I don't know whether there are cannibals in the world now who do such things which a normal man cannot understand.

Q.- But witness, you made the statement yourself, that you cannot imagine. You even put it into the realm of fantasy, that it would be even possible to conceive that there could be such a person who could kill without some inner revulsion Now, I am only asking you whether you affirm that statement which you made?

A.- No, I have to keep that mentioned limitation, I forgot to think of that.

Q.- All right, Then there are human beings who could kill defenseless people and go about their affairs and sleep of nights?

A.- Whether they can sleep quietly at night, I don't know, but -

Q.- Well, at any rate let us leave out the sleeping business. There are human beings who could kill defenseless people and not give any manifestation of regret in having killed defenseless people?

A.- Yes, I think that is possible.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. MAYER:

Q.- Witness, may I repeat the last question? Was it the feeling of being unethical that caused these inner misgivings of yours?

A.- I already said it is very difficult for me to answer that question because it cannot be separated from the situation at the time and from the total events. I, therefore, ask that I may be permitted to say a few brief sentences about this. I do not hesitate for one moment in normal times to consider the killing of defenseless people unethical, but in modern warfare it is different.

In the First World War already the principle came up that not only armies fought armies but that the entire other people were considered enemies who were to be fought. Already in the First World War on the one side there was the famine blockade and on the other side there was the unlimited U-boat war. This development continued in the Second World War, They have one great line in common. Defenseless people, women and children, sick people and old men are the victims. They are sacrified for one aim in the war, namely the final decision of the war. Those people who believe that these events, starting with the hunger blockade down to the event of the atom bomb are unethical, should ball the events in the last unethical too, but I don't think I am in the position, after really serious considerations, to come to such a decision, We have on both sides measures which, after serious considerations were approved by the supreme war chiefs and the supreme chiefs of state. I am not in the position to decide upon the basic reasons and principles; I cannot judge therefore. Those supreme heads of state, after all, can only come under one judgment.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, just so that I may know your viewpoint on this, and not for the purpose of any way challenging your right to say what you choose, do I understand that you have summed it up this way, that since in modern warfare noncombatants are bound to be killed, and you have illustrated the business of the blockade and the bombing, even including the atom bombing, that because noncombatants are bound to be killed in the prosecution of a war, that, therefore, you could see nothing unethical about the killing of noncombatants in the East? Do I correctly represent what you said?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I believe I have to explain it a little further. As a comparatively unimportant man in these great events, I cannot judge what considerations and what last necessities moved Adolf Hitler to order that in the East the Jews, gypsies and Communists were to be shot.

I can not judge here, that it is unethical and criminal on both sides, just because I do not know the very last reasons which caused the supreme commanders of States togive such orders.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, then if the Chiefs of States decree a certain program, then it is not for you to say if that program is legal; is that what you are telling us?

THE WITNESS: First, it is my opinion that I am not entitled to judge the highest authorities of a State; I am not competent to tell, but I can not overlook the entire connection and the valid reason which would enable me to judge now: ethical or unethical.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I understood you to say that taking everything into consideration, the nature of modern warfare, and you even gave an illustration from the First World War, that in taking all that into consideration, you don't see how it would be just, to declare that the war in the East was unethical, that is, the methods of the prosecution of the war in the East were unethical. Did I understand you correctly to say that?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor, as part of these total events which were so great and so important, not only on this one point but on many other points, I can not pass such a judgment. BY DR. MAYER: agreed with International Law? right nor a duty to examine whether an order agrees with International Law. In Germany, according to German circumstances, neither at the time of the Weimar Republic, nor after 1933, was this possible. From my study of law I remember that already in peacetime not even a judge was entitled to examine whether a law conformed to the International Law or not, but so far as I remember there was only one agency, and this was the National Court. I remember that the officials and the soldiers even more so had Court No. II, Case No. IX.

to carry out such orders and laws, and it was up to the administrative officials to think of the difficulties which might arise, concerning International Law. was also mentioned by the prosecution make it a duty for you to check up on this? the company leader, or, towards a battalion commander, for example. But in every state there is and must be one highest authority where nobody can examine this any further, because Adolph Hitler as the legislator could have changed this any time through a law which could have taken this limitation out of paragraph 47. He had the right to do that in accordance with the Constitution.

THE PRESIDENT: That as a matter of fact he did not say so, therefore, it was not in existence, was it?

THE WITNESS: Right, Your Honor, but I think it is not applicable to the Supreme Commander and the Legislator.

BY DR. MAYER:

Q This order of Hitler you, therefore, consider legal? The supreme head of state had the right by constitution to decide about war or peace and, therefore, as reality showed in modern warfare, to decide about the lives of millions of people. He also had to decide what was necessary in order to win this war. came to such conclusions on your own decision and on your own will, did you carry out the order and act according to the order on your own authority?

A No. I did not carry out this order on my own free will and on my own decision. I would never have acted in such a manner if I had been able to make a decision myself. I considered myself here a small wheel in a large machinery, the connection of which I could not overlook, although it was my absolute duty as a soldier to obey. And, therefore, I had no possibility of evading, avoiding or preventing this order in any way.

BY THE PRESIDENT: issue orders? the war is the only competent authority. the right to issue such orders as he deemed necessary to win the war?

A No, Your Honor. I believe that one has to leave the decision of what is necessary in a war up to the supreme commander. He is responsible for it. of the state to issue such orders as he deemed necessary to Win the war? supreme Head of State according to the constitution. Another question is Court No. II, Case No. IX.

whether one entirely agrees to it.

Q Well, you have merely put it in other words. I said that you intellectually agreed that since Hitler was the supreme chief of the German Reich that ha had the right to issue such orders as he deemed necessary to win the war. That is a logical conclusion on your part, is it not? that right. But, he must be held responsible. the situation in which I was in the east there was no choice for me but to obey.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I believe that part of the testimony of the witness did not quite come through in the translation. Seeing the importance of this matter, it seems necessary to me to explain and establish this, because such omissions may help to give this a different sense. I, therefore, ask that the interpreter be so kind and go back three or four sentences and read out the sentence again which left out the statement of the witness "in order to win the war". I ask the witness in particular to take note of this. My colleague, Gawlik, just tells me it concerns the question where this sentence "in order to win the war" was not translated.

PRESIDENT: Yes, Dr. Mayer. Why don't you do it this way, just please repeat the question and we will go over that ground again so that there can be no doubt that the witness views acre actually reported?

WITNESS: Well, I don't know which sentence you are referring to.

PRESIDENT: Why don't you ask that question again?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I think this will be explained when I see the transcript and then I can correct this with the aid of the English record. Your Honor, it was your own question where this part was left out in the interpretation. The reporter will have it in the English record. It is a question which the President addressed to the witness.

I, therefore, ask that the reporter would mention this in this report.

PRESIDENT: If you would like to have the reporter read it back now, we will gladly ask her to do so, if you can identify the sentence or give us an idea where that sentence occurred, and then she can read a little before and go through to a little bit afterward.

DR. MAYER: I, myself, of course, did not take stenographic notes so that the actual formation of the question I cannot remember any more in particular, as I eagerly followed the answers by the witness. The question was, as my colleague, Gawlik, just tells me, was whether in the opinion of the witness the supreme head of State would be allowed to issue any order which he considered necessary in order to win the war, and "in order to win the war" was left out on the record.

PRESIDENT: Yes. Now, that is a very important part of the question.

BY THE PRESIDENT: tellectually accept that the supreme ruler of the state, Adolf Hitler, had the right to issue such orders as he deemed necessary to win the war? head of state such power to give such orders which he considers necessary in his inner conviction in order to win the war.

Q Well, then you answered it, "Yes"? personal view of this order and, therefore, I have to say "Yes" from a legal point of view. BY DR. MAYER: object to obeying this order? I was only a small wheel, there was for me no such possibility. To refuse to obey an order in front of the enemy would have only meant death for me. BY THE PRESIDENT:

meant that as a humane individual you did not like to put into affect an order which would destroy innocent human beings, is that right? thought this was necessary then it was necessary because we have to obey the supreme chief--did you come to that conclusion intellectually? then I, as a small wheel cannot judge and decide that such a thing is not necessary. May I conclude this, Your Honor, I would like to make the same restriction here as on the question of being ethical or unethical, Here again I can only say what is necessary, after all and what is not necessary can only be decided by that man who can overlook the entire situation and who bears the entire responsibility.

Q Yes. You have told us that, and there is no question about your statement in that respect. Now, did it ever occur to you intellectually-let's leave out the sentiment--just intellectually to revolve in your mind without expressing it whether there was the necessity to kill these people or not--did you ever in your brain just try to reason out whether in your own mental laboratory you tried to figure out whether Hitler had a logical reason to say it was necessary to kill these people in order to win the war? as how -

Q Well, no, you didn't answer my question. I only asked you whether you at any time in your own thoughts deliberated as to whether Hitler was right in his conclusion that it was necessary to kill these people in order to win the war? whether this conclusion by Hitler was right or not because-

Q But, witness, you don't listen to the question. I have only asked you whether you ever thought about it. I am not asking what conclusion you came to. result somehow. I would like to say I considered the order wrong because of the effects which would result from it, but whether it was necessary, whether Hitler considered it necessary in order to win this fight, for our existence, that I cannot judge. war to carry out this order?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, may I address another question which will probably make the witness understand?

THE PRESIDENT: Surely.

BY DR. MAYER: after you had left the East, from discussions with comrades or from your studies, or from the situation reports that you somehow doubted the necessity of this Fuehrer order? about it, whether it was necessary, but I could not draw any conclusion and I still cannot until now, because I could not understand the conditions and overlook the entire situation. consider what were the motives of this order? necessary was the dispute with Russia which was not only a war between the West and the East, but where he had an enemy who from the very beginning put himself beyond all rules of international law. I would like to say that he thought that the end justified the means that owing to this special situation he drew this conclusion and took this responsibility before God and History.

you learnt: Did you not go through considerations to the effect that concerning the facts themselves you drew soma conclusions about what might have caused this order to be given? the first day on,the enemy fought beyond all rules of international law. I know that Russia throughout the revolution, fought in the partisan battles, where women, man and children took part and considered this part of the warfare. I can imagine that such considerations caused the supreme head of the state to give such orders with the conviction that against an enemy who fought with such means, the war would be lost right from the start if one fought it on a basis of a Geneva Convention of the Hague Laws of warfare, but this is only an idea. Whether this is so, I don't know. I only know so much, that the order was made known and the reason which was given was that it was a fight for our existence, that the Jews in the East were the decisive bearer of Communism and its illegal manner of fighting. As far as I remember, those were the official reasons which were made known. BY THE PRESIDENT: enemy was fighting illegally, and that Hitler, having this over-all view of everything, could know what to do, do you now tell us that since Hitler had that benefit of knowledge and facts and you yourself knew that the enemy was fighting illegally, that you therefore accepted the order intellectually in order to win the war? considered it necessary, but whether it really was necessary, I cannot judge from my own limited experience. I cannot pass a judgment about orders given by the supreme commander and the head of the state.

Q Let's use an illustration. Suppose a soldier in war, let's say an artillery officer, is ordered to destroy a certain bridge on the theory that by destroying that bridge the enemy may not be able to get supplies. Now, the soldier knows that even if he destroys this bridge, there are five other bridges so therefore nothing is accomplished in destroying this one bridge, but since it is an order he destroys the bridge. But in his own mind, he is of the opinion that the order was certainly a very bad order because it didn't achieve and couldn't achieve what it was supposed to do. You can understand that illustration, can't you?

Q All right, we at least got that far. Now, did you at any time reason in your mind whether what Hitler was attempting to do with this order would achieve its objective? judgment whether it achieved its purpose. I cannot judge this.

Q Then you say that it could possible leave achieved its objective?

Q Well, you won't say that it would not achieve its objective and you won't say that it could achieve its objective, but you didn't in your own mind attempt to determine whether there was any sense to the order or not? not decide. I cannot come to any decision, because I simply do not have the basis for it. Your Honor, I am under oath here. I do not know when I say yes or no now what is the right thing to do. What can my conscience answer for?

Q Well, please don't ever entertain in your mind the thought for an instant that attempt is being made to have you answer on, way or another for the purpose of in any way tripping you in your position. It is merely an effort to get at your conclusions, just why you did curtain things. That is the only way the issue can be decided by the Tribunal.

A I understand, Your Honor, and I don't think of anything else, of refusing to obey the order, and you explained that in your opinion a refusal to obey the order by you would have meant death for you. What reasons did you have to believe that? enemy could only result in execution. gruppe you came under a particularly severe martial law? already said about the SS and police jurisdiction, I cannot add anything further.

PRESIDENT: Proceed, Doctor Mayer. BY DR. MAYER:

Q In view of the situation, should you not have made that sacrifice?

A I don't know whether one can expect a man to sacrifice himself to such an extent, end in particular under such circumstances, but such a self-sacrifice would at least have to have some purpose, but any sacrifice would not have helped at all. In my opinion, it would not have stopped this order from being carried out.

Q Could you not evade this task under some pretense? seeing that I was in the East in the middle of these events. by being sick, and, therefore, have made it impossible to be sent to the East? of tasks would be given to me in the Fast, and every soldier knows that one cannot go to a superior and tell him, "I am sick, please send me home," In any case, in my situation it wouldn't have been like that.

Q But didn't you have a possibility of desertion? existence, but I shall certainly not desert and run over to an enemy like the Bolshevists. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Ohlendorf, did ha discuss with you the nature of the duties which were awaiting you in Russia? already mentioned. He was in a hurry. We only talked briefly about matters and then I made efforts to get the car and the driver. During the journey, I wasn't in Ohlendorf's car for three or four days. That must have been a mistake in his statement, because he travelled together with Minister Lie and I travelled in my car with my driver throughout the whole journey, so that even there I had no opportunity to discuss this with Herr Ohlendorf, but I can only assure you again that the special task which is contained in the Fuehrer order I heard about for the first time in Nikolaiew.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow morning at 9:30.

(The Tribunal recessed until 26 November 1947 at 0930 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. able Tribunal.

JUDGE SPEIGHT: Witness, raise your right hand. Now, repeat the oath after me: will speak the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

JUDGE SPEIGHT: You may be seated.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, may I now start to examine the witness?

PRESIDENT: You may if you will, Dr. Riediger. testified as follows:

Q. Frau Weinmann, will you please tell us when and where you were born?

A. I was born 7 August 1911 in Reutlingen, in Wuertemberg.

Q. Where is your permanent address now?

A. In Reutlingen, Schumann Street 15.

Q. Do you know Herr Walter Haensch?

A. Yes.

Q. When and where did you meet him?

A. In Berlin during a small invitation. It might have been in '39 or '40.

Q. After meeting him did you meet him again repeatedly, after this?

A. No, I cannot remember that.

Q. When did you meet Haensch again?

A. At the end of February 1942.

Q. On what occasion?

A. Herr Haensch and my husband travelled together from a station in Berlin, I believe it was Charlottenburg station.......they travelled to the East.

Q. Do you know exactly that this was at the end of February 1942, and do you have a special reason for remembering that?

A. Yes. On 6 February 1942 my second child was born in Berlin.

Q. How old was the child when your husband and Herr Haensch started to go to the East......started out on this journey?

A. I know this almost exactly, because my mother-inlaw was in Berlin at the time, and I told her, "Well, the child is just three weeks old, and father already has to leave". I was very worried about this because already then things were very dangerous because of the air raids attacks. We women were Very much afraid to be left alone like this with the two small children and to have to do without my husband.

Q. Do you know whether your husband and Haensch travelled immediately to this commando of which he was going to put in charge, or whether this journey was interrupted at all?

A. Yes. In the first letter which I received from my husband it said that they had stayed in Luov and Kiev for a few days during the journey, and after they had finished travelling by train they had to travel by car for some distance.

Q. Do you know when your husband arrived at the front?

A. That must have taken a long time from Berlin to the point where he was assigned because I had to wait a long time for the first letter, but from his explanations I realized that he had already written from the place from where he had arrived one or two days after he arrived there.

Q. Can you not give any further dates.....no more exact dates?

A. No, I cannot do that.

Q. Do you know when your husband heard that he was to be assigned in the East?

A. That must have been sometime before the child was born because I always said I hoped that he would still be there when the child would be born; and then he was there on 6 February. The actual time of his departure he only heard about a week before because everything happened very quickly, then.

Q. That was the actual departure. But concerning his assignment to the East, you just said he already heard about it before the child was born?

A. Yes.

DR. RIEDIGER: I have no further questions of the witness.

PRESIDENT: Very well. Cross examination, Mr. Hochwald.

By MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Witness, were you a member of the Nazi Party?

A. No.

Q. Were you a member of one of the affiliations of the Nazi Party?

A. No.

Q. Your husband was a member of the SS, was he not?

A. Yes.

Q. What was his rank?

A. At what time?

Q. 1939 to 1945.

A. In 1939 my husband was Sturmbannfuehrer to Obersturmbannfuehrer. I am sorry, I don't know exactly any more, but in 1945 he was Oberfuehrer.

Q. You said that you met the defendant, Haensch in 1939, and then you did not see him up to February 1942, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. When he went with your husband to the East, was your husband assigned to an Einsatzkommando or an Einsatzgruppe in the East?

A. The word "Einsatzkommando" I believe, I only properly got to know. At the time I Knew that my man was going to be put in charge of a commando in the East.

Q. Is it known to you whether Haensch was supposed to serve together with your husband?

A. I Knew that they left Berlin at the same time, but I also knew at the time that they were being sent to different destinations.

Q. Now I want to speak to you about a letter to which you have referred, which was written by your husband and and from which you deduced that Haensch came very much later to his assignment.

There were different assignments. May I assume that your husband wrote to you in this letter "Haensch and I" or "I and Haensch", or that he wrote "we", and you were of the opinion that that was Haensch. Can you tell the Tribunal whether the name of Haensch appeared in this letter you have been referring to just now, or whether your husband wrote just generally about the delay of his assignment?

A. My husband wrote "we". I am certain of that.

Q. So you can't say, in other words, the name of Haensch did not appear in this letter?

A. I cannot say this for certain any more.

Q. You told the Tribunal that it took a very long time before you got your first information from your husband. Can you tell the Tribunal.......you very likely have received later letters, too.......how long it usually took to get a letter from the East to Berlin?

A. Of course, I did receive some letters from my husband from the front, and for a wife who is waiting, it took rather long.

Q. I understand that. Can you tell the Tribunal how long approximately it took?

A. No, I don't know exactly. I cannot determine a definite period.

MR. HOCHWALD: Thank you very much. No further questions.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused. You have no further questions, Dr. Riediger?

DR. RIEDIGER: No.

PRESIDENT: Very well. The witness will be excused.

PRESIDENT: The defendant, Braune, will be taken to the witness stand.

DR. MAYER: Dr. Mayer for Braune. Your Honor, I ask that I may continue with the examination of yesterday of the defendant, Braune.

PRESIDENT: Please do. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Dr. Braune, yesterday we had arrived at the question whether you had the possibility of desertion, and thus evade carrying out the Fuehrerorder; you answered "No" to this question. I now ask you the question: Was there a possibility for you to avoid the carrying out the order?

A No. Even with the strictest measures and the strictest standards, I saw no possibility in my situation to do so. silently, that is, sabotage its execution?

A No. There was no such possibility for me either. Please consider, I took over the commando in November. For months the commando had been in the assignment already, and under my predecessor they had carried out their tasks. The Fuehrerorder was known to the leaders and the men. Under those circumstances, there was no such possibility. In addition, the measures in Simferopol were given through an order by the army which was at the headquarters of the Einsatzgruppe. reasons, but you considered it your duty to carry it out, being an order from your supreme commander, and you saw no possibility of avoiding its being carried out?

Q But couldn't you have tried through your superior, Herr Ohlendorf, to have the order changed somehow -- did you try that? Ohlendorf, too, could not change the Fuehrerorder because of the prevailing situation. I knew Herr Ohlendorf. I Knew his inner attitude towards this order. Until this day I am convinced if there had been one possibility for him to change or have the order revoked, he would have done this. In October, when Himmler was present, he made a last attempt. He wasn't even given a reply. What could I do as his subordinate in such a situation . After this, Herr Ohlendorf expressed that such an attempt on my part would have had no sense. BY THE PRESIDENT: Ohlendorf? between us on a comradely and human basis. about some personal problem in which you thought that he might be able to assist you with counsel and advice? Ohlendorf with personal matters.

Q Well, then, why didn't you talk with him about this -- why didn't you say to him, "that it is very difficult for me to execute this order, can't you do something to save me from it, can't you put me on some other assignment", why didn't you ask him to use his efforts to cause you to avoid the execution of the order?

I think during the winter months we talked about it repeatedly, but I knew from these very discussions that in spite of the very good relation between us and considering our friendship, Herr Ohlendorf would not have understood me at all if I had come to him and said, "Please send me home, and let somebody else do this very difficult task instead of me." I believe Herr Ohlendorf would have considered me a shirker if I had done this and he would not have had the slightest understanding in spite of our good relation. That is how I understood him, even during our conversations which we had. coward than to take the chance in asking him to relieve you from this task which you found so onerous and distateful?

A No, Your Honor. I was convinced that there would be no point in it, and that Herr Ohlendorf would not have been able to do anything. without even putting the question to him? and his general attitude toward these things -- I knew his opinion about this, but I think one thought never occurred to him which was to go and say, "Take me away from this difficult task, allow me to withdraw from this difficult task, and give it to somebody else", and that is why I was convinced that he would not understand such a request on my part. I point out that such a request would have been considered shirking and cowardice in front of the enemy, and, therefore, it would have been considered a crime according to martial law. A soldier who comes and says, "I want to go away from the front, I want to go home", in my conviction will be put before a court martial.

Q But that wasn't the situation as you described it; you had a very friendly relationship with Ohlendorf. You discussed this very question. Why couldn't you have said to him, "General, I find myself in a very difficult situation, I want to do my duty where it comes to fighting the enemy, but where it comes to shooting down defenseless people, I just can't do it; now, can't you, as a friend, see to it that I will not be called upon to do this, assign me to some other work, have me relieved anything so that I won't have to do this", why couldn't you have said this in effect, not those words, but that thought -- why couldn't you have expressed that thought to him? of Herr Ohlendorf that it was not easy for me to do this task, but I can only repeat what I said before, and this is how it was, in fact; according to the general situation, I thought there was no point in asking for this request because I was convinced that the answer would be in the negative.

Q Well, then you decide Ohlendorf's mind without giving him a chance to express it to you? to that effect, and that is why I never mentioned it to him. What also played a part in this way was that I felt somehow at the time myself that it would not be decent to try to shirk from a very difficult task in wartime, and to give it to somebody else, to get rid of inner misgivings and worries myself and pass them on to somebody else. sensitive than others, and it is no reflection upon an individual if he happens to be in that category of hypersensitive people.

You know that to be a fact, don't you?

A Yes, Your Honor. And I believe I can say with a clear conscience that I consider myself one of them.

Q Yes. Very well. If you considered yourself a hypersensitive individual, you could visualize that there would be others not so hypersensitive, couldn't you?

Q So that you could have said to Ohlendorf, "Now, I am a very hypersensitive person, perhaps you can find someone who doesn't feel such a revulsion in performing this very disagreeable task", there would have been nothing wrong about that, would there? I did not think it would be any good if I asked; I was fully convinced that the answer would be in the negative, and that was the very reason why I never made this request. My personal attitude towards these matters, I believe Herr Ohlendorf knew at the time and knows now, and if there had been a possibility for him, I am convinced that I would not even have had to ask, and he would have acted in that manner on his own, but since he never opened that chain of thought, I did not make this special request to him.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Mayer. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Dr. Braune, why, in your opinion, did Hitler give this order?

A I can only repeat what we were told at the time; it was that it was a fight for our existence in the East, that these measures were necessary in order to secure the rear of the army in the occupied territory, and that communist functionaries and Eastern Jews were the decisive bearers of this fight which the Bolshevists fought, which was outside all rules.

BY THE PRESIDENT: decisive bearers of Bolshevism? the assignment, the comrades who had been out there for months, confirmed this to me. This was also confirmed to me in the reports which I read, also from the spheres from other Einsatzgruppen, and I must say quite frankly I made my own experience in the assignment, and in the Crimea there were particularly those. Detailed investigations were made during the months while we were in one place and we made them conscientiously and very carefully. In the Crimea about five or five and a half percent of the entire population were Jews. Our investigations showed that the leadership of the communist party and also the state administration of the authonomic republic on the average was held by Eastern Jews, from 50 to 80 or 90 percent. And according to this they shared in the fight which was being carried out in the rear of the German troops, destruction battalions and elimination battalions, sabotage troops, agents and information service, partisan warfare, and many other things. We realized again and again that apart from communist functionaries who purposefully had been left behind and were assigned to a decisive degree, these Jews in the Crimea took a decisive part in this. and played the active part which you have indicated, then they were definitely enemies and dangerous enemies of the Reich, weren't they?

A Yes, Your Honor. I could not say anything different. dispose of them, didn't you? enemies of the Reich, but they were decisive bearers of a fight which I believe no army can take.

Q Yes. Well then, it was entirely in order to fight this enemy in every way possible, wasn't it? personally saw there in practice, made me realize a little more why Hitler had given this order, but my inner rejection and my conviction that it was not quite right was not changed in a decisive manner because of this. I agree that to a certain degree I could understand this because of the situation, but my basic opinion was not changed on account of this. were defending your country, and you were in the field, and you were fighting the enemy, and you say that you knew that the Jews were your most implacable foe, that they carried the banner of Bolshevism, that they assisted in partisan activity, that they were saboteurs, that they formed private destruction battalions, well, with all that you should certainly have no hesitancy in fighting them, should you?

A Your Honor, the order went further. The order was not only given for the individual leader of a battalion or some individual saboteur, but Adolf Hitler drew the conclusion that it was necessary that all the Jew be exterminated. the Jews should be eliminated? humane point of view entirely and also that I considered it wrong.

felt that you had to obey the order?

A Yes, Your Honor. In that situation in which I was during these events in the East I believed that I had to carry out the order of the supreme commander, and I saw no possibility of evading it.

PRESIDENT: Proceed, Dr. Mayer, please.

Q (By Dr. Mayer) Did you know that Hitler had given these orders already before the Eastern campaign? already announced in Pretzsch but I can imagine that it was issued already at the time, because Adolf Hitler, as supreme commander, realized fully in what form this fighting in the East would be taking place.

Q In your opinion, how could Hitler know this beforehand? example, ever since the Bolshevist revolution, was conducted by the Bolshevists as a considerable part of its warfare. Already in peace time the Bolshevist Army and the people had been prepared to conduct such a manner of fighting. I would like to say it was the highest maxim that one held the opinion that in a war, men and women, children and old men have to help to fight behind the front and at the front and to fight the enemy wherever they can. I believe that documents have been submitted or will be submitted which will confirm this opinion, as said by Lenin or at least by Stalin and I believe we also have documents which show that after the end of the war Bolshevist leader announced with great pride that they had conducted the fighting in that manner. I have read documents where they emphasized proudly that it was like this in the rear territory of the enemy that no soldier knew whether the farmer's wife or the farmer, who was working in the field, did not carry a weapon under their clothes. BY THE PRESIDENT: children were aiding in this partisan warfare and were assisting the cause of the enemy? this. as war is fought?

who opposed us with weapons or with poison or with intelligence service or by any other means, by dynamite in the most horrible manner, I would lie if I would say here that I felt any great hesitancy about this, but I have pointed out before that the order went further. It wasn't said kill the Jews or the Jewesses when you catch him or her in the act, but this was not mentioned in the order, but the order said to kill all of them without proving any actual individual guilt, and that is the tremendousness and the great difficulty in this task. cause? Did you believe that all Jews helped that cause? the possibility that there were people who were not interested in politics. Bolshevist cause? majority of the Jews? Communist actually meant in the rear of the Army. In fact, he wasn't a human being who simply kept his own opinion to himself, but according to the Communist education and upbringing, the natural result of his conviction was to take part actively in this fight wherever he could.

Q Well, that's what I said. You believe that the vast majority of the Jews supported Bolshevism and therefore you believed it was proper to fight the vast majority of the Jews? agree with the order which said, without examination, from the very start, every Jew should be killed.

before you executed the individual?

A I don't know whether I should actually formulate it like that, Your Honor, whether one could have solved the question to a certain degree by interning them, but here again, I can only repeat what I said yesterday, what the real motives were to cause this man to give the order and why he considered it necessary, that is beyond me. ing Bolshevism and therefore were opposing your forces could you have conducted an investigation before you executed particular group to find out if these individuals had actually supported the Bolshevist cause.

A Your Honor, I don't know whether this would have been possible practically and technically, but the difficulty of our situation arises from the fact that we did not have that right but our order was that they were to be shot and that they were considered to be a danger from the start and therefore we could not have used our own judgment to make any such examination or investigation. summary investigation before you executed any particular group? excellent interrogating officials and criminal officials, and if these had examined the cases for weeks, for months, down to the last detail, if I had called witnesses and all that, certainly the impression one would have gotten was that not a small percentage of these Jews were active in some form or other in resisting in the rear territory of the German Army, but that was the very reason why we were told right from the start this order is to be carried out without examinations. any way, so therefore an investigation would not have added anything to your conclusion? results of examinations. Only actual practice could have shown this because the question always remains open for one, how many people could one prove to be guilty and how many people could one not prove to be guilty.

One cannot make a general statement here, Your Honor.

Q Well, you conducted some investigations didn't you when you executed a saboteur; you had someone who would indicate that the saboteur had actually committed sabotage, assuming that he was not a Jew? Jews were active as saboteurs, there also investigations were carried out. active in the Communist cause?

A Your Honor, I cannot talk of percentages here. I tried to express it as clearly as possible. knew it; when I asked you that question, you said there was no doubt about your belief, but you know it as a fact that the vast majority of Jews were active with the Communist Party. Is that true or not true?

A Your Honor, I don't think I said that the vast majority was active, but that the vast majority was in favor of Bolshevism and I also said that our experience was there that the convinced Communists who remained in the rear territory of the enemy-- most of the people always escaped-they remained and were active in some way, but we never definitely insisted that the great majority actually was active.

Q Very well. If you conclude that the vast majority were in favor of Bolshevism, it necessarily follows that only a small minority did not approve of Bolshevism, is that right? 30%.

Q Well, all right. Let's say 30%. 30% did not approve of Bolshevism. It would not be unreasonable to come to that conclusion?

A Not approved, Your Honor? I would doubt that, but, as I said before, surely there were a number of people who never cared one way or another.

approve of Bolshevism among the Jews and those who did not. You say the vast majority did, would you say that is 70%?

Q Well, let it remain the majority. The majority then did approve of Bolshevism?

A There is something between pro and anti. Somebody can be convinced and fanatical and prepared to fight to the bitter end and somebody can approve, but say, "I don't want to have anything to do with fighting," and somebody can be indifferent. Somebody can doubt and not be sure and somebody can conscientiously oppose it.

Q Well, let's group them together just for the purposes of discussion . The vast majority approved. Let us say that is 60%., That is not quite as strong as vast majority, but it is a majority; 60% that leaves 40% who either did not approve or were indifferent. That would be a just way of dividing it, wouldn't it? to follow an example.

Q Yes,well, you say the vast majority. Let's say that is 60%, to be on the safe side, did actually approve of Bolshevism, then 40%, we are speaking of Jews all the time, either did not approve or either were absolutely indifferent either one way or the other. Now, when it came to executing a group, if you had excluded 40% from the execution order, would that have caused any great difficulty?

A Your Honor, there was not choice for me. I was in a war under martial law. I had an order from the supreme commander to shoot all Jews for the reasons given to us and it was not possible for me except to obey this order in war under martial law.

Q Well, let's suppose that you had a way of determining that these 40% were not active Communists, couldn't you have found a way not to execute them?

A. No, your Honor, I must say that this possibility did not exist. Take four or five thousand people......if two or three thousand of these were not Communists and the others constituted a danger........this is an estimate, I cannot look into the people's minds; and with a handful of the Crimea the Army Commander-in-Chief told me before Christmas already this must be carried out, I do not see a possibility of doing such a thing.

Q. Did you ever excuse one Jew just because there may have been some doubt as to whether he was a participant in Communism or not?

A. No, your Honor, because the order excluded such a thing. I could not decide on this any more since the Supreme Commander had given this order. This was beyond my rights.

Q. Don't you think that it would have helped your inner feelings if you had said, "Now, I am going to excuse one Jew just so I will know in my heart that I did not carry out this inhumane order to its utmost. Did that ever occur to you? I am going to excuse one Jew, one miserable Jew, so that then I can have on my conscience that I at least, in some way, I tried not to carry out this inhumane order to its merciless extent." Did that ever occur to you?

A. Your Honor, I do not know whether this would have changed my situation and my distress; but I agree I had been given this task, and I carried it out as I considered it to be my duty and as I thought I could not evade it in a military manner.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, I am sorry I interrupted your examination.

Will you please continue? BY DR. MAYER:

Q. Witness, even now.......are you still convinced that Hitler's order was only given in order to secure the territory, and not to exterminate people?

A. To the best of my knowledge and belief I can answer, even now, only yes. In my Einsatz it was never mentioned that the Jews were to be exterminated, that a plan existed to exterminate all the Jews; but I remember very well that during that time in particular it was discussed very often that the aim existed that the Jews be given a national home......the name, Madagascar, even came down to the Crimea, and here in Nuernberg in the prison I learned the confirmation that a plan for a national home was seriously considered at the time. Added to it is the fact for me that I heard here that the order by Adolf Hitler should be a final solution, that is, to kill all Jews, according to what has been determined in the IMT, was given in April and May 1942; in any case, the affidavit by Wisliszeny, a co-worker of Eichmann, I read here.......according to which the order which he thinks he has seen in writing bears the date of April or May 1942. That is what I remember, your Honor, and therefore I am convinced, even now, that this order given in May or June 1941 was not connected with this so-called final solution which was found one year later.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, I am a little bit confused about these dates. Once he said May 1942, then he says June 1941. Would you try to get a more......

THE WITNESS: May I explain this, your Honor, May and June the order by Adolf Hitler must have been made out.

THE PRESIDENT: Please give us the year, now, that is what we are talking about.

There is a confusion about the years. Now, May and June 1941. Is that right?

THE WITNESS: I beg your pardon, your Honor, I forgot to mention the year. In May or June 1941 the order by Adolf Hitler came out that the Jews be shot at the Eastern front. The reason given was that they constituted a great danger to the security of the Rear Army, that this measure was necessary in order to secure the Rear Army territory. What I heard and read here is the statement by Wisliszeny, during the IMT..........as far as I remember he stated under oath that the order for the final solution was given one year later, April-May 1942.

THE PRESIDENT: That is very clear. Thank you very much. BY DR. MAYER:

Q. DR. Braune, when did you go to Kommando 11-b in Odessa?

A. On 2 or 3 November, I think, I am sure of this..... I travelled to Odessa from Nikolajew where the Einsatzgruppe was stationed and where I stayed the first ten or fourteen days in order to gather information and to look after Minister Lie.

Q. After arriving in Odessa, were you put in a charge of the Kommando immediately?

A. No. I remained there for one week first, where my predecessor was in charge of the Kommando. I think I took over the Kommando on 10 November 1941.

DR. KOESSL: The defendant Schulz, your Honor.....

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Schulz will be excused for a few minutes. BY DR. MAYER:

Q. Witness, in your statement of 8 July 1947.....it is in Document Book III-D, Document 4234, page 54 of the English, page 94 of the German.

.....please explain.......that you were given your assignment in October 1941. The Prosecution draws the conclusion from this you were Kommando Chief of 11-b already in October 1941. Is that correct?

A. That I received the order in October 1941 is right. The conclusion from this that I had taken over already in October, is wrong. If I had Known that this statement would be used against me in a trial I would have attached importance to its clarification; and at the place where it says, I quote:

"I travelled to Odessa"........I would have added the date there, but Mr. Wartenberg told me at the time that I would be examined as a witness, and not as a defendant, and therefore I did not attach very much importance to this minor matter.

Q. When did you move to the Crimea?

A. That must have been after 20 November.

Q. In Odessa, did you carry out the execution of the Jews living there?

A. No. In Odessa I did not carry out the execution of Jews. The Rumanian Army, an officer of the Commander of Odessa, approached me and asked that this be carried out. But already before I took the Kommando.........I meant to say it already before I came to Odessa.......the Rumanians had the sovereign right in that territory, and also in Odessa, and the Einsatzgruppe had given directions that the transactions be concluded and that they should prepare to move on. I pointed out to this Rumanian officer that they had Rumanian sovereign rights, and therefore rejected his request that the execution of Jews should be carried out in Odessa by me.

Q. Were the Rumanians satisfied with that attitude?

A. No; the following day, or the day after the next, another officer approached me......I believe it was a major or a lieutenant colonel. He repeated this request, and also pointed out, or at least maintained, that it was the task of the Einsatzkommando, and they knew that, and threatened to make a complaint through diplomatic channels or through his war commander to Berlin. I still rejected, in spite of this, but in order to calm him down I told him that I shall turn to my superior officer in Nikolajew although there was no doubt in my mind that the decision would be. I did that. Herr Ohlendorf gave me the instructions which I had expected.........to continue to refuse; and I informed the Rumanians of this, as the decision of my superior office, and then nothing further happened.

Q. How many Jews were concerned in this case?

A. Odessa was a very large city. I believe in peacetime there were between five hundred or six hundred thousand inhabitants there. I think I can remember that about one hundred thousand Jews lived in Odessa in peacetime. Of course, a great number had escaped from there, but tens of thousands must still have been there.

Q. When did you arrive in the Crimea?

A. That must have been in the lest days of November. I arrived with only a few vehicles, as the first one there. I remember exactly. It was terrible weather. And the greater number of my vehicles had actually gotten stuck in the mud.

Q. When did the last vehicles of your detachment arrive?

A. I think that took two weeks.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, this is page 30 of the English text.

A (by the witness, continuing) This is page 4 of the original, your Honor. There it says, under Einsatzkommando 11-a, on 28 October, Majhtschka, with Advance Kommando, south of Perekop.... your Honor, may I show on the map where Perekop is?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, please do.

WITNESS: (continuing) Perekop is here. Therefore sub-kommando was to the south, while advancing south.

Q (By Dr. Mayer) On that occasion I would like to ask you to show the Tribunal the situation of Karasubasar, Aluschtka and Eupatoria, which will clarify the entire situation.

A (by the witness) It is not simply on this small scale, but Simferopol, it would be about here, at the lower end or the letter "M". Karasubasar was to the east Of it. Half way to Feodosia, which was about here. Karasubasar was about here, on letter "A". Eupatoria was west of Simferopol, on the coast about here; and Aluschta was on the other side of the Jala Mountains, on the south coast, about here, southeast of Simferopol.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

WITNESS (continuing): If I may repeat, it is shown here that on the 28th October a sub-kommando of 11-a was already south of Perekop.

I now refer to the next Volume, that is, II_D, page 11 of the German text -

DR. MAYER: Page 12 of the English, y ur Honor.

WITNESS: NO_3159. Exhibit 85. It is a Situation Report of the report of events, No. 129, Of 5 November, with the locations as can be shown on page 1. There on the top it says: "Location and Communications. As of 5 November." And here on page 4 of the original it can be seen that. "Sonderkommando 10-a, Taganrog, Advance Kommando to the north of Simferopol. "That is this sub-kommandoo your Honor, which in my opinion from the beginning of November had already been active in Simferopol. It can also be shown, 11-a, also an Advanced Kommandoo already in Simferopol... Therefore one sub-kommando of 11-a must have been active in Simferopol before a sub-kommand of 10-a. It can also be seen that 11-b, on 5 November, was still in Odessa, a time when I was not yet in charge of the kommado.

DR. MAKER: Page 54 of the English, your Honor) A (witness continuing) Document 2832, Exhibit 79.

Here on page 3 of the original it can he seen, "Sonderkommando 10-b, Feodosia, Advance Kommando in Kertsch," sub-kommando in Alushta, at the place where later on my sub-kommando went to.

On the next page, Einsatzkommando 11_a, Jalta, sub_kommando before Sevastaopol and Bachtschisaraj and Eupatoria. That is a location where later on one of my sub_kommandos also went to. Here under 11_b, my kommando is listed enroute for the first time as of 19 November. This cannot be quite correct, however, but I explain it to myself like this, your Honor, that I believe that the day when the departure should have taken place originally, I had already reported to the Gruppe that we were going to move; but during the night there was a severe frost, as a surprise, and a great number or cars froze, and cylinders burst etc., so that we had to remain another two or three days, if not more, until we finally were able to depart. That is how I explain to myself that this report came about. It cannot be right because I explain that my kommando, on the 28th of November, for the first time were reported in Simferopol. On 26 November they were reported to be en route.

There it says on Page 1 of the original in the Situation Report No. 135, that is the one I just mentioned before, there it is mentioned that on 19 November, 1941 the stations were not changed. Here too in Eupatoria and Alutschka subkommandos of 10b and 11a, my commando, still en route. And finally I have certified excerpts by my defense counsel from the reports of events 138 to 144. Unfortunately, we were not able, your Honor, to get them because these things were only found a few days ago.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, may I interpolate here? These excerpts from the reports of events of the prosecution, I shall introduce them in my Document Book I. My Document Book I may have been received by the Tribunal already. Document Book II will follow within the next few days.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, shall we take our recess now? The Tribunal will be in recess fifteen minutes.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribu*el is again in session.

DR. FICHT: Dr Ficht for the defendant Biberstein. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant Biberstein be excused from the afternoon session since on advice of doctors he is supposed to lie down because of his heart condition.

THE PRESIDENT: We will not only excuse him for this afternoon, but at any time and for whatever period the doctor and his counsel believe he should be absent from the courtroom, I trust you will inform the Tribunal. The defendant Biberstein will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, before the recess, the witness was discussing those documents which he mentioned in order to show which Einsatzcommandos were already active in the Crimea in his future district before he got there. On the basis of excerpts from the operational reports which I have in my Document Book and which I shall submit as evidence, I shall ask the witness to mention the dates, especially when his own subcommandos became active in the Crimea, when they first became active. ing: The Operational Report 138 of 26 November 1941 reports my Commando XI-B still enroute to Simferopol. The next operational Report no. 139 of 28 November has the typewritten note, still enroute to Simferopol, sofar as my Commando is concerned, but here the two words "marching towards" are crossed out in the original, which would mean just Simferopol. That means the Commando would have had to be there. Whether this penciled correction, which I don't know by whom it was made, or the original text corresponds to the truth, I can not say today after six years. Here at the same time subcommandos of mine are first mentioned in Alustchka, Karasubasar; furthermore, it says Juschon and this Juschon is also situated on the isthmus near Perikop. May I emphasize the fact that no subcommando of mine was ever there, but Jaschon was the last place where we spent the night,and there most of my vehicles had remained and were gradually brought forward later.

That is how I explain the mention of Juschon in this report. The next Operational Report No. 141 of 3 December 1941 still reports the Commando XI-A, that is not my Commando with a subcommando in Eupatoria where later one of my subcommandos came to be stationed, and my commando is again reported in Simferopol in this report with subcommandos in Alustchka, Karasubasar and again Juschon. That is, the forces in Juschon had still not been brought forward. The report of 8 December reports these same garrisons unchanged. That is, still no subcommando of mine is reported as being in Eupatoria, but it is not until the Operational Report No. 144 of 10th December, that is two days later, that a subcommando of mine is first mentioned in Eupatoria. I am through.

Q Before you, was another subcommando active at Karasubasar? but I assume that 10-B during the advance on Feodosia briefly was active in Karasubasar. mandos?

A I didn't have to give any specific orders to the subcommando leaders, outside of telling them where their garrisons were, and telling them generally about their missions, for the missions had been set up from the beginning, and in Odessa I came into this situation when I took over the commando. and Krimchak executions with which you have been charged, and, first of all, sofar as the figures mentioned are concerned. About the executions in Simferopol on the order of the Army I shall speak later, Your Honor. Witness, will you please look at the following documents: In Document Book II-D, page 26 of the German, page 21 of the English text; Document NO-2828, Exhibit No. 86. Furthermore, in volume II-C, pages 61 and 64 of the German, pages 55 and 58 of the English text.

A (continuing) This is NO-2828, Exhibit No. 86. Here it says on page 11 of the original about Jews, the total number of Jews is about 40,000, approximately one-forth of whom lived in Simferopol. It is an Operational Report of 12 December. In my opinion these figures can only represent the original number of Jews in the Crimea in time of peace, and, here, this does not include Sebastopol, which was then still occupied by the Russians, and, that, therefore, we had no way of getting any material. I remember how we got these figures, and I remember also that this original figure of about 10,000 in Simferopol was no longer there when we got to the city; a considerable number had fled, sofar as I remember it was more than half, and, as one document shows, they fled because rumors had been spread in the Crimea, which reported about the fate which awaited the Jews. Therefore, at considerable number from the entire Crimes,and carefully from Simferopol, had fled to the harbor cities, that is Sebastopol, Kertch, Feodosia and Jalta, in order to get away by ship. How large this flight was in the East can be seen in Document Book II-C, German page 61, which is NO-2832, Exhibit No. 79. There it says for the town of Ghernikov for 23 October 1941, that is about at the same time, that of about 10,000 Jews no more than 260 were left. Three pages further in the same volume, this is Document NO-2832, page 23 of the original, it says, and I quote:"Of the original 1,000 Jews in Dniepropatrovs, about 70,000 escaped before the German troops entered the town."

THE PRESIDENT: The translation came through "1,000". Should it have been "100,000"?

THE WITNESS: Yes, of 100,000, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: That this flight was very considerable in the beginning is shown in Volume III-D, German page 36 and English page 18. This is Document NO 4538, Exhibit No. 153. Here it says, and I quote: This is a report of 25 August 1941, that is considerably earlier. In Kishenev before the war there were about 60 to 80,000 Jews, and a great number of these fled, when the Russians withdrew. when the town was occupied there were approximately 4,000 Jews left. Even if the escapes from Simferopol were not as strong as shown in these three documents, still I remember very exactly that a considerable number had fled, more than half so for as I remember. The number quoted before of about 10,000 could only be the figure before the war.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, at this time may I make a statement which I consider necessary. It is not the intention of the defense, to prevent all misunderstandings, to try to bargain with figures here. on the other hand, however, it seems to me necessary to exonerate the defendant who confesses to the carrying out of the orders, from what he had not done and what he therefore cannot take responsibility for otherwise, the Tribunal may get the impression that it would have been all the same to my client whether he had to take more or less lives on his conscience. Therefore, I have to discuss these tiresome matters to this extent. I ask that you consider this and pardon me for it.

THE PRESIDENT: The defense counsel always has the right, privilege and duty to present his case in such a way as he deems best for his client, and, we will say, Dr Meyer, that up to this point there is nothing you have done which would lack of intelligence, and any lack of consideration in the way you have presented your case. BY DR MAYER:

Q Witness, please look at operational Report No. 150, 2 January 1942. It is also in Volume II-D, page 33 of the German, page 28 of the English.

It is Document NO-2834, Exhibit No. 87. Furthermore, I ask you --

A May I interrupt a minute. I had to look for the volume, and could not get the pages.

Q Also look at Operational Report No. 157, of 19 January 1942, which is available here in a photostat, and, finally the Operational Report No. 149, of 22 December 1941, and also in photostat. It is in Volume III-B pegs 24 of the German, and NO, 2833, Exhibit No. 114, which is only here in an excerpt, and, please read the brief passages into the record, and comment on these documents? is Document NO-2834, Exhibit No. 87, on page 20 of the original, page 7 of the excerpt. There it says, on page 28 of the English, Simferopol, Eupatoria, Alutska, Kertsch, Feodosia and Karasubasar and other districts of Western Crimea have been cleaned of Jews. From 16th November through the 15 December 1941, 17,645 Jews, 2,504 Krimchaks, 324 Gypsies, and 212 Communists and Partisans have bean shot. The Prosecution has charged me with these figures, by claiming that Kertsch and Fedosia belonged to my Commando. By means of documents, I shall prove later that this is not the case. I assume that the Prosecution made a mistake here.

tially part of Commando XI-A. So much for the area. Sofar as time is concerned, I have just show by the Operational Reports When my commando Came to the Crimea; when the subcommandos ware activated, and may I call your attention to the fact that in Alutska and Karasubasar only at the beginning of December, and in Eupatoria, only from 10th December, subcommandos of mine were present. That is even from the point of view of the time I can not be Charged with these events, because they refers to the period of 16 November to 15 of December, whereas my commando and my subcommandos were in any case active in the second part of this period; that during this period other subcommandos carried on Jewish executions in my later area I can show by means of Operational Report No. 149 of 22 December 1941. This is Document No 2833. From it on page 9 it says and I quote from the photostatic copy: "Einsatzgruppe-D garrison at Simferopol, activity of the special commando XI-A." On the next pages this activity is described, and on page 14 it says under the paragraph "Jews": "After the appointment of a Jewish Council of elders and the registration of the Jews, whose number amounts to 750, their concentration was carried through on 21 November 1941 in one area." This is the proof that three weeks before my subcommando, the subcommando XI-A had collected the Jews in Eupatoria, and that meant practically their executions only a few days later, for the concentration was only carried out when it was known that the executions would follow within a few days.

Now may I say something about the figures 17,645 and 2,504? that is altogether about 20,000, Even though this figure does not fully concern me as for as location and time are concerned, and even though it cannot be seen exactly to what extent I am charged with these figures, still I consider it my duty to point out that even these figures cannot be correct. 1942. This is NO-3338. This is two weeks after the one which mentioned the figures in Volume II-D and here it says, I quote, "The resettlement of the Jews, Krimshaks, and Gypsies can be seen as almost a complete liquidation, almost without exception -- "I beg your pardon, I just see that I took the wrong quotation. It must be on the preceding page and it says on page 6 of the photostat, When in the beginning of December, the preparations for the resettlement -- "and it can be seen from the context that this refers to the entire Einsatz area of the Crimea -"the resettlement of the 12,000 to 13,000 Jews, Krimchaks, and Gypsies has been started." Here two figures are opposed to each other. On the one hand it is reported that in the beginning of December in Einsatz area of the Crimea the execution of the Jews, Gypsies and Krimchaks had been prepared and that these amounted to from 12,000 to 13,000 and in the report which wasmade out two weeks before,about 21,000, that it, to 7,000-8,000 more, are reported as being executed there. I cannot resolve the contradictions. I merely consider it duty to point them out and to express my serious doubts about the figures, 17,000 and so forth. Operation Report 170, Volume II-D, page 51 of the German, page 47 of the English text. This is Document NO-3339, Exhibit 93. of the excerpt, that is page 47 of the English, it says, in the last paragraph: "In Simferopol, from the 9th of January to the 13th of February, more than 300 Jews were arrested and executed.

The number of persons executed in Simferopol increased, therefore, to almost 10,000 Jews, about 300 more than the numbers of Jews registered," I already said, I cannot mention any other specific figure opposed to this 10,000, because I do not know any specific figure. I can only assure you again that this figure cannot be correct for the reasons mentioned before. How it came to be calculated I cannot say. Whether it is a typographical error or whether a mistake was made during transmission by the Einsatzgruppe or in Berlin, I do not know. Perhaps I may mention one example, in which mistakes came to be made in figures: December 1941 from 700 to 300 people were executed in Simferopol. The prosecution in its charges against me has mentioned 7,000 to 8,000. I assume that this is a mistake also. May I just point out that it is possible that wrong figures can be obtained. with which you are charged?

Q How did these executions come about? officer of the 11th Army came to see HerrOhlendorf and told him that the Army demanded the carrying out of e executions before Christmas.

Army told this to Herr Ohlendorf? present too.

Q How did you conduct yourself in the face of this Army order? would be impossible to carry out these executions before Christmas. strength of your unit.

but all told, including drivers, interpreters, auxiliary forces, etc. In Simferopol, outside of an administrative officer and two aides on my staff I had no other people, outside of an officer who took care of the SD reports temporarily for two months and at times I had a non-com who helped me in the handling of partisan questions which had become so extensive that I could not handle them myself.

Everything else was assigned to the sub-kommandos, that is, the sub-kommando Simferopol, including the guard personnel and drivers who were necessary. Certainly it was not more than 25 to 30 men strong and the other sub-kommandos also were about the same strength. Enpatoria was a little stronger than Karasubasar and Aluschta. I know that in the sub-kommando in Simferopol there were about three or four,trained police and interrogation officials. With these forces it waspractically impossible for me to carry out the required executions in Simferopol. were too weak to carry out the execution which was demanded by the Army? his agreement I went to see the G-2 of the Army, Colonel Hauch and described the situation to him.

Q What was the result? number o trucks with drivers, to furnish the gasoline, and a certain number, I don't remember how many, of field police, all of whom were placed at the disposal to help in this execution.

Q Another question, Witness. Isn't it a mistake on your part when you say that Col. Hauch wasthe G-2 of the Army?

A I beg your pardon. I made a mistake. Colonel Hauch was the Chief Quartermaster of the Army.

Q Therefore, he was the 20A?

Whether he was the 2-A, I do not know. of your conference with the G-2? conference, did they also take part in the executions?

Q Who then carried out the executions? responsible for carrying out the details. He had at his disposal the people furnished by the Army, the newly arrived police company who was to relieve the company so far in operation and who had not yet been distributed among the subkommandos. Furthermore, I think I recall that the 11-A kommando, or the 10-B, or even both, furnished forces by order of Ohlendorf. Finally there were the forces of the subkommando and my guard personnel.

Q Who carried out the execution itself? furnished mostly by the police company, but here I cannot give any specific details, who was used for the transport, who was used to block off the area, and who was used to do the shooting. I believe that people rotated.

Q Witness, did you supervise the execution?

A Yes, I did. It took place under my responsibility. Once I was at the place of execution with Mr. Ohlendorf and there we convinced ourselves that the execution took place according to the directives laid down by Ohlendorf at the beginning of the assignment. I personally was there several times more, and I supervised. As I heard, the adjutant of Ohlendorf was there once, and saw that everything was carried out according to the instructions. Furthermore, my subkomman do leader, Sturmbannfuehrer Schulz, was always present, the company commander of the police company, and, I think, another captain.

THE PRESIDENT: Who was the adjutant, please?

THE WITNESS: That is the co-defendant Schubert, your Honor.

Q (By Dr. Mayer) Witness, did your supervision extend to blocking off the area and the transporting of the victims?

Q In these executions were Krimtschaks shot also?

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, just on a point of Krimtschaks?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I was just going to come to

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q (By Dr. Mayer) Dr. Braune, please tell the Tribunal Krimtschaks.

They were of Jewish race and of Jewish faith, Jews.

Therefore, they came under the Fuehrer Order.

a Jew, particularly also who was a Krimtschak and who was not? was the only Jewish execution which I saw personally. Even Council of Elders and carried out the registration.

According to what I heart this took place in the following. manner: The Jewish council of Elders was installed, a number of locally well-known and respected people,and this council of Elders itself called the Jews up for the registration. Whether in its own name or on the orders of the Subkammando or Kommando, I don't know, but they proclaimed that the Jews would have to register. That is two say, the Jews registered themselves as Jews. They identified themselves. Furthermore, the Council of Elders established it. That was two-fold control,and that is also how it was done with the Krimtschaks as far as I recall.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't understand what do you meant by two-fold control. You mean the subkommando and the council?

THE WITNESS: Once that way, namely that the persons concerned reported themselves and said, "We are Jews".

THE PRESIDENT: Oh, I see.

THE WITNESS: Furthermore the Council of Elders which was locally known.

THE PRESIDENT: Usually how many were on the council?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I cannot give you an exact number, but it could have been eight, ten or fifteen. I don't know exactly.

THE PRESIDENT: When you used the phrase that they were usually well-known and respected people, I understand that you mean that they were Jews well-known and respected in the community.

THE WITNESS: Yes, your honor. Among the Jews were well-known and respected people, who were locally known.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Thank you. Q (By Dr. Mayer) Witness, what happened with the Tartars?

before the Bolshevik revolution. They were Mongols, an Asiatic tribe, and they were of Mohammedan faith. From the first day on these were in favor of the German occupation and their liberators. The Tartars had to suffer very much under Bolshevism. Of about 450,000 at the time of the Bolshevist revolution, only 220,000 were left. All the rest had been deported or liquidated. They were oppressed in every respect, and we restored to them their opportunity to worship and we gave them the opportunity to speak their own language, to continue in their customs and usages, so that I can claim that particularly Einsatzgruppe D under Ohlendorf had a very positive relationship to the Tartars. I think the most moving proof of the favorable attitude of the Tartars is that after the capitulation I read in the papers in Norway that the rest of these Tartars were also deported by the Bolshevists because of their friendly attitude toward the Germans. Not only did nothing happen to the Tartars from our side, but they collaborated closely with us. I recall that when the military situation had become hopeless in the Crimea that the Tartars put themselves at our disposal spontaneously in order to fight Bolshevism, that they came on their own accord and asked to be allowed to fight with us, and I was personally in small villages and I saw it, and I recall a very old Tartar who could not grasp that we refused him because he was too old. Within a few weeks more than 10,000 Tartars reported for battle, and in the shortest time the Einsatzgruppe had set up 18 Tartar companies which were armed and supplied and equipped by the Army, and whom we sent to the most endangered villages on the edge of the Jaila Mountains, and in the Jaila Mountains themselves, those villages which had to suffer the most from the partisans.

I think that this is the best repudiation of the contention of the prosecution that we had exterminated Asiatics. Here we had more than 200,000 Asiatics in the Crimea, and I can only assure you that neither did I ever get an order to exterminate Asiatics nor did my kommando exterminate any Asiatics.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, dod you know that in some of the reports a reference is made to liquidation of Asiatics, are you familiar with that?

THE WITNESS: I read it, your Honor. I cannot explain the statement. I don't know who made it or whether actually something like that happened. I only know that we didn't have such an order or that anything.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I think this would be a proper occasion to have a recess. I come to a new subject.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I might announce that we will recess shortly after three and then not reconvene today, that when we recess this afternoon, which will be between three and three-thirty, we will recess for the entire day and then reconvene next Monday. moment until 1:45.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, the prosecution new wants to offer Document NO-4997 as Prosecution Exhibit 183.

DR. FIGHT (FOR THE DEFENDANT BIBERSTEIN): Your Honor, in view of my statement yesterday, may I say the following now Having been able to study this document, I withdraw my objection of yesterday against the submission of this is evidence without recognizing the correctness of the statements by Herr Biberstein which are contained in there; may I only point out the following dates: are 29 June 1947, 10:00 to 11:15, taken by a reporter, Margarete Fritsche. On the last page here it says in the text.

"Question: You are the same Biberstein whom I have interrogated under oath before? May I point out to you that you are still under oath.

"Answer: Yes. was made from former interrogations. The date contained is the same date, 29 June 1947, at ten oclock. If the basis of the affidavit was taken between ten and eleven, considering the facts contained, cannot have been made at the same time.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, it seems apparent from the document that this document contains two different interrogations, one interrogation during which information was obtained from the defendant which was the basis of the affidavit, so, if I am not mistaken, I haven't got my document book with me -- the affidavit was sworn to and signed on the 2d of July and it is the contention of the prosecution that this second interrogation which is the last page of the document was carried out on this day. The correct date of the second interrogation appears certainly on the affidavit which is in Document Book I, as far as I remember.

THE PRESIDENT: All the Tribunal has before it now the offer by the prosecution of Document NO-4997, Prosecution Exhibit 183. Yesterday the defense objected to the introduction of this document. Today it withdraws its objection. In view of the fact, therefore, that both sides are agreed that the document is to be accepted as an exhibit, it will be accepted. Both sides, of course, have the right to comment on this document or to attack it in any way that they feel is in order.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Very well, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. ERICH MAYER (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT BRAUNE): Your Honor, I ask to be able to continue with the direct examination of the Defendant B raune.

DR. ERICH MAYER: I now come to a new set of questions, namely those questions to the witness which refer to the case in chief and to the document which are submitted. BY DR. ERICH MAYER ( ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT BRAUNE):

Q. Dr. Braune, in the Report of Events No. 156 of the 16th of January, 1942 it was reported that in Aluschta on 21 November 32 Jews and 32 Communists were shot. This report of events was not submitted against you, but still please make some statements about this, because you were in charge of a sub-kommando in Aluschta.

DR. ERICH MAYER: Your Honor, I want to mention that this report of events was only submitted by the prosecution in in excerpt. It is in Document II-A as Document No. 3405, Exhibit 42, page 72 of the German and page 57 of the English text.

Q. (Continued) Witness, would you please comment on that report of events, referring to the photostatic copy?

A. I have the photostatic copy of this document before me, the complete photostatic copy, and I quote from page 54. Only the first paragraph is contained in the prosecution documents. It says - this first paragraph shows that on the 23rd of November, '41, partisans northwest of Aluschta, attacked a column with hand grenades and the German Army suffered three deaths, and 6 wounded; apart from that, three trucks were badly damaged. It then says as retaliation, and now it says on the photostatic copy, in the German copy, 21 November; perhpas I may correct this here, because this never could have happened on the 21st and no retaliation could have been carried out then for an action which only occurred on the 23rd of November by the partisans. The photostatic copy here shows me that the figure is printed so badly that could read it as "21" but doubtlessly it is meant to be 24. I think one could read this with a magnifying glass. reprisals concerning the investigations on my arrival in the Crimea, I have already explained that on the 23rd of November, no sub-kommando of mine was in Aluschta yet, but a sub-kommando of 10B was in Aluschta. The second paragraph confirms this beyond doubt which is not contained in the prosecution documents. There it says that on the 26th of November, that is, three days later, that a tank fighting battalion, which was in Aluschta, supported by anti-aircraft and part of a Rumanian Mountain Brigade, carried out an action against those partisans and that the Kommando 10B had prepared this action. The second paragraph of the document itself shows that this was a sub-kommando of 10B and not my men.

DR. ERICH MAYER: Your Honor, may I mention that this report of events, insofar as it concerns this part, which is the report of events for this part, I shall introduce in my Document Book No. 11.

On this occasion, I would like to make supplement. It is a supplement to a reply of the witness to a question by the President before the recess. The President asked the witness how the Krimchacks differed from the others and the witness only answered that the Krimchacks are of the Jewish origin, but of Mosaic creed.

This alone does not make them different from other Jews in the Crimea. The fact which makes them different from the other is that for reasons that are not known here they speak a language similar to the Turkish language and therefore they were different from the rest of the Jewish population. I merely would like to say this in order to explain this to the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: We are glad that you have offered that further explanation Dr. Mayer.

DR. ERICH MAYER: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. (By Dr. Mayer) Witness, did it happen repeatedly that in the reports of events measures were reported which were carried out by the Wehrmacht?

A. I presume that the reprisal measure, which was just mentioned was carried out by the Wehrmacht, because I do not remember that such retaliation measures were ever carried out by us in such a form, but in order to reply to your question, of course, constantly events were contained in our reports which concerned the Army. It does not say here, "Report of Events of a Kommando" or an Einsatzgruppe, but they are reports of events of the entire territory and may I just point out that there are numerous reports about partisan combatting contained in these reports of events and that these were events in 95% of the cases which were handled by the Army.

Q. The prosecution also maintains in their prosecution statement that according to Document 2828 Exhibit 86, contained in Document Book II-D, page 25 of the German and page 20 of the English text, the executions of 2,910 Jews and 19 Communists in the area of Simferopol, that is, in the territory of your kommando, were carried out there. Witness, will you please look at this document and comment on it?

A. I have this document in front of me and may I ask you to look at page 1 of your excerpt. It is page 11 of the original, and it says, "Einsatzgruppe D, Garrison Simferopol," and too in three paragraphs it is reported about shootings of Communists and Jews. All three paragraphs obviously and evidently refer to the entire territory Of the Einsatzgruppe under the heading over to the left, under "Shootings" it says "2,910 more Jews and 9 Communist officials were shot after summary proceedings.

Thus the sum total of executions has risen to 54,696." This total figure alone shows that this is a summary report of the Einsatzgruppe and not of my kommando. I cannot say either why the prosecution deduces that these 2,929 persons were shot by my kommando, because it all comes under Einsatzgruppe D, Garrison, Simferopol. Kommando 11B is not mentioned at all, but may I also say that the report of events dates from the 12th of December 1941, The events which are mentioned here must therefore have at least occurred few days before this date. This morning I explained when my kommando went to the Crimea and when the sub-kommandos started to move. It will be understandable that a sub-kommando did not carry out executions the first or second day. From a more time point of view I consider it impossible that among these figures executions for my sub-kommando are contained. I know at least concerning Simferopol that from the day of my arrival, no executions were carried out, which was mentioned here this mornings. I therefore considered it impossible that these figures, all of which I am charged with, concern my kommando at all from a mere time point of view. On this occasion, may I point out how questionable these reports are and how incorrect. That is shown by the fact that it says on the top of t Report of Events 145, under "Garrison and Signal Communications" it says, I quote, "The Garrison and Signal Communications reported in Operational Situation Report No. 156 of 16 January, 1942, have remained unchanged." I believe it is evident that a Situation Report of 12 December cannot refer to a Report of Events of the middle of January. That is one month later.

Q. The prosecution charges you in their case in chief with the fact that you had sub-kommandos in Kersch and Feodosia and therefore you are responsible for the shootings which occurred there. Witness, this morning you already touched upon this question and answered it in the negative, but on the basis of the prosecution documents, please comment on this question.

A. At first I refer to Document Book II_D, page 30 of the German text, that is NO-2834, Exhibit 87. On page 4 of the Exhibit it says, under "Location Sonderkommando 10-b" -- Kertch and Feodosia are not mentioned any more -- but it says Sudak and radio communications while on route. For my Kommando 11-b it is mentioned, "Garrisen Simferopol, with parts in Aluschta, Karasubassa and Eupatoria." Those Garrisens are correct. May I explain why Kertch and Feodosia are not mentioned under 10-b. The Kommando 10-b, after their arrival in the Crimes, had their location in Feodosia, Kertch and Sudak. At the end of December, that is shortly before this situation report, the Russians carried out a surprise landing in Feodosia and Kertch, recaptured Feodosia and Kertch and the whole peninsula, and, as mentioned repeatedly, a very difficult military situation arose. During these events the Kommando 10-b had to withdraw from Feodosia..... And may I remind you, that my co-defendant Seibert explained how he was looking for this Kommando which had to escape from Feodosia....I now refer to Document Book II-b, page 34 of the German text, it is NO-2824--

DR. MAYER: Page 33 of the English text, your Honor.

A(Continuing) It is a report of events of 19 December, that is two weeks before the previous one, when the landing had not yet occurred. And here, on page 4 of the excerpt, under Sonderkommando 10-b, it is shown under "Garrison Feodosia, with divisions in Kertch and Sudak".....it is shown that, before the landing 10-b was in Feodosia and Kertsch; and may I show you that after the recapture, 10-b was active in these two locations again, and neither my Kommando nor any of my sub-kommandos were over stationed in Feodosia or Kertsch, or ever operated there.

Q. Witness, perhaps you would be good enough to show the position of Sudak on the map.

A. This morning I showed approximately where approximately Feodosia is -- it must be about here.... the Russians landed here ..... and at the same time they landed here, in Kertsch, and practically recaptured this whole part here.... and then they advanced in this region, and tried to block off the Crimea up here. This was a very dangerous situation. Apart from that, they advanced to Simferopol from here.

Later on I shall explain that a few days later they landed on the other coast as well; the obvious aim was to connect those two coasts and, therefore, the entire army in the East, near Sevastopol, should be cut off, and destroyed. Sudak is also on the south coast, not far from Feodosia, southwest about here. Sudak is here... Feodosia about here .....Kertsch about there .... while my territory, here, is Simferopol; east of it, Karasubassa; south of it, Aluschta; and to the west of it, Eupatoria.

Q. Witness, the Prosecution also maintains in their case in chief that the affidavit of the co-defendant, Schubert, of 24 February 1947, proves that in December 1941 the Kommando 11-b shot seven to eight thousand people in the area of Simferopol.

During this morning's session you already touched upon this question, too; but I would like you now to explain this question, based on these documents. I refer to Document Book I, page 141 of the German, page 108 of the English text. It is Document No. NO-3055, Exhibit 28.

A. I have the document book in front of me. And may I just quote from it: "In December 1941, I do not remember the exact date, I was assigned my Ohlendorf or Seibert to supervise and inspect the shooting of about 700 to 800 people." The document shows quite clearly that Schubert did not mention seven to eight thousand, but only seven to eight hundred. Already this morning I mentioned that in my opinion there must be a mistake. Hey I point out that this morning it was translated by "mistake". I would like to attach importance to it that I do not want to show some error which was done on purpose, but I think it is an error rather than a mistake.

THE PRESIDENT: Well... I would like to have a little conference here with the interpreter. The interpreter has just said that the witness has said it was an error, and not a mistake. I would like to have some linguist give us the hair-breadth distinction between an error and a mistake.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, in our language the meaning "mistake" may be more serious, as if one tried to explain that something was done on purposel while an error would exclude any such possibility.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we would term the former situation as a deception, and not a mistake. If someone purposely endeavors to mislead, it drops out of the category of a mistake; but if it is something done on purpose, therefore, it would be deceit, or deception.

THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor, I agree to this.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. I am glad it wasn't the fault of the interpreter. BY DR. MAYER:

Q. Dr. Braune, does this concern the execution carried out by order of the Army before Christmas 1941, which you have already mentioned?

A. Yes, that is what was meant.

Q. The Prosecution also charges you that the shootings of 1154 partisans in Eupatoria on 7 January 1942, was ordered by you, and as evidence for this they submit a letter from G-2, Major Riesen. It is in Document Book III-D, pages 104, 105 of the German text, and page 62 of the English text, Document NOKW-584, Exhibit 165. Would you like to comment about this?

A. I have this document in front of me as well, and may I comment on it. I just said that after the landings in Feodosia and Kertsch the Russians landed again in the first days of January 1942. It might have been the 5th or 6th. They landed here, in Eupatoria. This landing also succeeded. The city was conquered by Bolshevists, and the German troops had to withdraw from the city. The situation became even more hopeless from a military point of view because of this. During this recapture of the city, the civilian population of Eupatoria, to the greatest extent, had assisted the Bolshevists and had acted as guerillas and snipers. These civilians also had captured two trucks with heavily wounded German soldiers who were not able to escape from the city any longer, and cut them off from the rest, and all these wounded German soldiers had their throats cut by them. This fact was revealed to the commandant of Eupatoria, one of the most brilliant German officers who already had a high distinction Chief of the Army because the Russians were very pleased about having killed these wounded German soldiers.

The Commander-in-Chief of the 11th Army, General Field Marshal von Mannstein, felt that the male population who were rproven to be able to carry arms, who lived in Eupatoria, were to be executed as snipers and guerillas and partisans. On the basis of this Order the G-2 AO, Major Riesen, went to Einsatzgruppen Chief Ohlendorf, and requested the Einsatzgruppe, in this case my Kommando of the sub-Kommando there, should carry out this execution. I myself was present during that conversation as well, and I remember distcintly how we were in our sitting room, and Major Riesen came in the evening. Oberfuehrer Ohlendorf rejected this, and explained that this was a matter to be dealt with by the Army. At further urgent request he finally agreed that I be sent along to support Major Riesen, and apart from that Oberfuehrer Ohlendorf wanted to being about that among those arrested snipers and partisans, through my sub-kommando in Eupatoria, those were to be combed out, who were known to kommando the sub-kommando, and their units. Some of them had even worked for our units very conscientiously for some time; some of them were even employed by our kommando, and we know them to be reliable; and he wanted that those men should not be shot as well. The following day, 7 January, which Major Riesen mentions here, may be right. According to the order given to me, I also travelled to Eupatoria. For order's sake, I must correct here that not three SS leaders, as it says here, travelled alone to Eupatoria, but only me. Major Riesen must have made an error here. He only wrote this down about a year after the events. When we arrived in Eupatoria Major Riesen reported to the combat commandant, and informed him of the order of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army. The Colonel at the time said, almost verbally, "the Commander in Chief would not have had to send me for this. I would have done this on my own authority because in this case these are only snipers and bandits who have forfeited their lives."

I then brought in my sub-kommando, and this sub-kommando, with our local and indigenous aids, who assisted us sorted out from the 1500 people who had been arrested about 300, who were known to be reliable, for it must be right that about 1184 people remained. It is not that from 1500 people 1184 were chosen, and it was said they should to be shot, the original order had been that all men of military age were to be shot. And out of these, 300 were selected who were exempt from shooting. During this selection Major Riesen, who says himself in his statement on page one, that he had to carry out the order of the Commander-in-Chief, ordered an Air Force communications battalion to carry out these shootings on the order of the Army. Those persons were taken in a line through the city, where fighting still took place. It is right that snipers still shot at us from houses, and that these snipers threw hand grenades, and we shot at then with automatic rifles to stop them. These persons were then shot by the Air Force unit, according to order in the outskirts of the city in a tank ditch.

Q. Is it right.......that of these 1184 people from the city many tried to escape when you arrived at the ouskirts?

A. Yes. En route, as far as I remember, about 80 to 90 people tried to escape, and not only 20 to 30 of these snipers. They were shot down with automatic rifles by this Air Force unit. This caused a very dangerous and critical situation. I presume that Major Riesen, who says on the following page, "SS Sturmbannfuehrer Dr. Braune gave instructions on the place of execution to carry out the shootings." He means by that, that after this attempt to escape I was very excited, and therefore told him that he should not hesitate any longer and have this longstretched column with so few guards, go in a closer formation. Furthermore at the collection point - about 200 to 300 meters from the place of execution - I pointed out to him that he should not put guards on either side of those to be executed. This was on the railway platform which was on a lower level than the rest of them. "If they tried to escape again your soldiers will shoot each other." If he means that, by instructions, then he is right. Apart from that, he gave the order; he could only give orders to this Air Force unit, and I could not, and these measures were carried out under his orders. order to fire. I cannot see from the document in how far I gave an order to fire. But I can only assure you that I did not give such an order. But I stated that I was merely at the place where those snipers were collected, and that was two to three hundred meters away from the ditch, where the shootings were carried out by this Air Force unit. Apart from that, I would like to add that in my position, and with my rank, it would not have been my task to give an order to fire, to nine of ten men who shot; but such orders to fire were given by an NCO, at the most by a lieutenant, and not by a man with the rank of a major.

Q. Witness, I have one more question. I noticed that you said you shot the people who tried to escape with machine. Is this nor an error?

A. No, this Air Force unit also had two or three automatic rifles and they fired with these.

Q. I only noticed it because I considered this impossible, to set this up so quickly.

A. No, they were light automatic rifles, which were put into position.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, may I concerning the statement of Colonel Mueller, referring to Major Riesen and the witness here, submit a statement with the request that the witness read this short excerpt out of thisl this will make the order clear, and will show that in cases like in the one here, through the Fuehrer order, this was made legal, and it was entirely up to the commander or the officer to deal with this task. The Fuehrer order of 13 May 1941, Document C 50; I shall also introduce it in my Document Book II.

A. (by the witness) I have the order in its photostatic copy in front of me. Its heading is: "Fuehrer headquarters, 13 May 1941. The Fuehrer and Supreme Commander of the Army." Then under Roman I it says: "Treatment of crimes by enemy civilians." Figure 1. "Crimes committed by Enemy civilians are not to be dealt with by court-martial, or military courts until further notice." Figure 2. "Snipers are to be shot by the unit while fighting or while escapingwithout consideration." Figure 3. "All other attacks of enemy nationals against the Wehrmacht and its members are to be shot by the units, on the spot, and have not or can temporarily not be carried out -- suspects will be taken to an officer immediately and he shall decide whether they are to be shot."

"In localities in which the Army is attacked from ambush, immediately by order of an officer, whose rank must at least be a battalion commander, collective measures are to be carried out immediately if the circumstances do not make it possible to find out the actual criminals." And finally the last sentence. "It is expressly prohibited that suspicous persons be kept in prison." I must assumes that the commander thought of this Fuehrer order when he said: The Commander in Chief would not have had to send you. I would have done this on my own anyhow. to carry out a surprise raid and refers to Document Book III-D for "Dog", page 58 of the English text, page 98 of the German text, Document NOKW1863, Exhibit 164. Please comment on this as well.

A I have this document in front of me as well. It is on page 98 of the German Volume. The first page of this document, consisting of six pages, unambiguously shows that this is a measure, I quote: "Which was carried out at the order of the AOK 11 -O-Qu-" on 12 January 1942. exactly that this order was given because of the situation. In Simferopol the rear Army units and the reserves units, a mixed crowd set up barricades in a hurry. The city was divided into defense sectors and everything was prepared for battle against the Russians approaching from Feodosia. At that moment the Army ordered that the city be combed out in order to be saved from surprises from the city, and that is how this order came about. That this was a purely military measure and that the Army took a very active part is shown also from the distribution list on the last page. This shows that this order was given to the AOK, to the Einsatzgruppe, to the Town Area Commander, the local commandant, counterintelligence, etc. Now it says again on the first page, "On 12 January 1942, a surprise action will be carried out to apprehend unreliable elements (partisans, saboteurs, possibly enemy troops, parachutists in civilian clothes, Jews, leading Communists, etc.)" May I draw your attention to the Jews here noted to show that from the Army as well the Jews were listed under the term of unreliable elements and were considered a danger in the rear Army territory.

The actual carrying out is shown clearly from the order. There were almost two-and-a-half thousand members of all Wehrmacht units who took part in this, 55 members of the Military Police, and 20 men of the Secret Field Police, also, if one adds it, exactly 48 men of the Einsatzgruppe, because I remember that at that time a few men from the group staff also took a part because I did not have 48 men at my disposal.

THE PRESIDENT: Can you explain what was meant by the phrase, "possibly enemy troops?" Do they mean by that that they weren't certain there were enemy troops there or not and therefore said "possibly enemy troops?"

THE WITNESS: I explain it in this way, your Honor, after six years; that owing to the prolonged fighting for the entrace into the Crimea some of the former regular troops took off their uniforms already before they were captured and carried out sabotage and set up part of the units, etc., and therefore were to stay in the Crimea to do this, and I believe that these kind of people are meant by this. I may assure you these were not military units who were in uniform and openly carried their arms who had come into the city, but former soldiers who had not been left behind with special tasks. and all these six districts during that action were under the charge of an Army officer. That is, what actually happened in these districts during the action was done under the command of an Army officer, and finally, on page 5, it can be seen how it was in effect carried out and instructions were given that these districts were to be blocked and be combed out street by street and as far as was possible that the houses be searched as well. But I remember that they could not do that with the forces at their disposal. It was also determined that male persons who were on the street and any suspected female persons were to be checked up in these areas and all suspicious individuals were to be brought to assembly points. There There they were rechecked again with the assistance of persons familiar to the police and the inhabitants, and then finally they were checked for a third time.

tical circumstances as we had then at the time in the Crimea must be allowed to take such precautions for their own security. I think that such actions and similar once are being carried out in Germany as well after the capitulation repeatedly.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, in view of the advanced time I would only like to tell the Tribunal that I have just finished a section here. I will now start on a new complex of questions, so that if the Tribunal wishes to close down here, this seems to be a good point.

THE PRESIDENT: There is merit to your suggestion, not only for what 3 you have said but also the fact that there will be quite an interval before we reconvene, an interval of time, and therefore we would have to sort of refresh our memories anyway. The Tribunal will be in recess now until Monday morning at nine-thirty o'clock.

of America, against Otto Ohlendorf, et al., l December 1947, 0930-1630.

Justice Musmanno,

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II.

DR. MAYER: Dr. Eric M. Mayer for the defendant Werner Braune. Your Honor, as to the witness Braune we concluded on Wednesday of last week with questioning, and I would like to continue now.

THE PRESIDENT: Continue Dr. Mayer.

DR. MAYER: On Wednesday we were discussing the charge of the Prosecution in the document which the Prosecution had submitted against my client. I shall now come to a different section. BY DR. MAYER:

Q.- Dr. Braune, during your assignment in the East, did you go on a leave?

A.- Yes, after having taken part in the anti-Partisan action, which lasted for three days, in the first half of March 1942, together with Herr Ohlendorf, I went on leave, and, exactly on 26 April 1942, I travelled by plane together with him back to Simferopol.

Q.- When did the gas-vans arrive in Simferopol?

A.- Sofar as I remember that must have been at the end of February 1942.

Q.- How many vans were there when you arrived in Simferopol?

A.- There were two vans.

Q.- Do you remember how they were distributed?

A.- Sofar as I remember one of these two vans was given to Commando X-B, or XI-A. The other van was in Simferopol, but I am not quite certain of this. I know that Herr Ohlendorf testified that two vans were standing in Simferopol, and were always requested by the other commandos, but that is quite possible too, I think.

Q.- Were they used immediately after they arrived?

A.- Immediately after their arrival they certainly were not used, because after the long journey from Berlin to the Crimea, which is more than two-thousand kilometers, their condition on account of the weather was such that they had to be repaired.

Q.- The van which was moved to Simferopol, was it used by you?

A.- I already testified to the Prosecution that I didn't use the van but the van must have been used by my commando in Simferopol once, because I remember exactly that Sturmbannfuehrer Schulz came to me and told me he didn't want to use the van again, because he considered the unloading and the burying of the bodies to great a strain for his men. The men objected to the use of the van as well. But at what time exactly Sturmbannfuehrer Schulz said this to me, I do not remember any more. It is possible that it happened on the day when I returned from the antiPartisan operation, but it is also possible that he only said this to me after I returned from my leave.

Q.- During your leave was the van still used?

A.- I am not quite certain of this, but I don't think so. According to what Sturmbannfuehrer Schulz said to me.

Q.- The Prosecution said in the opening speech that defenseless civilians were often shot as Partisans. Did this occur in your Commando?

A.- In my commando it didn't occur. I can only assure you that these Partisans with whom we dealt were anything but defenseless civilians.

Q.- Can you tell us anything about theanti-partisan fighting, and the Partisan situation in the Crimea in general?

A.- In the Crimea the Paritsan problem was particularly difficult for three different reasons. One reason was there had been weeks of fighting for the Crimea. The Bolshevists had sufficient time to prepare their Partisan warfare in detail. Apart from that the Haila Mountains in the farther part of the Crimea was particularly suitable for Partisan fighting, and also the fact that the Crimea is practically an island which is only connected with the Continent by the small isthmus near Pericope, and because of that the Partisans were an especially great danger.

Q.- Witness, how did the Partisans make themselves felt?

A.- This can be seen from the reports of events, which were submitted here. From the very first day they attacked small army columns, single rear posts; they attacked from ambush; they killed German soldiers; they took their papers from them, their uniforms, and their weapons.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, in Document Book II I shall include excerpts from the Reports of events 136 and 143, and shall submit them to the Tribunal to show how extensively the Partisan movement was in Crimea, and how great was the danger for the small numbers of German troops stationed in the Crimea.

Q.- Did the Partisans wear uniforms, or any recognizable insignia or did they carry their weapons openly?

A.- I never saw such an instance nor did I over hear of it, but it occurred repeatedly that the Partisans wore the German uniform, which they had captured in order to look like the German soldiers, in order to carry out their attacks better and more unobserved.

Q.- Were the Partisans recognized as combattants by the Army?

A.- No, the Army never recognized them as combattants, but considered them and treated them as what they were - Franc-tireurs, namely, people who attacked from ambush.

Q.- How were the Partisans supplied?

A.- First of all, before the Crimea was captured, the Partisans had a great amount of food, cattle, weapons and so forth, which they kept in the mountains.

The two reports to which my counsel referred show these particulars clearly. Apart from that they currently attacked villages on the edge of the mountains, as well as in the mountains themselves, they plundered and looted, and took anything they needed. They also forced men of military age, and even women to join them. Also those, who opposed them or who defended themselves were killed, and very often their farms were burned down.

Q.- Witness, please describe briefly what attacks were carried out against the Partisans, attacks which are constantly mentioned in the report of events?

A.- The operations by the Army were limited, to the time when the mountains were more or less passable that is before the severest winter started, and after the snow had melted. Of course, several small operations were carried out in spite of the snow and the cold, but in the decisive winter months the most effective protection were the Tartars Home Guard Companies which were sent into the individual villages, in small detail detachments, which thus protected these villages, and, to a certain extent, also the communications. During that time serious fighting took place between the Partisans on the one, and the Tartars Home Guard Companies on the other side, since the Partisans still tried to attack the villages. After the snow had melted in the spring and of course also before we constantly sent patrols on reconnaissance; the results of these reconnaissance operations were passed on to the Einsatzgruppen, some of them even directly to the Partisan combatting department, where then the individual operations were planned and carried out under Military Leadership by Army forces.

Q.- When carrying out such Anti-Partisan operations, were men of your Commando also assigned to this task?

A.- Yes, my men also were assigned to this task by the Army. I myself took part in a few operations, but the Army was completely in charge of it, Q.- How strong were the detachments which were assigned to fight the Partisans?

A.- That depended on the individual case. We had operations with two divisions took part.

Accordingly, the operation took sometimes one Q.- What experiences did you have in the Crimea concerning sabotage and terror group of Bolshevists?

Already before the Crimea was captured, destruction and demolition battalions had been set up; that is, battalions which destroyed everything which they considered important, in particular the gas, electricity and water works, railroad stations, very important public buildings, the Party buildings were practically destroyed, and in Simferopol, as I have heard, the MKVD Building was blown up after the German troops had occupied it. These destruction and demolition battalions consisted mostly of Communist functionaries, and active Communists. After the capture, then they were left behind on purpose and they again formed a certain nucleus which strengthened the Partisan group, and as Partisans they now attacked in the rear the German Army troops.

Q Did women and young people take part? eleven years of age took part. Bolshevism now knew no limitation here. They called on the entire population to take part in the fighting in the rear of the enemy army, and this appeal was followed. I remember quite well that they acted in the most cunning manner. They would put in dynamite which could blow up after a while. These explosives were set up in large buildings, and also in buildings where they were expecting the German troops would make searches; they were fixed to doors, and cupboards, so that when the door was opened the explosive exploded; even short waive explosives were used. I remember in Krasnodar, after the German occupation, on one day, I believe, six or eight large public buildings were blown up in that way. after the Ethnic Germans. Please tell us something about the situation and the fate of the Ethnic Germans?

in the Crimea. Before the war there lived about 50,000 German people in the Crimea. For generations they had retained their language, their culture, and their customs. Under Bolshevism they had suffered greatly. When we occupied the Crimca, Of these 50,000 Germans who used to live there only six to seven hundred remained. All the rest had been deported or Killed. According to detailed information, we obtained at first, the mass of Ethnic Germans were taken, if I may point out on the map (Witness stands in front of map on wall) via this point here, Kerch, to the Kaukasus Mountains, over this channel, this narrow channel here (indicating on the map). They then had been deported to the Siberia, or were supposed to have been sent there, (Returns to the witness stand). Those who were not fit to work or to be moved by train, so far as we heard at the time, were shot according to our information. I received confirmation of the fate of the Ethnic Germans when at the end of July, or the beginning of August, I moved with the First German. Armored Army from Rostock into the Kaukasus Mountain area. We entered Armaria with the first Army unit. We had moved in with the First German troops which invaded that country, and late one evening three Ethnic German women reported to me. They were in a terrible condition, beyond description. Their report showed us that they had been in a train which was to go farther East, but during a German airplane attack the railroad track had been destroyed, and the whole train load of Ethnic Germans, about 2,000, was left burning alive in locked ears by the Russians. One car had been damaged, and thus these three women had managed to escape at the last minute. We also heard there that these approximately 50,000 German people, that is those who had as yet not been killed were sent to Siberia from the Kuban area.

There again it was said that they who were not fit for work, or were not fit for transportation, were shot.

Q Dr. Braune, from reports in the daily newspapers, did you hear about the interview of the wellknown author of a recent book on Stalingrad, Theodor Plivier, which he had with the Dutch reporter Scheffler? It reveals that the Wolga German Republic where many Germans lived suffered the same fate as the Ethnic Germans in the Crimea.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, I feel that I must protest, or object to this line of questioning. There has been no basic foundation which has been laid for the introduction of the work of this author, whether he is an expert, and no connection has been shown between this book, or this author and the defendant, on the grounds of immateriality, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, may I mention here that Theodor Plivier gave this interview during this summer, after he himself had returned from the East, and he confirms from his own experience what he found there during many years of stay. So far Theodor Plivier has expert knowledge in this matter, and, therefore, it is of great importance what he says.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, it is entirely agreeable that you present this book with such parts of it as you believe are material and relevant, and that can be done in your document book. This witness did not write the book, so, therefore, he can not tell us about the book.

If we permit witness to tell us about books, then they can just start in the libraries of the world. I had assumed that you had intended that he only refer to the book, and with a sentence or two indicate the nature of its contents, which he has now already done, and, I would think that would be sufficient. You can supplement that in your document book, of course.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I have finished with this question anyhow, and I shall give a small excerpt in the document book.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I have finished with this question now.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. MAYER: And I shall give a small excerpt in the document book.

THE WITNESS: May I explain something further on this? I do have the newspaper cutting in front of me, but I may assure you that what I said was from my memory after I read this newspaper cutting a few days ago.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q (By Dr. Mayer) To conclude this complex of questions connections with your assignment in the East, I would like to ask you, Witness, how long you worked in the Crimea? I was then attached to the First Armored Army. I joined it in the area of Rostov. From there I advanced, together with my commando, and in the second half of August I reached Maikop in the northern part of the Caucasus, but already after a few days I was recalled from there. This recall had already been issued in July, but owing to this advance it only reached me at this time.

Q When did you return to the Reich? was made my successor. At the end of August I handed the commando over to him, and in the last days of August, as far as I remember, I travelled to Vorosilov. I informed Einsatzgruppen Chief Vierkamp that I was going to the Reich. I had to wait for the plane for a few days and then traveled by plane via Nikolaev, Bucharest, Belgrade, Vienna, Berlin back to the Reich.

Q What did you do after you returned to Germany?

entitled, which amounted to four to five weeks. Then in the second half of October I took over the State Police Office at Halle again for a short period. of students, and how did this come about? January, 1942, the Reich student leader, Dr. Scheele, at the time called me to see him in Salzburg and informed me that I had leave to join his office. I was to be put in charge of the German Academic Exchange Service, and also was to become honorary chief of the Foreign office of the Reich Students Association.

Q You were also prepared to take up this appointment? because they were matters which had always interested me very much. task? suggested me for this position, just because he knew that I was interested in students and high school problems in particular in other words, that he recommended me. Exchange Service? association and had the task to take care of an exchange of students, teachers and professors with other people abroad.

Q What were your tasks in the Reich Student Association?

A My office had several departments. First of all it was my task to look after the relations between the student association in other countries and the cooperation with them, the cultural political cooperation, the care of the foreign students studying in Germany.

Even in 1943 and 1944 we had about eight thousand foreign students in the Reich. This was my main task during those two years, the cooperation and the care for these foreign students. Beyond that, we looked after German students who had been injured during the war so that they could study abroad, in as far as this was possible, in spite of the war. Apart from that, in the German Academic Exchange Service it was my task to administer all the means and the financial department of the Studienwerk fuer Auslaender, a student association for students abroad. It gave scholarships to about 2000 foreign students per year. This amounted to about two to three millions. The Exchange Service also gave such exchange scholarships for German students who wanted to go abroad and study there.

Q Were lecture evenings also arranged? Reich, everything was done that was possible to be done during the war. The cooperation was very close in spite of the war. In most German high schools I still started German Foreign Student Associations. They were particularly keen on cooperation, and part of this work was cultural evenings, lecture evenings, musical evenings. Inspection trips, etc., were carried out by them, and sightseeing trips. One of the nicest tasks I remember was looking after about two or three thousand French students. These French students, through a law by their Government, had to do labor service and had been sent to Germany for that purpose. Of course, they were very bitter about being called up to do this. Many of them had been sent to locations where they had to do work which was not in line with their training and their interest.

Here, for once, I saw an opportunity to bring the academic youth of Germany and France closer together in spite of the war. Everywhere I appointed or had suitable German students appointed to visit these French students wherever they worked, and after getting over their first distress they really were in very close and friendly contact. I saw to it that these students were given positions which suited their ability and their interests. As far as possible we got literature for them, newspapers and periodicals. We invited them to our entertainments. We tried to get leave for them to attend and in 1944 I finally even succeeded to get a number of the students to study in German universities and to be released for this purpose.

Q Why did this work finish in the winter of 1944? which made this work senseless. The enemy was on the borders of the Reich. The communications with other countries had been cut off, and in the Reich there was no room for such activity.

Q When did Kaltenbrunner send you to Norway? as commander of the Security Police and the SD in Oslo, and Kaltenbrunner ordered me to go there. In the middle of January, 1945, I left for Oslo. and the SD?

Q How long were you in Norway then? capitulation, and then as a prisoner until 1 July 1947.

Q In Norway did they start proceedings against you? me. For about fifteen months I was in a single cell. At the end of March, 1947, after twenty-one months, for the first time the Norwegian police interrogated me. Shortly afterwards the interrogation officer told me, it was suggested to the prosecution that they should stop proceedings against me. The proceedings were discontinued, and in the middle of June '47, after two years of imprisonment, I was transferred to an internment camp. to find out that there was nothing against you?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, this concludes my direct examination with this witness. I have no further questions to address to him. On this occasion I would like to thank the Tribunal very sincerely for giving me opportunity to carry out the questioning of the witness to such an extent.

THE PRESIDENT: And I want too to congratulate you on the very systematic manner in which you disposed of the direct examination. Do any defense counsel desire to crossexamine the witness?

DR. GAWLIK: Dr. Gawlik for Seibert. BY DR. GAWLIK:

Q Witness, do you know the co-defendant Seibert?

Q When did this happen? in 1936. After all these years I am not quite sure of it any more.

in Russia? At the time Seibert was in charge of Department III in the reporting section, and already at that time had close contact with the Army. tasks? orders for executive tasks. Seibert had nothing to do with executive tasks. to you. Next question, during your work as commando leader, did Herr Seibert ever inspect an execution by your commando?

A No, I did not personally observe that. During the executions in Simferopol in December, 1941, Herr Seibert was on leave. Apart from that I never heard anything of the kind, that he ever inspected executions.

Q You just talked about Herr Seibert's leave in December '41. Do you know how long Herr Seibert was on leave at the time?

A When he left I do not know. I only remember that he had already gone when I arrived in the Crimea at the end of November. His return however I remember very well.

Q When was this?

A That was on Christmas Eve 1941. Seibert was Father Christmas to us at the time. He brought us parcels and letters from home. He came right into our Christmas celebrations.

DR. GAWLIK: Thank you. I have no further questions.

DR. KOESSL: Dr. Koessl for Schubert. BY DR. KOESSL: is a document, NO_3055, Prosecution's Exhibit No. 28. It is the affidavit by Schubert of 24 February 1947. Witness, do you know this affidavit? have it in front of me. by you in the direct examination? and his activity during the execution, do they conform with the facts as far as you know? quite honest, I was surprised when I read this affidavit. At the moment I cannot find the place, but I think at one place Schubert even says that the execution, the place of execution was a bit remote, and could not be seen from outside.

A Oh, yes, I have found it now. It says here, I quote: "to see that the location of the shooting be remote enough." I don't understand this because when Schubert went out there the place Of execution was fixed already and the execution was carried out. There was nothing to be inspected or arrange that this place be remote because this place was already fixed and determined, and Herr Schubert could not change this. But also the rest of the contents.... I already said I did not meet Schubert on the place there. Only when I went out there with Herr Ohlendorf, or late in the afternoon or evening I heard from Herr Ohlendorf that he had sent Schubert out as well in order to see whether everything had been carried out according to the directives given by him.

On the place out there, I saw this myself, was a subkommando leader, a Sturmbannfuehrer, there was the Chief of Police, another captain, and then, I still remember, another Hauptsturmfuehrer who was out there. All these were people who had higher positions and higher ranks than Schubert. I do not understand, therefore, why he should say here and explain it in a way as if he was the head of everything, as if he was in charge of everything.

Q Could Schubert give instructions to the leaders mentioned? impossible. I am convinced that if Herr Schubert had tried to give orders to the Sturmbannfuehrer or the two captains, that it would have been pointed out that he was of lower rank.

Q What tasks did Schubert have on that day as far as you know? he had no other tasks except to see to it on the place that the directives given by Herr Ohlendorf were complied with. I did not understand it to mean at the time that Schubert had been given special instructions to interfere with the actual event. Schubert had taken a hand? course, if he made some arrangements for the guarding and some guard would not do his duty, he could have said, "You must do your duty here." In that way he could do it, yes, but on the actual place several leaders who had superior ranks to Schubert were present and they were in charge there. carrying out of the executions?

A Noo Schubert had nothing to do with this. He was adjutant and pay master of the corps and had nothing to do with the actual tasks of a subkommando.

DR. KOESSL: Thank you, I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Does any other defense counsel desire to crossexamine the witness?

(No response.)

THE PRESIDENT: If not, Mr. Walton will proceed with the crossexamination on behalf of the prosecution.

CROSS_EXAMINATION BY MR. WALTON:

Q Dr. Braune, it is true, is it not, that you joined the SD voluntarily?

Q And that was in 1934, was it not? entry into the SD you became a member of the SS?

A I already said this in my direct examination. By joining the SD I became a member of the SS special formation called SD. knew that when you entered the SD you, as a matter of course, became at the same time a member of the SS, did you not?

A Yes, I can only repeat what I said before; I became part of the special formation of the SS which was called SD. didn't you? known in 1936 as the most ideal and most unselfish representative of National Socialism and was highly regarded by the population. May we assume that you also were of this opinion?

A Yes, I had the same opinion, Mr. Prosecutor. the SS? and from my own knowledge I have no reason to change this opinion basically at all.

I believe that in the last years before the end of the war many people would have liked to join the SS and become SS leaders who don't want to have anything to do with it now. made to you that you should have yourself appointed to a position in the Gestapo in order that your salary might be paid by the Gestapo, you agreed to this suggestion, did you not?

A I believe, Mr. Prosecutor, I have explained this in my direct examination in all detail and cannot add anything further to this.

Q Well, you can at least answer this question. If it is true you can say it is true. If it is not you can deny it. You agreed to the suggestion, didn't you? agreed to this purely formal solution.

Q When Dr. Best requested you to serve actually in the Gestapo in '38, you would have been at liberty to quit, would you not?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I was not asked at the time. It was anything but a request in the situation in which I was. could you not?

A Mr. Prosecutor, it wasn't as simple as all that. I believe in this Tribunal it has been quoted once before, that already in peace time Heydrich said, "The road away from us leads via the concentration camp." I explained in detail how the situation was for me. At the time after I had become an official formally, of course, I had to accept this order. In what manner I accepted it and how I carried it out I explained here and it is quite clear I did everything that was in my power at the time in order to be able to return to the SD work and I would like to assure you I would not have been sorry if, according to these attempts, they had released me again from being an official, but the financial situation in the SD at the time was such that one attached greatest importance to my saving the SD from paying me.

Q When were you removed from the membership rolls of the Gestapo?

A I didn't quite understand the question. Gestapo duties; is that correct? to definite promises

Q All right, 1937 you entered you entered upon your Gestapo duties?

A But I believe, Mr. Prosecutor, that one cannot separate the reasons from these facts. It would give entirely the wrong impression. I said what my opinion was, and I said because of which promises I joined the State Police, and must..... we are perfectly familiar with it. I merely want to establish the fact that in 1937 or 1938 you entered upon your Gestapo duties.

Now, you had further testified that upon your return from Russia you went back to the State Police office in Halle; is that correct?

A Yes. But I also said Gestapo when you went to Norway? it until the end of the war.

Q That's what I wanted to know.

A I wish to correct one thing, Mr. Prosecutor, I had forgotten at the moment that during the two years when I was in the Reich Student Association I was not.

Q All right. Then I would like to know when your name came off the membership rolls of the Gestapo. That's what I asked you. continue to neglect your duties in Gestapo matters intentionally? transferred. deputy chief of the Gestapo office at Coblenz? three and a half years I was made government councilor, Regierungsrat, but when I had been appointed Regierungsrat, government councilor, I was bound to get an office. Except for the very large offices in Berlin where it might have been that a government councilor was only a deputy. I do not think there was an office throughout the Reich where this could happen.

Q After you entered on your Gestapo duties, isn't it true that in less than a year you were made deputy chief, regardless of your rank, in the Gestapo office at Coblenz?

A I can only say that this rank cannot be segregated here. As government assessor, I could only become a deputy in a place like Coblenz. you remained for about a year, did you not? Wesermuende.

Q And then you became chief of the Gestapo at Halle. Now, which is the larger Gestapo office, the one a Wesermuende or the one at Halle?

A The one in Halle is larger. They had more offials. Whether the territory was larger or smaller, I don't know at the moment. more responsibility if you had continued to neglect your Gestapo duties in favor of your SD work?

A Mr. Prosecutor, after I had been given this responsible position during the war as an official, I considered it my duty to do my duty in this position as well. very best of your ability; is that true?

Q Well, isn't it true that each transfer in the Gestapo service from 1939 to October, 1941 in reality was a promotion for you even though not a promotion in rank? as a Standartenfuehrer which became a Brigadefuehrer office, after 1939, the development in the State Police which did not advance me any further than to an Obersturmfuehrer, I did not consider an advantage.

Q All right, Doctor, let's consider your statement made not under oath, which is in document book 3_D, page 54 of the English, page 94 or the German, and is document NO-4234, prosecution's exhibit 163.

Now, Doctor, you state in October, 1941 that you were detailed for service in Einsatzgruppe D?

A Yes, that is right. I said that in the first days of October I received the decree from Berlin.

Q Now let's consider, in connection with your statement, your service record which is in document book 3-D, that same book, and. which is on page 64 of the English, 106 of the German and is document NO-3249, prosecution's exhibit 166. Now, on page 67, your Honors, and on page 111 of the German, almost at the bottom of the page it says in this service record, from September 1941 until July 1942 he was assigned to Einsatzgruppe D and was a Kommandofuehrer. Now, your service record then is at variance with your statement, or what I would like to know now, which is the correct statement of fact; that you were a Kommandofuehrer from November of '41 or from September of '41 as stated in your service record? tion. It says here from September '41 until July '42. The author of this promotion, recommendation by promotion, had decrees in his files like this. My actual order to go into the assignment and my recall from the assignment are shown here. It is quite possible and it is nothing exceptional that the order into the assignment was given at the end of September. I can only assure you again that on 18 October I left Berlin. I believe my document book, Mr. Prosecutor, will contain the original document according to which, on 17 October in Berlin, I was given the order to move, and the trip ticket was given to my driver and myself so I could not have left before the 18th. I also explained that I was in Nikolajew first and that at the beginning of November I went to Odessa and exactly on 10 November was put in charge of the Kommando. This will become obvious and clear when I add that I certainly have no reason to extend my assignment six weeks longer. I said that at the end of August I handed over a Kommando and returned at the end of October.

It says in these files here, July '42. It can be shown but there is a difference between the document and the actually starting service which is six weeks, but this time also exists when I finished with my assignment.

Q All right. On your service record which we are considering in connection with your statement on page 66 of the English in document book 3_D, and on page 109 of the German, it shows that in 1939 on the 20th of April you were promoted to SS_Sturmbannfuehrer. Is that correct? over two years since you had had a promotion, even in wartime; is that not correct? that you would never be promoted further unless you had had foreign service with troops, did you not? the troops abroad, foreign service? No, I cannot confirm this as an exclusive fact. I am sure that a great number of promotions were made although the individuals had not been assigned. little slow? You testified that you had done your duty as best you could, and here it is over two years in wartime and you were not promoted. For that reason were you not willing to take service in Russia or any foreign service to see if it wouldn't speed up your promotion?

A Mr. Prosecutor, it is an error if you presume that holding the rank which I had and my age, I should have been promoted every year. There were very few exceptions, but I believe those were exceptional people. I did not consider my promotion to Obersturmbannfuehrer after four or five years between being a Sturnbannfuehrer and an Obersturm bannfuehrer was nothing exceptional, and I can only assure you that at the time when I was sent to the assignment I really did not think of promotion.

were you not, at the time of your assignment to Russian territory? and I knew my tasks as chief of a state police office when I joined the assignment, yes. Einsatzgruppe unless you had been familiar with the SD and Gestapo matters or in either of these spheres of activity?

A Mr. Prosecutor, this is a hypothetical question. What might have happened to a person in the war, I really cannot say now. I don't know whether fate would have given me such a task if I had not belonged to the State Police at the time.

Q It's been repeatedly testified here that certain members of Einsatzgruppes attempted to get out and join the Wehrmacht. Now, I ask you essentially the sane question. Do you believe that you would have been assigned to an Einsatzgruppe unless you had been familiar with the tasks of the State Police or the Gestapo and the SD?

A Mr. Prosecutor, you refer to my Army service I must tell you unfortunately that my state of health was such that I could not have become a soldier. I was examined repeatedly and every time I was found not suitable for military service. May I explain it in one sentence? I have two serious defects in the shoulder joints. rendered a Kommandofuehrer and a comparable rank in the Wehrmacht. You had plenty of hard work to do while you were in Russia, did you not?

A I don't know what you consider hard work. Mr. Prosecutor. In any case with my state of health I was able to carry out this task, but to give an example, I could not throw hand grenades or overcome obstacles because my shoulder joints easily became dislocated.

Major, was it not? one could compare it to a Major. they?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I don't know whether you have been a soldier, but I believe that the war would have been quite different to what you imagine it.

Q When and where did you first learn of the Fuehrer order?

A I explained this in detail here already, Mr. Prosecutor. and it wasmy task to gather information about my task. humanitarian reasons, but that you considered it your duty to carry out the order as it was an order of your supreme commander; is that correct? other possibility in the situation in which I was. A Mr. Prosecutor, please tell me what I should have done. I don't know what I should have done. ever did anything to be relieved from the assignment that forced you to carry out an order of which you disapproved?

Fuehrer order? what force would have been used if I had disobeyed it.

Q That's not what I asked you. I asked you what force was used in order to get you to carry it out? was there any force used?

A I said that the refusal to obey would have meant my end. I I believe it has been said very often during this trial. any force. You didn't try to get away from it. The order was given to you and you carried it out and you communicated to no one your reluctance and your revulsion to carry out this order. You only acted because you were convinced that you had to obey orders issued by your supreme commander; is that correct?

A These are several questions you mention now, Mr. Prosecutor, about the first question I can only say that there is a very effective power which can be used not in a physical sense. I don't know what should threaten a person more than the fact that he can lose his life. On the second point I can only say that an assumption by you. I believe, there is no doubt what my attitude was to the order and how difficult it was for no to carry it out. by Hitler were not aimed to the extermination of the Jews as a race, but were security measures which were necessary as the Jews were the most active and powerful part of the Communists; have you not? or a number of persons are killed for security reasons or racial inferiority reasons?

A I did not quite understand the question, Mr. Prosecutor. May I have it again?

Q Yes. Would not the killing of people for security reasons, that is, for the purpose of preventing acts which they would carry out eventually in the future, be less criminal than the killing of the same persons for the reasons that they were members of an inferior race?

A Mr. Prosecutor, durin this war millions of people were killed and one cannot say that they constituted an immediate danger. They were killed at the order of the supreme commanders of the state or the supreme war commanders, and I already said that I do not assume the right to judge this as being criminal. of crimes?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I can only reply again they were not guilty of any crimes any more than hundreds of thousands of German women and children who were killed by bombs. They were just as guilty and just as innocent. In both cases I start from the assumption that the responsible men gave these orders because they considered it necessary in order to attain their end for the war. your Kommando without their casesbeing investigated as to whether they had committed any acts against the German Reich or not?

gation was made because there wasnot time for investigation anymore.

MR. WALTON: At this time, Your Honor, I am just about to go into the documents.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Witness, I would just like to ask one question on a statement you made by way of comparison between those that you were compelled to kill and German women and children who met their death as a result of bombing. Do you know of any case where an order was issued by Allied authorities specifically that certain German women and children should be killed?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I do not know that kind of an order, but I can only assume that the bombs were thrown without an order and I cannot assume that somebody would have had the hope, the deceptive hope, that when thousands of planes bombed a certain area systematically that no women and children should be killed on that occasion and what I witnessed in Germany, your Honor, was so extensive that the consideration one could have hoped not to hit women and children is completely excluded in my mind.

THE PRESIDENT: But you do not know of any order which called upon any designated unit of the Allied Armed Forces to go into any German area and to kill women and children by shooting?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I did not get to know any such order, but I must assume that in Dresden, for example, where the city was bombed with heavy bombs, shortly afterwards, according to what I heard, those places where the survivors had escaped to were bombed, and during the next days as I heard, people were attacked by dive bombers when they were in the street. I cannot assume that this was done without orders.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, it wasall the result of bombing?

THE WITNESS: Of course, your Honor, although during the different bombing in centuries one cannot call this bombing.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, it falls into the same category as the bombing of cities by German forces, for instance, the bombing of London, the bombing of Rotterdam, the bombing of Coventry. We all understand that. There was bombing on both sides.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I cannot make any great difference there. We were told at the time that they were taking military posts but I am convinced that those who gave orders to attack the city of London also had to expect this, that innocent defenseless people were killed.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

Q. (By Mr. Walton) Doctor, let us pass to some of your specific activities. In your statement, which is in Document Book III-D on page 54 of the English, page 94 of the German. It is Document NO-4234, Prosecution Exhibit 163. In paragraph 3 thereof, you relate one instance of the execution of a number of Jews. Who rounded up these Jews?

A. Under direct examination I said that prior to my term of office, identification and registration was carried out, that is to say, before I assumed office, and it was the commander of 10-A that dealt with it; when orders had been received from the Army for the Commander to concentrate the Jews, they were rounded up.

Q. Did I understand you to say that the commnader of 10-A -- What is this designation? Will you go a little further into details?

A. Under direct examination I said that at Simferopol a subkommando, which was part of Kommando 10-A, a few days after arrival was subordinated to me. The way I remember it is that originally it was Kommando 10-A.

Q. Thank you. The translation came aver in better shape that time. Well, approximately how many Jews were there in this number which were executed?

A. I have already said here that I cannot give you a definite figure. As far as I remember, I gave you the exact number of Jews present in peacetime in Simferopol. I also told you that at least half of them had escaped, but I cannot give you the exact figure.

Q. Can you give me an approximate figure?

A. No, I cannot do that either, unless I can just work it out this way: There were approximately 10,000 before, COURT II CASE IX half of whom had escaped and from that I can deduce that in all circumstances there must have been fewer than 4,000 to 5,000, but I cannot give you an exact figure.

Q. Then there were more than 1,000 executed during this one instance, is that what I am to gather?

A. I think I am certain that there were more than 1,000.

Q. Were women and children included in this number in this incident?

A. Yes, but I have to add that on account of the rumors and on account of people escaping I think there were only a very few children. Any way I myself never saw children being shot, but there were women among them for certain.

Q. Do you remember approximately how large the execution squad was that performed this execution?

A. They were detachments, I believe, of ten men. In each case there was a military commander. The exact number of these squads I cannot give you.

Q. Were they composed of Ordnungs Police or State Police and Wehrmacht and Gestapo?

A. I have already told you that the majority of them were companies from the regular police, Ordnungs Polizei, but I cannot give you any details as to their composition, all the more so because I believe that I remember that they were being relieved at the time.

Q. Am I to assume that these executions were ordered by the Army?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, it happened the way I described it to you. The Liaison Leader came and told Herr Ohlendorf the the Army demanded the execution to be carried out before Christmas. Naturally, above all, there was the COURT II CASE IX Fuehrer Order, unchanged and valid as before.

Q. Well, why didn't you include this fact, since it was so important, in your affidavit, or, I am sorry, in your statement?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I believe I can remember perfectly well that I told Herr Wartenberg at the time that the things which he had put into the affidavit only constituted a small fraction, but I believe, I am certain I told him that it was the Army which gave that order. In fact, I believe that I can remember just new that that is contained in my statement. Perhaps I can just have alook. Yes, I have found it. May I quote:

"The 11th Army had ordered that the execution at Simferopol was to be finished before Christmas." time. It is on page 2, Mr. Prosecutor, and it is the last paragraph.

Q. By that you meant that the Army ordered all executions of Jews in Simforopol to be finished by Christmas, is that correct? Was it this one that you specifically state, or all others?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, the Fuehrer Order was there and now the Army said "We want it finished before Christmas." I wasn't able at the time to find out all the reasons. Maybe the reasons were strategic reasons, military reasons, which caused the Army to issue that order. Maybe they were territorial questions. Maybe they were questions of food. The Army at that time was afraid that hundreds of thousands of people might have to starve to death during that winter, because of the food situation, but all these are suppositions on my part and I cannot tell you what was the ultimate reason for that order given by the Army.

Q. Are you trying to tell us now that the execution of all undesirables was ordered because there might not be enough food for them?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor, all I wanted to say was that might have been the reason for the Army to issue that order at that particular time. The over-all principles of the matter were not affected by that.

Q. Were there any executions carried out in Simferopol after Christmas, 1941?

A. Certainly, executions were carried out after Christmas, 1941, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the morale factor of the German soldier was of concern to the Army and it felt that it had to restrain the zeal of the Security Police for executions during the Christmas season?

A. I am sorry, Mr. Prosecutor, I didn't quite get the meaning of your question.

Q. You have testified, and others have testified, that the killing of Jews and Gypsies, and other undesirables affected the morale of the men. Isn't it true that as a morale factor for the German soldiers the Army felt that it had to restrain the executions during the Christmas season and therefore it hastened the execution of those people who were selected for execution prior to Christmas so that there would be no executions during the Christmas season?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, before that question is answered, do I understand you heard the witness say that executions affected the morale of his men? I don't recall that statement.

MR. WALTON: More specifically, Sir, he testified that Obersturmbann-fuehrer Schulz came to him on his return from his anti partisan activities and told him of the execution COURT II CASE IX by the use of the gas van and that he didn't like to use it any more because there was a great effect on the morale of his men.

THE PRESIDENT: That is true with regard to gas vans. That is an established fact. We have heard that from the witness stand, even from Ohlendorf, but generally I don't recall that the witness stated that executions in themselves affected the morale of his men, and, if he did not make that statement, then your question is founded upon something which is not in the evidence and that will make it all the more difficult to give you a precise answer.

MR. WALTON: And it is also not a question for crossexamination, if he did not mention it. I am sorry.

THE WITNESS: May I add something, Your Honor? May I correct one point? Mr. Prosecutor, as far as I recall, I did not mention morale in connection with the gas vans. I never mentioned the word, "morale." I believe I told you that Schulz had said to me that there was a heavier strain on the men than in shooting. The word, "morale", I did not mention.

MR. WALTON: I will withdraw the previous question.

Q. (By Mr. Walton) Did your kommando perform any executions during the Christmas season of 1941?

A. As far as I remember, after the shootings which have already been mentioned, up to Christmas no further shootings were carried out. They were carried out approximately between the 10th and 15th. That is why I am surprised at the figures which are contained in further reports, because that was when the landings happened in Feodesia, Eupatonia etc.

Q. Was this execution carried out in a military and humane manner in accordance with General Ohlendorf's directives?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever discuss the methods or any facts concerning this execution with your superior, General Ohlendorf?

A. I believe, I did discuss it with Aim and that once we had been placed before such a difficult task, I essentially agreed with his directives.

Q. Did he have any criticism to make of the manner in which these executions were performed, to you?

A. Concerning the executions at Simferopol? No, because these executions were carried out in accordance with those directives.

Q. Doctor, the weather in Simferopol during December is quite cold, is it not?

A. In December, no, Mr. Prosecutor, As far as I remember it isn't very cold, only a heavy frost. In the Grimea, the southern part of which is almost sub-tropical, where one can go for walks under palms the severe winter of 1941-42 set in only in January I believe, and we had it between Christmas and New Year, because I can remember very well New Year's Eve, when we had to expect enemy parachutists and when the landing at Feodosia had taken place, I can remember that it was a white night.

Q. Well, prior t the actual shootings, these victims had to remove their outer clothing, didn't they?

A. I believe I told Herr Wartenberg something on that point and I said to him that they had to take off their heavy overcoats, but all their other clothes were left to them.

Q. Let me call your attention to paragraph 3 again, which is on page 55 of the English and on page 96 of the German and I quote, "Immediately before the execution the COURT II CASE IX outer garments, that is, heavy winter overcoats and similar things were taken away from the persons to be executed.

They kept their other clothes." were removed from them before they were marched to the place of execution?

A. As far as I remember it, yes, that is correct.

Q. Now where was this salvaged clothing taken after the execution of its owners?

A. The delegate of the N.S.V., who was with the Army, had them transported away immediately from the place of execution, and he then took them over.

from these people? accordance with the orders from Berlin. The money? Well, I don't Know whether that was handed over to the administrative leader of the Einsatzgruppe or whether it was my administrative leader who took it directly to the branch of the Reich Credit Office or the Reichsbank, anyhow, some German agency. The valuables, as far as I remember were sealed and were sent as parcels either directly or through the group to Berlin, but I do not know whether that was done directly or via the group. 1941 the only ones which you personally witnessed? Of Jews, I mean? the measures at Eupatoria, which I mentioned under direct examination, but that was a different matter altogether,

Q That was 1,184 men?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I cannot give you the exact figure. That is the figure that is mentioned in Major Riese's letter. I have no reason to doubt this figure.

Q Yes, we will discuss that later. Doctor, are you acquainted with a certain Karl Jonas, which is spelled, J-o-n-a-s?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I assume that you are referring to 2d Lt. or Lt. Jonas, who belonged to the police company. in command to Hans Gabel, G-a-b-e-l of the police unit. fuehrer. Perhaps he became a Hauptsturmfuehrer during the war.

That is possible, but at that time he was a Police Lt. or a Police Captain. Whether he belonged to the SS I cannot tell you for certain. statements capable of belief?

A Well, Mr. Prosecutor, it is hard to answer that question. Please show me these statements, put his statements to me and then I will tell you whether according to my views they are capable of belief. It is rather difficult to give a power of attorney carte blanche that everything which Jones said was true.

Q Not everything. I am just asking you generally whether in your knowledge of him the man told the truth when he made a statement.

A I know him only so superficially, Mr. Prosecutor that I cannot permit myself to judge his love for the truth. enough to say either yes or no, certainly. Now was this Karl Jonas ever under our command, either temporarily or permanently?

A He was at Odessa when I took over the command; as far as I remember, he was Marschoffizier, officer in command of the march, when we went from Odessa to Simferopol and, as far as I remember, the Chief of a Company asked him to deal with the preparation for the moving of the old company. They had to move out as the new company had already arrived. connections with him after you left Simferopol that you remember?

A Well, Mr. Prosecutor, he led the march and, as far as I remember, formally speaking, he belonged to the kommando until he left, but I believe that Hauptmann Gabel was asked to take over his duties as leader.

A Mr. Prosecutor, I don't remember that. with an execution which occurred in December 1941 from ten to fifteen kilometers outside of Simferopol?

AAccording to my recollection, Mr. Prosecutor, Jonas was not involved in that, but, as I pointed out before, six years have gone past and I cannot exclude the possibility that my memory may be wrong. the question, did you ever direct him to place a cordon of men around the site of execution in December 1941?

A I have already said, Mr. Prosecutor, that there was Sturmfuehrer Schulz who dealt with the details in my subkommando, but that does not exclude the possibility that I said to Jonas, will you supervise the matter, or will you throw a cordon around, but I cannot remember it.

Q Let me show you his affidavit. Indicate to me when you have finished readint it, if you please.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you see that Dr. Mayer gets a copy in German?

MR. WALTON: Just as soon as the page comes back, Sir.

A I have read it, Mr. Prosecutor. of that affidavit -

Q And I quote: "During my activity with Einsatzgruppe D, I had the opportunity of attending an execution. In December, 1941, Dr. Werner Braune, Chief of Sonderkommando II-B, gave the order to rope off the site of the execution" and so forth and so on.

execution about which you have just finished testifying?

A It can only be the same execution, Mr. Prosecutor, because that is the only one that I attended. reasonably correct Statement of fact.

A Well, I have read through paragraph 3. I have just glanced through it and in doing so I did not spot any important mistakes, but if you wish me to give you a concrete answer, perhaps you would allow me to read through it quickly again. It is always possible that one can overlook something. concerning paragraph 3.

MR. WALTON: If it please the Tribunal, at this time the prosecution desires to offer into evidence Document NO-5273, which is the Jonas affidavit and which will be Prosecution Exhibit 184.

DR. GAWLIK (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT SEIBERT): Your Honor, I object to the admission of this affidavit in this form and with regard to paragraph 4, as far as Jonas' statements concern the Defendant Seibert. I do not Know to what extent these statements in this phase of the trial are supposed to be of evidential value. If the prosecution intends to submit this affidavit, including paragraph 4, it should have, at the latest, submitted it during the crossexamination of Seibert. At this time it would have been of evidential value then. If the prosecution submits this affidavit without the first sentence of paragraph 4, in that case I do not have any objections, but at the moment this can only be submitted to examine the credibility of the witness Braune and in that connection is of no evidential value.

For that reason I object to the affidavit being introduced in this form.

MR. WALTON: The prosecution desires to submit the whole affidavit, Your Honor. We cannot submit parts of affidavits.

THE PRESIDENT: There is no question that if the affidavit is submitted, it must be submitted in its entirety because otherwise there is no way of studying it for authenticity. Now, with regard to paragraph four, we have another situation. It is true -- and Dr. Gawlik has the right to complain -- that if this document is to be used against Seibert, Seibert should have had an opportunity to answer to that paragraph four if he chose to do so. Now, Mr. Walton, What do you submit in connection with paragraph four? As it stands now the affidavit is accepted insofar as it concerns the present witness Braune. Now please indicate to the Tribunal What you have to present regarding paragraph four.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, if the Tribunal feels that this is not fair, so far as Seibert is concerned, I don't know how I am going to do it... but I should like to submit the entire affidavit with the exception of the first sentence of paragraph four until the rebuttal, and then I want to submit the first sentence of paragraph four.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes... yes... yes. We will accept the document in its entirety only for the purpose of determining the authenticity of the document; but so far as probative value is concerned, the document is before us now only in connection with paragraph three. Paragraph four -- and particularly the first sentence of paragraph four-is excluded at the present time from the consideration of the Tribunal insofar as that paragraph has probative value.

MR. WALTON: That doesn't prevent me, sir, from presenting it in the rebuttal document also?

THE PRESIDENT: It doesn't prevent you from re-submitting the affidavit with reference to paragraph four, nor does it prevent Dr. Gawlik -- and I know this is superfluous -- does it prevent him from objecting at that time against the document.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, please allow me to make one short note here.

Q (By Mr. Walton) Now, Doctor, let's go to the fourth paragraph of your own affidavit.

.. do you still have the German copy of the German document, Book III-D, page 55? disposal but that you did not use it for executions because in your opinion the shooting of victims was more honorable for both parties; and I listened carefully to your direct examination today, in which you stated that you were told by your second in command, the officer Schulz, that while you were engaged in any partisan warfare, away from your headquarters, this van was used. That's correct, isn't it?

A It is not quite correct. What I said was that I did not remember exactly whether Schulz told me that then I returned from several days' action against the partisans -- in fact, I don't remember for certain if it was then that he told me about the gas van, or after; when I returned from leave. I believe that is what I said here.

Q Schulz was still under your command, even if you were away? of gas vans to carry out the Himmler order -- would be your responsibility as commander of that unit, wouldn't it?

A Yes... that, too, was my responsibility... for, Mr. Prosecutor, I had not issued a prohibition, but I don't believe that Schulz would use a gas van for we were disinclined to use the gas vans from the very first day onward. luctance in using the gas vans? like that and we did not intend to use it, but there was no possibility for me to issue any express prohibition, for, as has been testified here before, the gas van arrived with a direct order from Himmler; but I believed that I could by-pass that order because apparently somebody in Berlin -- as it was not right when we had assumed that people in Berlin thought we should make it a little easier for the men to carry out their tasks.

Q Doctor, let's turn now to the same Document Book III-D, page 1 of the English, page 1 of the German, Document NO-2856, which is Prosecution Exhibit 148. This is the affidavit of General Ohlendorf, and I particularly direct your attention to paragraph three, and that part of it, your Honors, in paragraph 3 on page 2 of Document Book it is the general-

A On the second page of the affidavit? text. I think it is on page 3 of the German text.

THE PRESIDENT: Page 3 of the original.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, I have my book paginated in conformity with the German text; in other words, on page 1 of my book I note where it begins where the German page 2 begins... and pages two, three and four--

THE PRESIDENT: The only point I make is that the page of an original document may be different from the page in the German document book en masse.

MR. WALTON: That's right. That's why I had my book paginated so I could talk to the witness.

Q (By Mr. Walton) Does the General in his affidavit refer to the same execution as you mention in Your statement, and as you have talked about on the stand?

Q So that we understand each other, let me quote: "For this reason I personally inspected a number of executions -- for example, executions" -- the plural is used -- "which were carried out by Kommando 11-b under the direction of Dr. Werner Braune; executions by Kommando 11-a under Sturmbannfuehrer Zapp in Nikolajew; and a smaller execution by Kommando 10-b under the leadership of Alois Persterer and Ameniev." That is what I have reference to; and your answer also applies to that sentence -can only refer to that execution at Simferopol of which I have spoken so far.

.. in his affidavit about supervising an execution on December 1941 in Simferopol, which is contained in Document Book 1, page 108 of the English, page 141 of the German, and is Document NO-3055, Prosecution Exhibit 28, and the incident referred to is in paragraphs 3, 4 and 5. Is your answer the same, that this was the same execution about which all testimony has been given? Prosecutor. your career as commanding officer of Kommando 11-b, Krimchaks were also killed. Can you tell the Tribunal whether Krimchaks constituted any particular threat for the security of the German army?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I can only say the same again as I said about the Jews - they were Jews... they came under the Fuehrer Order... and in accordance with that order it was not for us to examine whether the individual person constituted an acute danger. That was outside our power of decision. the Communist party?

A Mr. Prosecutor, the general public considered them to be Jews. At this moment I cannot tell you, whether we made any difference at the time when making general investigations about the Jews. I cannot remember any differences being made.

THE PRESIDENT: What language did Krimchaks speak, witness?

A Mr. President, if I remember it properly, they were Jews, they were of Jewish origin, they were of the Jewish faith, and the Jews themselves, and the population, considered them to be Jews; but in my view they spoke a language which was similar to the Turkish language.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY MR. WALTON: lines as with the other Jews... that is, was it effected through a Council of Elders?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I was not present when the registration took place. It is possible that they were registered together; but it is also possible that a second committee dealt with them, but I cannot tell you for certain. Elders was, in the individual case, requested to register the Jews; or, where the Jews had registered themselves, the Council of Elders was to turn this list over to the Kommando. Can you tell the Tribunal whether the members of the Jewish Council knew for what reasons this registration was carried out?

A I don't think that they knew of that, Mr. Prosecutor, but I am bound to assume that things were handled the same way as elsewhere -that is to say, that the sub-kommando leader told them at the time that this was being done for the purpose of resettlement into other areas. collaborated in the registration were also killed together with the registered Jews after their work had been completed? Kommando was located in Simferopol, the city of Simferopol itself?

A Not my Kommando, Mr. Prosecutor... I gave a detailed explanation of that matter. When I arrived, where sub-kommandos were sent -and may I refer to that because I gave a detailed account and I used documents in giving my account...

taining security in the Simferopol area during the month of December 1941, was it not?

A Yes, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q Now, Doctor, let's refer to Document Book II-D, page 20 of the English, page 25 of the German, which is Document 2828, Prosecution Exhibit 86. I have very carefully read the transcript of Your testimony as you spoke of this document last week. How many of this total, or what percent of this total of 2929 Jews and Communists executed, as shown in this report, were chargeable to Kommando 11-b?

A I believe, Mr. Prosecutor, in My direct examination I pointed out that I an of the conviction that my Kommando did not take part in those shootings, and I also gave the reasons. I said that my sub-kommandos began their march in the first days of December, and that certainly they did not take part in executions on the very first day. On the other hand, that report of the 12th of December, that is to say -- we are speaking of the report which was written on the 12th of December in Berlin, which means that even if it had been sent by wireless, a few days would have passed before the report would have reached Berlin from my sub-kommando, and for that reason I think it was out of the question that my sub-kommandos were involved in this matter.

Q All right. I accept your explanation at this particular time. Now let's go on in the some Document Book II-D, to the next report, which is on page 22 of the English, page 27 of the German, and is Document NO-2834, and is Prosecution Exhibit 87.

MR. WALTON: Your Honors, I refer specifically to page 28 of the English, and to the last page of the excerpt, witness, which is page 20 of the original..

Q (By Mr Walton, continuing) Now, in your direct examination you testified that you could not be charged with these executions, because your Kommandos were active in the second part, of this period only, is that correct?

A That is not all, Mr. Prosecutor. I made some reservations concerning the time, and concerning the area; and thirdly, I doubted the total figure as such, contrasting it with other figures.

Q Doctor, you anticipated my next question. But just to keep the record clear... you stated that Karasubsar and Feodosia were never in your area of command, and your sub-units of your command were active approximately five days in Jewpatoria and for ten days in Alustchka and Kerch, did you not? Was it Kerch? I did not get that word, I am not sure what it was.

MR. WALTON: The English-

A (continuing) I beg your pardon, but my trouble was that I did not get the German text at all.

THE PRESIDENT: Please repeat the question, Mr. Walton. BY MR. WALTON: in your area of command, is that correct?

A No, that is not correct. What I said was that Kerch and Feodosia did not belong to my Kommando. Mr. Prosecutor, you must have made a mistake there.

Q All right. Kerch and Feodosia were not in your command.

WITNESS: May I interrupt for a second? There is something wrong with the German translation. I get it very weakly. I can only just about understand it. The strength of it is only a fraction above the normal. Will you repeat it? Yes, I can get it properly. I just moved the switch. Thank you.

Q (By Mr. Walton) So that we can understand each other, the towns of Kerch and Feodosia were never in your command, but that you did have sub-units of your command for approximately five days during the period covered by this report in Jewpatoria, and for approximately ten days covered by this report in Alustchka and Karasubasar? into a town or village before you began to carry out your security missions? How many hours would lapse?

A Mr. Prosecutor, that is a purely theoretical question, and in that form I cannot answer it for that depends on the tasks with which one had to deal, and what the actual situation was. If what you want to know is, whether in the first twenty-four hours the sub-Kommando had been attacked by partisans, if that is what you want to know I can tell you that probably that is how I imagine it...within the first twenty-four hours the partisans would have been shot. Forward elements of your Kommando reach a town. This town has already been taken by the German Wehrmacht, and they moved on, and now it is time for the police to come into the town. All right. I will ask it this way: As soon as you reached a town with your Kommando, wasn't the first task which confronted you, for your own safety, to apprehend and to remove all potential threats to your security...wasn't that your first task, as soon as you reached a place?

A Well, Mr. Prosecutor, they immediately tackled all their tasks. They made contact with the agency of the Army forces, they tried to find people who would give them data, with Intelligence, who knew the place...certainly, they also tried to find out whether the important objects, such as the water works and the gas works which were of special importance had been made safe and were in order. personnel reached the town, then?

A I believe so, for certain; but actually I was never there when a sub-kommando did these things. But that is what I imagine. I imagine that the commander of the sub-kommando would have tackled all his tasks. or to collect up the Jewish Council of Elders in order to get the registration list of the Jews and the Communist functionaries in the place, at the same time they looked after the water works and the same time they took over from the elements of the Army, they also treated the Jewish problem, is that correct?

A Well, perhaps I may stick to this example. Before one has made acquaintance of people who had a particular knowledge in the place, one has to find out, who are the most suitable people, and that means in enemy territory that first of all you have to get hold of other people who, in their turn, can give you information, and in the meantime, time passes.

Q Yes, what I want to know is how much of this time passed. Was it a matter of hours, or a matter of days, or a matter of weeks?

A Mr. Prosecutor, perhaps I can give you a concrete example. The Sub-Kommando 10-a, as far as the documents show, reached Simferopol on the 3rd or 5th of November...that at the beginning of December orders were received from the Army, that is to say, four weeks later, the execution had not yet been carried out. I cannot tell you whether the sub-kommando leader after two days, or after ten days, had the registration carried out.

Perhaps this example will show you that it isn't days one goes by in such matters. tration of the Jews was concerned...how long did it take there?

A I really can't tell you, Mr. Prosecutor. I don't think it out of the question that both executions too, as far as any executions were necessary, were carried out before Christmas - but I think it highly improbable. I am more included to believe that they took place in January, but I cannot tell you for certain.

Q Well, as a matter of fact, Doctor, isn't it possible-- I don't say that it happened, but isn't it possible -- in some of the smaller places to get the registration lists from the Jewish Council of Elders and know of the name of every Jew and Communist functionary in a few hours after the arrival of your units in a specified town? Isn't it possible?

A I think that is practically out of the question, Mr. Prosecutor. For it meant entering a town which was destroyed...the zone was practically destroyed... and you have to have seen those Russian town..."towns", in quotes... I am firmly convinced that the first thing my sub-kommando did was to look for accommodations. Perhaps after that the sub-kommando leader went out to see where the nearest army place was, where he and his people would get something to eat in the evening and next morning. That is probably how it happened.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until one-forty-five.

(The Tribunal recessed until 1345 hours) (The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 1 December 1947)
BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Doctor, prior to recess for the lunch hour, we were speaking of the duties of the commandos upon entering a given town. You testified that they had duties which were in connection with the preservation of utilities, public utilities, electricity, and water, taking over the police duties from the Wehrmacht; you also said that they were concerned with the finding of billets in these badly shot up towns for the Einsatz Personnel and the German Personnel, and they also entered upon the solving of security questions in the Jewish problems, is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Now these activities went on simultaneously. I mean, enough personnel was present to start handling all questions concerning the safety and security or the German forces, and the preservation of whatever you found there?

A. Unfortunately there was not sufficient personnel. There was such a small subcommando, and we had everything in such a short time to finish as a job, but I have only given a concrete example. I told you in Simferopol that it was more than a month before the Jewish problem had been solved.

Q. Now sometimes in the smaller places could not your commando in a space of a few days have every Jew report to a place designated by the authorities through the council of elders for registration?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I said this morning that I can remember for certain that as far as these small places it was necessary to carry out any executions.

I told you that in the case of Jewpatoria XI-A carried out the executions, as I said, I believe I can remember for certain that before Sinferopol, that is to say, prior to the middle of December, these executions were not carried out in other places either.

Q. In January 1942 didn't you take any more towns, January and Febuary of 1942?

A. No. Mr. Prosecutor, I told you how it was in the Crimea; it was in the second half of October that we took the Crimea, and I have already testified how it began with the individual subcommandos entering the Crimes, and I have said what time my commando entered that it was at the beginning of January when the town of Alushta was occupied, and it was from that time until the end of July the men were stationed there and at that time we left. That is where they were.

Q. Well, according to your own testimony subcommandos also went into Karasubasar and Alushta, your subcommondos, didn't they?

A. That is correct. After my commando had arrived, after the vehicles had been brought up slowly, that was at the beginning of January, after that the various commandos were organized, and they marched off. I repeat: They went to Karasubasar, they went to Alushta, and they wont to Eupatoria later and that is where they stayed until we left the Crimea. There was no change in the locations.

Q. Well, you also testified, I believe, that in December some of your commandos, certainly the forward elements, went into some of these towns, didn't they?

A. Yes, yes, that is what I said. So far as I remember that was the first half of January.

Q. They were not there in December at all in spite of What you testified?

A. No, there must be a misunderstanding. Will you repeat your question, please? If I understand you correctly, you want me to confirm that in December the subcommandos were sent to these various localities, and there they stayed until we left the Crimea.

Q. I do not have a transcript of the record before me, but as I remember it in studying the document for Wednesday's testimony of last week, you said that your forward elements of your entire commandos reached Karasubasar, Alushta and Eupatoria approximately the 5th to the 10th of December 1941?

A. Yes.

Q. Now with.......

A. Yes, yes, it was at that period, at that time,

Q. So that five to ten days, the way your commando operated, was sufficient length of time for this unit to begin to perform executions in Eupatoria and Alushta, wasn't it?

A. No, it was not enough time, for I said that during the first few days no executions took place, and that sofar as I remember, sofar as any executions did take place they were carried out after those at Simferopol, and, that is why I am saying that those executions which had been reported in Berlin on 12th December; that in these executions my commandos had not taken part.

Q. We had left the document dated 12th of December, and the one before us is dated 2nd January, and refers on its face from 16th November through the 15th of December 1941?

A. Yes, yes, I beg your pardon, the mistake was mine. I thought you were still referring to the document of 12th of December.

Q. All right. This document which we are discussing now is in Document Book III-D, and the beginning of it is on page 22. We are referring to that portion which appears on page 28 of the English text, and on the last gage of the German text, and is Document NO-2834. being Prosecution's Exhibit No. 87. Now, will you state under oath that none of these 21,185 Russian citizens were killed by members of Commando XI-B from 15th of November to 16th of December 1941?

A. No. Mr. Prosecutor, I never meant to say that. What I said just no' is that we have been mistaken on the other points, because I have thought you were still referring to the Document of December 12th. I believe that under direct examination I conceded that during the last few days of the period from 16th of November until 15th of December, shootings might have occurred with my subcommandos, too.

Q. In Karasubasar and Alushta?

A. In karasobasar and Alushta that is possible. As to Jewpatoria I want to exclude that, because as I showed in the document the subcommando for the first time on is mentioned on 10th of December.

Q. Did your commando to your knowledge, your subcommando to your knowledge, ever execute any Communists or Soviet officials during the time that you were its commanding officer?

A. Communists and officials, I don't think that is the right expression, if you are referring to Communist functionaries.......

Q. Yes.

A. .....or Communists who were engaged in actions against the German Wehrmacht, and who had violated those regulations which were threatened with the death penalty by the Wehrmacht, in that case I have to answer in the affirmative.

Q. Who finally determined whether respective persons were Communists or Soviet Functionaries?

A. In direct examination I read out of a document the Fuehrer Order, according to which the decision had to be made by an officer, and that was how it was with my subcommandos before I took over the command, and that is, also, how, of course it was after I had assumed the command, that is, to say, the leader of the subcommando was the person who had to make the decision in accordance with that Fuehrer Order.

Q. Did you ever make such a decision yourself?

A. I can not recall that, but it is testified to that at Simferopol my subcommando leader notified me in a case before that had been dealt with, and that we agreed that a person who had committed sabotage, or whatever also he had committed, and had to be shot in accordance with the order that had been issued.

Q. Now down to what level were Communist party functionaries considered a danger to your security, for example, the town mayor and council were always considered security threats, were they not?

A. I believe, Mr. Prosecutor, that is a point here which needs clarification.

Q. Yes.

A. I have in the course of my previous examination had the impression that by a functionary in our language is meant something different from what the English word "functionary" means. We understand by the term "A Communist Functionary" a political functionary; that is to say, a political leader of the Communist Party. I myself in my direct examination explained this, and, I believe it has been mentioned here a great many times, that the bulk of those functionaries fled, but of those who had remained, concerning them, I never witnessed a case of such a functionary not having stayed behind but with a definite task, and in all those cases these men stayed behind in accordance with Lenin's and Stalin's orders, in order to become active.

I can not remember one single case where such functionary was not apprehended without our discovering that he was in charge of a Sabotage group, or was engaged in intelligence work, or to engage the enemy in support of a Partisan group, or was a person who had sabotage action carried out in the Wehrmacht, by other saboteurs. I can remember a case, Where a certain large drive with poisoning was initiated. There was one case, Where they had planned a poisoning with Arsenic, and if they had succeeded 10,000 German soldiers would have been killed. Behing that action there was the fun ctionary, who was in charge of that action; and, I should also like to say that an official, say, an official of a Municipal savings Bank, or any other administrative official, was not considered as dangerous, because of his work, but if you mention this Lord Mayor of Simferopol, I should like to point out that in the Bolshevist system, the entanglements between the State and the Party was such in such a position that the Lord Mayor at the same time also carried out very important functions in the Party, and, if he did remain behind he did so with definite concrete aims.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, we understand the communist system and the Nazi system were alike, were they not?

A. Your Honor, I believe that in the National socialistic era the important positions of the State were occupied by reliable National Socialists, and the offices of these persons carried out two-fold functions, insofar, that is correct.

BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Then as I understand your testimony, it was not the position which a man might hold in the Communist Party which made him a security threat, but the task he had before him, after the occupation by the German authorities, or the German forces, which made him a threat, is that correct?

A. I should like to emphasize that the Fuehrer Order was intended to have the Communist functionaries, in the meaning in which I described them just now, in my conviction, because it was known what part those functionaries played at the rear of the German Army. What we saw in actual practice was what I have just described. I never heard of one case, and I never saw one case, but where a man had not played an active part.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, the original question of Mr. Walton's remained unanswered, not through any fault of yours, witness, but since we have now clarified what was meant by the answer to the question, suppose we have an answer to it. What he wants to know is, down to what level were the Communist functionaries considered dangerous. The difficulty with the question was that Mr. Walton apparently was thinking along political lines, and you corrected him, properly on that, insofar as the Fuehrer Order was concerned. Now, let's have an answer to that question, keeping in mind the correction and the clarification, which you have so well given us.

A. I should like to answer the question as follows, your Honor: The Communist functionaries were all those persons who had any leading function within the Communist Party, either they fled, or they remained behind to carry out a mission.

THE PRESIDENT: The question is answered. Proceed Mr. Walton.

BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Doctor, let me direct your attention to Document Book III-D. page 58 of the English, and page 98 of the German, Document NOKW-1863, which is Prosecution's Exhibit no. 164, Your counsel questioned you on this document, but in the transcript of the record I read, a few questions were not answered, I would like to put a few of those to you. Who signed this document?

A. I signed the document as you can see from the document.

Q. Now you have said in direct examination that this was purely a military measure. If this is so, why were you selected as a commander or the whole operation?

A. It is impossible for me to repeat all the terms which I used in those two days. What I can say, and what I believe I did say, after I had given detailed explanations, was that this was a definite order from the Wehrmacht, which was an order issued in a given certain situation, and that in that situation it referred to the communication of the Barbarossa order, which had been quoted, that is to any, for tactical reasons the Wehrmacht could issue orders at any time, and as I have said, that was the situation which we were faced with in those days in January.

All commandos and all men were under the immediate orders of the Wehrmacht. Strong points were built. Defense installations were built. The entire intelligence service was organizaed so as to meet the plans of the partisans. The men were committed for action as in Feodosia and *upatoria, and in that extremely precarious situation, not to call it a hopeless istuation, we received that order from the Wehrmacht. I further testified that it was the Wehrmacht which dealt with the practical carrying out of the measures, and I told you that approximately 2500 soldiers were committed not quite 50 of our men, and finally all six districts through which fighting went, as you can see on Page 2 of this document that is Page 1 of the original - that all that was carried out under the orders of officers of the Wehrmacht.

Q Well, let's come back. How was it that you were selected to command the whole operation? Did the Army select you or did General Ohlendorf select you to command the whole operation?

A Mr. Prosecutor, the document shows, I do not believe that I could ever have sent an order to the Army as you can tell from the last page, distribution, AOK 11, 1*Qu. I should think that is supposed to be O - Qu there, where I write "By order of AOK". If, in fact, such an order had not been issued, I believe in that case the Army would have had something too to say to me, if I had arrogated that right to myself. Command of AOK 11 addressed to you to command the operation, or did it come to the Chief of Einsatzgruppe D, and the Chief of Einsatzgruppe D said, "Dr. Braune, you have to carry out this order of the Army High Command." Which happened?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I cannot tell you for certain now, whether that order first went to the Einsatzgruppe and then to me, but I believe in the situation in which we found ourselves at the time that order must have gone direct to me, and I had to obey it.

which at that time was in this particular place? divisions here or table organization shows that there was presentation each one of the districts of the city one leader of the Security Police and the SD, if this operation in the districts was under the command of an Army officer? the measures just as the 350 members of the Armed forces in that area which are mentioned there. in officer class? I did not have six leaders under my command in Simferopol. Maybe others were involved as well. This altogether shows that it says leaders here because that was what the O. Qu had laid down, but perhaps one of them was a Haupscharfuehrer or Sturmscharfuehrer, and those men, and the order makes that quite clear, were subordinate to the Wehrmacht officer in the area who is designated here as the district leasers.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton. I don't know just what your are attempting to gain from this questioning. As we understand the documents the Army High Command gave an order and he executed it, using personnel of his own or personnel furnished by the Wehrmacht. What is there more to it than that?

MR. WALTON: He has testified, sir that these districts which are shown here were under the command of the Wehrmacht. Now, I was asking him to explain the reason for one SS leader who, from experience and testimony here, an SS leader is generally of the officer class, what he was doing in these districts if it was under the command of a Wehrmacht officer? In other words, I wanted to know how far his 47 men infiltrated into the districts to carry out his orders, or the participation, the actual participation or the membership of the Einsatzgruppe 11b in the action.

That was all.

THE PRESIDENT: We understand that one of his men was in charge of each detachment, when they went into this district and executed the order.

MR. WALTON: Yes, sir: he has explained that now.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I see.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, may I correct one point? It wasn't that one of my men had the leadership in those districts, but as you will see from Page 2 of the document -

THE PRESIDENT: Not the district, the action, the operation.

THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor. Now I understand.

Q (By Mr. Walton) How many suspected persons were brought to the assembly points at the conclusion of this action?

A Really, Mr. Prosecutor. I can't tell you but I may assure you that the experience which I had during all those years was the same experience that we have had here. In all those large scale operations as a rule the result was nil. Two and a half thousand men were deployed, and that deployment caused such an upheaval that persons, who were really suspicious and dangerous probably had escaped to safety a long time ago and that is how I remember vaguely that this operation in effect too was a failure. assembly points for further screening?

A I cannot exclude that possibility, Mr. Prosecutor. That was our task, and if we encountered any people who constituted an acute danger in that difficult situation, in that case we arrested them. The officers did not let a man go they thought he was a partisan.

Q Were there any executions as a result of this raid?

A Mr. President, I can't tell you. All I can say is I cannot exclude the possibility. I am correct, when this document has first shown to you you told your attorney that, "I remember in detail about this action."

I don't have the transcript of the record, but I studied it very carefully. Now, I am asking you some of the details. If your memory fails in these, that is quite all right. It is your right and your privilege to testify according to your memory, but I do ask that you carefully consider your answer to see if you cannot remember the answer to some of the questions which I am asking you. Is your answer the same to the question if there were any women and children rounded up in this action? children among them. I can assure you that. We never searched for children. We screened the people who were on the streets, pedestrians. We asked them for their papers, etc. As far as I remember, in spite of the large personnel we had, it was impossible to go through every house, although it said "if possible." I can also assure you that when I said that I remember a certain thing very well. I was referring to the situation in which that action, that operation was carried out at the time. I remember the atmosphere Very well and I have given an adequate account of that atmosphere. the bottom of Page 60 of the English text of this same document. "The then," and I quote, "The then remaining persons will be taken to the transient camp 241 in trucks available for that purpose, where the Sonderkommando 11b will determine their further treatment." Did you have to determine any further treatment on any of the people which you rounded up? something of the kind, in that case I believe that my subkommando kept them under arrest and decided about them in the same manner in which they decided about other saboteurs and partisans, but I repeat once again that I can't give you any detailed definite instances.

rounded up as separate from the saboteurs and partisans?

A If there were any Jews. Mr. Prosecutor, they were shot just as the other Jews. afforded these people?

A Mr. Prosecutor I believe that it has been made adequately clear here that under the order which has been issued there was no scope to hold trials of Jews. English, Page 104 of the German. It is Document NOKW-584, which is Prosecution's Exhibit 165, and which is the official report of a certain Wehrmacht Major Riesen. You have testified on direct examination that the population of Eupatoria assisted the Russian troops, when they drove your forces out of the city, did you not?

A Mr. Prosecutor, it was a little different. Military aid given by military units would have had to be regarded as ordinary soldiers. If it had been like that the Commander in Chief of the Army would not have ordered, would not have issued that order, but prisoners of war would have been taken. But in this case franc tireurs and snipers got their weapons out of hiding and fought as franc tireurs or snipers, and two or three trucks full of German soldiers were attacked an the German soldiers had their throats cut, and the partisans dano*d around these murdered German soldiers. When a report was made to the Commander in Chief, and, in accordance with the Fuehrer Order which I have quoted, he ordered those men as Snipers, franc tireurs and partisans to be shot and -

Q I understand that. I understand that, and from your testimony of last Wednesday, but the population did assist the Russian troops which landed? That is what I asked you. all right, you can use that expression.

their troops came into the city to throw the German forces out. That is what they did, did they not?

A Mr. Prosecutor. I wasn't there. I don't know, whether the German soldiers were still fighting within the town. The Russians were getting in from the beach. They had made landings, and nobody knew what was that. The soldiers had to defend themselves everywhere. Shots were fired from the houses. Perhaps they were thrown out of the city by the regular Army. I have already pointed out that the center of the town was still occupied, when we got there on the 7th of January. There was still fighting for the town going on then, but you cannot say that the town had been taken and that after it was taken the civilians had come along and said, "Well now, we are going to fight as Russians, and how we are going to join ordinary units of the Wehrmacht, and how we are going to join in the fighting." That is not how it was.

Q Well, when these troops landed isn't that a natural action for patriotic people to rise up against, what they called the invader. to help expel him from the town, isn't that a perfectly natural action?

A Mr. Prosecutor, the reaction may be normal, but I think the natural reaction in war concerning franctieurs and snipers has at all times been that you treat then as such. their place? that if I were caught by the enemy I would lose my head. that were murdered by the civilian population in Eupatoria?

A I can't give you the exact figure, but there were two or three trucks full of soldiers. It may be there were forty or fifty men. I can't give you the exact figure though.

Q Isn't 1184 executions as reported here a hard price to pay for the killing of forty Germans?

A Mr. Prosecutor, that is a matter of opinion. I have just now read an order, or to put it more clearly, I have read a sworn statement according to which for one killed American soldier two hundred German are to be shot. Mr. Prosecutor, not that I want to condemn that, all I want to do is to say that during this war evidently such measures were taken, and I believe it would be wrong to say that forty or fifty, twelve hundred were shot, but I understood the officer in change to be of the conviction that hardly one of these men who were able to bear arms had not taken part in that illegal fighting in one way or another. BY THE PRESIDENT:

A Your Honor, just recently. One of the last few days, but I don't know what case it was. I read through a transcript, and a German, I think he was a German officer, confirmed under oath that in April or May, 1945-question. I asked you a very simple question. Where did you read this sworn statement?

A In the prison here. Your Honor. It was a copy from a transcript from some other tribunal, from another case. I don't know whether it was Case VI or Case VIII. Anyway, it is a trial pending here now.

Q Who gave you this transcript?

A I can't tell you just now whether it was one of my comrades who gave it to me or whether it was a defense counsel who gave it to me. I believe it was one of my comrades who gave it to me

Q Which comrade was it?

A Yes, I have remembered. Your Honor. It must have been Blobel.

Q Who?

Q And you remember Paul Blobel's testifying on this very business here in court, can't you? for having made it? Do you recall that? for having made it? Do you recall that?

A I know that Your Honor. Yes, I know that..

Q Now, do you want to go further than Blobel went? copy of a transcript. *nthfurther than Blobel did here on the witness stand in this very courtroom?

A No, Your Honor, I don't want to go further.

Q Yes, All right. Now, Blobel withdrew his statement and declared here that he was in error and apologized for the statement. You heard that, didn't you? than Blobel himself did?

A Your Honor,I should like to correct something. I did not repeat Blobel's statement.May I just repeat what I said? It was this. I read the copy of a transcript from a case which is pending here now. I said that according to that transcript -

Q I know what you said. Now, please don't take up a lot of time repeating. I heard what you said. Do you have that transcript?

A I do not have it with me. I don't know whether my comrade Blobel has it. Maybe he has.

DR. KOHR: Your Honor, perhaps I can clarify this matter. Dr. Kohr for the defendant Blobel, deputizing for Dr. Heim. that there had been an order according to which for one killed American two hundred hostages were to be taken, it is correct that the defendant Blobel had to apologize for having made that statement.

THE PRESIDENT: He didn't have to. I wish to correct you. He didn't have to apologize. He apologized voluntarily.

DR. KOHR: Yes, because he could not maintain the statement that he had actually read that himself. In the mean time from the transcript Of the case against - from the Southeast case. We have found out that a witness was examined under oath there, his name was Wollny. He was formerly a German officer, and that witness in his testimony confirmed that in a small town in Thuringia in the Harz Mountains in Horensen, he read an order according to which for one killed American two hundred Germans were to be taken as hostages. In our Document Book II we shall submit extracts from that transcript, and we shall introduce it in evidence, and it is evident that Dr. Braune has just referred to that extract from the transcript taken down in the case against the Southeast Generals. I believe that this has clarified the matter.

THE PRESIDENT: No, it hasn't clarified it at all. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q How, witness, you say that Paul Blobel handed you a transcript?

THE PRESIDENT: Now I will ask you, counsel, how did Paul Blobel get this transcript, do you know?

DR. KOHR: He got it from us.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. And when you gave him this transcript to read, did you call his attention to this particular statement which is now under discussion?

DR. KOHR: After his testimony -

THE PRESIDENT: No, before his testimony.

DR. KOHR: No, no. He only heard that it in the course of the conversation, and it has only afterwards that we found that in the Southeast case actually than have been proved.

THE PRESIDENT: Did Blobel actually have the transcript?

DR. KOHR: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Who gave him transcript?

DR. KOHR: He got it from defense counsel, Dr. Heim.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Heim then got this transcript and took it to Blobel,is that what you are telling me?

DR. KOHR: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: And had Dr. Heim talk to Blobel about this particular incident before Blobel testified?

DR. KOHR: No.

THE PRESIDENT: What was the purpose of his giving this transcript to Blobel?

DR. KOHR: The purpose evidently was in order to produce evidence, to bring proof afterwards that Blobel had first of all talked about a rumor only, but that in the meantime it had been proved, that in the Southeast case against the generals that point had been corroborated by a witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Now, you are using words -- I don't know whether the translation is coming through in accordance with what you say. You say it was proved and then corroborated and confirmed.

Now, those are very strong words, and I went to call your attention to the fact, counsel that unless you are able to establish the correctness of what you are saying that you should not use such conclusive phraseology. Now, I will ask you, since you apparently are volunteering this, de you believe, did you such an order, did you, yourself, see such an order?

DR. KOHR: No, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Then you cannot, say that anything was proved, can you?

DR. KOHR: No, nor do I want to do that.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, let's make that clear.

DR. KOHR: And I want to clarify was that such an extract from a transcript exists. Whether the witness himself spoke the truth or not, that I cannot determine.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Then please do not use the word "prove", because that suggests that judicially it has been determined and established as fact that a certain proposition is correct, and on that you can say nothing. That is true, is it not?

DR. KOHR: No, I can't. All I can do is say that a witness is the case against the generals testified to that, and beyond that I don't want to say anything. I merely believed that I had to clarify the matter because the name of the defendant Blobel had been mentioned.

THE PRESIDENT: What you clarify is simply this, that is same way it came to Blobel's attention, and you now explain that it was because a copy of a transcript was handed to him by Dr. Heim, and that in this transcript there appeared a statement made by a witness that he knew of such an alleged order. Is that correct, do I sum up your position?

DR. KOHR: Not that Bible knew of it, but merely that testimony by a witness concerning that quota of one for two hundred then exists.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, that a witness did make that statement.

DR. KOHR: Yes, that is what I wanted to say.

THE PRESIDENT: Correct. You yourself know nothing of this order.

DR. KOHR: I myself have no knowledge of the matter at that time....

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Now we will turn back to the witness. So that your information was obtained from Blobel, is that correct, or from the transcript?

THE WITNESS: Not from Blobel but from the transcript that he had given to me, and that is how I put it, your Honor. That is what I said.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, yes. And you are quoting from a statement made by a witness?

THE WITNESS: Yes, from a statement made under oath by a witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, did you know this witness?

THE WITNESS: No, your Honor, I cannot give any opinion about him.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Now, when you say this statement was made by him under oath, you place great stock in the statement "under oath", don't you?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I can say no more but that I have read that statement made under oath and that is all I wanted to say.

THE PRESIDENT: You don't know who the man was, do you?

THE WITNESS: No, I don't, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You don't know, whether he was telling the truth or not?

THE WITNESS: I cannot exclude the possibility that he committed perjury.

THE PRESIDENT: So far as you are concerned he could be the biggest liar in the world, so far as you personally know?

THE WITNESS: Theoretically that is possible, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You do not yourself know of any such order?

THE WITNESS: No, your Honor, nor did I say so.

THE PRESIDENT: No, and you never heard of such an order it all the years that you were in the armed forces when your country was at war?

THE WITNESS: No not from the West, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: We just want to make it clear on the record that these statements cannot be made recklessly, and when anyone quotes a statements of that kind he must indicate the source. We do not in any way criticize the witness for what he said. He had the right to say that and to his credit he did give the source of his information. He only made one mistake in putting it in such a way as if it represented fact which, as it now develops, has not in any way been established, and he goes no further than did Blobel, who here in Court admitted that he knew nothing about any such order and because of having stated it in the way he did, he apologized.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, may I just add one more sentence? If I remember correctly I did not maintain that this was a fact. I merely said that I had read that testimony. that is what I said.

THE PRESIDENT: The record will indicate your statement.

THE WITNESS: Very well, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: It is not that you put it in those words but in the argumentation with counsel it seemed a casual observer might have got the impression that you were attempting to assert that as fact, but now it is clear, where you got this and you do not yourself assert that statement as a fact and that closes the incident you may proceed Mr. Walton.

THE WITNESS: No, I did not wish to assert that.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. WALTON: One that has been told to be about what that testimony actually was. I would like to ask him two question. He said he read the transcript of the testimony. If your Honor's ruling is final that the incident is closed I will proceed on, but -

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I think it is closed. The witness has very clearly stated how he happened to learn of such a rumor or statement. He knows nothing about it and has very clearly and emphatically so stated it, did not know about it during the war and does not exclude the possibility that the man who made this statement may have committed perjury.

MR. WALTON: Yes, sir Q. (By Mr. Walton) Dr. Braune, you stated on direct examination that when you, rather than the three SS leaders, but that, when you alone went to Eupatoria and you reported to the Wehrmacht Colonel, he was at a loss to understand why you were there because your presence was not needed.

Is that what he has told you?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor, that referred not to my person but by that he wanted to say that a special order and a special delegate from the Army, such as Major Riesen was not required because, without such an order and without such a special delegate, he would have adopted the same measures in accordance with the situation. That did not refer to my person.

Q. Well, he, in effect, told you that your presence there was superfluous, didn't he?

A. No, that's what he said to Major Riesen, when Major Riesen told him with what orders he had got from the Commanderin-Chief. He then said in reply to Major Riesen, "In that case the Commander-in-Chief did not need to send you. I would have done that at my own initiative, for all of them are franctireurs and snipers."

Q. Well, why didn't you get in touch with your headquarters and explain the situation that your presence was more or less superfluous and ask for further directions or ask couldn't you come back to headquarters where you were needed?

A. I believe I also said that among other things it was my mission to choose from those 1500 persons who had been arrested, those people who were known to have served in the German Wehrmacht and our subkommando, and in effect I with my subkommando, I think I can say that we saved the lives of those three hundred men, for if I had not been sent along the original order from the Commander-in-Chief would have been carried out and all the men would have been shot, including those three hundred.

Q. In screening your suspects was the denunciation of your former local Russian employees sufficient to cause a suspect to be included in this 1184 selected for execution?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, that sellction was made by my subkommando leader, together with some people who knew the place -I don't know whether they were Russians or Tartars, or whether they were Volksdeutsche, ethnic Germans, people who knew their way about the place. It is possible that also people from the Wehrmacht took part, and those people found out who of the men were reliable and they selected them. I could not make any decisions, for I did not know one single one of these people. I had to rely on my men.

Q. All right. The denunciation of the people you trusted plus the decision of your subkommando leader was sufficient for their execution, wasn't it?

A. No, it was the other way around, Mr. Prosecutor. The Commander-in-Chief of the Army had ordered that those men, who had been arrested and who were fit for military service, were to be shot without exception, and now my subkommando, in spite of that order, picked out three hundred men who were not shot; that is to say, my people adopted the measure which Was a limitation comparing it with the order from the Commanderin-Chief.

My can did not have to decide in such a way that they could have said, "These 1184 men are to be shot." That was the order that had come from the Commander-in-Chief.

Q. Who gave the order to fire upon all these people, Doctor, at the place of execution?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I have already pointed out that contrary to the submission of the prosecution, it was not I who gave the order to fire. I wasn't on the spot where the shootings took place. Major Riessen was in charge of the matter as he says himself on page 1. It is his own letter which indicates that this was so. It was he who gave the order to this Luftwaffe company and that is how that measure was actually carried out.

Q. Well, let me call your attention to the next to the last sentence on cage 62 of the English text, and on page 105 of the German text, which is the last paragraph, first sentence: "SS Sturmbannfuehrer Dr. Braune gave orders on the place of execution for the carrying out of the shootings." Now, why would Major Riesen in an official resort out in anything that wasn't so?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, nothing is mentioned of an order to shoot or an order to fire. I have already attemtped to explain that phrase from what I remember, and I cannot say anymore. At the best I can point out that that was written by Major Riesen one year after the event, but I believe that it is clearly evident that he was in charge and that he, as a member of the Wehrmacht, did not allow we to take his authority away from him. In accordance with the truth I have testified here as to what I did and I cannot say anymore.

Q. And you absolutely deny that sentence as being true?

A. I have tried to give an explanation. I have said that twice I intervened.

Q. I know what you said, but I am asking you now that you deny that sentence there as being the truth? You have a right to do it if you want to.

A. In this form it is wrong. In this form it is wrong.

Q. All right. Now, how long after your arrival in Eupatoria were these people executed?

A. We left Simferopol early in the morning and around noon these men were moving through the town, and until dusk that Luftwaffe company continued carrying out the shootings.

Q. Now, the shootings occurred then within eight to ten hours after you reached Eupatoria; is that right?

A. Yes, that may be approximately right.

Q. Were you personally satisfied that every one of these people was actually guilty of killing or of shooting at German soldiers?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I can merely repeat, it was an extremely dangerous situation, and for the whole Army it was a question of to be or not to be. The Commander-in-Chief of the Army, Field Marshal von Manstein, issued that order on the basis of the Fuehrer order which I have quoted. He had the excutive authority in this military area, and he considered this measure necessary and therefore ordered it.

Q. Doctor, I am not asking you about the reasons. I asked you if you personally were satisfied that every one of these people was actually guilty of killing or at least shooting at German soldiers?

A. That was not my order, Mr. Prosecutor, not did I have any possibility. The Wehrmacht would have told me something quite different, if at that highly critical moment I had said, "Now, let's have some investigation for a few weeks."

It was not left to my discretion to do such a thing. I believe Major Riesen would have said to me. "Well, how does it come that that's your business?" It was a very critical situation and I, talking for Major Riesen, have to carry out orders.

Q. You still haven't answered the question. Did you have any thoughts about the guilt of these people or did you fail to think about whether they were guilty or not? I wont to know if you were personally satisfied that they were all guilty?

A. Well, according to the information I had at the time I was convinced that the whole lot of them had engaged in illegal activities and that the Commander-in-Chief of the Army was carrying out a Fuehrer order.

Q. And you thought they were all guilty, didn't you?

A. I can only say again theoretically there was a possibility that among them there was some people, who had not participated in murdering the German soldiers, or who had not participated in sniping activities.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Walton, would you care to defer your further questions until after the recess?

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. MAYER: Dr. Erich Mayer for Klingelhoefer. Your Honor, I ask the High Tribunal that the defendant, Klingelhoefer, be excused tomorrow. Tuesday, and the day after, Wednesday, in the order to prepare his examination and excused from the sessions.

PRESIDENT: The defendant, Klingelhoefer, will be excused from court tomorrow, Tuesday, and the following day, Wednesday, in order that he may prepare his defense.

DR. MAYER: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. WALTON: Book IIID, page 62 of the English, page 104 of the German, Document NOKW 584, which is prosecution's exhibit 165. Doctor, did you hear me cite this document before? is about two-thirds of the way down, of the page 62 of the English text, Your Honor, where Major Risen says "These", and he refers to the 1184 man who were picked out, "were marched in close ranks and guarded by 90 soldiers of the anti-aircraft unit, some SS leaders, and me, in a more then one hour's march, to the place of execution and shot there". Now, you have testified that there was only one SS leader there, being yourself. Did you march with these condemned men to their place of execution? I was the only SS leader who went along. On the place of execution, as far as I remember, the men of the subcommando-

PRESIDENT: Witness, Mr. Walton asked you a very simple question, did you march with the men to be executed--now please answer that question.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

PRESIDENT: All right, now give us the next question. BY MR. WALTON: nessed one execution, that one at Simferopol, is not exactly correct, is that true now? nessed one, but it is possible that when I talked to Mr. Wartenberg I said it to mean that I personally only witnessed one execution of Jews. Here a retaliation measure was concerned, shooting of partisans and saboteurs. I expressly told Herr Wartenberg at the time that I was quite prepared to answer him quite openly about this as I had done about the event in Simferopol. cuted your commando during your term as commander of the unit?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I have already repeatedly I cannot name any figure.

Q Were you held in prison in Oslo, Norway? two years, and for 15 months in single cell.

Q You were held in Akershuus prison in Norway, weren't you? for a very brief time I came into a camp and was told that no procedings against me was to be expected, then two comrades escaped from this camp, 25 men of us were returned to the prison because of this. prison?

A No, not yet, Mr. Prosecutor. I returned to Akershuus October 1946. After another four weeks I came to the examination prison, Molokar. I don't want to give the impression that I was only in Akershuus. Their proceedings were discontinued and I was brought back in the internment camp.

not? Germany, while you were in Akershuus Prison? from that several times by Norwegian officials, but this did not concern myself or anything I was being charged with, but I was interrogated as a witness for other matters. For my own case, I was not questioned on charges against me, On the 29th or 30th of March 1947 I was interrogated for the first time. sergeant. Did this British personnel ever interrogate you on your Einsatz activities?

A Yes. He asked me, whether I had been in Russia. I confirmed this. He asked me to make a report about the organization, the task, and the activities, and I did that. registration and the execution of Jews, did he not?

A Not about details it the time. He asked me how many shootings, approximately, were carried out. Already then I told him that I could not give him a definite figure. Any figure which I might name could be wrong, and he was satisfied with this. your unit, that is, Kommando IIB, disposed of between 1500 and 2000 Jews between November '41 and August of '42?

A I never said that. If anyone says that, he lies, or is mistaken. I know exactly how I explained to the sergeant I could say a hundred or two hundred as well as a thousand or two thousand. Any figure would be as wrong as the other one. I was never given a record of these interrogations or a transcript.

I never signed anything. I made a report in which no figure is mentioned. He did not ask me to give him any figures.

Service Report No. 93, which is a report on the interrogation of Obersturmbannfuehrer Dr. Braune, Werner. It was made at Akershus Prison, Oslo, on the 23d of March 1946. I show you a copy of this report in German. Now glance through your personal history and see if that is generally correct. Does that reflect proper dates and the proper facts. page there is the first mistake: "November 1937, employed in the SD Main Office." I never made any statement, but that I came to the SD on the 18th of November 1934. I never asserted that I was Chief of the Police Office in Koblenz, but I always asserted that I was Deputy Chief there. Then the expression gives entirely the wrong picture that I was in charge of the Executive Office of the German Student Association. An Executive Office of the German Student Association did not exist. I said what was my task there. essentially correct, is it not?

A Please may I read through, Mr. Prosecutor? I cannot make any statement before I have read it, because I see another mistake again. It says in November 1932 I joined the SS. That is not true.

A May I not mention the mistakes as I find them. Otherwise I will have to start all over. There is the next mistake, I became SS Untersturmfuehrer in November 1935, 1935 not 1936.

Mr. Prosecutor, what values can such a statement have? Please read the sentence, "He rose to an important position in the Third Reich by entirely disregarding any moral law."

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, Mr. Walton, insofar as this document points out facts you may call upon the witness to confirm the facts, deny them or alter them.

MR. WALTON: Yes, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: But where the statement merely contains opinion, the opinion of someone else, you certainly cannot ask this witness to pass upon that opinion, and we see no probative value whatsoever in these statements by this anonymous individual as to the character of the witness, and we will inform the prosecution that the Tribunal will absolutely disregard any statement in the document passing upon the witness? character.

MR. WALTON: If Your Honors please, I haven't offered it,

THE WETWESS: Your Honor, that is whatdisgusts me so much that it is asserted here in one sentence that I completely disregarded all moral laws without giving one reason for this.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, I think the Tribunal has come to your defense in this instance and I don't knew whether you can argue it better than the way we have put it.

MR. WALTON: May I say something at the present time, Sir?

THE WITNESS: I am very grateful, Your Honor.

MR. WALTON: I haven't offered this document at the present time into evidences I merely asked him if his personal history was correct. The next question I would like to ask him; the paragraph headed "Activity on the Russian Front," is that substantially true, and I think if I go on, Sir, I'll prove my contention that at least it wasreported that this witness told this British official that he himself or his kommando accounted for between 1,500 and 2,000 Jews.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we have indicated that, where a definite objective fact is indicated in the document, certainly you can question him on it.

MR. WALTON: Well, I didn't ask him to read it - of course, he has a right to read it, Sir -- but I didn't ask him to comment on this man's personal estimation of the man.whom he interrogated. This was Dr. Braune at the time.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, but I would like your permission, if this document is to be submitted, that as far as facts are stated, I can comment as to the truth.

DR. MAYER (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT BRAUNE): Your Honor, if I have not taken part in the debate about this document until now, the only reason is that I considered it important that my client on the basis of some challenges, would show up some obvious errors and should clarify right from the start that his statements which he made here under oath are in contradiction to the statements in this document. I do not see the value of further discussions concerning this document, since the document submitted here is not in proper form and also the inconsistencies could only be proved if the witness was brought here. Therefore, I object to the further submission of this document and the explanation of its contents.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, we are of the opinion from a quick scrutiny of this document that the prosecution should withdraw it. If the prosecution does not withdraw it, we will refuse to accept it.

MR. WALTON: As I understand it, Sir, anything of a probative value can be introduced by the prosecution on cross-examination. I think the objection to this document would be in order when it is offered into evidence. I merely want to question him.

THE PRESIDENT: You have laid the ground work for the crossexamination of the witness on his interrogation in Oslo, so that part is entirely in order, but you have not laid the ground work for authenticity and probative value of this document, in order to submit it as a document.

MR. WALTON: That is all I want, Sir.

THE PRESIDENT: We will permit you to use it in cross-examination, because the witness admits that he was interrogated, but under no circumstances in its present condition can it be accepted as a document in this trial.

MR. WALTON: I am fully aware of that, Sir, and at the time of submission the proper certificates will be attached Since I have to defend this action. Sir, I state, in my place, that this is an official communication from the War Crimes Commission in London, which was sent to us in the normal course of business, and the proper certificates of the person, who received it in the mail will accompany the document at the time it is formally introduced into evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: Certainly that type of authentication is not apparent now.

MR. WALTON: Precisely, Sir, neither is the document offered into evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well,

DR. MAYER: Your Honor; I only want to point to my former explanations and I have nothing further to add, I hardly believe that the fact of the original of this document, which I do not contest, has any value here as concerning the probative value, because the form in which documents are to be submitted until new has not been kept to with this document. I contest that this document has any probative value and therefore I do not seewhy it should be discussed at all.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Dr. Mayer, the ruling is as follows: The court will not accept it. The Tribunal will not accept the document in its present form. It may be used for the purpose of crossexamination only, because the witness has admitted submitting himself to an interrogation in Norway, Then the document is authenticated and then submitted; the Tribunal will at that time determine, whether it has any probative value and will be accepted asan exhibit in the case.

DR. MAYER: Very well. I understand.

Q (By Mr. Walton) Witness, let us proceed then to the paragraph headed "Activities on the Russian Front." Is this statement as it appears in this report of this interrogation essentially correct?

A This paragraph "In October 1941, the prisoner via the RSHAwas sent to the Eastern Front". He proceeded to Nikolajew and reported to Oberfuehrer Ohlendorf, at that time the Chief of Einsatzgruppe D. In November 1941, Einsatzkommando 11b wasgiven to his charge, which was in Odessa at the time." This paragraph is right, These are my own statements. headed "Tasks of SD Einsatzkommando."

MR. WALTON: Page 3 of this document, Your Honor.

Q (Continued) Particularly sub-paragraph d, which is headed. "Registration and Execution of Jews." I would like for you to read that subparagraph D and when you have finished, please indicate to me so that I can ask you a question on it.

A That is wrong too, Mr. Prosecutor. I regret very deeply that Sgt. Lessing did not forward my report as well because that would clarify the matter I told him quite unambiguously that this was a Fuehrer Order, which I did not receive in writings I don't know why he should write in spite of this statement that he maintains that this order came either direct from the Einsatzgruppe or from the Wehrmacht.

because in my document it says that the prisoner, which is you, denies any knowledge of a written order, "denies any knowledge". Does your document say that you deny my knowledge.

A Yes, the written order. I never said that I saw a written order and one can formulate it this way, saying, no, I never saw a written order, but may I point out here, and I think you are right, Mr. Prosecutor, that in fact decisive errors were made, because obviously you mentioned the figure 15,000 to 20,000 and I now reed about 1,500 to 2,000. In fact at the time I said, and I report this now, I can not give any figure. 100 to 200 would be just as wrong as 1,000 to 2,000, whether Sgt. Lessing deduced from this that 1,500 should be right, I didn't know. I never gave him that figure. bility for this atrocity? examination here I explained that these things happened under my responsibility, as the Fuehrer order had been given, Norway today? on it. I regretted at the time and under these circumstances I regret it even more that Sgt. Lessing after the interrogation did not keep a record which he asked me to sign, because in that case, my written statement would exist now. If I had read any such a thing at the time I would have objected to it then. deaths were never admitted by you while you were in Akershus prison in Norway?

A I can only repeat or confirm what I said before. I cannot say anything more. I explained that I did not know any figure. As an example I said that 100 to 200 might be just as wrong as 1,000 to 2,000.

MR. WALTON: The prosecution has no further questions at this time. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Witness, do we understand by what you just said that you didn't mention any figures at all to the the interrogating official in Oslo?

A I replied to Sgt. Lessing questions, "Well Mr. Braune, how many were there approximately?" I answered, "Well, Sgt. Lessing, I cannot give you a figure. 100 to 200 may be just as wrong as 1,000 to 2,000." That was my reply and he was satisfied.

Q We didn't understand that the illustration which you gives us here was a more repetition of the illustration you had given to the interrogating official. Witness, you participated in the actions against the partisans in the Crimea didn't you?

Q Did you take an active part in the fighting of the partisans? divisions were assigned -

Q Please answer the question directly. You did take an active part?

Q Did you lead any detachment into action against the partisans?

A No, I did not lead any detachment, Your Honor. I had no military training and in that case, in spite of my shoulders troubles, I went along with the Battalion just like any enlisted man. I had no right to give orders, but a Rumanian major had this authority, but in that case, I took part like a simple enlisted man. done some fighting?

A Yes, Your Honor. With this Battalion I marched for two days up and down mountains, through woods....

a carbine?

AAs it was most suitable for fighting in the woods. I had a machine rifle for close range fighting and also my pistol.

Q And did you have occasion to use those weapons at times? where there were some ruins on tap, behind which partisans were hiding, we suddenly were attacked by machine guns. Apart from that grenades were thrown at us from another place. at you.

A No, your Honor, I did not have any hand grenades. Apart from that we were not so close to them, but we also fought with automatic rifles and also with machine guns, I believe. The partisans then withdrew after they had been fighting about a quarter of an hour and they retired and we pursued them. One of my comrades managed to shoot one of the partisans when escaping, but apart from that they managed to get down the other side of the mountain. posing of the partisans?

A No, Your Honor, No. Your Honor. That was the only occasion, when we actually came in contact with the enemy. Apart from that the partisans always left.

Q But you did act as a soldier in these combats? could not join the Wehrmacht because of your physical condition? If you could use a pistol, fire a carbine, go on long marches, climb hills, what prevented you from making a good Wehrmacht soldier?

A Your Honor, I can only reply to you, the Army examined me. The Army found that my shoulder joints were injured and this so seriously that even when I dressed and undressed I dislocated my shoulder joints and that at night when sleeping during dreams I also dislocated them.

I passed through several university clinics because of this and owing to this fact the Army found me unfit. putting on your shirt and yet be able to fire a carbine and a rifle and not have any difficulty? with me and particularly my driver, who also witnessed how I did. located my arm in the Caucasus.

Q But you did fire the gun? my arm. I regarded it my duty to stand by my men.

Q Very well. Looking over your personal record, it seems that you obtained some decorations and you received the usual Yule Candlestick, is that right?

A Your Honor, at the moment I don't have the document in front of me, but, in fact, I did get the Yuletide Candlestick.

Q Now, you can't tell me you can't remember what medals you received. You would certainly be the only soldier in the world who didn't remember that. the Yuletide Candlestick. tions which took place just before Christmas, 1941? Christmas 1935, at the latest, 1936, as far as I remember, because when I married I already had it.

Q You did not receive any decoration for the action in the Crimea?

A For the operation in the Crimea? No, I did not. If I learned it correctly, I was recommended for the Iron Cross Second Class, because of my participation in the Anti-Partisan fight, but I never received the Iron Cross.

Later on, when I was at home, I got a War Merit Cross, Second Class. At the time I don't know how many hundreds of thousands or millions of Germans had it already who had never been at the front.

Q Do you consider yourself a religious person? conscience.

Q You left the church?

Q Now, do you celebrate Christmas every year? ce or is it merely a period of celebration without any religious implication? of Christian origin, but I believe every German knows that it is the most beautiful festival among German families and I always celebrated it in that spirit, I feel.

Q And did you celebrate Christmas 1941 in the field with your men? dorf conducted and I like to remember it.

Q And did it have a religious significance? give a sermon. I believe those who heard Ohlendorf speak about religious matters only once will confirm that he was very well able to touch upon religious questions.

Q Did he make a speech on that day, on Christmas Day of 1941?

Q And did he talk on religious matters?

A Your Honor, I cannot give any details of the words any more. I don't know whether he mentioned Christ, but I know Herr Ohlendorf's attitude on all this.

Q What was his attitude as he delivered it in his speech? What did he say that was of a religious significance?

Q Did anybody offer any prayers on Christmas Day of 1941?

A Your Honor, I do not know. I was not present, but I feel certain that in those days in particular many persons said prayers, because the situation in which we were was such that we did not know whether we would still be living within the next few days, whether we would fall into the hands of the Russians. just killed ten days before?

A. Your Honor, I don't know whether anyone prayed for these many thousands of Jews.

Q.- All right. Now... when the order came down from the Army that you had to kill these ten thousand Jews before Christmas, was any objection offered that it was highly inopportune to kill these defenseless people during the religious period?

A.- No, your Honor, nobody mentioned this to me.

Q.- Did you have any misgivings about ordering the execution of these Jews on the Eve of Christmas which you, as a religious person, celebrated every year?

A.- Your Honor, the order had come from the Army. Perhaps I would have preferred it at the time if it had not come at Christmas time, about two weeks before Christmas. Perhaps if the decision had been left to us the measures would have been carried out later. Our thoughts at the time were home with wife and children.

Q.- Were there any women and children among those Jews who were executed just before Christmas?

A.- I already said, Your Honor, I never saw any children. There were women among them.

Q.- You know that children were executed, don't you?

A.- Yes, Your Honor. That was the most difficult part of this order, for us.

Q.- Now, in all the time that you were an Einsatzkommando leader, did you, at any time, just out of sheer sympathy, release some defenseless woman or some whimpering child of the Jewish faith, who was scheduled for execution?

A.- Your Honor, I did not see any whimpering child. I said how hard it was for us, and for me, and my men, to have this order carried out.

Q.- Well, you know that if children -

A.- No, no exceptions were made to that effect, as you mention.

Q.- Yes. And you know that since children were killed, that they certainly wouldn't go to their death laughing -- since you seem to take objection to the phrase "whimpering child."

A.- No, your Honor, I do not object to it. I don't think that anyone went laughing -- that none of these many hundreds and thousands of women and children who had to die in this war.

Q.- You joined the SS or the SD - and then eventually the SS, voluntarily?

A.- I volunteered on the 18th of November 1934, to join the special formation of the SS - which is called the SD.

Q.- And you joined the National Socialist Party voluntarily?

A.- Yes, I had on 1 July -- that is, I applied to become a member on 15th of May 1931.

Q.- And you were familiar with the National Socialist program?

A.- I knew it, your Honor, yes.

Q.- And you knew that it was definitely anti-semitic?

A.- Your Honor, perhaps it would be necessary to explain the idea of anti-semitism here... but I know that this program attacked Jewry.

Q.- Yes. And you know that the program called for the disfranchissement of the Jews?

A.- Your Honor, I don't know what You mean by disfranchisement.

Q.- That they were deprived of the right of citizenship, and the right to vote.

A.- Yes, they lost their civic rights because of the Nurngerg laws, through a national law.

Q.- Yes. And you know that in most instances they lost their property?

A.- Your Honor, if I remember it correctly - until 1941 the emigration of the Jews from Germany was assisted and favored -- I cannot say how much money they were allowed to take along, but I think I remember that the rest of their property was to be put on a blocked account.

Q.- Well, you know that in fact they lost their valuables and their property, don't you?

A.- The final result came about because of the war, and at the end, in April or May 1942, when the final solution has been ordered... this was the final result. But, your Honor, we had no idea of this and we did not think of it when we joined the party. It was never mentioned when I came to the SD, and this final solution was never mentioned when I went to the East.

Q.- Did you know what happened on November 10, 1938?

A.- Yes, your Honor, I know that. At the time I was in Munich myself and that evening I was together with Herr Ohlendorf.

Q.- And did you approve of what happened?

A.- No, your Honor. I wish the SD report still existed which I made from Muenster at the time.....they would not only show how many people among the population thought about this, but it would also prove how we thought of it.

Q.- Well, it was very obvious to you at that time that National So cialism was leading to stricter and severer measures against the Jews, was it not?

A.- Your Honor, I don't know what you mean by more severe measures; in any case, such a solution as come about in practive, I never thought of. To be quite honest, I could not understand it.

Q.- Well, but you could see, because of your position, that from time to time stricter measures were enforced... they were being sent to concentration camps.... they had to wear certain insignie on their bodies...their property was taken away from them...Synagogues were being burned down....You could see this progression of hostility towards the Jewish race, couldn't you?

A.- Your Honor, I do not remember any case where a Jew, just because he was a Jew, was sent to a concentration camp - apart from the moment on, when they were sent to the East in order to be eliminated.

I can say with a clean conscience that I heard about this measure only after the capitulation and I admit quite openly when I heard it for the first time in Norway at first I thought it was just propaganda.

Q.- It is very difficult to comprehend how you could recognize that a Jew would be sent to his death because of his nationality, and yet not recognize that he could be sent to a concentration camp and merely be deprived of his liberty. How do you reconcile those two statements?

A.- I don't know what you mean... at the time, your Honor. Do you mean the measures in the East, your Honor?

Q.- Well,you knew that the Jews were being killed.

A.- But, your Honor, may I emphasize again, in the East it was expressly ordered as part of the entire events... a Fuehrer order was issued for the sake of security. At the time, nobody was told that the entire Jewry in Europe should be eliminated/

Q.- You know who Heydrich was, of course, don't you?

A.- Yes, your Honor.

Q.- Did you have any contact with him?

A.- I said, your Honor, that I never met Heydrich personally, and to discuss things with him. I only heard him when he made speeches during meetings.

Q.- Do you know that on July 31, 1941, he ordered the complete solution of the Jewish question?

A.- No, I do not know that, your Honor. I did not know what he meant by complete solution at the time... all I know is that at the time I was in charge of the State police office in Halle, the Jews were still there. I was never told that these Jews were to be eliminated.

Q.- You know that Heydrich sent a telegram to all officers of the Gestapo and SD on November 10, 1938, urging the pogroms, didn't you?

A.- Your Honor, I never heard about it, that in a telegram... in November 1938 he sent a telegram.

.. Do you mean by that, the events of 9 November 1938?

Q.- Yes, A.- On 9 November 1938 -Q.- No, the morning of November 10, 1938, Heydrich sent a telegram to all officers of the Gestapo and SD, giving instructions for the organization of the pogroms of that date, and instructing them to arrest as many Jews as the prison could hold.

Did you know about that?

A.- Your Honor, I never received an order to start pogroms. I never participated. I never heard about it. I heard about it here in Nuernberg that in all 20,000 Jews were arrested that day, when I was still in Munich. I don't know how I could explain it.... that I do not remember anything from Muenster at the time. I only know that the instruction was given at the time to prevent excesses, and that we made a great number of reports which, in my opinion, brought about proceedings.

Q.- Well, you knew that these excesses of November 10th or November 11th 1938 took place with the complete approval of Heydrich, didn't you?

A.- According to what I remember from Munich, your Honor, Heydrich and Himmler were deeply shocked. I never heard, and I had thought this had been asserted in the IMT already....I don't know whether I read it in the judgment or somewhere else.

Q.- It so happens that I am reading from the IMT decision.

A.- Your Honor, I can only assure you that I did not get to know it in that form, but just the opposite.

Q.- You took the oath to Hitler, did you not.... the oath to Hitler of fealty and allegiance?

A.- Yes, your Honor, as official and as an SS leader.

Q.- And when you took that oath you swore to follow him and all leaders that he might appoint?

A.- I believe the oath was to that effect, your Honor... yes.

Q.- And you heard some of Hitler's speeches?

A.- Yes, Your Honor.

Q.- And you knew of his violent attitude toward the Jews?

A.- Yes, I knew that, your Honor.

Q.- Yes, Well, didn't it occur to you that some time sooner or later, that you would be called upon to execute one of his orders which had to do with Jewry, and you were bound by oath to execute that order? Didn't it occur to you in the early days that that would come about?

A.- Your Honor, that I would ever receive an order in the war to kill Jews never occurred to me. Of course, we expected at the time that the Jews would be restricted considerably... that they might be interned during the war because they constituted a danger... but measures as they were carried out at the end, I never thought of!

Q.- Did you yourself believe they were a danger in Germany to the security of the Reich?

A.- Your Honor, according to all that had been done against the Jews until the beginning of the war, I believe that no German held the opinion that they would feel friendly towards the German people in their war, and insofar I would like to compare it with the fact that in war time enemy aliens, for example, are interned in order to avoid any danger which they might constitute.

Q.- Although you say you never witnessed the execution of any Jewish children, you know that some were executed. Now, I ask you, were any children,but Jewish children executed?

A.- No, Your Honor, I wouldn't know what kind of children.

Q.- Did you do anything after 1938, when these excesses occurred, to in some way separate yourself from this oath of allegiance to a man who was obviously leading to the demanding of greater and greater excesses against the Jews?

A.- Your Honor, the 9th of November 1938 -- and I still retain that opinion, even now -- was an independent measure by Goebbles and the SA on their own authority, and I regretted it deeply at the time, and I considered it a pity for out people; and at the time I did not think that such measures would ever be taken as finally were taken.

Q.- Well, did you consider it a pity when a couple of days later a fine of one billion marks was levied on the Jewish people in Germany, who had nothing to do with the killing in Paris. Did you regard that with pity and sympathy?

A.- I don't know anything about this. You justmentioned a killing of Jews in Paris. This is the first time I hear about this.

Q.- Well, now, you know that because of an incident in Paris a fine of one billion marks was levied on the Jewish people in Germany... You know that, of course.

A.- I believe it was more, your Honor. I considered this measure also wrong.

Q.- Yes. Well, then, when you say these wrong things happened, why didn't you do something to withdraw from the organization which was doing these wrong things?

A.- Your Honor, the organization to which I belonged did not do it. But we objected to it. And if the SD reports existed now, they would prove this. I just said I considered it my task in the SD to tell the Leadership how the people thought about these things, and through my report I thought I would be able to stop such things in the future.

Q.- Witness, it was the Reich government which levied this fine, and you were part of the Reich government.

A.- If I remember correctly, Hermann Goering levied this money... I don't know on what authority, your Honor.

Q.- Well, it was collected, and it went to the benefit of the Reich Government, of which you were a part.

A.- I presume so, that it was for the benefit of the Reich government - but I was not part of the Reich government, your Honor.

Q.- You weren't part of the Reich Government?

A.- No, I could not say that, your Honor. By Reich government I mean the Ministers -- that was the Reich government.

Q.- Is it your idea that the government is made up only of Ministers? Is that your idea of the government?

A.- NO, but, your Honor, perhaps we misunderstand each other here. We in Germany mean by Reich government only the Reich ministers, That is the Reich Government.

Q.- Well, then, we will use the generic term of the Reich..... you were part of the Reich weren't you?

A.- I was an official of the Reich, yes.

Q.- Yes. So to that extent you were interested in what the government was doing?

A.- Yes, I had to carry out the laws of the government as a civil servant. That was my duty.

Q.- Yes, Well..... therefore, you were part of an organization which was doing these things which you condemned, weren't you?

A.- Your Honor, I can only repeat -- the events of 9 November was a measure by Goebbles and the SA only, and not by the Reich government. As far as I remember, Adolf Hitler himself was disgusted about this measure. That is what we were told at the time. I believe I was already in Munich when Himmler talked to Adolf Hitler at the time.

Q.- And do you now give us the striking information that Hitler repudiated these excesses against the Jews?

A.- Your Honor, I can only say what we were told. I never heard Hitler's personal opinion about this.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow morning at nine-thirty.

(The Tribunal recessed until 0930 hours, 2 December 1947.)

of America, against Otto Ohlendorf, et al., A. Musmanno, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

DR. STUEBINGER: Stuebinger for Braune. but, on the other hand, I should like to come back to the document which was submitted by the prosecution. The Prosecution expressed the wish to refer to this document in the rebuttal and to use it for that purpose. I would like to ask your Honor to tell me whether we have the same right, that is, to come back to this document on a later occasion? Otherwise, I have only one question to put to the witness for the following reason: The sergeant who signed this report behaved in a manner, which certainly is of very great importance for the probative value of this report, and the witness might be able to inform us if the Tribunal deems it necessary.

THE PRESIDENT: The document is not yet in evidence. It has not even been offered. When it is presented, if it is presented, you will make your objection to its introduction as an exhibit and the court will then decide whether it should be accepted. If it is not accepted, then, of course, it will be unnecessary for you to make any comment on it at all or to inquire into how it was made up. If it is accepted, full opportunity will be given to you to recall the defendant and question him about it in any way and to any extent that you deem in order.

DR. STUEBINGER: Yes, your Honor. I only want to direct your attention to the fact today that for the case of the submission of this document this sergeant must be heard as a witness here, because a personal questioning will probably be necessary in this case, as far as I know,

THE PRESIDENT: You have now indicated your position and the transcript will show it. We only add that in the event this document is presented that full opportunity will be allowed you to question or attack it in any way by questioning, by calling witnesses, or in any way that a document is attacked.

DR. STUEBINGER: Also in this form that I can call this witness who made out this report.

THE PRESIDENT: I did say that, by calling witnesses.

DR. STUEBINGER: Thank you, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q.- Witness, I am not certain whether I understood an answer which you made yesterday, and I will call your attention to the way it appears before me and indicate whether this is what you said. "We faced a situation," this refers to Christmas Day in the Crimea, "which put us before the question whether we would have to take our own lives in the coming days or whether we would fall into the hands of the Russians." Were you correctly reported?

A.- Your Honor, I wanted to express the following: The military situation was such, so serious and so hopeless and it was also even seen by the Commander of the Army to be thus, that each individual of us had to be prepared to be conquered by the Russians, and I only wanted to say that I would have been put before the question either to fall into the hands of the Russians, but I think if we had the strength to do so, we would have preferred to commit suicide. That is what I wanted to express, your Honor.

Q.- Very well, that clears it up. Just one more question. You accepted the National-Socialist ideology sincerely and with full faith, did you?

A.- Yes, at the time when I joined the movement I did, yes.

Q.- And did you still retain faith in that ideology throughout your service?

A.- Your Honor, as I saw it then, and as I understood it at the time, stantially.

On the other hand, I think I have expressed that even when did not agree with some individual details.

I, therefore expressed my Q.- But you accepted the National-Socialist ideology, did you not, and accepted it with enthusiasm?

A.- Yes, I accepted it, your Honor, but I may say quite openly it wasn't that one moved on absolute certain grounds.

We had the possibility Q.- But as far as dealing with your comrades was concerned and with Socialist Party?

A.- I spoke to Ohlendorf on many occasions during these years, and But I think it was expressed in the direct examination of Ohlendorf how he saw a number of things, and I can't express it in a better way than Q.- Yours superiors looked upon you as one who accepted the National Socialist ideology?

A.- Your Honor, I could not talk to them about it. I never heard immediate superior, then, of course, this is correct, and as based on a number of critical and worried reports, The opinion that Heydrich thought that I was one of these men who accepted practically everything without criticism, I dare to doubt, your Honor.

Q.- Well, in addition to what Ohlendorf thought, your own personal record showed that you were one who could be depended upon in the acting out of the ideology of the National Socialist Party, is that correct?

A.- Yes, that is correct, as I already said, however, with the limitation that those who expressed this did not mean the same perhaps, by the ideology, as what I meant.

Q.- Well, the ideology was not subject to much doubt. It was expressed in speeches of the Fuehrer, and it appeared in the National Socialist Party rpogram. There wasn't much doubt about what the ideology of the National Socialist Partly was, was there?

A.- I think, that also was expressed by Ohlendorf. That wasone of our worries; that the ideology did not express the last clarities which it should have done. That was one of our worries, your Honor, that after 1933 the idea was not strengthened and clarified, but that one moved very much on the outside, that one was so much influenced by propaganda. That was one of our worries, your Honor.

Q.- But no one could have doubted that the National-Socialist Party looked upon members of the Jewish race as enemies of the Reich?

A. Your Honor, enemy of the Reich may be said too much perhaps. I may say openly, I myself held the point of view, that is after 1933, that it was necessary to modify the tremendous influence that Jewry held in Germany after 1918 and to bring it back to a healthy status. I thought of a numerus clausus which would have caused that in relation to the percertages of Jews in the German population they should take part in the public life of the people. I think it my duty that I should express this at this point too. But apart from this, your Honor, we never thought of a 9th of November, 1938, nor did we think of what happened eventually, and I may assure you again that even when war broke out, and even in 1941, I never knew and we would never have believed that it would come to this development.

Q. Well, you said that you knew that the Jews were the most active of the Communists, and certainly the Reich had declared war on Communism.

A. Your Honor, one cannot say this for Germany; one could not have said that the German.......

Q. I don't mean to declare war in the official sense, but the entire policy of the National Socialist Party was to fight Communism in every form.

A. Yes, certainly to fight Communism, because we thought that was a great danger, not only for our people but for the whole of Europe.

Q. Yes. Then you said that the Jews were the most active of Communists.

A. I would like to clarify this, your Honor, I spoke of the Eastern J ews which we met there. I do not want to say this for Jewry in Germany. I would like to make this very clear distinction there.

Q. Then the Jews in Eastern Europe were the most active of the Communists, is that right

A: Your Honor, they were described that way to us in the Fuehrer Order, that is as an acute danger, and I have expressed that what we experienced there......

Q. But you said.....

A. Had to confirm this attitude according to what it said in this order.

Q. But you said, Witness, that you were of the opinion at the time that they were the most active of the Communists and therefore constituted a great danger, and then you said you were of that same opinion today.

A. That is how I found it confirmed in Russia, your Honor, after what I found out there.

Q. Yes.

A. I described the Crimea.

Q. Yes, all right. So that when you got this order from the High Command to get the Jews into their graves by Christmas you more or less approved of the principle that the Jews had to be eliminated because they were active enemies there in the Crimes against the security of the Reich?

A. No, your Honor, I would not like you to draw this conclusion. I said in my direct examination if it had been up to my decision I would not have decided in this manner because of the tremendous consequences of such a measure and the tremendous consequence in fact which they had, but I was confronted with an order within the whole event of the war and had to comply with it.

Q. But you did not, in the compliance with that order, attempt to salve your conscience by releasing one single individual human creature of the Jewish race, man, woman or child?

A. Your Honor, I have already said that I did not search for children. I can only say the truth. There were no exceptions, and I did not see any possibility.

Q. All right. Now, just one final question, and in this respect I am just as bad as defense counsel when they say only one question and then ask about ten, in the matter of the execution, witness, you stated in your affidavit that the executees were placed in such a position that they did not face the grave and they were shot from the rear. Do I understand, in reconstructing that scene, that the executors had to fire over the open grave?

A. Yes, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. The only reason I put that question is that it had been described to us differently in other executions, and I presume that different methods were used in the performance of that unpleasant function. Very well. The witness will now be returned to the defendants' dock.

(Witness excused)

THE PRESIDENT: Is Dr. Riediger present and ready to proceed? Yes, all right, and Defendant Haensch will be taken to the witness box.

WALTER HAENSCH: A witness, took the stand and testified as follows:

JUDGE SPEIGHT: Raise your right hand and repeat after me: will speak the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath)

JUDGE SPEIGHT: You may be seated.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, may I take the liberty, before the direct examination of the defendant, to point out that the evidence will take place so that after the examination I shall call the female witness Schreier to the witness stand.

THE PRESIDENT: That is, after the examination and cross examination of the defendant?

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes, yes, after the cross examination.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, you may proceed. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q Dr. Haensch, will you give the Tribunal the place of your birth and birthdate? small hamlet between Goerlitz and Zittau on the Neisse River.

Q What did your parents do?

A My father was a physician. He practiced in Hirschfelde. He had a most extensive rural practice and he held this practice over fifty years until shortly before his death in February, 1945.

Q What was your education? wards a secondary school, the gymnasium, (classical education). I remained in my parents' home while I received my education. My own and my sister's education was Christian. The profession of my father as a physician carried with it that we met all classes and circles of the population and that we were in close contact with these. Thus, we children, from the very first beginning, were brought up, therefore, in an atmosphere in which we met human beings as human beings, and we learned to estimate their values not regarding what they achieved in their further life and what distinguished them from each other in further life, be it political opinions, religious beliefs or profession or class. up give you a certain impression which was of importance for your further development and your further profession? economic structure of my native village, until the end of the first World War, approximately until 1947, was merely agricultural.

From 1917 this changed especially owing to the very rich coal fields in the neighborhood. A very powerful industry developed. As a consequence of this, the population which up to that moment had been mainly agricultural and rural. now became industrial workers; they now became the majority. Several thousand foreign workers, by that I mean not inhabitants of the village -- I mean from other villages -- and also many officials from other districts came to Hirschfelde and changed the whole character of my native village completely. form. They became more and more evident. At that time, when I was a small boy, being well acquainted with the inhabitants of my village, as I have already said, and having close contacts with these inhabitants, I became very interested in these administrative authorities which, of course, I saw with the eyes of youth. I think that already at that time the psychological basis in myself was so that later on I should become more and more eager to work in administration, but this only took shape later on when I studied and when I received my professional training.

Q You therefore studied law and political science. When and where did you study? science in the University in Leipzig. There, in 1930, I passed my first legal examination.

Q Where did you receive you practical training? the time, working in several law courts, local courts, district courts, courts of appeal, as well as in my own practice as a lawyer.

Q When did you pass your state examination? examination.

you joined the NSDAP, did you not? What were your reasons, at the time, for joining the NSDAP? development. In my home politics were not discussed. My father was only interested in his work. The first initiative to be interested in political problems I received through the special conditions which I have already explained, the conditions in my native village. I have already said that the people of my environment at the time were very close to me. I was in contact with them through the children of my own age in elementary school. I knew their parents and their brothers and sisters, and I was in close daily contact with them. Through the increasing industrialization of my native village and the district, the social structure of this district also changed. This had, as its consequence, that from now on even political differences were brought up which until that moment had never appeared. They developed now so fast that they influenced public life most severely, and they led more and more towards terrific tensions. These events impressed me very deeply. I might almost say that at the time they shook me very deeply. Political propaganda influenced public life and it caused enmities among people who were very close to me, even touching individual families.

May I just finish this? I may say in order to illustrate what I have just said, I myself saw at the time that playmates of mine suddenly, without any evident reason, parted from my sister and myself and withdraw. The actual reason was nothing but this: their parents not wanting to be suspected of having given away the unity front of the proletariat and did not want their children to play with other children of other classes, of middle class parents. But this wonderful thing I remember, that most of these children and their parents, after a short while, put down their reticence and their reserve and parents again quite openly took up contact again with my father who had always been in such close contact with the population itself and discussed matters with him as they actually were.

district at the time of the November Revolution in 1948 and the following years? agitators the industrial population disintegrated. I would almost rather say, the industrial workers disintegrated into a kind of intoxication. The class struggle of the proletariat, the dictatorship of the proletariat, the elimination of the bougeois or middle class, and all these slogans influenced the working population very much. Meetings, propaganda speeches, mass demonstrations took place in turn and created a psychoses which did away with all inhibitions. I myself experienced at the time that citizens were taken from their apartments and ill-treated. I myself saw the general director of the large power plant of Hirschfelde was ill-treated and wounded and thrown into the Neisse River. Of the other accesses and acts against the property I do not want to speak of now. I myself at the suggestion of third persons, as a boy had to warn people who were in danger in order to save them from an such terror acts or ill treatment by incited elements with which they were threatened. I am thinking in particular case of the owner of a factory, and the came of a farmer, and the case of a dentist. I believe very few boys have had such a vivid political lesson concerning the consequence of Communist activities. Nobody has ever learned as much about it as we did when we were children. riots under Communist leader Hoelz?

A Yes. Hoelz himself was never in Hirschfelde himself but the wave of his terror acts influenced also my own home district which was a very favorable ground for this slogan activities. Currently events took place of tremendous extensions during this time, happenings of the kind I have already described but they were also regular organized riots of large extensions of a proper insurgent character.

Hirschfelde was occupied by the Army for more than a year and a quarter in order to be able to master all the riots and unrest that took place. Explosions of railroad installations were the order of the day in order to prevent the military from occupying the village. The bricket factory of the coal plants was also blown up. This is only an example of conditions prevailing at the time. Conditions were such that no citizen was safe. I think the work "buergerlicher" does not quite give the right meaning. What I actually mean is a citizen who likes order and place. The Bolshivist or Communist did not shrink from attacking member of Marxist parties. I myself saw, in my own home country and the twon where I visited high school, that formations of Marxist state and members of the Social Democratic Party were ill treated and in two cases were actually murdered. at the time? youth. I have also said that this considerably shook me psychologically. I could not imagine this hatred with which individual fought individual.

Party political ideas I did not have at the time. On the contrary the Parties, or at least as I saw them at the time and as they actually were, fought each other and tried to tear each other down without any recognizable positive program. At least, as a boy sees it who loves his native country, his parents, and a native village and who looks upon everything with idealism or at least who wants to look at it with idealism.

Q Did you at that time begin to become active politically? always meant a lot to me.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riadiger, what year as this and how old was the witness at the time?

is, 1920 to 1922.

THE PRESIDENT: And how old were you?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, let us move along because that was an adolescent age and let us learn what you thought as an adult. BY DR. RIEDIGER: following years? it was 1922, I joined the Jung Deutsche Orden. The causes for this were that the Jung Deutsche Orden, Young German Youth Group, was not based on any Party and was a collective movement or at least, it promised to be such, and in this movement I saw the possibility to form a bond from human being to human being. However, I left the Jung Deutsche Orden again in 1923, perhaps the beginning of 1924. At that time almost our whole local group left because the leader of this organization, Maraun, seemed to deviate from the original idea and tried to afiliate this movement to a political Party.

studies, or what did you experience politically? on the one hand, and on the other hand, I saw the strong contrast, I became acquainted with the craving for extreme luxury and moral baseness, especially, I got to know it's large extant, the consequences of communist extreme propaganda. I currently saw demonstrations or at least it was demonstrated to me what an extreme danger Bolshevism had become. I may point out perhaps this one thing. On an Easter Sunday, it must have been in 1929 or 1928, I witnessed the invader of a police officer. It was Police Captain Galls, I was close to the spot where it happened. Augustus Square in Leipzig, I was only a few steps away from the spot. It became known that Galle himself was a Marxist, and in spite of this, the Communists by the incited mob trampled him to death and played football with the pieces of his uniform. examination just before you joined the NSDAP? saw the same thing. Plauen had been very peaceful and a flourishing industrial town, but at the time the workers were unemployed and as a consequence of this a strong communist element was prevailing. So was the case in many other places. This was the time when 32 political parties confronted each other and seven million unemployed workers ran around idle.

Q When did you join the NSDAP?

A During those years I joined the NSDAP__that was in 1931. As I have already said, that was a well-considered step which I took. During the time of my studies, during the time of my referendar, I saw that the general misery affected now even such people who had been reasonable and careful up to that moment.

2 Dec 1947_M_MSD_5_2_Spears (Hilde) BY THE PRESIDENT: step on your part. Had you read the platform of the national socialist party before you joined?

A No, Your Honor. During that time then when I had recognized communism had become an immediae danger and when it was a certainty for me that there was only one decision on could take either to become a communist oneself or to oppose this movement which, according to my experience, could only mean chaos. stood for and you chose that against communism?

Q Well, had you read "Mein Kampf"?

A I had not read "Mein Kampf" before. I read "Mein Kampf later on in the year 1932.

Q Well, when you read "Mein Kampf" in 1932, you were already a member of national socialist party? party?

PRESIDENT: Very well. Proceed. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q Did you held any office or function within the party? at any time. My short activity in the places of my legal training meant that I could not accept such offices. But in spite of this I expressed openly my political conviction. I advocated for it and I propaganda for it. I have already said, my joining the NSDAP was not the result of a momentary decision but a decision which I had well-considered before, a step which I had taken and a 2 Dec 1947_M_MSD_5_3_Spears (Hilde.)

Q How long were you employed there?

A I got this job and I started in February 1935. In this position I remained from July '35. Originally I had not had the intention to remain in this position permanently or to regard it as a permanent position, therefore, the contract said that within one year I would be able to decide to leave this job if I felt so inclined or if I had the possibility to enter a State Administration career. On the other hand, however, I was told that after one year I might be able to apply for the vice mayor office of this town. My activity in Doebeln was ended after a very short time, that is, in July 1936, caused by events which were of decisive importance for my future professional development.

As I have already said in my curriculum vitae, they were of decisive importance in a negative sort of way == in a negative sort of way, because for years ahead they hindered my further professional training.

Q.- Of what nature were these happenings?

A.- Shortly after I had started my service in Doebeln, a dispute started between Dr. Dennicke, the mayor, and the local party, the Kreisleiter, district leader, Baer. It was a very severe dispute which took very serious shape eventually. This dispute was about the basis clarification of administrative function, even of institutional questions, The subject of the debate was the following, how much authority the Kreisheiter was entitled to, was he authorized and justified to deal with municipal activities and to use his authority in such sphere. The district leader had taken over authority or at least he tried to do so, which was not in compliance with clean and orderly administration. There were also personal reasons, a sort of craving for power which he had and intrigues and attacks on the mayor were in the order of the day.

Q.- What was your attitude in this dispute?

A.- For me, as lawyer, as an official, a municipal official who could look into the files it was not difficult to find out about the facts of the ease and the real background of the dispute and to recognize these reasons. It was equally clear to me that municipalities can only be administered properly according to actual constitution if such power acts on the part of the party authorities would be prevented in the future. Therefore, I took sides with the mayor and the town administration... of course I took up their side. The mayor fought because of its basic importance, and he fought to the last consequences, and took the matter up to the highest authorities asking for his right, to be iven the authority for the municipal administration. I myself was of the opinion at the time that just then at that time when such disputes were comparatively new, a basic clarification would have to be brought about. The Kreisleiter, district leader, tried with all means at his disposal to change my mind and he went rather far.

all his attempts rejected quite consciously. During the course of this dispute, I think it was Berlin the mayor contacted authorities of the SS, and one day he asked me whether I would not be prepared, with help of the file material, to write report, a factual report about the true conditions- to write such a report in fact for the SS. He had been asked for such a report by the SS authorities. Dr. Dennicke thought it would be a good idea if I would make out such a report as a comparatively new man in the municipal administration.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, do you think it is necessary to go into such painstaking detail on this episode?

Dr. RIEDIGER: your Honor, if I may take liberty to point out, this dispute, and the witness will come to that immediately, with the reasons for his taking over a job in the SD. Because of this report the defendant first contacted the SS, that is, the SD and, therefore, I think it is significant,and it will show the conditions as they were.

THE PRESIDENT: well,I think that is entirely in order. I would suggest however, that when you start into the woods you would tell us just what point you are aiming at because otherwise we are wondering just what is going to happen.

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. By DR. RIEDIGER:

Q.- What use did this report find which you made out?

A.- I may perhaps add one thing. Until that moment I personally had no connections or relation to the SS. At the time I was the in the NSKK or at least the NSKK had been formed from the motorized SA.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, what is the NSKK? That is a part of the woods that I am not familiar with.

DR. RIEDIGER: That is the National Socialist motorized corps of the party.

It included all civilian owners of cars and drivers, It was a formation of the party and does play a great part here.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: The report, through an indiscretion of a secretary was put into the hand of the Kreisleiter, the district leader, and the result of this was that I was released from the municipal administration, caused by the Kreisleiter, and that by a decree of the Kreisleiter I would be excluded from the party, This exclusion from the party was confirmed by the district leader, the gauleiter and, therefore, I was unemployed at the time. At that time it was not possible or at least it would not have been possible for me to get any job as an excluded party member. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q.- What did you do when were confronted with this exclusion?

A.- I appealed and I wanted to put the whole matter before the party court. But here again I was confronted with difficulties because one did not want recognize my right to appeal, and at that time an SS man arrived who again bold me what Dr. Dennicke, the mayor, had already told me, namely, that the SS was that authority who dealt with the cleanliness and the order of state and party and had to supervise this. Therefore, they had created their own organization which was still in the development stage and this organization was the SD. In order to deal with this supervisory task, this organization collected reports concerning such happenings as for instance had taken place in Doebeln. In order to see and prevent bad conditions. This was the first time that I heard about the SD and its existence.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, now that we have arrived at the SD, we have come out of the woods and before we plunge into another forest, suppose we have our recess of 15 minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session, DR. LINCK (Attorney for the Defendant Ruehl); Dr. President, would you please excuse my client from attendance this afternoon so that he can continue to prepare his own defense?

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't catch the name of the defendant.

DR. LINCK: Ruehl, Felix Ruehl.

THE PRESIDENT: Oh, yes, yes. The Defendant Ruehl will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon in accordance with the request of his attorney.

DR. LINCK: Thank you very much, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well

DR. HOFFMANN (Attorney for the Defendant Nosske): I have the same request to make for this afternoon for the defendant Nosske.

THE PRESIDENT: And the some ruling will be made,

DR. KOESSL ( Attorney for the Defendant Ott): May it please the Tribunal, the mother of the Defendant Ott has died very suddenly and I therefore wish to ask you to afford the Defendant Ott on opportunity to attend the funeral of his mother which will take place in Augsburg this afternoon. If the Tribunal would be kind enough to allow the defendant to leave the court room immediately, and would five him an opportunity to be taken to Augsburg immediately, he would still be able to attend the funeral there this afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, the Court has already been informed of the misfortune in Defendant Ott's family and we have already made the necessary arrangements. The Military Commander of the District has been informed and transportation and the necessary military guard will be supplied. The Defendant Ott will now be excused from attendance in court for the remainder of the day so that he may be taken to Augsburg to attend his mother's funeral and then will be returned in due course to Nurnberg.

DR. KOESSL: Thank you very much indeed, Your Honor.

Dr. RIEDIGER (Attorney for the Defendant Haensch) May I continue?

THE PRESIDENT: Please do. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q.- Dr. Haensch, how was it that you became an employee of the SD?

A.- As I have already stated, to begin with, I had no opportunity to find a job any where. I had no means of my own and I did not wish, nor was I able, to live with my parents. I tried everywhere to get a job and I always failed. into such a situation, made me an offer. It offered me to join the SD Oberabschnitt in Chemnitz which was at the time being organized and there I was to be placed in charge of legal affairs. intelligence. I had nothing to do with that, nor was I expected to do so. I would not have agreed to undertake any such functions for the reasons that I was always interested in obtaining a position in the Government administration and I continued to adhere to that aim of mine. I refused a full time position in professional Party Work, as such and I had already refused it. For example, after I had taken my examination as an assessor I had had an offer to work for the German Labor Front as a lawyer and that offer I had refused. At a later time I refused a similar offer to take a position, a full time position, in the Party. It was in 1940 when I refused that offer. August, 1935, I joined the Chemnitz office as a civilian employee. To bein with, I nothing but a civilian employee and this was considered only a transitional solution by me and I was given assurance that at any time I could leave again as soon as an opportunity arose for me to change over into the career of these aims.

2. The proceedings to exclude you from the party had in the meantime come to an end, and what was the result?

A. No, the proceedings excluding me from the party -I want to say, the decision about the exclusion from the party -was in effect for more than a year -- a year and three months, in fact; -- naturally, I wanted to let justice. I was at that time convinced, and I am convinced now, that I had merely intended to serve a good cause, and that I had served for the cause of purity; therefore, I faught, and I was more or less on my own, fighting out this case, and I took it as far as the highest party court, that in to say, the Supreme Reich Court when, in August 1935, I joined the SD I was thrown out of the Party. The Supreme Reich Party Court in the late summer of 1936 revoked the decision to exclude me from the Party - that is to say, a decision to revoke was not made, but the Reich Party Court referred the matter back to the Gau Party Court, saying that the report had been made by the Supreme party Court and that all pre-conditions to exclude me from the party were looking. Now, the Gau Party Court was being asked to re-examine the matter. All the same, the Gau Party Court - apparently on the instigation of the Gauleiter, punished me. The decision to exclude me from the party was revoked, but I was punished... that is to say, I was reprimanded. There were two kinds of reprimands. -- I don't know which kind it was... any way, it was the more serous reprimand, and that reprimand was unto--d in the Party Court. Furthermore, the Gauleiter, on his own initiative, made a ruling which was grotesque even at that time. He ruled that I was to be prohibited, for three years, from taking employment in Party work.

Q. In the meantime you have received these documents from another quarter?

A. At that time, in 1935, the Gauleiter had actually

Q. That judgment by the Gau Party Court, did it exercise any influence on your future career?

A. Yes, it did, inasmuch as - to begin with - I did Internal Administration.

In that connection I had a talk upon me by the Party was uphold.

Therefore, I was advised I was advised to let a certain amount of time elapse.

I hopeless.

Therefore, for the time being I remained as a legal adviser with the oberabschnitt at Chemnitz.

On the 1st of May 1936 I joined the SS formation of the SD.

There formality.

I did not have to submit any particular documents submit curriculum vitae.

time. That, again, was the predecessor of the later Department COURT II CASE IX One of the RSHA.

Q. Were you satisfied with the work you did in that office?

A. No, that work did not only not satisfy me - but at the RSHA and at the SD Main Office I never felt happy or at home. As I saw it, this was a different world, and according to my inner inclination as such, and according to my inner professional inclinations, I did not fit into that world. I was removed from the work of the other offices - I was isolated from it. I must say I was not interested in their work, either, and therefore I had no contact with them. I suffered greatly form the fact that my own professional plans had come to naught. I suffered from the continued obstacles which had been placed in the way of the career in the Administration service which I had planned for myself, I wanted to work in some administrative agency which was close to life and close to the people in order to now work in according with my inner inclinations. Again and again that opportunity was denied to me. Also, there were personal disappointments in the human field. As I have pointed out here, I tried again and again to leave that work.

Q. Did you take any serious steps before the war, or during the war, to leave that work?

A Yes, I made continuous attempts to get out. I think I can say I started to make such attempts from the day I was transferred to Berlin, until the end.

Court No. II, Case No. IX.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q When was the day that you were transferred to Berlin? 1936, your Honor. I cannot tell you at the moment whether it was the 1st of December or the 1st of November 1936.

Q Let's suppose it was December 1st, - taking the latest date 1936. why couldn't you have left on December 2, 1936?

A Mr. President, that was connected with the proceedings against me, which had been instituted by the Party Court. I have already testified that immediately after the decision to exclude me from the Party had been revoked - and that happened in the late summer of 1936 - immediately at that time I went to see my superior - I went to Berlin.

Q Well, now, just a second... We are going into those woods again. Now, you have this job, and you are very dissatisfied with the job - you are very unhappy. It is not your world, and all your great hopes have crashed at your feet. Now... why can't you leave? position which would have been in accordance with my professional inclinations, that is, to join the Administrative service. I had planned to enter a career in the government Administration, and that had become impossible. found this world better than any other world that you could migrate to... is that right?

A No, your Honor, I don't understand that.

Q All right. You are working in the SD... is that right... in December 1936?

Q Right. And you are very dissatisfied... is that right?

have turned to ashes... is that right?

Q Right. Well... why didn't you leave... this world which is so cold and bleak... namely, the SD?

A Mr. President, I believe there is a misunderstanding. I could not leave.

Q Why -- Now tell me why you couldn't leave. That is what I want to know! would have been in accordance with the aim I had set for myself.

Q Yes... yes... so you were not bound to this job in any way-officially or physically, you were free to leave if you chose to leave, weren't you? a job, or an opportunity, for me to transfer to the Administrative career offered itself, no difficulties would be put in my way. That is what I had been told.

Q Well, you weren't under any military orders which prevented you from leaving, were you? Were you?

A Mr. President, I believe-

Q Well, answer that question!

A It wasn't as if I could have left that job -- as if I could have run away form it just any old day. notice that you were dissatisfied and unhappy in this work, and that you desired to leave, and on a certain day take your hat and walk out. was there anything which prevented you form during that?

A No... that isn't how it was. No... that wasn't how it was! I couldn't have left just any day.

Q Why couldn't you leave? Why couldn't you leave? Now, please answer that question. Why couldn't you leave, since you were so unhappy there? Did your bosssay that you couldn't leave?

A No; this is how it was... Immediately after the decision to exclude me from the Party had been revoked I asked, and I made efforts, to find out whether the way was open for me now to enter the Administrative career. I was told that there was a little hope -- in fact, I was told that there was no hope. I was told to put these wishes aside until the penalty and so forth had been wiped out. Therefore, I remained in my work at the RSHA.

Q Ware you under military orders at the RSHA in 1936 and 1937?

A Well, if I may put it this way... well, of course, I couldn't simply leave... I couldn't leave the RSHA any old day; for that, I had to receive that approval of the chief of the RSHA.

Q Did you make a request for the approval to leave?

A I submitted several applications... I made several requests, but at that time, in 1936, at the very beginning, I did not submit a further request, but it was barbed at the stage of the preliminary discussions which I had with the head of the Central Department One - at that time Oberfuehrer Brigadefuehrer Albert - who indicated to me that at this moment there was no point in making further application.

Q Were you under military orders in the RSHA in 1936 and 1937? longed to the SS formation SD, and that without the approval or the consent of the chief of the formation or of the chief of my agency I could not leave the Service. superior, and he told you that there was no point in making your request then Did you make a request later, when there would be a point in making it? years later. That was when my penalty was wiped out. At that time I made a regular application, and I was then transferred to the Internal Administration. That application was made, as far as I remember, either at the beginning of 1939 or at the end of 1938.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, I am getting lost myself in the woods. So you better take the witness. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q Dr. Haensch, after the outbreak of war, did you make any attempts to get to the front, if possible, and thus to get out of the RSHA?

A What happened was that we had the wish... most of us had the wish... at the outbreak of war, to do our duty to our Fatherland; and, just as a friend of mine named Krueger - I told my superiors that I had that wish. It was cut of the question for that wish to be fulfilled. And the chief of the office at that time - Best, as well as Heydrich both, with great determination, refused all such applications. All of us were given an endorsement in our Army pass in 1939, to the effect that in the event of war the chief of the Security police and the SD would be our superior, we would be subordinate to him, and we would have to obey his orders. Heydrich, -- and I know that because I was an expert on disciplinary matters -- went as far as instituting disciplinary proceedings, or rather, threatened to institute disciplinary proceedings against officials or employees of the Security Police and the SD if they approached him with such request. He demanded that from the point of view of total war, everybody was to remain at the post at which he had been placed. of a leader of an Einsatz squad? kommando. of the Einsatzkommando 4-b, or rather, that you were intended to be given that position... and how did you hear it? middle of January 1942, that I heard of it. I remember that exactly because in November or December my mother was dangerously ill. At that Court No. II, Case No. IX.

time, and in the first days of January, I went to see her and I stayed with her for about a fortnight in Hirschfelde. When I came back from my visit to her, the chief of office -- it was Streckenbach at that time -told me over the telephone that I had been appointed leader of a special kommando in the East.

Q Was that in accordance with your own wish?

A No, it was not; and, above, all, it was not in accordance with my wish at that particular moment. At that time I had again been making special efforts to leave my work. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Did you ever get a job which pleased you. Every job you mentioned so far made you very unhappy. Now, you joined the NSDAP, quite willingly, enthusiastically - you wanted to serve this ideology... yet every job you got made you unhappy. Now, can you tell us one job you got because of your association with the NSDAP which left you tranquil, and at peace with your mind, and with the world?

A Mr. President, I never obtained any position in connection with my membership in the NSDAP.

Q Well, did you ever have any job in your life... let us make it broad... did you ever have any job which you liked? Now, tell us that!

Q Now, what job was that? the administrative work I did in Doebeln; and I was particularly satisfied -and in spite of the serious situation, I was happy in the position which later on I obtained in the Administration with the Reich Delegation in Denmark. And that, too, was purely administrative-

Q Give us the year. Now, in Doebeln, when were you there?

Q For how long?

Q All right. And then when were you in Denmark?

Q How long? in 1935, and two years, from 1943 to 1945, that you were happy with your work?

A Yes. Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. Proceed, Dr. Riediger.

BY DR. REIDIGER: you take. and what did you know at the time about functions of the Einsatzkommandos? of the Security Police and of the SD, and sofar as I know the military units were with the troops in the East. As for details about their functions and their task, I know nothing of those. did you know of those during the time that you were working for the RSHA?

A No, I didn't. Those reports on the events, and those reports from the Last I didn't know; as I gather from the documents here the various and sections of this one didn't receive of those reports. of the Einsatzgruppen? that I was to be sent to a commando in the East, I immediately asked him to see me and talk to me. Once again I must mention briefly that at the time the order to go to the East was in no way opportune, for achieve to be requested by another unit to go to the front, as I had come to realize that that was an opportunity for getting out of the RSHA. The only possibility, in fact, was if another agency asked for me which was strong enough to support such a request.

At that time, I think in December 1941, among other things, I could on my colleague Six, and asked him to let me know as such as he heard of anything to the effect that some other agency needed an administrative official. in the same way friends of mine were making attempts through other means to help me to find a way of getting out of the RSHA.

To clarify this point as to why I was not feeling happy, and as to why I think I could not have felt happy in my work, perhaps I may make the following statement: I believe every referendar works as and official and defense counsel had more freedom or actions; more freedom matters of the RSHA was that of power-investigating activities, I had no authority to make any decisions. Streckenbach, and I am now asking you what he told you about the work that you would have to do with the special commando.

Now what was it that Streckenbach told you? and it was to protect fighting troops in the front area, and the word Streckenbach said that the commando was part of the Army. He said that I myself would always have to have my headquaters at a place where the Army had its headquarters. The work of a commando as such, so he told me, was based on decrees and orders received from the Army to the Einsatzgruppe. He told me that those orders had to be obeyed, and that I was to see to it that those orders were obeyed. As such orders were a novel to me, I asked Streckenbach in the course of our talk for further information. Above all, I asked him whether he wanted of our talk for further information.

Above all, I asked him whether he wanted me to take this position as a permanent position. I had a vague person pointed out, told me about the dangerous elements which threatened the German troops in the Last from the Partisans. He said it was the task of the kommando to deal with such saboteurs, and obstructionists to contact activities.

Streckenbach pointed out to me that the executive work of the kommando was in the hands of experts, that is to say, experts trained of the men of the Gestapo and of the Crinimal Police. At the express instructions of Heydrich he drew attention to the fact that I was to stay in the East for a short time, and at the upmost three months. That therefore I was to leave things as they had been, and that I was to handle them as they had been handled up to then. Strechenbach also drew my attention to the fact that in particular, in case of executive decisions I was to rely on the investigations of the experts who had the necessary experience in the Last. In connection with my work against the saboteurs and obstructionists, formal court proceedings such as we were accustomed to carrying out in the Homeland, in the police courts, or another courts, didn't exist in the East, but that a decree by the highest neutral authority, that is, by the OKA, that by that decree matters in the East had been settled in a different way; that the chiefs or chief of the executive department or kommandos and the Armies proceed in accordance with these decrees, or, rather the decrees by the highest political authorities. Sofar as I recall that is what Streckenbach told me when I had my first talk with him, and during that talk I asked him for information, and, he particularly impressed on me that there was close contact, and that close contact had to be maintained with the Army authorities in question. somewhere also at the front, and why?

A That at a later time. I talked to Streckenbach again, and the second time I went to see him it was very different. After our first talk, I heard the next day, that the chief of Einsatzgruppe-C was Thomas. There had been a considerable amount of tension between Thomas and myself before. He used to be the Oberabschnittsfuchrer in Wiesbaden - anyhow, it was somewhere in the West, and in disciplinary matters, of a certain unpleasantness.

He suggested to me openly to ask Streckenbach when I called on him again, after I had heard that Thomas was the chief and that I didn't like it, if it were possible to use me in some other Eisantzgruppen in Streckenbach's group. Streckenbach saud, no, that it could not be done, and it was taken that he told me that the SK-IV-B was destined to be for me by Heydrich. There had been special reasons. On the one hand my positions in the East was only to be held by me for a short time, and, it was to serve the purposes of acquainting myself with conditions in the East, disciplinary matters, as for that time I had to deal with the disciplinary matters only, and as I was to stay there only a short time things were to be left as they were. In particular in the executive sphere, and in the case of SK-IV-B, it was easy to proceed in that way, because there the higher officials were already installed as chief of the executive department. February, in 1942. It was either on the last day of February, or the or also with Heydrich, or any of the other gentlemen, and if so, what were you told about your job?

told me I was to go to the East, and he added that my written marching orders would be sent to me later. For the moment I was to continue in my old job. My predescessor was on leave, and during this time at Heydrich's request, he was to return to the commando.

I only got an opportunity to talk to Heydrich when I reported my departure to him, and that was when I received my marching orders, and, sofar as I remember it was only a week or ten days before I left that I received my marching orders.

your work in SK-IV-B? already told me. He emphasized the fact that I was to deal with the job of front security. That it was the Army which was in command, and that orders and decrees from who Army to the Einsatzgruppe had to be obeyed; that those orders and decrees had to be carried out exactly, and at that point Heydrich made particular refrence to the activities of bands of organized resistance, and he mentioned the dagers which threatened the German troops. In his usual brief manner he told me of the urgency where lives of every German soldier needed special protection, and that I was always to remain conscious of the fact that in such situation the lives of fathers of German families and and the lives of the German men were at stake. He also told me - I can not at the moment fully recall, but he drew my attention to the wartime laws; he told me about the laws which I would get from the Army, and, he told me that the orders would have to be obeyed. He told me he was to receive no complaint; if I didn't obey orders, he said, that I need not tell you as an expert in disciplinary matters, that you just like every soldier at the front were subject to the laws of war, and that any delay or any dereliction of duty is subject to heavy penalty. That is substantially what Heydrich told me.

Q And did you go anywhere to report your departure? Executive field that I was not to make any change, and I was to rely on the findings in that connection, he said, by just call on Karl Mueller. I never had anything to don with Mueller, as Chief of Department I, and I would have no reason to report my departure to him Now, I did go Mueller who received me, just by the door of his office, the door that led from the anti-chambre to the main office.

He just spoke a few brief words to me. He was rather rude. I thought that he didn't like the idea that as an expert in disciplinary matters was sent up there, for he said something to the effect that it was his officials, men who has been trained by him who worked out there, and they were all men who had the necessary expert knowledge. February. When was it that you arrived at SK-IV-B? arrived was 15th of March. what happened was - - - - - I didn't go by myself.

Court No. II, Case No. IX.

Q. The Prosecution has mentioned that it was as early as 16 January 1942 that you were the Fuehrer of SK-IV-B Einsatzcommando, that is to say, that you had arrived at the front at that time. Could you give us any special reasons to show that at that time and even at a subsequent time you were still in Berlin. Could you tell for how long after that day you remained in Berlin?

A. Yes, I can say for one things, at the beginning of January I spent a fortnight with my parents, stayed with my mother who was sick, and went to Hirschfelde for that purpose. Secondly, I can remember for certain that within the last few days of January, either on the 25 of January, or 27 of January, a friend introduced me and invited me for the first time to beginning at a birthday party of a Herr Sattler, who was then the president of the central grain office. I also know for certain that in February I attended a party that was given by a family who lived in our house. And at the wish of my parents, before I went to Russia, I had a photograph taken at Berlin, the Berlin Seylendorf, that was, and as I had mentioned before, II didn't leave alone, I went together with Obersturmbannfuehrer Dr. Weinmann. Frau Dr. Weinmann, the witness for Dr. Weinmann, testified to that.

Q. Did you at the end of February 1942, go straight to the East, or were there any other interruptions or delays?

A. There were interruptions, and there were very long interruptions, that was Lemberg and Roff and Kiev. You must remember what the conditions were like at that time in Lemberg and Roff. There were certain German soldiers on leave. They had been there for a number of days. There had been some of them down there for weeks and could not go on, which was due to the climate, due to frost, due to the state of the railways, the trains were unable to keep up with all of this traffic, at least for four days, that is the minimum. I don't know how much you have investigated, or did I ask you to make an investigation, but it could be possible to find that the communications, postcards, and letters were lost unless they had been looted.

Q. And when in your estimate did you actually arrive at SK-IV-D?

A. As I said, the earliest stage I could have arrived was the 15th of March.

Dr. REIDIGER: Mr. President, there is only one more question I want to ask on this point before the recess. BY DR. REIDIGER:

Q. Witness, could you no explain to us why in the report of 16th of January 1942, Einsatzgruppe II-A, on page 61 of the English text, and page 64 of the German text, that is Exhibit No. 42, NO-3405, and the later reports of 26 February 1942, Document Book I, page 86 in the English text, and page 18 of the German text, Exhibit NO. 22, No-3340, and, in particular, in the report of 6 March 1942, Document Book II-C, page 61 of the English, and page 65 of the German text, Exhibit number being 80, NO-3240, why in all of these documents you are referred to as "Fuehrer SK IV-B?"

A. Yes, I can explain this now. When I was interrogated by Mr. Wartenberg, I could not explain that point. I just didn't know what to say to that assertion, or to that fact. I could merely believe or assume that my name must have been misused, but now I have come to another explanation, and, I think that is a true explanation, I have discovered that not only in my case such incorrect statements have appeared in the documents. I heard the order for me to go to the front, that I know for certain. That order I knew at the end of January. I knew at that birthday party at Dachlers, at that time I knew about that order. At that time I knew II was to be sent to the East, therefore, I assume the personnel department, or the expert on personnel matters immediately and automatically passed on the order to the agency within this Office IV-B, and that there automatically the name was entered without bothering to find out whether the person concerned was or had actually arrived at the front, or not.

This is not only the case with me but it happened to Dr. Weinmann, and also I refer to a few other comrades of mine, or any other cases, where it was alleged that they had actually assumed their new position which didn't occur that day mentioned in such reports.

THE PRESIDENT: Do I understand, witness, that while you were attending this party in Berlin, some one sent your name to headquarters, and because of this information picked up at the party you were officially designated as being in Russia?

THE WITNESS: Well, Mr. President, that is a misunderstanding.

THE PRESIDENT: I understood you to say as your explanation, that it is a conjecture on your part as to how your name could have been mentioned as leading a commando in Russia, although you were still in Berlin, that your conjecture is you were seen at the party, and your name was sent in, and there through some carelessness it was entered in the records, that you were leading a commando in Russia?

THE WITNESS: yes, after the order was issued, -- well, the order was in January, that was , at the end of January, and after that order was issued, the personnel department in the RSHA apparently informed the agency which made up these reports, and that agency simply entered my name as leader of the commando on the reports without making sure whether the person concerned had actually arrived in Russia, or not.

THE PRESIDENT: What has this got to do with the party?

THE WITNESS: To make an explanation of the other.

THE PRESIDENT: yes, what has this got to do with the party. You drag in a party in your explanation, as to how this misunderstanding occurred, and, it is very difficult for me to comprehend how some one attending a party, like a party in Germany, or like a party anywhere else in the world, how can the fact of a person at a party who was drinking cocktails, which was four-thousand miles away in Russia, I don't understand, what the party has to do with this misunderstanding?

THE WITNESS: Your, I believe the misunderstanding must have occurred, and that the birthday party had nothing whatsoever to do with it. A little while ago I was asked whether I could show any proof for substantiating the statement that in January and February I was in Berlin, and now I can remember among other things that at the end of January that was that birthday party, the date that I attended it.
THE PRESIDENT: Then the point you want to tell us is that the fact you were at a party proves that you were not in Russia in January, and, the fact that you were at the party has nothing to do with the mistake made in the headquarters of the RSHA in its listing you as being in Russia at the time, is that correct?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: yes, that is correct.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:50 P.M.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is in recess until 1350 hours.

(Recess until 1350 hours, 2 December 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. HOFFMANN: Hoffmann for the Defendant Nosske. the Defendant Nosske was excused from attendance in court, so that I might confer with him. I made a mistake by not ordering Nosske to come to 57 at eleven o'clock sharp, but fifteen minutes later. Thus, from an administrating point of view I cannot talk to him any more this afternoon. I ask you now, your Honor, to help me get the chance to talk to him this afternoon in spite of this mistake this afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we can remedy a mistake, and especially for Dr. Hoffmann it is a pleasure to do so. The marshal will be instructed to speak with the person in charge of Room 57 and see to it that Dr. Hoffmann may communicate and confer with his client Nosske this afternoon, in view of the fact that Nosske is the next defendant ready to go into the witness stand.

DR. HOFFMANN: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You are welcome.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, may I beg on behalf of the Defense-Counsels for the Defendants Blume and Sandberger that the two defendants be excused from attendance in court this afternoon, and may I also ask you to arrange that Blume and Sandberger be sent to Room 57? Both need this spare afternoon in order to prepare their defense, Blume and Sandberger.

THE PRESIDENT: Is that in connection with their document books?

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. The defendants Blume and Sandberger will be excused from attendance in court for the purpose indicated by counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, before you proceed with the examination of the witness as to his activities in Russia, let us have in a very succinct form just what he was to do in Russia. BY THE PRESIDENT: were instructed by Stahlecker and later by Heydrich that you were to go into Russia and that you were to fight saboteurs, partisans and obstructionists, and that you were also to offer protection to the German Army. Did that constitute your mission in Russia, briefly put, of course? Streckenbach and by Heydrich too, was an assignment at the front for the security of the front. That is to say, to guard the rear of the German troops immediately in the front area from elements which endangered the security of the individual German soldier and the front area. Communist functionaries? Heydrich never mentioned to me. The word never occurred. The mission was not given to me down to the last detail.... regarding Jews, Communist functionaries and gypsies? gypsies were never mentioned. The word was never mentioned even.

word "Jews" was never mentioned? and in offering security to the Army it was necessary to be on guard against the Jews?

A No, your Honor, this was never mentioned. If I may repeat, the individual persons or elements who might endanger the security of the troops was never mentioned at all by Streckenbach in any way, nor did Heydrich do so, but I was told that corresponding orders existed with the Army, and that the mission of the commando was already fixed, and it was pointed out that it was permanent. That was during the second discussion with Streckenbach.

Q Did you know that Jews were active Communists; did you know that from other sources?

A No, your Honor. If I am to reply to this question now, at the time it was never mentioned; the word was never mentioned ...... Jews in Eastern Russia, or in Western Russia, Eastern Europe, were very active Communists; did you know that from other sources?

A No, I cannot say that in this form. At the time, as I said, it was never mentioned, and I would like to say every Russian citizen who was a Belshevist was inclined and suitable to be specially radical in action. which called for a liquidation-

Q Well, I didn't finish the sentence, but you apparently know what I am referring to.

What was the Fuehrer Order? What was the Fuehrer Order? You answered before I finished the question, so, therefore, you are familiar with it. Now, what was the Fuehrer Order? Tell me.

got to know it here, says that Jews, I don't remember the exact wording now, it was mentioned here that Jews and gypsies and dangerous elements were to be killed.

Q And when said you first learn of the Fuehrer Order? of the Fuehrer Order - for the first time here from Mr. Wartenberg. The question was never asked or never addressed to me whether I knew the Fuehrer Order, but Mr. Wartenberg told me the fact that the Fuehrer Order Existed.

Q And when was that?

A that was during an interrogation. It must have been the last interrogation, I believe on 23rd July.

Q '47, A '47, yes.

or perhaps even in May, but at any rate in that period, six years went by before you learned of it, is that right? about the order to liquidate Jews?

Q How long were you in Russia? altogether. From the middle of March until about middle of July I was in Russia, but there were interruptions. with your subkommando leaders? told anything about the existence of such a Fuchrer Order.

leaders? That was the question.

Q And did you discuss with them what had to be done?

Q Now, please answer the question. Did you discuss with your subkommando leaders what you had to do?

Q That is all. Now you have answered the question. when you arrived in Russia were you told about the orders which were pending, and which had been executed by your predecessor in the course of his duties?

A No, nothing was mentioned. As orders I merely got to know those orders which the Army had issued concerning the civilian population. you would go to Russia and there would find detailed orders. Did you say that? existed, yes. prior to your arrival there?

Q And who was the previous commando leader?

Q Braune? Did you talk with him when you arrived?

received and which he was putting into effect?

A No. He merely pointed out to me, in the general conversation, the general orders and decrees from the Army High command -he was called upon to execute?

A Your Honor, I misunderstood you then. We did not talk about the detailed orders, about each individual decree by the Army High Command, but we merely discussed the general affairs. He told me in broad outline that certain decrees and orders from the Army existed for the civilian population which had been publicly announced, and these orders were in the hands of the Chief of the Executive Department. upon to put into effect, didn't he? of the commando from the time when I took over the commando.

Q Now, you please answer the question? It is not a difficult question, and I don't see why you won't answer it. I merely ask you, did you talk with your predecessor Braune, had been executing prior to your arrival? to turn over to you to put into effect? A Braune did not have to turn over orders or decrees to me, and he did not do it in fact. He merely told me and showed me how the front area was and the present situation in the front area, and apart from that he introduced me immediately in the Army High Command and with the liaison officer who was appointed for this. The situation I saw was this, that - -

Q. Just a moment now, did he not say to you, "Now, Haensch, I am turning over the Kommando to you. I have been here so long and this is what we have done. I have here certain orders and I turn then over to you to put into effect." Did he say anything like that?

A. No, your Honor, not in that form.

Q. Now, tell me ....... but very briefly, briefly please, just what he told you to do? Keep in mind, here is a man who is in charge of an organization an he turns it over to his successor who has just arrived.

Now, what did he tell you, briefly?

A. Braune told me that the front area had to be guarded and the Kommando had to look after this, in particular to guard it against partisans and newly infiltrating elements who constantly increased in the front area and were enclosed there, .........

Q. All right. Now, that's one item, to cover the front line area and to guard against elements infiltrating through, one, all right. Two, what's the next thing he told you to do?

A. That was the Mission of the Kommando. He emphasized particularly that it was the word of the Kommando and was running according to schedule.......I could rely on the executive officials and beyond that, I should and could turn to the liaison officers of the Army who had been in good relations with him and his predecessor, and of whom.......

Q. He did not mention Jews at all?

A. No.

Q. Did the word "Jew" ever fall from his lips in his conversations with you?

A. Your Honor, I don't know now but I can't imagine, the idea of measures against Jews.

Q. Now, just a moment please, witness. Witness, now you must answer questions, not make a speech each time something is directed to you. Did the word "Jew" ever fall from the lips of Werner Braune when he discussed with you what were your duties as his successor?

A. I don't know, your Honor. I cannot remember, that.......

Q. Did it or did it not?

A. No. I can't remember.

Q. No. All right. Did the word "Jew" issue from the lips of Streckenbach when he instructed you as to what you were to do in Russia?

A. No.

Q. Did Heydrich ever mention the word "Jew' to you in his conversation with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. Well, I am just thinking that it was mentioned during discussions which I had. for example.....

Q. Not for example. I want to know who mentioned the word "Jew" to you.

A. I could name Thomas himself. When Thomas came on an inspection visit.

Q. All right.

A. When Thomas came on an inspection.

Q. Yes, and what did Thomas way about Jews?

A. When Thomas came on an inspection visit he asked.

You see, whether in the territory any Jewish craftsmen existed, any Jewish workers......as there was a great lack of craftsmen in the Ukraine altogether and in the Ukrainian territory the Jews mostly did the skilled labor.

Q. And what did Thomas ask about the Jews? Did he ask you to get some Jewish workers for him

A. This was not necessary, your Honor, because he did not know that in our territory, that in the territory under the Kommando such Jewish craftsmen did not exist.

Q. Well, he mentioned Jewish skilled labor. Did he ask you to get some for him, or did he tell you that there was a great lack of them? In what connection did he talk about this Jewish skilled labor?

A. That is what I wanted to mention before. In this connection he said craftsmen were urgently required for workers essential for the war and in Dnepopetrovsk large workshops were being set up for which craftsmen were particularly required and who were to be used there to do work essential for the war, in particular tailors.....

Q. But now please restrict it to the Jews. Please don't ramble all over the place. What did he say that he were to be assigned to these jobs.

Q. Yes. Then he asked you to gather whatever Jewish craftsmen you could and send them to these plants; is that what he told you?

A. Yes, your Honor, but this not only concerned Jewish craftsmen but it was like this......

Q. Now, just a moment. Did he tell you, "I want you to get some Jewish craftsmen or as many craftsmen as you can, but where they are Jews you are not to liquidate them, in spite of the fact that there is a Fuehrer order out, the Jews are to be liquidated."

Did he tell you that?

A. Your Honor, liquidation of Jews was never mentioned at all, and I cannot say anything else. I already said this to Mr. Wartenberg, that for the first time I heard about this fact Here and may I add one thing now? The following happened during my time in the territory of SK4B. I know that quite a number of Jews, and as far as I remember there must have been more than a hundred, were used as panje drivers for the Army. From the rear Army territory, or at least from the rear, they brought up new vehicles to the front, that must have been in April or May.....

Q. All right. That's enough. You told us that you know that a hundred Jews were use as drivers for the Army. It isn't necessary to go into so much detail. Proceed, Dr. Riediger.

Q. (By Dr. Riediger) Witness, the Tribunal just asked you whether, in the time from February until June or July, when you were with SK4B, Jews were ever mentioned. I would like to clarify during what time you were with SK4B?

A. Formally I was Kommando leader from the middle of March until the middle of June approximately. I was physically there, except for the time for about three weeks when I was on an official trip to which I had been ordered to Berlin and Prague. The days in Berlin before were considered furlough and also another two weeks previously on the occasion of an official trip to which I had been ordered to Kiev.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, if you are going to give us the periods, have him give the dates, he arrived March 15, went to Prague.

Let us have it specific, if you are going to go into that, because if he just gives it generally we have no better picture than what existed before.

Q. (By Dr. Riediger) Dr. Haensch, when did you arrive at the Kommando?

A. As I said, at the earliest in the middle of March, on 15 March, at the earliest.

Q. And when were you ordered to go back?

A. Middle of June.

Q. During that time, from 15 March until the middle of June, were you constantly with the Kommando?

A. No.

Q. During what time were you absent from the Kommando?

A. I was absent from the Kommando for about two weeks in April. I cannot say now. I do not know the exact date anymore. I don't know it anymore; that was on the occasion of the official trip to Kiev.

Q. And you say for two weeks?

A. Yes, about fourteen days.

Q. During which time were you in Berlin and Prague?

A. In Berlin and Prague......I left for Berlin and Prague either in the last days of April or in the first days of May 1942.

Q. And how long were you absent?

A. And then about the end of May, about 20 to 25, it must have been about then that I returned.

Q. Who was in charge of the Kommando while you were absent?

A. During my absence automatically the chief of the executive department was in charge of the Kommando, who also automatically continued to be in charge of the Kommando when I finally left in the middle of June for Berlin.

A special kommando leader was not appointed at the time, at least not as far as I know, and I did not hand my kommando over to any kommando leader.

Q. Witness, the prosecution charges you that during your time the following executions took place. They are, in document book l, pages 36 and 87 of the English, page 118 of the German, exhibit number 22, No-3340, report of events of 25 February 1942. I quote: "Sonderkommando 4 b, in the time from 14 January unitl 12 February 1942, 861 people were shot after court martial. Of these, 649 were political functionaries, 52 were saboteurs and partisans, and 139 were Jews."

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, people. The translation came through as court martial. In our document book the phrase appears as summary court. Would you please check on that, Miss Interpreter?

THE INTERPRETER: Summary courts is right.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you. The correction is made.

DR. RIEDIGER: I want to correct myself, The translation is summary courts.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, the record will show that correction.

Q. (By Dr. Riedeger cont'd) Also, in document book 2 C, page 60 of the English, page 65 of the German, exhibit number 80, No-3240, I quote: "Sonderkommando 4 b executed 317 persons, among them 63 political activists, 30 saboteurs, and partisans and 1224 Jews."

THE PRESIDENT: I think there is another slight slip. It is 1317 instead of 317.

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes, 1317.

THE PRESIDENT: Can we blame that on the lawyer and not the interpreter?

DR. RIEDIGER: Please blame it on me, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Fine, I am gland that it is you this time.

Q. (By Dr. Riedeger cont'd) "By these measures the City of Artemowsk was freed of Jews." Witness, did you have anything to do with these executions during the time when you were in charge of the Kommando?

A. No, I had nothing to do with executions. The period of time shows this, As that time I wasn't in Russia yet, and I heard about these executions here for the first time. But may I draw your attention to the following: What I saw here in a document, this same report of 6 March 1942, is already contained and appears already in a report of events, or rather in an activity and situation report, number 9, dated 27 February 1942. That is document number 3876-PS in document book 3-A.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, when you arrived to take over the command of 4 b did you study the reports which had been submitted on the activities of that Kommando in the immediate past?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, no reports existed and no reports of events either. It was prohibited. There was an order that my written records should not be kept because of the nearness of the front, but these reports of events, during my time at least, and I think it was like this in general, were not sent to the Kommando from Einsatzgruppe C.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, but each Kommando sent in reports, did it not?

THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You made up reports yourself, didn't you?

THE WITNESS: One report, a so-called situation report, was made when I was there, just one situation report was made. I remember that.

THE PRESIDENT: And you didn't find any reports at headquarters when you reported?

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor. It was like this, that of this situation report which I mentioned no copies were kept and were not allowed to be kept.

Q. (By Dr. Riediger) Witness, you said that you had nothing to do with these executions which mention such large figures of people. Did any executions to that extent take please at all or any executions of Jews?

A. Executions of Jews or such mass executions I never witnessed and I did not get to know of them.

Q. During your time were Jews or Gypsies killed merely because they were Jews or because they were Gypsies?

A. No, and I would like to mention here expressly that this question neither in thought nor in words was ever discussed.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, do you doubt today that this situation report, number 177, dated 6 March, is correct?

THE WITNESS: Well, your Honor, after seeing these reports and after knowing them I have no reason to assume any longer that this did not happen.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Now, assuming that you were not there when this happened and it would have had to happen prior to March 4, and you didn't arrive until March 15, and 1224 Jews had been shot within a month preceding your arrival, don't you think that some time or another something would have been said about the execution of these Jews by the very men that you had now taken over in your command?

THE WITNESS: No, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Did you not see anything unnatural about silence on a matter of this enormity al though you were with the men from two to three months? You see nothing unnatural about that?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I would like to assure the Tribunal that I thought about it seriously ever since my interrogation in order to find an explanation for the fact that these events occurred during that time as can be seen from the reports. I came to the folllwing conclusion came to my mind. I personally do not believe that these executions should have occurred such a short time previously. I don't think so because of what I have seen in these documents. Here is mentioned that every thing was quiet on the front, may I see the document?

THE PRESIDENT: You are talking about the operation report 177 which shows that 1224 Jews were shot some time COURT II CASE IX March of '42 or a few days before?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Now, my only question is that, and please do not give so extended an answer. You have now stated that you have no reason to doubt the correctness of these reports. Therefore, if 1224 Jews were shot by your organization before you took over, does it not seem strange to you that in all the time that you were with the very men who conducted these executions, that not a word was ever said about so extraordinary a phenomenon as the execution of 1224 human beings because they were Jews?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I can only say, I did not know anything or hear anything about this at the time. In particular I did not know the Fuehrer order until the moment here in Nurnberg.

THE PRESIDENT: No please, listen witness. The trouble is that either you pay no attention to the question or you listen to the question and then you figure out in your brain how you can answer everything in the would but the question put to you. You give yourself a lot of mental exercise, but you give us very little information. If you don't understand the question just say, "I am sorry, I don't understand the question." third time I am putting it. You admit the correctness of the reports. If you admit the correctness of the reports then you must admit that some time before March 4, 1224 Jews were shot by your Kommando. You were not there. Now, I only ask you, does it not seem strange to you that although these very men that you were now commanding had just a short time before, killed 1224 people because they were Jews, that nothing was ever said about it? Does that not seem strange COURT II CASE IX to you?

THE WITNESS: Well, your Honor, nothing was mentioned and nothing was said about it.

THE PRESIDENT: That's all, thank you. Proceed, Dr. Riediger, with your next question. I see we can never get together on these things.

BY DR. RIEDIGER: did any executions take place?

Q Can you remember how many executions took place during your time?

A Yes. I personally know of four executions. were the victims of these killings?

A Yes. One execution occurred in April, that is to say my main commando in Gorlowka. This execution, like any other executions, included the smallest group of persons as far as I remember. There were about 25 people to be executed. Also in April by the subcommando in the area of Artemowsk an execution tool place during which also a group of saboteurs had to be executed. These were approximately - I don't know the exact figure - approximately 15 to 20 people. A third execution took place in the end of May, again in my commando, the main commando in the area of Gorlowka, and this concerned six or seven persons. I know exactly that these were fewer than ten. As far as I remember, there were six or seven. And the fourth execution occurred also at the end of May or beginning of June. It was carried out by a subcommando which had been newly formed when the Russian attempt of invasion near Kramatorskaya had been cleared there carried it out. It was a group of about ten persons whose case was not decided by the subcommando, but these persons were sent to the subcommando by the army with the order to carry out the execution. the army sent people to SK 4B to be executed?

A No. This case near Barvenkova and which I witnessed there at the time, occasioned me to discuss the order with the army immediately, the competent office, pointing out to them that in my opinion that in such cases in which the army carried out the investigations and had made the decision, that then units of the army or the secret field police, that was the one concerned at the time, should also carry out the executions.

This was recognized too. necessary?

A I don't quite understand. to the army high command? the away were, of course, informed of it, that is, they knew about it already because while making investigations about individual cases, they also took a part. Apart from that, the army was informed of this, of course. there any women or children among them?

Q What was the cause for these executions? who had violated the war laws, and this had been proved unambiguously. These were saboteurs, obstructioners, looters and so forth. I can not say it exactly any more now, of course. arrested who were then executed?

A May I tell about the kind of activity of the commando? The commando guarded the security of the front area. Of course, its own limited forces, including the subcommandos, there were not even a hundred men, about 70 or 80 men, could not look after the complete security of the front area. Its activity consisted mainly of observation and through reports received from the civilian population, from army units or army offices, it checked these reports, followed up suspicious traces and, if necessary, made arrests.

First of all, searchings were made by officials. After that, if the arrest of persons was necessary, the persons arrested were kept in custody by the main commando or by the subcommandos and against these persons a very careful procedure of investigation was carried out. Proof had to be brought; witnesses were questioned. Of course, the accused person was heard - was heard repeatedly. About these investigations minutes and records were made. And these investigations and interrogations were carried out by the chief of the executive department, the information chief, and the interpreter, and also by the person in charge of the screening. BY THE PRESIDENT: the records, if necessary? first of all until the case was decided and then for sometime afterwards, but then they had to be destroyed according to the orders that no written material was to be kept. But partly they were -

Q How long would they be kept? here, some of them -these records kept? at first, and some of them -

Q Now, just a moment, how long were they kept? "A short while" means nothing, because it is a relative expression. "A short while" under certain circumstances could be five minutes, it could under other circumstances be five years. Now, how long were they kept? the t ime when the execution was carried out, there was a certain period of time.

During that period the records were kept.

Q Well, were they destroyed?

A Then after the execution had been carried out, they were destroyed: whether this was done immediately by the chief of the executive department or the executive officials -I don't know that any more now.

Q How soon after the execution were those papers destroyed? eight days. I am not quite sure. Instructions were given that they were to be destroyed then.

Q They were to be destroyed eight days after the execution?

A No. There was no instruction that they were to be destroyed eight days after the execution. anyone who wanted to know why the men were executed could look at the records and find out? Now, how long were these records kept? records of the cases be not kept after the case had been concluded, but that they were to be destroyed. I said before that they existed for some time yet, and that is what I was trying to explain before, It was like this.

Q Now, witness, don't make your answers so long. It is obvious that records are made in order that those who have the right to know as to what took place may examine them. And it is obvious that after an execution if one wanted to find out why the people were executed that it would be necessary to look at records, otherwise, people could just be killed indiscriminately and no one would know why they were killed. Now, that is the reason records are kept, and that is the reason I presume you kept your records, so they would be kept a reasonable period of time after the execution. Now, I want to know what was that period of time. final report which was made by those conduction the investigation and everything connected with it, after all, were those documents which were needed in order to come to a verdict by the commands leader.

Q Well now, won't you please answer the question, how long after the execution were these papers kept before they were destroyed? remember it.

Q No, no. You either have to tell us that they were kept a certain period of time or that you don't know. Now, don't try to think of something else to tell us, but answer that question. Now, how long were they kept? case had been concluded and they were destroyed, but I would like to add that it was like this that in most cases the records were sent to the secret field police of officers of the army who, if necessary, were interested in this concerning information in general. That is what I meant when I said "for a certain time these records were kept". but the order existed, as I said at the beginning to destroy them and they were destroyed - that is to say to be destroyed after the case had been concluded and the case had been concluded when the execution was carried out.

I cannot say any were now whether the executive department destroyed these documents the following day or one day or eight days after the execution, that is in such cases in which there was no more interest in these cases from an information point of view.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess 15 minutes.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. KOESSL: Representing Dr. Aschenauer for the Defendant Ohlendorf. I would ask the Tribunal to excuse the Defendant Ohlendorf from attending the court tomorrow so that the Defendant Ohlendorf can finish his document books.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Ohlendorf will be excused from attendance in court tomorrow so that he may work with his counsel on his document book.

DR. RIEDIGER (Attorney for the Defendant Haensch): May I proceed?

THE PRESIDENT: please do.

Q. (By Dr. Riediger) Dr. Haensch, did you conclude your explanations and statements concerning the procedure of investigations, or did you want to add something? of investigations, or did your want to add something?

A. As far as I know, I have only explained the actual scarlites and the investigations carried out, but I have not come to the conclusion yet.

Q. How were the decisions made then?

A. The investigation executive officials who were all experts, confirmed guilt or innocence on the basis of their investigations, of the person concerned and they put this into a conclusive report, putting down all the details and suggested the sentence and the participants in this investigation, the leaders and the officials, then in a number of cases reported to the kommando leader, convened at his place, and then deliberated on the final conclusionThe Kommando leader then made the decision, and, in this case, it was myself who decided upon those cases, whether the suggestion was to be approved, whether it was to be amended, or whether any other elements had come up which made further investigation necessary.

Q. If the results justified the necessity of execution, how was the execution carried out?

A. The executions were carried out by shooting.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, was this procedure in effect review, decision, and so on?

THE WITNESS: Yes, it was carried out in the same way as it had been done before.

I carried it on in the same manner.

There was an existing regulation -

THE PRESIDENT: WHO told you about the manner of the procedure?

THE WITNESS: When I asked predecessor Braune, he told me briefly about the manner of procedures.

He said the investigation result is being reported and then leaders

THE PRESIDENT: Did he tell you about the procedure?

THE WITNESS: Yes, but -

THE PRESIDENT: That's all that was asked you. Did he involved executions where he had been the kommando leader?

THE WITNESS: He did not use those words, of course, THE PRESIDENT: Now, you don't need to--Why must you tell us again now what the procedure is.

We know what the procedure is.

You have outlined it to us. All I ask is, all cases which came before his kommando?

THE WITNESS: No, that he did not tell me.

THE PRESIDENT: Did he say that he used that procedure?

THE WITNESS: Well he told me it is proceeded in the following manner: The Executive Officials reported about it -

THE PRESIDENT: No, no, no. I'll be able to recite this backwards, if you tell it to me again, what the procedure is. I only asked you if your predecessor said to you that that was procedure which he followed, the procedure which he outlined to you.

THE WITNESS: Yes, yes. He told me this is the manner in which it is being done.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, please proceed, before he starts again. Ask him another question Dr. Riediger.

Q (By Dr. Riediger) How were the shootings carried out. Sometimes there were ten, or under ten, or then to twenty people, as I understood you, who were shot together. Did they have to take off their outor clothing, or, how was it gone about? tive authorities to the effect that the persons concerned who were to he shot should not witness a preceding execution. With these executions it was thus that the people who were to be executed were formed into groups, and three were led to the place of execution. The execution was carried out and before the next group arrived at the place of execution the corpses were taken away. There was an explicit order to that effect. the part if other units? mations of army units. For instance, in the AOK of the Army there was an anti-partisan combat unit.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, you said that corpses were taken away. We don't quite understand that. Were they not buried there?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, the corpses were buried and they were put into the ditch which had been dug and they were carried into this ditch, but --

THE PRESIDENT: I see. And they were shot three at a time?

THE WITNESS: One, two, three persons, that is so.

THE PRESIDENT: How many made up the execution squad?

THE WITNESS: The execution squad consisted of six to seven people. It was a group of six to seven people who fired.

THE PRESIDENT: ALL right Q. (By Dr. Riediger) Were there extensive executions on the part of other units during your time and did that effect the frontal situation and how was that frontal situation at your time?

A. The situation at the front concerning the security of the frontal zone was such that insecurity became stronger and stronger, as I was told by people in the Army with the Russian invasion in the northern frontal area which took place at the end of January or the beginning of February, as I was told.

Q. Did SK 4B have anything to do with these anti-partisan combats through the Army?

A. Yes, in so far as on the part of the Wehrmacht such anti-partisan combat actions were also dealt with by their kommandos. I had extensive discussions with the officers of the Army and I was under the impression that -- it was, in fact, expressed that the Army in order to support the officials of the Secret Field Police, recommended the fact that they had officials of the kommando and men of the kommando for their use; as far as operations for executions were concerned, which were carried out by units of the Wehrmacht, the Kommando had nothing to do. The officials or the men who were detailed for such purposes in this case came under the commander of the Army, the military commander, that is, of the unit.

Q. Did the execution activity or general activities in this sphere -- did this take up all your time, or what was your main activity during the time you were with Einsatzkommando?

A. The executive activity of the kommando was not the sale task of the kommando, as such. Perhaps I can make it even clearer if I say that the securing of the frontal zone which was the task of the kommando did not only mean the apprehending of people and execution of guilty persons, but it also contained the apprehension and investigation of the general morale within the population, and I want to point out one things here.

During my time in the frontal areas of the 17th Army, there was famine. There was even a famine that the military authorities were very worried about it. That was also a part of the assignments of the kommando to find ways and means and assist the Army in order to cope with these conditions, because otherwise, of course, they were contributing towards the insecurity of these areas, and just this assignment alone took up very much time and we took it very much to heart. At the beginning of Spring, it was tried with every means to further the cultivating of products of the fields, and to be able to cope with the food supply. The roving about of the population was a problem in itself. The roving about of civilian outside of their local residence was forbidden and was liable to be punished by death: but it could not be prevented that the population left their places and a solution had to be found to this particular problem. During my time it was found and the roving about of the population was no longer punishable except at on particular area if 10 kilometres width, which was behind the front line, but there was a threat that every civilian who was met there was punishable by death and that, of course, he would immediately be shot at, but in this manner we were able to free one particular sector in which the population could find food which was hidden here and there and they could proceed to search for it.

THE PRESIDENT: Do I understand you to say, witness, that part of your activities consisted of planting fruit tress in order to relieve the famine?

A. Your Honor, no. There were other measures.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I have here in my notes that you planted fruit trees. Did I misunderstand you?

A. No, no, no. We did not plant fruit trees, but we tried to employ the population who could work to encourage them that in the spring they would plant various kinds of things - food.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, did you say something about planting fruit trees?

A. I am not aware of hiving used that word.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, then perhaps I misunderstood. That's what I got - that either you planted fruit trees or you had somebody plant fruit trees and I was wondering what kind of a tree it was that would fructify so quickly that in two months time you would have fruit to pass around to the population.

MR. HILDESHEIMER: I think it must have been my mistake, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, Mr. Hildesheimer. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q. How and when were you detailed from your Kommando and recalled?

A. In the middle of June I was recalled. I got a radio message and I was supposed to leave immediately.

Q. When did you leave the kommando and who did you turn it over to?

A. I have already said I left the kommando a few days after this, after I received another radio message to leave immediately. The leadership of the Kommando was given over to the leader of the executive department.

Q. Where did you go? Did you go back to the RSHA?

A. First of all I was taken over again to my former position in the RSHA.

Q. How long did you remain there?

A. There I remained until July 1943.

Q. Did you go on with your attempts to leave?

A. Yes. I used Heydrich's death as and occasion to talk to Streckenbach and request from him to agree that now I would be able to leave. Streckenbach basically agreed to it but he thought that at the moment it would not be feasible. I would like to add here this was due to conditions of the War and that there was a lack of staff and that leads to the fact that my attempts until then had been of no avail.

Q. Were you offered any positions during that time?

A. During that time - not at first. I tried - this again I had reported to Streckenbach - I, as I said, tried myself to get s some authority to ask for my services and when, I think, that must have been in January, Kaltenbrunner took over office in the RSHA I approached him immediately with the same request i.e.

to release me. I was under the impression that he basically agreed but he again said it would not be feasible at the moment but in a few months he would not object. Then I learned - that was the beginning of 1943, the spring of 1943 - that the Plenipotentiary in Denmark, Dr. Best, was looking for a higher administrative official for his administration department and I applied for this job. In the spring of 1943 this job was actually offered to me and I immediately accepted it.

Q. Had you not been offered a position before-that is what I meant when I asked you this question.

A. Yes, two positions were offered to me. One was the position offered to my by Kaltenbrunner immediately, for the second time by Kaltenbrunner through the then office chief Schulz, a position in the General Government which I refused.

The next offer made to me was that I was requested whether I should take over a position in the party Chancelery. This I refused also.

Q. Why did you refuse?

A. I refused because my aims and my attempts for the last years and my only wish had been to work in the General Administration.

Q. When you accepted the position in Denkark with Dr. Best did you actually leave the RSHA or were you only detailed to another position?

A. I left the RSHA as far as personnel goes and also physically.

Q. What did your activities in Denmark consist of and was it in connection with the SD or RSHA?

A. No it was not connected with that as I have already answered in my preceding answer. It was pruely a position of Interior Administration. I was detailed by the Reich Minister of the Interior via the Reich Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Plenipotentiary and I was active there in the section administration and law with the office of the Plenipotentiary in Denmark.

Q. What did your activities consist of in detail? Your activities, that is, with Dr. Best?

A. It was a purely administrative task and my special assignment under War conditions prevailing was to reconcile the interests of the German Occupation Power and the relationship of the Danish authorities and the Danish population.

Q. How was your relationship in Denmark with the Security Police and SD?

A. I had no particular relation but the relationship with the German Police as such did exist naturally. That was conditioned through the situation in Denmark and I was in strong opposition with them eventually.

Q. How did this opposition come about?

A. When I arrived in Denmark, in the end of August 1943, the disarmament of the Danish Remaining Army had just been brought into effect. That happened in the manner which pointed out the contrast very strongly between the Germans and Danes. In the course of these measures numerous arrests had been carried out, arrests of Danish civilians. The Retch Plenipotentiary, when I reported for service, assigned to me a special task which was to investigate the individual cases of the arrested persons by the requests of the Danish Central Government and which resulted that the larger part of those people who had been arrested had to be released as sufficient reasons had not been established to keep them under arrest.

Q. Do you remember any other cases in which you assisted people who had been arrested or interned?

A. Yes on numbrous occasions I tried to assist and find out about individual cases and tried to avoid any unnecessary harshness which I thought was in our mutual interest. On occasions the German Police by orders, I should think as, however, I only found out after 1945, of higher authorities in Berlin carried out vigorous measures. This in fact resulted in severe opposition to the German Police and, as I said, I tried to settle this.

Q. Did you have anything to do with internment camps?

A. Yes, as far as American and English internment camps were concerned. English and American citizens when the country was occupied had been interned in internment camps in Denmark under Danish supervision, but the general control of this supervision was in the hands of the authorities of the Plenipotentiary.

Q. In what direction did you develop your activities concerning interment camps?

A. A number of things had to be settled and directed. For instance, schooling for children of these internes, mail service that had to be discussed with the Danish authorities, religious ser vices, films, literature, and so on, - everything that concerned internment life.

It became even more topical, I think, in the spring of 1944 when camps had to be shifted and now it was necessary to find inhabitable areas.

Q. Didn't you have anything to do with Dr. Schirmer at the time and who was he?

A. Yes in 1944 these internment camps matters were dealt with by the Vice President of the Red Cross the Swiss gentleman Dr. Schirmer and I convened with Dr. Schirmer on various occasions d during a few days and talked matters over with him.

Q. Did he give any judgment concerning internment camps which you had under your supervision?

A. Yes. Dr. Schirmer, as well as the Danish authorities, always approved of my measures and Dr. Schirmer especially said that the supervision of these camps had been the best he had seen in Europe, the best of all the camps. Therefore, he approved explicitly of my measures.

Q. Did you not also have to deal extensively with seizures in Denmark?

A. Yes. That was within my assignment - to settle between the occupation power and the population, the claims and demands of the population. The occupation authorities, of course, needed apartments and offices and, of course, as is always the case, minor petty officials took very rigorous and inconsiderate measures and wherever I could I intervened and tried to settle the harshness and misunderstanding.

Q. Did you not also have to do with a certain actress Lulu Ziegler and did you help her to escape into a foreign country?

A. That is the following case of the Danish actress Lulu Ziegler, her husband, during the course of these arrests in the autumn of 1943, had also been arrested. He was suspected and accused of having indulged in Communistic activities, thus acting hostile to the German Reich.

She applied to the Plenipotenitary Dr. Best. Of course he knew her. So, I said, she applied and in the course of the investigation of these cases I came upon this particular case and I had to establish that there was nothing against her husband, nothing but the fact that years ago, about five or six years ago, he had on one occasion travelled to Moscow. According to the information of the Danish authorities he wasn't a Communist nor indulged in Communistic activities - far from it. I attempted to have him released.

Q. What was the attitude of the Danish population toward your activity?

A. Many Danes who had approached me, or who had been sent to me by the authorities, - from these many Danes I received letters of thanks on many occasions.

Q. And what impression did you have of your own activity in Denmark?

A. The activity in Denmark was for me very successful --psychologically, it was satisfactory, and, for the first time in yea rs, I felt that I was acting in a way which was satisfactory to myself.

Q. How did you leave Denmark, and when?

A. I left Denmark after the capitulation, following German directives which I had received, when the unit of my own office had to leave Denmark, and that was --BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Witness, you say you were quite happy with your services in Denmark, and you came away feeling that the Danish population were quite happy with your administration.

Have I understood you correctly?

A. Yes.

Q. And no one ever voiced any complaint about your occupation there -- to you?

A. Your Honor, you mean the occupation as such?

Q. Well, --- yes, you as a representative of the German occupation. If they were satisfied with you as a representative, then I presume you intend to convey the idea that they were satisfied with

A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, you have told us that the Danish people were quite happy with your administration in Denmark.

A. Yes, yes.

Q. They were happy to the extent that they came and thanked you, they wrote you letters, they sent you flowers. Is that right?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. Yes....now, do we gain from all this that the Danish people were very happy about their country being occupied by Germans?

A. No, that is not the case.

Q. Very well. Then you were the exception?

A. Not I, personally, was the exception, but I would say the authority, the office of the Plenipotentiary of the Reich and the population, - the line that was kept as far as administration goes, was only borne by the thought of the idea to settle any harshness that might have cropped up. After all, Your Honor, we were not at war with Denmark. They were conditions of occupation, and they were all regulated by contract, and it was our task, or at least we saw it as out task, to take care that the points of the contract were kept, also on the part of the occupation power, that was the German Wehrmacht and the German police.

Q. You were not at war with Denmark?

A. No.

Q. Well were you at war with Norway?

A. Yes.....there conditions were different.

Q.Were you at war with the Netherlands?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you at war with Belgium?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, how do you distinguish between Denmark and these other countries?

A. Your Honor, officially we were not at war with Denmark. When the occupation of the country took place......

Q. Were you officially at war with Holland?

A. As far as I know, yes.

Q. Well, distinguish to me between Denmark and the Netherlands-insofar as German official action is concerned.

A. I am not acquainted with conditions in the Netherlands, but in Denmark it was thus that as soon as the country was occupied --it wasn't that war was declared.

Q. Well, was war declared against any country -- with the exception of two or three? Was war declared against Russia?

A. Your Honor, that, of course, depended on the attitude of each individual country.

Q. Well, now, listen ... witness, the Tribunal has no desire at all to enter into any political discussion; but when you make a statement, then you must be prepared to explain it. If the statement seens in conflict with the general historical knowledge of any situation, then we must know whether you stand by that statement. That is the way we can determine the credibility of a witness. Now, you say that Germany was not at war with Denmark?

A. Yes.

Q. And you stand on that?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, for the purpose of understanding why you make the remark, when history indicates that Germany invaded Denmark and performed all a nation does in the manner of waging a war in order to occupy and control a country, -- when you tell us that there was no state of war there, then we would like to have you tell us why you make that statement and differentiate between Denmark, which was invaded in the same way as Luxembourg? If you can make that distinction, tell us; if you cannot, say nothing, and we will pass to the next subject. Can you distinguish between the invasion of Denmark and the invasion of Luxembourg?

A. Yes.

Q. In a few words, tell us the distinction.

A. I see the difference in the following: In Denmark an independent government remained in force even after the occupation, an independent government, headed by the king. The entire administration of the country remained, and was, until 1945, Danish. In the other occupied territories it must have been different. I did not want to explain anything else, Your Honor...anything else, when I said that we were not at war with Denmark - which was the case, as the administrative structure.

Q. Very well. We only wanted an explanation as to why you came to that conclusion, and you have given us your explanation.

THE PRESIDENT: BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q. Witness, what was your own attitude concerning the Jewish policy of National Socialism?

A. When I joined the NSDAP in 1937 I, as everybody else, did not think that any power acts would be carried out towards Jewry. Evidently, the years of distress after the first World War had opened up the question for some solution concerning the communal life -- a life, that is, of German citizens and Jewish citizens. As has been mentioned here before, the percentage of the Jewish element in public positions was in no relation of the Reich. If one wants to express it in that way now, the Jewish question did not exist, but nobody thought of using force in solving the problem. Added to this, during the post war years Jews immigrated, after 1918, into the Reich in great numbers, and also these Jews were soon in leading positions in German economic life and became very influential in these circles; and this of course, was regarded with dismay by the German citizens.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, I have the impression that Hannsch has not been able to follow, for quite some time now--and I would like to request that the session be interrupted now.

I have been aware of it for some time...that he has not been able to answer my questions, and I think that tomorrow morning he will be able to follow.

THE PRESIDENT: You would want us, then to recess because you fear that at the present moment the defendant Haensch is not in the best physical and mental state?

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, in view of that request made by Dr. Riediger, the Tribunal will now be in recess until tomorrow morning at nine-thirty o'clock.

(The Tribunal recessed until 0930 hours 3 December 1947.)

against Otto Ohlendorf, et al., defendants, sitting

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. Tribunal.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, before I proceed with the direct examination of the witness, I would like to thank the Tribunal for stopping proceedings yesterday regarding the Defendant's bad state of health. The defense is in a very delicate and difficult position because even in the evening the witness was in a very bad mental state. The responsibility, of course, is a large one. I had the feeling all the time during the proceedings yesterday that the witness did not react properly and even today I have my doubts and almost misgivings, but I do not want to create the impression that the defense in any way whatsoever wants to interrupt the proceedings. Especially I do not want to create the impression that the witness wants to evade being questioned. the direct examination has been concluded, that the witness should be examined by a physician, as the result of this examination would clear up the state of health of the witness. I myself as a layman cannot take the responsibility and I cannot judge the state of health of the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Your request, Dr. Riediger, is entirely a reasonable one and the Tribunal will be pleased to act upon it. You may now proceed with the direct examination, conclude it, and then in the meantime we will have had some COURT II CASE IX doctor prepared to examine the defendant just as soon as your examination is completed.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, if I may take the liberty to suggest that even the cross examination could be carried out later on, because I could imagine that if the physician examines the defendant immediately after his examination in Court he would get the proper picture concerning his state of health.

THE PRESIDENT: Well then, it is your recommendation that we proceed normally, you concluding the direct examination and Mr. Hochwald conducting the cross examination, and then we have the medical examination?

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Proceed, Dr. Riediger. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q. Witness, we concluded yesterday's session with your attitude towards the Jewish question raised by National Socialism. How did the problems look regarded from your point of view?

A. I may say first that at that time, especially in 1933 and the years following 1933. I did not occupy myself immediately with the Jewish question. I want to say this for a possible clarification, but if I think back to that time then, I can only emphasize one thing again and again. The question was not so much in the foreground at that time when the power was taken over by the National Socialists and during the following years. At least it was not as important as it looks today. The matter which took up all our interest at the time was the elimination of unemployment and the attempt to get a new order, but I have already said COURT II CASE IX yesterday, the problem as such, that is, the Jewish problem, did exist, of course, insofar as after the last World War it had shown that the two parts of the population, the Jewish sector that is, and the Gentile sector in the Reich, came into collision with each other more and more, and this had as its reason in my opinion, the following:

After the last World War there was an especially strong immigration into the Reich from the East which now, in quite a disproportionate manner, took positions in public life.

Q. Did you discuss these matters at the time with Jews themselves?

A. Yes. Therefore, I remember it now; especially concerning the question of immigration after the last World War. I remember discussions in my own home town with a physician, Professor Klineberger, and I also had discussions with an old Jewish lady with whom I lived during my referendar period, a certain Mrs. Markus. It was in Leipzig. These two people by no means rejected this attitude that newly immigrated Jews, those who had immigrated after 1918, were in a certain way unjustified to occupy such posts in German public life of all spheres.

Q. How did you yourself react to these Jews and what was your attitude? Did you not on one occasion have to deal with one case in the RSHA, a case which dealt with an assessor and proceedings against him, who had illtreated Jews, and when was that, what year?

A. My attitude towards the Jewish question I adjusted according to the point of view of the entirety more than anything, and as becomes evident from the fact that I lived with this Mrs. Markus and that I and her other lodgers were on very good relationship with her, that shows, as I said, COURT II CASE IX that individual Jews I did not regard as enemies and I had never thought in any way of ill-treating them, and so exactly as in all other cases I tried to obtain order and cleanliness in the same way in my activity as an expert dealing with disciplinary matters in the RSHA at the time.

I, of course, took steps immediately in this particular case and I know that I was very much upset about this assessor, especially as he was a high official of a certain personal standard who had acted in this manner, I mean, had illtreated this Jew. Therefore, I proceeded according to my memory that must have been either the end of 1942 or at the beginning of 1943 -- in any case it was after I had returned from Russia and after I was again in charge of disciplinary matters, because I am sure that it was after the death of Heydrich.

Q. Excuse my interrupting you, witness, Could you not say clearly what the case was, what the facts were and what happened about this particular case?

A. A report had been received according to which a Jew had been illtreated in public by an official of the State Police office in Berlin. I remember that the report arrived and it had been sent off by officials of a newspaper who had, from the window or in any case from the building, observed and watched this action. The individual happenings I cannot remember today, but I immediately caused an investigation to be conducted against this person concerned; he was released immediately, and, I think, he was arrested. I don't quite remember how he was punished but I do know that at that time, I from a basic point of view advocated that for disciplinary reasons he should be released immediately. I don't know what the outcome was. As the man was an official he must have been dealt with by the disciplinary court.

Q. Witness, excuse me for interrupting you. The outcome of this procedure you do not know; did you never know?

A. I do not remember.

Q. Did you deal with this case personally?

A. It was dealt with in my office. I received that report. I took measures immediately and the matter itself was dealt with by one of my officials.

Q. Witness, please speak a little slower because the reporters can't follow.

A. I immediately initiated the investigation of this particular case and I immediately caused this man to be released, and then the case was dealt with in detail and examined and investigated by an official and government councillor (Regierungsrat) in my own department.

Q. Do you remember the name of the assessor concerned?

A. The assessor, that is, the official of the State Police office in Berlin who had illtreated the Jew, I do not remember. The official who dealt with the whole matter in detail must have been a Regierungsrat, either Regierungsrat Friedrich Schulz or Regierungsrat Fenz. Both these gentlemen were working in my office, but not at the same time. Friedrich Schulz was relieved and replaced. I don't know whether that was during the time of Schulz or Fenz.

Q. Witness, can you remember another case or a number of cases which show your attitude towards the Jewish question?

A. I can only say that when in Denmark, for instance, information was received that Danish citizens of Jewish faith, were to be deported to the Reich, we, and of course especially myself, were absolutely speechless and very much upset about it. I remember it so well because the office of the Reich Plenipotentiary had actually nothing to do with these matters and they did not learn about these things immediately, to begin with.

It was just an accident that one day through the visit of this well known actress, Lulu Ziegler, at my office, through this visit as I say, I found out that rumors circulated in Copenhagen to the effect that Danish Jews were to be deported to the Reich. I was speechless at the time and I did not believe it, that this actually was to happen.

Q. You just said "we were surprised about these measures". What did you mean?

A. Everybody was upset about it. I think there must have been few people perhaps who were of another opinion within the office of the Reich Plenipotentiary and the other offices; they were all who had experience in official and also worldly affairs.

Q. Did you discuss this with your superior at your office and who was the superior?

A. In Denmark, this bit of information which came as a surprise to me from Lulu Ziegler, I immediately passed on to the Reich Plenipotentiary, Dr. Best, and I think before I passed it on to my immediate superior, Dr. Staumann. I went into the office and.........

Q. What was the purpose of this visit of this actress? Did she have a special request?

A. That was in connection with her request and her wish. She applied to me, after her husband had been released, asking me whether she would not be permitted to go with her family......she had a number of children......to emigrate to Sweden. It would have been comparatively easy for her illegally, of course, but she emphasized that she did not want to do so and she asked me whether it would not be possible for me to do this officially for her.

should be done as there was nothing against her. It was really quite an unjustified suspicion against her. In this connection she told me about this rumor and she asked me about it. She added that she was very worried about her friends and acquaintances of her family who were partly Jewish, and she asked me whether she should not advise them to leave Denmark in some way or other. I did not know anything about the whole matter. I had heard about it for the first time and I, after all, was an officially.

Therefore, I could not advise her with words but I told her....... and this was approved later on and I was told that that was completely justified and right......I, as I say, through my whole personel attitude and even through the expression on my face, I let her know that I was of the opinion and of the conviction that she should leave Denmark.

Q. Witness, what was your won attitude toward the measures on the part of the government or rather the party against the Jews?

A. I would like to make a destination there, State and Party. Those measures were taken on the part of the State and I saw in these measures that they would serve the purpose of bringing about the solution of the Jewish problem insofar as the Jews would be brought about to emigrate and leave Germany. At that time, as far as I know, the solution of the Jewish problem was always discussed and as it has been mentioned in this trial, this Madagasgar plan was also mentioned. I have, before this examination, told my defense counsel that I seem to remember just Madagasgar and Palestine and that at the time this was also discussed in the press and that negotiations were in progress with France, I believe, in order to have Jews migrate to Madagasgar.

Thus in these measures on the part of the State, or at least as far as they concerned these laws, I saw a sort of legal gap between the two enemy parts of the population which was to serve the purpose of forcing the Jewish population to emigrate on the one hand, and furthermore, regarded from the foreign policy point of view, to cause the other states, who would have been prepared to take in Jews, to carry this out. I must emphasize again that acts of violence were never mentioned to me and I never found out anything about them. I never experienced anything, but acts of violence and terror. I objected psychologically and I still do. only I alone; have strongly objected to the acts of terror which took place in 1938 in November. Again I can only say I did not find out anything else about them until this very day, I, as I say, regard them as purely arbitrary acts of the Party authorities.

As I say I regard them as purely arbitrary acts of party authorities. I was told at the time, and I found out about these things in November, in the shape of rumors that behind these acts was the party leadership under Goebbels. I think it must have been the 8th of November 1938. At that time I was not the Berlin myself, but on this day and the following day I was in Munich and I did not see or experience anything immediately myself but it was at night after midnight in the hotel when suddenly the rumor circulated that excess had happened and were still happening. The largest part of the departmental officials and the leader of the SD main office had come to Munich to take part in the 9 November celebrations. And I know that this bit of information we received in the hotel. There were a number of other leader present. I can certify that generally the whole chain of events was regarded with strong misgivings. This was expressed by all these men. And after that, the next day, not the next but the next but one, I left for Berlin and only in Berlin I learned the facts from acquaintances and friends in the vicinity of our apartment. I found out, I said, in what incredible manner these actions had been carried out. That must have been a day later when it was made known through the press, that acts of terror of any kind, would be punished severely by the police. Until this very day I am of the opinion that these acts were events which were merely arbitrary acts carried out by radical party members and which according to my opinion then had been PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, when the witness has narrated an incident or episode, is it unnecessary for him to repeat it? I would suggest that you keep a central over his testimony. Now, he has told us this episode, that of the responsibility of the party. He referred to it yesterday. He has given it to us today. Now, he is again telling us the responsibility of the party, which is naturally repetitious and unnecessary. I would suggest that when he goes on to an unnecessary length, and it most be apparent to you when that happens, that you ask another question. In that way we will keep it moving.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, I shall follow this example. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q. Witness, I believe we can now leave this particular sphere. What is your attitude toward Christianity?

A. I already said that I was educated and grew up ion a Christian home, and my religious psychological attitude was and in a positive affirmation of God, or the Christian term of God. Since my early childhood I never felt myself of confronted with any problems concerning this my conviction. For this reason, I did not have to search for God, but for me it is an unvielable firm possession, and the highest one, governing all matters of this earch. And we all have to bow to it; scientists as well as philosophers, because after all the very essential questions cannot be answered by these scientists.

Q. Why did you leave the church, and when was that?

A. I may add now that my leaving the church has nothing to do with my religious conviction or my membership of the party or the SS. I never discussed this with any superior or with any responsible party member of the SS, and I was never asked about these matters, about my own attitude toward these matters, but that is my own private matter, and here again there is a long development until I arrived at the solution: it started after the first world war. I then regarded the church as a mundane organization. I saw and I believe that they had given up their real Christian task, the care of sould of human beings, and had become a mere or less political power. Already in 1922 and '23 I saw church elections of the church parties, that is, in the Protestant Church of Germany, which actually reflected the political parties, and that way one found conservative Christians, liberal Christians, and the church steered more and more towards political power. After '33 the impression became stronger and stronger. by press and radio we learned of the dispute between the various churches. One heard of remarks against the state, on the part of the clergy, and all this brought up the conviction within me that the church was not any longer a church as it should be, namely, the binding member or the spiritual organization and spiritual unit of all these believing in Christ.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Witness, do we understand from what you have just said that you learned from the press and radio that the church in some way was opposed to the state government?

A. Yes.

Q. And you looked with regret upon the dispute between the church and the state?

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. And I understand that you felt that that was an improper attitude of the church, and therefore you were willing to withdraw from the church?

A. Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, I just wanted to know. BY DR RIEDIGER:

Q. Did your leaving the church mean that you gave up the belief in Christ?

A. No. In no manner, but I may now add to the words of the President, I was confronted with the psychological conflict not caused by the press information which I received but by the events which I experienced myself, that the gap within the population came into existence again, and that it even touched individual families. The cause of my leaving the church was a visit to my own home village; when I found out there that in one individual family, a family of a clergyman, the conflict had become so extensive between father and son-in-law and children that family life as such split up and Christian love could not even be discussed. I have already said that I learned belief from earliest childhood on, and I have always been happiest when I saw the close contact from man to man or from people to people.

Q. Witness, did you have any advantages from your leaving the church?

A. No. There were no advantages gained by my leaving the church, and I never attempted to have any advantages. I should like to say now that my promotion, within the SS especially, took place before my leaving the church. Apart from the last promotion to obersturmbannfuehrer, which had to come as an assimilation of ranks in my office as oberregierungsrat, (Senior Government Counsellor), and this promotion itself came about almost four years after my last promotion to Sturmbannfuehrer.

Q. Witness, I think we can now leave this subject and I would now like to clarify the point concerning your membership in the SD and the SS. When did you enter the SD?

A. I joined the SD as a civilian employee on the 1st of August 1935.

Q. When did you join the SS, Witness?

A. On the 1st of May 1936 I joined the SS, that is, the SS formation SD. This was caused by my new office within the SD.

Q. What offices did you hold in the RSHA?

A. In the RSHA I was only a member of office I.

Q. What tasks did you have to deal with?

A. I had to deal with disciplinary matters--official disciplinary matters and penal matters within my group.

Q. Did you membership of Office I change when you were promoted to Regierungsrat, Government Counsellor?

A. I am sorry, I did not understand the beginning of the question.

Q. Did your membership of Office I change when you were promoted to the Regierungsrat, and when you were taken over in the state service?

A. No. Unfortunately not. At the time it was my wish that it should be so, and it was again a period in which I attempted to apply for another office. With the moment of my promotion to Regierungsrat (Government Counsellor), I became a member of the Ministry of Interior, but I remained a deputy to the Reich Security main office, I requested this, and my request was refused owing to the condition of the war.

PRESIDENT: Just what did the witness mean when he said that he dealt with "disciplinary, and penal matters" within his group? Which group?

DR. RIEDIGER: In my knowledge, it is the group within the Office I.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, may I clarify this? BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Well, just tell me what group, whom do you mean by "group"? Now, just tell me that.

A. I only wanted to express that I was in charge of the group which dealt with disciplinary and penal matters; Office I, was sub divided into various groups.

By this I mean departments, and one of these departments dealt with disciplinary matters and penal matters concerning officials.

Q. Which officials?

A. These were the officials, first of all, members of SD, then officials of other departments of security police or belonging to the Reich Security Main Office.

PRESIDENT: Very well. That answers the question. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q. Did your leaving the RSHA change your relationship and your membership in the SS?

A. I never understand this until now; through the documents I found out the real state of affairs. I was explained at that time when I left, that from now on I would be transferred to the Fuehrungshauptamt (leadership main office), but really nothing happened. I, myself, from the very day of my leaving this office, heard nothing about it any more. The validity stamp on the SS membership cards, it was only valid for about three months, then a new stamp had to be entered. I never received any more, and I never requested it. I had no contact whatsoever except through one questionnaire which I was sent, I believe, in 1944 for me to fill out--a personnel questionnaire. I never sent it back. This becomes evident from my SS personnel files. They show that the old personnel questionnaire of 1937 is contained, but this new questionnaire is not contained. Therefore, practically, if I may call it that, a la suite, I was carried on the files of the Reich Security Main Office as a member of the SS, as it becomes evident from these documents now.

Q. Did you ever serve in the General SS?

A. No. I was never a member of the General SS, and I never did any General SS Service or any other SS Service, as for instance, Sturm service, as we had been used to from the motorized SA or the NSKK (the motorized units of the SS). Not a single member of the RSHA or the SD ever did any service.

DR. RIEDIGER: Actually, Your Honor, I have no more questions, but I would like to correct the affidavit, that is, the translation of the affidavit of the Witness of Volume III C.

PRESIDENT: Tell us in what particular.

DR. RIEDIGER: It is page 54, German: I don't know the English at the moment.

MR. HOCHWALD: It is page 35 of Document Book III C.

DR. RIEDIGER: Exhibit 140, No. 4567. There on a number of cocasions "parteitraeger" is mentioned ("official"). This does not correspond to the actual statement of the witness.

PRESIDENT: What page of the original, Dr. Riediger?

DR. RIEDIGER: It is page 71 in my book.

RESIDENT: No. What page of the documents, original -- the original documents is divided into many pages.

MR. HOCHWALD: It is page 18 of the original, Your Honor.

PRESIDENT: All right, proceed.

DR. RIEDIGER: There are a number of other mistakes in the translation which, however, are not as irritating. This is a mistake here which is of some consequence. I would like this to be noted in the record.

PRESIDENT: Please repeat it. I didn't catch it at first because I didn't have the page.

DR. RIEDIGER: The wording is page 40.

MR. HOCHWALD: From the top, para. 4, on page 43.

PRESIDENT: Now please, just a minute, we are confusing this. Dr. Riediger, refer to the page in the original document, and then read it the way it appears now and the way you believe it should appear.

MR. HOCHWALD: Your Honor, it is page 18 of the original, page 43 of the English document book, second para from the top, and signed as para 4. There are some paragraphs mentioned in the other page before that.

PRESIDENT: Well, perhaps Mr. Hochwald, you can assist Dr. Riediger by your reading from the original and then determining from Dr. Riediger wherein he claims there is an error in the translation from the German.

MR. HOCHWALD: If I understand Dr. Riediger correctly, Your Honor, he does not claim that it is an error in the translation but he claims that when the document was transcribed from the handwriting of the witness into the mimeographed copy here, a mistake was made in the German.

PRESIDENT: Yes. Well, then tell us what that error is.

MR. HOCHWALD: He claims that instead of the word "parteitraeger" which means party officials, which appears in the mimeographed copy, the witness wrote himself the word "pertepetraeger", which would mean an officer, an officer who was permitted to wear a strap on his sword, and this strap means "pertepetraeger". "Pertepetraeger" would then be an officer. As far as I can see from the English, that is not a very big difference, as the English says, "Occasionally officer or authorized persons also attended the executions." It is not said in the translation, which very likely was made from the photostat of the original, that there were party officials present.

PRESIDENT: Very well. That explanation will appear in the transcript. Now, what is next, Dr. Riediger?

DR RIEDIGER: The others are negligent matters which I do not have to mention.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Does any defense counsel desire to cross-examine the witness? If not, Mr. Hochwald will proceed with the cross-examination. questions put to you?

THE WITNESS: I beg your pardon, Your Honor, if I have answered the questions today and yesterday slightly haltingly. It is no bad intention. I sometimes do not find the right words. I think it is mainly due to a state of exhaustion and I thought I had overcome it, but it is due to some kind of disease, which I had from 1946 until 1947. I was in the hospital then and I was in a complete state of exhaustion after I had broken down.

THE PRESIDENT: I would suggest that when a question is put to you, you make certain that you understand it thoroughly and then respond and you take just asmuch time as you believe is necessary to understand with a full comprehension of what you are saying.

THE WITNESS: Thank you. BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD:

Q. May it please the Tribunal; Dr. Haensch, we can just start where your counsel left off about your membership in the NSDAP and the SS and the SD. Is it correct that you joined -- is it correct that you joined the NSDAP in 1931?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the SS in 1935?

A. No, I have already mentioned that I joined the SS on the 1st of May 1936.

Q. 1936?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever swear the oath of allegiance to Adolf Hitler?

that moment when I became amember of the SS, the SS oath became equally valid. Personally, I cannot remember now whether I swore a personal oath, by making the oath itself, or whether it was so automatic and regarded as my transfer altogether was automatic, my transfer into the SS, but that, of course, is negligent and of minor importance. Of course, the oath wasjust asvalid for me asit was for others.

Q You felt you were bound to this oath?

Q When actually did you first contact with SD take place?

AAs I have already said. my first contact with the SD was into Doebeln in connection with this dispute which I mentioned, after the consequences had made themselves felt. Until that point, I had perhaps, shall we say anonymous contact, because I had not known that the report was meant for the SD, but I was told that it was for the SS. That again is of negligent importance.

Q. So, if I am correct, you had your first contact with the SD after you were dismissed from your position in Doebeln. That was in autumn, 1935, is that correct?

A. No, both these statements are not quite correct. Just a moment, may I ask you to ask the first part of this question again. I have already forgotten.

Q. Did you not state that your first contact with the SD took place after you had been dismissed from Doebeln?

A This first question is not quite correct, Mr. Prosecutor. No, not after I had been released, a ccording to my memory, because then I was for some time -- I don't know whether it was eight or fourteen day -I was released before the first measures. On the same day the Kroisleiter, (District Leader), came and at that time immediately after my first contact, I would say, my onlightenment concerning the SD cam about; my report to the SD.

Doebeln, making this report, you had never had any contact with the SD. That is right? here at great length about the facts, how it came about that you joined the SD and consequently the SS. In your affidavit, which is Document Book III-C on page 47, German 80, Document 4567, Prosecution Exhibit 140, you said that you were forced to join the SD and the SS. You have amended this statement by testifying that you received an officer from the SD which you accepted as you had no opportunity to get a job in Civil Service, is that correct?

Q Mr. Prosecution, I think a number of questions are contained in this one question that you have just asked. First of all say that I had stated in some place that I had been forced to join the SS and the SD. Is that what you mean? I never and in no place said that I was forced to join. I don't know what point you mean.

Q On page 46 of the English. I do think it is on page 80 of the German.

Q You will find the sentence, "My activity there, involuntarily, became of decisive importance in my further professional career and this in a negative sense in as far as I was prevented for years from my endeavors of becoming active in the service of the general state administration, and was forced to judicial activity within the SD and the SS." Possibly; I do only want to make it clear; is it correct that you received an offer from the SD and accepted this offer?

A I answered this, Your Honor, but I must clarify this. There must be a mistake in the translation in the English text. Apparently it says, as I hear from you now that I had been forced, because it says, in the original document, I quote, "My activity there" -- that is, in Doebeln -- "became of major importance eventually for my further professional career and was" -- and here it should not say "war" but "zwar."

There is a letter left out. "It was of minor significance in so far as for years I had made attempts to take up activity within the service of the State Administration and I was prevented and automatically" -- It doesn't say "forced", "zwangslaufig" ("Zwangslaufig" is "automatically") and again there is a mistake, "juristiarisch" (legal activity) within the SD and therefore the SS."

Q May I then ask you whether the word "zwangsweise" means -- or whether you intended to say that you were forced to enter the SD?

A No, it does not say "zwangsweise." It means "zwangslaufig." "zwangslaufig" does not mean that I was forced to join the SD, personally, in any way, but the ill conditions, as such, the fact that I had no job as an excluded Party member, I could not find any corresponding activity. This automatically meant that I accepted the offer of the SD to do work with them in some legal activity, as a legal counsel. correct?

A Nobody forced me. I joined voluntarily. I took over this activity voluntarily in this department. Psychologically, of course, I was in a sort of forced position. Otherwise, of course, I would have chosen another activity; the activity in the General Administration which I had been offered, for which I had been put down on the waiting list, and I was waiting to be called, and, as I had been put down on the list in Dresden, the District Leader, the (Gauleiter), of course, was In the position to cross all my plans, and, now, of course...... the Tribunal all this which you have just said now in your direct examination. I do think it will be easier for you and for all of usif you just answer the question and give information only, information you did not volunteer for your direct examination.

Q How was it with your entrance into the SS? Your entrance into the SS was a voluntary one too, is that correct?

A Well, this I may perhaps explain. The real state of affairs was that it really came about automatically. Again even now it says -

THE PRESIDENT: Well, he has stated, Mr. Hochwald -

THE WITNESS:You want to know whether I voluntarily joined the SS, well, in any way I was not forced, -

THE PRESIDENT: The witness stated when he joined the SD voluntarily, he became a member of the SS automatically. The joining of the SD carried with it whatever naturally followed, so, therefore, when he joined the SD, he automatically, and, therefore, voluntarily joined the SS because that followed.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: The only question I wanted to ask; I wanted to ask the witness in this connection, whether this joining of the SS was the automatic result of his membership in the SD. Nothing else.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) is that correct that your transfer to the SS was the automatic result of your membership in the SD?

A Yes, I want to correct one thing, though, Mr. Prosecutor, that it carried it with it -- but I do not want you to conclude that the 1st of August I actually joined the SS. I joined in 1936 on the 1st of August not in 1935, because I see from the expressions used here, that it is all somewhat strange.

Q Witness, you were asked by the Tribunal -- I beg the Tribunal's pardon for touching this point again -- you had testified that even before the war you tried to be released from the SD, is that correct?

Q. For this reason, you made frequent applications, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. What exactly were the contents of these applications?

A. The content of these applications, Mr. Prosecutor, were nothing but my request to give me now the opportunity, as I had originally intended, to be transferred into the interior administration of the State.

Q. So, I am then correct in assuming that these applications were applications for transfer in the internal administration, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. But you actually never made an application to be released from the SD just for the reason that you were unwilling to do the job in the SD. Is it not clear from your statement, Dr. Haensch, that you just wanted to make a better choice, but that, as you did not get the position in the Civil Service you just stayed in the SD, is that right?

A. I don't understand your question. There are too many questions again contained there.

Q. It is very simple. Did you ever make an application to be released from the SD, just released from the SD, as you did not want to be a member of this organization?

A. I did not ever see anything detrimental concerning the SD. I had no cause to threw dirt at the SD.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hockwald, that answers your question. It is a sort of round about way. You asked him whether he ever sought to leave the SD. He says he saw no reason to leave the SD. That means that he never tried to leave the SD.

Q. (By Mr. Herlick-Hockwald) So you were not actually under military orders to stay in the SD. You would have been able to leave this organization if you would have requested to do so?

A. But, Mr. Prosecutor, you can see it from the fact that my requests were constantly refused that I could not do what I wanted to. I was, after all, a member of this machinery and this organization of the RSHA and therefore, also, of he SD and the Security Police and SD.

Of course I was subordinated to the Chief of the Security Police and the SD. If you want to call that military power; the word "military" I don't know what to do with. Of course, I was in a sort of position-

Q. Witness, may I interrupt you? May I interrupt you for a minute? Would it have been possible for you between 1936 and 1939 to leave the SD, be released from the SD or will you tell the Tribunal that at the moment you joined the SD you must -- you had to stay in the SD all your life? That is what I am asking you.

A. Well, Mr. Prosecutor, then, of course, I must say that I would not have had this possibility. Even if the Chief of the SD had approved my leaving the service, I myself could not have left on my own initiative. That was the forced position that I was in. I can say that here: it worried me very much mentally.

Q. Was that during the war or before the war, Dr. Haensch?

A. We have talked now about the time before the war.

Q. Will you tell the Tribunal that membership in the SD and the SS before the war was involuntary and that anybody who once joined one of these organizations could never leave it any more. Will you tell me that? Are you going to tell that to the Tribunal? Please make your answer clear. It is a very case question to answer.

A. If you see anything involuntary in this, then, of course, this corresponds to the fact, and, of course, now all the directives and regulations were valid for me that were valid for all the other members, and now, of course, as I say, I was not free any longer. I could not take my own fate into my hands, as I would have liked to do, but, as I always constantly-

Q. You don't understand. This is not the question. The question is whether you would have been able to make an application for a release from the SD and whether there was an actual order or decree which made it impossible for somebody to ask for a release and to be . released from one of the two organizations in which you were from 1936.

You do not answer my question. I think there is only one question. Was there an order or a decree existing in Germany that a person who once joined the SS or the SD could never be released any more? Can you anser that?

A. No, I do not know of an order or a decree to this effect or, at least, not in that shape. The following directives were valid.....

THE PRESIDENT: You have answered the question. Mr. Hochwald, when your question have been answered, ask another question because -

Q. (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) So there was no decree or order, was there?

A. Well, there was a decree to the following effect; that I would like to mention. This was really valid in connection with the SS members. A man who had been transferred to the SS, and, in my case, that would have been to the SD, he, -- I don't remember after how long. I think perhaps one year -- he could leave for reasons of health. Only there were three or four points. I think it was for health, reasons of health, if physicians confirmed it. Then there was also automatic exclusion resulting from any actions, and there was one other point, but I don't remember clearly. These were the regulations which, of course, were also valid for the SS and SD. I never saw these matters as complicated as you put them, Mr. Prosecutor. I have tried to achieve some kind of professional satisfaction, but that was not possible, because it was refused. I myself was not free, therefore in any full power of decision.

Q. I don't want to press this point. You have said about -

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, I think the witness made it very clear that he never desired to leave the SD, except to get a better job. Now, if he never desired to leave, then it is evident that he was satisfied to stay.

MR. HORLICK*HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal understands the testimony of the witness in that way. I am perfectly satisfied, but the witness, of course, has just said "no" again in contradiction to that which he has said ten months ago, that he was never free, so he tries obviously to give the impression that he was involuntarily a member of this criminal organization.

If he states here -- and that is what I am asking him all the time -- he remained in these two organization voluntarily, I do think there should be no further line of questioning on this point, but it is very hard, I am sorry to say, to follow his explanations, although he, is a lawyer, he does not know the difference between legal force and inner force, force which is the wish for a better job, a better position, and he mixes it up in a way, I don't understand really, so may I ask one last question?

organizations - the SD and the SS, voluntarily. Will you answer this question with yes or no, please?

THE PRESIDENT: The trouble is -

THE WITNESS: I can only answer it in the affirmative. I could not leave the organization.

THE PRESIDENT: You see, Mr. Hochwald, you put two questions in your last proposition. Did you join, and did you remain.

MR. HOCHWALD: Yes, sir, I did.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, those are two questions.

MR. HOCHWALD: I said, did you join ... that seems to be -

THE PRESIDENT: You joined voluntarily. That's clear, isn't it?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Now that is disposed of. Don't ask that question again. And the next question - we are able to recuperate in the next fifteen minutes from what has proceeded.

( A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, I must ask your pardon if I come with a special request -- I beg that the witness Schreyer be interrogated....

THE PRESIDENT: Your request is granted without even your putting it. Yes. We will hear this witness, even though we have to break into the cross examination - so that the witness, as we understand, can get away as she would like to, this afternoon. Very well.

DR. RIEDIGER: Thank you.

testified as follows:

JUDGE DIXON: Witness, raise your right hand and repeat after me: speak the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

( The witness repeated the oath)

JUDGE DIXON: You may be seated. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q Witness, will you please state your name?

Q When were you born?

Q Where is your permanent residence?

Q Witness, do you know Dr. Walter Haensch?

A Yes, Dr. Walter Haensch was in my photographic studio in Berlin, Zehlendorf, to have his photo taken, on 21 February, 1942.

Q How do you know the exact date?

Q Is an error in date possible? exact file. personally?

Q Can you produce this book?

DR. RIEDIGER: Mr. President, I will present this book, to be admitted in the document book.

MR. HOCHWALD: May the Prosecution examine the original?

THE PRESIDENT: By all means. Well, let Dr. Riediger finish his examination; then, of course, you can go into the cross examination thoroughly.

MR. HOCHWALD: If Dr. Riediger needs the book to further examine, of course I won't look into it just now.

DR. RIEDIGER: I also see in this book, copies of certificates. is entered. photographic copy about which you can give me some further details. What does this reveal?

A Dr. Haensch was in my place on 21 February 1942. The proofs were sent to his wife in Zittau, marked 2071.

DR. RIEDIGER: I have no more questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed with the cross examination.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I only want a minute to look into those two exhibits.

THE PRESIDENT: By all means. while you are looking at that, the Tribunal may put a few questions for the purpose of illumination, to the witness.

Q (By the President): Witness, where do you live now? where I lived before.

Q Did anything happen to your building during the war? profession?

business because of the bombing?

because of the damaged condition?

Q When did the bombing occur?

occurred?

Q How did it happen that you were not there?

Q How many are in your family?

March 1, 1943?

A No one either. My sisters and brothers are all dead.

Q You live alone?

A I live alone. I have been separated from any husband for ten years.

Q How many rooms did you have at this place?

Q At what time in the evening did the bombing occur?

A It was after the movie was over. It must have been between eleven and eleven-thirty.

Q When did you get back to the house?

AAbout two o'clock at night. I walked from Steglitz.

Q You arrived at two o'clock in the morning?

A Yes, two o'clock in the morning.

Q Were movies going until that late, to eleven o'clock in Berlin during the war?

A I presume, it might have been ten o'clock. I don't remember exactly.

Q What time did the show let out?

A I assume it was ten or eleven o'clock, I can not say exactly. night, late at night, until eleven o'clock?

A I assume until ten o'clock, from eight to ten, or ten-thirty in the first year of the war.

Q Well, that was not the first year of the war. That was 1943, you were already in the fourth year of the war?

Q Did you have blackouts on the streets at the time?

Q And how far was the movie from your place of business?

the movie to your home?

Q How many kilometers was that? I waited for the bombing to end, it was very heavy, and then I went home on foot. I was about two o'clock at night.

A From Zimmermannstr., Steglitz to Teltower Damm 33, Zehlendorf.

Q Well, I am not familiar with Berlin, How far is that?

Q Well how many kilometers? distance, is that right?

Q And you were alone?

Q And you were walking in the streets at two o'clock in the morning after a heavy bombing, alone?

Q Why didn't you stay with your acquaintances that night?

Q Couldn't you wait until the next day instead of travelling at midnight, or in the middle of the night during a blackout?

A No, I didn't want to do that. I wanted to know what had happened to my home, and if everything was all right.

Q What did you find when you got there? walls had been damaged, and furniture had been damaged, but probably miraculously my equipment and my technical equipment had not been damaged.

Q Did you stay there then that night?

Q Even though the roof had caved in?

Q I don't understand the answer.

Q Well, were your quarters undamaged?

A No, inside much was damaged. Doors were broken, windows were broken, and soforth.

Q How about your bed, was it touched in any way?

Q And you stayed there for the rest of the night? clean it up.

MR. HOCHWALD: You may cross examine. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q Witness, did you meet Dr. Haensch before the 21 February 1942? shop to be photographed? approximately used to photograph during one day? photographed, and how many were there the proceeding day. would you say was the average?

Q And six days a week?

Q Did you meet Dr. Haensch once after you had made his picture on 21 February 1942? eight persons a day, six days a week, you remember exactly that he was personally in your place, and you personally photographed him, is that what you are telling the Tribunal?

A Yes. As a photographer I have a very good memory for persons, and when I saw the negative I immediately knew that I made the picture myself.

Q When did you see this negative?

Q Who asked you that? a look at the negative, and it certainly was not the Tribunal? Who showed you the negative? my closet where it was kept in the filed, and looked at it then.

Q That is what I am trying to get at?

THE PRESIDENT: It is not clear yet how she first Learned about the necessity of looking for the negative. clear that up please. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q And who asked you to testify? You never heard before that you were to testify when you got the information form the court, or were you interrogated before this by somebody else?

A During a trip the wife of Dr. Haensch came over to my studio, and requested me for a copy, or some documentary evidence that her husband had been photographed in my studio, and when I returned from this trip my employee informed me of this, and later on Dr. Riediger came over to my studio, and requested me to appear if requested as a witness.

Q Who requested you to look at the photograph?

A No one requested me. I saw that myself in order to Ascertain whether I myself personally took the picture. and that you have very likely photograph hundreds, possibly thousands of persons, you immediately found out when you looked at the photograph that that was the man who was in your place, and that it was Herr Haensch, and all this detail, did you? picture, and I approximately remembered his person.

Q Do you have that photograph?

A No, I don't have it with me.

Q Then you don't have the picture? I didn't make any copy. picture is on the negative?

A I believe so. At any rate, the number and the name are on it. Everything I have is listed under the names and the numbers. ascertain from the negative which you didn't see for five years, that you have made the picture, and that it was this Dr. Haensch.

I can understand, that you can say, that you can testify, in my book there is a name of Dr. Haensch in it, but I fail to understand how you were able to find it out? better than in anyone's else mind. I also worked in theatres very much, and I have kept many actors' faces in mind, and when one actor came to request one picture I immediately from the face on the negative could say where it was, because as a photographer I see the negative as though it was a positive, and so I found it very quickly what it was, and I remembered that I personally took a picture of this man, and with the type of picture I can say I did that myself. the Tribunal whether Haensch was when he was photographed by you in uniform, or not?

Q Can you tell the Tribunal the rank?

A No, unfortunately I don't know much about that. I can not say anything about it. appeared in your place in uniform, is it not?

A Not always. I could never remember the uniform or the rank; the rank or the insignia. is just one day before you photographed Haensch, and you said here that somebody was a Wachtmeister, which is a warrant officer.

why didn't you give Dr. Haensch who was in uniform an appropriate title as an SS Sturmbannfuehrer?

A. This whole bookeeping was done by an employee. You can see from the handwriting that I didn't write it myself.

Q. I am sorry, I am not familiar with your handwriting, I can not find that out.

A. Yes. Yes, I would hardly present such to you, but I didn't write it but an employee did that, and she wrote it accoring to our own way of writing orders, as she wanted to, and didn't give any position which had no significance at all.

Q. All right, if you have such an excellent memory, can you tell the Tribunal whether you photographed this Watchmeister Dresch?

A. I would first have to see the negative, or rather a picture.

Q. Can you describe to the Tribunal what this Watchmeister looked like?

A. No, I can only do that when I have seen the negative.

Q. Will you be good enough to hand to us a negative of the Picture of Watchmeister Dresch, No. 385, on 20 February 1942; is there anything in your memory so wonderful and so orderly, that if you found immediately a picture of Haensch, you will certainly find immediately a picture of Watchmeister Dresch?

A. Yes.

MR. HOCHWALD: No further questions. Will you tell the Tribunal, I notice in this book there are in the beginning approximately six or seven pages cut out. Do you think that if somebody has an orderly book that he would have such a thing?

THE WITNESS: I want to comment on the following: I used to be a dancing teacher, and I kept the namesof my pupils and since there were no new books to be gotten, I was forced to use an old book and started over anew.

Q. You have been doing this yourself, starting on page 71, is that right?

A. I don't know the number exactly.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal that at no other time has anybody tampered with this "aufnahmebuck" - this photograph book?

A. I don't think so. I didn't change anything at all. It is entered by seminal number and by the orders.

MR. HOCHWALD: No further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Let the Tribunal see those two documents, please. On what page did that entry appear?

MR. HOCHWALD: I don't know. It is on the second page, sir, I shall find it.

THE WITNESS: Number 391.

THE PRESIDENT: And where is the item. Is it this one here with the "x"?

MR. HOCHWALD: Yes, with the "X".

THE PRESIDENT: Will some one who can decipher this book please come to the bench and help the Tribunal. Perhaps both counsels, please, just come up here. (Discussion ensued before the bench with Mr. Hochwald and Dr. Riediger Present.)

Q. Did you take any pictures after the bombing?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Did you do any work after the place had been bombed?

A. For at least three to five months I interrupted my work and then started again.

Q. When did you start again?

A. It happened on the first of March. About November I started working again, about September, October or November.

Q And did you keep records of those pictures also?

A. Only these block lists.

Q. Now please answer the question. Did you also keep records of those pictures which you took after September 1943?

A. Yes.

Q. And where are the records of those pictures?

A. I have them in Berlin. I only took this book along because this order was in it.

Q. Yes. You started a new book when you resumed your work in September 1943?

A. No, I didn't start a new book but I continued to keep these blocks.

Q. I don't understand what you mean by blocks. I presume you mean, books?

A. No, it is merely a small pad, which can be part of business papers. It is so called "daypads"

Q. Well, let's understand it. That each day that you took a picture, a record was kept in this book, is that right, or a large book?

A. Yes, in this book.

Q. yes, very well. Now on March 1st your place was bombed?

A. Yes.

Q. In September, or perhaps, October 1943, you resumed your business?

A. Yes.

Q. And you continues to keep records of the pictures which you made?

A. Yes, but only on this pad, these so called "daypads", not in a big pad.

Q. Why did you not continue the work of keeping records in this large book when you resumed your business in September or October 1943?

A. Because its continuance was so much work, and it was not needed for the purpose of tax estimate.

Q. Well, why was it necessary before March 1, 1943?

A. It was not necessary. I only kept it for the sake of order.

Q. Well, what caused you to abandon this sense of order after September 1943?

A. Because I was alone then, and it amounted to too much work for me which I could not do.

Q. How much work was necessary to work after each picture was taken, which consisted of one line, giving the date, the number and the name of the person . How much work was required to do that? How much time was required?

A. In this it only took half an hour but -

Q. About half an hour to write this one line in a book?

A. Not one line, for the days work, but for the days work.

Q. What happened to the assistant that you had in February 1943?

A. After the bombing attack she did not return to work because she married.

Q. Well, do they stop work when they marry?

A. In this case, yes.

Q. All right. Now you would take eight to ten pictures every day, is that right, on the average?

A. Yes, sometimes more.

Q. All right.

A. I cannot say exactly.

Q. Well, the average was eight to ten?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So it meant writing eight to ten lines in your book at night?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you so busy during the war that you didn't have time to write eight to ten lines at night?

A. Yes, I kept my household, my business, and took all the pictures by myself.

Q. But you didn't have time to write these eight to ten lines at night?

A. No, because it was not absolutely necessary and I omitted.

Q. Then it was not necessary to keep this book prior to March 1, 1943, either was it?

A. That is true, but I had started it and I wanted to continue it, if I had the time. However, I can do that now, even now, because if my business records are in my office I can do that, even now, to write and fill in the book, even now.

Q. I don't understand it, you can fill in the book now. I don't understand what you mean by that?

A. Of course, I would take an assistant to do that.

Q. Well, we are at least in the same room together. We certainly are not in the same thought together. I asked you why you didn't keep this book after March 1, 1943 and you answered that it wasn't necessary. Now, you tell me that you can, if you want to, keep such a book. If you would keep such a book you would believe it would be necessary, wouldn't you?

A. For me personally later an. but it won't be used for tax purposes.

Q. Did you fail to keep books because you wanted to avoid the payment of taxes?

A. Oh, no. Tax is kept in a very proper and orderly way. That was not the reason. - I see from this case that it is perhaps necessary to keep a book like that. There might be other cases which are important, so it is perhaps good to have a book like that.

Q. When did you start to keep this book?

A. When I began?

Q. Yes.

A. I think 1 November 1941.

Q. Yes, so you kept this book all throught 1941,1942, and two months of 1943. That is 26 months. and then suddenly you abandoned this very orderly way or keeping your records, is that right?

A. I beg your pardon? After the bombing attack -

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, please, I want to find out just what those items indicate. This is the date, this is the number, this is the name. What is this? Is that the address?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. and what is this?

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: It seems to be the number of the picture.

THE PRESIDENT: And what is that?

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: Cards.

THE PRESIDENT: The size, What is that?

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: Price.

THE PRESIDENT: Price.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: The day which the price was paid.

THE PRESIDENT: The price was paid?

Q. (By the President): write the date the picture was taken, the number of the order, the person whose picture was taken, his address, the number of pictures ordered, the price, and the amount paid, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now after September 1943, did you not keep that kind of record in order to know just what you were doing in your business?

A. Oh yes, the pad shows it exactly.

Q. Where are these pads after September 1943?

A. I have all of them; they are all being kept.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, the witness means to say that this pad is one of the pad which concerns Haensch, and Haensch is on the pad which is in front of you.

THE PRESIDENT: Please indicate the page.

THE WITNESS: 391.

Q. (By the President) so that in February, 1942, you were keeping a double record, the large book and the block pad?

A. Yes.

Q. And after September 1943---

A. I only had the pads because the book was superfluous.

Q. You didn't think it was superfluous prior to March 1, 1943 did you?

A. When I began the business in Zehlendorf I started the book, and afterwards I realized that it was just double work, because the pads shows everything, what the tax needed from me.

Q. Where are the pages that you tore out of this book from 1 to 70?

A. They do not concern this matter, but I gave ballet instructions, as I said, and the names of my pupils were in these pages, which are not concerned in this matter.

Q. I asked you, where are the pages which you tore out of this book?

A. I probably destroyed them.

Q. Well wasn't it just as important to know the people that you taught dancing as the people you made pictures of?

A. The matter lost its interest because it was from 1913 until 1915.

Q. 1913 to 1915?

A. Yes.

Q. you were giving lessons then?

A. Yes.

Q. I perhaps may be very indiscreet, but how old were you then?

A. Nineteen. I was going on twenty. I was born in 1892.

Q. What was this book doing between 1915 and 1941?

A. It must have been kept in some closet or other.

Q. So that for twenty-six years this lonely book did nothing?

A. Yes.

Q. Then suddendly you decided to put it to use to keep records of the picture which were taken?

A. Yes.

Q. Yes, now, what caused you to keep this book after March 1, 1943, and not keep the record of the people you had taught dancing?

A. Because it had lost all interest to me.

Q. Well, what interest did this book have to you; what enter tainment and joy did you derive from turning the pages of this book which caused you to keep it through all the war years after March 1, 1943?

What was it that endeared this to your heart to such an extent that you kept it during those troublesome times?

A. It had no special reason. I kept all my things for a long time, and since there were no books to be bought afterwards, I looked up this book, cut out the pages, and used the rest for my business purposes.

Q. I don't quite understand what you mean. You cut out the pages and used the rest for your business purposes?

A. Yes.

Q. You mean you cut out the unused pages and used them for other purposes?

A. No.

Q. Well, it isn't clear just what you mean by: you cut the pages out and used them.

A. No I took the pages which had been written on and destroyed them and used the rest of the book for my business because no new books could be bought.

Q. All right. Since you are such a thrifty person, why is it that you allowed all these blank pages to go unused, from page 138 to - 349? How is it that you didn't use all this good blank paper with paper probably so expensive?

A. Because I intended to keep the book for myself personally but I didn't have the time to do that.

Q. You intended to keep the book personally, but you didn't have time to do what?

A. To enter all these addresses of the customers.

Q. You did intend to enter the addressed of the customers?

A. Yes, I had this intention, but I lacked the time to do so.

Q. Well, you had six to eight customers a day, eight to ten customers a day, and you want the Tribunal to believe that because of this volume of business you were unable to keep a book which you desired to keep?

A. I already testified that I kept my household, did all my work alone and my business.

Q. Where is the woman who made this record?

A. She lives in Berlin in Zehlendorf.

Q. What is her name?

A. Frau Friedel Reich.

Q. Spell it please.

A.R-e-i-c-h.

Q. What is her address?

A. Zehlendorf, Teltower Damm 44.

Q. I don't know whether the reporters are able to get that or not. Perhaps you had better spell it.

A. The name, R-e-i-c-h.

Q. What is her first name?

A. Friedel. Spell that.

Q. Spell that.

A.F-r-i-e-d-e-l.

Q. All right, give us the street address.

A. Toltower Damm.

Q. I didn't catch it.

A. Teltower Damm, T-e-l-t-o-w-e-r D-a-m-m, 44.

Q. What section of Berlin?

A. Berlin-Zehlendorf.

Q. When did you see this woman last?

A. I only met her superficially somewhere on the stree in Berlin.

Q. When did you see her last?

A. Perhaps four weeks ago; four to six weeks ago.

Q. Four to six weeks ago? Did you talk to her about this trial?

Page 3,343

A. No.

Q. When did you first learn that you had to come to Nurnberg to testify in this case?

A. The beginning of November. I don't remember the exact day. I was supposed to appear here on the 10th of November, but I became ill.

Q. November of this year?

A. November of this year.

Q. so when you saw this woman you didn't know that you were going to testify?

A. I don't think so, and I would not have talked about it either.

Q. Why wouldn't you have talked about it?

A. I had no occasion to do that.

Q. But you are submitting a document here which is not made up by yourself. Why wouldn't you want to talk with the person who made up the document?

A. I had no thought of it, and I don't think that it was during that time that I met her. It must have been sometime before this, before I received the telegram.

Q. So the last time you saw her was four to six weeks ago, and it was prior to the time that you received the telegram to come to Nurnberg?

A. Yes, I didn't talk with her we simply passed one another.

Q. When did Mrs. Haensch speak to you for the first time about this case?

I cannot tell exactly, but it must have been in October, the end of October. was an inquiry about Haensch's picture, didn't you?

A No, I don't think so.

Q Mrs. Haensch spoke to you employee and then your employee spoke to you, is that right?

Q And that was in October?

A Yes, end of October/

Q End of October, and what did the employee tell you? photostatic copy of the business books for this trial.

Q And then you looked it up in the book?

Q And you got out the negative?

Q Then you remembered that you had taken that picture yourself?

Q And then when did Mrs. Haensch talk to you personally?

A She did not talk to me at all. I did not see her again.

Q You never saw Mrs. Haensch?

A I don't think I know her at all. At least I don't remember her. I don't know who was sent with the picture. She didn't come to my place at all.

Q Then you saw the positive of this picture a month or so ago?

Q Did someone bring to your office a picture of Haensch?

Q Then all you did was to look up the negative?

Q You never saw the positive; that is until recently?

Q All right. Now were the pictures delivered back in 1942, did Mrs. Haensch come for them herself?

Q Who paid for the pictures?

A I don't know. I did not accept the money myself. It my have come by mail. I don't remember exactly. you?

A The one that works for me now? Three years, but only for my household and for reception.

Q Why couldn't this employee have kept the book that you previous employee kept?

Q then you don't have to devote all your time to household working do you?

Q Well, you didn't three years ago. couldn't you? often. I had two operations behind me.

Q You didn't tell us that when we asked you. You said you were just too busy with your household work.

A Of course I had. The employee can't take off all the work I have to do.

Q Doesn't this employee do your household work?

Q What do you keep her for?

Q You have two rooms, is that right?

order? fact th t you have someone to assist you in the household work, that you cannot devote a few minutes at the end of the day to keeping a record of the business of that day, is that right? for that reason I let it go.

Q Well then, it wasn't because you didn't have time? and consequently I couldn't work so much in the household, and I took in this assistant because I was often sick.

Q Who did your professional work when you were sick? was closed. 1943?

Q Yes, except the dancing records. You don't have those?

Q Very well. Now, Mrs. Haensch came to your office, came to your place of business, and informed your employee that she would like to have the records? negative. When was the next time you heard about this case, after that?

A Dr. Riediger visited me in Berlin.

Q And when was that?

A I don't remember the exact date.

A The first days of November perhaps, I can't say exactly. It might have been at the end of October.

Q Did you show him the negative?

Q Did you ever see Mrs. Haensch in your life?

A No, I can't remember ever having seen her.

Q You say you brought this negative along with you? header and one without.

Q What kind of a uniform?

A I don't remember the color. I don't know; I didn't ask him for it.

Q You didn't ask him for it? What about your eyes? Didn't you see the color?

A I don't remember the color.

Q What kind of shoulder straps did it have?

Q What kind of shoulder straps did the uniform have?

A That I don't know. these pictures very well, and not only that, you have had an opportunity to look at the negative since. Now, you can't tell us what shoulder straps the subject were?

Q You don't have any memory for clothes? a good memory for clothes.

A Perhaps for women's clothes, but not for men's lapels, etc.?

A I couldn't describe it exactly.

Q Can you give us any idea? sure.

Q When did you see the negative last?

A Before a left for Nurnberg. I can put it at you disposal. It is in my room in Nurnberg.

Q And you hadn't seen Haensch since February, 1942? negative? myself. There was no one in my business who might have taken the picture. I was the only one there, the only one who took pictures. made quite a point of it, that you took the picture yourself. When you say that you took the picture yourself, it naturally suggests that someone else could have taken it, and you said that you remembered it very well because you have a photographic memory. Are you changing that testimony now?

A No, I don't want to change that, but--is because you are the only one who could have taken it, is that right?

A No one else. I had no assistant who could have taken the picture.

Q so it wasn't because you recognized the picture that you say that you knew that you took the picture ?

A No. I do remember the type of picture.

Q Do you remember the face?

Q Now you remember the time. What time of the day was it in the forenoon?

A I can't tell you that exactly. I can't say that exactly. 1942?

Q What day of the week was it?

A I don't know that? Do you remember the face ? You haven't answered that question yet.

Q You remembered having seen that person before your lens?

Q Do you remember everyone whose picture you took? you took?

THE PRESIDENT: During the noon recess the witness will be accompanied by a guard to her personal quarters in Nurnberg so that the negative which she has with her may be obtained and brought to the Tribunal when it reconvenes.

Mr. Hochwald?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: May I respectfully request the Tribunal also to rule that the witness is not supposed to look at this negative?

THE PRESIDENT: The guard will accompany the witness and she will hand the negative to the guard without looking at it, and the Secretary-general is instructed to do whatever is required to have brought to Nurnberg the witness, Frau Friedel Reich. And the present witness is instructed, under no circumstances must she speak with Frau Friedel Reich.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: Thank you very much, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will now be in recess until 1:45.

(A recess was taken until 1345 hours.)

(The hearing reconvened at 345 hours, 3 December 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Walton.

MR. WALTON: Walton for the defense counsel Dr. Meyer for the defendant Braune. In the absence of Dr. Meyer it has come to the attention of the prosecution that tomorrow Dr. Braune's wife arrives in Nurnberg and the purpose of her visit is that she has just suffered a loss through death of her father and she wishes to speak with her husband on certain family matters. had not been in the actual custody of the Court. Therefore, we request this Tribunal, if it is agreeable with the Tribunal, to instruct the Marshal to permit Mrs. Braune to see her husband tomorrow afternoon contingent upon his excuse from attendance on these proceedings.

THE PRESIDENT: Acting defense counsel Walton, we are pleased to accede to your request and we will be grateful if you will make the necessary arrangements so that the interview between Mrs. Braune and the defendant Braune may take place.

MR. WALTON: Then I have permission of the Tribunal to instruct the prison officer?

THE PRESIDENT: You do have the permission.

MR. WALTON: In the name of the Tribunal?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, you may do it in the name of the Tribunal. Mr. Walton, will this be during Court hours?

MR. WALTON: Yes sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, and so that then the record will be complete the Tribunal will excuse the defendant during that period when he will be conferri with his wife. BY THE PRESIDENT:

so far as dancing lessons were concerned?

A. Yes.

Q. What happened to this book between 1915 and 1941?

A. It will have been kept in some cupboard.

Q. Did you always live at the same place between 1915 and 1941?

A. No, I lived in different apartments.

Q. How many apartments?

A. I will have to think it over for some time. I moved several times, five or six times, I think.

Q. And each time you moved you took with you the record of these dancing pupils for which you had no use; is that right?

A. Yes, I took all my things along. Among them was this book.

Q. Now, after 1943 you had no further use for this book, did you?

A. No.

Q. Why did you continue to keep it?

A. I kept all my things and this book was among my things.

Q. Well, why did you not keep then the record of the dancing students?

A. when I used this book for the business I took the first few pages out in order to have a new book for the business, because I was not able to buy one.

Q. Well, how would it affect the keeping of the record of the photographs taken if you kept in the same book these other pages with the names of your dancing students?

A. It would not have quite fitted, in my opinion. That's why I took it out. I didn't think about it any further. I wanted to start the book new.

Q. When Dr. Haensch entered your studio on February 21, 1942, as you have testified, was he wearing his glasses?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Did he wear glasses at all during this period?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well now, you remembered what he looked like. Why wouldn't you remember whether he was wearing glasses or not?

A. When the picture was taken he did not wear glasses.

Q. Well, of course, that could have been verified by simply looking at the negative, but we want to know whether he was wearing glasses when he came into the studio?

A. I cannot say that now anymore.

Q. So that you didn't remember his face well enough independently of refreshing your memory from the negative as to just what he looked like?

A. No, I only refreshed my memory when I saw the negative.

Q. So that you really cannot remember the faces of the hundreds whose pictures you have taken independently of the negatives and the pictures?

A. No. If I was asked how the person concerned looked, it would have to be an exceptional face for me to remember it exactly.

Q. You wouldn't remember the face unless there was something extraordinarily unusual about it?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, what do you find so unusual about Dr. Haensch's face that you remembered his?

A. I said already that I only remembered it when I looked at the negative again.

Q. Well, when you looked at the negative you had to compare it with your memory, with you image of a face. Merely looking at the picture would mean nothing unless you could make a comparison, and that's the only way you recall a mental image. Now, when you saw the picture in the negative, the you recognized it as the man whose picture you had taken; is that correct?

A. Yes, I recognized him as a person of whom I had taken a photo, but whether his name was Dr. Haensch I did not know. I only compared it with the book.

Q. Yes, and you say that you remember only these faces which are unusual?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, what was there unusual about Dr. Haensch's face that you recalled it when you saw the negative as the one whose picture you had made five years before?

A. There was nothing exceptional. Only I recalled it when I heard the whole context.

Q. What do you mean by the whole context?

A. I took out the negative and I found the name in the book and compared it to the negative, and I then remembered that I had seen that face and that I had taken the photo myself.

Q. By looking at the name you recalled the face?

A. About that, yes.

Q. Can you recall the faces of all these names that are in this book?

A. No, I cannot do that. I would have to look at a negative or a picture of the person concerned. Then I would remember that I have already seen the person and retouched the picture. By retouching the picture the impression of the person becomes even deeper than when one just looks at it for a short time.

Q. Yes, but what does referring to the book do to help you recall the features of the face?

A. The book only helps to find the negative.

Q. You said that you looked at the negative. Then you looked in the to remember that that was the person whose picture you had taken.

Is that what you just said or said a few moments ago?

A. Yes, quite right.

Q. All right. Now, I want you to tell us how looking at a nme in, this book helps you to recall features?

A. No, I looked for the negative after seeing the name, and then I

Q. Well then, you only look in the book to find the negative?

A. Quite right.

Q. So that you recollection is from the negative and not from the book?

A. Yes.

Q. So then we come back to the original proposition. What is there recall the features of Dr. Haensch?

A. I don't quite know what to say. I described the whole process in detail, and I can only repeat myself.

The moment I saw the negative

Q. When you saw the negative you remembered the person, you remembere about when he came for the picture, and you recalled the time of the day?

A. Not the exact day, no. I only saw that from the book.

Q. But you did remember the time of the day. You remembered it was in the forenoon?

A. I cannot say this under oath, but I think it must have been in the morning.

somehow I seem to remember that subconsciously.

Q. Can you tell by looking at every negative whether the picture was taken in the morning or the afternoon?

A. No, I cannot do that.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, would you please continue with your cross examination?

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please; may I have the three exhibits which are before the Tribunal?

THE PRESIDENT: YES. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Witness, will you tell the Tribunal whether on the negative themselves there is some number or some date?

A. The number and the name is on it in any case. Whether the date is also on there, I don't know. Yes, on the negative the number and the name should be there.

THE PRESIDENT: Was it your custom to add the date to the negative?

THE WITNESS: Not always, no, because we looked for these negatives according to names and figures and not according to dates.

Q. (By Mr. Hochwald) But name and number must be on it?

A. Should be on it, yes.

Q. Will you just examine these two pictures? Can you tell the Tribunal whether on these two negatives -

A. No, there is no number on them.

Q. Name? Is there a name on it?

A. No, no name either unfortunately.

THE PRESIDENT: Why do you say unfortunately? Why did you add that? What difference does it make whether they are there or not?

THE WITNESS: Because my employees did not do this properly when they wrote on the negatives. It really should not have occurred.

THE PRESIDENT: Did you have an assistant in the actual photographic process?

THE WITNESS: No, I developed these things myself at the time.

THE PRESIDENT: Well then, you are the one who should have added the name and number?

THE WITNESS: No, I developed the plates and the next day when the employee came she settled these writing matters.

THE PRESIDENT: And she would write on the negative?

THE WITNESS: Yes, she should have written the name and the number on it.

THE PRESIDENT: Do the names and numbers appear on all the other negatives?

THE WITNESS: Yes. name and number?

THE WITNESS: It is possible that this occurred repeatedly, I am not sure. But every negative should bear the name and the number in order to find it afterwards.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. Let us say in a hundred negatives how many would bear the names and numbers?

THE WITNESS: Among a hundred negatives it might have happened once that it was omitted.

THE PRESIDENT: And it happened to be Dr. Haensch?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed.

Q. (By Mr. Hochwald) Will you tell the Tribunal what that is? Do you know what it is or shall I hand it to you? Will you be good enough to hand it to the witness.

A. Yes, that is the photostatic copy of the writing pad which I put at the disposal of the Tribunal.

Q. When was this copy made?

A. It was made by my employee during my absence.

Q. I still do not know when it was made?

THE PRESIDENT: Have you made it clear that it is the photostat? Isn't that what you mean? I don't think the witness understood that.

Q. (By Mr. Hochwald) When was the photo copy made?

A. It was made during my absence. Frau Dr. Haensch visited me in the studio while I was away on a journey and my employee made this photostatic copy for Dr. Riediger.

Q. Is it not true

THE PRESIDENT: I don't quite understand it. She said Dr. Haensch visited her?

DR. HOCHWALD: As far as I understood it, your Honor, the witness said that Mrs. Haensch visited her employee in her absence and that in her absence this copy was made on the request of Dr. Riediger; is that right?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q. (By Mr. Hochwald) As far as I remember you have just this morning told the Tribunal that this employee of yours was not an employee in your business. It was only a servant in your house, a housekeeper. How do you explain,to the Tribunal that your employee, who was not in your place, or in your business when you made this photograph, who did not keep these books, that she was able to give Mrs. Haensch not only the necessary information but also a photo copy just of this little book, or the page of the little books?

A. My employee had once been in the MPA, that is, the Military Testing office, and there she must have done that kind of work, and at the request of Dr. Haensch she made this photostatic copy.

Q. Who requested you -- Dr. Haensch requested you or Dr. Riediger?

A. I meant Dr. Riediger.

Q. How would this employee have found the negative without number? The negative is not numbered. Will you tell that to the Tribunal?

A. On the envelope will be the number of the negative inside it.

Q. Are you sure of that?

A. No, I am not quite sure, but it might have been filed under the name as well and she found it under the name.

Q. I hand you the envelope and will you tell me what you find on there?

A. That is the name and number written on it.

Q. Will you please compare pencilmark of the name and the number on the negative and the envelope and will you tell the Tribunal whether you see a difference?

A. Yes, the one on the top I wrote myself on the negative, no, I mean the envelope, and the other one my employee must have written.

Q When did you write the number?

Q At the same time? the 21st February 1942, this number and the name of Haensch were written by you on this envelope, is that correct? when the picture was taken. the same date approximately?

Q How is that -- will you explain that to the Tribunal? You have just said that you wrote it, the name and the number.

A I can explain that. I develop at the end of the day. I develop my negatives in the evening, and the next day they are sorted and filed when they are dry, and the name and number is put on them. that correct?

Q You have examined the envelope, by now, did you not--did you? Did you not examine the envelope, I said? ferent pencil than the name--is it not, Witness--please answer?

A I don't think that it was a different pencil.

Q You are here under oath. Did you not find when you just now examined the envelope that the pencil of the number is much fresher than the pencil of the name?

Q Very well. The Tribunal has the envelope before it. I would now turn to the page in this notebook. By whom was this filled out?

book, is that right. a place for the amount which was paid before hand, and the date. This is the normal form, is it not? Can you remember when Dr. Haensch gave the order that these pictures should be sent to his wife?

A No. I only found that again in the book. My employee wrote this down.

Q Was he more than one time in your place?

A No. He was there only once. pictures should be sent to his wife, is that correct?

Q Under "Street", however, here it is said, "Hartmannsweiler Weg 16", and between "Name" and "Street" there is squeezed in a second address, which is the second address?

A That is the address which Dr. Haensch gave where the sample pictures were to be sent to. place which is provided for it? down the home address, and then later on the custormer might have said, "but I would like to have it sent to another address", and then we added the address where it is to be sent to. In the large book I remember that immediately under this there is an order which also gave us another address where the pictures are to be sent to.

Q It would be then Number 392?.

A Yes, that is possible--'93, I believe.

Q You can find out there. It is in the large book. This is 393, is it not? If you will just look into that in this case, 393, where you gave as an example, too, there is only one address in it.

which you make? into this little notebook?

A No. I was not present, but here under 406 it says-

Q But I want your answer, do you, or don't you know how this second address came into the little notebook?

A I don't know offhand. My employee wrote it here in her own handwriting.

THE PRESIDENT: What about this illustration of 393, was that cleared up?

MR. HOCHWALD: Your Honor, 393 bears also a remark where the pictures were to be sent to, and the witness said it happened very often that it was to be sent somewhere, and I looked up in the book the number she gave, and just under 393 there is only one address, the address where the pictures were to be sent to. Possibly the witness will tell the Tribunal whether this contention of mine is correct.

THE WITNESS: Yes, this contention is right, but in my book it is shown repeatedly that the home address is written here and the sample prints are to be sent somewhere else. May I give you the numbers for this?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Witness, you volunteered that under 393, the double address will be found. Now, Mr. Hochwald tells us that a double address does not appear under 393. Do you want to offer any explanation as to why you said that under 393 there would be a double address?

A I cannot say this. Probably only this one address was given where it was to be sent to, but wherever I could get a home address.....

MR. HOCHWALD: Will you hand the clerk, the big book, please---will you hand it to me?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q Did you find some other number where you had two addresses?

A Yes, several. If possible, I always asked people to give me their home address in case fees have to be received so that I can have the home address to obtain these amounts.

MR. HOCHWALD: I have no further questions, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. RIEDIGER: photo of Dr. Haensch. According to the normal way of business, when could you assume that the rough prints would be ready to be sent off?

Q That is two to three weeks?

Q Then I have here this picture which was sent to me. Is this a copy of these plates?

Q Was it taken by you?

Q And can you determine when you made this copy?

A No. I cannot determine that now, but these must be the pictures which were sent to Hirschfelde.

Q But you can't determine this from the picture yourself?

THE PRESIDENT: Might the Tribunal see that picture? BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q What is your custom with regard to receiving payment for pictures?

A In most cases I have a small amount paid at the beginning; if they are acquaintances, I do not ask them to pay on account, and when the pictures are delivered, the rest is paid, but it happens repeatedly that the customers don't have any money with them, and then they pay for the pictures when they collect them.

Q Well, these pictures were sent to Mrs. Haensch?

Q Were they sent by messenger?

Q Then how did the mailman collect the money?

A I don't know whether it was sent by mail or whether Mrs. Haensch sent the money or whether she brought it herself-- I don't know. It is possible that my employee received it. call and pay?

A I don't know that any more now. delivered, wouldn't you?

A I don't know exactly. It is possible that it was sent later on, either the messenger brought it to me--I am not sure. pictures and later on the money would be paid? receive the money for the pictures?

PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, if you have no further questions to put to the witness, the witness may be excused.

DR. RIEDIGER: I have no further questions of the witness.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused and the defendant will be taken back to the witness stand. And you are instructed, witness, not converse or communicate with Frau Reich until such time as she has testified in the Tribunal. Do you understand that?

THE WITNESS: Yes, I know that.

MR. HOCHWALD: May I proceed, your Honor?

PRESIDENT: Please.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q Dr. Haensch, you have told the Tribunal that you were dismissed from your position in Doebeln as you made a report on behalf of the mayor with a difference of the kreisleiter? Is that correct? of this city administration on behalf of the city administration for the Foreign Office, namely, the SD.

Q Was it the only reason that made this report?

A Yes. I don't know what other reasons I might have had.

Q You did not know about the existence of the SD, is that correct? of the SS who were competent for such things. Only I heard about this for the first time through this SS leader; after the report had gotten into the hands of the kreisleiter, this SS man came to me and told me about it.

Q I would like to refer to Document Book IIIC; page 53, of the English, page 86 of the German; document No. 3261; Prosecution Exhibit 141. This document, Herr Haensch, is your life history which you made out yourself in August 1937 for your SS files. just above the heading, "page 5 of the original". It is in the middle of page 53 in the English, Your Honor. This paragraph needs, "on 15 February 1935 I entered the employment of the Municipal Administration Doebeln as an Assessor. There I was dismissed on 15 July 1935. The underlying cause were discrepancies between the Municipality and the NSDAP Kreisleiter (district leader) in the course of which I, in my capacity of confidential agent of the sub-Regional Headquaters of the Security Service Dresden, had given the Security service reports which through no fault of mine had come to the knowledge of the district leader."

Does that now show, Dr. Haensch, that this report of yours was made for the simple reason that you were the confidence agent of the SD? text, it cannot mean that . The life history was made a year and 3 months later, 1937, and at the request of the SS personnal office who wanted me to write a life history. As I can see, I wrote very briefly everything concerning the dispute in Doebeln, according to the truth. Of couese, I said that this report, was added to later on. It might have come into the hands of the kreisleiter that I made these reports; how else should I express it, as a trustee of the SD. As a confidential man of the SD, I did not know that at the time, I did it for the SS, but of course, I realized that the department to whom the report want was the SD. Therefore, it is quite right if a year and three months later I wrote it in order to explain what the situation was, I made these reports in my capacity as confidential man for the SD. the report the confidential agent of the SD, is that correct? man of the SD at the moment? I could not regard myself to be a confidential man of the SD but of the SS, but I heard afterwards that the department to whom this report was sent was the SD. In fact, it was like this, that this confidential report, which this is, I wrote as a confidential man of the SD. right?

A Yes. It does not say anything incorrect.

Q You have testified here, Dr. Haensch, that before you came or before you started your activities of Sonderkommando 4B you were instructed about your duties by Heydrich, by Mueller, the Chief of the Gestapo in the RSHA, by Thomas, the commander of Einsatzgruppe C, is that correct?

A Yes. That is not quite right. I was not introduced by Mueller in any way, and as I said, Heydrich simply bade me goodbye, and I said, as far as I can remember, what Heydrich said to me at the time. to your predecessor Braune, and to the commanders of the sub-commandos, is that correct?

A I talked to Braune, as far as I remember; a few days passed before I talked to the leaders of the subcammandos--before I could have talked to them -- I don't know exactly.

Q You spoke to him at the time you were in command?

whom know the Hitler Order, ever mentioned this order to you. I only want to recapitulate. Haydrich was the first person, very likely, who received this order. Streckenbach and Mueller had handed down the order. Thomas and Braune and the subcommando leaders undoubtedly have carried out this order. All these people were very familiar with this order.

None of them told you a word about it. Can you explain to the Tribunal how that could have happened?

and on the basis of all I have heard during the proceedings here, and I can assure the Tribunal that I thought about it seriously how this might have been cnnected. If I give an explanation now, it is an explanation I can give because I know about all the facts which have come in here. In my opinion things which had already been passed were discussed in the commando.

Q May I interrupte you for a minute? You said, "things which were in the past". We have reports here to which we shall come later. It is stated 6 of March, which shows between the first and sixth of March 1942, it is exactly ten days you came to Sonderkommando 4B, 1224 Jews were killed in Artenowsk, and that by this action Artenowsk was freed of Jews, that you cannot r member whether it is very much in the past, Dr. Haensch, this Fuchrerorder was not executed by your commando, Just exactly ton days before you came to be commander of Sonderkommando 4b? the Tribunal that at the very earliest I arrived on 15 March.

Q That is what you said? assume to have been event mentioned in the document should have occured shortly before. Perhaps, I may draw your attention to what I said yesterday. It is not true that this report appeared for the first time on 6 March. The same report is already contained in a report of events 27 February.

Q I think that you are mistaken. This is a report which covers a period between the first and the last of March, Dr. Haensch, and therefore it is absolutely clear that these killings were carried out between the first and the sixth of March.

I will show that to you. I wanted to show it to you later. The document is in Document Book IIIA.

This is Document 3876-PS. It is on page 42 of the English, Your Honors, and I don't know just now which page it is in the German.

It was page 57 of the German. There you came to Sonderkommando 4B. According to your own contention you have been there the 15th.

It was therefore that it did not appear like this.

Only it seems quite impossible to me, and I will prove this, but I don't understand one thing concerning this document.

This is the Situation Report of events No. 9 of the 27th of February.

were referring is by no means the report No. 9. It is the Report No. 11.

A No, that is the strange thing about it. I wanted In the Situation and Operation report No. 11 of the 23rd shooting of the Jews on the 23 of April, 1942.

Dr. Hochwald, I don't quite understand your explanation here.

I have read with my own eyes and perhaps Dr. Riediger will submit the a Situation Report, or Report of Events No. 9 of 27 February, Activity and Situation Report NO.

9. The document which you now submit to me is the Activity and Situation Report No. 9. That is, it is a copy on a -- on a -

Q You are mistaken. You will note it is No. 11. It shows that the period covered -

A No. 9.

Q I know it is No. 11. I can't help this. I can read.

A It states there No. 9. document, the report you have been referring to is the Report No. 11 and this report covers the period from the first to the last of March and in this report the killing of the 1,224 Jews in Artenowsk is listed, so if you -which you refer, No. 11 of the 23rd of April , 1942. The copy which I have in front of me here shows that time of report of 1 March until 31 March 1942, but what you mentioned to me before that -- what you named to me, is not the Situation and Activity Report No. 11, but a Situation and Activity Report No. 9, which you have opened in the book here and this Situation and Activity Report No. 9 is dated 27 February, 1942. I have seen that with my own eyes. The date is missing here. No date is anywhere, but it is neither the report 1 March -

DR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If Your Honors please, the witness, if I may say so, is a little bit confused. This Document 3876-PS, to which I referred, contains two reports, but the report about the killing of the 1,1224 Jews, which is also a part of Document 3876, and I have given the witness the page number. I think it is absolutely clear.

Q (By Dr. Horlick-Hochwald) Let us, without going into the document then, let us assume for a minute, Dr. Haensch, that what I have stated is correct, that these 1,224 people were killed just about ten or fourteen days before you came in and would it not be very strange that you have found no information, no trace, no oral statement, from one of your officers, no report from the officer who was in charge of Office 4 what had happened a few days before you came in?

to me, but there is one thing I would like to draw your attention to first of all and I shall explain this to you further in a minute; it is quite impossible in my opinion that this event should have happened so shortly before it was reported -

THE PRESIDENT: Now, Witness, please, please. I think the question has been answered. Mr. Hochwald put to you what was in the nature of a hypothetical question. "Let us suppose that 14 days before your arrival, this number of Jews had been killed. If that were true, it would be strange, wouldn't it, that there wouldn't be some talk about it?" And you answered it. "Yes, that would have been strange." That is the question and that's the answer.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Thank you very much, Your Honor, may I ask the next question?

THE WITNESS: Dr. Hochwald wanted -- well, I wanted to add something. In that case I won't do it.

THE PRESIDENT: No, you can add it, but what you are going to add there I think we know. It is your contention to deny that it did not happen. Is that what you are going to add, Yes or no.

THE WITNESS: I wanted to add that it really did not

THE PRESIDENT: All right, that's it. You have added it.

Next question, Mr. Hochwald.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Thank you very much, Your Honors.

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) It is correct that when you unchanged is that right?

Thomas?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald you might develop

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I was going to ask this question

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) Will you please turn to Document Book II-A. This is page 60 of the English, Your Honors, page 64 of the German.

This is Document 3405, Prosecution Exhibit 42.

Here you are mentioned as leader of Sonderkommando 4 B the 16th of January, 1942.

If I than the 15th of March to Sonderkommando 4B, is that right?

Q Therefore, you don't take responsibility for the killings of 861 persons by Sonderkommando 4B, which took place between the 14th of January and the 12th of February.

You deny any responsibility for that, is that correct? This is Document Book I, Your Honors, page 87, Document 3340, Exhibit 22. Document Book I. facts; these events did not take place during my time and I was not in Russia any earlier than, at the earliest, the 15th of March. that out of these people which were executed, 861 persons were killed because they were Jews? correct? I don't know if that is correct.

A You asked me is that right. I cannot give you any information or that.

Q I only asked you if you know that report. The only question -

A I see the report and I know the report. I saw from the document that it is the Report of Events of 25 February. other report about the killing of 1,224 Jews in Artenowsk, about which we have just spoken. This is in Document Book II-c on page 60 of the English, 64 of the German, Document 3240 of the Prosecution, Exhibit 80. which appear three dates, 27 February, or 6 March, and then at the latest on the 23rd of April.

Q How do you explain then, Dr. Haensch, if you were advised not to change anything in the management, in the executive measures of the Sonderkommando, how then suddenly, after you arrived, the general policy of Sonderkommando 4B to carry out the Hitler Order suddenly stopped?

Will you tell that to the Tribunal?

A I did not know the Hitler Order. I was not told of it, and during my time no Jews were executed at all just because they were Jews. I repeat this one thing: Such a thing neither occurred nor was it mentioned, or was ever expressed in my presence. I now ask you to give me an opportunity to explain why I say this and what I found concerning this and how I can explain this on the basis of the documents and how this was possible. May I state very briefly, quite briefly -

THE PRESIDENT: Suppose that this explanation be given after the recess. The Tribunal will be in recess 15 minutes.

( A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The tribunal is again in session.

DR. LINK ( for the defendant Felix Ruehl): Mr. President, for the sake of order I would like to point out that I am missing my client, Felix Ruehl. He was excused yesterday afternoon. The last time I saw him was at eight o'clock last night. May I call your attention to this.

THE PRESIDENT: WELL -- he has already been reported ill, and that is the reason he is not in court today, so you need not fear that you lost your client.

DR. LINK: Thank you, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, please Mr. Hochwald.

MR. HOCHWALD: Thank you very much, your Honor.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Before the intermission we spoke of the Hitler order, and I understood your testimony to be that understood your command, Sonderkommando 4-b never executed any Jews, is that correct?

A. I testified that no Jew was ever killed just because he was a Jew. I never found out what the Hitler decree was. I think I cannot remember, and I think I may say, that this was not the case -- that among the executions necessary during my time there wasn't any Jew, because he violated the laws of war. As I said, I cannot remember. I might be possible that a Jew might have been among them, but I don't know.

Q. But people who had committed crimes, or a crime, were executed actually by Sonderkommando 4-b, is that your contention?

A. Whoever committed a crime, and his guilt was ascertained beyond doubt, such person was made to bear the consequences.

Q. How did you obtain knowledge of such executions? Were reports made by the sub-commanders to you?

A. No. This concerns two executions within the sphere of my main command, and there the decisive word was said, under my leadership. Concerning both executions -- within the sub-commandos -- it was thus, that one took care of the Artemowsk sphere, and it occurred during an inspection trip on my part in Artemowsk that the sub-commander gave me information about these incidents. The sub-commanders were independent. I merely made an inspection of the sub-commandos. And the last execution, it was ture, - it was, as I said, in connection with this purification of the Russian break-in sector of the northern front, that is to say, in May, while I was in Prague, When I returned this frontal sector was in a flowing state, and, as I was told, there was a certain degree of insecurity, and I came there without any knowledge of the executions. I arrived when the local sub-commando had completed the executions. The execution itself had been completed, and the concerned persons, as the sub-commando told me, had been handed over to the sub-commando by the Wehrmacht after examination and decision had been made by that part of the Army concerned, with the order to carry out the execution; and in a discussion at the AOK I objected to this, that is to say, I requested that these executions not be carried out. My viewpoint was understood by the AOK -

Q. Do I understand you to say that all the time that you were in command of Sonderkommando 4-b only the four executions which you described to the Tribunal, in direct examination, were carried out?

A. Yes. Immediately, through the SK 4-b, these executions took place.

As I believe I said yesterday in direct examination, there were several large military partisan actions carried out against dangerous elements.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, you needn't repeat -

MR. HOCHWALD: I only wanted to ask him whether these four executions are the only executions which were carried out during his activity with Sonderkommando 4-b.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, please keep in mind that when a question is put to you, answer it directly; and if you have already gone into the field, it isn't necessary to repeat it. Just merely answer the question, and stop there. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Yesterday you gave the numbers of people executed in these four executions. You have said that in April there were approximately 25 people executed in Gorlowka; and in the same month, between 15 to 20 in Artemowsk; and then again in Gorlowka at the end of May, six to seven; and in Barvenkova, on the order of the Army, there were approximately 10 people. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So that would mean that all the executions carried out by Sonderkommando 4-b in the time between the middle of March and the middle of June 1942, would be approximately 60 people. Is that right?

A. Yes. Approximately. I cannot say the exact figure.

Q. Those, definitely, are all the executions which were carried out under your command?

A. These were all executions which became necessary, and of which I have knowledge, which were known to me; and I have no reason to assume that immediately from the Sonderkommando 4-b other executions were carried out.

Q. Let us speak now about the two executions in Gorlowka and the one in Artemowsk. Can you tell the Tribunal how you checked -- how, and by whom, these people who were executed there, were interrogated?

A. I think I gave an exact description yesterday, However, I can repeat it.

Q. You just tell the Tribunal whether you did check, or whether you did not check.

A. Yes, I knew exactly about the individual cases -that is to say, the decision in both these executions in the Gorlowka district. I also knew about the other executions and I was able to convince myself that these were only cases which occurred in accordance with law and order, and where the people concerned were actually proven violators against the laws of war and against security of the people.

Q. The decision about people to be executed in Artemowsk rested with the sub-commander, is that correct?

A. Yes, the sub-commander was authorized -- the sub-commander commands were independent -- and not only the sub-commander in Artemowsk. It happened thus, that I handled it in this way, that I received the information.

Q. The sub-kommando leader, as a matter of fact, was subordinated to you, was he not?

A. He was subordinated to me.

Q. And in principle -

A. That is not to say that we were responsible.

Q. In principle, then, you were the person who was ultimately to decide whether someone should be executed or not -- in the area of Sonderkommando 4-b, of course?

A. That is not quite correct. I was the final instance with the main commando in Golowka; the sub-commando leaders as such decided and could make independent decisions.

The whole situation and situation and structure showed this. They also cooperated with other military units and agencies.

Q. But you told the Tribunal just now that you got information about the execution in Artemowsk.

A. Yes.

Q. Would you have been able to reverse the decisions of the sub-kommando leader if you would have been of the opinion that the execution of a certain individual was not justified?

A. Yes, without any trouble. If I had become convinced that something was not quite in order, I certainly would have been able to do that.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal how long, actually, the whole procedure -- and that means investigation, interrogation of the defendant, interrogation of witnesses, and decision of the officers, and the supreme decision by you -took, in the case of an accused? The whole procedure from the moment when a man was arrested, to the moment you made your final decision that he was to be executed or was to be set free?

A. I really can't set that down. Each case had a certain number of facts, and the facts differed. It might happen -- please, I only cite these examples from my memory I have no single case in mind -- it might happen, and it happened in most cases -- yes, in most cases this happened, where a man was found to be in possession of pieces of unauthorized weapons - something which often happened or he was caught when committing acts of sabotage on buildings, warehouses, and railroad installations... BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Would the unauthorized possession of a weapon bring about the death sentence?

A. Whoever in the combat zone was caught with a weapon in his possession was to be sentenced to death, that is how the order was, yes.

Q. How many sentences did you authorize for that violation? How many executions did you authorize for that violation?

A. Mr. President, I can't say now which, or how many, of these cases were decided for this, or that, offense -or had to be shot for these offenses. That is why I emphasized before that I was only reconstructing these cases -- I know that in general it was that in Wehrmacht units over and over again it was pointed out, and it was discussed, with the reinforcement and the equipment of partisans, and the sabotage of civilians -

THE PRESIDENT: It isn't necessary to tell us that; I only asked you how many executions were ordered by you because the executees had been proven to have carried unauthorized weapons, and you answered you don't know. Stop. Next question. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. How many officers did you have in you unit?

A. I estimate, from my memory -- together with subkommando leaders, eight to ten. I may be mistaken, though. Eight to ten.

Q. That would be more than 10% of the complete strength, would it not?

A. Yes. I can tell you these sub-kommands -- there were one, two, three and then four -- four sub-kommands. There were four officers. Then there was a communication officer in the main command. There were five. The head of the executive department, that makes six. The interpreter in the main command, to my recollection also an officer.

Furthermore, one or two officers, I don't exactly remember -which were also in the command with orders concerning this enterprise Zeppelin. that is, they had this task Zeppelin, but it was not carried out. It was in the Army sphere.

Q. May I interrupt you, witness. The question was only -- How many officers did you have in you unit. Eight to ten.

A. Eight or ten. Perhaps up to ten. That is correct.

Q. Were investigations carried out by all of these officers?

A. I have already testified that the proceedings were as follows -

THE PRESIDENT: Stop.

Q. (By Mr. Hochwald) It would be much easier if you would say so and so many officers carried out investigations and executions. Nothing else was asked of you. You have already explained how it was. I did not ask you about the way it was carried out. I only want to know how many officers took part in these interrogations.

THE PRESIDENT: Put your question very specifically, now. Now, what is your question?

MR. HOCHWALD: The original question was -

THE PRESIDENT: Put your question now, BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Were investigations carried out by all officers of your unit?

THE PRESIDENT: Answer that.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. The next question. That is enough now. The next question. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. The Army passed the sentence. For instance, in the execution in Barvenkova, did you get any written findings on the part of the army authorities why these people actually were condemned to death?

A. No, just this was the reason why I went to the Army, to the high command. This sub-command had a local leader, a responsible local leader to carry out the orders of the Army unit. They had to carry out the orders for the execution. It may also be that the order came through from a superior office of the local unit.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, if you received no written account of the offenses, how did you review the evidence in order to determine whether the death penalty was justified?

THE Witness: Mr. President, I think there is a misunderstanding. I said that I was able to get the information, and to ascertain at the execution which took place in my sphere of the main command, which were at Artemowsk and at Barbenkova.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, Mr. Hochwald asked you if, when you were ordered by the Army to conduct an execution, you received at the same time a written record of the offense, and you said, no, is that correct?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. Now, he asked you if you didn't receive a written record outlining the offense committed by the person, that you were now to execute, how did you know what was his offense, and how could you review the evidence to determine whether it justified an execution?

A. Mr. President, the facts of the penalty for the crime committed by them were named to the sub-commander by the military person ordered to carry it out.

Q. Then you personally didn't review the facts, but the Army conveyed the information orally to the sub-commander leader, and the execution occurred?

A. Yes, in this case it happened. This was the occasion why I went to the Army High Command.

Q. Witness, Mr. Hochwald asked you about sixty executions which you testified to. You remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. There were sixty people killed under your orders?

A. Yes.

Q. Allright. Four separate executions, and sixty people in all, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now in each one of these instances, were you satisfied that the person to be executed had committed an offense which justified execution?

A. Yes, Mr. President, but -

Q. Very well. You have answered that. We will give you an opportunity to explain. Did you give the final order for the execution of these sixty?

A. No, not in all these cases, but I gave the order in twentyfive cases of the executions in my main command in Gerlowka, and, at the second execution it took place at the end of May, or at the beginning of June, at the main command in Gerlowka, and this concerned a group of six or seven persons....

Q. No, do not give us the number. There were sixty executed under your orders.

How many of these did you know about yourself? Sixty were executed because you gave the orders for them to be killed, that you have testified to several times. Now, how many of these sixty did you investigate yourself, or reviewed the evidence on?

A. The evidence? I only looked through the evidence and made a final decision for about twenty-five case, and seven that -

Q. All right.

A. (Continuing) came there after.

Q. That is thirty-two that you investigated yourself?

A. Yes.

Q. So that means that twenty-eight went to their deaths under your orders without your having reviewed the evidence?

A. No, Mr. President.

Q. Sixty were killed under your orders?

A. Yes, Mr. President.

Q. Thirty-two you investigated?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the difference between sixty and thirty-two? What is the difference between sixty and thirty-two?

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't hear that, the switch was not on.

THE WITNESS: The executions in the Artimowsk district must be added. These were the executions where the investigation was not conducted by the main command.

Q. Now, don't let us get away from the question. You say sixty were killed by your orders. Thirty-two you investigated, that leaves twenty-eight. Why did you allow these twenty-eight to go to their deaths without reviewing the evidence?

A. Apart from the ten cases, the last execution at Barvenkova, I was informed of these cased in Artimowsk, that is to say, I personally informed myself of these cased a couple of days before the execution took place.

Q. Then you investigated the whole sixty?

A. Yes, apart from the group of ten persons which were executed in Barvenkova.

Q. Well of each of the sixty cases which Mr. Hochwald mentioned, you yourself were satisfied that they committed and offense which merited death?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, all right.

A. (Continuing) -- concerning the reports I had to assume about some things on the basis of the reports submitted to no by the sub-commander.

Q. very well.

A. I had to, because I had to depend on what the military persons authorized to execute the orders.

Q. Very well. Now we come back to the question which Mr. Hochwald put to you a long time ago. When the Army sent through a request, or an order that certain persons be killed, because they had committed certain offenses, Mr. Hochwald asked you, if a written order, or a written report of the offense was sent along. You said, no. Then the question was, how could you then determine whether these deaths were justified if you didn't have the written record. Now please answer that question and them lot us proceed to something also?

A. Mr. President, these cases of executions which I was question on in Barvenkova became known to me when by accident I happened to the place, and the corresponding report about the respective orders of the Army units were given to no for information today. I cannot state exactly, from memory or with certainty, that the sub-commander received this order from the military officer, who had the right to give this order, and he was also told the crime itself which had been committed by the defendants. I considered this type of handling not correct, and I expressed my opinion to this effect at the AOK, namely, that in my opinion the Army when it conducted the investigation and made the decision itself should carry out the execution by its own commandos.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Mr. Hochwald, proceed, BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. How many executions did you watch yourself, Dr. Haensch?

A. Three executions were watched by myself and inspected. The fourth at Barvenkova, which is the one where I happened to be when the execution itself had been completed and carried out, but I was a witness to the fact that its took place.

Q. You did attend this execution in order to check with the directive as to the way how these executions were to be carried out, or actually complied with, is that correct?

A. I was not there during the whole time in every case, but I considered it my duty to make sure for myself that the executions were carried out in accordance with official instructions, that is to say, under observance of regulations that every thing must be done accordingly...

Q. So you actually watched three of the four executions which were carried out in your time, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you please turn to document Book III-C, Your Honor, that is, I want to refer to page 42 of the Document Book III-C, page 72 of the German. This is again the affidavit of the defendant and I quote from the bottom of the page, where he said: "I myself watched a few executions where possible. This was done in that manner so as to surprise the execution command with my sudden appearance," and, on the next page, in the middle of the next page, second paragraph, under the heading - - page 19 of the original, you said: "I myself watched three or four executions." Is it not apparent from the wording of this affidavit of yours, that much more executions than the three or four that you have been referring to must have been carried out according to your own statement?

A. I don't know how you - -

Q. I asked you - -

A. (Continuing) - - mean that.

Q. I asked you and you can say so; I just asked you your opinion whether you would not have had the feeling if you read the two passages, that you just made a check on the three or four executions in order to find out whether your orders were complied with, as to the way how these executions should be carried out, and, further, as a matter of fact, there were much more executions in that area than these three or four that you actually had seen?

A. I think this passage must be considered in connection with the whole.

Q. Was this your opinion that from your recollection only four executions were carried out in your time, is that right?

A. There was a special Sendercommando-IV-B. I already said I knew of no other which took place, or might have taken place.

Q. You had been twice absent during the time between the middle of March and the middle of June, 1942, when you were commander; you were twice absent from your commando, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. One was in April about fourteen days?

A. Yes.

Q. Yes, I was absent, either....

A. How long were you away in May?

A. I was absent in May for about, I believe, that was at least three weeks.

Q. And are you sure -

A. Yes, three weeks.

Q. Are you sure, as you said yesterday that you returned to your command between the 20th and 25th of May?

A. Yes I reckon so, that must have been around this time.

Q. So it can be assumed that you left Gerlowka in the first week of May, is that right?

A. Yes, to my recollection, if not, in the last days of April.

Q. In March - - from 15th of March to the first of April, you remembered having been with your commando?

A. Yes, to my recollection I must have been there.

Q. Will you tell the Tribunal when you appointed your deputy for the time or your absence?

A. That was automatic: It was the head of the executive department.

Q. Who was this officer?

A. It was an assessor by the name of Trieberg or Triebelt, who was substituted by another, namely, a Hauptsturmfuehrer, who was also a lawyer.

Q. I want to know the name now, do you understand? You didn't say the name?

A. Hussinger.

Q. What was the rank of the first deputy, I didn't catch the name?

A. To my recollection it was Obersturmfuehrer or Hautsturmfuehrer.

Q. What kind of orders in respect to executions did you give to these two deputies of yours during the time of your absence?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I didn't give them any orders concerning the manner of execution, or any such thing. I would not know in what mannor or shape I should have given such orders. It is quite obvious that in a frontal sector immediately behind the lines, no one can know what can happen next, as it actually happened during my absence.

Q. I shall ask you the question again, in the orders you gave these people - - I'll ask you specifically what kind of orders in respect to executions did you give to the people. I may be possibly a little bit more specific. You have told the Tribunal you were the person who had to decide upon whether a person should be executed or not. Did you tell these deputies when you left; "you have this decision in My absence," or, did you tell then "The cases had to be deferred until I returned, as I want myself--"?

A. No, no.

Q. - - (continuing) "To know whether these people are guilty or not."?

A. No.

Q. That is the question.

A. No. I had orders, express orders, in every case in my absence that my authority would go to the head the executive department, and, in both cases when I went to Kiev the following happened: I received orders to make the official trip, but I had to return - -

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment. Just a moment, witness, just a moment. Don't give that long story about you receiving your orders. If you want to tell us something which happened while you were away, now tell us in twenty-five words, as to what happened, what happened while you were in Kiev, if you are so anxious to tell us about that, allright.

THE WITNESS: Mr. President, I only wanted to tell of the fact that I had to return. I inquired in Kiev as I could not come in time for the discussion which was to take place there, and I considered it suitable to stay with the command. But I was told to come in any case--

THE PRESIDENT: Now, you -

THE WITNESS: (Continuing) and both deputies were entrusted with these matters. I want to emphasize this again.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, it is emphasized. Proceed. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Did you get any reports from your deputies when you returned from your two journeys? Did they tell you what they had been doing in your absence?

A. Yes. I remember the incident in.....

Q. Now may I interrupt you again. I didn't ask whether they reported to you, or whether they told you what ahppened. Can you say first you or no to that question?

A. Naturally, of course.

Q. By next question. Did they report to you about any executions which were carried out in your absence?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes or no?

THE WITNESS: I was told - -

THE PRESIDENT: Please answer the question. Did they report any executions to you. Now answer that, yes or no?

THE WITNESS: No. executions were reported to me by SE-IV-B. just want to say something - -

THE PRESIDENT: Now, witness. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal exactly in which area your Sendercommando operated?

A. The frontal sector of the 17th Army, Which ended in the south on the border of Gerlowka. Gerlowka to my recollection is at most twenty kilometers north of Staline. May I Point it cut to you?

Q. First, may I ask you for the information of the Tribunal at the same time another question.

A. (The witness goes over to the map located on the wall and talks)

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. All right. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: The northern part ended and the frontal sector at the time of my service on the border of Kramatorskaya. Unfortunately I have no exact map but to my recollection, but it must have been there near Gerlowka. I reckon it was about 120 kilometers distant. It might have been 150 kilometers.. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Is it correct that Shitomir, Rovno and Vinis belonged to this area where Sonderkommando IV-B operated?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I have already been asked during my interrogation about the cities of Rovno the Vinis. I never visited them, asked the cities never belonged within this sphere of Sonderkommando IVOB. May I ask you, Mr. Prosecutor, whether I may show you on the map where these cities are located.

THE PRESIDENT: You have indicated that these cities did no come within the area in which your Sonderkommando operated?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: I think that will be enough on it, thank you. BY MR. HOCHWALD:

Q. Will you turn to Document Book II-D, where I am referring to page 4 of the Document Book, I don't know for the moment just where the quote is in the German text, but in the English it started at page 1 of the Document Book. There it is said that Sonderkommando IV-B under you had operated and had location at Kramatorskaya, in units at Shitomir, Rovno and Vinnis. (continued with question)

Q. There it says that Sonderkommando 4b under you operated in the location of Kramatorskaya with units of Zhitomir, Rowno and Vinis, and the lines of communication Gorlovka? Is this entry in the report --which is in the report of 8 April at the time when you were in command, April 1942....

A. Yes.

Q. At the time when you were in command of Sonderkommando 4b. Is this entry incorrect?

A. Yes, that is correct, but the entry is false. The command-

Q. All right, you said it is incorrect. I do think that answers the question. Were you in Garlovka. Dr. Haensch. at the end of April and beginning of May? Try to remember.

A. As much, as exactly as I could, I endeavored to find out about it. As I said, it was either the end of April or the beginning of May that I left for Kiev the Prague.

Q. Do you think in late April or beginning of May a large-scale action against partisans and communication was carried out by your commando in the area of Gorlovka?

A. Yes, I testified to that yesterday in the direct examination It is correct that at the end of April and in the course during May, as I was told later on when I returned, that large partisan actions took place which were ordered by the Army and carried out by the Army and that officials of the SK-4b were requested to go along and took part in this action.

Q. Who took part in this action?

A. I can't say that. I really don't know that any more. With this action and executions, the commando and especially the commando leader had no decision and no investigation. This was a request for personnel, officials etc., for a purely military operation which was carried out by the Army.

Q. It is true or is it not true that members of a unit under

Q. Is it true or is it not true that members of a unit under your command took part in this action?

A. I already said that officials were requested.

Q. They were people actually under your command, or were they not?

A. Yes, they were otherwise part of my commando or my subcommando. For the duration of this action my commando powers expired and the officials concerned were under orders of the military units.

Q. Did you receive a report?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, the work is coming through "officials". Interpreter, is that the word? MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Yes, it is the correct word. He said there "officials".

THE PRESIDENT: "officials" I see. Very well, thank you. port to you about this action?

A. Certainly afterwards the corresponding reports were made to the responsible superior or whoever it was, the officials or senior leader. whoever participated, who went along with these officials, certainly they made reports afterwards.

Q. To you was this report made? You was this report made? You have received this report?

A. Pardon?

Q. You have received a report from the senior officer, the question was.

A. I was orally informed about it afterwards.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal from your own recollection, as you have received a report, some details about this question?

A. No, I really can't do that because it was thus, and I believe it was the same with other commands, that these military actions of a large nature and type which became necessary were carried out outside the jurisdiction of the command.

Certainly they were interested in the -

Q. All right. Then you say you can't say anything in detail any more in spite of the fact that you have received a report. I would like to refresh your memory on this point, and I want to offer Document No-5187 as Prosecution's Exhibit, I do think it is 184.

THE SECRETARY GENERAL: 185.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: 185. I beg the Tribunal's pardon. It is Exhibit 185 which is a report from the occupied Eastern Terrtory dated 5 June 1942. On Page 5 of this document, Your Honor will find Sonderkommando 4b. On Page 5 the Tribunal will find sonderkommando 4b listed under the command of the defendant, location, Gorlovka.

Q. (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) Will you turn now to Page 7. It says under the heading, "Page 4 of the original" - it is on the bottom of the page, Page 10 of the German.

A. Yes.

Q. "Several large-scale actions against partisans and Communists were carried out in the district of the Gorlovka Command in late April or early May 1942. 727 out of 1,038 persons arrested were given special treatment. Among them there were 461 partisans; members of destruction battalions, saboteurs, looters and some Communist activists and NKVD agents." Do you remember now anything about this action?

A. It says here -

Q. No, I don't want explaining what it said here. I asked you what you remember. Do you personally remember about this action?

A. I cannot remember individual figures.

Q. All right.

A. Apparently this concerns large-scale actions which took place at this time in frontal sector.

It says here: "in the commando district Gorlovka"

THE PRESIDENT: Please answer the attorney's question.

Q. (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) I did not ask you that. I asked you only whether you remember now anything about this action?

A. No, I only still know from memory that about this time saboteurs and bandits became especially strong, and that was apparently connected with the pressure by the Russians exerted from their breaking point in the north, since one knew since long ago that this individual point had to be cleared.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, you either remember this action or you do not. Mr. Hochwald asked you if you remembered this action. Now, please answer that once again. You answered it directly once, and t then you waiver. Now tell us specifically whether--

THE INTERPRETER: I am sorry, I couldn't get that.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, let's start over again. Mr. Hochwald asked you, after making it very clear just what he was talking about, whether you remember this action. Now, please answer that yes or no, then you can go into the details, but do you remember this action which appears?

THE WITNESS: Yes, but not details.

THE PRESIDENT: Now, you do remember the action?

THE WITNESS: I remember the fact that large-scale actions took place at this time.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. Now, proceed, Mr. Hochwald.

Q. (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald): Can you tell the Tribunal how many out of the 727 people who were executed were Communist activists and NKVD agents?

Mr. HORLICK HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I have only a very few more questions, but it will take very likely about five or ten minutes longer than the usual sitting time of the Tribunal.

May I be permitted to take a little bit longer?

THE PRESIDENT: Certainly.

Q. (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald): Then will you tell the Tribunal your commando or subkommandos of Sonderkommando 4b ever executed hostages?

A. No, I know of no shootings of hostages, and I am convinced that the Army and Wehrmacht never did any such thing.

Q. Did you command or the subcommando?

A. No, never.

Q. You have already said that your commando in the time when you were in charge never shot any Jews in great numbers, is that cor rect?

A. Yes, and I especially said that Jews were never executed just because they were Jews, It just couldn't be possible.

Q. Can you remember an incident where insanes were shot by your Sonderkommando?

A. No, never, and I may add to this that I heard of these matters for the first time from documents which I read here. I never knew that such things happened.

Q. Such executions of hostages, Jews and eventually of insanes, of course could not have been carried out at the time when you were in charge of the command without your knowledge and approval, is that correct?

A. Yes. I consider that impossible, completely impossible, that such a thing could have happened without my knowledge, and I may say to the Tribunal by explaining the following--

THE PRESIDENT: You have answered. The next question.

Q. (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) I would like to hand you situation Report NO. 188.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, if you are going to refer to another document, I am afraid it might take longer than what you indicated.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: I definitely do not think so, Your Honors. These are two very short documents which I want to put in, but if the Tribunal pleases, of course I can defer my questioning until tomorrow.

THE PRESIDENT: We will be glad to remain another five minutes, only because of an appointment which has been made. Otherwise it wouldn't matter if you stayed another hour, but five minutes will be entirely in accordance with our plans.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: I do think I can have it finished in five minutes, Your Honor.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am glad you have such faith in the witness.

Q. (By Mr. Horlick Hochwald) Take a look into situation Report No. 188 which is Document No. No-5941. This is only offered to show the location of the Sonderkommando 4b on the 1st of April, and I would like Your Honors to note that at that time the location was again Zhitomir. Do you recall, Dr. Haensch, that between the 28th and 31st of March when you admit you were with Sonderkommando 4b approximately 440 persons were specially treated, that is killed, is it not, by sonderkommando 4b in Zhitomir?

A. No.

Q. You said no?

A. Sonderkommando 4b had nothing to do with Rowno and Zhitomir. It is impossible in point of space. Rowno and Zhitomir are by direct distance at least seven hundred kilometers behind Gorlovka, behind the front. Furthermore -

Q. So it si contention that this report No. 188 of the 1st of April, 1942, is incorrect?

A. It is wrong to the extent --- It also says here Vinis, whereas in other reports it says Vinnitsa. I also want to make an explanation to the effect that kommando SD 4b on 19 December, according to the report of 19 December was in the Artemowsk district in Kramatorskaya, it was stationed there. According to situation Report of the 19 December 1941 in Artemowsk, these executions of Jews took place and afterwards by the 5th or 6th of January.---

THE PRESIDENT: Just---

A. (Continuing) in Rowno or Zhitomir was never indicated. It is impossible, therefore, that suddenly a front kommando, a subkommando, was moved seven hundred kilometers.

THE PRESIDENT: You see, this is in the nature of argument, Witness, and you want to leave something for Dr. Riediger to do. That is his forte, to argue the case.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: and to introduce Document No-3238. As these two documents,NO-5941 and 3238 belong together, as the first report gives only the location without which the whole second report would not be understandable,I would suggest they be given Prosecution No. 186-A and 186-B.

THE PRESENT: Very well.

Mr. HORLICK HOCHWALD: On the first page of this report it is stated that the location and communications as reported in Situation Report NO. 188, which I have just handed to the Tribunal, remain unchanged, and now I would like to quote from the excerpt which we have made from the document.

"Einsatzgruppe C:

Location, Kiev:

- - - - - - - unknown vandals desecrated the soldier's cemetary in Gayssen, "Shitomir.

50 hostages from Gayssen and vicinity were "From 26 March up to and inclusive 31 March a total of 434 persons were subjected to 'special measures'.Q. (By Mr. Horlick Hochwald) Does that mean killed, Herr Haensch, 'special measures'?

THE WITNESS: The witness says executed.

THE PRESIDENT: The witness say executed.

A. The terms of this report this probable means killed.

Q. "The figure breaks down as follows: 33 political officials; 48 saboteurs and plunderers; 352 Jews, and 1 insane." Do you want to change your statement that Sonderkommando 4b under your command never shot any Jews?

A. No, I do not want to change my testimony, Sonderkommando 4b had nothing to do with Zhitomir and Rowno during my time, and at this time there was a Dr. Ratzeberger in charge of the SD in Zhitomir and was stationed there with a corresponding command of the SD, as is apparent from the situation report of the 27th of March, Docu ment 3236. This report gives the compilation of location, Zhitomir, and commander Dr. Ratzeberger, and in Rowno, Dr. Puetz. The grotesque thing about this is that it was said again that SK 4b, and 4b is listed in Rowno and Zhitomir. I can't explain this, and I do not remember it, that when these offices were set up, that when the commandos were set up in Zhitomir and Rowno, that the order was given perhaps by the Einsatzgruppe, that men would have to be appointed for their experience in the East.

Q. I ask the Tribunal's pardon. It is only one very short question. Was this unit a part of Einsatzgruppe C?

A. Yes.

MR. HORLICK HOSHWALD: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow morning at nine thirty.

( The Tribunal adjourned until 4 December 1947, at 0930 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II.

PRESIDENT: The Tribunal desires to make an announcement. There will be no session of the Tribunal tomorrow, Friday, so that when we adjourn this evening we will be in adjournment until next Monday morning. Proceed, Dr. Reidiger.

DR. RIEDIGIR: Your Honor, first of all, I would like to have an explanation by the prosecution. I would like to point out the following: Yesterday, the prosecution introduced Document No. 3238. In ;the excerpt of the copy of this document there are only two paragraphs. one is "in Shitomir" and so forth as part of the investigation, "50 hostages", first, "these were arrested," "half of them were shot". The next paragraph I quote, "In the time from 28 March until -- inclusive of 31 March, altogether 434 persons were given special treatment". In the photostatic copy of the original there are several paragraphs before these two paragraphs. In the previous paragraphs several other places are named, so that the second paragraph in the copy does ot only refer to Shitomir but also to the proceding paragraphs, and I am interested to show that the prosecution will clarify that the paragraph which mentions that all the 434 persons were given special treatment refers only to Shitomir and, therefore, wants to charge the witness with this or whether the context clearly shows that this paragraph refers to all the localities which could never have had anything to do with SK 4B.

PRESIDENT: Well, what you would like to do then is to introduce the entire document?

DR. REIDIGIR: Yes.

PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Hochwald.

MR. Hochwald: If the Tribunal please, the entire document is in evidence.

We have only made a part translation, but we have put the whole document into evidence.

So Dr. Riediger, of course,

PRESIDENT: Where is it?

MR. HOCHWALD: It is in the keeping of the General Secretary.

As far as I know. the General Secretary left the photostatic copy which is the exhibit to Dr. Reidiger over last night so that Dr.

PRESIDENT: Well, Dr. Riediger, you may take from the document

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes, but I would like to har from the prosecution the charges of the defendant.

In my opinion the defendant has to

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Trubunal please, this document was intro not.

The only argument which we have to make is the argument that the document has probative value.

This fact is not denied by the defense.

I do not think that there is another argument from the part of the prosecution necessary at this time.

We will argue the PRESIDENT: Have you introduced the whole document?

MR. HOCHWALD: We have introduced the whole document. It is the ruling of the Tribunal that the document is always introduced in its entirety.

What is before the court is only a partial translation but the document is introduced in its entirety.

PRESIDENT: Very well. Dr. Riediger, you can comment on this to any degree you desire in your closing argument. It isn't necessary that the matter be argued now. The prosecution has introduced the entire document. He h s translated a part so that he could examine the witness on it. The witness was cross examined on the part which Mr. Hochwald introduced, so there is nothing further to be done now. You have the document and you may quote as much of it as you desire in your document book.

MR. HOCHWALD: I only want to add, Your Honors, that these two documents which I introduced are among the situation reports which were at the disposal of the trial on. As Your Honors know, we have photostatic copies made of all these reports, whether we have them introduced into evidence or not, and these two documents were from the beginning of the tiral at the disposal of the defense, so the defense knows or could have known these documents.

PRESIDENT: Well, I think the matter is cleared up now, Dr. Riediger. All right, anything further on it, Dr. Riediger?

DR. RIEDIGER: No, thank you.

PRESIDENT: Do you have any redirect of your witness--any redirect examination of your witness, or are you finished with him?

DR. RIEDIGER: No. If I may, I have two more question to ask the witness. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q Dr. Haensch, you said yesterday that Shitomir did not belong to your commando district, in particular, as this would be impossible from the point of view of distance. You stated that Shitomir was about 700 kilometers away from your commando?

Rowno, not only did not belong to the commando area of SK 4B, so that the commando had nothing at all to do with Shitomir or Rowno, nothing even concerning personnel or anything else. Sonderkommando or Einsatzkommando--what could they have done in an area where civil administration existed? Apart from that, the figure "700 kilometers" I gave as an approximate. I have no map. And I merely mentioned this because I remember this approximately, that the distance by air to Kiev was 550 or 600 kilometers. I don't lmpw mpw jpw far tje ptjer 1/2;aces are away from Kiev, but during the discussion I heard when leaving last night that this is not quite right, 700 kilometers, but that it is 1,500 kilometers rather, the distance between those two cities from the area where the SK 4B was during my time.

Q. Dr. Haensch, how do you explain the circumstance that in the report of events of 27 March 1942, Document Book IIIA, page 92, No. 3236, and also in later ones, Shitomir, a special commander for the security police and the SD is named?

A. How shall I explain this. The fact is proven by the fact that during that time permanent officers of the German police were in the area of the civilian administration and, therefore, as I said yesterday, from that point of view it does not make sense that there should have been another police unit or another Einsatzkommando there.

Q. On the other hand, in reports of events which preceded this one, -- Your Honor, I shall bring this in detail in another document book, -- I would only like to start this question. On the other hand, in previous situation reports it is mentioned that parts of SK 4B were in Shitomir, Winniza, and Rowna, in the report of events of 12 January '42.

A. That is incorrect that it is always mentioned that parts were there, but it suddenly appears, this report of events, I believe, during the middle of January, and then suddenly they stop in between. I think I remember there is another report where this is not mentioned, and explanation.

Q. Do you consider the contents of the situation reports incorrect in so far?

A. Yes. I must consider them to be incorrect. SK 4B did not have any parts there, or had anything to do with these locations.

Q. Dr. Haensch, I would like to refer to the other document which was submitted yesterday. It is the report from the East of 5 June '42. This report also contains in it "Commmando Region Gorlovka". I quote: "At the end of April, beginning of May 1942, several large actions were carried out against partisans and communists. From 1,038 arrested persons, 727 received special treatment. Among them were 431 partisan, members of destruction battalions, saboteurs, plunderers, and also a few communist activists and NKVD agents". According to this, these events are supposed to have happened at the end of April, beginning of May 1942.

Did you hear anything about this, and to what extant did this action take place?

A. I already explained yesterday that at the en -

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Riediger, the witness' first words already indicate the lact of necessity to go into this again. He says, "As I already explained yesterday". Now, if he has already explained, it is unnecessary for him to repeat his explanation. If you find there is something which he should state in addition to what he stated yesterday, some angle which he did not touch upon, then direct his attention precisely to that angle, but don't have him repeat the explanation he gave us yesterday.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, I do not intend to have the witness repeat his statements.

THE PRESIDENT: But you see how he started out, didn't you?

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes-- only I believe this was not quite clear yesterday when the witness explained it yesterday, and that is the reason ....

THE PRESIDENT: The witness is saying, "As I explained yesterday". Now, we don't want him to tell us what he explained yesterday. Let him tell what there is to state additionally to that. Call his attention to that. BY DR. RIEDIGER:

Q. Were those measures which were carried out by SK 4B itself?

A. These investigation or decisive measures which were carried out had nothing to do with SK 4B, but here there were large anti-partisan activities. I don't know any more now how many there were, but I know that such anti-partisan operations took place about that time, carried out by the special unit of the army assigned to this.

And I know that in individual cases, I don't know whether on one occasion or on two occasions. I don't know how many there were there, individual officials from the commando or subcommando were asked to support the secret field police.

Q. Were you present with SK 4B while these actions were carried out?

A. No. This was during the time when I was on my journey. I only know that shortly before either I knew that these actions were going to be carried out, but I don't know any more whether already then the request had been made to the commando to detail officials. I don't know that any more. I don't know whether I heard this afterwards in reports.

DR. RIEDIGER: I have no further questions to ask the witness, but I have another request. Yesterday the prosecution submitted two documents of importance. I, therefore ask that I might be allowed some time to obtain some evidence against this.

THE PRESIDENT: The defense counsel will always have an opportunity to present any evidence which is relevant. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Witness, you leave the stand, I would like to direct your attention to your own handwritten statement prepared this summer, which contains in all 36 pages. You recall this statement, do you?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of the fact that in this long statement which you wrote up yourself that you do not mention the word "Jew" once?

Do you recall that? Now, please answer that "Yes" or "No".

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. Very well. Was this question of the Jew so utterly unknown to you that it did not occur to you in writing, this long story of your activities, to mention the Jewish problem once?

A. Your Honor, this statement was made by me in order to correct and clarify questions which had been asked in previous interrogations. On the question of executions of Jews, merely because they were Jews, I was never questioned. The fact was brought to me for the first time not in the form of a question but in the form of a fact, that the fuehrerorder existed, after this affidavit which I made. I only commented on those question which were mentioned to me at the time.

Q. Very well. Now, on page 69 of your original, you relate a conversation with Heydrich, and you stated, "I recall that Heydrich impressed upon me always to keep before my eyes the cruelty of the Bolchevists". Heydrich said nothing about the Jews being Bolchevists? I ask you whether he did or not.

A. He did not say the word "Jew"

Q. He did not mention "Jews" at all in the entire conversation?

A. No.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q. Very well. And he asked you that you were to look after the welfare of the kommando members relating to the proper accommodations and personal needs. Do you affirm that?

A. Yes, Your Honor, he was particularly keen on this and he emphasized this particularly, also towards Streckenbach, when there was a danger of typhoid fever.

Q. And he also impressed upon you the necessity of watching over the life of each German soldier. That is on page 6 of the original. Do you affirm that?

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. Very well. On page 14 of original, you relate in some detail an episode when the Army had ordered the search of a village, because, according to a report, German soldiers had been shot there and some of then killed or wounded. Do you recall that episode?

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. And you say that upon investigation it was determined that no one had been shot at, no one had been wounded and no one had been killed, is that right?

A. Yes, your Honor.

Q. As a matter of fact, all that had happened was that A German's rifle had been fired off accidentally?

A. Yes. There were ........

Q. Very well, so therefore in some of these reports about atrocities committed on German soldiers, there was the possibility of error, wasn't there?

A. Yes, absolutely, as this case showed, your Honor.

Q. Yes. Do you know who it was who made the incorrect report originally? Was it a German officer?

A. That was -- I don't know whether it was an officer, but I presume so, but in any case it was a report which was received by the Army from some unit, some local unit there. Whether it was transient column I don't know, or whether the local commander sent it, I don't know, and this report was then sent on to the competent men with the Army who dealt with this.

That is why I remember this incident.

Q. But one officer was reprimanded, wasn't he, because of this incorrect report?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Very well. On page 15 of your original you stated that in executions you observed no excesses on the part of the kommando members?

A. Yes.

Q. How what excesses could there be? They performed the ultimate harm that can come to a human being. They killed him. Now what do you mean by an excess? When you have an execution you have the ultimate and complete excess of snuffing out the life of the subject. Now what do you mean by an excess? What more could they do to a man beside kill him?

A. Your Honor, the killing of people which was necessary on these occasions, they were not excesses. These were persons who were proven to be guilty.

Q. Witness, perhaps I didn't make myself clear. You said in your statement, "I never, not even subsequently, observed any excesses on the part of the kommando members, even at executions."

A. Your Honor, Mr. Wartenberg, I don't quite know now -- told me things and charged me with things which upset no very much and it appeared as if he thought as if people had been tortured.

Q. Very well. I understand what you mean. What you mean is that the victims were not subjected to torture or painful treatment prior to the moment that they were actually shot.

A. Yes.

Q. Very well. Your kommando was equipped with sub-machine guns, as well as rifles, that is correct, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, your kommando had a predominance of sub-machine guns, as against rifles?

A. Your Honor I don't know for sure any more; as far as I remember, it seams to me as if the men mostly had sub-machine guns. But I can't........

Q. All right, I just wanted to check on that. You say that certificates of death were made out. Do I understand that in each case of an execution, a death certificates was written out fir each person executed.

A. Your Honor. I did not say that.

Q. Well, I read from your affidavit or your statement "And the carrying out of the executions, including the issue of the certificate of death by a medical orderly."

A. No, your Honor, I could not have said that. I would like to compare it to the original.

DR. RIEDIGER: (Attorney for the defendant Haensch): In the German text, as far as I know, the sentence is not contained. I will just have a look.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, will you please do so.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I do think it would be advisable if the Secretary-General would get the exhibit.

THE PRESIDENT: The document itself. Would you please give me the German translation now?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, he is now trying to locate it -- on page 16 of the original, the first sentence onpage 16 of the original.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, it reads here as I think I said it. It says here, "Including the determination of death by the medical officer, the responsible officer, or the Party official." In the original it probably says, "by the medical officer and the competent officer, or the General officer."

Q. (By the president) What was meant then is that after the execution one of your men, a medical orderly, or otherwise, made certain that the subject was actually dead. Is that what you mean?

A. Yes.

Q. Not that an official death certificate was written out?

A. No.

Q. All right; still talking about executions, you say, "I do not recall either ever having heard a cry of pain."

A. Your Honor, I only wrote this into my affidavit, because of the charges made against me. I cannot remember during these events which I witnessed and which, as I can only repeat, of course, moved me very deeply, ever having heard a cry of pain. I must even say, I have never seen a movement or a sign, from these people. I never saw as far as I remember, any sign of emotion. That is what I am trying to explain.

Q. You mean that of these 60 whom you actually saw killed, not in one instance was there ever a cry of protest or of self-pity or of any indication that great sorrow was upon then because of what was about to happen?

A. Your Honor, no, as I said, I never heard a cry of pain or anything like that ever.

Q. On page 21, you say, "In this connection I must point again to the monstrous suspicion against me, that the persons to be executed were placed before a grave, shot, and their bodies thrown into it." Now what was monstrous about this? You yourself directed the execution and certainly they were shot and certainly their bodies were placed in the grave. Why do you use the phrase, "The monstrous suspicion against me."

A. Your Honor, this is in connection with my interrogations. This affidavit and I may explain this now; at my request to have an opportunity to explain, I was given this opportunity; after I had been asked to put my signature under the transcript, the contents of which did not give exactly what I had tried to express and in this transcript it was put in such a manner as if the people who were to be shot would be placed before the grave and were shot in front of the grave; and may I add here that I know for certain that this never happened and that special instructions were given from the execution Department that it had to be watched closely that the grave and the place of internment was not at the same location as the place where the persons concerned were being executed.

Q. From which department did that directive come?

A. Those were instructions which already existed, and, as far as I remember, they probably were given by the Einsatzgruppe, but it can only be like this because the Einsatzgruppe -

Q. Please answer the question. I asked you from which department did this directive come that you told us about?

A. These instructions concerning the way it was to be handled, accordind to special -

Q. Will you please answer that question. It is a very simple question. You have told us that there was a directive that the victims should not see the grave into which their bodies were to be placed. From where did these directives come?

A. From the Einsatzgruppe.

Q. From Einsatzgruppe C?

A. Einsatzgruppe C.

Q. Now, you do know, don't you, that in many, if not in most cases, the victims actually were placed right in front of the anti-tank ditch into which the bodies were to be later placed?

A. Your Honorr, I learnt this during the trial here in a few cases, or in one case in the trial here when this subject came up.

Q. Very well. All right. Let's proceed to something else. Now, how soon after your picture was taken did you leave for the East?

A Your Honor, I don't know exactly, but I can only say, as far as I remember, that would be perhaps about eight days later. Either that is what I said right at the beginning on my very first interrogation, in the last days of February, or in the first few days of March.

Q. Can you get this please? Just answer the question. Now you left about eight days after the picture was taken?

Q All right. Where were you living at the time? Where were you living at the time?

Q Where, what address?

Q Were you living there with your wife? be sent to her at another address? have my picture taken again. I myself never thought of it and never had the intention to do so; by phone I called up my parents from Berlin several times, and there my parents and my father asked me to have my picture taken, and, as far as I remember, your Honor, but I don't know for certain just now, I believe after my departure my wife travelled to my parents. your wife? giving the address of my parents' house. My wife, possibly, yes, I even believe it was so, at the time immediately afterwards visited my parents. This was connected with my mother's recovery. My wife visited my mother Court No. II, Case No. IX.

early in January and looked after her and then she helped her later on and at Neisse.

Q Where were your parents living?

Q At what number?

Q Who actually paid for the pictures, your wife or your parents?

A Your Honor, I don't know that any more now; I assume -parents were to pay or your wife was to pay?

A I don't know any more, Your Honor. Generally, I paid things myself; I presume that I might have paid, but I am not sure.

Q Who eventually got the pictures, your parents or your wife? that day?

THE PRESIDENT: The witness will be returned to the defendants' dock.

Oh, you have another question?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD : Yes, if the Tribunal please, I will have two or three questions which came up during the examination. Here is the document, NO-4567, the affidavit of the witness and the witness possibly can read to the Tribunal now the sentence which was in question.

THE PRESIDENT: On page 16. Will you help him to find it, please, Mr. Hochwald. He seems to be having difficulty.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Yes, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, it says page 13 here and then page 26, and the photostatic copy is done in such a manner that I cannot recognize it at all.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you find it, Mr. Hochwald?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD : If the Tribunal will kindly tell me - that is a sentence about an orderly?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWAID: Page 16. I do think this is it, but I am not sure.

THE PRESIDENT: If it corresponds -

THE WITNESS: "Inclusive", your Honor, "Inclusive determination of death by the medical officer or by the officer, or by the trained NCO -- this was established."

THE PRESIDENT: That is what he explained, so that clears that up. BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD:

Q Dr. Haensch, I have one question about your picture which was taken from you. Do you remember to whom you gave the order that the samples of these pictures should be sent to your parents? Did you give this order to the Witness Schreyer or did you give this order to somebody else? heard -- I -- probably gave the order immediately when the picture was made --it is true, at the time -- but it is possible that my wife came there later and said "I am leaving now to see my parents at Hirschfelde" and to send the pictures, but I don't know anymore. of yesterday, to Witness Schreyer, or a third person. I do not want you to tell the Tribunal what you head from the witness yesterday. I do want you to tell the Tribunal what you remember.

A Well, I can only tell you I don't know any more. I cannot remember it.

Q Another question. You have referred, when questioned by the Tribunal, you have referred to the interrogations which were carried out previous to your executing this affidavit, which is before the Tribunal and you have given the reason to the Tribunal that you never mentioned Court No. II, Case NO.

the word "Jews" in your affidavit for the simple reason that nobody asked you anything about Jews in these previous interrogations, is that correct?

A That is not correct. I did not say so, either. I said I was never asked before about the execution order and also I was not asked whether Jews were shot for being Jews only, but merely, I believe, during the first interrogation, immediately, I was shown reports which mentioned a great number of persons who were supposed to have been shot by my kommando at the time, among them Jews. Thus, merely in this connection I was told about this and charged with it. I was asked again afterwards in detail. In my affidavit I referred to those questions which had brought about misunderstandings and clarified them; that is, during the interrogations where these misunderstandings occurred, I tried to correct this with Mr. Wartenberg and Mr. Wartenberg said immediately, "Alright then, we will cross this out and then we will correct this, or make a new affidavit." a great number of Jews were executed? remember that? Did you yourself say something about the Jews in this interrogation previously? that this was one of the important questions of the interrogation? given to me and submitted to me and I immediately said, I said, that it is impossible, it is not understandable, because there were no Jews -that right? You yourself reacted to these reports by saying, by denying that there were so many Jews?

then -well, can you tell the Tribunal what you told the interrogator then about executions in this interrogation. your first interrogation? You have been all the time referring to this. as I said during the interrogations and in my affidavit. During the interrogation I was in such a state of excitement -- as I was during these interrogations -- that I could not say at all what I wanted to say. I myself, was so upset because of these reports which the prosecutor gave me that I just could not say anything further and apart from that constantly charges were made against me and I get so upset about this and so excited that I could not give a reply.

Tribunal, about the sixty people who were killed in four executions, very detailed, about the time, the place and everything or just what did you tell him?

A Mr. Prosecutor, Mr. Wartenberg did not ask me about this.

Mr. Wartenberg wanted -

Q I do not want you to tell --tell us "no" if you like. Tell us now, "I did tell him that", or "I did not tell him that"; you answered that, "I was not asked by Mr. Wartenberg"; -- you were asked by me, and not by Mr. Wartenberg. me to describe one execution to him. I was to describe an execution to him from my memory; and there he wanted me to name a total num ber of people killed. That is what he wanted to have at the time -- the total figure was impossible for me to give. I constantly refused to do this.

Q Why did you do that? The witness doesn't answer, and tells a story which is no answer to the question.

THE PRESIDENT: Please put the question again, and we will see that you get an answer.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) Did Mr. Wartenberg ask you whether you knew how many peopl were shot during your time?

THE PRESIDENT: Now please answer that -- yes or no?

A (By the witness) Yes.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) Did you not yesterday, limit this number very specifically to approximately sixty people who were shot in four execution?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, or no?

A (By the witness) Yes.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) Did you give this same explanation and information to Mr. Wartenberg?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes or no?

A (By the witness) I replied to his question, "How many were shot during one execution? " -- that is what he wanted to know -I told him, as far as I remember it must have been small groups -in my opinion a group of persons numbering between fifteen and thirty. That was the impression I got. I named this figure to Mr. "artenberg.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) Did you tell that in the first interrogation on the 8th of July 1947?

A (By the witness) I no longer knew. I don't think so. I don't think I was asked. time?

THE PRESIDENT: But you didn't finish your question, Mr. Hochwald.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) The question, is -- Do you remember when the question, "How many people were killed during your time", was put to you the first time.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you remember now?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. He does remember. Put your next question.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) Was that the first interrogation in Nuernberg? to you for the first time?

Q How many people were shot in your time? question was, for the first time, put to you?

Q Why did you do that? Why did you do that? at that moment--I well--I could not remember just then what, and how many persons were killed at the time, because they had to be shot, because I knew -- I immediately remembered -- the SK 4-B had -- I emphasize this -- to execute smaller groups, and I ....

Q Witness, you do not answer my--My I? -- You do not answer my question. I want to tell the Tribunal whether you gave to the interrogator, when first interrogated here in Nuenberg, the same information about these four executions -- whether sixty people were killed at three different places which you have stated here in direct and cross examinations.

Nothing else do I want to hear from you - about examinations? Is that right or not?

A That is not true. I said, I refused to name -- when I was tortured again and again, in the end -- please understand me, now -I was so excited when I was asked again and again for a figure, I said "No, I cannot do this, I cannot name a figure. It would not have any basis." He did not ask me for a figure -- for a certain figure, a total figure "what happened during your time " -- and he later asked for the figures of the three executions mentioned -- I said fifteen to thirty persons.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, when you use the word "tirture", I presume you meant figuratively?

THE WITNESS: Yes. That is what I meant.

Q (By Mr. Hochwald) Is it not true that I have asked you the same question; I have asked you know many people were shot by your kommando during your time. You said, "approximately sixty." Absolutely the same question that was put to you in the interrogation. I, also, want an actual figure. A general figure -- nothing else.

A No, Mr. Hochwald-

THE PRESIDENT: I am afraid now it is becoming argument.

MR. HOCHWALD: I withdraw the question. I only want to put in, the interrogation in question, of course.

THE PRESIDENT: That's all right.

MR. HOCHWALD: This is Document NO-5572, and that will be Prosecution Exhibit 187, as far as I know.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Dr. Riediger, do you want to say anything further, before we withdraw the witness?

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, may I use this occasion to say that an expert should determine how old the document is in the photograph book. A chemical expert find out when this entry was made, approximately, whether these entires were made -- at least whether they were made several years age. It seems to me that this would clarify the case. The book can be put at the disposal of the Tribunal at any time.

MR. HOCHWALD: It is a matter of course that the Prosecution has no objection against such a submission by Defense counsel. However, I think it is premature at this time. It is the contention of the Prosecution that it would be more convenient to first hear the Court witness, who herself, allegedly made these entires, and then, eventually, call an expert on the hand-writing.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

DR. RIEDIGER: At the proper time I shall repeat my request.

THE PRESIDENT: That will be entirely in order.

The witness will be returned to the defendants' dock. And the defendant Nosske will be taken into the witness stand.

Dr. Riediger please, I would suggest that you give the exhibits, numbers -- defendant exhibit numbers -- then they can officially become part of the records of the Tribunal.

DR. RIEDIGER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: If you have not yet presented any exhibits, you may start with "One." I would suggest you to do that, Dr. Riediger.

I would suggest -

DR. RIEDIGER: I beg your pardon, your Honor. I overlooked that a new document is being submitted now. Please give me an opportunity to look at this, and state my opinion.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, does this have to do with the case just finished.

Mr. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I just have introduced the interrogation about which the cross examination was concerned. This is new. This is a new document, 5572. And I think it is Prosecution Exhibit 187, is that right?

THE SECRETARY GENERAL: Correct.

MR. HOCHWALD: And I have offered it as such, about ten minutes age.

DR. RIEDIGER: Your Honor, the document is rather long, and I shall hardly be able to read it through at the moment. I therefore want to ask that I be permitted to refer to this document later on, Iwant to reserve this right. I must give it to the defendant Haensch first; in particular, I must reserve the right to make objection against the submission of this document. I can't do this at the moment, of course, because I don't knew the contents.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, the contents of the document, certainly, are not based for objection by Defense counsel. Defense counsel has the possibility of saying the document is a forgery, or to say it has no probative value -- but as to the contents -

THE PRESIDENT: Well, in any event, Dr. Riediger has the right to examine it, and he cannot do it in a few seconds.

MR. HOCHWALD: I only wanted to make this clear.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. So that we will reserve to Dr. Riediger every right and every protection which goes with the submission of a document. But I would suggest that immediately, Dr. Riediger, you present to the Tribunal these exhibits. Just number them -- one, two, three -- so that officially they will become part of the records.

DR. RIEDIGER: I submit the writing the orders as Exhibit No. 1; and I refer to the loose page which is contained in the pad. I submit as Exhibit No. 2, two negative prints -- two negatives concerning the person of the witness Haensch. Also, as Exhibit No. 3, I submit a book containing the orders for photographs, and draw your attention to number 391, page 94, of 21 February 1942.

And also, as No. 4 I submit a photograph of the witness.

DR. HOCHWALD: The Prosecution has no objection against the submission of these exhibits, but reserves the right to have then examined at a later date by experts. The books, and, eventually, also the negatives.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. The exhibits will be accepted, and the Secretary General is instructed that Exhibit I will include, in addition to the black pad, the photostatic page. Exhibit 2 will include, in addition to the negatives, the envelope in which the negatives were contained, and the box in which the negatives and envelope were contained.

GUSTAV NOSSKE, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows:

JUDGE SPAIGHT: Raise your right hand, witness, and repeat after me: pure truth, and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

JUDGE SPAIGHT: You may be seated.

DR. HOFFMANN (for the defendant Nosske): Your Honors, I would like to start the evidence in the case by questioning the witness himself.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Hoffmann. BY DR. HOFFMANN: the prison? tenable and unethical.

Q Witness, when ;you received the order at the time, did you feel to be an official, or a soldier -- or what attitude did you have concerning your office? tary assignment, as part of the army. I was under martial law-and martial law applied to me.

Q Witness, why did you consider this order immoral, being a soldier? in order to break up Bolshevism -- which was the aim of the war -- to kill a section of the population indiscriminately merely for that purpose.

of Bolshevism, I could not recognize, and could not realize, that it should be necessary for our own security to kill women and children. carrying out the order?

Q What did you reply to me at the time? the order in Pretzsch, could I have evaded carrying out this order. If I had said that I would never carry out this order, I would have been put before a court-martial, and would have been shot. If I had escaped, they would have seized me, and the same result would have been the consequence. And the public would never have heard why, and my relatives would have considered me dishonored, because they would only be told that I had deserted.

Q Witness, could you have turned to the press? had no relations with the press, and it just did not occur to me to approach the press at all, because this would be like giving myself up to an authority, so that they could arrest me. it -- and since you thought you could not evade it, what way-out did you find?

A I could only wait. I could not imagine at all whether, and how, such an order would ever to carried out. I could only hope that I myself would never be put into such a situation where I would have to carry out this order, or that any other circumstances might arise which might make it possible for me not carry out this order.

Q Witness, I would like to talk about you career now. Please tell the Tribunal very briefly how you career was, until the year 1933/

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, it is so close to the recess period. Don't you think it might be well to recess now, and then take up the curriculum vitae?

DR. HOFFMANN: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. HOFFMANN: Mr. President, before we start with the examination of the defendant Noske, may I first make a motion that the defendant Braune be excused form the session this afternoon, since he expects afternoon visit from his wife.

THE PRESIDENT: In order that the defendant Braune may be available when his wife arrives, he may be excused from attendance in court this afternoon. BY DR HOFFMANN: your life history up to the year of 1933? school for four years, afterwards, the high school in Halle. There II graduated in 1922. Since the money for my university studies was lacking, I started as an apprentice at the Halle branch of the Deutsche Bank and Diskonto Gesellschaft and, after an apprenticeship of two years, until the year of 1925, I remained in the banking business. Then I started my studies in political science and law. In 1930 I passed my first State examination; in 1933 I was in legal training as a legal referendar. in any other organization?

A No, I neither belonged to the Party, nor any organization. At this time I had no kind of political interests. I spent my leisure time rowing or with other friends without any political tendency playing any part among us.

Q In what position were you when Hitler came to power in 1933? as a referendar in the courts. Furthermore, I was active as no auxiliary worker with an attorney for which I got paid a small amount.

A The marches and mass meetings of the Party didn't have any attraction for me, and I did not participate in them. But when the order was given that young lawyers were to join the Party, or one of its organizations, I joined the party without any particular reluctance, but also without any special enthusiasm.

Q Exactly when did you join the Party?

Q Did you join any other organization outside the Party?

A Yes, in the summer of 1933 I joined the SA. That had the following reasons. As I have already described, I worked for an attorney as an aide. This attorney was the legal consultant for an SA unit, but because of his professional activity, which kept him very busy, he could no longer perform this activity. He, therefore, asked me that I should take over this legal information service in his stcad. Connected with that was that I joined the SA. or the SA?

A No. I neither held a position nor did I do any service in the SA. I were the SA uniform, namely the uniform of a private in the SA, and I performed the service of legal consultant for this SA unit. How did this develop from 1933 on until the completion of your legal training? examination as assessor, which enabled me to become a judge, district attorney, or just a lawyer, but a position, or any final definite position was not connected with this. In the letters of the Ministry of Justice which confirmed to me the fact that I had passed the examination, it said that for the next few years one could not count on such a position since in Prussia at that time more than 3,000 assessors were available but any 250 could be employed annually.

or did you have to earn a living? a job. The occasional deputizing for judges who were on furlough or who were sick was not sufficient to make a living. Therefore I had to find a permanent job.

Q What did you do to secure such a position; did you go to various authorities or agencies? ministries, among them the Finance Ministry, the Ministry of Interior, and after a long time the Ministry of the Interior was the only one which reacted to such an application. I was allowed to introduce myself, and I was accepted professionally.

Q When and where were you called? The time was the 1st of June, 1935. government in Aachen? isis customary in such a district government, I was occupied with frontier matters.

Q How long did this activity last?

Q Where were you transferred then? to the Border Police which was a part of the Gestapo and was being organizationally built up as such. Q And after this what happened? to Frankfurt on the Oder River, and there I was given the directorship of the State Police Agency in Frankfurt with the special mission to carry out the organization of the Border Police which had already been approved. Police Agency in Frankfurt on the Oder?

A The district was very great. It corresponded to the district area of Frankfurt on the Oder. It contained about 800,000 inhabitants. transferred to the Gestapo by the Ministry of the Interior? I did not have the slightest misgivings for already during my informational work in Aachen I got to know the activity of the Gestapo in its legal foundations. The State Police had the job to prosecute political; crimes, and in this capacity it is an auxiliary organ of the State prosecution, just like the criminal police was the auxiliary organ to the State prosecution for crime. intelligence. That is the mission to prevent the spying and detecting of state secrets. This is an activity as it is carried on in all modern states of the world, especially in the Western World, and as we know it as the Surete in France and Belgium and as the Second Bureau of the Surete, which corresponds to the counter-intelligence.

Q Witness, didn't you know the funny feeling that people had about the Gestapo in Germany, was this not known to you?

A I must say honestly, no. At least I had lost this feeling when I took up my job, not because nothing could have happened to me any more, but because things only happened actually which I could approve, even if applying the strictest standard, and I could approve of it as justified and moral. Furthermore one has to consider that these were the years 1936 to 1939, that is to the outbreak of war and that here no matters can be brought in, which at a later period couldn't be approved by me, under any circumstances. concentration camps in Germany, did you not? Officially I did not hear their names, but they were known to me.

Q Didn't you undertake to send people to these concentration camps? State Police Agency, or rather to the authority of a director of such an agency to send people to concentration camps. Only the Chief of the Security Police personally held this authority. As far as the regional agencies were concerned, it was only their obligation to report. Reporting was done by transmitting a carbon copy of the entire action, of the entire record, and then a duplicate of the files which was to be filed in the central index in Berlin. Sending people to a concentration camp was prepared by the Office for Protective Custody in Berlin. Suggestions were made by the expert office of the RSHA, and the order to send the person there was always signed personally by the Chief of the Security Police, that is Heydrich at the time.

For him sometimes a stamp was put in, the seal. The transfer, the transport of an inmate was done by the local police authorities who always were the transport agency for prisoners in Germany. confine someone to a concentration camp was signed by Heydrich and later Kaltenbrunner?

Q And before that Heydrich? Police.

Q And this was there, that is, with each order? concentration camp was signed by him personally or the Chief of Office IV was provided with the stamp of his name in his absence, but always it bore the signature of the Chief of the Security Police. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Witness, how long were you in the Gestapo? Gestapo until the 20th of September, 1944. That is to say, for this period I differentiate the following. As director of a regional State Police Agency, I was active from the fall of 1936 until the fall of 1937. That is, one year I was active as such. In between I had another occupation. Later I became again a director of a regional police agency, from July 1938, until July, 1939, and then a third time from October 1943, until September 1944.

that all commitments to concentration camps were signed either by Heydrich or by Kaltenbrunner?

AAbsolutely. It never happened any differently. In this case I refer to the time before the war. 1943, '44, the commitments which were connected with the regional authority of a State Police Agency also happened as a result of an individual paper which carried the facsimile stamp of Kaltenbrunner. Heydrich or Kaltenbrunner was more or less a formality, wasn't it?

Q. Now, Witness, do you want to tell us that Heydrich investigated every case of a concentration-camp consignment or commitment?

A. Your Honor, I personally was not in the RSHA in this activity, and I can only judge these circumstances from my own activity in a regional office, but later when I was active in the RSHA and got to know one or the other officials who dealt with this matter, I heard then that these commitments to concentration camps were actually signed by the chief or by the office chief.

Q. Well, Witness, what I am asking you is this, Heydrich and later Kaltenbrunner could not have investigated every commitment to a concentration camp, could they?

A. No, certainly not.

Q. All right. Then it was a mere formality, the adding of a facsimile signature with a stamp, or the signing of their name by one of may deputies?

A. Still I don't believe so, your Honor, for in view of the number, and I am now speaking for the time before the war, it was very easy and absolutely possible to have the cases brought before you, those cases which were supposed to be consigned to concentration camps, for I know from my time in Frankfurt on the Oder, and later in Graz, that in this area of 800,000 people not more than thirty to forty people were in a concentration camp.

Q. Now, just a moment, Witness, don't let's drift. In 1939, on September 1st, about how many people were in the concentration camps of Germany?

A. Your Honor, from my state police activity I never was able to find this out.

Q. Well, you know now, don't you, that there were tens of thousands at least, don't you?

A. Yes, through the Expert for Protective Custody, Dr. Berndorf, whom I met in one of the interment camps, I talked to him about what is true of the concentration camps what is not true.

Q. Just a moment now. By September 1, 1939, there were many tens of thousands in concentration camps in Germany, that is correct, isn't it?

A. After his - according to his statement about 30,000.

Q. All right. Now, do you seriously believe that Heydrich examined or investigated or reviewed the cases of these 30,000?

A. Your Honor, certainly not.

Q. Very well. Then let's work this out logically. Then it isn't true that Heydrich could review every case which bore his signature?

A. Your Honor, the following has to be explained.

Q. Now, please answer that question. Just a moment, it isn't true that Heydrich investigated every case which bore his signature?

A. No, your Honor.

Q. All right. Then there were other people who had to pass upon the case, and his signature was attached without even his knowledge. That happened in most of the cases, didn't it?

A. No, no, your Honor.

Q. New, how many these 30,000 did Heydrich himself personally review?

A. Your Honor, that is a question which goes beyond my knowledge.

Q. Well now listen, Witness, you are there in the witness stand to give us the truth, and please be careful about the statements you make. Now you have told the Tribunal that Heydrich signed every commitment to the concentration camps. I asked you whether Heydrich could possibly have investigated every case.

You said no. You said there were 30,000 about in the concentration camps in September, 1939. I asked you whether in most of these cases Heydrich could not possibly have reviewed the cases, and you did not agree with that statement. Now, tell me of the 30, how many do you believe Heydrich actually reviewed?

A. Your Honor, I cannot give a precise answer because I do not know, but I can say the following: The increase of the number of inmates, who in the year 1937 amounted to about six to seven thousand, to the number of about 30,000, did not come about through an increase of activity of the Gestapo but through one single action, through one wholesale operation where the Reich Criminal Police Office arrested or took twenty to thirty thousand professional criminals and put them in protective custody into the concentration camps.

Q. Did Heydrich sign these commitments of the 30,000 which you have just mentioned?

A. I do not know.

Q. Well. why do you say then that Heydrich signed

A. I can only speak of my sector, and I can only say what I experienced with the State Police.

Q. You said very emphatically that Heydrich signed every commitment, Now, did he or did he not?

A. Those of the state Police Agency, yes.

Q. Heydrich signed every commitment to a concentration camp in Germany while he was still alive?

A. I do not know. Those of the State Police with which we had to do, yes, he signed everyone of those.

Q. Why did you say that every commitment to a concentration camp was signed by Heydrich?

A. Because I could not make this addition this explanation which I now was able to make.

Q. Then now we come back to the original propsition, Heydrich did not sign every commitment to a concentration, camp?

A. I do not know; I cannot say.

Q. All right then, your answer is you do not know whether Heydrich signed every commitment to a concentration camp.

A. No, but those concerned with the Security Police, or the State Police with which we were concerned officially, and we were only speaking in connection with my service, those Heydrich signed, all.

Q. Did Heydrich sign every commitment to a concentration camp by the Gestapo?

A. I suppose so, from the conversations I had with other friends, that it did not happen in any other way with the other agencies.

signed every commitment to a concentration camp through the Gestapo? police offices under my supervision was any different from the other agencies in the rest of the Reich. camp commitment that was recommended by the Gestapo? in, let us say, the year 1938? by my regional agencies. recommended by the Gestapo? concentration camp commitment through the Gestapo?

A I cannot say. he signed them and he had people present documents to him about it. reviewed the case? commitment through the Gestapo?

AAbsolutely,. your Honor. THE PRESIDENT: Very well, proceed Dr. Hoffmann. BY DR. HOFFMANN: asked you. Did you, in your agency in Frankfurt on the Oder, have a stamp with the name Heydrich?

A Never. The forms which were sent from Berlin, the printed forms to consign people to camps were sent from Berlin in duplicate and we ourselves had nothing to do with this and could not print them outselves.

That was out of the question.

Q Thus you sent your cases to Berlin?

Q And Berlin decided? camp or not, but I may add that a report was made about every case, no matter what the RSHA or its chief would decide in the individual case. If any crimes were committed against the State laws, the cases had to be turned over to the courts and if any doubts existed whether a court had jurisdiction, then Berlin would examine and would ask for completions and additions, renewed interrogations, and then Berlin made its decision and said the individual concerned is to be handed over to the court or is to be dismissed or is to be reprimanded or something else.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, Heydrich was made chief of the Security Police and SD on June 26, 1936. I would like to have defense counsel or prosecution counsel obtain for the Tribunal, if it is possible, the figures as to the number of people committed to concentration camps between June, 1936 and June, 1942 when Heydrich died, in view of the witness's statement that he knows that Heydrich reviewed every case of people sent to the concentration camps during that period via the Gestapo.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, may I say the following. If I remember correctly in the case against Pohl the prosecution stated the exact number of the inmates in the concentration camps until 1939 and had them submitted. May I take the liberty to look for this, and since it is a public document I don't have to submit it specially. I also remember the trial of the IMT and the interrogation of Kaltenbrunner where actually it was Said that facsimile stamps with the name Kaltenbrunner were distributed among the Berlin agencies and that the departments concerned used this facsimile stamp. May I take the liberty to look for those things, and to submit them?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, any information which can be obtained regarding the number of people committed to concentration camps via the Gestapo will be in order. BY DR. HOFFMANN: you did as director of the State police agency in Frankfurt on the Oder? I had the overall direction, that is, the organization and the administration which took up most of my time. In addition there was the responsible leadership of the executive activities, for every report, except for the fact that I may have been absent to the RSHA, was personally signed by me. The main activity was already in the field of counter intelligence. The counter intelligence activity of the police was carried on in agreement with the military agencies who did not themselves have any executive officers, that is, in their investigation capacity they had to rely on our officials. active with the supervision, shadowing and prosecution of political opponents? which came to our attention had. of course. to be prosecuted. attention? Did you make a report?

A Yes. of course, the necessary investigations were made, interrogations were conducted, and a report was made to me or the executive official and the result of the investigation was submitted.

Q Did you yourself undertake arrests? regional police agency arrests were necessary, but the number of the arrests was actually not large for this whole district and at this time it was an exceptional case, for the regional state police agency only had the right to arrest a man for the duration of ten days.

After these ten days had expired the arrested man would either have to be dismissed or be handed over to the courts. legal basis or directive or decree? On what did you base yourselves when making these arrests? the Secret State Police which is organized on Article 48 of the Reich Constitution and then the other Reich laws, and above all the civil penal code about treason were wholly valid and were used just as they were used before Hitler took over.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, would you also try to submit to the Tribunal the directive, decree, law, order or legislation which stated that the Gestapo could hold a detainee only ten days? Upon the termination of the ten days he either had to be released or turned over to the courts. That is the statement made by the witness and we would be very grateful if you could submit to us the documentary proof of that order or decree.

DR HOFFMANN: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you. BY DR. HOFFMANN: the Jewish faith? in this connection of my own personal activity.

Q. Did this happen in your agency in Frankfurt on the Oder in the years 1936 to 1939, and to what extent and on what basis?

A. During the activity in the direction of these state police agencies in Frankfurt on the Oder and Graz no Jews were arrested, only because they were Jews, but as anyone else who violated any Reich Law or any decree, that is, a cumulative arrest was not carried out by me.

Q. For what period are you saying this, witness?

A. I say this for the period from September, 1937 -- no, from September, 1936 to September, 1937, and from July, 1938 to July, 1939.

Q. Did you ever get orders from Berlin to arrest Jews?

A. I remember very clearly one decisive case, but that was the only case which, for the periods I have named, was concerned at all.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, why don't you answer your attorney's question very directly? He said did you ever receive any orders from Berlin to are rest Jews. Now, the answer to that is yes or no.

THE WITNESS: Yes, in this one case.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. Then you want to say there was only once that you received such an order?

THE WITNESS: For this period, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Al right, let's be very specific. All right, proceed, Dr. Hoffmann.

Q. (By Dr. Hoffmann) When was this?

A. That was in connection with the incidents of the 9th and 10th of November, 1938.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, may I take the liberty to come back to this later?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, certainly.

Q. (By Dr. Hoffmann) Witness, I now want to determine definitely from when to when were you in Frankfurt on the Oder?

A. I was in Frankfurt on the Oder from the fall of 1936 until September, 1937 as director of the State Police; after that, as a coworker for the border inspector.

He was senor Government Councilor Damzog, who at that time had moved his office from Breslau to Frankfurt on the Oder.

Q. And what happened to you when your activity in Frankfurt on the Oder ceased? Where did you go then?

A. My activity in Frankfurt on the Oder ended in July, 1938, but in the period in between, that is to say, from the 10th of March on, for the duration of three months, I was used as a liaison officer between the security police and the regular police and was sent to Graz in Austria in this capacity. From this time on I returned to Frankfurt and from July, 1938 on I was again given the direction of the State police office, and this activity ended after one year, end of July, 1939, At that time the border inspector Southeast was transferred and was not replaced by another person. Therefore, I was put in charge of the border inspector's job for this part of Southeastern frontier of the Reich, as a deputy. I was in this position when war broke out.

Q. And what happened after the war broke out?

A. I remained in this position after war broke out until Easter, 1941. At that time the Southeastern campaign in the Balkans was finished and that ended my activity and my security job and my customs job ceased because the border was occupied by the military.

Q. Witness, in Graz up to the period which you stated in the year 1941, did you have any activity other than in Frankfurt or was it the same?

A. If you mean Frankfurt, the time when I was with the inspector, yes, but if you mean the time during which I was with the state police, then no.

Q. I understand you correctly then that you performed the same activity in Frankfurt on the Oder as you did in Graz?

A. Yes. First of al, direction of a state police agency and then a purely inspectional job with the border police.

Q. What happened to you when your job in Graz became superfluous?

A. I was called to Berlin and I was given a temporary job. This job was to suspend the state police agency at Aachen.

I was to be changed and reorganized into another agency in another city. Furthermore, the organization of the border police as it had existed thus far in the West was to be adapted to the new conditions in the West owing to the newly acquired territory there.

Q. Witness, how long did this position last?

A. This activity was almost completed when, on the 17th of June, 1941, as I recall, I was called up by the personnel office in Berlin to report to Berlin the next day. When I asked what was the matter they could not answer me. They just told me that I had to count on a lengthy absence.

Q. What happened on the next day?

A. I want ot Berlin, reported to the personnel office, and there they told me that in place of the director of the police agency at Hamburg who had become ill, Government Councilor Creutzer, I was to be sent to an assignment abroad. Creutzer had become ill and the day before they had received an official certificate of his illness and I was taken in his stead.

THE PRESIDENT: What was the date of this, Dr. Hoffmann?

DR. HOFFMANN: I believe the 18th of June.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

Q. (By Dr. Hoffmann) 18th of June?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they tell you on the 18th of June where this assignment would take you and what it was concerned with? A. No, the personnel office told me nothing. They only told me hat on the same day I was to report to the Prinz Albrecht Palace of RSHA and there I would receive my orders and all further information.

Q. Did you then go to the RSHA?

A. Yes, I went there at appointed time and I found 25 to 30 higher ranking SS officers there, of whom two to three were known to me from my previous activities. I knew the chief of Office I, Strecken bach, who was there.

Of other officials I saw other SS officers, such as Nebe, Stahlecker, Rasch, also Standartenfuehrer Ohlendorf. I did not know him at the time. For the first time I found myself in such surroundings and in such a circle of people and I could not find out what was the matter. The officers who were gathered there had already been in Pretzsch or Dueben several days and they only told us that men and vehicles had been collected there.

Q. What was the result of this conference in which you participated? with what result did you leave this place?

A. When we sat down at eh conference table Heydrich appeared and told us the following: The Fuehrer had to decide to take up the fight against the Soviet Union. It was a matter of getting ahead of Bolshevism, but his time it was not only a matter of a military opponent but an ideological one, and this opponent is a fanatic fighter and the fight would be ruthless. The breaking of the Bolshevist system was, however, not only the job of the security police but was also the job of the Army, and the Fuehrer had made this clear to the Army unequivocable and had given it the same orders. Ont the basis of the Fuehrer order it had become possible or arrange an agreement between the Wehrmacht and the security police.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, he is now going to go into the details of his instructions, and I think this might be a good point at which to break off for the recess, don't you?

DR. HOFFMANN: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, the Tribunal will reconvene at 1:45 (A recess was taken until 1345 hours.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 4 December 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. HOFFMANN: that you described to the Tribunal what happened in the Prinz Albrecht street. When you gave this description I noticed that you talked about the fuehrerorder on that occasion without having mentioned it before. would you just describe how you got to know about the feuhrerorder first, and the contents of it? Albrecht Palais I had not yet spoken about the fuehrerorder, but Heydrich had told us that war with Russia was unavoidable and that on the basis, of the Hitler order an agreement between the army and the security police could be made on the basis of which Einsatzgruppen and Einsatzkommandos were being set up, and were assigned as part of the army.

Q Witness, that was all you were told there? afterwards? were still being set up. The same day, together with quite a number of the leaders who had been also present there, I travelled to Pretsch or to the Duebener Heide, the Duebener Heath, to the stations provided for the units. I myself travelled to Dueben, and one or two days later, I don't exactly remember, we were asked to go to Pretsch because further orders would be given to us there. Together with Herr Ohlendorf, II went there. Streckenbach appeared as deputy of Heydrich, Office Chief 4 was also present. In general, it was almost the same circle of officers whom I had already met in Berlin.

Q What were you told there? we knew the situation, he assumed. The Einsatzgruppen would march with the fighting units. This was the most difficult assignment which the security police would ever deal with. He described to us the difficulties of the task in detail in view of the enemy we would have to deal with. In this connection, I can remember one sentecne verbally which impressed me particularly. He said, "Keep the last bullet for yourself so that you won't fall alive, into the hands of the enemy." Apart from that, he announced to us the order of the fuehrer, that in order to break the bolchevist system it was necessary to eliminate the Bolchevist leading circles, and since the Eastern Jews were its most important bearers, they were to be liquidated, including women and children. This was the order from Hitler. We were under military law, and absolutely had to obey this order.

Q What was the first personal impression you had of this? the others who were present. I could see that the higher officers reacted in such a manner that they immediately went to Streckenbach and disputed the matter very vividly and objected to it. I was one of the lowest ranks present there and, therefore, saw no reason to take part in this objection, because I realized that the high officers were already doing this; and in view of the personal connections which they seemed to have, it would be much better for them to deal with this matter, but I also realized, or I heard that Streckenbach recognized the misgivings, but finally he pointed out that this was the fuehrerorder which could not be charged and which had to be carried out.

Q You witnessed then, Witness, that the order continued to exist?

A Yes. It continued to exist and was not changed. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Witness, what was Streckenbach's rank? in Army terms?

Q Major General. What was the rank of the highest officer in the group that spoke with him?

Q Was there anyone who had a rank higher than Streckenbach?

A I don't quite know. I don't know whether the Office Chief 4, Mueller, was already a Gruppenfuehrer or still a Brigadefuehrer?

Q Were there several at least of the same rank as Streckenbach's rank?

A I think so. Nebe, I believe; Rasch; whether Stahlecker already had that rank, I don't know, but I think so; then there were people, who were one or two ranks lower; some oberfuehrers, and some standartenfuehrers, and then obersturmbannfuehrers, and people of my rank which was the lowest one; the rank of a major, there was perhaps a dozen people. bach?

A Yes. Gruppenfuehrer Mueller was there, but I don't think that he took an important part in the discussion, because, as Streckenbach had said, he had been instructed by Heydrich to tell us about this order. rank according to Streckenbach's did not go further, that is to say, appeal to Heydrich directly? even on the basis of their personal relations which they had, I think that certainly a few of them might have been on familiar terms with Streckenbach-- that they knew Streckenbach so well that he had the authority to say that and that they never doubted that Streckenbach would announce anything or take an authority to which he was not entitled. On the other hand, Office Chief 4 was with him.

The fact that he was present alone and his attitude, even if I don't remember his words, showed that there simply was no doubt about the commission of Streckenbach. Mueller and Ohlendorf and the others?

Q Well, then why couldn't all the officers who objected strenuously to this, including Streckenbach, go to heydrich and point out that it was impossible for them to perform this task?

A It is very difficult for me to answer this question. It originates, rather, it can be answered with the same reasons I gave before. We also expected and it had been said that, before the Einsatzgruppen and commandos were to move Heydrich himself would carry out an inspection. On that occasion the opportunity would arise for those officers to talk to Heydrich himself; whether this happened, I don't know. task I am speaking of, this day when you first learned of the fueherorder, and you say that you heard it with not only misgivings but with some shock, and this revulsion was shared by other officers, and officers equivalent in rank to Streckenbach attempted to reason with him about it, and Streckenbach received their protests sympathetically and agreed it was a very difficult order but said that his hands were tied and couldn't do anything about it. Arriving at that stage, why couldn't all the officers, including Streckenbach, then go to the next higher level, the next higher exhelon, and again in a very friendly and rationalizing manner, point out that this order was impossible of fulfillment? Why couldn't that have been done? the fuehrerorder had been given and it could not be evaded and absolutely had to be obeyed, I assume that these higher officers who knew the situation much better and who firmly believed that in fact it was a fuehrerorder, they therefore refrained from making representations to the chief of the security police.

at all, they merely objected to Streckenbach, that is right, isn't it?

PRESIDENT: Very well, proceed, Dr. Hoffmann.

BY DR. HOFFMANN: did you have the impression that these officers who protested were afraid of going to Heydrich?

A I don't think so at all, because I am convinced that Streckenbach or the other officers who objected could have found a way of going to Heydrich, but obviously in view of the situation they were convinced that Heydrich would only confirm this order again and nothing else. BY THE PRESIDENT: Wouldn't their consciences be relieved somewhat if at least they would have made the attempt and not left it to conjecture as to what Heydrich would say? to Dueben and there he inspected the units which were about to advance. I am convinced that in this connection, too, the officers, the higher officers, who had reported to the chief of the security police talked to him and debated this question again, but could not come to another result; but in my own sphere I did not hear anything about it, and it was only confirmed to me again that this fuehrerorder was to be carried out.

PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, that answer is not very clear to me, is it clear to you?

DR. HOFFMANN: No, but I will ask him something about this. BY DR. HOFFMANN: general opinion perhaps that Hitler as well as Himmler and also Heydrich basically would never revoke a once given order, only because of requests and objections made by normal human beings?

A I think so. I think one was quite convinced of this. BY THE PRESIDENT:

this, he merely made his inspection, left, and then the detail moved on to Eastern Russia--Western Russia? was when the inspection in Dueben took place, the units which had since been set up were standing in an open place and the unit officers, those who had the same rank as I had, were standing immediately in front of their units. We, therefore, stood there before the chief came, then marched past him and we personally had no opportunity to talk to him, but the higher officer, who then accompanied the personal staff of the inspecting officer, had an opportunity to talk to him, and I saw them talking.

Q Well, you saw them talking, but you didn't hear what they were talking about?

A No. I say I cannot pass a judgment from my level. these protesting officers never brought it to the attention of Heydrich?

Q Well, just a minute. You are convinced of what? I ask you now, do you know of your own personal knowledge whether these other officers spoke to Heydrich about the fuehrerorder before you actually moved into Russia--of your own personal knowledge?

Q Now, please answer that question. Do you, or do you not know of your own personal knowledge, whether they spoke to Heydrich about the fuehrerorder and the possibility of its fulfillment?

PRESIDENT: Very well. Proceed, Doctor.

THE WITNESS: Well, in this connection, may I add that before the units he made a speech in which he again pointed out the task which was to be carried out. This convinced us that this order could not be altered and, therefore, was an order about which Heydrich could not decide either, but that it was a fuehrerorder which had come from the supreme head of the state.

BY MR. HOFFMANN:

Q. Witness, let us go back to yourself. I would like to first ask you what was your own attitude toward the order when you received it?

A. This order and the general situation upset me very much. For me personally there were two facts, which shocked me particularly. The first fact was that a war with Russia should break out at all. This fact to which our attention had been drawn upset the ideas which I had of a war and of a possible conclusion of the war. In my profession I had no opportunity to take an interest in higher politics and conducting war. I had only imagined a war with certain limits and I now faced the fact that the war was being expanded, the consequences of which were unimaginable.

had heard officially. Particularly with regard to Russia the press and other official statements did not mention anything, so that the fact of the war surprised me all the more. Also a war with the Bolshevist opponent would be a difficult one and was also bound to entail cruelty and atrocities. The order itself I considered impossible and I could not imagine if and how it could be carried out.

Q. Witness, what did you object to in this order? Did your upbringing not agree with it or your inner attitude? What effect did this order have on your feelings?

A. When attitude is the result of upbringing, it concerned both, but in the end it was my conscience.

Q. How did you think you could get out of this difficulty?

A. In those days I could not imagine that at all. I could only wait and see how things would develop. Apart from that we had been told that I with my Einsatzkommando 12, as part of the Einsatzgruppe D, was assigned to the Caucasus Mountains. The Army Group to which the Einsatzgruppe was attached had not yet been set up. It was still in the southeast territory. There were still thousands of kilometers which had to be fought for first, before we could over reach the Caucasus Mountains, and when this would be and should I ever reach the Caucasus Mountains, these were questions for me which remained unanswered and to which I could not find a reply. Perhaps I myself would never have occasion to carry out this order and such a situation might never arise for me. Perhaps by then things might occur which might make it unnecessary to carry it out.

Q. What happened actually? If I remember rightly, you were appointed to be in charge to Einsatzkommando 12?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was your Einsatzkommando?

A. As I have already stated, when we came to Dueben, - incidentally the enlisted men were gathered there and they vehicles, they were all in a large parking lot--after the order had been announced in Pretsch, the units were divided and I was told that one unit was Einsatzkommando 12, of which I was to be in charge.

Q. How strong was this Einsatzkommando?

A. The Einsatzkommando had about 130 to 140 men.

Q. What was their equipment?

A. I would first like to add here that this was the strength when it was set up. Later on, of course, some changes took place because of losses and other circumstances. The kommandos were fully motorized units. With vehicles as the offices in the Reich had sent them. They were not special Army vehicles, but common vehicles as you use in the city.

Q. And, witness, what were the weapons you had?

A. The weapons were nothing special either. The men of the Regular Police and the Reserve had carbines and the men of the Waffen SS they had one or two machine guns. Apart from that they only had pistols. In all in my unit there were perhaps at the most six to eight submachine guns, and no heavy weapons.

Q. Were the members of your Einsatzkommando 12 volunteers, or were they forced to join?

A. No one was a volunteer. They had all been drafted and ordered to go there. The members of the Security Police had been drafted by Regional Offices of the State Police and the Criminal Police, sometimes also by SD offices.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, you don't mean, witness, that every member of your detachment was drafted into the SS, do you?

THE WITNESS: No.

THE PRESIDENT: Then your statement they were under compulsion is not entirely correct?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Were you drafted? Did you join the SS voluntarily?

THE WITNESS: I only belonged to the SS, Special Formation SD and because of my position I had the same rank as an officer but for the actual assignment not one was a volunteer and the members of the Regular P Police, perhaps, were only drafted a few months earlier, and until that time they had carried out their jobs as tailors or business men or whatever they were.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, what you mean is that the order to move into Russia was a military order and therefore you were acting under the compulsion of the military order, but you don't mean that each and everyone in your Einsatzkommando or in the Einsatzkommando was drafted into the SS, because you know that there were many who were volunteers.

THE WITNESS: It is definitely right, yes, absolutely, but I talked about matters generally, in as far as the actual assignment was concerned. For the actual assignment nobody could volunteer. The men from the Regular Police were age groups which the Army did not require, who had been released for police jobs. They had been drafted, at least, and the Main Office of the Regular Police had assigned then to the Security Police. The Waffen SS men had been drafted by a Police company in Berlin and the members of the Security Police originated. as I already said, mostly from the Regional Police Offices. who had been released because member of small offices had been dissolved and therefore the men were available.

Q. Witness, did you notice that when the members of Einsatzkommando 12 were selected only special directives were observed or was everything mixed up that is, were there all kinds of people at all ages?

A. Yes, they were all kinds of people, and I am convinced that often there were mere coincidences that these men came to the Einsatz assignment.

Q. How was the attitude of these men with regard to this assignment?

A. First of all, my recollection is not quite clear, whether even before leaving Pretzsch every individual officer and man know about this Fuehrer Order and had been told about it. In this connection, it was not yet necessary. First of all we had to advance, in order to reach the area to which we were assigned.

Q. When did Einsatzkommando 12 leave Dueben?

A. While the other Einsatzkommando moved on already the day after Heydrich had made the inspection, Einsatzkommando D, as far as I remember it remained for about another week in Dueben and as I thought, because they had been assigned to the Caucasus Mountains and the assignment for the Caucasus any way was not yet necessary. The day of departure, as far as I remember, was fixed for the 28th or 29th of June, 1941.

Q. Please describe to the Tribunal the route after the 28th or 29th of June until you came to your permanent station.

A. In a closed column, the Einsatzkommando moved from Dueben via Bohemia. In two days they reached the Austrian Hungarian border. On the third day, the Hungarian territory was crossed and the city of Chesburg in Siebenbuergen was reached. As far as I remember, already one or two kommandos of the Einsatzgruppe were branched off. These two kommandos, or this one, marched over the mountains into Roumanian territory The Einsatzgruppe staff and the other kommandos made their first station in Piatraneamt, which was a barracks camp. The Group Staff remained there for some time, perhaps ten, perhaps 14 days. I can't say exactly, and then the Einsatzgruppe Staff and the other kommandos, except for Kommando 12 marched into Roumanian territory.

Q. Where did your kommandos stay?

A. I said already that Einsatzkommando 12 remained at Piatraneamt.

Q. How long did you stay there.

A. Kommando 12 remained stationed until the end of July 1941, partly in Piatraneamt, partly near Jassy, in the original Rumanian territory.

Q. When did your Einsatzkommando move to Russia and where to?

A. While the Einsatzgruppe staff and the other commandos had already advanced Pruth and Jassy, following the fighting units, the connection between them and Einsatzkommando 12 had become very loose. Therefore, Einsatzkommando 12 followed into the Russian territory and the first location they reached was Olschanka on the other side of the Knjestr River. Olschanka at that time was the headquarters of the Group Staff.

AA few days later, perhaps a week later, I don't know quite exactly, the group staff and together with them the Einsatzkommando 12 moved their garrison to Charnomin. Charnomin was not a village it was an old castle in the side buildings of which the Einsatzkommando and Kommando 12 were quartered. that time? August, was kept there as reserve, but about two weeks previously, the Einsatzkommando chief gave orders and instructions to detachments of Kommando 12 and to me personally, too. the kommando? August, that two platoons of Einsatzkommando 12, two platoons consisting of 10 to 15 men, were to help to bring in the harvest and to help the Army do this.

This was a mission of the Army of the socalled economic kommando, for short, in German, W.i.k.o. The job consisted of working together with units of the Army who were available for this purpose and to in collecting the crop which had became overripe in this territory and to organize the harvesting. These platsoon were therefore assigned certain territory or some localities where they had to carry out these measures. If I understood you correctly, at the order of Ohlendorf this subcommando left? you visit the commandos as well which had been detailed. of course I wanted to have a look at the work out there, and I don't know exactly, whether I made one or two trips to those distant areas in order to have a look at the work.

Q You say "work of the commando." Do you mean to say mass executions, or what are you referring to by work of the commando? in the harvest and to help the Army to do this, and not to carry out the Fuehrer order.

Q Why not? under the reasons of the Wehrmacht, a very specialized mission. This that time, because of an agreement or because of some request made by the Army, there existed a directive that the Jews in the flat country should be exempted from the registration, which had been ordered by the Hitler orders. Because of these special considerations the Army did not want these measures to be carried out yet.

Q How could you prove that this existed? I was not subordinated to a special unit of the Army yet, but this was an instruction which I expressly received from the Einsatzgruppen chief in this connection.

Q The Einsatzgruppen chief was? the harvest, did you hear of any special occurences there? events reported to me. I could convince myself, that the harvest measures were being carried out as it could be expected.

Q How about shootings? Did any shootings take place during these actions? BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Let's have the date, Dr. Hoffmann, please, of this particular activity. haps, I am not quite certain, until about the 23rd or 25th of August, 1941. bringing in the harvest? men of my commando under my responsibility.

Q Did you yourself participate in the harvesting? of the commando, of the rest of the commando in Chanomin, but I cannot quite say whether once or twice I travelled to the district where my two platoons, were working. I believe only once, on another occasion, I had an economic mission to travel somewhere else.

Q Were your men all farmers?

Q What did they know about harvesting? measures had to be taken, and, as happens so often, something had to be done in a matter which, although one does not really understand the matter, but that was not what was needed, whether one understood. agriculture or not here. dorf told you, "Now, you go ahead and harvest this wheat." What would you do? Would you know what to do?

DR. HOFFMANN: May I say something just briefly?

THE PRESIDENT: Are you a farmer, Dr. Hoffmann?

DR. HOFFMANN: No, I am not. Witness. may I add another question to the question of the President? By "bringing in the harvest", did you mean that you people themselves filled the hay wagon or that they cut the horn, or what do you understand by bringing in the harvest in this connection?

THE WITNESS: I have already expressed myself to the effect, the organization of bringing in the harvest. They did not operate the machines themselves and cut the wheat, but to see to it that the harvesting was done by the people in the rural districts. And may I say two sentences here to describe the situation which we found in this fertile part of the Ukraine?

DR. HOFFMANN: Witness, one question. Your people did not work. themselves, they merely supervised?

THE WITNESS: Yes, they gave instructions. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Did they know enough about agriculture to give instructions? It takes a smarter man to give the instructions than to do the work.

A Your Honor, I quite understand you. I was not able to say my two sentences yet. They were not to give expert instructions here, but merely to give some intiative orders, to make the population in the country carry out the work to their expert knowledge and according to their expert knowledge and according to their old experience, but the following was necessary for this. The population in Bolshevist Russia was only used to do something when ordered, not on their own initiative and not as necessity arose. But since the administration of the districts did notexist any more, no district administration gave any instructions that the collective farms so-and-so collect their harvest tomorrow, and since no order came, they just did not do anything. ratively--the organization for bringing in the harvest was there but someone had merely to see that the machine was put into motion and supervise its operation. That is what you did?

A Yes. Also, there was the special task of overcoming the difficulties which arose owing to the fact that fighting had been going on in these areas -- in particular, the Red Army, in order to prevent the bringing in of the harvest in as far as they could, had destroyed all the machinery, or destroyed parts of it, and now it was the task to manage it so that one machine which would work, could be built out of several parts that the seythes, which were brought by airplane from the Reich in tens of thousands, be distributed to the various localities, so That the population, inasfar as they did not have machines, could at least bring in the harvest as far as possible with these primitive means.

Q (By Dr. Hoffmann) Now, witness, concerning the charges which are raised against you, I ask you again -During such time, did any shooting take place, or did you hear of any? place in the village of Bobchinski. The troop officer of one platoon, who was in charge of the locality of Babchinski there -- reported a shooting to me when he reported back to the headquarters in Chanomin.

DR. HOFFMANN: Very well. Just as you wish, Dr. Hoffmann. It would be well if you always -- if you recall it -- give the date of the particular episode which is being discussed -- approximately.

Q (By DR. Hoffmann) What was the date, approximately?

A I cannot say exactly. I said it must have been in this time -- that is during the time between the 10th and 23rd of August 1941.

Q When did the platoon return -- on the 23rd? platoon reported back?

Q Is this in the document which I already mentioned? assignments?

A Yes, I, personally, did. The Einsatzgruppen chief gave me the order to go to Jampol, and, through negotiations with the German commander, or with the Roumanian agencies or the Roumanian officer, to achieve that a larger number of Roumanian Jews be brought back to their district, who, some time before, through the Roumanian troops, had been moved out of Roumanian across the Dnestr River into the German rear army territory.

Q When was this? 20th of August.

Q And you obeyed this order -- you obeyed it? it necessary in order to carry this out, and one or two other vehicles came along, and some officers, and some more men -perhaps three or four men -- or perhaps a second car -perhaps two cars, aside from mine -- I am not quite sure now. I then travelled the long distance to Jampol. I returned, because I had already passed Jampol once, when travelling from Orchanka and Chanomin -- the distance, I think, was about 80 or perhaps 100 kilometers.

tell us precisely how many of you there were when you travelled to Jampol, and how you were equipped, if you can remember.

AAt least two officers. Also an interpreter, and five or six men.

Q And what equipment did you have?

A I probably had my automatic rifle with me. The men had carbines, or pistols.

Q Why did you carry your automatic rifle? Was there any particular reason?

A No, certainly not. But instructions had been given that no vehicle should travel alone -- and may I say that all this time in Russia I never travelled without my automatic pistol, whether I travelled to the hospital, or whether I went anywhere else.

Q Why? Why -- was it dangerous? Why did you have to carry an automatic pistol? as much, but later on one noticed it much more, and it became more and more necessary -- and, may I say that in the winter it became necessary to sleep with one's clothes on and to have the automatic pistol next to the bed. Jampol when you arrived there. I found out that a second bridge had been built since, which was just about to be completed. Then I travelled on the road which led from Jampol toward Mogilew. Just outside the town cooking.

I did not see any German soldiers and members of the security police guarding it.

They moved about freely, order was in that situation.

What were you to do?

Not to shoot them. But the order from the Einsatzgruppen

Q We have not come to that yet, witness. When you order meant?

Why importance was attached to it?

Roumanian Jews. I had heard that in Mogilew a number of resisted.

I think I even heard that they had tried to Jews to return.

In any case -

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, this episode will be of it first.

Now, these Jews were in a camp. Is that right?

DR. HOFFMANN: No. Not a closed camp, but they were just in an open field.

That is how I understand the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: In his affidavit he said, "There was in Jampol a camp of I should say, three thousand Jews." Is that right, witness? Were they in some sort of a camp?

THE WITNESS: No, your Honor, this expression is rather unfortunate. There are camps, and there are camps! I already said they were not guarded. I did not see any German soldiers, nor members of the security police guarding it, but they were free and just camping there.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, it was ca camp?

THE WITNESS: No, they were camping there.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if they were camping, it is a camp, isn't it. If you camp, you camp -- then it becomes a camp. I think this would be a good place for us to camp for fifteen minutes.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. MAYER: Dr. Mayer for the defendant Steimle. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant Steimle be excused this coming Monday from that session in order to prepare the documents.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Steimle will be excused from attendance in court next Monday all day so he may work with his attorney in the preparation of the document book.

DR. MAYER: Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: Now, Dr. Hoffman, we were talking about camps before we decamped, and we would like to get this situation so then we can understand the unfolding of the narrative. Now, we understand there were three-thousand Jews in Jampol, is that right?

DR. HOFFMAN: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: And they remained in a meadow?

DR. HOFFMAN: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, the number three-thousand I mentioned as a quick estimate, and I had to give it here during my examination which was after I had driven here for half a day and a whole night, and half an hour stay here, when I was immediately interrogated here.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but we will go into that later. what I want to do now is to get a rough idea of what this episode is about.

THE WITNESS: Everything else is correct, but the estimate of three-thousand was too small. After I thought this over it must have been six to seven-thousand people.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. There were six to seven thousand Jews in the group living together at least temporarily at a certain spot in Jampol, is that correct?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Now were they under guard?

THE WITNESS: No.

THE PRESIDENT: Then you received orders to do something with these Jews. Now what were the orders?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: What were the orders, what you were to do with the Jews?

THE WITNESS: The order was as follows: These Jews who had been brought to Jampol from Mogilew, as I knew it, were to be lead across the bridge, and this was to be done by overcoming the Rumanian resistance which had been shown in Mogilew, and the retransfer had to be effected there, because there was the only bridge where this could be done.

THE PRESIDENT: What did this bridge span? Was it a river?

THE WITNESS: Yes, the bridge was over the Dnjestr River.

DR. HOFFMAN: Your Honor, the Dnjestr River is missing on the map.

THE PRESIDENT: I see. Then you were to take these Jews over the Dnjestr River to where?

THE WITNESS: Yes, merely into the Rumanian territory.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, all right, now generally we have an idea what it is about and you may develop it further, Dr. Hoffman. BY DR. HOFFMAN:

Q. Witness, first of all a question, do you think that a camp must always have a fence?

A. No.

Q. Thus, if there were six to seven thousand Jews camping, there was a camp also, and the President is correct?

A. The President is always correct, yes.

Q. Why were these Jews to be brought back into the Rumanian territory?

A. The last decisions, or better the preliminary thoughts I can not give you, because this was not my job, but, of course, it seems credible to me and understandable that in this situation it was not up to us to have a helpless population driven into our territory, which only had to cause us difficulties, because they were staying there and they could not be sheltered there, and didn't even belong to us, they were Rumanian citizens.

Q. But there was an order to shoot Jews?

A. Yes, certainly, but I would say that we had nothing to do with Rumanian citizens, and the Hitler Order could not extend to Rumanian citizens, and could not be valid in the Rumanian territory.

Q. And why did the Rumanians not want to take back their own citizens?

A. I can not explain that. I could not have insight into Rumanian affairs. It was certain that we had to get rid of the Jews in some manner or other, and, it was the simple way that one would drive them out of ones own territory and to leave them to the Germans.

THE PRESIDENT: And how did they get over there in the first place?

THE WITNESS: The way I heard about it, the Rumanians drove them out of their own old Rumanian territory, that is, Bessarabia, across the Dnjestr River, and after that they blocked off the bridge, and now they were at our charge.

DR. HOFFMAN: Your Honor, maybe it would be helpful to the Tribunal if I submitted a map, which gives the territory in detail.

We have only one copy.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, it would be very interesting to see it, Dr. Hoffmann. (Shows map at the Bench) You show it to him, and then you show it to us afterwards.

DR. HOFFMAN: Yes. (Shows map to the witness, thereafter Dr. Hoffman returns to the bench with the same map, where a discussion ensues outside the record).

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you. BY DR. HOFFMAN:

Q. What did you do to see to it that the Jews be brought back to Rumanian territory?

A. I already said that I left Jampol and arrived at the large camping site, and I went right into the midst tive, or might speak for them. After some talking back and forth a coup of men came to see me. I asked them whether they came from Mogilew, and they said, yes. I told them that they would be brought across the bridge, and could go back to their homeland, but I can not as yet tell them exactly when. I hoped it would be the same day. They were very joyous about this.

Q. Did these Rumanian citizens want to go back there?

A. Absolutely. According to my impression it was the greatest desire to go back home.

Q. And how do you know that these were Rumanian Jews. Did you understand their language, or what was it?

A. They told me from where they came. I had an interto the German language, even in these areas, where I could make myself understood well enough.

Q. And now please describe for us briefly what you actually did?

A. We went to the bridge, and when I arrived there I found a German engineer bridge building company. I asked for their commanding officer. A technical master sergeant reported to me. I told him what my mission was. In the course of the conversation we established the fact we were somehow known to each other, and, when we went into the matter further we found out that he come from my hometown. He was a lawyer in Hallo, and his name is DR. Harsch. He knew me from my activity with my attorney, and from work in the courts. He promises to be of help to me. He told me that the other bridge would be possible within a few hours, and it would then be possible to take care of the west-East supply columns by transferring this traffic to the new bridge so that the other bridge would be at my disposal in order to bring the Rumanians back. Then we would have to set up second bridge command and the signs would have to be changed. He promised to take care of that. Then I went to the Rumanians and asked for their commanding officer. He was not present. It was of no use to speak to the Rumanian enlisted men. I told them that the traffic on this bridge would be re-routed today. They should occupy the other bridge and change the sign, but only when the German bridge commander would tell them to do so. All of this was taken care of. I agreed with the German bridge commander at about six or eight o'clock at night, safer as I remember, that the traffic would be re-routed to the new bridge, and then I had the camping Jews notified that they should stop preparing their meals, and should arrange their stuff and to place themselves in formation one hour after the traffic had been rerouted and they would be brought back across the bridge.

I remained until this had taken place; left the village and already at the appointed edge of the town the point of the column was standing at the determined time and then started marching. I was up in the front at the Rumanian side of the shore, and let this column pass by me. They left in about one to one and a half hours, I can not say exactly, it was a close column. A few times there were interruptions but the thing took its course in one go.

There were some officers I had, or some man, to find out whether anybody was left at that camp site. I can not say whether I was there myself. I would assume so, but no one was there, and we didn't expect any one who would want to remain there, That completed my mission. I thanked the men. I thanked the German bridge commander, and early the next morning I went back to the Garrison in Tscharnomin and made a report about it to the Satzgruppe chief, and told them about the fact this camp had been quickly taken care of, for which I had to thank nobody but the German bridge commander.

Q. Witness who was the German bridge commander?

A. The German bridge commander was the then master sergeant in the engineers company, by profession, an attorney, Dr. Harsch of Halle.

Q. Could this German bridge commander observe this whole procession from the beginning to the end?

A. Yes absolutely.

Q. And did any shootings take place on this occasion?

A. Certainly not.

DR. HOFFMAN: Your Honor, may I notify the Tribunal that just today I received the address of this German bridge commander by telegram, therefore, I would want to make an application to hear this witness, perhaps. I would be glad if I might suggest that neither I nor the Prosecutor examine this witness, but that the witness be interrogated by the Tribunal here in the interest of an immediate hearing.

THE PRESIDENT: That is entirely satisfactory to the Tribunal, and I would suggest that you notify the defense information center to telegraph this man to proceed to Nurnberg to testify in this case, and to report to the defense information center.

DR. HOFFMANN: Yes. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. How long did your command remain in Tscharnomin?

A. Only a few more days. I think that on the 23rd the Group-staff left this place and went to Ananjew, and there the Commando X-B was transferred also. One or two days later Einsatzcommando XII left Tscharnomin, all of it.

Q. Where did your commando go?

A. It had the order to proceed to the Ethnic German areas, into that area which includes the German Settlement Area in Tscharnomin.

Q. What was the cause and what was the nature of the work assigned up there?

A. The cause of this was the following: not be discussed here, and which in its Eastern frontier border at the Bug River, was declared to be part of the Rumanian Sovereign territory at that time. That is, the Rumanian Sovereign territory was extended up to that point, East. I assume that because of this the commandos which were to bring in the harvest had to interrupt their work because the German Economic Command of the Army, as well as all the other agencies, had to leave this area because If it became Rumanian Sovereign territory, then it was no longer German rear Army area, End, therefore, all German agencies in this area evacuated that territory, and, thus, the necessity of the new work which Einsatzcommando XII got, was the protection of the interest of the large settlements of Ethnic Germans in this area.

Q Was this also Rumanian sovereign territory? never became an area of the German civil administration. On one of the maps existing the Bug is denoted as a special border. such a German occupation? between the German Army agencies there and between the Rumanian Army leadership and between the German agencies there, and were made in Berlin. I can imagine that it was the Army Staff of the 11th Army and that it agreed with the Rumanian war leadership, and that because of this agreement it was permitted to a German commando to look after the interests of these ethnic Germans.

Q Against what were they to be protected? immediate protection against excesses of military units or other people from the population. Without passing any judgment on our then Allies, the Rumanians it can be said , as is shown by many reports, and as we are able to establish it from our own experience, that the Rumanians soldiers were very much undisciplined.

Q When did the advance from Tscharnomin come about?

Q And what was your objective? definite objective, if I disregard the fact that Speyer was the Center of this area, in which place, weeks ago, the Special Commando 10-A of Einsatzgruppe D had been stationed and had been active. Furthermore, it was our mission to distribute the commando in the smallest detachments over the whole area in such a manner of ten that often there were only two, three or four men; that it might be possible to get hold of these ethnic Germans, to register them, and as far as they were living in mixed settlements with Ukrainians, to get them out by exchanging them, and resettle them in purely German areas.

Q Why did the Special Commando 10-A not remain there? 10-A was attached to d definite Army unit and that it always moved with this Army unit. The front had been advanced further forward and the Commando 10-A probably had kept its Army unit to the front, but Einsatzkommando 12 was not subordinate to any Army unit. activity cease there? that is, until the 15th of October, the last remnants of it had been taken out. I, personally, was not able to do much during this period. Until the first days of September at the latest, I remained active as commanding officer of the commando. Already in the first weeks of our stay in Russia I had to suffer from dysentery and hardly any of the officers or men were spared from this disease,I think not even Herr Ohlendorf himself.

THE PRESIDENT: Was there any special reason why it did not hit him.

THE WITNESS: No. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q Witness please don't become so extended. We know that you got dysentery, Herr Ohlendorf too, and that you got sick of another disease.

A It was a complication. I had an intestinal ailment, and after the examination it was found that only by hospital treatment could I be cured. I had myself examined at a field hospital. When I reported to the Einsatzgruppe Chief in Ananjev, that is about a week after we had left, and after I had distributed some parts of my unit among the area, the Einsatzgruppe Chief noted that I was painfully ill. He asked me about it, and I told him what the examination had resulted in, and he ordered that I should go into a hospital, that he would give the command of the commando to Captain Haussmann and "when you are all right again, report back to me."

Q When was this exactly?

Q And how long did you stay in the hospital and where? had been moved. I had even the commando to Haussmann, and it must have been around the 6th or 8th of September that I was admitted into the Field Hospital 227. The Hospital was in Hove Odessa on the other side of the Bug River. That is in the in the German rear Army area.

Q How long did you stay in the hospital? September.

Q And where did you go them? Nikolaev.

Q What orders did you get where you reported there? thus commando, and that I wanted to go back into the area where the Einsatzkommando 12 was active. Then the Einsatzgruppe Chief told me that this whole work had been interrupted, a detail of the Office for Registration of Ethnic Germans was moving in. That was the Reich agency or the Reich organization which was competent for such tasks, namely the registration and supply and care of these people, and when the commando of this agency moved in, the units of Einsatzkommando 12, after handing over their functions, were to be relieved.

Q And where was the commando to go then? Nikolaev in order to await new orders there, namely, to be attached to a new Army.

Q And when did the commando actually arrive in Nikolaev?

A The various detachments came after each other. I executed the order by notifying the various detachments that after the command of the agency for ethnic Germans had arrived that they should leave, and the first ones arrived in the first days of October, and the last around the 15th of October. That is when the last part must have arrived in Nikolaev.

Q What activity did you have in Nikolaev?

A In Nikolaev I reorganized the commando. We went into the billets of Commando 11-A, I believe, which had been active in Nikolaev previously. The Chief III of the Group Staff and others assigned the commando various missions in the reporting service about the domestic problem there, about the economic reconstruction, about industry, shipbuilding, social structure, etc. you received? the commando from the 15th of October on lasted only ten days. Then again parts of the commando were already on the march.

Q And where were they supposed to go? attached to the 17th Army which was then about seven hundred kilometers further east, in the area between Rostov and Stalino, where it was active and where it was advancing. it had been with the 17th Army?

A. It would have been committed . the way the Commando 10-A was committed with the 11th Army. They moved along and took care of all Security Police measures as the others did.

Q. Did you proceed?

A. As far as the time is concerned, nothing was changed, but during those days messaged had been received about increasing partisan activity in the Dnjepr Bend. These were bands which had come from the swamp area and which threatened the supply columns.

Q. Witness, you now use the word "band" for the first time. When were you aware of this and when did these partisan groups appear?

A. Until I went to Nikolaev I personally did not experience a anything of an express partisan warfare.

Q. When was this?

A. Until I arrived in Nikolaev on the 15th of October.

Q. What year?

A. 1941. That refers to my commando and my own experience.

Q. And now you suddenly heard something about partisan groups?

A. I had already heard partisan groups from other commandos which were already operating hundreds of kilometers east of myself; the reports came from the Einsatzgruppe of from the Army. The Army now decreed that the Einsatzgruppe was to become active in such a way that security was maintained.

Q. And what definite mission did you get now in this connection?

A. There was another area which was especially threated by bands. That was the dune territory of the Dnjepr Delta. That was a completely opposite direction from the Dnjepr Bend. The one was northwards, the other southeast. Therefore the commando was divided into two parts, and one-half was attached to Sturmbannfuehrer Dr. Bolte who had just arrived and subordinated to him who was equivalent in rank to myself.

He received the order to operate in this area. I don't know his orders, and I don't know exactly, but I assume that he operated with Army units.

Q. Thus there was another half of Commando 12 which remained?

A. Yes, and I went on with his half.

Q. What was the first objective?

A. The mission was partisan warfare in the Dnjepr Bend. Thus I picked out a point on the map which might serve as our first objective, and purely by the map I established the village Mikailowka.

Q. How far was Mikailowka from your garrison?

A. As the crow flies it was at least 300 kilometers from Nikolaev.

Q. When did you get there?

A. I personally got there around the 8th or 10th of November, but now it must be mentioned that this detachment which I led did not march in one column but in two for the following reason: Because vehicles had dropped out and because vehicles had been surrendered to other units I was forced to equip half of the detachment with horses; horses disturbed the supply column of the road, of the main road, which was only provided for heavy trucks.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, is all this detail necessary?

DR. HOFFMANN: No, it is a little bit too extended. I shall shorten it a little.

THE PRESIDENT: He went into action, and get to the action, what it was, but how many horses they had and the dust they created and the flies, etc., is a little bit excessive.

Q. (By Dr. Hoffman) When did you arrive in Mikailowka?

A. I personally got there on the 6th of November, and the equipment of the other detachment with horses -

Q. I just want to ask you directly, when did you arrive there?

A. Half of my men came in on the 6th of November with me by vehicle about.

Q. That is, on the 6th of November you could start with your mission?

A. Partly, because now another half was missing.

Q. How many were you there?

A. The people that arrived with me included the administrative people, and other people who were fit for combat were about 25 men.

Q. What did you do there; how did you fight the partisans?

A. First I tried to determine where the other people were because I wanted to know what was the matter, and then I heard through a courier who had come from Nikopol that the other half had got stuck in Nikopol and had been already committed by the Army to fight partisans in the Dnjepr Bend. Then I got the first report about fights and arrests and shootings of partisans. I handed this report to the group.

Q. Did you make any other reports at this time?

A. Yes, several. I personally went around. I was active in reconnaissance of partisans. We advanced from Mikailowka in a northerly direction, and several times we had fights with partisans though not very severe as the group led by the Army, but we found out that these were only minor units with which we were dealing, and that the decisive cleaning of these islands was handled by that group which included half of my own detachment.

Q. What was the report like which you made out?

A. Well, there were several reports. The fights took place at various times, and I got various reports. Thus in the first report it was stated how many groups there were, how they were equipped, who commanded. We found this out through deserters, and thing like this: How many were shot in the fight; who were the leading partisans; and that partisan prisoners had been released because they had just been recruited under threats. Thus in three or four reports these matters were handed down to Group.

Q. These reports which you handed on, did you make these out from your own experience, or were those events reported to you and passed on by you?

A. Well, essentially I only passed them on. I never was in Nikopol. I could only report what my men who were fighting with the Army experienced themselves, but what I experienced I reported from my own experience.

Q. What did you do; what did you report from your own experience?

A. I reported that we had fights but we ourselves made no prisoners.

Q. How did such a reconnaissance action take place? Briefly describe it, will you?

A. We did this in several actions. Three or four villages which we wanted to attack from various directions, that is the unit was divided up in several vehicles and ordered to be there at a certain time.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, this is purely a technical matter, giving us the history of how he attacked. How is that going to help us in solving the real issue which is in the indictment. He was fighting partisans. All right, he fought partisans. He fought in one village; he fought in another village. We have a general idea of how this fight occurred, but to give us all the minute movements of various platoons and men is just a little bit of unnecessary detail.

Q. (By Dr. Hoffmann) Witness, apart from partisan warfare you know that you are charged here with having executed Jews, women, and children, on the basis of the Fuehrer Order. Did this happen during this period?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. There was a special mission here to fight the Partisans in this area, that is to stop the disturbance to the supply columns. That was the mission in which kept the Kommando from reaching the 17th Army. That was an unpleasant interruption of the march and I was constantly on the march. to? a large area and on this flat land the prerequisites did not exist. We would have had to search and we didn't do that, and I may add that I was in the German settlement area, North-East of this area for a brief period or one trip. Of the population of thirty thousand people, none were left. They had been committed to dig an anti-tank ditch and they had been sent back into the interior of Russai when the Germans approached. The villages were empty. Only a few inhabitants had remained.

Q Did you ever get to the 17th Army?

A Never. The only person from the 17th Army I talked to was the G-2 of the 17th Army.

Q Where was he?

Q And where was your Kommando at that time? had gotten stuck there in the winter. the officer of the 17th Army?

A I think this distance is not so important. Mariupol is at least another two hundred kilometers away.

Q What did you speak about with the officer of the 17th Army? the Einsatzgruppe chief had visited Milkailowka and that winter had set in, that I had only been able to travel ten kilometers a day and that I had finally been forced to stop at a place, Fedorowka, which was not my objective at all and which was not even on the map, that I could neither proceed nor go back, whether he had any orders for me where I should proceed to.

Then he described to me the situation of the Army as a result of the setting in of winter. The advance had stopped; the Army had fallen back on the Mius front. There was no combat activity. The supply line was endangered and now everything would remain where it was. I asked him whether I should go any place else. At least I wanted better shelter for the winter. Thereupon, he said, "Just remain where you are. Everyone wants to move now in winter. It would make the supply problem more difficult. Just stay where you are. I have no orders to give you, and now there is nothing else to do but to wait till we can consider advancing.

Q When was this?

A I arrived at Fedorowka about the 18th. A few days later, before Christmas, I visited the G_2 in Mariupol, about the 20th, or 21st. D?

Q Did you report the result of the conference with the G_2 to the Einsatzgruppe?

Q Was, the Einsatzgruppe in agreement?

A Yes, I did not get any other directives. At any rate in this situation there was nothing else for me to do. Of course, there was a reaction when I received the radio order to take a detachment of about 30 to 35 men and send it to the Crimea where it was needed urgently because of the military situation.

Q When did you set this Kommado started?

Q And how many were left with your Kommando in January?

Q And where were all these people?

Q And what were the local conditions?

A Fedorowka was a very primitive settlement. The shelters were accordingly. The winter was especially severe in this steppe area. There were snow storms and impassibility of the few existing roads which prevented any activity. Vehicles had already gotten stuck some distance back and one could only more around by sled.

Q Witness, how long did this condition last in Fedorowka? Crimea, it was only a short way to get to the coast at least they had a better opportunity to get moving along the coast because a supply line had been laboriously established along the shore, and my Einsatz Kommando remained there until the first days of March. Then a change came in the weather. At this time the other half Kommando under Sturmbannfuehrer Dr. Bolte joined me in Fedorowka then I was relieved.

Q When did this happen?

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, I must now come to talk about the documents and the points with which the Prosecution charges the defendant Noeske. I would be grateful if I could start this on Monday.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I think that would be a very logical thing to do. The Tribunal will now adjourn until Monday morning at the usual time of 9:30 o'clock.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 8 December 1947 at 0930 hours.)

America, against Otto Ohlendorf, et al., defendants, 0930-1630.

Justice Musmanno, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. Tribunal.

DR. KOESSL: Dr. Koessl for the defendant Ott. In the name of the defendant Ott, and my own name also, I would like to express to the Tribunal my thanks for the generous favor, namely, that the defendant Ott was allowed to attend the funeral of his mother in Augsburg. For the defendant it was a significant event, and it was a great relief for him that the Tribunal granted him that favor.

THE PRESIDENT: You are very welcome indeed, and we are happy that we were able to grant a very reasonable request which was made by you on behalf of your client, and we can not help but express a regret and sympathy with the defendant for the great loss which he has suffered.

DR. KOESSL: Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Hoffmann. BY DR. HOFFMANN: if I remember correctly. Now I should like to go through the Prosecution's documents with you very briefly. I refer to the Prosecution's charge in which it says, which is on page 246 of the German record of the 30th of September, the case against the defendant Gustav Nosske - - - - and the Prosecution there says, in accordance with your own declaration

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, you have n ot given us the number of the book.

DR: HOFFMAN: Excuse me. Your Honor, I said from the record on page 246.

THE PRESIDENT: I see. BY DR. HOFFMAN: that from June 1941 to March 1942 you were the commander of Einsatzkommando XII, is that correct? your activities after you were relieved in Russia, and the Prosecution assumed that you were in charge of a type of Commando Staff. Now, I Would like to discuss this activity in Berlin with you. What happened to you when you returned to the Reich?

MR. WALTON: May it please the Tribunal, that is Document Book III, page 69 of the English -

THE PRESIDENT: Even you are not giving it to us. III what?

MR. WALTON: Document Book III-B, Your Honor, page 69 of the English, page 114 of the German, and it is Prosecution's Document NO4146, Exhibit No. 167. He particularly refers to paragraph 4 of that affidavit, which is on page 2 of the Original. BY DR. HOFFMAN: the Reich?

reported for the second time to the Personnel office. That was the beginning of May. My final employment had not been deceided upon as yet. That is what I found out there. Probably I would be employed in office IV. In the meantime, Office I asked me to work there as an Auditor, and, they asked me as such to go to the Security Training School in Charlottenburg. Q What was your activity exactly as an Auditor? A Correction - it was as Pruefer, Examiner, not an Auditor. I was active as an examiner in Penal Procedure, Administrative Law, and Civil Law. Q Did you also work in office IV at that time? A No, not at that time. Q Who was your immediate superior? A May I ask you, you mean of Office IV? Q No, I mean during this time. A During this time, of course. I was subordinate to Office I. My final activity had not been decided upon, and I was subordinate to the director of the Fuehrer School. Q When did you start your office activity? A In June 1942, I reported to Office IV, that was about ten days after Heydrich's death. When I reported to the Chief of Office IV, he told me that I was to take over a new department. That would be Department IV-D-5, which had been part of Lindergruppe, of Group-D, and one job of this office was to evaluate the reports concerning the Partisan warfare. Attached to this particular department was a sub-department for the evaluation in which the documents which had been seized in the Soviet Zone would be translated. All other matters I would find out eventually when I would report to my immediate superior.

Q Who was that? Oberregierungsrat, Senior Government Councillor, Dr. Jonas. to you? he acquainted me with it, and concerning my own activity, he gave me the following explanation: With the beginning of the Russian Campaign, the position of information and intelligence officer had been created in the RSHA, and this man would have to deal with all reports from the Einsatzgruppen via the office chief, and they would then pass into Office IV-A-I, which would deal with the actual evaluation and report almost daily about the reports coming from Soviet Russia. In the Autumn of 1941 the office of the Einsatz Intelligence Officer had been given up. But actually the activity itself had not changed, and the Department IV-A-I, now called"Commando staff" still evaluated the Eastern reports. Since, however, the reports were very unreliable, incorrect and inaccurate, a basic change had to be made in the Spring of 1942. The evaluation of the Eastern Reports from this time on, was not undertaken by this one Department IV-A-I, but by the competent sub-departments off all the departments to which these reports were sent. Since the reports about partisan activity and warfare could not be handled by any existing department, the new department IV-D-5 has been created, of which I was going to be in charge from then on. asked you quite specifically, did you find out about the reports coming from Russia and dealing with executions on the part of Einsatzkommando, and did you receive such reports?

Order, after this change in making reports, were, in my own time, no longer incorporated in the reports. I know that these reports went via the Office Chief IV to the GroupEichmann IV-B-IV. As a consequence,of this, in the compiling of the reports, the individual contributions furnished by the various departments, as for instance, Jewish actions, could no longer be incorporated in the new report from the Eastern Occupied territory.

Q Witness, who was Eichmann? deal with all Jewish matters. the RSHA hear anything about the assignment which Eichmann had, and of the activity that he carried on? the small circle around him. actual elimination order in the safe? this fact? Even his office, geographically speaking, was not in the Main Building of the RSHA, and was in a special building. I never entered this building, and when the secrecy in the office was very strict, Eichmann's seclusion was almost hermetic.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, you state that the elimination order - - - you stated the elimination order was in Eichmann's safe.

By whom was that order signed?

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, this order was also signed by Hitler. I now refer to a statement by Vitzizety in the IMT, who described how he first learned from Eichmann that 250,000 Czechoslovakian Jews had been exterminated in Auschwitz; that it what this defendant said when he was on the witness stand for the IMT, and when he asked Eichmann in Berlin how these 250,000 Jews were exterminated, Eichmann went to the safe and showed him this particular order which was signed by Hitler. I believe Mr. Walton also will remember this episode.

THE PRESIDENT: Was this the Fuehrer Order, or another order?

DR. HOFFMANN: That was another order.

THE PRESIDENT: If you know the reference number, or can without too much trouble locate it, we would appreciate your letting us have the page number in the IMT record in which this episode is related.

DR. HOFFMANN: Very well. Your Honor, I just learned that it is contained in the Document Book of Ohlendorf's, and was submitted, and even though it is, I shall submit it to the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. You say, therefore, that you didn't find out anything about this particular part that Eichmann played, as he was in a secluded soot, as it were?

A. It was only known that he received immediately from the office chief, or from Himmler himself, as I said; apart from their small circle nobody of those employed on the office found out anything about that.

Q. I now return to your activity. You were then in charge of a department on this office, and what was the size of this department?

A. The department consisted besides myself of four people, one collaborator, one registrar, and two stenotypists.

Q. And what was your task in detail?

A. My task was to deal with reports which had been sent us by the Main Office about Partisan activity warfare, espionage, and to evaluate those reports, and to compile them clearly and concisely. Particular care had to be taken that the organization of the Partisan groups were to be recognized, their tactics had to be established, the means with which they work, and so forth, in order to inform the authorities in the East who had to deal with the actual Partisan warfare, and to show them the Partisan activity as it developed in the whole Eastern territory.

Q. Did you have to combine any executive power with this activity?

A. No, executive power in this respective activity I would say didn't exist. Furthermore, no directives where even prepared in this particular department. The directives could only be given through the ordinary channel of com and in existence, that was only by the office chief, and chief of the Security Police, or Himmler himself.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, was it his office which prepared the operational reports, his office?

DR. HOFFMANN: As the witness says, only those concerning Partisan activity, whereas reports concerning shootings, based on the Hitler order mentioned here, went to Eichmann who was in charge of the Jewish problems.

THE PRESIDENT: But the operational reports covered all activities. Activities against Partisans, activities against Jews, activity against saboteurs, everything.

DR. HOFFMANN: Perhaps the witness can comment on this again, very briefly and concisely.

A. Your Honor, those activity reports which were issued in the Reich Security Main Office are to be distinguished from those which bear the title "Reports from Soviet Russia". These reports, about two hundred copies, which also are here the subject of the charge were issued between June until the end of April 1942. These reports contained everything, partisan warfare as well as Jewish actions and all the activities talking place in the Eastern Occupies Territories and everything reported by Einsatzgruppen. These reports only appeared as top secret matters. In the spring, the basic change was brought; from this time on reports were not issued concerning the whole of Soviet Russia but new reports were called "Reports from Eastern Occupied Territories". Already the name shows that there was a basic difference in these reports, and these new reports which are also available here in the Document Center but which have not been introduced as evidence contain these reports from the Eastern Occupied Territories.

THE PRESIDENT: But who actually made up the reports in that office, the reports that have been introduced here in the Document Books?

A. The reports which have been submitted here as evidence by the Prosecution were issued by the Department 4-A-I. That is a sub-department of Office IV in the RSHA. The people concerned are known, the man in charge was Lindow, and his collaborators Dr. Knobloch and Fumy.

THE PRESIDENT: And who?

A. Fumy and Dr. Knobloch.

THE PRESIDENT: Then those three men are the ones who actually prepared the reports which we have here as evidence, Lindow, Knobloch, and Fumy?

A. That is correct.

COURT II CASE IX BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. Until when, witness?

A. These reports of events from USSR came to a stop at the end of April 1942. The last copies bear numbers about 194 or 196. The reports from the Eastern Occupied Territories which were issued after that, and only weekly, bear new numbers which begin with one.

THE PRESIDENT: Then, do I understand that the modus operendae was for these three men, either acting separately or collectively, to receive the reports from the field and then to combine them and issue them as reports from Berlin?

A. Yes, that is correct. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. But, Herr Nosske, that was not your activity, was it?

A. I and nothing to do with reports that have been submitted here as evidence by the Prosecution. They and been concluded at a time when I had not joined the office yet.

Q. Do you know what the reason was for this new kind of reporting?

A. As my predecessor had told me, it was for the reason that the manner of reporting until then had been most unreliable, incorrect, and inaccurate. I myself personally learned from Fumy at a later into that these two people, Dr. Knoblech and Fumy, were so much overworked and had to work under such bad conditions that it can easily be explained why these such bad conditions that it can easily be explained why these reports were so inaccurate. Therefore, the evaluation of the reports later on was not only transferred to this one particular office but were distributed to a number of individual departments.

Q. Your Honor, I take the liberty to introduce as Document No. 1 for identification the organizational plan of the RSHA. This chart is in English on order to make it easier COURT II CASE IX for the Tribunal and there the position of the defendant himself becomes quite evident from this.

Would you now comment on this and tell the Tribunal what your own position was?

A. I was in Department 4-D-5 which is Office IV in the center. The chief was Mueller. Then there are Groups A, B, B-4, C and D. The next-to-the-last department was the group to which my own sub-department was attached, and the last one is 4-D-5, Eastern Partisan Organization.

Q. Did you carry out any other special activity in connection with reporting, for instance?

A. Yes, Since the evaluation of the reports was carried out by a number of sub-departments of other departments one special department had to compile the results, and that was done by the departments concerned sent a representative to attend an auditors meeting once a week to which they brought along their own parts of the reports and their own contributions which had been approved by their chiefs. They were proofread, Sometimes objections were made of factual or technical matters and then the parts were put on steal plates and then they were printed and distributed by the Main Office. I want to point out to you the departments which actually contributed to those reports and this general report. First is Office IV in the center under Group A, Department I Communism, Marxism. Then Dept II, antisabotage activity. Then in the group of the same office B, B-1, Division 3, foreign churches, the Greek orthodox Church. Group 4-B-4, for instance, did not take part in this. Then there was in Group 4-D the subdivision 4-D-3, foreign emigrants. My own sub-department 4-D-5 and Group IV-E, counter-espionage and V, Espionage East. The contributions of Office III in the domestic sphere were complied by Group III-B and were brought to the editing meeting by COURT II CASE IX a representative of the sub-office III-B-1. As for the individual sub-departments in Department III, I do not have to deal with them here because more or loss all of them had the opportunity to contribute, be it in the sphere of culture, economy, or the already mentioned field, public health.

Q. How, witness - -

A. Finally, Office VI, that is the next-to-the-last office in the Reich. There was Group C represented by Department II, Russia evaluation.

Q. Would you also be able to explain based on this chart where the reports about execution on the basis of the Hitler order went, for you are new speaking of Partisan and other matters?

A. Yes. What I am crying to explain new concerns reports as they were issued after April 1942 in the new reports from the Eastern Occupied Territories. The Jewish matters, however, - all matters concerning Jewish Operations went immediately from the office chief to Office 4-B-4 Eichmann which is immediately in the center of the chart.

Q. Did you have say liberties as the editor of such reports from the East?

A. I, of course, had to submit the compilations of the reports to the office chief first for his approval. He either approved or changed them. Sometimes he even asked for the original reports but apart from that I had no particular power.

Q. How, as to such reports in which you yourself had participated were they also submitted here?

A. They appear in the new reports form the Eastern Occupied Territories but not in those which are the subject of the indictment here.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, may I say that in order not to be boring I should like to ask you whether the witness made it quite clear what his position was because perhaps the complication of this chart and also the translation make it very difficult. He takes the responsibility for the reports from June 1942 but he points out emphatically that reports concerning shootings went to the man dealing with the Jewish problem, Eichmann, in the RSHA.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I am very glad you did present this chart because I think for the first time I have been able to get an overall clear picture of the RSHA activities. where?

DR. HOFFMANN: Who issued these reports?

A. They must have come from the East, either from the THE PRESIDENT: They came from the field? DR. HOFFMANN: Yes, certainly. THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, I still don't quite understand prior to the time that a change was made in the method of reporting how a report originating in the field and containing a number of subjects could go to any but one office in the RSHA. The report came on as one entity and it contained reference to Jews, Saboteurs and Partisans, and so on. It had to go to one office, it couldn't be divided up because it was all combined.

DR. HOFFMANN: That is quite correct, your Honor. Perhaps the witness can explain it.

A. During the time until April 1942 the reports from the Eastern Occupied Territories went as one entity, without being distributed to various offices, to this one office IV-A-1. Therefore, they did not have to be distributed.

Later or a new scheme was started and we were told in what shape reports had to be issued. Then after this these reports consisted of separate parts. They were separate of subdivided and passed on to the various department and then it came about that for this particular part, Office IV-B-4, Eichmann, became competent.

Q. I still don't understand. Did they all appear on one shoot or were they separate?

A. They were separate.

Q. Therefore, the executions based on the Hitler order came on a separate shoot?

A. Yes, exactly. In the same way sabotage, economic subjects, domestic spheres - they again were not on the same shoot with Partisan Warfare, and again there was a new shoot.

Q. Witness, I was not in the RSHA. I ask you - -

A. Yes, I understand. The scheme of reporting caused the sub-dividing of the reports so that it was possible for us to distribute reports when they arrived in the Security Main Office.

Q. Do you mean a whole parcel of reports was received from one Einsatzgruppe in Berlin.

A. Yes.

Q. And there was one office - -

A. That was the Main Office who distributed the reports. They signed them and they marked them for these individual departments for which they were destined.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, this has nothing at all to do with reports but I am always curious to know just what a place in which activities took place looked like. Was the RSHA all in one building?

A. No, the main building was in Prinz Albrechtstrasse. Several groups of Office IV were housed there. In the COURT II CASE IX surrounding buildings in Wilhelmstrasse there were other offices of Office IV and Office III; apart from this, the offices of Office IV as well as other offices were distributed all over town, sometimes as far as 15 to 20 kilometers.

Q. Where was Eichmann?

A. Eichmann was in Kurfuerstenstrasse.

Q. What was the distance between his and your office?

A. From my office approximately 8 kilometers.

THE PRESIDENT: Did Heydrich have his office in the large building?

A. Yes, it was in the main building.

THE PRESIDENT: Did Himmler also have his office there?

A. No, not from the beginning of the War on. He had his field command post. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. I think, witness, I have already asked you, how long did you work in IV-D-5.?

A. Until October 1942. of IV-D-3.

Q. What did IV-D-3 deal with?

A. IV-D-3 dealt with foreigners within the Reich. That was the circle of people who had migrated to Germany and were granted refuse in the Reich because of their political attitude in their own countries. There were two large groups, one group of Russian immigrants. That was the group of people who has gone to Western European countries after the Russian Revolution of 1917. The other group comprised the Rumanian group of immigrants. That was the part of the so-called Iron Guard, that was the National movement in Rumania, who had been indispute with the Chief of State Antonescu.

Q. What did your activities consist of? You said you were in charge of taking care of these people.

A. This office had the function of guidance. In fact it was the only office of the Reich Government to which they could turn in order to protect their own interests. These groups of refugees were mainly pro--German and, of course, on account of their knowledge of languages they already worked in a number of German Governmental offices. Therefore, they had to be investigated, and this was also done by this particular sub-department.

Q. Did anything unpleasant for you happen during this activity?

A. I had only been in this department for 20 days when the leader of the Iron Guard who was called Horia Shima, who with his close circle of so-called Captains, was housed in an SD recreation home in Bergenbrueck near Furstenwalde in the vicinity of Berlin. Horia Shima and his followers had given their word of honor not to be active politically in any way and not to leave the Reich territory. Shortly before Christmas - -

Q. Excuse me, Was Shima Rumanian?

A. Yes, he was a Rumanian citizen. He had the right of asylum in the Reich and was considered a guest of the Fuehrer.

Q. Who was in charge of the Romanian government at that time?

A. Antonescu.

Q. Why was Shima against Antonescu?

A. Antonosecu had himself been a follower of the Iron Guard but he had left it, and with the aid of the Army had made himself chief of State of Romania. Therefore, the position of the Iron Guard had become untenable.

MR. WALTON: May it please the Tribunal. This is extremely interesting. I don't think it has anything to do with the issue involved. If he lost his job in connection with this Horia Shima, of course, that would be relevant but to go into his connection with the Third Reich authorities is going a little too far afield. I would like this man to confine his answers a little more.

THE PRESIDENT: I think that is correct, Dr. Hoffmann. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. You deviate, witness, please describe to us very briefly what happened concerning Horia Shima.

A. Horia Shima had leaf the country. As a result, foreign political complications had come about, riots in Roumania. The Reichfuehrer raged and ordered immediately that these people responsible for this should be punished. The man is charge of the SD Recreation Home, Untersturmfuehrer Hartung, was to be shot immediately because he had not reported about it immediately.

Q. What happened to you?

A. I was discharged temporarily and the office chief was afraid that the same thing would happen to me and my friends.

Q The whole think quited down, did it, or did it not? Therefore, regarding my own person, no further orders were issued.

THE PRESIDENT: When were you discharged?

THE WITNESS: That was after Christmas. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. Witness-

THE PRESIDENT: After Christmas? Give us the time.

THE WITNESS: I am sorry, Christmas, 1942. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. Witness, the President asked you when you were discharged. Was it actually a discharge, or were you just transferred?

A. I was just released from my office, I was not allowed to carry out my work. I was, as it were, without work.

Q. How long?

A. About ten weeks.

Q. What did you do after these ten weeks?

A. I used this opportunity to ask Office Chief IV to relieve me altogether from my duties, because I was no longer a valuable person to have. The Office Chief seamed to be agreeable to this, but he said that it was not up to him to decide on this. I never leaned anything further. Ten weeks later I had to deal with the job of the liaison officer with the Eastern Ministry as a deputy. I think he was ill, or anyway, he was not present In this activity I remained until July, until June, 1943.

Q. Did this activity last?

A. No, it was only a temporary activity, anyway. I was - that was the decision of the Office Chief - no longer to do any work in Office IV.

Q. What did you do after your work in the Eastern Ministry, what was your next assignment?

A. I was transferred to Dusseldorf as deputy of the inspector, or at least as assistant secretary of the inspector.

Q What, exactly, was your activity in Dusseldorf?

A. My assignment in the inspectorate consisted mainly of preparation of the organizational incorporation of the customs protection into the border Police of the Security Police and the transfer of the counterintelligence of the Wehrmacht into the the counter-intelligence of the Security Police.

Q How long did this activity of yours last?

Q What happened then? and a new one had not been appointed yet. The Chief of the State Police Office in Dusseldorf took over. Then he then took over the office of the inspectorate, I became the Chief of the State Police Office in Dusseldorf.

Q When was that?

Q Who was your chief? and SD, Senior Government Counsellor, Dr. Albert.

Q Did he remain your superior then, or did this change? inspector, that is in the time following this, that is one wear before the end of the war, were extended, of course, out the activity of an inspector was confined, in its territory which, in this case, was the Defense Area No. 6, to promotion, decoration, and to disciplinary and welfare matters. He was the deputy of Kaltenbrunner in this particular area. Dusseldorf?

Q Why only to the 20th of September, 1944?

date when Kaltenbrunner decided that I should be relieved of my office.

Q What was the reason for your being relieved from this office?

A There were a number of reasons. The main reason was the following: On the 11th or the 12th of September, 1944, I got a telephone call from the inspectorate that I should report for a conference the next day at eleven o'clock. I appeared, and there I met the State Police officers of Munster, the Senior Government Councillor, Landgraf and Government Councillor Hoffmann. A short while after that the inspector arrived and he said that he had seen the Higher SS and Police Leader and he had to pass on the following order to us: In the sector near the front all half-Jews, including their Aryan Spouse, had to be shot. Immediately places were to be found at which this measure could be carried out. The actions have to be carried out without anybody noticing them.

Q Witness, When was that?

Q Where was it?

Q Why was Dusseldorf near the front? invasion these sectors in the western frontier of the Reich had become from sectors, and in these front sectors the Higher SS and Police Leaders were made the plenipotentiaries by Himmler, and were, in effect, his deputies, and they could make all decisions.

Q What did you say when this order was made know to you? Who passed this order on to you, the Higher SS and Police Leader himself? who, at the same time, was a member of the staff of the Higher SS and Police Leader.

Q What was your reaction to this order? I did not think it could be carried out. I also made it clear that I could not carry out this order.

one of the other State chiefs remarked how it was that the Higher SS and Police Leader passed this order on to us. The answer to that was that the Higher SS and Police Leader has all executive power passed on to him by Himmler.

Q You made objections therefore, yes or no?

Q Were they of any use?

A No, there were of no avail. The inspector listened to our objections, but he said the order had been given and had to be carried out. First off all, anyway, the places themselves had to be found, and they had to be reported, and any discussion would be of no avail, and therefore we left the office.

Q What did you do when you returned from this discussion? to consider what I could do now in order to evade this order. First I did not arrive at any conclusion. If, indeed, it was a fact that the Higher SS and Police Leader really had all executive power of Himmler, and if really he had followed directives given to him by Himmler, then it was clear to me that there was no authority to whom I could apply in order to evade, in order to revoke this order. In this case even the RSHA would be of no use.

Q Did you, in spite of this, find a way out? phoned the competent departmental chief and asked him to come and see me - he was a Sturmbannfuehrer Brochorst - and I asked him about the situation concerning half-Jews and their spouses, how many people there were. He named the number. There were several thousand. His own opinion, however, was that perhaps they were not all present any more, that perhaps a number of them had evacuated the frontal zone with the rest of the population and had gone to the interior of the country, of the Reich. I asked him how we would get in touch with these people. He told we he had confidence men and this would be done your quickly.

But I had not informed him about the order yet. The next morning the State Police Officer of Cologne telephoned me and we discussed the order. He wanted my advice, but I could not give him any decision that I had made. On the same evening the inspector reminded us of the order and he asked us for the places that were to be chosen by use for this action. I replied again that this action, which had got the name "Vesuv", could not be carried out.

MR. WALTON: The defendant is being charged with his action as chief of an Einsatzkommando and again as chief of a commandano stab handling Einsatzgruppen matters. As to his subsequent employment after he left the RSHA I am sure the prosecution is not interested, and I don't believe that the Tribunal is. I believe that this immaterial to the issues in the case.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor. may I comment on this and say that the Defendant Nosske has always been charged with membership in a criminal organization, and there are certain prerequisites according to which the defendant can be convicted of membership. Therefore, I attach particular value to this, without, however, of course giving directives to the Tribunal as to how to judge this particular case, but in any case the statement of the defendant will show that he himself left the RSHA because of this particular event, Therefore, it seems of importance to me to explain this event in all detail, especially as the story is very unusual, and, of course, it would have to be investigated in order to determine the credibility of the story, whether it is correct that the Higher SS and Police Leader ordered the murder of a number of thousands of people at the last minute and whether the defendant objected and was punished for that, Whether this is correct or not seems of great importance to me in judging the defendant.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, we ruled, not too long ago, that what defense counsel deems relevant is relevant to the trial so far as the Tribunal is concerned. We will allow you to discuss anything and everything with the exception of the social life of the penguins in the Antarctic zone, and in some instance we will allow that too, if you make a special request to discuss it.

The only limitation we make, Dr. Hoffmann, is that you do not go into too much detail on things which are not immediately mentioned in the indictment. Now, this is relevant, not only because you say so, but because it is part of the res gestae of the whole activity of the RSHA and indirectly an aftermath of the Einsatzgruppen. We only request that you endeavor to hod a tight rain on the witness and see that he does not gallop off into fields of unnecessary detail.

Q What did you do to prevent this order form bring carried out? fuehrer Mueller, and I informed him about the content of the order of the Higher SS and Police Leader, including the reason that was given to us, that this measure was necessary for the security of the frontal sector, and in case the country would be occupied by the enemy these people would have to be prevented from carrying our reprisal measures on the German population. I explained that this order could not be carried out, and I also said that the security was not regarded as endangered by myself.

Q Did you receive a reply to this?

A No, for the time being I did not. I was reminded again --

Q By whom?

A By the inspector, to report about the places. When, however, I did not report to him about the places, he turned to my executive officer, Colonel Preckeln behind my back - Preckeln, the name isand asked him to find the places. or what happened? type message was received from the office chief of office IV.

THE PRESIDENT: You said Saturday the 16th. Give up the month.

THE WITNESS: 16 September, 1944. The following teletype message was received. I remember the first sentence of this teletype message. It started "It is incomprehensible to me how ameasure of this kind can even be considered without the knowledge of the Higher SS and Police Leader was challenged, and it said that it only went into effect if contact with the oriental offices could no longer be maintained. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

THE PRESIDENT: Who sent this telegram?

THE WITNESS: Office Chief IV, Gruppenfuehrer Mueller, of the RSHA.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, did that then close the incident?

THE WITNESS: No.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed.

THE WITNESS: Concerning the security, it said in the teletype message, further directives would be issued. I called my collaborators into my office and I told them of the order I had received a few days ago, and of the answer I had received from the RSHA; they should be prepared for further directives coming from Berlin. They were received in the night of Sunday, the 17th of September, 1944. They were to the effect that he make half-Jews able to work should join certain units of the Organization Todt, an auxiliary organization of the Army in this particular case, should, as I say, be assigned to this organization. The others should be accommodated with people of the same race in Mecklenburg and Brandenburg. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

" Did you actually experience the carrying out of this order when you were Chief of the State Police Office in Duesseldorf? ing Wednesday the directive was received that I was dismissed. been a reason that you were relieved from your office? took place in the sector Arnhem-Wesel. The inspector ordered me, after I had given him preliminary reports concerning the situation, to go to Wesel immediately with ten to fifteen people as reinforce ments.

I did that on Sunday afternoon, and we arrived just when these Allied landings took place. There were no German troops and there was no front. The enemy remained there, but he advanced at various points, and crossed the German-Dutch border, and I, myself, was forced to withdraw two guard units, staffed with four to five men.

Q Witness, did you do that?

Q Did the Higher SS & Police Leader object to this withdrawal? as disobedience.

Q What happened to you in September 1944? was received by the Chief of the Security Police, Kaltenbrunner, I would be relieved immediately from my office. The successor was on the way, and I would have to report to the personnel office.

THE PRESIDENT: When was that, please?

THE WITNESS: That was the 20th of September, 1944.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, in order that we may be certain that we understand this episode about the half-Jews, is it correct that the Higher SS and Police Leader, or rather the inspector in the witness' area, informed him that all Half-Jews had to be executed, half-Jews in the area and partners, that he protested, that eventually he contacted the RSHA department involved. He received a teletype message to the effect that it was incomprehensible that an order of this kind could be issued and much less executed without knowledge of the RSHA, that finally this order was in some way limited in its affect so that all able male Jews in that area were to be required to work in the that Organization, and all others were to be put into protective custody. Would you please correct that very brief summation of this episode?

DR. HOFFMANN: I Agree, only about the protective custody. On that protective custody, I want to ask the witness again. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q Was it protective custody?

A No, they weren't arrested, but it was only an evacuation.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, the word that came through was that they were accommodated, and then came some geographical terminology which I was unable to catch, but I assume that in some way they were assembled and put into a restricted locality. You, please correct me if I am wrong on that interpretation.

THE WITNESS: No, the order was to the effect that the remaining ones should be accommodated with the people of the same race, or, in this case, half-Jews, and families in Mecklenburg - the two German provinces, that is in Mecklenburg and Brandenburg, in the interior of the Reich, they should be accommodated there as free people.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, Then after that you received a message that you were being relieved, is that correct?

THE WITNESS: First of all, relieved of my duties. Later on investigations were carried out, but I was actually dismissed from the service of the SD and the Security Police. Then there was a level investigation.

DR. HOFFMANN: May I say, Your Honor, in order to clarify this, a in Germany an official was first of all suspended if he was charged with anything. That means he is not allowed to enter his office and carry out his functions, but whether he is to be dismissed or not, that was established later on, based on investigations. First of all he was suspended, then proceedings were instituted against him for military disobedience, and this is also contained in his personal papers which are submitted by the prosecution.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Then we do understand that the witness describes his eventual release on September 20, 1944, to his uncooperative attitude in connection with the Half-Jew order?

THE WITNESS": Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I just wanted that clear. The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

( The hearing reconvened at 1125 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q. Mr. Nosske, in order to clarify your dismissal from the SD, I want to ask you a few brief further questions. After you were suspended from office, was a procedure started against you?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did this procedure take place?

A. In the investigation office of the government counsel, police and SD, who had his office in Potsdam.

Q. Did the investigation office interrogate you?

A. Yes, the investigation officer senior government counsillor, Dr. Hussmann, personally interrogated me.

Q. Was your lack in willingness of cooperation in Duesseldorf and Wesel, the main reason for this, or the disobedience against the higher police and SS leader?

A. The most important reason was the refusal to obey the order, but I couldn't help noticing already in Wessel that the inspector looked for reasons in order to find further charges against me, for a procedure.

Q. And your cowardice when the enemy approached was the reason for this?

A. Yes, this and several other things were the reasons which made me be regarded as unsuitable to continue to be in the security police.

Q. Did you have to take off your uniform?

A. When I returned to Duesseldorf, a few days later, a teletype message came that I was dismissed from the security police and the SD. Instructions were given to the office that I hand in my service papers and that all articles belonging to the state which I had received from the SD, including the uniform I had to surrender, and I know that they had been taken from the equipment store of the SD.

Q. In your opinion you were actually dismissed from the security police and the SD.

A. Yes, I was actually dismissed from the security police and the SD.

Q. And for the rest of the war, what did you do?

A. I was with the frontal troops as a private. I had been dismissed from the security police and the SD and had been released for the army at the same time, and then tried with the districe commandor to be called up as soon as possible. Only during the second discussion did I hear that I was not to be drafted into the army but into the Waffen SS; since I had to be afraid that within the Waffen SS I might be under immediate orders from Himmler again, I objected to this and referred to my teletype message. Who officer told me that didn't matter at all where I was drafted to, probably they only needed people in the artillery in the Waffen SS.

Q. In any case, you were a private until the end of the war at the front?

A. Yes. At first I was sent to the reserve regiment Number 5 in Prague; and afterwards so the fourth reserve Army in Olmuetz, and in the middle of November, with 300 men of the reserve, I went to the front in Hungary.

THE PRESIDENT: I want to ask you whether you got into the Waffen-SS or the Wehrmacht.

THE WITNESS: Noo in the Waffen-SS. I was drafted into the WaffenSS. I came to the Seventh Battalion of the artillery regiment of the SS Division Death Head and was assigned to the advance observer and take part in the combat near Budapest, throughout Hungary and in Vienna and Lower Austria and was taken prisoner when we capitulated. BY DR. HOFFMANN: you were not drafed into the army but drafted into the Waffen-SS. is that not a reason to assume that you were not actually dismissed, but they only wanted to degrade you?

A No, this had nothing to do with it. I was drafted into the Waffen-SS together with members of free professions who never had had anything to do with the SS or the Security Police.

Q You mean to say this was the general manner of drafting? DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, I would like to discuss a number of documents concerning the activity of the defendant Nosske as Einsatzkommando leader and which have been submitted against him.

THE PRESIDENT: Do so. BY DR. HOFFMANN: page 54 of the German document book, Document 2841. I will give you this document. DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, the Tribunal will remember this is the Harvesting Action which the defendant Nosske has already mentioned once. is mentioned. I ask you now -

THE PRESIDENT: In my book it is ninety-four.

DR. HOFFMANN: Yes, ninety-four.

BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q I will ask you about this document. Did you carry cut this execution? detachments of whom a chief was in charge of the harvesting affair. the Hitler order or for other reasons? sabotage which had been carried out there. He had come to this locality some time before. When he started the organizations he had taken the necessary measures and had then gone to other localities. A few days later it was reported to him that the harvesting action in Babtschinzy did not get on. He, therefore, returned to Babtschinzy and found there that it actually was so, and from statements from the people who were willing to work he heard the further connections. It was as it is mentioned in this report, and beyond that he told me that the people who did these things had posted guards to stop people from going into the fields, and machine parts which were needed in order to repair machines they took away and buried them. Strict measures were taken because of the emergency; notices of the army were published, and he carried out the investigations and found that there were come of them that were Jews who had only come to this area some time before quite recently, in fact, for the N.K.W.D, and he had then decided to short those persons.

Q But you only heard this?

A Yes. He reported this to me orally, and afterwards he gave me a written report which was about three times as long as the statement here.

Q How, witness, isn't it surprising that the saboteurs should have been only Jews? There were others there, too, weren't there?

A Yes, of course. I don't know whether the leader made his task that way because of the attitude among the population and the attitude which existed among the people because of the Fuehrer Order against the Jews.

also might have been carried out because of the Hitler Order?

A Yes. This might have played a part in the deliberations, but according to his statement I had the impression that he shot people who had been convicted by him.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, I now come to a new document, Document Book 3-D, page 72 of the English, the document NOKW-634. prisoners and the shooting of Russian soldiers. in this document. I remember this event insofar as it was reported, and at the time I had returned from the hospital to Nikolajew. I travelled to this territory in order to meet the commando, in particular in consideration of the report that several members of the commando had been lost and dispersed and had not found their way back to the commando. I found the c mmando in some villages where also Ethnic Germans had been evacuated. The incidents themselves I did not witness myself. They had happened days before, but I had the impression that it was as it is described here. This written report originates from the subcommando leader. I myself did not get the impression that any shootings had occurred. On the contrary, I met a battalion commander, Back, who had lost part of his costal battery because of these landings, and by his staff interrogations were carried out of a number of prisoners and parachutists who had been taken prisoners. One considered them to be of great importance in order to find out what aims the Soviet Russians had and what objective they were after. killed prisoners of war in violation of international law? The Prosecution says that this report says that eleven parachutists were made harmless and they conclude that this means they were killed:

the impression that these parachutists had been killed. It says here expressly they were finished off or they were taken prisoners. That means that prisoners was shot who had thrown a hand grenade. All the others were prisoners, and it is said at another place that they were handed over to the army as prisoners. Rendering harmless in in this connection, as we mean it, never means killing. It does not mean killing.

THE PRESIDENT: Do I understand, witness, that you say that that phrase never means killing?

THE WITNESS: No. In this connection. The way it is put makes it quite clear that it cannot mean killing because it says here expressly what happened to the prisoners. It does explain that the prisoners were handed over to the army. Apsry from that only a few were taken by the commando and the others were taken prisoners by the army themselves.

THE PRESIDENT: But you are only offering that interpretation insofar as this particular document is concerned?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: What was meant by the phrase. "Apart from these parachutists which Kommando 12 took care if"? What do you mean by the phrase, "took care of" have?

THE WITNESS: Apart from these taken care of or made prisoner by Kommando 12. I presume you refer to this paragraph?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, that is right.

THE WITNESS: There it says in the German text, "Apart from these parachutists taken care of by the Kommando 12 themselves" or taken prisoner by them. "Taken care of" here means they were killed, That is only one man who throw the hand grenade, and it says here expressly the others were taken prisoner.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we have it in the English that it must have been mere than one because the plural form is used of the word "parachutist". It says, "Apart from these parachutists" which would mean more than one.

THE WITNESS: This sentence has been put very badly because they referred two verbs to several persons. It would have been easier to say, "Apart from the one killed and the others who were taken prisoner." According to the German sense, it is understood this way.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, it certainly isn't understood that way in English.

THE WITNESS: Well, I don't know English well enough to judge this. For us there cannot be any doubt that the difference is made here between "taken care of" and taken prisoner", and if we say ourselves that "apart from these people taken care of", we should have to say, "apart from the person taken care of and the prisoners". In the one case it is singles and in the other case it is plural, and that is what the German language does not clearly express.

THE PRESIDENT: If you tell us, witness, that "to take care of" means to kill, then the entire clause. "Apart from these parachutist which Kommando 12 took care of", you can only conclude that Kommando 12 killed more than one parachutists. German text and give us how direct interpretation now from the German text.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Would you please do that? Do you have that, Miss Juelich? The German?

The Witness: In the following sentence, too, to a certain extent, it is mentioned again what Kommando 12 did because there it is mentioned that the army, too seized parachutists who had been taken prisoners. In this connection, too, the work "prisoner" is again "taken prisoner", and afterwards the conclusion is drawn that this figure was taken care of. That means they were made harmless and they could not take part in further combat.

Apart from that I already said that a number of parachutists -- I meant when they were being interrogated by the staff. Of course, I cannot say that there were just these persons because I did not see the previous ones, but I certainly would have hoard of it if any shootings had taken place. And importance was attached to the fact that these persons were kept alive because of the information onecould get from them.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, let us go back now to the sentence which aroused the original query as to the phrase, "these parachutists". and then indicate that you will give us the translation?

THE INTERPRETER: "Apart from these parachutists" in plural.

MR. WALTON: I offer a suggestion that the photostatic copy be submitted to the translator so that there will be no doubt.

THE PRESIDENT: That is a very good suggestion. Do you have it there?

MR. WALTON: It is in the archives of the court now, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you have it with you, Mr. Knapp?

MR. KNAPP: No, I don't have it, Judge.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, suppose we now read it as it appears in the German mimeograph production, and then later on we can compare it with the photostat, in order to save time.

THE INTERPRETER: I will read it as it is. "Apart from these parachutists which Kommando 12 took care of, respectively took prisoner and which were transferred to the Wehrmacht, the Kommando participated in the seizure of four more parachutists, taken during 22 September during the commual combing of the area north of Neu-Annental."

THE PRESIDENT: I now address myself to the interpreter and ask whether the translation which she has given agrees with the translation as it appears in the document before the Court?

THE INTERPRETER: Yes, it is quite correct.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Now, witness, in the latter part of that paragraph we come across the phrase "taken care of" again, and you have told us that in the early part of the paragraph "took care of" means to kill, so that keeping in mind that translation when we come to the latter part of the paragraph we read "so that the number of parachutists taken care of in that area", we mean again, don't we, that Einsatzkommando 12 killed more than one parachutist?

THE WITNESS: Noo Your Honor. Here, tooo the German expression makes a difference. In the English text I have just heard from you that the same expression is being used. We say first "taken care of" and later when the figure "11" is mentioned, we say "made harmless" or "rendered harmless".

THE PRESIDENT: Well, perhaps you are not looking at the same part of the paragraph that I am. Both the phrases "taken care of" and "rendered harmless".are used in the concluding clause of the sentence in question, which appears at the very and of the paragraph.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Mr. President. I thought of this particular word. At the end of this paragraph it says in the German text -it does not say "taken care of", but it says "rendered harmless". If I said that, therefore, at the beginning of this paragraph, it is to be assumed that the words "taken care of" mean killing, but this is not a contradiction because at the end of this paragraph another German word is used, not "taken care of" but "rendered harmless".

THE PRESIDENT: I want to ask now the interpreter if the German equivalent of "taken care of" appears in the next to the last line of the paragraph in question.

THE INTERPRETER: Yes, it dies.

THE PRESIDENT: So I say to you, witness, that if "to take care of" in the first part of the same paragraph should mean something else.

THE WITNESS: Well, this one word "taken care of"-

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, Dr. Hoffmann, the witness has given his explanation, and we have heard the retranslation by the interpreter, so I don't think we need spend anymore time on it.

DR. HOFFMANN: I only have one more question. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q Did you make this report yourself?

A No, I didn't make this report myself, but the subkommando leader made it.

Q Do your descriptions refer to what you remember yourself? none of these parachutists, neither by us nor as far as our people could know, were shot by the Wehrmacht. It is out of the question.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, I now come to another document.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. HOFFMANN: It is a document in Document Book 2-D, page 52 of the English, Document NO 3147, Prosecution Exhibit No. 96. BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q Do you have that document? shooting of several thousand Jews. In this document do you find that Einsatzkommando 12 is mentioned at all?

A No. Einsatzkommando 12 is neither mentioned nor meant in this connection. 12 took a part, "yes" of "no"? all that the document can incriminate Einsatzgruppe 12? figure of 1,890 persons who were shot. It appears again. In this other report it is also mentioned that shootings took place in the location of Ananjew.

In the other document which has already been submitted -- it is the document 3841 concerning the harvesting action.

Q It is Document Book 2-D, page 49 of the English text. That is the one we discussed before.

A On the top it says, "Einsatzgruppe D. Location: Anajew." That is right for the group. What follows then is the report made by Einsatzkommando 12, but this does not that Einsatzkommando 12 had its location in Ananjew.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, witness, you were part of Einsatzgruppe D, were you not?

THE WITNESS: Yes. sentence, "Field of activity of the Commandos free of all Jews." That necessarily would include your commando, would it not?

A This description "Made free of Jews" is such a general statement ....

Q Let's dispose, witness, of the work "Commandos", and in the phrase we have, the "field of activity of the commandos" you would have the inclusion of the Einsatzkommando XII, would you not? 15 September is correct, Einsatzcommando XII must be found to have been in reserve until 25 August, and from there went to the Rumanian territory which was affiliated to the German Reich. included in the Generic work "Kommandos"? used in such a general manner to give a general impression, so that one can not say, that it does apply to this place and not to the other.

Q Well, it tells very specifically. Now was Commando XII engaged in this area at the time indicated?

Q Where was it? Beresana territory.

Q What territory?

territory, and in this territory the Einsatzcommando X-A... German Beresana territory.

Q We must have the beginning - - when to when? of August until the last days of September. included in the commandos referred to in this document, which conducted executions between 19 August and 15 September? refer to, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Dr. Hoffmann. BY DR. HOFFMANN: to which these reports refer? have been about one-hundred or two-hundred kilometers. I want to comment briefly here on Document No. 2841. One cannot draw conclusions here, because under location Ananjew XII, it is mentioned that Einsatzcommando XII was also in this location, in the territory or this Einsatzgruppe; it was like this; the sub-departments were separated, and went in different directions, and thus it is explained, that those reports on the Harvests, which originates with Einsatzcommando XII, was sent to Berlin, as a report from the group from their location in Ananjew.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, may I now refer to the last document with which the Prosecution charges the defendant Nosske.

It is in Document Book II-B, page 7 of the English and page 6 of the German text, Document No.2837, Prosecution Exhibit No. 56. If I may comment on this document, Your Honor, you will find there Einsatzgruppe-D mentioned as well as that location Ananjew, and insofar as my German text says, of page 11, from this description, Location Einsatzgruppe-D, location Ananjew, no further explanation is given. What do you want to say about this, Herr Nosske? either. The report was handed to Berlin, or to be quite correct, by the Berlin office it was made part of the report of events at the time when Einsatzgruppe-D was already in Ananjew. The location reports are not immediately connected with the report, sofar as the time is concerned. Furthermore, the report from Dniestr, Ghotin, and including Jampol, obviously mentions a time when these events, which are described here, had already happened a long time before. That is, a long time before Einsatzgruppe-D was in Ananjew; My task in Jampol, and my special mission there, of course. I already explained during my direct examination. I already said, that before I received this mission I had heard of difficulties which arose, because of the re-transportation of the Rumanian Jews who were to be sent back to Rumania territory, and, on that occasion I remember a figure which was about the same as I found in Jampol. 27,000 Jews were never mentioned at the time. I can not state how this figure was made up at all. Looking through the documents, and comparing them. I found this report is the first collective report which was issued at all for Einsatzgruppe-D, and sofar as I know the locations, I realized that it is the territory extending much further than the Einsatzgruppe-D territory.

The documents show that the areas mentioned here also contain units of Einsatzgruppe-C, and these documents prove it. from this document that your Einsatzkommando is mentioned, or not?

A No, it is not mentioned, and didn't take part in these occurrences.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Has any defense counsel a desire to cross examine the witness. If so, please step forward.

DR. GAWLIK: Dr. Gawlik for the defendant Seibert? BY DR. GAWLIK:

Q Witness, do you know the co=defendant Seibert?

Q Since when have you know him? Roumania.

Q What do you know about Herr Seibert's activity in the Staff of Einsatzgruppe-D? and was chief III there, and had to deal with the Wehrmacht.

Q Did Herr Seibert ever give you any executive orders?

Q What do you know about Herr Seibert's absence from the Staff Einsatzgruppe-D? was absent from the Einsatzgruppe, that is, the Staff.

Q Thank you. Did Herr Seibert ever inspect an execution by your commando?

DR. GAWLIK: I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Any other defense counsel desires to cross examine? If not, Mr. Walton will proceed with the cross examination for the Prosecution.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, at this time I should like to interpose an objection to the defendant Nosske's Exhibit No.1. I would have objected at the time it was offered. This chart was offered, but I didn't hear the offer into evidence, and I want to know if I am in order now to interpose an objection.

THE PRESIDENT: It is entirely in order for you to address yourself about the document in any way you see fit, Mr. Walton.

MR. WALTON: The prosecution objected to this document on the grounds that it is not authenticated, it is not sworn to, and it is not identified other than by his exhibit number one. I do not know it he made this document, or if his counsel made this document, or some other defendant made this document, and, on that grounds we object to the offer as proved.

DR: HOFFMANN: He is quite right, Your Honor. The Tribunal granted me the permission to put on the witness Hopenkoteiv, who has arrived here, and this witness at my suggestion, presented this chart, and he is prepared to give an affidavit that it is correct. And if the Prosecution would like to withdraw the objection until I hand this affidavit to the Tribunal .....

THE PRESIDENT: The defense has the right to submit any document which is relevant. If you submit this sketch of the activities of the RSHA, and indicate who made this sketch, it will be accepted, because it is not for the Prosecution to say which sketch is correct, so long as it is authenticated, the Tribunal will accept it.

If the Prosecution believes that this sketch is in error, it may cross-examine upon it, and it may submit its own sketch, but it cannot prevent you of the defense from introducing this document, provided, of course, it is authenticated.

MR. WALTON: That is all the Prosecution objected to, was its present form.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR: WALTON: Now Your Honor, please, and counsel for the defendant Nosske. I relied on the fact that he would go certainly until the dinner hour. I was having my questions revised, and, if the Tribunal please. I would appreciate if the dinner hour would be from now until one-thirty instead of one-forty-five.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, on that basis, we will. We would not want to lose the fifteen minutes. Would that in any way conflict with defense in having enough time to get their lunch if we come back at one-thirty? It would conflict, yes. Well, then, the Tribunal may ask several questions to take up that time.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, this episode which you have described, of the shepherding of the Jews from one side of the river to the other side of the river, is still a little vague to me. Why were you so much concerned about getting these Jews back to Roumania? mission.

Q Who gave you the special mission? chief.

Q Well, you must have known of the reason for it. Give us the reason why were these Jews sent back to Rumania? gruppe chief himself. What deeper reasons he had for this I could not find out. I can only imagine what he thought. major operation of a sending six or seven thousand Jews across the river. You had to confer with the authorities there, and you say you don't know why you were doing it? known to me, they were the following: They didn't want the Rumanians to simply send those persons whom they didn't like across the river into another territory, namely, into the German territory, and, thereby make difficulties for us in our territory, and, particularly because of the partly destroyed villages there was no means of housing these persons.

Q Well, you had ordered to execute Jews, why weren't these Jews executed? and because these Rumanian citizens would be brought back from this territory without having to shoot them, because there was no reason for it, not to bother with them.

Rumanian citizenship were immune from the Fuehrer Order? Was there that exclusion in the Fuehrer's Order? Why were they excluded? in the instruction which we received from the Einsatzgrupee chief, and it was confirmed that the Fuehrer Order should only apply to those living in Germany proper, and for persons who were lot of foreign citizenship, or allied to Germany. shot?

A I can nor judge this. If we could not recognize them as Rumanian Jews, it could have been possible, but it was quite obvious here, that the greatest number of these had come from the Rumanian territory, and this condition the Einsatzgruppe chief did not want. Rumanian Jews were shot don't you?

A I didn't quite understand the question. reports that Rumanian Jews were shot? doubt the truth in this. the reference. It was the document which was being discussed just ten or fifteen minutes ago. I have in my notes, Document II-D, page 11, but I must have made a mistake. Can any one assist me in finding that document? In it very specific reference is made to the fact that Jews who had been driven over from Rumania were shot, and, it also indicated that the younger Jews were shot?

Herr Ohlendorf testified on the witness stand that he doubted its possibility and its credibility to a large extent.

Q Yes. I have it now. It is II-B, not II-D. I'll read to you from this document, No 2837, under designation "Einsatzgruppe-D" which reads as follows: "In the vicinity of Swaniza-Mogilew-Poiolaski and Jampol, a total of approximately 27,500 Jews were driven back to the Rumanian territory, and 1,265, in part younger ones, were shot." Now these were Rumanian Jews who were shot by Einsatzgruppe-D. How do you explain that?

A Your Honor, I said already: how this report was made up, I don't know. Neither did I report anything like that, nor did anyone with that group ever make any such report, and, since I myself was in Jampol, I would have heard something later about such a report being made.

Q Then you claim that this report is in error?

Q The report goes on and says: "3,105 more Jews and 34 Communists were liquidated in Czernowitz", is that also incorrect? in those territories, and at the time I only had one mission to report, about the bridge in Jampol. I can not give my opinion on such a report. of comment on your statement that "Rumanian Jews were not executed." Now do we understand you to say that the Jews of Germany's allies were not subjected to the usual order "Jewish program as outlined by the German Reich."

Is that what we are to understand ? arises, every time the Einsatzgruppe chief decided that Rumanian Jews, or Jews in Rumania territory should not be shot, and I remember - -

Q Well, just a moment, now wait. I will ask you if you understand that it was the policy of the RSHA not to subject Jews of a nationality allied to Germany to the usual program of Jewish persecution?

A I can not judge this, Your Honor. It was certain that the RSHA didn't, because the RSHA knew the local conditions which pertained here, and particularly concerning these southern territories ..... German allied Nations from the Jewish policy of the Reich? of thousands of Hungarian Jews that were transported to the concentration camps, and to the extermination camps, and, therefore, certainly they were part of the anti-Jewish program. You know that, didn't you? and I also heard that this happened at a time after the time mentioned here. As I heard now it was carried on at a time when Heydrich had the mission to deal with the final solution of the Jewish question in Europe. In 1941 this mission of Heydrich by Hitler didn't as yet exist. At that time I can not imagine that in Hungary Jews were deported and executed at another place.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is in recess until 1345 hours.

(Recess until 1345 hours, 8 December 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session. DR. FRITZ FOR THE DEFENDANT FENDLER:

Q Your Honor, may I just put one question to the witness?

THE PRESIDENT: By all means do so. week, you said that before the Einsatzgruppen marched off Heydrich inspected them in Schmiedeberg, and in this connection you also mentioned that you regarded what Heydrich said on this occasion before these men as confirmation of what Streckenbach had said in the Fuehrer meeting at Pretsch to the higher raking leaders. Can this be understood to the effect that the men and the non-coms found out through Heydrich about this Fuehrer order? That is how I understood you. Is that correct? either. When Heydrich inspected these units and addressed a few words to these men he did not at all mention the Hitler order. The men could not have known at that time of the Hitler order. As far as I personally am concerned, it seemed to me that it was confirmation. I, after all, had order of the Hitler order in Pretsch and as Heydrich did not modify this order this order was still in effect.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Mr. Walton will you now proceed with the cross-examination. BY MR. WALTON:

Q Mr. Nosske, you become a member of the Nazi Party on 1 May 1933, did you not?

Q This was a voluntary act on your part, wasn't it?

in this organization until July 1936, is this correct?

Q Did not you leave the SA in order to join the SS? Department, Legal Information Department that is, which I carried out for my lawyer. When I left this post I had no reason to stay and even though I left Halle before I actually left the SA, or earlier than has been noted, then the reason is that the confirmation of my having left was not made until later. part, were you not?

A I joined the SS through the special formation SD. That was an automatic procedure connected with my activity in the Security Police and it left no free decision for myself. not? the State Police then and later on I was assigned to the special formation SD automatically. of the SD, the approximate date?

Q Now how was it according to your service record that in 3 1/2 months after having attained the rank SS-Untersturmfuehrer of the comparable rank of 2nd Lieutenant you were promoted to the rank of Sturmbannfuehrer or Major in the equivalent rank? That is found in your service record which is contained in Document Book III-D on page 80 of the English text, page 120 of the German text, and is Document NO-3505 which is Prosecution Exhibit 170.

the document?

A That is not necessary. I only want to see the Document Book. That is the typical case of the assimilation of ranks because at that point I was promoted to Regierungsrat (Government Councillor). And, first of all, as I had not been an officer yet, I became Untersturmfuehrer (2nd Lieutenant) and after a short while - - - No - -

Q Now, then approximately 3 months later, or 31/2 months later, according to this record you were promoted to Sturmbannfuehrer or Major. been promoted to Regierungsrat (Government Councillor) and a short while after that the assimilated rank took effect. professionally, is that correct? the Beginning of the Russian campaign, did you not?

A That is not correct. You can't speak of reporting at all. On the contrary I have just tried to explain that at the last moment I was detailed because the Regierungsrat (Government Councillor) Kreutzer who was destined for the Einsatz, had become ill. I found out about that so late that unlike many others assigned to the Einsatzgruppen I was not able to be in Pretzsch or Dueben beforehand as many other who were. toward the Russian border?

campaign, did you not? go from Berlin to Pretsch. That was a few days before the Russian campaign.

Q Well, that is what I asked you. Now, prior to the time you reported for duty with the Einsatgruppen did you have any knowledge whatsoever of their purpose and their missions?

Q When did you first learn of the Fuehrer order? Was it, as you tesfitied on direct examination, in Berlin?

A No. I learned of the existence of the Fuehrer order for the first time in Pretsch from the Chief of Office I, Streckenbach.

Q Did he personally tell you of the Fuehrer order? order demanded the killing of people on racial or religious grounds?

A The Fuehrer order was not given for that reason. Its purpose was the securing of the fighting sector but at the same time I was horrified by it.

Q Well, the Fuehrer order speaks for itself. I won't quibble over what the Fuehrer order demanded but that is what happened in obedience to the Fuehrer order, isn't it? Streckenbach. to obey this Fuehrer order? present on that occasion were so spontaneous and so quick that I myself never had a chance, apart from the fact I hold a lower rank.

Q Then you made no protest? That is your answer, is it not?

A The higher raking officers' protests were mine as well.

Q. Witness, I am not interested in what others did. I ask you for a direct answer. Your answer to my previous question was that you personally did not make a protest to having to carry out the Fuehrer order. Did you or did you not?

A. I did not have to do so because others did so for me.

Q. Then your answer is no, you made no protest.

A. I did not protest - out the conclusions which you want to draw are not the same.

Q. Did you ever ask to be relieved or service in the Einsatzgruppe when you learned what the mission of this organization was?

A. That was not possible because if I had refused to march or to carry out any orders whatsoever I would had to face the consequences which were made known to us according to martial law.

Q. Well, before the lunch hour - -

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, please, Mr. Hildesheimer I think the phrase is military law. There is a distinction between military law and material law. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Before the lunch hour, you gave a detailed explanation how in the last days as the front moved closer towards Germany you deliberately sabotaged the carrying out of the killing of Jews while you were in Duesseldorf. Now that was the difference in the opportunity here and the opportunity in Duesseldorf to fail to carry out the order for the killing of Jews?

A. The reason for my protest in Duesseldorf was that nobody else could protest for me. Apart from this in Pretsch the order came through as an order of the Chief of State. Here, of course, I had to find out for certain whether this order was actually final for me. A further state of affairs was that the word security which, of course, had cropped up before in 1941 and had conflicted with my conscience in Duesseldorf seemed to me a pretext because for me there was no ranking officer responsible for security.

I could see and I could realize what would endanger the security and what would not endanger the security and for these reasons I protested.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, I would be grateful if you could develop this point because, up to this moment, it isn't clear to me just what he did in Russia. He has explained that he was considerably horrified with the Fuehrer order, that it shocked him no end, that he marched into Russia, that on one occasion he shepherded some Jews across the river, and according to the reports Jews were being killed right and left of him, but never once has there been any statement as to whether he killed any Jews. I think if you make that clear immediately or reasonably soon we can follow your cross-examination a little more intelligently.

MR. WALTON: I am discussing with him his career in Dueben and Pretsch just before the Einsatzgruppen marched off. As I understood it this morning he testified he got a similar order that said even half-Jews together with the Aryan spouses would be killed and he sabotaged that order.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Your question is entirely in order but we can follow the cross-examination perhaps with more interest and with more keenness of observation if we find out whether he killed any Jews in Russia. Personally I don't know how he was able to get through this long examination in direct examination without telling us that very essential thing.

MR. WALTON: That will develop, Sir, according to plan. However, I might call the Tribunal's attention to the fact that on direct examination this morning concerning the Babtschinzy incident or the Hogus incident he stated that those 94 Jews were killed by a Jeil-Kommando Fuehrer belonging to his Kommando.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but Dr. Hoffmann never asked him so far as I remember the very specific question, did you kill any Jews in Russia?

MR. WALTON: That will be the crux of my examination. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Then, from what you said in answer to the comparison between Duesseldorf and Pretsch and Dueben you had more opportunity to sabotage the order in Duesseldorf than you did in Dueben. Is that what we are to assume from your answer?

A. Not to sabotage but I could achieve a modification of this order and I would not do that in Russia or before.

Q. That's what I wanted to find out. Now, when and where were you given command of Einsatz Kommando XII?

A. I was put in chage of Einsatz-Kommando XII after the units had been set up and that was one or two days after the proclamation of the Fuehrer order in Pretsch by Streckenbach.

Q. And the approximate date, was it June of 1941?

A. Yes.

Q. And was it a few days before the beginning of the campaign against Russia, before the 21st of June?

A. Yes.

Q. Then roughly you would estimate it between the middle of the month of June and the beginning of the Russian campaign, some date?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever make a speech to your Kommando in Schaesburg? It is spelled S-c-h-a-e-s-b-u-r-g. Before your Kommando in which you are alleged to have said and I quote: "The Fuehrer has ordered that all elements who endanger or undermine the fighting troops in the rear must be destroyed."

Or words to that effect?

A. That is correct. Yes, I spoke to the men with words to this effect. I can give you a further explanation concerning this. The days before we left in Dueben were so short and were so filled up with necessary tasks of a technical and organizational manner that I could not talk to the men immediately and could not get to know them properly because these were a lot of people entirely new to me. The first place where we remained for one or a few days, was in Schaesburg in Siebenbuergen. I lined up the men in order to introduce myself, as it were. The essential words which I spoke at the time were that I appealed to their sense of duty and to their comradeship. Apart from that, of course, I pointed out their tasks and said that we had to do everything in order to safeguard the troops.

Q. Did you further state in this same speech the thought that your Kommando would carry out this order in such a way that no criticism would ever be directed toward the Kommando by anyone?

A I don't remember having put it that way. I certainly said, and what I meant was, that there must be cleanliness and order, and especially that nobody should act for selfish motives. That means that as far as his character and his own person is concerned, he should remain clean. the essential Fuehrer Order certainly in your own words. Isn't it natural that you should next take up the question of how the men under your command would carry out this order, and were you not anxious that it should be carried out in a military manner, in a complete manner, so that no criticism would attach to your command; isn't that the natural sequence in a speech of this kind? the purpose were certainly different. Obviously, I don't know whether it was at this time or later, I acquainted my unit with the Fuehrer order.

Q Well, as a matter of fact, since you think back on it, weren't you anxious that your command actually carry out all its orders so that no criticism could attach to your command?

A No, no, not in this sense. My own attitude was different from this. What I wanted to achieve was that these men should follow my leadership, that they should not act on their own initiative and break out, but they should only do what I had ordered them to do or carry out special orders which I had given them. only act under your orders and carry out your special tasks as you ordered them during the time that you were in command; did they follow your ideas in your speech generally? the discipline was in accordance with this.

Q We will return to this at a future time. How many Gestapo officials did you have of officer rank in your commando?

Police, who held officers' ranks, I think there was only one, as far as I remember, at the most, two. self? commando?

Q Did you have a Leiter 3, or Department 3? to the offices 3 and 4. In view of the special tasks which the commando had, this was not necessary. When special tasks had to be dealt with I detailed those leaders who seemed to be best acquainted with the task ahead of them. an inspection tour? on inspections, with conferring with Leiter 3 of each commando. To whom did you refer him when he came on an inspection to your commando?

A He only came on an inspection tour once. That was in November, 1941. That was in Mikailowka where he was in the staff of the Einsatzgruppe Chief. They arrived at night, and they left the next morning. He spoke about special matters with myself and other people who were competent in this particular activity. At that time, I had asked the officer Klaus to deal with these matters. I don't know what his rank was at the time. In Nikolaev I had ordered another officer to deal with special jobs. Seibert only made one inspection in your commando, and that was when he was with the staff of Ohlendorf?

Q Now, who was your chief of Leiter 4?

Q Weren't you, from your previous experience and your work in the Gestapo, competent for being the chief of the Leiter 4, to write that type of report? were you not? the latter half of August, 1941? approximately.

Q How far is that from the group headquarters in Ananjev?

A Mr. Prosecutor, may I first say that in the garrison Tscharnomin the Einsatzkommando 12 was stationed in one garrison, with the group staff. The group staff left Tscharnomin a few days before I left, in the direction of Ananjev, while I myself, on order, went into the Ethnic German area, in another direction. headquarters staff of your commando left for Ananjev, and you went off on an inspection tour. Am I correct in that statement?

A No, I think I misunderstood the question. Perhaps it wasn't quite clear, but it wasn't that I had a staff; it was only a matter of the staff of the group. I, myself, did not have a staff. If, of course, the staff of the group is meant, then it is clear that I was not on an inspection trip, but I was stationed in the garrison Tscharnomin, and the group staff left on its own, went to Ananjev, and I made all the preparations in order to march into the other area.

Q How far from Tscharnomin was Ananjev?

A I couldn't tell you exactly, but it may have been about eighty or one hundred, even more, kilometers, perhaps even one hundred to two hundred. I cannot make any statement concerning this. It would be incorrect. It can be established from the map.

Q You don't know?

A It is at least this distance, but I don't want to state a definite figure.

Q Were any elements of your Commando 12 ever in Ananjev?

A No, but I don't know, of course, whether when I reported to the Einsatz group chief personally and went to Ananjev whether there wasn't an officer or some person accompanying me, but apart from this, that is,nobody of my Kommando ever went to Ananjev.

Q Well, I will ask you this question. Did your Commando 12 make reports to the Einsatzgruppe? made regular reports, every two weeks, or every week, to Einsatzgruppe D, is that correct? There was no deadline so that on the 1st or the 15th I would have to issue a report, but it was whenever there was anything to report.

Q Who wrote these reports to the group?

A Most reports were made out by myself. When I was not in charge of my own commando because of illness, I presume the deputy must have made out the report. That was Hausmann. But it is, of course, possible that during that time the subkommandos sent their independent reports to the group because they were nearer. activities also? I should like to say that I didn't have subkommandos at any time everywhere. If I may make that clear very briefly again, when the commando was at rest during sometime it only carried out a few activities. Then Court No. II, Case No. IX.

it was distributed in the form of subkommandos and small units in the Ethnic German area. Then again it was assembled. Parts were separated which were not under my leadership from then on, and the part that was to join the 17th Army under my command remained under my command as a unit.

Q let's consider an example. Let's say, for instance, that you sent an officer and ten men on a special mission, regardless of what this mission is, and this mission consumed about five days, and your orders to him, as soon as he had completed his mission, he was to return to where your headquarters of the commando was stationed at that time, where you were with the rest of the kommando. At the end of the five days, or the ten days, the officer and the ten men reported back. Would you have him make out a report of his activities during the time he was away from you? me, he, of course, would have had to report on his return. report which went to the group headquarters, would you not?

A Yes. I wouldn't have done so only with this report, but all reports, all situation reports which I received from other places concerning events which happened in my sector, and even outside.

village or a particular area, they were gone sometime. Whenever you would receive a report from them about any particular happening, would you include that in your report to Einsatzgrupee D?

Q Now, let's consider Document Book II-D, page 49 of the English, page 54 of the German, which is Document NO-2841, Prosecution Exhibit 94. This is a harvesting action document about which you spoke this morning. There are a few questions which I would like to ask concerning the document. The report in this situation report originated from your commando, did it not? report which I sent to the group staff concerning this particular event was twice or three times as extensive. It has been condensed here, that is evident to me here. Who, however, condensed it, whether that was the Einsatzgruppe or the office at Berlin, and what changes were made, I do not know. even though they are not all the facts, but these facts in connection with the others, came from your commando originally? Jews in this area were guilty of keeping people from the fields to gather the harvest, and in addition to that somebody was guilty of destroying farm machinery. Is that the type of resistance which is mentioned here? machinery when it was not in use; couldn't you stop this sabotage of machinery? in other villages and localities. If we should have put a guard at every bit of machinery, then we wouldn't have got very much further. But re Court No. II, Case No. IX.

garding this particular thing, that even in these territories where there wasn't always a German soldier, the basic German measures were not sabotaged, it was proclaimed by the Wehrmacht that any one who would resist the regulations as proclaimed by the Wehrmacht, would be severely punished. where your commando was? at least not in that form, because the harvest was over, and I did not experience another one. to the harvesting? tachment found out through investigations and reports from the populations and by interrogating the perpetrators, as he reported to me.

Q All right. What directions did you give him when he reported to you that Jews were sabotaging the harvest in the Babtschinzy area: what directions did you give the commando leader?

A I did not tell him anything at all. He carried out the measures. He carried out investigations, found out about the perpetrators, and he had them executed, and he came to me reporting these facts. ing out these executions he was under your command, was he not?

Q All right. Now, from the same or similar sources, couldn't this unnamed Commando Fuehrer have determined exactly who it was that fomented this resistance? was decided upon for execution.

that they had violated an order which had been issued and proclaimed by the Wehrmacht. It was a deed which had been carried out contrary to the Wehrmacht orders and it was punishable by death according to Wehrmacht regulations. satisfied that every single one of these 94 Jews had actually formented resistance to the orderly harvest of the crops? sume that it was right.

Q You presumed; you never tool steps to satisfy yourself that it was correct?

AAfter it had been carried out, I couldn't convince myselfafter all it had happened. I couldn't again start investigations. your orders to take care of the security were followed 100 percent, could you not? Jews and had turned them all loose or sent the others out and had just executed 94, or did he report to you that he had arrested 94 and executed 94 Jews? those arrested was larger than the figure mentioned here; the figure of those who were actually punished, shot.

Q Were there any women and children included in these 94 Jews? possibly have been the perpetrators. In any case, a report to that effect was not made, and according to what he reported to me, women and children were not included. up there in the Babtschinzy army?

A I don't now for certain, but I think it must have been Court No. II, Case No. IX.

twelve to fifteen, possibly eighteen. made was the execution of the 94 Jews carried out?

A I don't remember that. arrests were made that the executions happened? ment of these detachments lasted only two weeks, but I have already said that the officer of this particular unit reported to me saying that he had arrived in Babtschinzy, and this Babtschinzy had been one of the first villages he had arrived at.

Q Now then, in two weeks' time, eighteen people, some of whom, I am sure, could not speak Russian, thoroughly investigated 94 cases of sabotage, and the commando fuehrer passed sentence and had them executed, all in two weeks' time? 94 Jews? these suspects to offer proof of their innocence to him?

A Certainly. They were interrogated. I am convinced that some of them were interrogated, and they could exonerate themselves through witnesses who proved their innocence. I can only say what he reported to me, and I can only refer to his careful report which he also gave me in writing even at the time. to supervise the harvest, and he was acting in your stead, was he not?

Q. And as your military subordinate, he was in effect carrying out your duty for you in the Babtschinzy area, wasn't he?

A. Yes, by order of the Wehrmacht -- because it was a Wehrmacht order and I myself visited the area and I convinced myself of the order and the condition in this area.

Q. Was the fomenting of this type of situation such a heinous offense against the Third Reich that is deserved the sentence of death?

A. This sabotage was one of the offenses which was regarded a major offense by the Wehrmacht just as the carrying of arms, for instance, was also punishable by death, although he fact in itself in other times -- normal times, that is -was not an offense to be punished by death, in my opinion.

Q. Well, couldn't this particular situation be controlled in view of thefact that it was near the end of the harvest season by apprehending these 94 people or 94 Jews who were fomenting this resistance and putting them in prison or behind barbed wire -- couldn't they have controlled the situation?

A. For this, one must know the Russian sector, Russian conditions. There was no barbed wire nor could any measures have been carried out there. Regarding these special conditions, it seems to me that the Wehrmacht leadership was forced to issue such strict directives or warnings to the population because this large Russian sector could not be manned with soldiers at each little corner.

Q. Then is was expedient to control the situation by shooting people when they had done anything against the orders of the Wehrmacht or the Einsatzgruppen, is that correct?

A. If special cases were involved, yes, and if the warning as in conformity with such special cases.

Q. Now, according to this report, it mentions that these same 94 Jews were guilty of spying on the population and had already created a basis for numerous deportations to Siberia. Did these deportations occur under the Russian Government or under German occupation?

A. That was when the Russians were still there, but these people were not arrested and convicted for that reason, but the results established by the staff leader were mentioned in his reports, in order to confirm the thoroughness of his searches and investigations, perhaps it was that he wanted to show me in this connection that the people concerned were perpetrators who would be capable of carrying out such a deed in such times.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, I don't draw from this document what seems to be implied in your last ---- I don't gather from this document what seems to be the basis of your entire cross-examination on this particular episode. The report indicates a certain situation in this area, that Jews were interfering with the harvest, that other Jews had apied on the population, that as a result of that there had been deportations to Siberia, then comes this statement, "as a countter-measure, 94 Jews were executed". It doesn't say that these who had been interfering with the harvest and those who have been saying on the population were executed. It indicates that 94 Jews were seized and executed in the nature of a hostage business.

MR. WALTON: I am coming to that, sir. He testified, however, that through investigations this Teilkommandofuehrer had determined that 94 Jews were guilty of these two offenses.

THE PRESIDENT: But the report itself says, "as a counter-measure", it doesn't say, "as a result of investigations and as a result of apprehension of certain guilty elements that there were executions".

MR. WALTON: That is right. That is what I want to ask the witness, how does he reconcile his statement that these careful investigations were made over a fortnight by this commando fuehrer and 18 men, and that 94 Jews -- no one else in the population, but 94 Jews -- were found to have either sabotaged the harvest or to have reported these people and had had them sent to Siberia. How does he reconcile these executions with the fact that this was a counter or hostage me asure? Now, I have just come to that, and I wanted to establish the deportation before I ask him that question.

THE PRESIDENT: He has indicated that this report was made up from his own report, so call his attention to that actual language. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Witness, according to this report which is lifted out of your report, did you state in your report that as a counter-measure 94 Jews were executed?

A. I don't know whether this formulation was contained in it. I only know that important and even supplementing parts in this report are not included this report, and the context is not very clear, as it was clear in the summarized report. I would also like to draw the attention of the Tribunal to the fact that also in the original, that is, in the photostat, that is the original text, the original document from Berlin, the sentences are not complete, that one sentence does not ale sense -- I am just looking for the sentence. The sentence reads, "These Jews had" -- well, this really doesn't make any sence "had supplied documents concerning this agent for the guarding of the population". In the original it says, "These Jaws had supplied documents for these deportations to Siberia via this agent, was the agent for whom" -- this again shows that the report has been made either in a hurry or that it just doesn't actually show the facts. It isn't complete.

THE PRESIDENT: Read the sentence that follows the word "Siberia".

THE WITNESS: "As counter-measures, 94 Jews were executed".

THE PRESIDENT: There is no trouble about understanding that sentence, is there?

MR. WALTON: No, not at all.

THE WITNESS: This sentence is not in immediate connection with the preceding sentence, and I must point that out. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. I will ask you to state to the Tribunal according to your best recollection and belief, was every one of these 94 Jews guilty of sabotage in that harvest and of having people deported to Siberia or not?

A. Aiding the deportation is only a supporting element. It is mentioned, and I know that it is mentioned in another connection, in the original report. I can only remember the report as given to me by the unit officer. In his report he showed me the circle of perpetrators whom he punished in this way. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Now, Witness, we are getting the Siberian deportation and harvesting business intermingled in a way, but it's not clear why these 94 Jews were executed. Let's put it very directly, why were these 94 Jews executed, what had they done? Let's put that in one sentence.

A. Only because of having taken part in sabotage acts and because they were later convicted.

Q. Yes, They had nothing to do with this Siberian deportation?

A. The punishment did not have anything to do with it BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Then why does the report state that a number of 94 Jews were executed as a counter-measure, why didn't it say, "The guilty ones were executed"?

A. This must have been contained in the complete report in another context.

Q. Now, Witness, as a matter of fact, isn't the basic reason that these Jews were executed, that they came under the provisions of the fuehrer order?

A. No. The subcommandos were only sent out in order to carry out their measures in connection with the harvest. I am convinced -- I don't want to maintain anything specific because I myself had never visited these villages, and it was never determined whether there were any Jews in these villages other villages where the harvest had been organized there should have been no Jews. In this connection, I would like to emphasize that at that time, that is, until the Reichfuehrer in Nikolajew refused to give consideration to the Wehrmacht in the plains, especially to its needs until then the Hitler order was not generally carried out, and was even suspended.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess for 15 minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Mr. Walton. BY MR. WALTON: were absent from your kommando because you were in the hospital in Nikolajew, is that correct? absent from kommando because you were in the hospital in Nikolajew, is that correct?

A Not in Nikolajew. I was in the hospital but in Novo-Odessa on the Bug River at the time from the first days of September until about 24 or 25 September.

Q To whom did you relinquish command of your unit when you left? sturmfuehrer Hausmann at the time.

Q That is former SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Emil Hausmann, is it not?

Q How long did you know Hausmann during his lifetime?

Q Did you know his general reputation for truth or varacity? although I don't like to talk that way about a dead man.

Q No. No. Just a moment. Did you know it? That's all I asked you. him -

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, please answer the question. He merely asked you if you knew him. Now "yes" or "no".

MR. WALTON: I asked him did he know his general reputation for truth or veracity.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Did you know what his reputation was for being a truthful person?

THE WITNESS: When the kommando was being set up - not yet, but later on... BY MR. WALTON:

Q Just a moment, witness. Witness, answer the question "yes" or "no", end wait for my next question. You will be given an opportunity.

A May I ask the time you are referring to? time that the kommandos were being set up in 1941, and the next question I ask you I assume that you continued to know him all during the service in the kommando and I assume that you still knew him up to the time of his death. Certainly you knew who he was. My question was did you know his general reputation for truth or veracity since June of 1941. Now I would like for you to answer that question "yes" or "no".

Q Was is good or bad? discuss the duties of a kommando leader with Hausmann?

A What do you mean by Kommando chief? I was kommando leader, and after me Hausmann was in charge of the kommando while I was in the hospital. actual command of the kommando to go to the hospital? did you have any discussion with him concerning the duties of a kommando leader?

Q Hausmann was a member of your kommando, was he not?

Q And what was his usual duty in Einsatzkommando 12? while en route to Roumania I gave him the task of keeping the column together when we marched in close unit.

But later on, until the end of August, Hausmann was in reserve together with a kommando. The work only started when we came into the Ethnic German territory, and, therefore, the activity extended only to a few days. Apart from that in my personal relationship I had already gained a personal impression.

Q. Now what was his usual function when you reached the territory of the Ethnic Germans? What generally did he do? What duties did he perform in the kommando? the few days which remained for this -- he was the chief of a small detachment which was located in Speyer, as successor of the kommando 10-A which had been there previously. were turning over to him the temporary command?

A I don't quite know whether I discussed reports with him, but I do know that he objected to the manner of reporting, and that during my time in the hospital he used to say bad things about me to the Einsatzgruppe chief behind my back.

Q Isn't it a fact that you showed him one of your reports where a total of three hundred to three hundred fifty executions had been performed by Einsatzkommando 12 in Kantakuchinka, Speyer, Hoffmanstal and NikolaJew?

A No. That is quite impossible because, during that time in particular, not a single man of Einsatzkommando 12 was in Nikolajew, and in the few days in which I was still in charge of the kommando I could not possibly have been in the out-of-the-way places. Such a measure could not have been carried out.

Q I am not speaking of you personally, but weren't units of your command in Kantakuchinka, Speyer and Hoffmanstal? Speyer did not know anything about such executions, you soothed him by telling him that he had eternal conscientiousness, or words to that effect, didn't you?

A No, that is not at all clear. I can't make sense of that question. That Iremember is after I had handed the kommando over to him -

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't quite catch that phrase, Mr. Walton, eternal conscientiousness?

MR. WALTON: That is the way it is translated, sir. I will make it clear in a minute.

BY MR. WALTON: all, because I did not find it at the usual place. The reason was because the territory was now Roumanian sovereign territory, and all the German offices had withdrawn from this territory beyond the Bug River -

Q Well, witness, we are not interested in this. Just a minute; just a minute.

Q Just a minute. Did you have a conversation with Hausmann concerning executions prior to the time you left the actual command of EinsatzKommando 12?

A No. No.

Q You did not. On this occasion when Hausmann was talking to you about taking over the kommando, didn't you request him to sign a report of executions in Speyer of ninety-one persons which he know the true number to be nineteen, and he flatly refused to sign such a lying report?

A Matters were slightly different. That is just what I was trying to describe. I did not personally hand the kommando over to him. That means I did not travel to him and tell him about it, but I had the order handed over to him in a suitable manner. He now travelled around in the area as the new kommando leader and came to the location in particular where I had been with my unit. The radio equipment which I had there he wanted to take over as kommando leader.

He had a report with him about shootings of -- I don't know how many -- it might have been nineteen looters. I don't quite remember, and information existed, which had been given by Wehrmacht office with which we were connected, of another location Wosjnesensk on the other bank of the river in German territory, and outside my field of activity where shootings had been carried out by the Secret Field Police, and this made up this difference between nineteen and ninety-one. When Hausmann arrived at this office where I was not present at the moment, the chiefs made up a figure from these two reports, and Hausmann assumed that I had changed his figure nineteen around and made it into ninety-one. Events about which I heard - no matter whether they concerned my unit or other units, - I had to report about; that is what I did. executions at Kanakuchinka when in truth and in fact these executions happened at a place called Wossnesensk?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, Dr. Hoffman wishes to object.

MR. WALTON: Yes, Sir.

DR. HOFFMAN: Your honor, I have the impression that the Prosecuter submits documents to the witness which have not been introduced yet. I therefore ask that these documents be shown to him because the Prosecutor is talking about what the witness says about some location, the name of which I did not catch. He has to know the document or else he cannot comment on it. Apart from that I think the document was not Introduced.

MR. WALTON: He was there with Haussmann, Your Honor, I am asking him about events which were in his personal knowledge.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Dr. Hoffman. He is not now questioning him on a document. He is questioning him on facts. He asked him whether a certain thing did or did not happen, and the witness, of course, is privileged to answer any way he sees fit. It is likely that later on the cross-examiner may confront him with a document in order to show some contradiction, if there is any contradiction, and then at that time you have the right to demand that the identity of the document is given to the witness and to his Counsel.

DR. HOFFMAN: Mr. President, may I discuss one question on these cases which will crop up. It is my opinion that the Prosecution has an affidavit of Hausmann. Hausmann was here and committed suicide. In my opinion it is not admissible that such an affidavit should be introduced at this time because I cannot cross-examine that man anymore. A similar decision was reached by President Shake in Court No. VI a few days ago. Added to this is the fact that Hausmann committed suicide so that his character also is doubtful. This affidavit has not been submitted yet, but doubtlessly the Prosecution is asking question out of this affidavit. The position of my client is therefore unfavorable, and I ask you to rule whether questions can be asked from this affidavit or not.

THE PRESIDENT: The cross-examiner can put any question at all which is relevant. He can take it from an affidavit; he can take it from the thin air, so that it doesn't matter that he happens to be looking at an affidavit, if he is. He hasn't yet offered that document in evidence. He can certainly question the witness on any subject whatsoever which is relevant to the case, and it is up to the witness to reply as he sees fit, but we have nothing before us now to rule upon at all. He is conducting a cross examination entirely in accordance with the rules.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, that question is a little premature now. In just a few minutes the Tribunal will be asked to rule on it. However, I should like for them to hear from the Prosecution, too, at that particular time.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, surely BY MR. WALTON:

Q If I heard your last answer, I certainly don't remember it now.

Can you tell the Tribunal your reasons for reporting 150 to 200 executions at Kanakuchinka when in truth and in fact these executions happened at a place called Wossnesensk?

A I do not remember that. I cannot imagine that this was thought to have been changed to another location. In my opinion Hausmann should have known under all circumstances and did know that a shooting -- I don't know how many -- by an outside unit took place in Wossnesensk. Under no circumstances could Hausmann have testified anything else. I simply cannot imagine that. Why he wants to make me responsible for transferring the shooting to another place I simply cannot understand. The only explanation I can find is conditioned by his own personality. weren't they?

A Wossnesensk was not occupied by me. Wossnesensk was on the other side of the Bug River in the German Rear Army territory in an area which was not under my competency and where we were never active, and took place while you were in the hospital, after you came back to take active command again?

A I didn't get the words, what did you say? Reporting on the time when Hausmann was in charge of the commando was that no reports were made to me at that time. The file of the commando I received, of course, from which I saw the activity of the commando in general. For other reasons I also believe that not all reports were contained in this record, but to talk to Hausmann himself, I was hardly over able to, at least, not to conduct an official transfer because Hausmann was the last man who had to remain in his garrison in Speyer. He was chief of the Executive Service and had to be relieved in October, and he also returned to Berlin. The transfer, sofar as I remember, was never transacted personally with me for lack of time; in any case, I was never able to conduct any detailed discussion about his activity. under your command, you were not friendly towards each other, is that correct?

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, please, at this time the Prosecution offers into evidence Document MI-4147, which, if accepted, will be Prosecution's Exhibit No. 188. This is the affidavit of one Emil Hausmann.

DR. HOFFMANN: I knew it was coming. Your Honor, if I mentioned Tribunal No. 6, before, where that same question arose, it was only because I believed that I wanted to introduce such a case, as it already had been dealt with before. I know, of course, that this Tribunal is not controlled by the rulings of the other Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Was it also a co-defendant in this case, Dr. Hoffmann? Did the affidavit come from a potential co-defendant?

DR. HOFFMANN: No. There it was the question whether the affidavit of a dead person could be introduced. The affiant in this case has died and I cannot cross-examine him, therefore.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Dr. Hoffmann, we have many affidavits in these trials from people who have since died. The mere fact of death does not vitiate a document. There must be something move than mere death.

DR. HOFFMANN: Yes, that is a fact, but this Hausmann committed suicide, and I think that the fact that he committed suicide after giving an affidavit has thrown doubt upon his character and his credibility.

THE PRESIDENT: Well.

DR. HOFFMANN: So that his testimony because of this suicide seems par ticularly incredible; the fact that somebody commits suicide must have special reasons.

THE PRESIDENT: Well. we have many documents in this case, and other cases, in the War Crimes trials program, which came from individuals who have committed suicide. We have documents signed by Himmler, documents signed by Goebbels, documents signed by Ley, documents by any number of suicides which are in evidence.

DR. HOFFMANN: Yes, Your Honor, but these documents were all introduced while the affiant was still alive, these persons could be crossexamined.

THE PRESIDENT: Himmler?

DR. HOFFMANN: Not Himmler.

THE PRESIDENT: Goebbels?

DR. HOFFMANN: Not Goebbels.

THE PRESIDENT: Ley?

DR. HOFFMANN: No, Your Honor. We have not any affidavit of Himmler. He was already dead when the trial started.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but in the IMT there were any number of documents introduced.

DR. HOFFMANN: No, Your Honor. Today we have affidavits of twentyone defendants in the INT who have been executed, but they all could have been cross-examined while they were alive, and these documents because they, too, became official documents, can be introduced, But to introduce new ones now of people who are already dead, Tribunal Six ruled not admissible.

It is not that all statements and documents become void but these people were all cross-examined at some time, like Hoess, who was also cross-examined by the IMT; these documents can be used, if necessary, but we never had the opportunity to cross-examine Hausmann.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton.

MR. Walton: Your Honot, please, in the deciding of this question, I concur with the defense counsel, Dr. Hoffmann, that this man in a matter of hours after he gave this affidavit did commit suicide. A strong presumption arises that this affidavit, therefore, is a true statement of a true fact, since he was in his own mind in the presence of death. While I know it is not a dying declaration, it definitely, in view of the circumstances surrounding it, is an affidavit of probative value , and should come under the probative value rule. I might add one thing more, sir, without giving any circumstances in the same document is the conviction on the decision of a murder of an Ethnic German, and in the same document it contains the facts on which I have cross-examined the witness.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, the fact just mentioned by the Prosecutor here, that Hausmann committed suicide soon after giving the affidavit does not prove that it is the truth. I deny this, the fact that Hausmann committed suicide, because he know he had said an untruth. I think one reason can be considered as well as the other, and to point this out to you again, Your Honor, you mentioned documents concerning Himmler, Ley and so forth. In this sense, as these were documents which were signed by those persons, they were only being discussed because this was only an affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Hoffmann, I can put even a better argument in your favor in this respect; that these papers, or most of them, with the Himmler signatures, that is, Himmler's and Goebbels' signatures, were all perhaps part of official business, and would be introducible in that ground, so you have an argument there that the documents can be distinguished.

The Tribunal will reserve decision on this point. You may continue with the cross examination and we will render our decision tomorrow morning, as to whether this document should or should not be accepted as an exhibit.

MR. WALTON: In that case, until the Tribunal's decision, I should like to reserve the Exhibit No. 188 for that document.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, that number will be reserved.

MR. WALTON: And in this connection I assume that the Tribunal through deference of its decision, does not went to see the document at the present.

THE PRESIDENT: No, it is not necessary. We understand the contentions of both sides now.

Q When did you leave Tscharnomin? took place?

Q How long would it take you to drive 100 to 200 kilometers?

A Well, it all depends on the road conditions in Russia. In this connection I would like to emphasize again that in this territory first Kommando X-A and later Kommando X-3 were stationed.

THE PRESIDENT; Proceed, Mr. Walton.

BY MR. WALTON:

Q All right. I will ask you the same question. It says that the total number which is the total to this particular date of the report, is 12,315 executions. During this time, did Einsatzkommando XII perform any executions from 21 June up until 15 September 1141? time from 10 to 25 or 23, the shooting in Babtshinzy took place and then later on several shootings took place. For example, the one by Hausmann at the time when he was in charge of the Kommando. Whether these figures are contained here I cannot judge. In any case these figures and the places named in this report are not at all connected with my Einsatzkommado and it is not named but certificates and affidavits have already proved that Einsatzkommado X-A and B were stationed there.

were performed in the Babtschinzy area and the executions which were performed at the time when Hausmann was in temporary command were the only executions performed by Einsatzkommado XII? I cannot remember exactly because from 15, to, 25 August onwards the Kommando was on route and small units were dispersed throughout all localities. This territory where the Kommando XII moved was declared Rumanian sovereign territory; certain shootings occurred but didn't quite know. Our own and other people's reports mentioned this. I already said, after looking at the final records of the Kommando I read it. Of course, shootings were carried out, in particular in this whole territory and shootings were reported about on the principle that not only our own shootings but also shootings by the others were reported later on including events which had been in other territories. awarded to Rumania and go into Russian territory which constituted the rear Away area? October.

Q 1941? distributing your whole Kommando in different localities, 4, 5, 8 or 10 men in different villages or towns?

A No. My explanation just showed the opposite. The following occurred. The Kommando was halved and with the half which I retained I want to the territory around Mikailowka. From that time onwards until Federowka I was in charge of the entire Kommando, that is the half under my command.

The other part which had been separated, those who had horses, went via Nikopol to meet me again, in Mikailowka.

Q I remember that explanation. Let's come to this point. Now the half of the Kommando with you, how long from the time that the Kommando split until the entire Kommando was more or less under your command again, how much time elapsed from the time it split in half until it came back together again?

A It was combined again a few days before I was released. Weather conditions improved, therefore, the Kommando, that is the other half with Dr. Bolte could come up from Dnjepr and come back to me, five hundred kilometers back. forces under your command, is that correct? you did they round up any Jews? German territory?

A I said already I was given an order to meet the 17th Army. That was the first time that I, similarly to the other Kommandos, was going to be attached to an Army unit. This immediate march was interrupted by a special task, because Partisans had been reported in the Dnjepr area and we had to fight them as they endangered the supply line. Incidents occurred of which I could not speak in detail yesterday or Thursday, namely that the other half who had the horses in Nikopol were stopped by the local Wehrmacht officers and had to fight together with other Wehrmacht units against Partisans in their hide-outs in the Dnjepr area. The other half with whom I was, about 6 or 8 November, arrived in Mirailowka with me. I myself at the other side made reconnaissance and combat operations; this was the only time I interrupted the march before I finally reached the 17th Army at last.

Kommando never had to carry out the Fuehrer order at all?

A Mr. Prosecutor, This is my personal opinion. There are several bases, the most important of them....

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, now please see that you get direct answers. We don't want a long discussion on philosophy. Now, put a specific question and see that you get a specific answer. days of October until some time in March your Kommando never had to carry out the Fuehrer order for the execution of Jews at all? same period of time when it was split off from the main body?

A I don't know. I did not hear what this Kommando did. It reported immediately to the group and before Bolte joined my in Fedorowka a wireless message was in hand already for a few days in which Bolte had been instructed to go to Simferopol Immediately to the group. But I believe that because of the situation in the territory which was similar to mine he would hardly have had the opportunity to apply the Fuehrer order.

Several pages later on, it says "Einsatzgruppe D - location Ananjew." incident which is referred to in the affidavit of your co-defendant Felix Ruehl which is in Document Book III-B page 76 of the English, page 121 of the German, and is Document No-4149, Prosecution Exhibit 169. Your Honors, I especially refer in that document to paragraph 3. Now the question I would like to ask you after you have read paragraph 3 of Ruehl's affidavit is this one and the same incident?

Court No. II, Case No. IX.

A. I would like to comment on this fact. It is not quite the same event. The affidavit of the co-defendant, Ruehl, refers, and can only refer to a small excerpt of what is mentioned in the entire report of the Document 2837.

Q. Well, what I mean is, it is the same transport of Jews, is it not?

A. I wouldn't like to assume that; it could not be the same transport. In Ruehl's affidavit there is an inconsistency it does not agree with this report, and my opinion, and also the opinion of Herr Ohlendorf.

Q. Let me ask you this, did you receive another transport of Jews from the Co-defendant Ruehl; were there two transports of Jews that you handled there near the Dnjestr River?

A. What we brought back, that is where Ruehl was the messenger was an order to the subkommando leader Mogilev, which he had to hand over, which said that the Jews were to be moved fro Mogilev, and on the other side, the part which I received as an order, that the Jews which had arrived and collected in Jampol should be brought across the bridge, that is, to make it possible for the Rumanians, that they be brought back to the other territory again. That is the same event. But these two reports contained in document , No. 2837, I cannot identify as the same.

Q. All right, Now answer the question, did you ever receive any Jewish transport of Rumanian Jews from the Co-defendant Ruehl?

A. I assume, and I cannot assume anything else, that they were those Jews who had come from Mogilev and were to be moved to Jampol, and were not taken over by Reuhl personally at all. As far as

I know he had nothing to do with it, but the subkommando of the Commando 10-B in Mogilev moved them and crossed over quite alone without any guards.

Q. Crossed over into your territory, the EinsatzKommando 12 territory?

A. Well, to Jampol, where I found them.

Q. Well, this is part of the same Rumanian Jewish transport?

A. Ruehl's order referred to the same as my order. Ruehl's part was the first part and mine was the last one.

Q. Yes, it was the same Rumanian Jews that had been expelled into German territory?

A. I assume so. I cannot imagine anything else, but I cannot say, of course. What happened in Mogilev and what -

Q. I am not asking you what happened in Mogilev. I am asking you if you got from Herr Ruehl or Lippert a part of the Jews which you took over to Rumanian territory?

A. I neither talked to Lippert nor Ruehl about this, nor did I take anything over from them, but the Jews were moved, and I found them at Jampol. Probably they are the same ones. I did not ask them because there were no guards, no soldiers nor any Security Police with them. I did ask them where they came from. They said from Jampol, I mean from Mogilev.

Q. All right, what is your estimate of the number of Jews in this transport?

A. I estimated this figure, but I am not quite sure how many there were. I must say that, under the circumstances as they were at the tiie, I never tried to find out or to estimate how many there were, but I hope that the witness who has been found at the commando of the bridge will make a statement concerning this. As far as I know there were about 6,000 to 7,000. I don't want to tie myself down. That is not possible.

Q. About how many of this number were women and children that you saw there?

A. There were -- I can't estimate this either.

Q. There were some?

A. In any case there were women and children among them.

Q. Now, do you know why these Jews were expelled from their homeland by the Rumanians?

A. I have no idea. I assume that the Rumanians wanted to get rid of them and send them into the German Territory so that we would have to shoot them, and we would have the trouble of shooting them. We didn't want to do that. We didn't want to do the work for Rumanians, and we never did, nor at all other places where something similar happened. We refused it, and, therefore, we sent them back.

Q. You testified here that the Rumanians attempted to damaged the bridge across the Dnjestr River in order to prevent the return of these Jews, did you not?

A.. I said that I remember vaguely that the events in Jampol were such that because a few boards had been taken out it was quite impossible to take them across the bridge in Mogilev. I did not see this myself. I only remember it as as possible memory.

Q. Did you assume when you found out about the damage to this bridge that the Rumanians wanted to prevent the return of these Jews to Rumanian territory?

A. Of course, certainly.

Q. All right.

A. But the following played a part here. I could be expected, or it had already been determined, in view of the attitude of the Rumanians, that between the German and the Rumanian sovereign territory transfer of persons, of civilian persons, should not take place. I believe that hose measures which the Rumanians took, namely to sent the Jews across to German territory, were used as causes by the German Wehrmacht to tell the Rumanians not to do this in the future, but I assume -- although I am not certain -- that the Rumanians received instructions and they were told at last that conditions were to be the same as they had been before.

Q. All right. You said that you talked to the Jews that were camped around Jampol through interpreters and you could make yourself understood through similiarity of the language to German?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the Jews generally know that they were not wanted by the Rumanians?

A. No, I don't think so. They had to assume that the whole matter had been settled. They were very pleased that they were able to return to Rumania, and I tried to express this.

Q. Did they know any reason why they had been brought over into German territory; did the Jews themselves give you any reason?

A. That they wanted to return; they wanted to go home.

Q. No. When you went into the Jewish encampment and spoke to them, did you ask them why they were there in the first place?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you further ask them for a reason for their being expelled from Bukovina or wherever they came from?

A. I did not ask them about that. I only asked where they came from, that is, that they came from Mogilev, that they were the ones whom I had to accept and to lead across the bridge.

Q. Well, weren't they fully aware that the Rumanian authorities wanted to get rid of them, were they not, the Jews that you talked to?

A. Yes, I knew that before, but I also knew -

Q. No, not you, the Jews were fully aware that the Rumanian authorities wanted to get rid of the, were they not?

A. They knew, of course they had heard it, that they had been expelled.

Q. That is right. Now -

A. May I add this? I heard from German authorities that I had to bring them back to Rumanian territory....

THE PRESIDENT: Witness-

Q. (By Mr. Walton) Witness, I didn't ask you about that. I just wanted an answer to my question.

A. I believe it is incomplete....

Q. These Jews knew; these Jews knew that they were expelled or were unwanted in Rumanian territory, and you answered that yes. Now, will you explain to the Tribunal why, since these Jews knew they were not wanted in Rumanian Territory, why they were so anxious to go back into Rumanian Territory under your leadership?

A. They were not anxious. On the contrary they were glad that they were able to return home, and there I want to add that they were able to believe, in spite of being expelled before, because of the fact that we took care of them, that the matter had been settled with the Rumanian authorities and they were able to return home.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you suppose that those Jews were eager to get back into Rumania because they had learned of the Fuehrer Order?

THE WITNESS: I don't know, but they wanted to return home.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor--

THE WITNESS: I don't think that they knew anything about the Fuehrer Order and that they had an opportunity to hear about the Fuerher Order. I think that is quite impossible.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Witness, I have here in my notes 8 Dec 47_A_BJ_24_6_Hoxsie_(Juelich) that you said the Jews didn't know that the Rumanians didn't want them.

Now, did you say that?

THE WITNESS: May I have that again, please?

THE PRESIDENT: That the Jews did not know that the Rumanians did not want them.

THE WITNESS: of course, that is right. Certainly, that is right, but they still had the hope and the expectation, since German offices took care of them, that their stay in their home had been settled.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment. I don't know whether you understood the question or not. You follow up with something that doesn't agree with you previous answer.

DR. HOFFMANN: The translation was incorrect, your Honor. You asked that the Jews did not know that the Rumanians did not want them, Is that what you said? Did they know that they had not wanted them?

THE PRESIDENT: That is right, that the Jews did not know that the Rumanians disliked them?

THE WITNESS: Did not like them? At what time? It depends. In connection-

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment. You said that in your conversation with the Jews you learned that they were ignorant of the fact that the Rumanians did not want them.

THE WITNESS: Yes, that is right.

THE PRESIDENT: That is correct?

THE WITNESS: That is right.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Then Mr. Walton has asked you, and we would like to put it to you again, how could the Jews not know that the Rumanians didn't want them when the Rumanians had expelled them? If someone kicks you out of his house, you have reason to assume that they don't want you.

THE WITNESS: Right.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. How do you explain that?

THE WITNESS: I thought I had already explained in my previous reply that the Rumanian Jews knew that they had been expelled. At that time the Rumanians did not like them, out in the meantime we had taken care of them. They believed, therefore, that an agreement had been made between German and Rumanian offices, Wehrmacht agencies and others, and not the matter had been settled so that they could go back, that the reasons for expelling them had been eliminated.

THE PRESIDENT: I see.

MR. WALTON: Your Honor, in view of the lateness of the hour, I would like to go into this question in the morning from another angle. I think it would be a good place to stop.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. The Tribunal will adjourn until tomorrow morning at nine-thirty.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 9 December 1947, at 0930 hours.)

Otto Ohlendorf, et al., defendants, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 9 December 1947, 0930-1630.

Justice

THE MARSHAL; The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. Tribunal.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, the Tribunal wanted to make a ruling today about the admissibility of an affidavit. I have asked my colleague, Dr. Gawlik, whether he would support me in this legal explanation.

THE PRESIDENT: Listen, Dr. Hoffmann, I think that you have a stronger support with all the respect we have for Dr. Gawlik. You have the Tribunal's support.

DR. HOFFMANN: Only because your Honor once described my colleague, Dr. Gawlik, as a professor. if that pleases the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, do you have anything to add to what you stated yesterday with regard to the presentation of this affidavit prepared by someone now deceased end, thereby, depriving the person against whom it is to be used of the right of cross examination which is inherent in Anglo American procedure and in every system of justice.

Mr. WALTON: Yes, your Honor, I have a motion, or I am prepared to argue from the basis of twelve points on this motion as a matter of precedence at the Nuernberg Tribunals already set up, particularly in four cases - the medical case, the Milch case, the Justices case, and the Pohl case.

THE PRESIDENT: Let us try, Mr. Walton, to have precise precedence, and not general precedence.

Mr. WALTON: I can give them to you, sir. It is a little long.

THE PRESIDENT: What I mean is that we must have a duplication of facts, a co-defendant .....

MR. WALTON: Yes. I am prepared, if the Tribunal desires to hear me, I can go into that argument at the present time. was in the medical case and it involved document number NI-2057. It was the affidavit of Dr. Erwin Ding alias Dr. Erwin Schueler who committed suicide after giving the affidavit which is exactly the case in point here. This affidavit was admitted over objection and after argument as Prosecution Exhibit 283, the transcript of Case I for 6 January 1947, page 1093. The argument for the defense was, just as in this case, a denial of the alleged right of cross examination. The Tribunal referred to this affidavit, or to facts recited in the affidavit, in its decision which is found in the transcript of the case at page 11465 and page 11517. The Ding precedent has been followed ever since in Nuernberg until the ruling of the Farben Tribunal, and I might add, in that citation Mr. Justice Herbert dissented so it was not an unanimous decision. remember, document 3721-PS, Exhibit 41-A, an interrogation of Fritz Sauckel, who was executed as a major war criminal, was objected to by the defense, transcript of Case II 6 January 1947, pages 134 to 135. The Tribunal deferred ruling until it could confer with Tribunal I on the Ding precedent.

On 7 January 1947 Tribunal II admitted the affidavit,according to the transcript of the record, page 194, and stated, and I quote: "The Court has determined that under the Charter and Ordinance this exhibit is admissible. Its weight, however, in view of the peculiar circumstances attending it, is of course still for the Tribunal to determine. This ruling is made after a conference with the Judges of Tribunal I who had a similar problem presented and which made the same ruling as this Tribunal now makes." who committed suicide after having been sentenced to death by the IMT, was also admitted over objection as Prosecution Exhibit 311, transcript of said Case II 8 January 1947, page 280. The Tribunal again made appropriate references to the Charter of the IMT and Ordinance No. 7. Case III or the Justice case. Document NG-401, an affidavit of Karl Foch, deceased at the time of the offer, was admitted over defense's objection as Prosecution Exhibit 147. The Tribunal noted that "those portions which appear to be experiences of the witness, that is the affiant, will be considered." That quotation is taken from the transcript of Case III, 25 March 1947, pages 976 and 977. in Nuernberg was in Case IV, the Pohl case. This was document 3868-PS, an affidavit of Rudolf Hoess who at that time was being tried in Poland and could not be produced for cross examination. This document was admitted over defense's objection as Prosecution Exhibit 51. Judge Thoms as President of the Tribunal ruled "that the affiant could not be produced.

Therefore, the case is as much in point as where the affiant cannot be produced because he is dead. That is taken from the transcript of the Pohl case, pages 129 to 131. later admitted without objection as Prosecution Exhibit 297, transcript of Case IV, 17 April 1947, pages 571 to 575. In its judgment this Tribunal stated that it had received proof from Rudolf Hoess, transcript of Case IV, 3 November 1947, page 8069. taking up the Model Code of Evidence of the American Law Institute. I can go even further and take up precedence of the German order of 1870 of the Reich Gesetzblatt with quotations from that, if the Tribunal would like to hear it. Also, I would like, if they wish to hear further, to argue from both Control Council Law No. 10 and Ordinance 7. can go further into it if desired.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, first, we are very grateful for the exhaustive manner in which you have treated this and apparently you have gone even further as you indicate. We would like to avail ourselves of what you have prepared, perhaps in the form of a brief. Just in passing, because this will have nothing to do with our decision on the matter - the Saukel, Goering, and Hoess affidavits scarcely seem to be exact duplicates of the situation before us because in each of those instances those affiants were subjected to cross examination. Saukel and Goering, as everyone knows, were defendants in a trial and most ample opportunity was given to everybody to cross examine them on the subject of the affidavit. And, in the Hoess case the same thing is true because he later was tried end he was under oath and the opportunity for cross examination was there. Foch one to which you refer.

MR. WALTON: Well, if your Honors please, I would like for the Tribunal to keep in mind that at the time Saukel and Goering, et al, were questioned on these particular matters there was no defendant in the case in which they were finally introduced. Therefore, there was no defense counsel to cross examine them in an interrogation.

THE PRESIDENT: That is true but none the less they were in the witness box end everything that they hid written and said was open to the world for inquiry, scrutiny, and interrogation. Whereas in this case the man makes up in affidavit and then seals the door for ever for any cross examination or inquiry on any subjects discussed by leaving the world. So, it is slightly different. However, we feel under all circumstances it is of great importance, Mr. Walton, and what we will do is to refuse the admittance of the affidavit now but when it comes to rebuttal, if you still desire to present it, you may present it for the consideration of the Tribunal. In the meantime you may prepare a brief on this subject because you have other material and if you submit it to the Tribunal we will be happy to receive it.

The same thing is true with the defense. Dr. Gawlik, anything in the way of legal precedent you have can be submitted to Dr. Hoffmann and we would be happy to receive it and I think both sides should exchange briefs. In that way when it comes up in rebuttal, and that would be the proper time for the presentation of the document anyway, and at that time exclusively the subject can be treated and the decision rendered in accordance with the facts and in accordance with what the Tribunal deems justice in the matter.

DR. HOFFMANN: Your Honor, I only wanted to add for interest the fact that Dr. Gawlik who was in the doctor's proceedings as a defense counsel when the Ding diary was introduced based his appeal on - - -

THE PRESIDENT: There is one word that we don't have.

DR. HOFFMANN: In the doctor's trial Dr. Gawlik made a habeas corpus and sent it to the Supreme Court in Washington and he based it on the fact that the Tribunal I introduced this Ding affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but what did the Supreme Court do? the briefs. You might not used to wait until the actual moment of rebuttal, Mr. Walton, so that we can prepare and hand down a written opinion on this point for it is certainly important and might be helpful in other cases.

MR. WALTON: Very good, sir. I shell be prepared to proceed with my brief as soon as the record of today's proceedings are out so I can cite the Tribunal's deferred ruling.

THE PRESIDENT: It can be done in that why and Dr. HOffmann when you get Mr. Walton's brief I should be happy if you would immediately prepare your reply brief.

CROSS EXAMINATION(continued) BY MR. WALTON:

Q Witness, at the close of yesterday's session we were discussing that portion of document NO-2837 - I am sorry, your Honors, Document Book II-B, page 7 in the English - we were referring, your Honors, to page 11 of the English text which is Document NO-2837 and is Prosecution Exhibit 58.

This again is the crossing of the Jews over the Dnjestr River. Now, witness, if these Jews were aware, as from what you have said, that Roumanian authorities wanted to get rid of them why were they so anxious to return to Roumanian territory where they could only expect further difficulties and even danger to life itself?

A The Roumanians wanted to go home again. What happened to them over there and what reasons they had to come across I never experienced. These were not organized measures but obviously excesses and had occurred in Roumanian territories. seven thousand Jews in this unguarded camp, is that correct? stay in Jampol or refused to return to Roumanian territories?

A None of them. They all desired to return home. once you consigned them to the administration of the Roumanians? once you consigned them to the administration of the Roumanian authorities? nothing happened to the Jews but I saw how they walked up the road between the few houses on the other bank of the river, toward their home country. The Roumanian soldiers who were on the other side of the bridge let the people pass. That is all I saw. And because my mission was thus finished I immediately, that is, the following morning because it became dark so early, I returned back to Tscharnamin in order to report to the chief of the Einsatzgruppen that my mission had been carried out according to orders.

what the German policy was toward all Jews and particularly toward Russian Jews?

A I cannot tell you that. I did not talk to them.

Q Well, wouldn't your Allied Roumanians be in agreement with such a policy when they expelled Jews from newly conquered territories?

A I cannot say anything about that. The Jewish question at the time was not an European question. That can be shown by facts which have become known now. wasn't it. the campaign, that is, in order to secure the territory and the supply lines in combat with the Red Army, that is with Bolchevism. There was one special order which we got and which only referred to this and, as we know now, was not at all connected with all the measures which Eichmann had to carry out at a later time. Eichmann himself had nothing at all to do with Russia but this was an order which we were given under the slogan of "Barbarossa" in the entire Russian campaign. the Roumanians, that other disposition of this sect of people would have to be made later rather than driving them into, as the report of the incident so clearly put it, and I quote "the territory within the sphere of German influence", did it not?

A. I did not quite understand the question. Your words were fairly clear, but I did not quite get the interpreter. Will you please repeat the question?

Q. I will state the question a little differently. When you took these Jews back and turned them over to the Rumanian allies, did you do this for the purpose of showing these Rumanian allies that other disposition would have to be made of Jews than sending them into territory under German domination or under German occupation and control? Is that why you sent them back to Rumania?

A. No, I sent them back, to say it quite simply, just because I got the order. I did not think about it any further because it was not my own decision. This question would be justified if I had known the entire background and had therefore decided on such a measure. I had not got this problem previously. I only happened to hear about it, but I didn't know the extent of it, because I had not been in that territory otherwise. But I was called from Tscharnomin, which was far away, only to carry out this special mission on this bridge. Therefore, I cannot tell you anything about this further.

Q. Well, can you tell the Tribunal the reason why this order was issued by your chief, General Ohlendorf?

A. Why the Einsatzgruppe chief-did this, and what motives he had, I don't know . In any case he did not want to put up with it that Jews should be sent, or rather helpless people should be sent to the German territory.

Q. Was it not for the reason that it was his viewpoint that it was not the task of Einsatzgruppe D but solely the task of the Rumanians to dispose of these Jews, was not that the reason why he gave the order?

A. Certainly not. I am convinced that Herr Ohlendorf would also have sent back other circles of persons who would have been sent to the territory and would have been a burden to us, because I heard that the Army strictly prohibited any civilian traffic -- that is the passing of any number or groups of persons from one bank of the river to the other bank, from one territory to another territory was prohibited.

Q. You have stated that the Fuehrer Order did not apply to these Jews as they were Rumanian citizens, have you not?

A. Yes, that was an assumption. I did not check up on that. I only wanted to say people who came from Rumanian sovereign territory don't concern us.

Q. Were these Jews less dangerous to the security of the German Armed Forces simply because they were not Soviet citizens.

A. That question does not play a part here at all. What mattered here there were no houses to accommodate large numbers of people who had been sent over to our territory, so that we could not help them under those circumstances. That is the only reason, and it is a burden, if you cannot take care of them and not house them -- We had no organization at the time like the U.N. who looked after these people. We had too few soldiers, and the rear Army territory had to remain in security and in order without too much effort, without too many people.

Q. All right, Witness, now you have explained the answer, let's give the answer to the same question. In your opinion, as a commando leader, were these Jews less dangerous to the security of the German Armed Forces simply because they were not Soviet citizens, or were they as dangerous as Soviet citizens?

A. At the moment I nevered considered this as a commando leader, but I simply had to carry out an order of the Einsatzgruppe Chief, which I had to do in respect to security. How much it would endanger the security I never thought about. Apart from that you must consider the fact that I had been in Russia only for a few weeks and knew nothing about this kind of thing.

Q. All right. Now that you think back on it and are able to judge now, from the facts you observed then, were these Jews less dangerous to the security of the German Armed Forces just because they were not Soviet citizens?

A. Even now I cannot decide upon that question. Wherever an emergency arises -

Q. All right. If you cannot decide upon it, why didn't you answer the question the first time I asked it by saying, "I don't know"? There is no need to go into a long explanation. Simply answer the question that is put to you. Witness, is it not a fact that in all territories which were under the control and influence of Germans the non-Jewish population was encouraged to turn over Jews to the Security Police for disposition?

A. I did not say anything of the kind.

Q. All right. From what you heard then, isn't it a fact that they were encouraged to turn over Jews to the Security Police for disposition?

A. I did not hear anything about that either.

Q. Well, let me call your attention to Document Book II-D, Page 20 of the English, Page 25 of the German. This is Document 2828, Prosecution's Exhibit 86. Now, the last paragraph of this quarter of this excerpt contains these words, "The population of the Crimea," and for a time your commando was in the Crimea, was it not?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor, a stronger subkommando of mine was sent to the Crimea by me, during the first days of January, upon order of the Einsatzgruppe Chief.

Q. All right.

A. In some of the documents where you can see it for yourself, it says expressly that this subkommando was subordinated to a commando active in the Crimea. This subkommando which might have become active in the Crimea here was not subordinate to me. I could not give them orders, and for reasons of distance I could not have control over them at all.

Q. Now, let me ask you, was a formal order given you to send part of your commando to the Crimea and to put that part of your commando under the command of some other person?

A. The order was: so many men, N.C.O.'s and enlisted men - not even and officer went along -- are to be moved to Simferopol, who have to report to the Einsatzgruppe chief or report to some definite place. That is all I know. I never saw the men again. Please understand, this was a transfer of men to another unit.

Q. That is what I wanted to know, was it a formal transfer by order? You have answered the question. Let's come back to the other question now. This document says that the population of the Crimea is anti-Jewish and in some cases spontaneously bring Jews to the commandos to be liquidated. Did this ever happen to you in the territory which you occupied?

A. No, I never experienced that.

Q. All right. Let's come back once more to this document 2837 which we were discussing. Since the Rumanians knew the German policy to liquidate Eastern Jewry, were they not, as any good ally would, cooperating by seeing that all Jewry, including their own, were removed as a security threat by sending them to you for disposition?

A. Well, I did not catch all the question.

Q. Since the Rumanians knew about the German policy to liquidate Eastern Jewry, were they not, as any good ally would do, cooperating by seeing that all Jewry, including their own, were removed as a security threat by sending them to you for disposition, or to the territory occupied by the Germans?

A. No, I cannot pass a judgment on this. What I heard was only the following. Insome individual locations in the Rumanian territories excesses occurred as a result of which the people came over here. What the Rumanians thought as our allies, I don't know. I simply cannot tell you that. I never considered that problem.

Q. Well, do you agree with this report, the Rumanians had driven thousands of selected persons unfit for labor from Bessarabia and Bukovania into the German sphere of interest. Is that correct, about this incident?

A. This is not quite in line with my experiences. The large majority of those whom I led back across the bridge from that camp, were healthy strong men.They were mixed, like any other population, not selected men for any particular reason. At least I did not notice that.

Q. Let me ask you this, Witness, do you think these Jews would have wandered into the German territory if they hadn't been forced there by the Rumanians?

A. Certainly. That is quite possible.

Q. So they were driven into the German territory?

A. Well, I read it in the reports. I did not experience it. I do not know the events as they happened there. I only noticed them from the report here.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, we have two answers from the witness on this subject, and let's clear it up at once. BY THE PRESIDENT: volition, or were they driven over?

Q Well, you talked with them, What did they tell you?

A They did not talk about their former troubles and worries. They just wanted to go home. with these Jews, that you took them across the river and yet did not find out how they happened to be on your side of the river, whether they were driven over or came over voluntarily. That kind of statement is absolutely contrary to all human observation. The most natural thing in the world would be to ascertain why and how they not over there. Now, you answer that question. You have answered it two ways. How answer that question and tell us whether they came over voluntarily or were driven over.

Q Then they were driven over? case they were led across.

Q Well, were they compelled to cross?

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. WALTON: into German territory?

A I should think Rumanian soldiers. I don't know the previous events in that territory.

Q I know you weren't in the territory but you at least inquired about these facts through people, through the interpreter, for you gave in direct examination full details of the event. Now, as a matter of fact, isn't it reasonable to suppose that your Rumanian allies sent you these Jews for disposition? reason. I don't know. Excesses occurred in some places.

Q You testified on this several times. We have gone further, since you are very reluctant to give all the facts of the incident. Did you personally negotiate with the Rumanian troop commander for the passage of these Jews over the Dnjestr River bridge?

Q Who negotiated with this officer? across the bridge not knowing what kind of reception they would set on the other side?

A Well, I saw the soldiers, and I just led then across. The soldiers simply let them loose on the other side. I told these soldiers: here comes a convoy. Then we led them across and the soldiers stood by and the people walked along the road, away from the bridge, somewhere into the country.

Q You never conferred with anyone; you simply took these Jews across that bridge and said, "Now no on back to your homes." Is that what was done?

A Well, I didn't know that any measures had been taken. I just assumed that they would find their way home, wherever they were to go.

Q Now, this report was written in Berlin, was it not? report?

A I don't know. They could have come from various places. Some of it might have come from Einsatzgruppe D, from Einsatzgruppe C, or, and this seems the most probable, that can have come from the Higher SS and police Leader who, together with a few units, according to the documents, was in this territory. facts from Einsatzgruppe C and put them under a section of their report which said "Einsatzgruppe D"? Einsatzgruppe D, yes, I think so. They have to accommodate it somewhere. Einsatzgruppe D headquarters directly?

Q Yes, and where did Einsatzgruppe D headquarters get those facts?

A What facts they used for this, I am afraid I can't tell you.

Q I didn't ask you that; I didn't ask you that. When activities of Einsatzkommando 12 were reported by Einsatzgruppe D, where did they get the facts about Einsatzkommando 12? group.

Q That is right. So then -gruppe D?

A I cannot tell you. I don't know how the report was made up. I consider this report, according to what I heard in the area of Einsatzgruppe D, I consider this quite improbable. reports, changing the figures from 19 murdered Jews to 91 murdered Jews, isn't it reasonable for us to suppose that this is a report of yours based on a hyperactive imagination which has improved since you have been in this courtroom?

nor the other fact is right either. I described how it happened with Hausmann. This was not exaggeration, and another figure was added, and here I went to emphasize again, I did not give a written report which dealt with this subject at all, but merely reported verbally very briefly, "I have carried out the mission, and thanks to the support of the German bridge commander, the matter went very easily and very quickly." That is all I had to do with this.

Q All right, Let's so to Document Book III-D again, page 72 of the English, page 118 of the German, which is Document NOKW-634, Prosecution's Exhibit 168. Now, on page 74 of the English text, your Honors, and on page 119 of the German text, this gives a detailed account of the capture and subsequent interrogation of a Russian paratrooper by the name of - I will have to swell it, I can't pronounce it - K-r-a-p-i-w-n-i-k-o-w. Was this report based on your report of the capture of this man?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor. This report occurred or is based on a report by the subkommando leader who was near Grigojevka, that is New Anantal, and was doing ethnic German work. command, was he not?

A He was under Hausmann's command because I said on 24 -of your command, he was subordinate to you. Now, this man that wrote this original report was a member of Einsatzkommando 12, was he not?

A Well, Mr. Prosecutor, you draw wrong conclusions. When I was in the hospital the Einsatzgruppe Chief told me to transfer the command to somebody else. Then this man is the chief -

Q That is what I want to know. Why didn't you state you were in the hospital and temporarily relieved of command when this incident occurred?

A We have talked about that in detail. It seemed too boring to me to repeat that again.

Q Just a minute, just a minute. Witness, it makes no difference how many times you have talked about it in detail. You will now talk about it to me, and I shall conduct the cross-examination. Let's understand each-other. Now, answer this question. Since the man was caught behind the German lines in civilian clothes and armed, under the rules of warfare he had a right to be executed, or the Germans had the right of executing this man, did they not?

A Not at all. These parachutists are not to be mixed up with any agents, but they were soldiers, and if a soldier tries here to break through to his lines, well, he is lucky if he manages it. If he doesn't, he is treated like a prisoner, provided that the interrogation gives a satisfactory result. And he was treated like a prisoner, and never did the sub-kommando leader tell me that even one man was shot, and the Detachment Commander Beck never said one word that one of those men was ever shot. all eleven of these parachutists were made prisoners of war and were never executed?

A These POW's as far as I can judge, and as long as I was there, were never shot. They were in the custody of the Wehrmacht, and it was one of my official actions to look after this dispersed commando, how they were doing, and when I arrived there three or four days later, I found the conditions as I have described them here. I could not object to the attitude, and neither the Wehrmacht nor anyone ever told me that they were shot, but I still found prisoners, quite a number, who were being interrogated.

Q All right. Were you in command of Einsatzkommando 12 during January, 1942?

A In January, '42 , yes -

Q You were in active command of it, or at least half of it? Crimea. This was the second lot that went to the Crimea.

in the Crimea?

A I personally, Yes. Only I alone with my driver made an official trip in January to the Crimea. When I received the radio message to take care of winter supplies which had arrived late and to collect them with a recently consigned truck and I had to abandon this truck in which I travelled, after a short while.... is that what you said? Yes.

Q Well, that is what I wanted to know. Now, you have stated that in January 1942 your activity was hampered because your commando was split and because of extreme cold weather, have you not? 121 of the German, Document No. 3401, which is Prosecution's Exhibit 52. Now, I would like for you to turn to page 12 of the original, at the latter part of the document, and on page 115, Your Honors. This is a report of Einsatzgruppe D. report and indicate to me when you have finished reading it. Teilkommandos for the purpose of combing out the northern Crimea. What combing operation did you order your men to perform in northern Crimea?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I believe the sense is quite different to how you are trying to interpret it. Einsatzkommando 12 is never mentioned here. I believe the paragraph is so short that I would like to read it to understand it better. "In the time of reporting, Sonderkommando 10 b was in Feodosia, and they were able to resume its security police operations after the Russians were driven out.

On 30 January the Sonderkommando could, after the Russian beachhead in Sudak had been eliminated, establish again a Teilkommando in Sudak. Besides, two further Teilkommandos were established with the assistance of men of the Einsatzkommando 12 for the purpose of combing out the northern Crimea.

A that is quite clear. Now, two further subcommandos--and this refers to 10 b--two further subcommandos of 10 b were assigned with the assistance of my man. If where were two subcommandos of 12, then all men of 12 were there, one would not have to add any more men from 12 to this. All this would be subcommandos of 12 then, but quite obviously these are two subcommandos of 10 b, where the men mentioned here, and this quite agrees with the time... The report in my opinion originates from the end of January or about that time.

PRESIDENT: Aren't we losing a lot of time here? You are not arguing that the whole Einsatzkommando 12 was there, just what the paragraph states, that men of his organization were there.

MR. WALTON: He denied in a previous answer that any of his men were ever in the northern Crimea.

PRESIDENT: Well, yes. Why go into this long discussion--I am not saying you, I am saying you are allowing the witness to do it, however, because you do not claim any more than what appears here, is that right?

MR. WALTON: I merely want to point out that northern Crimea is a large territory, and the men from Einsatzkommando 12 helped in clearing out that.

PRESIDENT: Well, that is what it says. Well, Witness, do you affirm that men of your commando assisted other Teilkommandos in the combing out of the northern Crimea?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, what happened in the Crimea, I did not know.

PRESIDENT: Well, just a minute please, you have read this to yourself and you have read it aloud.

Now the question is very simple, do you affirm that last sentence that men of your commando assisted two Teilkommandos in the combing cut of northern Crimea, Yes or No.?

THE WITNESS: Yes, but I want to add something.

PRESIDENT : You have already added plenty on that subject.

THE WITNESS: But these men were not under my command, I want to express that particularly.

PRESIDENT: You stated that a number of times, but they were men of your commando.

THE WITNESS: Yes, in the same manner as men of a battery are assigned to another unit and are subordinate to this other unit.

MR. WALTON: You have said already, the Tribunal is completely satisfied that that is the way you testify about this document. BY MR. WALTON: was claimed by Roumania you concerned yourself with tasks in connection with the problems of ethnic Germans in that territory, did you not? look after the German settlement and gave me the mission to do this because at this time this territory became Roumanian sovereign territory.

Q Well, the proper answer to my question was "Yes", there is no need to take 150 words just to say "Yes". Let's confine our answers to short, precise, factual answers. Now, was this the territory between the Bug and Dniester rivers where these ethnic Germans were located? assistance?

A Yes. I already indicated the task. and house furnishings?

as a place to live or furniture for a house in which they lived? cannot say what happened in detail during that time.

Q Now, let's go back. documents, as far as I remember, do not enable me to recollect this so clearly. Germans? left event earlier. It happened according to how the commandos of the ethnic German office came in and relieved my commandos, my detachments-Dueben and Pretzsch, you said that about two ways you actively inspected the duties of your commandowith the ethnic German groups? of your commando who was dealing for four months with ethnic Germans? of October, or somebody in your commando did, and you left Dueben in June? Now, I am asking you, during those four months did you ever receive reports from anyone who was dealing with the ethnic German problem?

A There must be a misunderstanding somewhere. I showed very clearly what I did; until the end of July I wasn't even in Russia, then I was in Tscharnomin as reserve until the end of August, and only then we marched into the ethnic German territory. That was the time of say six weeks, six to seven weeks.

Q All right, I will ask you the same question. about the six or seven weeks. Did you ever receive any reports from your commando or subunits of your commando who were directly dealing with the ethnic German problem?

A I myself did not. Hausmann would have received them, I think, and. I read many reports later on and read many reports at a later time, I found many of them here again in the documents.

Q. Well, from what you stated, about the time that you went to the hospital, certainly these six or seven weeks is part of the time that you were in active command of Einsatzkommando 12. You stated that you were at the hospital only three weeks during September, and now you state that your group dealt with this for six weeks or seven weeks. Certainly during part of this time you were in command of Einsatzkommando 12, and they dealt with ethnic German problems. Now, during the time that you were in active command, did you receive any reports from anyone in your commando about the ethnic German activities?

A. Well, may I explain the following here? After the various small detachments were stationed in their locations, in order to carry out their missions there, that is, to get the farms going again and so forth, there of course someone or other made reports to Hausmann. Hausmann will have made out a general report, a summary of all these, but after a certain time no further written reports were made. I assume so. Several reports were made and reports were made about events which had occurred in their territory.

PRESIDENT: Witness, please, why don't you answer the question? It was very simply this, did you receive any reports from the Teilkommandos or from others on the ethnic Germans? Now, you are telling us about reports, but you haven't answered the question whether you received any reports. Please direct yourself to that question immediately.

THE WITNESS: I don't think so--No.

PRESIDENT: All right. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Now, I ask you to look at Document Book III D, page 16 of the English text, page 17 of the German, Document No. 4489, Prosecution's Exhibit 152. Will you indicate when you have read that?

A. Which paragraph, all the paragraphs on Einsatzgruppe D?

MR. WALTON: Have Your Honors found the place?

PRESIDENT: What page?

MR. WALTON: Page 16, in Document Book III D.

THE WITNESS: That is quite right.

PRESIDENT: All right, that isn't a long paragraph. Proceed. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Now, Witness, it states that within the area of Einsatzgruppe D the greatest want was relieved by placing homes of Jews or furniture at the disposal, that is, of the ethnic Germans and by delivering children's beds and other necessary items. Did you ever make this or a similar report to Einsatzgruppe D?

A. No. I did not know anything about these events but I did hear about it. It says here, that children's beds and necessary items were brought in. Hausmann told me that he got repeatedly items from Nikolajew to distribute among the ethnic German people or from various villages. He asked mayors to go into Nikolajew, he said.

Q. Do you know if any other of the commandos of Einsatzgruppe D were engaged in handling the ethnic German problem besides Einsatzkommando 12?

A. I did not quite catch it. I just would like the sentence again, I did not catch the verb.

Q. Do you know whether or not any other commando in Einstazgruppe D besides Einsatzkommando 12 was engaged in dealint with the ethnic German problem?

A. Yes, as I had described, Einsatzkommando 10 A. The Einsatzkommando 10 A was stationed in this territory until my commando moved in, and the leader of Einsatzkommando 10 A himself had his headquarters near Speyer in the same location into which Hausmann moved with his headquarters, too.

Q. All right, let me ask you this question as between the Berg and Dniester rivers, this particular area on 4 October 1941 and a few days immediately preceding that date, where was Einsatzkommando 12?

A. A few days before 4 October in this territory, and some small detachments were already being relieved and were taken from Nikolajew.

Q. Do you know for a fact that Einsatz-or Sonderkommando 10 A was also in this territory at this particular time?

A. At that time, Einsatzkommando 10A was not there any more.

They had already moved out, but may I add that this is a summary report on the ethnic problem which in my opinion was made by the Einsatzgruppe during that time when all the ethnic German work had been concluded. The Einsatzgruppe obviously wanted to show to Berlin how the entire territory looks and what had been done in their territory until then. Such a report on the domestic sphere is not a report which refers to a certain date, but it just gives a general impression.

Q. That is exactly what I want. Now, what part did Einsatzkommando 12 contribute in the way of facts to this report? Did they engage in those activities?

A. In these activities which I find in the report is here, No.

Q. They never supplied ethnic Germans with furniture or homes to live in?

A. No. I know nothing about it.

Q. Well, then their settling of ethnic German problems was not concerned with the basic problem of the ethnic Germans, was it, that is, a place to live, with enough furniture in it for reasonable comfort--they had other tasks with the ethnic Germans, did they not?

A. The task which we carried out concerning ethnic Germans I have already explained in detail. It was the task of registration. We had to register them and to bring them together into one area so that we should know where Germans were living and then taking care of them and looking after their security.

Q. Your answer to my question was "No". That is all, there is no need to go into detail.

A. Yes, but if I say only "No", the possibility arises that you may draw a wrong conclusion.

PRESIDENT: The trouble with your question, Mr. Walton, was the first part of your question was very specific, namely, did his commando have anything to do with the basic comfort of the ethnic Germans, but then you tacked on an observation and he addressed himself to the observation rather th to the question. Now, let's put the question very directly, did your Einsatzkommando 12 interest itself at all in the basic living conditions of the ethnic Germans by seeing to it that they were supplied with habitation, with furniture, and other necessary equipment for a decent living?

THE WITNESS: Yes. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Well, then you were interested in seeing to it that they got furniture?

A. Your Honor, I did not take care of it, I know nothing about it but the commando who were stationed there would have taken care of it, Yes.

Q. Well, then, your commando was interested in that?

A. The commando was interested, Yes.

Q. And you were the leader of Einsatzkommando 12?

A. Except for the time when I was in the hospital, Yes.

PRESIDENT: Yes. Proceed Mr. Walton. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. When did you report to duty in the Reich Security main office?

A. I reported to the RSHA at the beginning of April 1942.

Q. Now, was this a normal or routine change of duty from frontline service to service in the homeland?

A. Well, it happened repeatedly that I myself tried to get away from the Einsatz, the assignment, but what they decided by my assignment, I did not know, of course.

Q. Well, was 10 months the usual service for the Eastern f ront for an Einsatzkommando?

A. I cannot answer that--that varied,

Q. All right, now let's consider your service record which is in Document Book III D, page 80 in the English, page 126 in the German. Now, did your service as commander of Einsatzkommando 12 have anything to do w ith your promotion?

A. Certainly not. Concerning the SS or SD promotions, I was only assilmilated to my promotion as an official. The SS promotion often was behind, from two to eight months behind the promotion as official.

Q. As a matter of information, right opposite that promotion it has in my Document Book a paragraph headed "Investigation Procedure", and under that, "Reason: Suspicion of Military Insubordination and Violation of Official Duty in the Field". Now, yesterday you talked about something of this same nature. What I want to know is if this entry of "Investigation Procedure" occurred in 1942 or as you stated in 1944?

A . It was done in the year 1944. If this is a copy of form, the field is made very large for this entry. As it cannot be seen in this copy, a conclusions can be drawn from this. It is the last one, the last subject contained in my SD files, namely, the "Investigation Procedure", for I had not been promoted since '42. It says here at the end: promotion date and only for this '42 is mentioned, and not for carrying cut the investigations.

That is shown quite clearly here in this section, promotion only at '42. disobedience and violation of official duty in 1944.

MR. WALTON: You Your Honors please, the hours is 11 o'clock.

PRESIDENT: Very well. The Tribunal will be in recess for 15 minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. DURCHHOLZ: Durchholz for Schulz. tomorrow, Wednesday, all day since I want to discuss the trial brief with him, which I shall submit to the Tribunal shortly.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Schulz will be excused from attendance in court all day tomorrow in order that he may confer with his attorney.

DR. DURCHHOLZ: Thank you. BY MR. WALTON:

Q. Witness, was your only service in the field prior to September, 1942, that of kommando leader of Einsatzkommando 12?

A. Y es, from June till March, beginning of March, 1942.

Q. What was your last day of command in Einsatzkommando 12?

A. I cannot tell you exactly, It was the time between the 5th and 15th of March.

Q. Do you consider your service with Einsatzgruppe D to have been satisfactory?

A. I really cannot say that. I really cannot designate it as such.

Q. Well, do you mean to tell us that in your opinion your service with Einsatzgruppe D was unsatisfactory?

A. Well, it was an assignment, and an order had been given which certainly could not satisfy anyone. I personally was glad that I got out of the Einsatz and that I got out in the form which accidentally happened.

Q. While you were in command of Einsatzkommando 12, did you ever hear of General Ohlendorf or anyone asking for your removal?

A. I didn't hear anything about this.

Q. All right. Were you ever reprimanded or tried for any offense you were commander of Einsatzkommando 12?

A. No, I never was.

Q. Then your service with Einsatzkommando 12 was satisfactory, was it not?

A. Within my assignment no reprimand could be brought up, but I know that during the proceeding instigated against me in 1944-

Q. No. No, I am only talking about your service with Einsatzgruppe D. We are not going into 1944.

A. Yes. Correct, and I only want to answer from that. In that time I first saw my reports, the reports about me, because they reprimanded me because of my bad achievements.

Q. Who made out these reports? General Ohlendorf?

A. All my predecessors made them out, and Herr Ohlendorf, of course, for the Einsatzgruppe.

Q. Did General Ohlendorf criticize you for your activities in Einsatzgruppe D?

A. It was not a good recommendation. It was just fair. There were few reprimands which were contained in this report. Otherwise they wouldn't have reproached me with them.

Q. You haven't answered my question. Did General Ohlendorf put a reprimand in there about your service with Einsatzgruppe D? He is shaking his head in the box. He says not.

A. I don't think that any conclusions have to be drawn from the gesture, which Herr Ohlendorf exhibits here in the dock.

Q. Well, how could your service have been more or less satisfactory unless you had killed Jews, Communists and Soviet Party functionaries in obedience to the Fuehrer Order?

A. Herr Ohlendorf knew himself in whit areas I was stationed and what he could expect of me. That, however, I was rather inactive could be seen from the report.

Q. Well, in September, 1942, do you suppose that you would have been promoted in rank unless you had had a satisfactory service up to that date?

A. When in September, 1942, I was made Obersturmbannfuehrer, (Lieutenant Colonel) is in assimilated rank, this came about automatically my promotion to Senior Government Councillor, and this promotion to Senior Government Councillor I received before H err Ohlendorf's report about me had reached my files.

Q. Yes, I don't doubt that, but do you suppose that you would have been in September, 1942, promoted to Senior Government Councillor unless your entire service to that point had been satisfactory?

A. I was promoted very late, and my promotion as can be seen from my record did not come about very quickly and was not very high. That was rather in automatic promotion.

has been most unsatisfactory in Einsatzgruppe D, or in the Gestapo Office prior to your service in Einsatzgruppe D; if any of your service had been unsatisfactory, you would have still got this promotion as Senior Government Counsellor? recommendations which do not weigh so heavily that I would be out of the question to be promoted within a certain time as on official. unsatisfactory remarks, your services generally were considered satisfactory, weren't they? had a recommendation from Dr. Best in 1939 in the files; that was a good recommendation.

Q All right. Let's come to the time when you were in service in the Reich Security Main Office after your return to Berlin. You have stated that you were designated to take over the staff command of the Security Police and SD, have you not?

A I did not make this statement in this form. Herr Wartenberg asked me: "You were to take over the staff-commando, weren't you?" I said: "First of all it was not e staff-commando. Secondly, I don't know whether I was to take it over." And, he said: "Yes, but I know that you were." I made so many corrections in this thing, about every first, second end third line you can see my initials, and this was so difficult to read that nobody could make head or tail of it, and some unclarity was left in it, which I didn't even basically object to, because the context is quite clear. a school in the suburbs of Berlin, end then you were called for duty in the Reich Security Main Office. What were you first told that you would have to do when you reported to the Reich Security Main Office?

That is all I want to know. that no decision had been arrived at as to what use I was to be put to. an inspector of some kind for a few months, or a few weeks, and after that, after you were relieved of this duty as an auditor or inspector. Then what were you assigned to do? them, Mr. Prosecutor. Please do not mind if I do so, I was not an inspector, I was an examiner in examinations; that was temporary job because they had nothing to do for me, and it was customary that they take practically experienced people to take part as an examiner, and they had to put questions in examinations. it. What did you next do? Chief IV, and report to him. I did so.

Q What did you do? What duties were you assigned to in Office IV?

Q What did the Department IV-D-V concern itself with? of the reports about partisans in the Eastern area of partisans. consolidation, and distribution of operational situation reports from USER, wasn't it? form. They had nothing to do with distribution, I merely got the reports which were competent for my department. They were sit distributed by the Main Office. four Einsatzgruppen?

Q Well, give us some approximate date? Every two weeks, every three weeks, every two months?

A Such report? Every day.

Q All right. How often would your committee of your commando staff meet for discussions and consolidation of these reports? from the East were discussed, but we read through those exceprts which had been written by various departments about the messages from the East, and of which these departments contributed, or made contributions. Every one came in there with the sheets, which had already been prepared as a contribution.

Q Do you know Dr. Knobloch, K-N-O-B-L-O-C-H?

Q Did you know Friedrich Rang, R-A-N-G?

Q Did you know Kurt Lindow, L-I-N-D-O-W?

Q Did you collaborate with him in these reports?

A Not with Lindow. During my time Lindow didn't have any idea about this. He sent reports, but how it was handled at my time Lindow didn't know. Rang was chief of a different group which had nothing to do with Russia. That was Rang, but he didn't know anything about these matters, I stayed with him in Nendorf, and, I stayed with him in the same cell when I was interrogated by the British, and he always said he knew nothing about these matters. After I was relieved from my office he may have participated in these editorial meetings, I don't know, but about whet happened during my time Rang didn't know anything, and he didn't work with me.

MR. WALTON: All right. At this time the Prosecution in refutation of his statement which has been made by the witness, that one Friedrich Rang knew nothing about his activity, and didn't attend any meetings of his commando-staff, I should like to offer into evidence Document NO-5153, which will become Prosecution Exhibit 189, and which is an affidavit of the witness Friedrich Rang, and respectfully submit a basis has been laid for the introduction of this affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Is the affiant alive?

MR. WALTON: Yes. Well, I'll say, I think, yes, he was the last time I heard from him, which was some time after he signed the affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I don't know whether Dr. Hoffmann was harboring a hope that he might have been dead.

MR. WALTON: I take it, it is not necessary for me to comment on that, Your Honor, I shall pass unto further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, very well. BY MR. WALTON: of an Einsatzgruppe, or Einsatzcommando, was not suppelemented or altered in any way by your committee when they acted on these reports, was it?

Q I am not even asking you about the document. You can have that and read it when you leave. I am completely through with that document, The question which I asked you is about your general nature and not what Rang said about it, your general duties?

THE PRESIDENT: Better repeat the question, Mr. Walton.

MR. WALTON: Yes. BY MR. WALTON: of an Einsatzgruppe, or an Einsatzcommando, was this supplemented by Your committee, or altered in any way by your committee before it was issued?

A Yes, of course, he could do so. I shall give you an example, which might make these things very clear. Let's say a report coming from White Ruthenia, a report about the youth there. That the newly founded White Ruthenian Youth Movement was anti-Soviet and that the support of all youth, and another report about partisans which another department contributed said that this applied to the partisans....

Q I think you misunderstand the question. Let me rephrase the question?

AA mong the partisans there were many youths? Then that was a contradiction.

Q Let me rephrase the question. Would your committee alter such facts as the location of a specific Einsatzgruppe or a specific Einsatzcommando.If the commando reported that it was at Tarnopol, would you think the committee would alter that statement in the report? reports, is that correct, never supplemented, or never altered in any way?

AAt my time it was handled in the following manner:

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment. Just a moment.

MR. WALTON: Just a moment.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, witness, all the examiner desires to know is whether you reported whet cane to you; you didn't change the geographical facts, did you?

THE WITNESS: No, I did not alter geographical facts.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, so you did not alter any facts?

THE WITNESS: No.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, that is all. BY MR. WALTON: the total number of executions during a reported period, would you?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I have expected this question, and that is why I tried to make this limitation, and to give this explanation. Those things in which I participated -

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment. Just a moment. You say you anticipated the question but you certainly did not have your answer ready, because you are going into a long discussion now. What Mr. Walton is really putting to you is, did you falsify any report which came from the field, that is the whole story, did you falsify any report?

A I didn't. But he referred to executions....

A But he spoke of shooting and executions, which didn't occur in these reports on which I worked, those on the basis of Hitler's order, actions against Jews, that is. This is the decisive question for me. BY MR. WALTON: committee of the Commando-staff, weren't you?

A Mr. Prosecutor, to be a senior officer on such low level is a very simple thing, because the departments only delegated pretty low-ranking officers, and it was not very difficult for me to be the Obersturmfuehrer, the highest ranking officer. What I had to do I have already explained in my direct examination. It was merely technical -- purely a technical matter of proof-reading of this material, and the processing of it, to see to it that these contributions were stencilled and distributed. Discussions about measures did not take place in this connection.

Q All right. Were you in charge of the group which met to consider your share of the duties on these reports?

Q All right. Now, let's turn to Document Book II-D again. Page 20 of the English, page 25 of the German. Prosecution's Exhibit No. 86. This document, as you will see, gives the total of executions performed by Einsatzgruppe D to the date of reporting, on 12 December 1941, to be 54,696. Do you still state that the 94 Jews killed in the Harvesting Action, and a few Killed by Einsatzgruppe XII, when Hausmann was in command during your absence, are the only executions contributed to this total of Russian Nationals by Einsatzcommando XII?

committee as being done for racial reasons. It was a measure that I have already made clear. In this connection many reports were made out by me about many executions, that is our own executions, as well as foreign executions. I never got into such a situation as to carry out a purely Jewish action. is that what I understand you to say? necessary. I can not remember a figure but a usual number of measures was necessary in this period. share to this total of 54,696 Russian Nationals? the Fuehrer Order, and anything else, and this number must include my figures, of course. English, and page 27 of the German, the Document NO-2634, Prosecution's Exhibit No. 87, if you will turn to page 20 of the original Your Honor, that is page 28 in the book, under paragraph 4, headed "Jews". That is almost at the end of the document,witness. Do you make the same answer to the total of 75,881 persons?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I can not give you an answer in this connection. I an merely asking if you make the same answer to this, if Einsatzcommando XII, in the total number of shootings it contributed some of them, or its share of them? included again,that is obvious.

Q And one more document, witness. In the same Document Book, page 29 of the English, page 34 of the German, which is Document NO-3338, Prosecution's Exhibit No. 88 -- I am sorry, Your Honor, I think the page is wrong.

THE PRESIDENT: There is something on page 30, and carried over to 31.

MR. WALTON: You are right, sir. It is 31. The Document is NO3338-A, and that is, witness, on the page right at the bottom of page 10 of the original. You were in command of Einsatzcommando XII on the date of this report, were you not?

A I have not found the passage you mean. Is it the report of the 19 January on?

AAnd what place do you refer to? it is right at the end of page 10 of the original, where it says, 685 Jews, 1639 Partisans and Communists were shot between 1 and 15 January, the total number being accordingly, 80,160. The question I asked: On this date, between 1 and 15 January, you were still in command of Einsatzcommando XII, were you not? XII contributed its share to this total is the same as to the other two documents which I have just shown you?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor, I must explain it more clearly, As for the previous questions, I have said that the total figure included these people that the Einsatzcommando has reported as executed, but in this case the number reeds as another total figure, so this report and the previous one refers to actions which happened between Sinferopol and there, and they always referred to incidents in which Einsatzcommando XII is never mentioned, and that is decisive.

Q I have no interest in this 685 Jews, and the 1639 Partisans. What I am asking you is that in this total of executions of 80,160 , performed by Einsatzcomnando D to the date of this report, I put to you, witness, the same question that I put to you on the other two documents; of this total of 80,160, is it your opinion that Einsatzcommando XII contributed some executions to this grand total?

of 75,881 executions, that it contributed its total or its share to the total of 54,696 executions. Why didn't it contribute its share to this total, when the total killed was 90,000 in the whole time that you were?

A Mr. Prosecutor, you asked the question more precisely here in the last instance, you always took the periods of time covered in the report, and that is now shown here at all. If in my reports of September, or October any executions are mentioned, these are included in the figure of the fifty, or seventy-five thousand, or eightythousand, but our contribution is not always listed as for each period, so I con not comment on this. These are all reports which refer to clear incidents, and to areas with which Einsatzcommando XII had nothing to do. accordingly 80,160 executions, as that many after the date of the report which gave the total of 75,881, is that what you are trying to say?

Court No. II, Case No. IX.

A. About the activities of Einsatzkommando XII I cannot say anything at all. Einsatzkommando XII is not mentioned at all.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Walton, I wouldn't spend any further time with this. He has admitted that Einsatzkommando XII contributed its share to the grand total of 75,000. I wouldn't waste half an hour trying to determine whether it contributed its share to the 80,000.

MR. WALTON: I have no further questions. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Witness, how many executions did you personally order?

A. Your Honor, it is not possible for me to give you a definite specific figure for that.

Q. Well, give us your best recollection of the number of executions that you personally ordered?

Q. Even that, your honor, is not possible for me to do.

A. Well, is it because the number is so great or the number so small that you cannot remember how many people you ordered to their deaths?

A . The figure as such would not be possible for me to remember exactly. There are a lot of lapses in my memory and I wouldn't want to give any figure which might be wrong or right.

Q. Did you order anybody to be killed?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you regard that as a grave matter to send someone to his death?

A. Yes, very.

Q. Then wouldn't that have made such an impression upon your mind that you could recall now after these years how many you had sent to their Creator?

A. Your Honor, this is due to the fact that one had records on incidents concerned. There are many persons and one had an idea of those persona and people - so and so many - were sent to their death and others were released. I only remember the incident as a whole that I investigated then but I cannot say what the ratio was exactly.

Q. You will not or can not tell the Tribunal how many people you personally ordered killed during the time you were in Russia?

A. No, I cannot do so.

Q. Was it as many as six or seven thousand?

A. Certainly not but it is useless to give any figure.

Q. Well, you remembered six or seven thousand Jews that you escorted across the Dnjestr River. You mentioned that number specifically. You regard taking someone across the river of less moment than of sending him to his death?

A. Your Honor, as much as I was mistaken in this figure can be seen from the fact that in my first interrogetion I mentioned three thousand and afterwards it seemed to me too little. If I look at places full of people it is very difficult to estimate. So, again it is not a true recollection.

Q. But your best recollection today is -- and you went out of your way to call it to the Tribunal's attention -that there were six to seven thousand in that camp, is that right?

A. I estimated them. After I thought it over now how long they marched and how many people there might have been I think perhaps it was inaccurate.

Q. All right, Now you recollect people that you say marching to their death, the people that were brought up before the execution Squad - it certainly would have produced as vivid an image in your mind as these people marching across the bridge and you tell us now to your best recollection how many you ordered shot while you were in Russia?

A. Never. I cannot give you any figure.

Q. All right then, how many people did you see killed? How many executions did you witness?

A. I saw two men shot.

Q. In ell the time that you were in Russia you say only two people shot?

A. NO. I personally saw these two people shot. Otherwise the execution took place where the incidents took place

Q. In all the time that you were in Russia how many people did you see shot?

A. I personally saw two men who were shot by my kommando.

Q. Tell us about these two.

A. These were two people who were arrested with four or five other people because they were people for whom the Wehrmacht was looking. they had set up a secret radio transmitter in Pologi and sent news to the Russian Army. As the investigations reveald they were ordered...

Q. Did you conduct these investigations?

A. No, not myself but I was very much interested in them.

Q. Did you review the Investigation?

A. In this case, yes.

Q. And then did you order them shot after you investigated the case, after you read the investigation?

A. NO.

Q. who ordered them shot?

A. I did, but not immediately.

Q. Well then you ordered these two shot? Well, then you do remember two that you ordered shot? You told us a moment ago you wouldn't hazard any estimate. Now you do remember two people you ordered shot, is that right?

A. I said I cannot remember a definite figure which were executed on my orders. I saw these two men shot.

Q. Did you order these two people shot?

A. Yes.

Q. Yes. So you do remember two people that you ordered executed?

A. Yes.

Q. Now can you recall anybody else that you ordered executed?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Give us the others.

A. Well, for example, I cannot tell you exactly, I think it was in Guljapole, a large number of persons were first of all arrested. Part of them were shot against whom the investigations showed that they had mined the Front Intelligence of the Army to blow it up.

A. And how many of them did you order shot?

A. I cannot exactly remember because I only remember the number by how many incidents, how many cases, there were and against how many persons investigations were carried out.

Q. Well, this incident that you have just now mentioned resulted in some executions. How many did you order shot after investigations and after acts which entitled them to be killed? How many were there?

A. I cannot say, your Honor.

Q. Was it 50?

A. Any number is wrong or correct. I cannot give any number.

Q. Did you see them shot after you ordered their execution?

A. NO.

Q. Now you tell us just what the episode was, where was it, in Guljapole?

Page 3,629

A. In Guljapole.

Q. Please spell that for me, Mr. Lea.

A. G-u-l-j-a-p-o-l-e.

Q. All right. when did this happen?

A. In January or February in the New Year 1942. I don't know the exact date.

Q. Now tell us just what happened?

A. Well I only remember this much. Some Wehrmacht agency sent a courier and asked for a few people who might carry out investigations. Something was not right. The personnel in the Intelligence Center, the Russian auxiliary personnel, had found some sort of suspicious people who had connections with the outside and wanted to investigate the matter. The investigation took some time. I don't know how long.

Q. Were these your investigators?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you follow the investigation yourself?

A, No. I always got reports from time to time.

Q. Fine. You got the reports. Now you tell us what these reports said.

A. Well the final result was that a certain circle of people was considered very hostile to the Germans and that they had made preparations to blow the center up.

Q. How many were in this circle?

A. I cannot tell you how many.

Q. All right. A circle of people - they were going to blow up the Germans. Now tell us something further. What else was in the report?

A. Well nothing more. Afterwards there was the result and I don't remember that exactly. I only remember it as an incident because it was interesting. Any details I do not remember.

Q. It was interesting to you that these men were going to blow up somebody but it wasn't interesting to you that you Killed them, is that right?

A. Your Honor, we were interested in the matter and it was out duty to investigate such matters.

Q. And you reviewed the investigations?

A. Yes.

Q. And after you reviewed the investigations you gave the order for execution?

A. Yes.

Q. And how many were there?

A. I cannot tell you exactly. My recollection is only of the incident as such. I cannot give you the figure.

Q. Were there 500 shot?

A. Not that many.

Q. Tell were there 100 shot?

A. I don't think so. Any figure is wrong.

Q. Were there 50 shot?

A. Your Honor --

Q. Answer that question yes or no.

A. I cannot give a number.

Q. Were there 10 shot?

A. Even this question I cannot answer.

Q. Were there 5 shot?

A. That would be the same answer.

Q. Yes there one shot?

A. Yes, some were shot.

Q. All right. How many were shot?.

A. Your Honor, I must repeat the same thing over and over again.

Q. You just reconstruct in your mind this scene. Here is an incident which you recall after five years, You volunteer this incident. Certainly there must be a picture in your mind of this circle of people that are conspiring to do harm and damage to the German forces, that you are requested to send out investigators. These investigators go out and conduct their inquiries and interrogations. They make up a report. This report is submitted to you and you read this resort and as a result of the report you order certain people to be shot. Now it is incomprehensible that you could recall an incident of this importance with all the details which you have given us and leave out that most essential, vital part of the number of people killed. That does not square with common sense or logic. You are an attorney. You are a man of ability and you have conducted yourself on the witness stand with accumen and clear thinking, Now you answer question. Take as much time as you require and tell us how many were shot.

If you don't answer that question the Tribunal will be compelled to draw whatever conclusion will come from so illogical a refusal to answer such a very natural logical question.

A. Your Honor, I cannot give any figure of those shot under my responsibility. I remember the incident and my memory is supported by the reports here when the reports were submitted to me. But even here, some matters I could not remember. Only could I remember them when I saw the reports again and recalled them more clearly. In my situation reports I reported everything which took place in my area .........

Q. Just a moment. Just a moment. You told us of the two people you did see shot, Where did this occur? Where did this occur these two people that you did admit having seen shot?

A. In Pologi:

Q. And when did this take place?

A. It must have been at the end of February or the beginning of March.

Q. How many people were in the Execution Squad?

A. About six men.

Q. Did you make certain that the execution was conducted in a military and humane fashion?

A. Yes.

Q. Yes. How, how is it you recall the execution of these two in February 1942 but you do not recall the execution of a much larger number in January of 1942? Explain that to the Court, please?

A. This execution of two people I attended myself. I witnessed it. Therefore, I remember it especially well. Then it was such an interesting case as it was very rare in Russia that here one captured a man who sent messages to the enemy, Then the following had to be considered. In winter when we didn't undertake many activities and when we were cut off for weeks, every detail became something big for us, bigger than if it had happened at a time when in the areas around Nikolajew when the Roumanians came in and the Germans left there were so many agencies around us and so many units operating around us that when these matters were mentioned to the group - all of this sort of thing escapes me and I cannot remember specifically.

Q. Do we understand that you remember the Pologi incident because it happened in the winter time? Is that what you told us?

A. I remember this last mentioned incident especially because this was a typical case as......

Q. You said something about winter. You remember it because it was in the winter?

A. Yes.

Q. All right,

A. That was during a time when we were inactive.

Q. Don't you regard January in Russia as winter?

A. Yes, it's winter.

Q. What distinction do you make between the episode which occurred in February because it was winter and the episode which occurred in January?

A. No distinction. Not that big a distinction anyway but just the fact that there were two people whom I witnessed being executed. That is more impressionable then the incident of a large number of people who were executed and some that were left over.

Q. And some of whom you ordered killed? That's right, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, you mill not tell the Tribunal how many you ordered executed as the result of this episode in Guljapole?

A. I cannot mention that figure.

Q. Yes, and you have nothing further to add to this episode which you yourself volunteered on this matter of not regarding knowing how many were executed?

A. No, it is impossible for me because in the meantime I have forgotten the details and don't know how many were executed.

Q. You said that there were some people killed. When you use the adjective some you naturally mean more than one or two?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So that when you say some already you project yourself into an estimate. Now what do you mean by some?

A. By some I mean more than one - several.

Q. All right. Several takes you up to about three or four. So, were there three or four executed?

A. Your Honor, it is useless. I cannot remember and I would cast a doubt on my credibility as some report might be found in the future and if the figure reported might not correspond with the figure I reported.

Q. Do you think, witness, that any doubt is being cast on your credibility when you tell an entirely impartial Tribunal that you do not remember how many people you ordered killed. Do you think any doubt would be cast upon your credibility? Answer that question frankly. Do you think the Tribunal would be justified in entertaining a doubt on your credibility when you say that you do not remember how many people you ordered killed arising out of an episode which you yourself have recalled vividly. Answer that question frankly.

A. Your Honor, if ther is any conclusion drawn from my words you cannot judge them.....

Q. Very well, how many Jews did you order killed in Russia?

A. As for Jews just because they were Jews I ordered none to be executed.

Q. How many Jews did you order killed not because they were Jews?

A. Your Honor, I gave no special order not to use the Hitler order. My tendency......

Q. Now please answer the question. Witness, you will please answer the questions.

We will give you every opportunity of explanation but we can never arrive at a meeting of minds if you don't address yourself to the case. Now I asked you first how many Jews you ordered killed and you said you did not order the execution of any Jew because he was a Jew. That naturally infers that you did order the execution of some Jews not because they were Jews but for some other reasons - they were saboteurs, looters or anytning that called for the death sentence. Now, I ask you: how many Jews did you order killed for a reason other than their race or nationality?

A. Even that I cannot say because this was not investigated and was essentially uninteresting. If a group of Partisans was captured which was active as Partisans and they were shot they were shot because of this deed. Nobody bothered to find out how many Jews were among them. Apart from the fact how could one find out that?

Q. All right, now you have brought up from your memory a Partisan action and you say that once demonstrated they are Partisans they are shot under the rules of war. Now you must have had in mind some particular episode when you volunteered that. Now tell us of one particular case where Partisans were captured and then shot. Tell us of the episode that you must have been thinking about when you volunteered that illustration.

A. I do not relate this as a recollection but I am repeating what was repeated to me from the Partisan area.

Q. Did you shoot any Partisans while you were in Russia?

A. My Kommando shot Partisans in Russia under my responsibility.

Q. Did you order the execution of any Partisans in Russia?

A. I did not need to give it as in an area in a definite case the Army leader approved of the undertaking.

Q. Witness, we are now going to have our recess and between now and 1:45 I want you to rake through your memory, comb through your recollections, and be prepared to answer when we reconvene at 1:45 the details of the executions in Russia, Russian executions which you ordered for any reason whatsoever.

The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45 and during that time the witness will not talk to anybody.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. WALTON: If it please the Tribunal, there is a matter of a witness which concerns Dr. Gawlik and myself. I feel that I should have an expression from the Tribunal on the matter, and I would appreciate if the Tribunal would instruct the Marshal to call Dr. Gawlik to be in court at such times as the present witness is finished with his examination, if the Tribunal will permit it.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. The provost marshal will please instruct Dr. Gawlik to be available this afternoon so that he may be present when the succeeding witness takes the stand.

EXAMINATION (Continued) BY THE PRESIDENT: just before recess we were discussing certain features of your activities in Russia. Now, we hope you understand that there is no intention on the part of the Tribunal to have you answer a question in any way other than the truth. We don't want you to believe that we press you unduly for an answer, but you must understand this is a very serious business. You have taken the witness stand and have voluntarily decided to give evidence. No defendant is required to testify unless he so desires, and his refusal to testify cannot be used against him. But since you have taken the stand and have volunteered to reply to questions put to you by your counsel and you have stated certain propositions, then naturally you must be subjected to further inquiry as to the correctness of these positions which you have advanced.

It is entirely immaterial to the Tribunal what the eventual result will be in any given case, but it is very important to the Tribunal that the truth be known, and if we do not receive the truth, then it is very difficult to arrive at a correct determination in any given instance. months. You went there as a soldier. You went there specifically as a leader of a certain group of men, maybe 130. Now, you conducted certain activities there, and how you conducted those activities will determine whether you are guilty or innocent of the crimes charged against you in the indictment. Now we ask you specifically in all this period of time that you were in Russia how many executions you ordered, and we have been unable yet to determine with some assurance that your answer is the answer which you desire. Just how many executions took place as a result of your order? Now, we will ask you again, in all the time that you were in Russia as leader of Einsatzkommando 12, how many executions did you order?

A. Your Honor, I understand how serious your words are, and I have always considered this to be very serious. When searching my conscience before I was not able to find out, and the hour you granted me did not help either to find an answer. A final conclusion I consider impossible in view of the circumstances. Why, I can't establish a definite figure, is because of the particularity of my assignment since my actual work started from October onwards. This makes it impossible for me to give a precise figure. The overlapping in the previous time in the commando make it difficult for me to decide what happened during the time when I was in charge of the commando and what happened during the time when I was not in charge of the commando, events which might possibly have happened during the time I was in charge and about which I only heard later on only could hear about later through reports.

to me which we will let you have because we think it is very helpful. We do not ask yo give us a precise figure and then hold you to that figure. That isn't the purpose of the Tribunal at all. We know that memory is a fallible function of the body and of the brain, but we also know that memory cannot discard the recollection of horrible events. Now, the killing of a human being is the sum total of horror. It is the ultimate in human distress, and whether you are on the receiving end or the giving end of death, it makes its imprint on the brain and on the heart in a way that nothing can eradicate it. So when we ask you to recall how many people you ordered executed, we don't expect you to give one definite precise, unchangeable figure, and then if that should vary from another figure that it would appear that you had purposely lied, but we do expect that you can as a reasonable and rational person give some judgment, some estimate on this very serious business of killing people. your question, I should like you to consider that however difficult each killing must be for the person who carries it out, an event about which one only learns from a piece of paper does not impress one so deeply, and one does not notice particularly whether this concerns only one event reported by a subkommando far away or whether it is reported from a foreign unit, because a definite idea and imagination cannot be connected with this.

That it should particularly have been done by a unit of mine and under my charge, the majority of reports which were received in my territory, and particularly up to October, mostly concerned events in other units, which are also used in my reports, as it was my duty to do. of 94 Jews during the harvest season, don't you? deeply because it was a single event, the only one which had happened before August. This was the one event of the commandos which was discussed. is that the way you recollect that? during the entire period from June until the end of August when I was stationed there, this was the only event which occurred, the only event of its kind, and therefore it impressed itself on my mind as a special event. I gave no collective reports about other events at that time. This event is, therefore, an individual incident and impressed my memory as something special.

Q All right. You remember this because it happened between June and August and it was the only episode which occurred at that time. Now, do you remember anything between September and November of that year? the time which I can overlook the least throughout my entire activity.

November? after taking over the commando again, I also found reports about shootings.

Q Did you know that these 94 were to be killed? were to be executed?

Q When did you find out that they had been executed? execution when the troop officer reported this to me verbally. these executions had been properly done?

Q Please answer my question. Did you investigate to determine whether each one of these 94 was worthy of death? happened. and decided whether in each case the person who had been killed had done something which merited death under the laws under which you were operating? so far away and could not come to me first. didn't even trouble yourself to find out whether the 94 had been properly killed? on the report ...

of these people were innocent, could you have done anything?

A. Certainly, I could have made the troop leader responsible for this..

Q. Yes. Then there was a point in investigating to determine whether the 94 deaths were in order, wasn't there?

A. Could I have that again?

Q. Then there would have been a reason to investigate these 94 deaths to determine whether they were in accordance with the law?

A. Not according to the explanation which the troop leader gave me.

Q I don't think that you caught the question. You said first that since the people were already killed there was nothing to be done. Then I asked you, suppose you had found that 20 had been innocently killed, or rather done to death although innocent. I asked you if you could have done something in that event. You said yes, you could have punished the person who brought about the improper deaths. Do we understand each other to that point?

Q Then there was a purpose, wasn't there, in reviewing these cases to make certain that these 94 had been killed because they committed a crime, there was a purpose, wasn't there?

Q Yes, but you did not do this; you did not investigate the cases. tell me that the persons concerned were to be considered as the perpetrators.

Q Witness, did you or did you not review these cases? subkommando leader had investigated the cases properly, I could not take a part in the investigations any more.

Q Then you did not investigate the cases; you were satisfied with what the subkommando leader had done?

Q You gave him authority to shoot. In certain cases he shot 94 people. He reported to you, "I have killed 94", and you said, "Very well". authority, but assumed the authority according to the authority and the orders given by the Wehrmacht.

to follow your leadership, hadn't you? had the special mission to do what they had been commissioned to do, and since it was an order from the Wehrmacht, they had to keep within that sphere for which they were authorized. know were shot; you told us about two more you saw shot. Now, how many more do you know were shot under you leadership? special episode which impressed me. Then comes the period of time from the end of August until October where the command of the commando was taken over by somebody else, and I am not at all certain about the figure of those shot, and I am not sure how many were shot on my responsibility during that time. For the following time since I was only in command of a part of the commando I knew more about it.

Q You told us abour having seen two people shot. Then we asked you just before recess if you know of any others that were shot. I asked you if they were the only two that you knew that were actually done to death by your commando, and you said, "Oh, no, there were many killed in partisan actions." How many were killed in partisan actions?

A That figure I cannot recollect any more. I can estimate that, but this estimate might be roughly between 100 and 200. two hundred partisans, is that right?

A No, your Honor, I did. not give orders for this. These shootings were carried out with the participation of a part of my commando, and I go so far as to say under my responsibility.

I assume responsibility for this, but I did not give orders for this. to 200, is that what you are telling us? Wehrmacht, those persons who were caught as active partisans, were shot.

Q All right. Now, did you order the killing?

A No. I was far away.

Q. Who ordered the killings? Wehrmacht officer in Nikopol who set the whole thing going.

Q Did you have anything to do with it at all?

Q What did you have to do with it now? actively took part in these actions and in the shootings.

Q Were you present when these partisans were shot?

Q All right. Now, up to the present moment we have the tally that you actucally saw two people shot, you know of 94 others who were shot, and then you know of from 100 to 200 partisans who were shot, so let's say 150. That is 244 people that you know were shot by your command in all the time you were in Russia, is that correct? period in September and therefore I cannot give an estimate.

Q Then there were more than 244. I have only counted up to this point. There were at least 244 killed by your commando?

A. Yes, your Honor.

Q. Yes, all right.

A. Even more were shot.

Q. All right, now how many were shot? Now we are getting some place.

A. About that, even if I most carefully search my conscience I cannot arrive at any figure.

Q. well, you couldn't arrive at any figure no matter how much you scrutinized your conscience just before lunch. You didn't remember any figure. But now after a little bit of nourishment you are apparently able to extract from this elusive conscience which apparently does not answer too quickly to the demands of your brain, that 244 were Killed. Now, let's see if you cannot scrutinize a little more thoroughly.

A. No, your Honor, I have scrutinized my conscience so thoroughly, and my former testimony that I gave about this .......

Q. All right, we want to make certain you stand at the figure of 244. That is the most you know of that were Killed by your commando during the nine months you were in Russia, is that right?

A. No,"this is not the most. The total figure I simply cannot determine however hard I try.

Q. Tell us how many people in all you saw killed while you were in Russia, that you with your own eyes saw killed.

A. I already told you.

Q. How many.

A. The two where I was present.

Q. In all the time that you were in Russia, in the very midst of one of the most sanguinary wars of all times, in the field for nine months, you only saw two people Killed?

A. Yes, and this can only be explained and can only be appreciated in connection with the special conditions under which I was active in Russia. It cannot be separated or simply be judged somehow in a vacuum, but until October, I was in reserve - -

Q. But you have given us that. Now, how many Jews did you Kill while you were in Russia?

A. I cannot give a figure, because, as I already said in some cases of the shootings, the figure of the Jews participating was never found out and never reported to me.

Q. How many Jews did your commando kill?

A. Your Honor, I can only give the Same reply to this.

Q. Did they kill any because they were Jews?

A. NO. A more anti-Jewish action was not carried out by my commando.

Q. Did your commando at any time Kill any Jews under the Fuehrer Order?

A. No. That did not correspond with my attitude to the Fuehrer Order, and it did not happen.

Q. You know that Einsatzgruppe D Killed 90,000 people during the time it was in action in Russia. How do you explain the fact that your commando did not contribute any to that 90,000?

A. I can explain this by the fact that, first of all, the figure of 90,000 in my opinion, as far as I have heard from others and what I got to Know, is a figure which I simply cannot imagine.

Q. Well, don't let us talk about your imagination now. we are talking about -- do you think it was about one-half of the figure -- 45,000?

A. I cannot say this any more, than I can give the total figure of the shooting taken place under my responsibility.

Q. You just said you can't imagine 90,000, how many can you imagine?

A. I cannot imagine this at all.

Q. Can you not imagine the 90,000?

A. I can imagine a figure, but I cannot imagine this because I do not Know the circumstances - -

Q. Well, now, Witness, can you not tell us you weren't present you were in Russia?

A. For example, I was four to five hundred Kilometers away from the Crimea.

Anything that happened in the Crimea, I cannot imagine at all. figure? doubted this figure and have questioned this figure, and because I have heard of individual events at the time, that there were different figures.

Q Do you know Ohlendorf?

Q You served with him in the field, didn't you? of credence? he gave before the International Military Tribunal. He is questioned by Colonel Amen: "Do you Know how many persons were liquidated by Einsatzgruppe D under your direction?" Answer: Ohlendorf, "In the year between June 1941 to June 1942, the Einsatzkommandos reported 90,000 people liquidated," Question, "Did that include men, women and children?" Answer, "Yes." Do you still question the figure? not want to establish such a figure, and he does not -- I am sure he cannot think this possible or probable.

Q Do you Know what Ohlendorf is thinking about? other people, but have great difficulty in finding anything in your own conscience. How many people were killed by the Einsatzgruppe D during the time they were in Russia, since you challenge these figures?

cannot give a definite figure on this either. has been far more fortright than you have been from the witness stand. We might as well add that gratuitously. Why did you take the six or seven thousand Jewish People across the Dnjestr River? given an order to do so. by taking them back to Rumania? about it. them back to Rumania? wanted to go home, I could assume that the Jews were satisfied that they were allowed to go home.

Q Didn't you know that they were going to be shot when they got back to Rumania?

Q You assumed that, didn't you? Now, tell us whether you confirm what you said yesterday afternoon, "I assume that the Rumanians wanted to get rid of them and send them into the German territory so that we would have to shoot them and we would have the trouble of shooting them. We didn't want to do the work for the Rumanians."

Did you answer that yesterday in answer to Mr. Walton's question? back to their death didn't you? and I did not want to express that in my testimony yesterday. outside of this lending them across the river?

Q Did you ever arrest a Jew? which were taken, I believe that there were Jews among the people.

Q Did you ever arrest a Jew because he was a Jew?

Q Not even when you were in the Gestapo? already.

Q Did you arrest a Jew as a member of the Gestapo?

Q Well, you did then, how many?

A I don't know any longer.

Q Well, was it 500? they were Jews, I did not arrest any Jews while I was in the State Police, at least not without reason. you were in the Gestapo?

Q How many?

A That was not an order. The order was the one ..... a Jew when you were in the Gestapo? received once.

Q Yes. Now, tell us about that case. November 1938. At the time I was in Munich at a meeting.

Q Well, we don't want too much of it in detail. You arrested a Jew out of the incidents that occurred on November 9 and 10. What did you do with that Jew?

A No, that is not correct your Honor. In Graz and in Styria, the Reichsstatthalter who was present there stopped this action right at the start, and it saved me the trouble of carrying out this order.

Q Then you didn't arrest this Jew? did you not follow out this order to arrest a Jew?

Q All right, when did you join the SD? time you never Killed a Jew, you never arrested a Jew, is that right? war, my activity in the State police. were with the SS, did you ever kill a Jew in your whole life?

Q Did you ever arrest a Jew in your whole life?

arrested a Jew. Now, which answer are we supposed to believe -- did you arrest a Jew, or did you not arrest a Jew? arrested. and you finally were able, after great searching of your conscience, to say that you once received an order to arrest a Jew and then you didn't even execute that order. Now, you tell us that you did arrest some Jews. Now, how many Jews did you arrest in all your life?

Q Well, was it 100? which took place and I cannot possibly remember all those episodes.

Q How many Jews did you arrest in ell your life?

Q 25? the whole time while I worked in the Security Police, I did not carry out.

Q. Did you ever have any individual arrests? Let's leave aside mass arrests -- individual arrests?

A. They also occurred.

Q. How many -- how many Jews did you arrest individually?

A. Your Honor, in view of the numerous State Police events throughout those years, I cannot recollect this at all.

Q. You remembered this one single solitary episode of the order which you received and went into great detail as to why it wasn't necessary to execute it, but yet you cannot remember how many you actually arrested?

A. Your Honor, this one case was a special event.

Q. All right, now you have told us that. Now, answer this question, how many Jews in all your life did you arrest?

A. I cannot possible give that figure.

Q. Would you say it was 50?

A. Your Honor, any figure is wrong.

Q. Would you say it was 5?

A. Your Honor, my testimony will not become any more concrete if I also have to refuse to answer this question.

Q. Did you ever molest a Jew?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever beat a Jew?

A. Never, your Honor.

Q. Did you ever take away his property?

A. No, your Honor.

Q. In all the time that you were in Russia, did you ever execute the Fuehrer Order insofar as it pertained to Jews?

A. No, I evaded it.

Q. Well, why did you go to so much trouble yesterday and on Thursday in telling us how heartbroken, how conscience-stricken, how morally depressed you were because of Fuehrer Order -- you never executed it?

A. Because I was worried and because I was afraid to be put into a situation, where I would have had to carry out this order, where I could not have evaded this order.

Q. When you took the witness stand you immediately began your testimony with the expression of the great shock which you experienced when receiving this Fuehrer Order. Now, if you never killed a Jew, doesn't it occur to you that it would have been far more logical to begin your testimony by saying, "I never killed a Jew, never arrested a Jew, never molested a Jew, so therefore the Fuehrer Order in no way affected me", might that have been a little more logical?

A. Your Honor, the testimony which I make here under oath in the witness stand I did not make from a point of view of logic, but only according to my conscience.

Q. Do you find a great difference between logic and conscience?

A. Between mind and feelings and that what I consider conscience, there is a difference.

Q. Are you adjusting your answers according to the reports which you have studied or according to your memory of the events as they occurred?

A. I make them according to my conscience.

Q. Do you believe in the Nazi ideology?

A. That question would have to be replied to in a different way now, than it would have been replied to formerly.

Q. Well, did you believe in it then -- I don't mean now -- all the time that you were the uniform -- did you believe in the SS?

A. Only for some parts of it, not the entire Nazi ideology.

Q. Did you take the oath to Hitler?

A. Yes,

Q. Did you hear his speeches -- some of them?

A. Several, certainly.

Q. Did you read the Nazi Party program?

A. If I must also scrutinize my conscience, in this respect -- no.

Q. Did you read "Mein Kampf"?

A. Certainly not.

Q. Did you associate with other Nazi members?

A. I was bound to.

Q. Well, then you knew generally what the policy of the Nazi Party was with regard to Jews?

A. In general, yes.

Q. Yes. And did you agree with that policy?

A. No, or only with part of it, Q. which part did you agree with?

A. In fact, I had no objections -- no important objections to the fact that the Jews before the War be limited to a proportion in accordance with their number and could only have an influence in accordance with this proportion.

Q. That is the extent to which you agreed with the Nazi program insofar as it pertained to Jews?

A. I can confirm this even more because I talked to Jews myself, who also held this opinion.

Q. Well, now, I am just -

A. Who themselves had that opinion.

Q. Yes. Did you believe that they should wear signs on their breasts and on their backs pointing out to the world that they were Jews?

A. Those things I consider unworthy.

Q. Did you believe that they should be disfranchised and deprived of citizenship, no matter how long they had lived in Germany?

A. They were not deprived of their citizen rights, they continued to be citizens even after the Nuernberg laws.

Q. Did you believe that their property should be taken from them?

A. No

Q. Did you believe they should be sent to concentration camps?

A. No definitely not.

Q. Did you believe that they should be put into ghettos?

A. No.

Q. Did you believe that they should be made to work without pay?

A. No.

Q. Did you believe that they should be publicly humiliated and degraded?

A. No

Q. Why then did you remain a member of organization which did these things?

A. All these things, your Honor, which mentioned here are events which developed at a later time.

Q. When did they develop?

A. The most important things which you mentioned here occurred only after the beginning of the war when I was under military law and had no choice but was forced.

Q. You said that none of these things happened before 1939 -- September 1, 1939?

A. I said expressly, your Honor, a few of them, and those which occurred before the war could not give me the impression that they were such as to oblige me to leave my organization already at that time.

Q. November 10, 1938 is chronologically prior to September 1, 1939, isn't it?

A. Your Honor -

Q. Please answer that question.

A. That is right.

Q. Yes. And you knew of your own personal knowledge of the excesses against the Jews on those two disgraceful days, November 10 and 11 -- you knew of your own personal Knowledge, didn't you, of what happened?

A. I heard about it.

Q. Yes. Did you leave the SS after you heard of these excesses?

A. No, your Honor, I did not leave it because these excesses had nothing to do with my organization.

Q. You Knew that the synagogues were being destroyed, didn't you?

A. I heard about it, and I was just as disgusted about these matters.

Q. And you Knew that Jews were being sent to concentration camps prior to September 1939, didn't you?

A. No, your Honor.

Q. You didn't know that?

A. I only heard of it, and according to what I heard of the events of the 9th and 10th, only the following happened: at the order of Heydrich the Jews were arrested and were released again some weeks later. This was a measure to which Heydrich felt himself compelled and, which was not his original intention. This was merely done in order to stop those wild actions which Goebbels organized. That is what the Reichstatthalter told me, and from those who disapproved of this in the highest circles, I did not get the impression that this was the intention of the state and of the responsible persons.

Q. Nonetheless, you Know that Heydrich issued an order to arrest Jews, especially the rich ones, and to take them into protective custody, and you Know that he issued orders that the police were not to in any way interfere with any violence against Jews and Jewish property, you Knew about that didn't you?

A. The order did not read like that, your Honor. The order read, the Jews and in particular the rich Jews, were to be arrested and this was done in particular during the wild actions which were initiated by the SA and through Goebbels in order to take these persons into protective custody, to really protect them so that no excesses would occur which necessarily according to Goebbels orders would affect the rich Jews.

Q. Then we conclude from what you said that you approved of Heydrich's order of November 10, 1938 you approved of that order:

A. I did not approve of this order, but I considered that this order could be explained.

Q. You were defending Heydrich's order. Now we ask you, did you approve of it, or did you not?

A. If I considered Heydrich's order understandable insofar, I still did not approve of it, but I can imagine that in this forced situation Heydrich hardly had any other way out to legalize these violent excesses.

Q. Then you did not approve of what he did, is that right?

A. On a whole, I did not agree to it.

Q. But you still remained with the SS?

A. I remained because those were no measures which my organization had started at all, and I could not make my organization responsible for what Heydrich might have done in a state of compulsion, and I could not consider them to be the cause for having increased the severity of the Jewish Question. I am convinced that without those violent actions Heydrich on his own would never have given such an order at that time.

Q. I will read to you from the decision of the International Military Tribunal, "In the early morning of November 10, 1938, Heydrich sent a telegram to all offices of the Gestapo and SD giving instructions for the organization of the programs of that date and instructing them to arrest as many Jews as the prison could hold, especially rich ones, but to be careful that those arrested were healthy and not too old." Did you approve of that action?

A. Your Honor, what is contained in this IMT judgement I did not know, I only knew Heydrich's original order, and since this original order in my territory and from that Reichstatthalter in Styria was considered as being settled, because no violent actions had occurred in my territory, I had no reason to disapprove.

Q. We asked you only simply whether you approved of the order or not.

Do you defend Heydrich's order or not?

A. I was horrified about this order, but after I heard the reasons, why this order had been given by Heydrich, I could not consider this order quite as dangerous, because Heydrich did not originally initiate this order, but was forced to carry out such a measure of arrest.

Q. Then we come to the conclusion that originally it horrified you, but after inquiry you were satisfied that it was an order dictated by necessity -- do we correctly interpret your view?

& 19 Court 2, Case 9

A. It was not a measure originally intended by Heydrich, and when I realized that, I could not condemn Heydrich as much, if I may say so new - because he would not have done it ----

Q. Very well. Now you are just repeating what you said before, so that we will conclude from whit you say you could not condemn Heydrich. How we ask you if you condemned the events which followed the Heydrich orders?

A. In my territory nothing happened, and since I thought it was similar in other territories, I thought that with reasonable consideration of all the events this measure would not be carried out to its full extent.

Q. You know from the newspapers and from your conversations with your associates what actually happened on those two days, don't you? You know of the violent excesses?

A. In the newspapers in consideration of the foreign countries no details were mentioned about these events, at least not in our newspaper in the Reich, and when weeks later I managed to talk to so someone or other, these people were able to inform me that in their territories, too, this action had been carried out in such a manner that the Jews, some of whom had been arrested, were already released and that, therefore, the entire action which Goebbels had started, through interference of the Security Police had been done away with.

Q. Well, did you know that some of those Jews had been sent to concentration camps?

A. I did not hear anything about that.

Q. So you were telling this Tribunal that in all that time you were in the Gestapo you never heard of any Jews being sent to concentration camps because they were Jews?

A. Of course. Your Honor, only now I thought to speak about this question in connection with 9 November.

&19 Court 2, Case 9

Q. Well, let us make it very specific. Prior to September 1, 1939, were any Jews sent to concentration camps because they were Jews?

A. Through my Police Security activity there were not, and I do not assume that it happened owing to the Security Police activity of other state police chiefs.

Q. Well, then you tell us that so far as you knew prior to September 1, 1939, no Jews were sent to concentration camps because they were Jews?

A. Hot through my Police Security work. Yes, I confirm that.

Q. So far as you know generally, not only your own particular district but in all of Germany, no Fews were sent to concentration camps because they were Jews?

A. Basic instructions to arrest any Jews only because they were Jews-----

Q. Don't tell me what the basic instructions were. Please answer the question. Did you of your own personal knowledge know that any Jews were sent to concentration camps prior to September 1, 1939, because they were Jews?

A. No.

Q. Did you know of any Jews being sent to concentration camps after September 1, 1939, because they were Jews?

Q. Did you have a hand in sending any to concentration camps?

A. No.

Q. Why were they sent to concentration camps after September 1, 1939?

A. I cannot imagine this either, because I was not doing that kind of work which was concerned with this problem.

Q. Did you disapprove of that?

A. Yes, I disapproved of it.

Q. Very well. Now when you heard this speech by Heydrich and Streckenbach that you were to go into Russia and liquidate Jews, did you believe that that was a necessary development of the antiSemitic program of the Nazi Party?

A. No.

Q. You said that Streckenbach indicated that the Eastern Jews were the most important bearers of Bolshevism and that the main purpose of the German forces was to destroy Bolshevism. Did you agree with that proposition?

A. I did not agree with the extermination of the Eastern Jews without making any distinctions.

Q. Did you believe that the Jews were a threat to the Reich?

A. I could not judge that, and I doubted it.

Q. You did not believe that they were a threat to the Reich?

A. I could not judge it; I could not realize it.

Q. Did you believe in Hitler?

A. In general I believed that he wanted the best for the German people.

Q. When you made your speech to the men, did you tell them about the Fuehrer Order?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell them about your orders in Russia, what you were to do?

A. No. I only spoke general words, about discipline ---

Q. Here you are, the commanding officer of an organization of a military organization in the field, and you make a speech to them and you don't tell them what their instructions are?

A. Mr. President, the circumstances in this connection did not make this possible. he men had been lined up in the street, German speaking people were standing around, and, therefore, I could not possibly tell the men about one of the most secret orders.

Q. Well, did you tell them privately then?

A. Of course. I was stationed together with the staff of the Einsatzgruppen in several garrisons at first.

Q. Did you tell your men of Einsatzkommando 12 about the Fuehere order?

A. I had to because the officers would have addressed me concerning this; what is going on here, whether I didn't know anything about that. Of course I had to tell them ---

Q. Very well. Now you told then about the Fuehrer order which called for the liquidation of Jews, gypsies, Communists functionaries and certain Asiatic or social inferiors. Did you after you spoke to them of the order then say, "Now, I don't want you to obey this order because I do not agree with it?"

Did you add that?

A. Your Honor, such an order I could not give, and I did not give.

Q. So then the Tribunal may draw from what you have just said that you passed on this order to your man who took orders from you, and you did not add any veto or prohibition to the execution of the order, is that correct?

A. I arranged it in such a manner that those men were in my hands and depended on me.

Q. Well, very often it happened as you testified here that your kommando was far away from you and you couldn't reach them. You couldn't reach them by physical contact; you couldn't reach them by communication. Couldn't they then have been executing the order, the Fuehrer order, to kill the Jews?

A. Your Honor, if you describe that situation and consider that period, - there were the following circumstances of which I was able to tell the men because they were orders of the Einsatzgruppen chief or generally known.--

Q. Well, then now, do you tell us that you instructed them not to obey the Fuehrer order? Is that what you tell us now?

A. For a certain period, yes, insofar as they were in a foreign territory where they had to know that the Fuehrer order was not to be carried out in foreign territory and not on the flat land.

Q. On the flat land? But they could kill them up in the high lands? Is that you want to tell us?

A. Your loner, the expression flat land means for us the village previously by other witnesses.

Q. Let us be precise about this. I asked you if you passed on the Fuehrer order to kill Jews and others, You said that you did not do it in this public speech because there were German-speaking people about and this was a secret order. You added, however, you told the men privately that they had to execute this Fuehrer order. Then I asked you if you added to that instruction that although they heard the order, they were not to obey it. You said, "No." I asked you then if it wouldn't be proper to draw from what you had said that you had passed on an order and had never in any way vetoed it, and, therefore, it was being executed by your men. Then you said, "Well, but I had immediate contact with the men." Then we called your attention that you had testified that these men. were often so far away from you that you couldn't control them. New that brings it up to date. were not to obey the Fuehrer order?

A. No. Your Honor, but I told them that they had to obey my orders and were only to do what I told them and when. For example -

Q. And what you told them was to obey the Fuehrer order. That is what you had told them, wasn't it?

A. To obey my orders.

Q. And what were your orders?

A. My orders were - for example, when they were carrying out the harvesting action there was the order from the Einsatzgruppen chief which was generally valid that in the flat land, in the rural district, the Fuehrer order was not to be carried out. The order was that in foreign territory the Fuehrer order also was not to be applied. I could tell them that because it was a well-known order from the Einsatzgruppen chief -

Q. Then you changed your statement which you made just a moment ago that you never told the men not to obey the Fuehrer order? You changed the statement which you made just a moment ago that you had vetoed the order? Do you change that?

A. No. Your Honor, I do not change it. I see no contradiction.

Q. You see no contradiction from your very direct statement that you never vetoed the Order and your statement that you told the men not to obey it? You see no contradiction in that? Suppose you think it over during the fifteen minutes, and then tell us after the recess whether there is any contradiction in those two statements.

( A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: This Tribunal is again in session.

DR. RATZ: Dr. Ratz for the defendant von Radetzky. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant von Radetzky be excused from tommorows' session, Wednesday, so that I can prepare his defense.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant von Radetzky will be excused from attendance in court tomorrow so that he may prepare his defense. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Witness, in answering several questions, put to you by Mr. Walton on the number of executions performed by Einsatzgruppe D, it was indicated on page 20 of Document Book II-D, that the total figure of executions was 54,000. Then later on in Document Book II-D, page 28, the total figure of executions performed by Einsatzgruppe-D was 75,881, and, you confirmed that Einsatzcommando XII contributed whatever number the figures would show towards this total of 75, 881; that Einsatzcommando XII was included in the commandos was included in the commandos whose activities had brought about a total of 75,881 executions up to the time indicated, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now why did you make such a distinction between this total figure of 75,881 and the 90,000 indicated by the defendant Ohlendorf, which covers a much larger period. Why do you distinguish between 75,000 and 90,000 a matter of 15,000?

A. Your Honor, when I commented on this and gave my explanation for this, I wanted and could only say that in the total figures of the Einsatzgruppe-D my numbers were necessarily included, that they just happened to be included in the figure 54,000, or 70,000, I didn't mean to express.

Q. Well, the figure 75,881 is a figure taken from an official report, that is correct, isn't it?

A. Yes, but I can not say anything about how this report was drawn up and about the correctness of this figure. I never knew of it before, and I find out from the document here without knowing anything about it.

Q. In the same document book, on page 52, there is a reference made to 5,000 Jews rounded up in each town by Einsatzgruppe-D, after a statement that 13,000 odd Jews and Communists had been executed. I ask you, how many Jews you rounded up during the period that you were in Russia?

A. Your Honor, that is the gist of my testimony that I was not in a position to go to any city but Nikolzjew, in which such measures would have been necessary; I must go further and say, I never got into any city at all.

Q. Did you round up any Jews during all the time that you were in Russia?

A. No, I had no special opportunity.

Q. All right. Now, let's sum up the situation: You shot no Jews, you arrested no Jews, you rounded up no Jews, is right?

A. Yes.

Q. The only contact you ever had with the Jews was when you led six or seven-thousand of them across the river?

A. In this connection, yes. In connection with the general Security Police measures, no.

Q. Well, what did you have to do with the Jews?

A. If Jews were among those people against whom I had to carry out some investigation , or measures to be taken, they were arrested along with the others, but I already said they were arrested as suspect to have committed something , not because they were Jews.

Q. Neither did you when you were in the Gestapo, nor the time that you were in the Security Police, you never arrested a man because he was a Jew; you never maltreated him because he was a Jew. You never subjected him to any discomfort because he was a Jew, is that correct?

A. Until the time of the war, absolutely.

Q. Well, what about after the war, or the starting of it?

A. After the war began I was no longer in a State Police executive function,until I took over the office in Duesseldorf.

Q. The statement is correct, that during your whole life, we will make it broader than what was said before, you never killed a Jew, you never ordered the death of a Jew, you never ordered the arrest of a Jew, you never maltreated a Jew, you never in any way caused discomfort inconveneince or a heartache to a Jew because he was a Jew, is that right?

A. Not just because he was a Jew, but at the time at Duesseldorf, it is possible that on the basis of special instructions several arrests were made.

Q. That is the time of the half-Jew incident?

A. it is the time, I whole time I was active in Duesseldorf.

Q. Are you referring to the episode of the half-Jew, which you described heretofore?

A. This appertains to that time.

Q. Yes, are you referring to this half-Jew that you arrested?

A. No. when sometime or other some special occasion existed, which I can not remember, I only want to reconcile them with my conscience, and I didn't want to absolutely exclude it for this time.

Q. Do you admit that you never arrested a whole Jew, but you may have arrested a half-Jew? You will grant us that much. In all you life you may have arrested half a Jew, is that whet it comes down to now? Is that the concession you are making, that you admit having arrested half a Jew?

A. Not only because he was a half-Jew.

Q. Well, then, you never arrested the one-half of his body; you didn't arrest the one-half which was Jewish but you did arrest the other half which was not Jewish, is that what you are telling us now?

A. Your Honor, I can not find an answer to give to this.

Q. Well, listen witness. You must admit that it is pretty difficult to accept the fact that a member of the SS, a member on the Gestapo, a member of the SD, of the SP, of the Einsatzgruppe, or the Nazi Party, who "heiled Hitler" for twelve years, who knew of the constant, very progressive campaign against the Jew, you must admit it is a little difficult to assume when a man tells us that in all these years he never once laid a rough hand on a Jew, you will admit that is a little extraordinary, don't you?

You admit that is a little unusual?

A. Only a man can understand it who knew the conditions. That in our Security Police Mission, at that time I didn't get any special Jewish orders besides the one I have mentioned, and, I personally and in my attitude had no cause just to be rough simply because they were Jews.

Q.Well, how do you explain, witness, that the chief of your organization in the field had admitted that the report showed that 90,000 were executed by all the commandos in that group. If you don't want to accept the 90,000, take a figure less than that. Let's take one-half. Let's say that 45,000 were executed. How do you explain that although your commando was one of the five in the group, that it could have avoided, and did avoid the killing of one, single, solitary Jew, when your orders were specifically to kill Jews?

A. Your Honor, this can be explained by the following: First of all this figure which you assume to be 45,000 in this case does not at all include the number who were shot merely as Jews. I am con inced that I can say from the report that a very large part of these executions happened as the result of the special order. The number, 90,000, which is given here as a total are not executions, just on the basis of the Fuehrer Order, but the numerous executions of Partisans, sabotuers or sabotage cases, and other cases, which take up a large part in this figure, and, my personal assignment, I would say, the good forture i and my commander had in that assignment brought with it the fact that until October I had no chance to apply the Hitler Order, because I was not assigned in a city where measures were carried out, because I was in a foreign territory in which the Hitler Order did not need to be applied, and in the following time, from November on, I was active in a territory far away from the group, with a small remainder, and in a Steppe area where no Jewish question had to be solved, and I on the basis of my attitude did not look for any opportunity to arrest any one.

Q. There were no Jews in the Steppe area?

A. I think a documentary source of material about Jewish settlements will show that in this sparsely settled area there was hardly any Jewish population, and, if so, one would have had to look for them individually, and this special searching I did not conscientiously engage in.

Q. Then you have had nothing to do with whole Jews, half-Jews, or Steppe-Jews?

A. Your Honor, this is a distinction which I .....

Q. Witness, do you admit that any Jews were killed by Einsatzgruppe-D in Russia in accordance with the Fuehrer Order?

A. Yes.

Q. And you put the blame on the other commandos, that Einsatzcommando XII never executed any Jews?

A. I don't put the blame on the other Einsatzcommandos, but it was unfortunate for other Einsatz-commandos to be put in a situation where they had to carry it out. If I had come to the Crimea, for example, then I probably would have had to carry out the Order, and not to have evaded it, as I was able to do here.

Q. All right. Now, you would have carried out the Order, if you had found some Jews?

A. If I had received the Order, and could not have evaded the Order any longer in any other manner, in other words, if the final consequence would have compelled me to be shot myself, then I would have carried out the Order.

You need not indulge in that supposition, you did receive the order, didn't you?

Q Yes, you had the Fuehrer order. And let's suppose that you were confronted with five-hundred Jews, and you had this Fuehrer Order in your hands, would you execute them? have been in a position to reprimand me for disobeying the Hitler Order, and had stressed it, then probably I would have done it.

Q You would have killed the five-hundred Jews? probably.

Q If the chief had told you, if you don't do this you would have been reprimanded, then you would have killed the Jews? would then have to suffer the consequences of my own shooting, I probably would have obeyed the Order. gave to your commando. First, you made a speech to them, and in your speech you told them to obey orders, that is correct, isn't it? pline, and to their obedience towards me.

Q Yes, "obedience to me" meant obedience to orders?

Q Very well. You have answered that. Then later on you told them privately about the Fuehrer Order? didn't want to keep this from all of them; I told them about this Fuehrer Order, and I told them to obey my orders, that is, to do what I told them to do.

Q Did you tell them not to obey the Fuehrer Order?

A I didn't tell them not to carry out the Fuehrer Order for all time but to follow my directives, and one of my instructions which I gave them for the first time was the basis directive that in the rural districts the Fuehrer Order was not applicable. The officers were satisfied, I think, that they did not need to do such work, as they really were not ambitious to do it, and when they learned they didn't have to carry it out, I had to just send them off without any worry. That was at the time before the territory was declared to be under Roumanian sovereignity. Fuehrer Order? passed by the Einsatzgruppe chief in agreement with the Army, and this applied of course also to my commando.

Q That no Jews were to be killed in the rural districts?

Q What regulation was that? had given, and which he mentioned at various times on the witness stand, and where he added that Himmler in October 1941 no longer wanted such consideration for the Army.

Q Then you didn't in any way modify the Fuehrer Order, sofar as you were concerned; the Fuehrer Order still remained; you merely passed a limitation which Ohlendorf had submitted, that is right, isn't it? outside of the rural districts? away from you, where you could not control them, they could execute Jews?

my commando. in a city to carry out such measures there. command, or some members of your command, or some entire commando executed Jews because they were Jews? vinced that the men for whom the execution of such terrible measures was unpleasant would not have gone on their own part to carry out something which I, or the Einsatzgruppe chief had liberated them from.

Q But you didn't liberate them from it in the cities?

A I didn't get into any city.

Q How about your own men when they were away from you. You told us they were away so far from you that you could not control their actions? German territory, that it is the Roumanian Sovereign territory, and for this time the same exception is valid which has been mentioned in another connection before, namely, that we refused in this foreign territory to apply the Fuehrer Order, that is valid for Odessa and for other cases, and this was always expressly emphasized for those areas, that if they were foreign areas it was an exception, the Fuehrer Order was not to be carried out and I was glad that I was in a position to move into an area where this exception of not applying the Fuehrer Order was valid. If this had not been the case, it would have been my misfortune, and I would not have been spared this thing, namely, what the commandos on the march with the troops had to do. would have killed Jews, too, just as the other commando-leaders did?

said, if the final consequences would have been valid for me, yes, I would have had to do it.

9 Dec 1947_A_MSD_22_1_Gross (Lea) orders you would have killed the 500 Jews? myself or to have to let the other die then I would have preferred not to die myself because with my death I could not have prevented the result for in my stead an other man would have been ordered to take my place and to carry out the order. to decide between the death of 500 innocent people and yourself?

A Well I was spared that situation. I cannot quite imagine it. it. Now, you are before 500 innocent people, men, women, and children Jews - and you are presented with this order to kill them. Now, are you going to confer with your conscience and if so what is going to be your conclusion?

Q And you would have killed them?

Q Yes. All right, that's all. You may continue with the examination, Dr. Hoffmann, if you have any further questions to put to him.

Just one other thing. Referring to these figures, Dr. Hoffmann, which you presented to me the witness had stated with all the emphasis which he could summon to his words that every committment to a concentration camp via the Gestapo was approved by Heydrich, not only approved, that he reviewed the case and then later by Kaltenbrunner. I ask you, witness, if you still stand on that statement? to the War when I was the director of a State Police office I personally never saw it any differently than that an order to commit someone into a concentration camp was only signed by the Chief of the State Police Heydrich. I confirm this expressly and I know it from so many comrades 9 Dec 1947_A_22_2_Gross (Lea) who were also active at that time and that it was not different with them either.

reviewed every case of a committment to a concentration camp via the Gestapo. Do you confirm that statement? activity. I personally never experienced it differently and the Security Police had no different way of handling it. at least 25,000 prisoners in concentration camps you want to tell us that Heydrich had reviewed everyone of these cases? about 8 to 10,000 were political prisoners who for security police reasons were committed into concentration camps and I am convinced that in the same manner as I know it from my own police activity that these political prisoners of the Gestapo were only put in the concentration camps on the basis of the committment order which bore the signature of Heydrich or a facsimile stamp of it. self reviewed 8 to 10,000 cases of committments to concentration camps? custody referent told me he always went to Mueller or Heydrich with various cases and got the confirmation for these committments. common sense and observation that a busy man like Heydrich would not have the time to personally review 8 to 10,000 cases of people being sent to the concentration camps? Does that occur to you?

A. Your Honor, this thought does not occur to me because it corresponds to the truth and because I can confirm this by dozens of witnesses. I went to call any State Police officer into the witness stand and he must or will only confirm again and again what I know from my own experience. Therefore, I can make this explanation in my conscience.

you will and can call many witness we support you, that you know from your own knowledge that 8 to 10,000 cases of concentration camp committments were reviewed by Heydrich before the people were sent to a concentration camp committments were reviewed by Heydrich before the people were sent to a concentration camp. Now, we ask you how is it that you can remember with such vividness and with such emphasis this number that were sent to concentration camps via the Gestapo but you cannot remember how many people you ordered killed in Russia. I only heard this number of 8 to 10,900 only a short time ago and this was confirmed to me by someone. It was not a matter of what I know from my own experiences for from that time I cannot remember any number of people who were in concentration camps. I never knew such a number. I only knew those cases who were in the concentration camp from my district. Even for that I cannot give a definite number. a figure told to you by someone than your own experiences of sending someone to his death?

A Your Honor, this last mentioned figure _ I want to be quite frank _ I got to knew particularly from reading the record and I have convinced myself of it the last few days.

Q We ask you as the final question: how many people did you ordered killed in Russia? figure.

Q Very well, that's all.

Any re_direct examination, Dr. Hoffmann?

MR. HOFFMANN: May I just ask a few question, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Certainly by all means.

BY DR. HOFFMANN: when you refused to obey an order of the Higher SS and Police Leader didn't you at that time also have to fear that you would he punished by death under certain circumstances? Just answer yes or no. had taken if you had to shoot 500 innocent people or would rather have chosen death itself. Could you give the answer very clearly if you remember what you risked in Duesseldorf?

What do you think of this?

THE PRESIDENT: We don't quite catch the question, Dr. Hoffmann. while we are always very glad to have yes and no answers it doesn't seem this question admits that type of response. Perhaps you might amplify it a little more. It is not quite clear to the witness and it is not clear to the Tribunal either. BY DR. HOFFMANN: year 1944 he also risked hislife. Thereupon he said yes.

THE PRESIDENT: When you say also risked his life it suggests that he at one time did. It isn't apparent that he had from his own statement. He never saw Jews, never had contact with them, had the sweetest time imaginable and even in Russia didn't risk his life. BY DR. HOFFMANN: he did not obey an order of the Higher SS and Police leader?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes you can put that question.

BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q Thereupon he said yes. How I ask him whether he would answer the question which you, your Honor, asked him if on the one hand there were 500 innocent people and on the other hand he has to risk his life for them, whether in view of the fact that he acted differently in Duesseldorf, he would not have to review his answer once more.

as well as I experienced it in Dusseldorf. In Dusseldorf things happened one after the other. When I was confronted with the final decision, that is when the order was once more confirmed from Berlin only then I would have been confronted with a new situation. your life? though the order of the Higher SS and Police Leader would have been confirmed by Berlin, I could have had the half-Jews notified by confidence men and told them to disappear.

Q Witness, I don't want to know and I just want to know whether you saw a chance in Dusseldorf to escape with y ur life, yes or no?

Q But you don't dare to say that you would have refused an order if you would have had to count on certain death; you don't think you have such a strong character, yes or no?

DR HOFFMAN: I have no further questions. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Did you actually disobey the order at Dusseldorf?

Q Yes, and you are still alive?

Q So therefore it doesn't follow that because you disobey an order you are going to be killed right off the bat; that doesn't follow, does it, in the German Army?

500 innocent men, women and children, and you have the order to kill them, and you go to your chief, Ohlendorf, privately, and you say to him, "Chief, I really can't do this. I am a good soldier; I want to follow Hitler; I want to obey orders, but can't you help me in some way to evade this? I just don't have the conscience and the heart to do it." Now do you want to tell us that Ohlendorf wouldn't have lent a sympathetic ear and wouldn't have tried to assist you in some way? Now, answer that. the Fuehrer Order. ear, and would he have considered your case? Do you recognize him as that kind of a man, as a deliberating person, intelligent, comprehensive, and sympathetic to his comrades in the field? recognized for this order he would not have hesitated to draw the necessary conclusions from it as he saw them.

Q Well, that does not mean anything. You mean he would, have shot you right then and there? it would have been in the field, that is at the place, then he would have had to give the order to put me before court martial.

Q Oh, before a court martial, but he wouldn't have ordered you shot right then and there, would be?

DR. HOFFMANN: Then I have a few more question, Witness.

RE_DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. HOFFMANN:

Q What was your relationship to Ohlendorf?

A My relationship with Mr. Ohlendorf was colorless, we didn't know one another at all.....

Q Did you have any special liking for him? matter of conversation, his description and the way he was able to dramatize matters. President assumed it here, to bring this matter to him and to talk to him in this way, yes or no?

Q Why not? out the Hitler Order was known to me on his part.

Q Was Ohlendorf, therefore, uncomppromising? yes or no?

A No, I don't think so. BY THE PRESIDENT: across the river, wasn't it, to save these poor Jews, because otherwise he would have had to shoot them? He was considerate enough there, wasn't he? He didn't kill these 6,000, did he? that is if he comes to such a decision, then I, of course, welcome such a decision very much, but this, in my opinion, has nothing to do with it because this was a special case, according to his attitude.....

his mission in Russia, and he doesn't kill them. He tells you to make some arrangement to take them across the river, not to shoot them. Well, he was certainly considerate there, wasn't he, and if he would be considerate with 6,000 he would be considerate with 500, under some special circumstance, of course?

A No, your Honor, this was a very special case. Certainly Herr Ohlendorf did not seek to do things which went beyond the Hitler Order, that is to say, to give himself over to measures for others.

THE PRESIDENT; Do you have a question?

DR. KRUASE: Dr. Kruase as a representative for Dr. Riediger for the Defendant Haensch, your Honor. I take the liberty to ask a few more questions if you permit me to.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, certainly. BY DR. KRUASE: measures of which the witness spoke on the occasion of the escape of the Rumanian Logion Leader, Horia Sima. Witness, you stated yesterday that at the time you were threatened with disciplinary measures and that they threatened you even with execution. Who expressed this threat?

A First of all I want to correct this. They did not threaten me with disciplinary measures, but they threatened me with execution, and this was a spontaneous fit of rage on the part of the Reichsfuehrer which evolved from this circumstance.

Q Was this threat expressed, to you personally? was, was expressed to me by the chief of Office N. tween Reichsfuehrer Himmler and the Chief of Office IV in which this threat was expressed?

A One can say it that way, but I want to complete it. The Reichsfuehrer had already given instructions to Mueller.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment. As a matter of information what has this got to do with the Defendant Haensch?

DR. KRAUSE: The defendant Haensch at that time was the disciplinary expert in Office I, and I want to try to find out whether Office I, that is disciplinary agency, had anything to do with this case that might interest interest Herr-Haensch, or conclusions might be drawn against Herr Haensch, against whcih we want to defend ourselves.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, but you say with this case. It isn't clear just what--the escape of Horia Sima proceedings were initiated or at least threatened against Herr Nosske, which according to my information he described yesterday as disciplinary measures. If they were disciplinary measures these would have had to come before the disciplinary agency of Office I. I am curious to hoar information about this, whether such a proceeding was pending before Office I, namely the disciplinary agency of Office I.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if you think that is going to help you we want to hear it. It isn't too obvious just what you are driving at, but you may put a question.

DR. KRAUSE: I just have a few questions. We will find out immediately.

Q (By Dr. Krause) You say then, Witness, that thiswas a conservation between Himmler and Mueller, orat least you assume so. Did a formal disciplinary proceeding pend against you?

A No, not in this connection. Office I and the investigating officer had nothing at all to do with this. The reaction of the Reichfuehrer because of these consequences of this escape were directed against the allegedly guilty people, and it was ordered that Mueller in view of my person, or rather no directives had yet been received as far as my person was concerned. Still Mueller feared seriously that a similar fate threatened me and Geissler.

on the part of your superiors in Office IV, but no punitive proceeding? fuehrer too spontaneous.

DR. KRAUSE: Thank You. No further questions.

PRESIDENT: Any redirect, Dr. Hoffmann?

DR. HOFFMANN: No.

PRESIDENT: Any recross, Mr. Walton?

MR. WALTON: No.

PRESIDENT: Do I understand there is a witness available? Now, the witness, Nosske, will be returned to a defendants' box, and the witness will be brought in. Well, I thought that there was a witness waiting. Well, Nosske can be returned to the witness' dock, I understood that there was a witness waiting, and Dr. Gawlik had been sent for. Well, I am mistaken, Well, the defendant, Ott, will be taken to the witness stand. Didn't you say something, Mr. Walton, about a witness, and you wanted Dr. Gawlik to be here?

MR. WALTON: No, Your Honor, I said, there was a matter that I wanted to bring to the attention of the court, I would appreciate that he be here since this matter originated at a prior session of this court, and a decision was made, and I would like to present a matter to the court for ruling at this particular time. Now, if you think it will interfere with the process of the court, I shall be glad to come with Dr. Gawlik in your chambers.

PRESIDENT: I think it would be better.

JUDGE SPEIGHT: Witness, raise your right hand. Repeat the oath, "I swear by God, the Almighty and Omniscient, that I will speak the pure truth, and will withhold and add nothing".

(The witness repeated the oath).

JUDGE SPEIGHT: You may be seated.

DR. KOESSL: Koessl for Ott. Before starting the direct examination of Ott, I would like to ask the Tribunal one question which bothers several other defense counsel and myself. It is a matter of what time is given the defense on Christmas. We have several witnesses to visit, and some work to do, so it would be very nice if in some form we could make our arrangements and find out what the sessions will be for the court, therefore, I would kindly ask the Tribunal to make known how long the Christmas recess will last.

PRESIDENT: Do I understand, Dr. Koessl, that you would avail yourself of some of that time in connection with work having to do with the trial?

DR. KOESSL: Yes.

PRESIDENT: Yes. We will confer an that matter this evening and make an announcement tomorrow morning.

DR. KOESSL: Thank you. I ask that I may be permitted to start the direct examination of the defendant, Ott.

PRESIDENT: I wish you would, Dr. Koessl BY DR. KOESSL: were born.

A My name is Adolf Hermann ott; and I was born on the 29th of December 1904 in Waidhaus in the Oberpfalz province.

Q What profession did your father have?

Q From what conditions did your parents come?

MR. FERENCZ: May it please the Tribunal, in the case of almost every defendant we have begun with the history of his father. In order to save time, solely in order to save time, and because of the history of his father is completely irrelevant in this case, I request that the defense counsel submit an affidavit on anything concerned with the father of the defendant and immediately get down to the charges in this case.

PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is interested in having a little background on each defendant. The great trouble is though occasionally we go into a great deal of detail which really doesn't help us too much. Now, a few questions about his family life are in order, but if you are going to go into it too thoroughly, Dr. Koessl, or more than that is required, we would be very glad to have you make up an affidavit and submit it, and, of course, it will have the full consideration of the Tribunal.

DR. KOESSL: I just have a few questions, Your Honor, of a personal nature, and as fast as possible I shall come to speak about the activity of the defendant in the organization.

PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. KOESSL:

A My father comes from a business in the Rheinpfalz; my mother from an old farmer's family in the Oberpfalz.

Q Did you have any brothers or sisters?

A Yes, two. I had a brother twelve years older than myself who after being active 23 years abroad died in Mexico; and I have a sister who is married to an engineer.

Q Do you have a wife or children? was killed by an American grenade. My child is with my mother-in-law.

Q There is your home town? and I remained there.

Q What schools did you attend and where? stance.

Q Where did you pass your childhood?

Q What professional training did you have?

A It was my desire to become a farmer or a forester. My parents lived in modest circumstances, and my father demanded of me that, like my brother, I should become a merchant, and in the very difficult time that I should go abroad. My brother had already been in Mexico for 12 years where my uncle was commercial consul, and all my relatives on my father's side were for decades in the United States.

Q Where were you apprenticed? brother was studying 12 years before. I learned for two and a half years and remained as a correspondent and a bookkeeper in the same company. ment before coming to the SD? the same branch, and even though it became a victim to the bad economic situation or had to be reduced so much that the personnel almost all of it had to be dismissed, I was with one of my sport friends in a sporting goods house. On the first of January 1993, approximately, I became office manager of a barrel factory. Before that I was unemployed for about one year, but I refused to take any unemployment compensation, and in order not to be a burden to my parents, I managed to make a living on odd jobs.

Q Did you mention all your positions?

A No. In 1933 in the fall or in the spring of 1934 the German labor front put me in charge of an administrative office. During that time it was my duty to work for the Security Service-SD-Reichsfuehrer SS in an honorary capacity and I did so for one year. Then it was suggested by the sector in Munich as well as by the then SD Main Office that I go into the SD in full capacity.

Q What positions did you have in the SD from 1935 to 1945? in full capacity--full time, and then I negotiated with my gauleiter Court No. II, Case No. IX.

in Augsburg about my dismissal. It was approved and on the first of October 1935 I was taken into the SD on a full-time basis.

Q What positions did you hold in the SD? Lindau, Lake Constance, that is, in my home town. It included six other agencies in the Allgaeu Region which were honorary positions.

Q What positions did you hold after that? I was transferred to the sector Munich and there I was put in charge of Department III. atically. Hanover-Brunswick as a staff leader.

Q That was again in the SD?

A Yes. On the first of January 1938, that is, three and a half months later, I was transferred to Koenigsberg in Prussia as a staff leader of the SD Main sector Northeast.

Q Next position? took over the than SD sector Neustadt, on the Weinstrasse, that is, in the Rheinpfalz. Shortly after, I assumed this job, the former sector Saarbruecken was incorporated into this sector. From the year 1941 on PRESIDENT: Well, Dr. Koessl, suppose we begin with 1941 tomorrow morning?

DR. KOESSL: It is almost finished, Your Honor, and then tomorrow we can begin with something else.

PRESIDENT: Very well. All right.

DR. KOESSL: Thus you held this position until the end of the war?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: That was very simple. (Laughter in the dock).

Court No. II, Case No. IX.

DR. GICK: Dr. Gick for Strauch. Your Honor, after Nosske, the turn would be the defendant, Strauch. The defendant, Strauch, is still in the hospital and is tied down to his bed--is confined to his bed-therefore, I cannot call him to the witness stand. My application for separate trial has not yet been ruled on. I ask that the defendant, Strauch, be put at the bottom of the list for the time being.

PRESIDENT: Dr. Gick, we have now ordered a medical examination, and it is in the process of being accomplished at the present time. we expect by the end of the week to have a report on your client's condition. Naturally, we will not take him up until we get this report so that if the Tribunal does not dispose of your motion for a severence prior to the time that the defendant, Ott, has completed his case, we will then take up the case of Klingelhoefer.

DR. GICK: Thank you.

PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow at 9:30.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 10 December 1947, at 0930 hours.)

0930-1630, Justice Michael A. Musmanno, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America, and this Honorable Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, yesterday you addressed an inquiry to the Tribunal regarding the Christmas holiday season. The question arose during our deliberation on the subject whether the Tribunal should be in session on the Monday and Tuesday preceding Christmas, and we have come to this conclusion, that is if counsel desire to use the complete fortnight, the two-week period between December 22 and January 3 of the new year, that perhaps time would be gained, rather than lost by letting them have that fortnight complete and uninterrupted in their work of research and preparation for the final briefs and arguments, and so forth. all the Tribunals will recess on the 24th anyway, it has been thought reasonable to hold court on the preceding two Saturdays which would be December 13th and December 20th. Will it be agreeable to defense counsel generally to hold court these two Saturdays so that you can have the two days, Monday and Tuesday?

DR. KOESSL: Yes, I am convinced that the defense counsels would prefer that, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Very well, the Tribunal will announce that we will be in session all of this week, including Saturday, the 13th, and all of next week, including Saturday, Dec. 20th, and then the Tribunal will adjourn for the Christmas and New Year holidays and reconvene on 5 January 1948.

DR. KOESSL: I thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: And I trust that all defense counsel will really make use of that time in the preparation of document books, briefs, and even final argument. There is no reason why they should wait until the very completion of the testimony in order to prepare their summations, because we always have before us that barrier of the translation section, and we must get through that barrier, and the only way to get through is to have the documents ready in plenty of time so that there will not be any undue congestion at the termination of the case. Very well.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

DR. KOESSL: May I now continue with my direct examination?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

DR. KOESSL: My attention was drawn to the fact yesterday that in the translation one place was not quite correctly translated. The witness testified that on the 1st of October 1935, he became director of the SD sector Lindau, that in this capacity six people were under his direction, who, at various places, worked for the SD in an honorary capacity outside of their own jobs. These were not six big offices, but these were six people at various localities who worked for the SD outside of their own jobs.

THE PRESIDENT: Your statement will appear in the transcript and in that way bring about the necessary correction.

DR. KOESSL: Thank you. BY DR. KOESSL: your activity during the war. Will you please state once more where you were active during the war? sector in Neustadt an der Weinstrasse, that is in the Rhine Palatinate. Shortly after taking over this office the former SD sector of Saar bruecken was dissolved as such and was incorporated into my sector.

In July, 1941, I moved my headquarters from Neustadt to Saarbruecken. At the some time I took up quarters in Lorraine because there were no apartments in Saarbruecken.

Q Were you ever active in the criminal police?

Q What foreign assignments did you have?

He got in touch with my relatives on his own, and he sent off a certificate. In an accompanying letter to my mother of the 10th of April, 1947, he writes expressly that he is sending off the certificate without it being requested and that it concerns my conduct during the four years of work in Lorraine, and that it relates about my conduct. He is asking that this certificate be given to the British authorities. I was then in a British internment camp. After I heard from my mother about the certificate, a few weeks later I confirmed to him the receipt of this paper, and dated the 21st of June, 1947, he wrote me a letter to Nurnberg. May I quote two sentences from this lengthy letter? At one place he says: "Even I always said to my wife how Ott must be pretty well off as far as his conduct is concerned, because he helped wherever he could." At the end of his letter he says: "I hope that we will see you again with us. You are welcome and you don't have to fear anything." I am reading this in this bad German because he is writing in French. "All right, if you can go where you have spent four years within the National Socialist State. This is surely not permitted to all your colleagues."

Q I didn't quite grasp the connection between that phrase and the rest of the sentence. Just in which way was that phrase used - he said something about the four years, and then he used the "national socialist state".

A He writes as follows, "It is nice if you can go back to a place where you have spent four years in the national socialist state."

PRESIDENT: I see. He is referring to the past. Very well. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: He means the four years of the German occupation. This is the former French province Lorraine. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q How long were you director of the SD sector, Sarbruecken?

Q How did your transfer to Russia come about? RSHA in Berlin on duty. When I was there I went to see the chief of Office I, that was Gruppenfuehrer Streckenbach at that time, who used to be my superior, and I asked him to release me for the Waffen SS or the Army since I did not want to remain at home any longer. I didn't want to stay at home, while others were engaged in hard fights.

12 Dec 1947_M_MSD_3_2_Spears (Lea) In addition, because of my SD reporting, I had repeated severe disputes with Gauleiter and Reichcommissioner Buerckel. Streckenbach told me when I saw him that there was no prospect of releasing me for the Waffen SS or the army, but perhpas I might be employed in the Einsatz. He could make no promises, but he would speak about it to the other office chiefs and would notify me later on. officer of Sonder-Commando 7B? letter from the RSHA by mail. This special delivery letter was dated, Berlin, 24th of January 1942. letter, and this is the same letter which is referred to in Book IIIB, No. 4747, Exhibit 123, page 6. What did you know at that time about the missions of the Einsatzgruppe and the Einsatz and Sondercommandos and of the security police and SD in Russia? and Einsatzkommandos and Sondercommandos were in existence. At that time I had not met any comrade who was in Russia.

DR. KOESSL: One moment, this is on page 6 of this document.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, that does not correspond with our 6--do you know what page it is in the English Document Book?

DR. KOESSL: Unfortunately, I could not tell you.

THE PRESIDENT: What is the document number?

DR. KOESSL: Page 70 of the English Document Book.

PRESIDENT: Yes. Thank you very much. Proceed. BY IR. KOESSL: Russia, and the agencies at home did not get any reports from the Einsatz area through the RSHA. First of all, I thought of a similar activity as it existed in Norway or in other areas.

Q Pardon me, Dr. Koessl, did they have Einsatzgruppen in Norway? were subordinate.

Q I asked yet whether in Norway they had Einsatzgruppen?

THE PRESIDENT? Very well. Proceed. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q Where did you report in Berlin before leaving? morning of the 5th of February 1942 I arrived at the RSHA. I wanted to report to Streckenbach before leaving. I had waited about threequarters of an hour in the ante-room, and finally got to see Streckenbach. I had spoken to him about two minutes when the telephone rang. He was speaking in the telephone and asked me once more to wait in the anteroom. After a very short time, after two minutes, I was called back into Streckenbach's office and he told me that he would have to go to a Ministry immediately, it was a long distance, and I would not have to wait for him, and I should go to the next house. Prinz Albrecht Streot 9, where I was to see a Mr. Schrefeld who had the travel orders for Russia and the railroad ticket.

according to which all Jews were to be killed? either officially or privately, nor did I get any instructions about my activity in Russia. arrived there? depot at Warsaw, received a vehicle there, and left for Smolensk by vehicle. I arrived in Smolensk on the 15th of February 1942, and there I reported to the chief Einsatzgruppe B, the then SS Oberfuehrer Naumann, for duty.

Q How long did you stay in Smolensk, and for what purpose? days for my information. I was with the then SS Obersturmbannfuehrer Hennicke, who was the chief III there, and he acquainted me with the SD informational material in order to got a picture of the political, economic, and cultural structure of the Soviet Union. Furthermore, I reported to Chiefs I and II, where I acquainted myself with the headquarters of the commandoo its strength, its leader and the army to which the commando was attached. I also found out about accomodation, about signal equipment, et cetera.

Q What instructions did the chief of Einsatzgruppe B give you? explained to me the area and acquainted me with the second armored army, commanded by General Schmidt, to which the commando was attached. As my primary mission, Herr Neumann designated to me the roar security of this army together with an intensive partisan reconnaisance. He told me that the trouble the partisans were causing was increasing more and more lately and had become a vital danger in the army area. He also told me that a close corporation and exchange of the information was necessary with the army and the Ko-Rueck, that is short for commanding general of the rear army area.

Furthermore, he told me that I should got my instructions from Hennicke about Hennicle's special mission. That war an SD job entitled. "Research about the actual life in the Soviet Union". Finally, Oberfuehrer Neumann told me that the commissars and officers who had been with the commando thus far were to remain with me in the future because it is my first independent commando leadership and my first police job. Rausch, the commando fuehrer until then was to acquaint me with the job for about three weeks and then Oberfuehrer Naumann would then come to Bryansk to the headquarters of the commando in order to bid farewell to Rausch and to instal me as the commanding officer.

Q. Was not the fuehrer order made known to you about the killing of the Jews in Smolensk?

A. No, Strangely, not one single word either from Oberfuehrer Naumann nor from Hannicke or of the other two officers I spoke of.

Q. Didn't you read any reports about it?

A. No, the SD reports said nothing about a fuehrer order or Jewish executions.

Q. When and where did you reach Sonder-Commando 7B?

A. On the 18th or 19th of February 1942 I reached Sonder-Commando 7 B in Bryansk.

Q. How large was this commando and how was it divided up -how was it organized?

A. The commando had approximately a hundred men, about 50 officers and men came from the state police and the criminal police, 10 came from the SD, about 10 to 15 drivers came from the security police and the same number of drivers who were on an emergency war status. Then there were two signal men. The organization was as follows. In each town, Kursk and Orel there was a sub-commando.

Q. Wasn't there one in Bryansk, too?

A. Bryansk had the headquarters of the commando and also the local subcommando.

Q. Were any subcommandos dissolved, transferred, or newly activated during your time?

A. Yes, about the end of March the subcommando Kursk was dissolved because the Kursk area was placed under another army. Furthermore, around May or June I set up the commando in Karatschew and shortly afterwards about the end of June, on instructions from the army, I sent a small detachment to Lokot -- L-O-K-O-T.

Q. How many officers did you have in Sonder Commando 7 B?

A. 8.

Q. To what branches of the SS and police did the officers of your staff and those in the subcommandos belong?

inspector of the state police. Chief 3 was an Obersturmfuehrer of the SD. Chief 4 was a Hauptsturmfuehrer, Captain, and a police inspector of the state police at the same time, he was the commanding officer of the subcommando located at the same time where the headquarters of the commando was. Further, there was an Untersturmfuehrer who was the motor pool officer. I think he came from the SD or he came from Berlin, I think. The commanding officers of the subcommandos, in as far as there were sufficient in munbers, were police inspectors.

DR. KOESSL: The witness has made a sketch or a chart in order to show his own area, and I would like to submit to the Tribunal photostats of this chart.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, would you please first indicate on the large map where this area is located?

DR. KOESSL: Yes, Sir. Witness, will you please go over to the map and show where your Einsatz area is?

THE WITNESS: The headquarters of the commando was first in Bryansk, and then at the end of March I moved it to Orel where the headquarters of the army was. Here was the subcommandoo Kursk, which was later dissolved, and the later established subcommando Karatschew was set up a few weeks later in Lokot was south of Bryansk in a large forest.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

the Kommando 7-B on the basis of the chart. in the Army area of the Second Armored Army. That is the area as I have drawn in on the chart. In the East the border is the front line which is shown on the chart by thick lines interspersed with dots. In the South the Army area bordered on the line of Ver Yove Malo Archangelsk. In the west the border runs eastward along the villages Sseredina Buda, Trubtschewsk, Potschep, in the north the line Bytosch Kletnia. from Mr. Naumann. I indicated Kletnia in the northwest of the chart. The border must run where the vertical rod line is. What is left of that line belongs to the Rear Army area, not to my subkommando.

THE PRESIDENT: when you speak of the red line, do you mean actually the color red or the Soviet line?

THE WITNESS: It is marked in by pencil on these photostats.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, it is only black and white on ours. Oh, I see.

THE WITNESS: Everything that is left of that line belongs to the Rear Army area, not to my Kommando.

THE PRESIDENT: I see.

THE WITNESS: The area is traversed by the main road Bryansk-Orel and by the railroad on the same line, and this road cuts the area into two parts, into a northeastern one and into a southwestern part. The main towns were Bryansk and Orel where the roads and railroads were converging in a radius. First Bryansk was the headquarters of the kommando, but the end of March, 1942, I moved it to Orel which is about 130 kilometers away from Bryansk. The chart is drawn according to a scale 1 to 1,250,000. One centimeter on the chart represents twelve and a half kilometers in the actual area. This chart shows at various places areas which are marked by criss-crossing lines. These are those areas where members of the Kommando hardly over wont to because there the danger of the partisans was not so great as on the road Bryansk-Orel and its surroundings.

Some areas are dotted. That is the area of the socalled self-administration Lokot which was subordinate to the well-known Russian Kaminsky. The Sonder Kommando 7-B had to concentrate its forces in combatting the partisan and sabotage acts on the road Bryansk-KaratschewOrel. In the front line area the Kommando was active in the towns Schistra near Jagodnija, Krassnikowo and Bolchoff as well as Dumtschino. These are the areas directly at the front. In the south the area between Mokrasi Malo Archangelsk and Nischne Salegosch -- that is at the bottom right -

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, don't you think it might be more interesting if he points out these places on the map as he relates the story of the actions of his Kommando? It would be more helpful to us, if he gives it to us abstractly, geographically, doesn't convey the image and picture which I am sure you want us to have.

DR. KOESSL: We shall then refer to the map when the witness talks about individual actions.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. I think that would be much more illuminating. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q What communications existed between the subkommandos? or if the roads were not impassable because of mud in the spring, were to be reached by vehicle without any trouble. The Kommando in Lokot which was in the so-called partisan war area could only be reached by going via Bryansk. From Bryansk to Lokot an armored column of the Army traveled about twice a week, and the rail line was guarded by security troops.

Q Did you have any telephone or radio communications? Einsatzgruppe but telephone communications existed via the Army headquarters to every subkommando.

Q How often did you have an opportunity to visit the Sub-Kommandos? kommandos was often disturbed.

dos? and Bryansk. As far as the subkomnando Lokot is concerned, which was about two hundred kilometers away and which would mean a trip of four hundred kilometers both ways. I visited this Kommando three times altogether, once with the armored train of the Army. The trip lasted five days even though the conference in Lokot took only two hours. The second time the General made available to me his airplane, and the third time I flew by plane with Oberfuehrer Naumann -- who I think had become a Brigadier General by this time.

Q Did the assignment area change during your time? away from us and given to an army in the South, and along the front line there were only small gains and small losses.

Q To whom was the special Kommando 7-B subordinate? taneously it was subordinate to the Second Armored Army in Orel.

DR. KOESSL: Your Honor, the witness has also made a chart in order to make clear the various channels of command, and I would like to submit this to the Tribunal because the relationship to the Army is important. two channels, the straight lines, those which are not interrupted, that is, the channel of command of the Security Police, and SD. That is to say, that is the channel of the orders which came through Einsatzgruppe B, or those orders which the Sonder Kommando 7-B passed on to its subkommando. The dotted line is that channel of command the Army used to give orders to the Einsatzgruppe and which were then passed on to the Sonder Kommando or to the subkommandos.

from the Security Police and SD in Berlin, Also from the Higher SS and Police Leader of central Russia, and from the Army, and from the Army group center, and from the Commander of the rear Army area. The Sonder Commando VII-B, which is drawn in as a triangle to the right at the bottom (referring to the chart) received orders or the one hand from Einsatzgruppe-B; on the ether hand from the Second Armored Army, and from the Commander of the rear Army area of Bryansk.

Q. What orders did you get from Einsatzgruppe-B, and which one did you get from the Armored Army?

A. From Einsatzgruppe-B I received those orders which concerned the activity of the Commandos which were necessary as the situation demanded it. Furthermore, I got orders about the SD reporting, as well as about changes in personnel and changes in the situation. The Second Armored Army gave orders about the Security police measures of most varied types, as well as orders about Partisan warfare, and anti-sabotage acts.

Q. What orders did you get

A. I have some more. Furthermore, the Army demanded reports continuously about the conditions in the civilian sphere, and about the Partisan reconnaisance. Outside the Commander of the rear area, . the Field Commander in Orel also gave orders, and sofar as the subcommanders were concerned, they received orders from the town commandants, and the local commandants.

Q. With the agency of the Army did you cooperate? In order to show these many Army agencies, the witness has made a third and final chart from which the Tribunal can see the great number of Army agencies which cooperated with the Sonder Commando. Just explain this chart briefly?

A. Yes. In this Chart I have drawn in the triangle which re presents Sonder-Commando 1 B, and the three samll triangles below represent the sub-commandos.

Up on top is the Army group center, which gave orders via Einsatzgruppe-B. Then to the right is the second Armored Army in Orel. I mention these agencies which belong to the Staff of this Army, and with which I had to deal directly. First of all the Commander-in-chief himself, second of all the Chief of Staff, third the Department I-A, the Department I-C, G-II; then the counter-intelligence officer, and then the Quartermaster General the Economic Command, as well as the Department for Agriculture. All the way on the right I put in the town and field commandant in Orel, that was General Theo Haman. Then I listed the G-II of the Corps, and below the Combat Division. Then comes Counter Intelligence of the Army. Then comes the Field Police; another Army Police Unit, and the Command Hutzel and the Combat Field Police; another Army Police Unit, and the Command Hutzel and the Combat Command Fuchs. Then the Air Squadron Moelders, a unit of his was in Orel, as well as the Special Unit of the socalled Indigenous people, these were the Russian volunteers who fought against the Russians under German leadership. At the left top we have the Commanding General of the rear Army area, center, in Smolensk, that was General von Schenkendorf, who gave instructions via Einsatzgruppe-B. Then comes the Commending General of the rear Army area, who gave directives and orders directly to the Commando. Then comes the Security Divisions of Counter Intelligence No. 1, the Secret Field Police and which was called G.F.P.; then the town and village commandants, the Administrative Chief, these were administrative districts under the charge of an Army administrative officer. Then the socalled Liaison Staff Lokot. That was the liaison Staff between the militia of Kaminsky and the Chief of the self Administrative Lokot, the Russian Kaminsky.

Q. You have already described this?

A. No, I have not. This Russian Kaminsky had his own militia with the approval of the Commanding General, of about two-thousand men strong. That was the detachment of Russian volunteers trained by German non-comms but led by Russian officers against Partisans.

Q. That suffices, witness. After you arrived at the Sender commando VII-B, did you immediately take over the leadership of the commando?

A. No. I have already said that for about three weeks I acquainted myself with the work.

Q. When did you take over the leadership?

A. The 15th of 16th of March, 1942, the then Oberfuehrer Naumann came to Smolensk and said farewell to commander leader Rausch gave me the command.

Q. In Document Book II-D, that is, in the English page 64, and the German page 57, which is your affidavit of 24 April 1947, NO-2393Prosecution Exhibit No. 67, under No. 3 of this affidavit it reads: "On the 15th February 1942 I was sent to Sender commando VII-B of Einstazgruppe-B. I became commanding officer of this commando and successor of Obersturmbannfuehrer Rausch." End of quote. When you were interrogated by Mr. Wartenberg, did you mention to him the time that you spent in acquainting yourself with the work?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also tell him that you did not finally take over the commando until three weeks later?

A. Yes. I told him in great detail about my information in Smolensk, and I told him about the way in which the commando was handed over to me by Naumann.

Q. How long did you lead the Commando VII-B?

A. I was in charge of the Sonder Commando VII-B from the 15th or 16th of March until the 27th or 28th of January, 1943.

Q. In what periods of time between the 15 March 1942 and the end of January, 1943, were you prevented from conducing the leadership of the Commando?

A. The leadership of the Commando can be divided up into three phases. The first period -

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, you are now going into a more active phase of the narrative. Suppose we take it up after our usual morning recess.

DR. KOESSEL: Yes, Your Honor.

( recess.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. FRITZ: Dr. Fritz for the defendant Fendler. excused this afternoon from attendance in Court, and for you to rule that he report to Room 57, because I want to discuss his defense with him.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Fendler will be excused from attendance in Court this afternoon, and the appropriate authorities are hereby instructed he be conducted to Room 57 so he may there confer with his attorney.

DR. FRITZ: Thank you very much, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You are welcome.

DR. KOESSL: I would like to proceed now.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Dr. Koessl. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q. During what period, witness, between 15 March 1942, and the end of January, 1943, were you the leader of the Commando?

A. The first time, from 27 April 1942, until 3 June 1942; then I was appointed to Einsatzgruppe-B in order to get supplies, a number of articles, and I went to my home country, and to Lorraine. On 27 April I left; the 3rd of June I returned, and on the 4th of June I was in charge again of the Commando.

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't quite catch that?

DR. KOESSL: From 27 April until 3rd June the witness was not with the Commando.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. You mean he was in Germany.

DR. KOESSL: Yes, he was in Germany. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q. Any further interruptions?

A. The next interruption began on 14 August. I fell off a horse and broke my left lower thigh. On 14 August I came to the Field Hospital No. 156 in Orel. I was there for about four or six days, and then I was to be taken to Warsaw in a train for wounded. At that tide, at least for a few days before the attack near Bolchoff had started, and the Field Hospital was "full-up". Then I went to my own quarters in Orel. I was lying there and the physician of the Field Hospital attended me. He visited me every two or three days, and apart from that I was also treated by the physician of the Unit Moelders.

Q How long was this interruption of your service with the Kommando? Government Councillor Dr. Allinger came who was to be put in charge of the Kommando. He remained for a few weeks in Orel but he was then transferred back to Einsatzgruppen B and the new Kommando chief SS_ Sturmbannfuehrer Wilhelm Bluhm was appointed. At this time I was to be retransferred which is noted in the documents here. mentioned, 4747, in Document Book III_B which the President already looked at during the morning.

THE PRESIDENT: How long was he disabled after August 14th?

Q How long had you been away? September. When I could walk with crutches, on 28 September 1943 when my retransfer had already been decided I went homo first.

Q Did you remain at home? I could only walk on crutches at the time. After five weeks when my leg had more or less been healed I was ordered to Russia again. I was detailed to Russia again upon special request by the supreme chief of the 2nd Armored Army Corps General Schmidt who had sent a report about Einsatzgruppen B to the Reich Security Main Office. This request of the General was supported by the chief of Einsatzgruppen B Brigadefuehrer Naumann.

Q How long did you then remain with the Kommando?

THE PRESIDENT: When did he return first?

Q And when did you take over the Kommando?

THE PRESIDENT: You went on 28 September 1942, is that correct?

AApproximately on the 8 September I went back. It took me seven days to get there and then I took over the Kommando.

tion until January 1943?

THE PRESIDENT: It came through that approximately September 8, undoubtedly November 8 is intended.

A Yes. I left home on 8 November and on the 15th I arrived or there abouts and on the next day, 16 November 1942. I took over the Kommando again. were they in agreement with your idea of what the work was going to consist of? the information service and intelligence work I knew from former assignments. Apart from that I had certain experiences which I had already at the beginning in the Russian territory during my Russian assignment made in connection with combating partisans. Already at that time a part of the roads could only be passed in convoys and only in daytime.

Q Did your expectations conform to conditions as they were?

A No I couldn't say that because Rausch informed me about the fact that this Fuehrer order was in existence.

Q What did Rausch tell you about the Fuehrer order?

THE PRESIDENT: When was this?

A That was when I arrived at Kommando VII_B in Bryansk. That was 18 or possibly 19 February 1942.

THE PRESIDENT: That's the first time you had heard of the Fuehrer order, February 1943? carrying out within the territory of sub-Kommando VII_B. in the evening. He was on a short service trip and in the evening we sat down in his own room and we discussed matters until midnight.

He first explained to me the marching route of the Kommando since it had left in June 1941 from Pretsch and Dueben. He also told me about the collaborations with the Wehrmacht and also he said, "Now, I am going to explain to you the hardest task which I had". And that was the Fuehrer order. I asked Bausch what Fuehrer order and Bausch said, "Of course, the Fuehrer order concerning the extermination of the Jews." Upon that I said, "What extermination of the Jews?" So Bausch said, "Were you not informed in Smolensk about that?" So I said "No, not a word was mentioned to me". Thereupon Bausch informed me about the Fuehrer order as he had informed the marching Kommando in June of the preceding year in Pretsch and Dueben or as the Fuehrer order had then been made known by Heydrich and Streckenbach. I requested Bausch to tell me whether this order had also been issued in writing. He said, "No, this order has not been written down." people concerned? Fuehrer order, the Jews would have to be eliminated for reasons of security. I asked him"what Jews" and he said, "All Jews". When I asked him "does that also concern women and children" he said "Yes, they also have to be eliminated".

Q What did he direct you to do or what did he give you as a tank? that the front had come to a stop near Orel as early as October, I think at the end of October 1941, and that the front line from that date on could not be moved forward. He told me that the Kommando for as long as five months had been stationed in Orel and Bryansk and had carried out the Fuehrer order concerning the elimination of the Jews. As far as I was concerned the order would become topical when Tula had been reached. The chief cities which by then were still occupied by the Russians were Suchinitschi and Mzensk.

main Russian part. They mention Mzensk which is east of Orel and Suchinitschi which is east of Bryansk. As far as your own territory was concerned which had already been in the hands of sub-Kommando VII-B for some time was this Fuehrer order to be carried out in this territory? concluded more or less in this particular territory. He said that towns were already free from Jews; that, however, probably in the far away places between the woods and swamps there would probably without any doubt be Jews, but that the Kommando was not string enough and not well manned enough to carry at operations in this territory which was over three hundred kilometers wide.

Q What was your reaction to this order then?

complete surprise to me and came out of the blue, I was horrified and I intended after the period of three weeks of my getting used to my work and when, Brigadefuehrer Naumann would arrive, I should have this order confirmed by Naumann. I did not only consdier this order very severe and serious for the people concerned but also for the men who had to carry out this order.

Q Didn't it occur to you to refuse to carry out this order, to object to it, and refuse the carrying out of it?

A That wasn't possible for me because as far as this territory was concerned it had already been carried out for five months. Naumann and what did he tell you?

A Yes. Brigadefuehrer Naumann arrived the 15 or 16 of March. It was a Saturday and he remained until Sunday noon and when he turned over the Kommando to me on this Sunday morning I asked him whether this order would have to be carried out in the form as told to me by Rausch and whether it was quite correct in this shape. Brigadefuehrer Naumann replied, "Yes, this order has been given in this particular form. I myself have very serious misgivings about it and I reject it psychologically but we have to carry it out." were chief of the Kommando to apprehend Jews and to execute them according by the Fuehrer order?

A No. When I took over Kommando VII_B there were no operations of any kind in order to seize Jews. which might possibly be in the territory concerned? confirmed, I could not detail this small unit of about 100 men into these partisan infested territories. I could not dispurse them there.

I depended on my own securing of supply routes, mainly the road BryanskKapatschew-Orel and the parallel railway line and in making partisan reconnaissance. Added to this in the southwest and south of Bryansk there was a forest and swamp area around Lokot. In this territory there were partisans numbering about 3,000 men strong.

Q How did the partisan warfare express itself in your territory? question because it is very decisive for conditions in the territory of the 2nd Armored Army, As I have already said that Lokot, south of Bryansk, could only be reached by an armoured train. The road Bryansk-Kapatschew-Orel and the railway line of the same route was in constant danger of partisan attacks. The same applied for the supply routes and the railway lines from Bryansk and Lokot to the frontal sector. In the territory in the north of Bryansk near Biat, Kowo, I put into this sketch, there also was partisan and sabotage not work here. The partisans even had an air base and they had regular aerial service. The losses through partisan warfare were very high. In the fall of 1942 shortly before I left at that time, for instance, the railway administration authorities Orel had lost 80% of their locomotives through blastings and sabotage acts. Each month hundreds of German soldiers and numerous Russian civilians were killed through partisan warfare. Even the trains with wounded and the supply trains were often blasted by mines. On the main road Bryansk_Orel according to statistics received by the Army.

THE PRESIDENT: How large was this partisan organization? territory?

A It was 6 to 7,000 men. We had groups of partisans.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. There were 5 to 7,000 engaged in those activities which you have now described is that what you are saying?

THE PRESIDENT: How many men did you have? 100 men.

THE PRESIDENT: You are not going to try to tell us that you with 100 men were going to try to compete with 6 to 7,,000 armed forces who had an air drome and possessed of explosives and were organized and carried out what really amounted to organized warfare? the reconnaissance of the Partisans, a number of Wehrmacht units also took part, The 6 to 7,000 -

THE PRESIDENT: Well, that really became then a military operation?

THE PRESIDENT: The Wehrmacht wouldn't allow such a major situation as that to be solved only by your small group?

THE PRESIDENT: well then what you are doing at present is merely giving us a history of the situation of the area.

A Your Honor, I want to make clear the following things. One has to distinguish here between two different activities, First is partisan combating and the other is the reconnaissance,

THE PRESIDENT: That is enough that you indicate that there were vast partisan groups, in fact of such size and of such force that they engaged the attention of the Wehrmacht. Now, tell us what you did, what your Kommando did because if you go into the history of the whole partisan movement in Russia, it is entirely too vast to be related here in your own case. I would suggest, Dr. Koessl, that you would try to confine your questions to what his Kommando did. BY DR. KOESSL: Kommando in the whole of the Partisan warfare. Therefore, witness, tell us briefly about the tasks of your own Kommando.

two things were necessary. First was to actually fight the partisans which was mainly being dealt with by the Wehrmacht and the other thing was the Partisan reconnaissance which was mainly the task of my Kommando. I may point out, this is mentioned in a number of documents from which it becomes evident that the Kommando first of all dealt with reconnaissance of the partisan bands. documents. Please proceed witness.

so many units from the security sectors, for these tasks even temporarily in fact not enough to carry out a successful combat of partisan hands. The Wehrmacht was merely in the position, sometimes, only for a few days, anyway only temporarily, to put at our disposal a unit of the size of a regiments and to take from the front, and thus try and carry out an effective partisan warfare. I may refer here to a document which is contained in the document books here and which deals with the Operation Eisbaer, which is Polar Bear. That was a partisan operation in which I myself took part and which was conducted by the Wehrmacht, in January, 1943, briefly, how was it possible that you, with your lack of men and manpower, that you could do anything at all in the matter of the partisan warfare? O.D. That is the regualr service, Ordnungsdienst, the Ordnungsdienst, the regular service in the territory of the Einsatzgruppe B, as ordered by the Wehrmacht, was set up by ken from the Sonder commandos, selected men, who were then trained. They were Russian volunteers who had volunteered for police service. Added to this it was the task of the commandos to create a network of intelligence and agents who were in position to find out about all movements and changes in the partisan bands as far as possible, and as far as possible find out the directives issued by the partisans among themselves. It was by no means the task of the partisans to form closed units and to fight openly. It was rather the aim of the partisans to disperse into smallest units and carry out acts of sabotage and small attacks. actions. partisans then?

under greatest difficulties, to take men from fighting units, from the security units in these vast territories, even temporarily and to detail them for partisan combat units. a small nature against other small, movile units on the part of the partisans? tasks. There was first of all the espinonage and reconnaissance of small sabotage groups up to the actual warfare in which on both sides thousands of men confronted each other.

Q In what way did you take part yourself in partisan warfare? and when, in time, I received a perfect knowledge, not only of the manner of fighting of the partisans but also of the organization and of the territory, I participated in the assignments of the Wehrmacht with my own commando within the whole task of partisan warfare. I was in charge of the intellegence of armed and unarmed units with the aid of my agents and with my Russian police. Wehrmacht took extensive actions and more than one company participated? in command, I took part in seven large scale partisan operations of the Wehrmacht.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, you mentioned Russian police?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: They augmented your number to what extent so that what was the final total strength of your commando?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, the Russian police, the so-called O.D. or regular service, was not an integral part of my commando, but it was Russian police which was merely being set up by us and it was trained by us.

THE PRESIDENT: Your commando always remained the same size?

THE WITNESS: Yes, it was equally strong at any time.

THE PRESIDENT: What was the maximum number of men that you commanded?

THE WITNESS: Of my own commando only those one hundred men that I mentioned, and the Russian O.D. they had about four hundred and fifty men.

THE PRESIDENT: But you did not immediately command the O.D., did you?

THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor. We were in charge of this particular O.D. service. They were in a building which was attached to ours, and one of my officials, or at least I think two together with two interpreters were constantly in the central office of this Russian police.

THE PRESIDENT: Then you in effect had five hundred men under you?

THE WITNESS: Not quite this, because the Russian police had been assigned to other tasks by the Wehrmacht, tasks of the kind which in Germany are being handled by the constabulary, but I was authorized to detail men for the partisan reconnaissance of those O.D. I was authorized to employ them.

THE PRESIDENT: All I am trying to find out is whether these Russian police were under your command or not. If they were under your command, they necessarily increased the strength of your organization. If they were not under your command, they did not, How, the question is a very simple one. Did you have command over these Russian police so that they in effect became part of your organization, or did you not have such command over them?

THE WITNESS: No, this power of command was not mine, but exclusively the local commander or the city commander of the Wehrmacht had this power.

THE PRESIDENT: So that -

THE WITNESS: I only was in charge of the actual work to be done by order of the Wehrmacht.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, so that your command strength always remained about one hundred?

THE WITNESS: Yes. The fluctuation was only a very slight one. Sometimes there were only eight-nine men, or even more, but approximately one hundred men.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

Q (By Dr. Koessl) will you describe to us any extensive operations that you took part in?

A You mean partisan operations? part in?

A You mean partisan operations? part in? Shurinitschi, S_h_u_ It is at the east of Bryansk, and in the second part--.

DR. KOESSL: It is on the map. It is on the railroad running north east. It is on the other righthand corner. It is about 30 kilometers from Bryansk.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q (By Dr. Koessl) When did this take place? sent me to the Reich for getting further supplies between the 20th and 24th of April.

Q Were any partisans killed during such action?

A The G.F.B. in the actual fight in the towns only suffered two or three wounded, and two or three - two partisans were shot.

Q And what was the second undertaking? At thebeginning of June, 1942, together with two Wehrmacht companies, a colonel was in charge of this operation. It was in the territory of Trosna-Ploskoje.

That is to the south and southwest of Orel. southwest of Orel. I remember the event very clearly because the officer had this shooting carried out without interrogating these partisans.

Q And what was the third operation? by the counterintelligence group Witter, assisted hy twenty officers and men of my own commando and two companies of indigenous counterintelligence members who were Russian volunteers who were working under German leadership, and they were fighting against the partisans.

Q And what was the result? Werchopolie. That is in the vicinity of Bryansk. One officer....

DR. KOESSL: Your Honor, it is marked on the map at the east of Bryansk, about 30 kilometers to the east of Bryansk, on the map.

A (Continuing) One officer was killed and three men, or at least non-commissioned officers they were had stopped on mines in the partisan forest. The second operation in July - I don't remember whether it was in the middle or towards the end of July, 1943. That was an operation in collaboration with the fighting unit Fuchs and two squadrons of Russian cavalry who were also fighting on the German side in the sector Trojanowo-Michailowka. That was an operation which took about two or three days. There was not any result, success, which could be mentioned, I think two men were killed during this whole operation.

in the forests near the railroad line, Bryansk-Karatschew, and in this operation, the fortifications of the bonds were destroyed. A number of mines were unearthed, hut it was not possible to catch a single partisan. November shortly after my second return to Russia. That was in the sector of Bolchoff. That is immediately behind the front line. In this operation two battalions of the Wehrmacht had been combined from various units, fortified by another company, in order to comb out a territory infested by partisans, it was a thick forest. On our part seven or eight men were killed. There were about fifteen wounded, and the partisans suffered losses of about twenty-five killed and wounded, or at least the numbers I do not know because they did not fall in our hands, but on the evening of the third day we had to withdraw because the partisan bands had succeeded to cut us off in the back and therefore there was the danger that we would be encircled in the night. Polar Bear No. 1, 2, and 3. I was asked concerning this during my interrogation by Mr. Wartenberg, and I could give him minute details about this because I myself took part in this operation, which took place in January 1943, at 35 degrees below freezing point and it lasted ten days, Later on, after I had received the indictment, I could see from the documents that the Operation Eisbaer is contained in the reports in March '43 concerning the reports of the Eastern Occupied Territory. May I just finish this? The Operation Eisbaer was under the leadership of the Wehrmacht. Colonel Ruebsam was in charge of the operation. Among the German participants there were about 2500 men from various units of the Wehrmacht. The partisan bands who were chased into the forests and swamp territories there were about 3000 men, and here I may mention something which seems to me most characteristic, which is the fact, that this operation which took ten clays and in which 2200 German officers and men took part, did not bring into our hands one prisoner, one man or one dead member of this partisan group.

This becomes evident from the document which has been submitted to the Tribunal.

Q How many smaller operations did Commando 7-B carry out?

THE PRESIDENT: I understood you to say that the Eisbaer Operation endured three days. Few you tell us of one phase of it lasting ten days.

THE WITNESS: No, that must have been a mix-up, The Operation Eisbaer had three phases, Eisbaer 1, Eisbaer 2, and Eisbaer 3. In each phase there was a new territory. It lasted from 15 January until the 24th or 25th of January. That is ten days.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: It is mentioned in the documents that I took part in it. I was in charge of the reconnaissance with 25 men of my commando. BY DR. KOESSL: How many lesser operations, reconnaissance operations, did the Sonderkommando 7b carry out during your time? because the partisan reconnaissance was almost a daily task, and it had currently to be dealt with. The partisans always changed their locations, and they sent out their sabotage and terror groups, which sometimes only consisted of three or four men, into the cities and everywhere. German 57, you have just mentioned the Operation Eisbaer. Why did you just mention this particular event and not the other operations?

tion by Mr. Wartenberg on the 21st of February of this year a list was shown to me, or at least it was read to me, which contained names for those various partisan operations. Mr. Wartenberg asked me to tell him about those operations in which I had taken part myself. When he read these names to me I said that the only operations in which I took part was 1, 2, 3 Eisbaer and that I had actually taken part in them.

Q Mr. Wartenberg said when he was heard on the witness stand on the 7th of October, it is in a German book on page 389. but I don't know the English page, he said that you stated that the Operation Eisbaer had taken place at various points, that it had taken from the middle of February to the middle of May, and that you then went on recreation leave, and after that you had spoken about executions. How, what did you tell Mr. Wartenberg at the time?

A In these explanations which Mr. Wartenberg made when he was in the witness stand, these statements contain a number of incorrectnesses. It was correct, however, that mention was made of the Operation Eisbaer which took place at various points, as Mr. Wartenberg quite rightly said. Although it wasn't my way of expressing it, but of course it must have taken place at various points, because if thousands of soldiers fight thousands of partisans these partisans do not stand still. That the operation, according to Mr. Wartenberg, according apparently to my statements, took from middle of February to May, of course, I did not say. I think I gave the exact dates; I gave the exact time which was from the 15th of January to the 24th of January, 1943, and a few days after that I was finally recalled.

Q Did you say that you went on recreation leave at that time?

A Then? No, I didnot say that I went on leave then. That is not correct. I told, him that I ceased to be in command immediately after that, that is at the end of January, and that Obersturmbannfuehrer Raabe had been appointed my successor and had already arrived at Orel in the meantime.

Q During this interrogation by Mr. Wartenberg, after you had made your statement concerning this operation Eisbaer, did you speak about the executions which were carried out afterwards?

A No. Again, unfortunately, this is incorrect. After I had made these statements concerning Eisbaer I did not speak about any executions of any kind, but what happened was this. At the beginning of my interrogation on the 21st of February of this year Mr. Wartenberg asked me "How many thousand Jews did you shoot?" I told him that this was not at all the case because in 1942 there were no antiJewish actions in my territory. Herr Wartenberg therefore asked me to give him a detailed description concerning my first execution which I had seen in Russia, and I told himiin detail, or at least as well as I remembered it, an execution which had taken place in Ordshonikidsegrad which is near Bryansk during the tine of my initial training. At that tine four to five partisans or members of sabotage groups

Q Just a moment, Witness, did this execution take place in Bryansk?

Q It was, therefore, not in Ordshonikidsegrad? turned over by the local commander of Ordshonikidsegrad to Bryansk. Ordshonikidsegrad and Bryansk are almost one town. It is about like Nurnberg and Furth.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, would you want to interrupt now for the noon recess?

DR. KOESSL: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

(A recess was taken until 1345 hours.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 10 December 1947.)

MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. STUEBINGER: Dr. Stuebinger for Braune. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant Braune be excused from tomorrow's session in order to prepare the document book.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant,Braune, will be excused from tomorrow's session so that he may help in the preparation of the document book.

DR. STUEBINGER: Thank you.

DR. KRAUSE: Krause, as representative for Dr. Riediger, for the defendant Haensch. Your Honor, I have the same request for the defendant Haensch. I ask that he be excused from tomorrow's session, both morning and afternoon, and to direct that he be brought to Room 57 to discuss his defense.

PRESIDENT: For both the morning and afternoon?

DR. KRAUSE: Yes, Sir.

PRESIDENT: The defendant Haensch will be excused from attendance in court tomorrow and will be conducted to Room 57 where he nay confer with his counsel.

DR. STUBENHOLT: Stubenholt for Ohlendorf. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant Ohlendorf be excused from the session on Thursday and Friday, both days, in order to prepare further document books.

PRESIDENT: The defendant Ohlendorf will be excused from attendance in court on Thursday and Friday of this week in order to work on his document book.

DR. STUBENHOLT: Thank you.

DR. KOESSL: May I please continue?

PRESIDENT: Please do.

DR. KOESSL: The defendant Ohlendorf called my attention to the fact, Your Honor, that I did not use an expression quite correctly.

The official designation of the Einsatzgroups did not say "Einsatzgroups of the Security Police and SD" but the Einsatzgroups were named "Einsatzgroup A", Einsatzgroup B", "Einsatzgroup C", and "Einsatzgroup D" without the addition "Security Police and SD."

PRESIDENT: Very well.

DIRECT EXAMINATION ( Continued) BY DR. KOESSL: Mr. Wartenberg. Whad did you tell Mr. Wartenberg about the events during your presence at the Einsatzkommando 7B?

A The question Mr. Wartenberg asked was, "How many thousand of Jews did you have shot? " I told him that in 1942 when I took over the commando no Jewish actions took place any more but that, of course, here and there a Jew was shot if he was involved in partisan or sabotage acts. He told me then, "please describe to me the first execution which you saw while you were in Russia," thereupon, I described the execution which took place in Bryansk, and of February or beginning of March, during the time I became acquainted with the work in 1942. These were five or six saboteurs whom the army had captured near Ordshonikidsograd. These were saboteurs who had intended to smuggle poison into an army mess in order to poison a whole army unit. This execution took place during severely cold weather and there was snow, and this is what I described to him. At this occasion I was asked by Mr. Wartenberg whether the Einsatzkommando had taken valuables from the victims, and I explained to him that these valuables had been transferred to Einsatzgroup B or via Einsatzgroup B to an agency of the Reich, and that they had to be delivered to that agency.

Q How many executions did you list to Mr. Wartenberg as a total figure?

A I told Mr. Wartenberg that in the six months during which I actually commanded the commando and during which I was responsible for it, altogether 80 to a hundred executions took place.

Q What did you mean by so to a hundred executions? How many persons were involved each tine?

Q This figure is then the total number of persons? partisan units and of sabotage groups. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q How many people were killed at each execution?

A That varied. Altogether there were 80 to100 persons who were executed during the six months.

Q Well, you said already that it varied. How many usually were killed in one execution -- one action?

A This varied. I recall that sometimes it was 1 or 2 and I recall one execution where there were 11 people. refer to it collectively as one execution, don't you? of executions but of people who were shot.

Q Well, if 11 people were shot at one time, you wouldn't say, "11 executions", would you? person.

Q If 11 people are shot, at one tine, you wouldn't say "11 executions", would you?

Q Well, then why would you use the phrase "80 to a hundred executions", if you meant "80 to a hundred people" when in only one execution, there night be 11 people killed?

A Well, because the word "execution" as well as the word "shooting" can refer to one parson as well as to several. past and you have in mind various executions, you would mean each collective act of shooting of individuals and each collective act would be one execution, isn't that the way you would do it ordinarily? can mean the collective killing of 50 or a hundred people, Yes.

Q Well, when you say "80 to a hundred executions", you mean 80 to 100 collective killings?

A No, Your Honor. During my interrogation I expressly said, and the stenotyped record will show this, that I spoke of 80 to a hundred people who were shot.

Q Don't you think that when you signed this affidavit that if you meant only 80 to 100 people killed that you should have made a correction there? Didn't it occur to you that it would be subject to misinterpretation?

A No, because the word "execution" can mean one individual case. spoken of 80 to a hundred executions, you say in the next sentence, "I remember one execution which took place in the vicinity of Bryasnk", then you say, "the people to be executed were handed over to my unit by the local commandant. The corpses were temporarily buried In the snow, and later buried by the army". Now let me call your attention to this.

In one paragraph you describe an individual execution which involved several or many people. Then in that same paragraph you refer to 80 or 100 executions. Wouldn't it be logical for someone to assume that when in the description of one execution you talk of "many" people, that when you talk of "from 80 to a hundred executions", you also mean 80 or 100 times a certain number of people more than one?

A Yes. One could interpret it that way. During my interrogation it was not a question of how many executions were carried out but the question was concerned only with how many people were shot altogether.

Q Well, why didn't you make that correction in the affidavit? submitted to me two months afterwards. Before I was to sign it, I read it and first I noticed an important distortion concerning the operation Eisbaer which had been put into the affidavit. I immediately corrected this matter, and I shall come to talk about it later. But I did overlook the correction of minor matters and matters which seemed less important to me, especially since I have already said that 80 to a hundred executions were to me equivalent to 80 or a hundred people shot.

Q Well, you said you had said that, hut you don't say it in the affidavit?

A I didn't notice it when I read it through two months afterwards, but I nay emphasize once more that during the interrogations it was a matter of establishing the total number of people shot; of the number of executions, nothing was said. casual reading of this affidavit could only convoy the impression that by "executions" you meant collective slayings, because not only in the paragraph do you have this reference to the executions at Bryansk, but then later on you say, "This was ordered by command of Naumann, the head of Einsatzgruppe B. And the same was true for other executions." Then still again in paragraph 3 you say, "It is known to me that aside from my unit, other units carried out executions". How, certainly, in paragraph 3 the word "executions" cannot be substituted for the killing of one person. And then still again in that sane paragraph you have once more the phrase, "frequent executions".

A Your Honor, in my opinion this is a matter of the words "80 to a hundred executions" not coming from my lips, but that I actually spoke of "80 to a hundred people shot". The word "executions" was put in by Mr. Wartenberg, and the stenographed record will show this, but two months later I overlooked this when I read through it because for me "executions" and "shootings" are the sane. I ask that the stenographic record be submitted by the prosecution and this will confirm my words. careless in reading this affidavit not to note that the word "executions" four or five times refers to collective shootings and only in this one instance to individual shootings.

BY DR. KOESSL:

Q Witness, one moment please. I think you were just about to explain this, why you were so careless and in this connection you spoke about the operation Eisbaer. What did you notice about the statements in the affidavit about this matter, and what struck you in this respect? two months later, because I heard nothing about it and was not interrogated again in these two months, and when it was submitted to me, I saw to my surprise the following sentence; may I quote, "I participated among other things in the Operation Eisbaer which was carried out under the leadership of Colonel Ruebsam (from the army) . This operation had the mission to fight partisans in the vicinity of Bryansk. During this many partisans and partisan suspects were shot." of partisan groups were shot, and did you speak at all about people suspected of being partisans? the operation Eisbaer to Mr. Wartenberg in all details, and I told him that during this operation, even though it lasted 10 days, no contact with enemy took place so that there were neither prisoners nor was any one shot. This is confirmed by the document which is available, and about whose presence I did not know anything in February. The word "suspected" of being partisans was not even mentioned either by myself or by Mr. Wartenberg.

Q Were you told that"this affidavit will be used as evidence against you"?

A No. Before I signed the affidavit I said to Mr. Wartenberg in the course of the conversation whether he would permit me to ask him a private question. I asked him then, "Please tell me, do I have to consider myself as a witness or as a future defendant", and he said, "Oh, well, if you were a defendant, you would long before have received on indictment", therefore, I considered myself as a witness.

Q But when you were interrogated by Mr. Wartenberg, were you put under any duress because you did not immediately remove the irregularities in the affidavit, especially the unclarity about the period of time when you took over the commando and about the word "execution"? February which was stated in the affidavit is correct as such, but it says only, I then became commanding officer of the special commando 7B.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, he is not answering the question you put to him, you asked him if he was under any duress.

DR. KOESSL: Yes, Sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, let him answer that question. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q Please answer that question, were you under any duress. You can give the explanations afterwards.

A I don't know how far one should apply the concept of "duress". If one has been interned for years and comes here from an internment camp and is then interrogated a few days later, one is, of course, under a certain compulsion, but during the interrogation Mr. Wartenberg was very polite and very friendly, and he offered me cigarettes repeatedly, but I always had the feeling that a trap would be set for me, and that 1 would be caught somehow.

THE PRESIDENT: You have not yet answered the question. Were you under duress? If you do not know the meaning of the word "duress" it will be defined to you. Were you under duress when you were being interrogated by Mr. Wartneberg and when you signed this affidavit which is now in evidence?

THE WITNESS: No, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Now if he had told you that you were to be a defendant, would your answers be any different from those which you gave when you thought you were to be a witness, only a witness?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, my answers would have been the same which I then gave to Mr. Wartenberg, hut two months later when the affidavit was submitted to me, I would have been much more careful, and if I had to count on the fact that those statements would he used against me. I would have, of course, seen to it that both incriminating and exonerating matters would have been put in, and I would have also seen to it that not only the complete invention about the operation Eisbaer would have been crossed out, but that all other questions would have been put in, and I would have also seen to it that not only the complete invention about the operation Eisbaer would have been crossed out, but that all other questions would have been put in unequivocally and unambig uously.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, now you have mode the explanation about the 80 to 100 executions. You tell us that you only meant 80 to 100 people executed. Now that is one correction. What other corrections so you want to make in this affidavit? Did you take part in the action Eisbaer?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Well it is not incorrect then to say that you took part in that action, is it?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, the fact of my participation I did not mention.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, is it incorrect that you took part in the action Eisbaer?

THE WITNESS: Noo that is correct. I did participate,

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. All right now, what else is ther in the affidavit that you take exception to?

THE WITNESS: In addition to my testimony, Mr, Wartenberg added that many partisan members and those suspected of being parties were shot.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, where is that in the affidavit?

THE WITNESS: That was not put in, Tour Honor, but the original affidavit which was what Mr. Wartenberg had when he was on the witness stand shows that before signing this affidavit I crossed out that sentence.

THE PRESIDENT: But this is the affidavit which is in evidence, Document NO-2993: Exhibit 67. What is there in this affidavit which does not conform to the truth?

THE WITNESS. Your Honor, this additional sentence invented by Mr. Wartenberg was put into the original affidavit and was crossed out by me.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, witness, we don't have that affidavit before us. This is the only one you have to answer to. What is wrong with this affidavit ?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I want to emphasize by this what methods Mr. Wartenberg used in order to set a trap for me,

THE PRESIDENT: Well, but we are not trying Mr. Wartenberg, and this is the only thing which is before us. Suppose somebody fooled you fifteen years ago somewhere else. It wouldn't interest us any. This is the only thing you are being charged with insofar as Mr. Wartenberg is concerned. This is the affidavit which is before us. Whether he fooled you or didn't fool you doesn't concern us insofar as this paper is concerned, because this is the one you signed, and this is the one which you now say is correct.

BY DR. KOESSL: ful with your statements about the beginning of your activity in special Kommando 7-B. What did you state at the time, and to what do you object in this respect in the affidavit? What did you want to say exactly, and what did you tell Mr. Wartenberg?

THE PRESIDENT: Now listen, Dr. Koessl, we are not interested in what he told Mr. Wartenberg. He is charged with certain crimes. He is here on the witness stand. He can answer to those charges and certain evidence has been introduced against him. One piece of evidence is this affidavit. If this affidavit is not correct, let him point out wherein it is incorrect. Any passage at arms that he had with Mr. Wartenberg is of no consequence unless it can be shown that there is something in this affidavit which is incorrect.

DR. KOESSL: Your Honor, the witness was to clarify what is not complete in the affidavit, and, therefore-

THE PRESIDENT: Well, listen, first let him point out wherein the affidavit is incorrect. After he has done that, then let him tell his story as to what he did and did not do insofar as it is relevant to the charges in the Indictment. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q Witness: repeat the point which you objected to in the affidavit.

A First of all, on page 2 of the original. I want to correct the following. It says here, "The valuables which were collected from these people were sent to Einsatzgruppe B." This was the order of Einsatzgruppe Chief Naumann of Einsatzgruppe B. and it was always handled this way in other executions.

Q What is wrong with this? to my statements, but it was not Naumann who was the chief of Einsatzgruppe B who gave this order to my predecessor, but it was Nebe who commanded Einsatzgruppe B before Naumann did.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Now we have made a note of that that the witness states that there was an error in the affidavit. Instead of the name "Naumann" it should have been "Nebe". Now proceed to the next incorrection. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q What other point do you have to complete or clarify? says, "80 to 100 executions". want to clarify? out of context and only lists excerpts from my interrogation. and you have already wanted to make a statement about the beginning when you took over the Kommando. Now tell us about that.

A Well, I think I have already described it. It says here in the affidavit that "On the 15th of February, 1943, I was ordered to report to special Kommando 7-B of Einsatzgruppe B. I became the commanding officer of this Kommando."

THE PRESIDENT: Well, this is not incorrect, is it? You were ordered to Sonderkommando 7-b on 15 February, weren't you?

THE WITNESS: On 15 February I had arrived in Smolensk.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Well, is this incorrect that you were ordered to take-

THE WITNESS: No, that is correct.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, don't tell us about the correct statements. Tell us about this affidavit insofar as it is incorrect. Now what else is wrong about the affidavit, and let us move along.

THE WITNESS: The date of my arrival in,Bryansk is missing and the date when I took over the Kommando is missing.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we are not asking about what is missing. We are asking about what is incorrect. You can supply the omissions very easily and have already done so. Anything else incorrect in the affidavit?

THE WITNESS: Otherwise I think everything is correct.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, then let us proceed. BY DR. KOESSL: reconnaissance, that is, when you were not on the road investigation partisans? jobs. My primary assignment was, as I have already sad, the partisan reconnaissance.

THE PRESIDENT; Now, please, witness, don't give us a lot of repetition and unnecessary words. The question was what were you doing when you were not taken up with partisan reconnaissance. Now you tell us about partisan reconnaissance. What did you do aside from partisan reconnaissance? That is the question.

THE WITNESS: I organized the Russian Criminal Police as well as the regular service, and I supervised this organization. I kept the Army informed every other day about the reports which we received from the partisan areas. I participated in conferences at the G-2 Section of the Second Armored Army. Once a month when all the G-2's of the corps and divisions were present, I had to give a report about the partisan situation and about the cooperation between the Army and special Kommando. Furthermore, I had to report to the Army about the morale and administration and about all other matters in the civil affairs. Furthermore, I had an exchange of information with the Commanding General of the Rear Army Area in Bryansk. I had to continue the cooperation with the Secret Field Police, with the Economic Command, with combat Commands, as I have already described on the chart. I had to make out SD reports about all spheres, and I had to send reports to Einsatzgruppe B. Then I had to cooperate in the special mission on research about the actual life in the Soviet Union.

I had to command my staff and my subkommandos. I had to take care of my men, and I had to work on organizing the network of agents and intelligence men, I had plenty of work to do with the proof-reading of reports which the Commissars of my Kommandos handed in. BY DR. KOESSL: responsibility of your command? leadership took place in March, 1942. As I recall, those were six partisans who had been apprehended after they had mined the roads near Bryansk and had murdered the drivers of German vehicles passing on this road. At the same time in the second half of March there was an execution in Bryansk of one partisan who made an attack of an Army officers' billet in Bryansk. This was shortly before the Komnando moved to Orel, and partly I listened to the interrogation myself. the German there is Document NO-3276, which is Exhibit 66. According to this Report 194 of the 21st of April, 1942, the special Kommando 7-B in the period of 6 to 30 March 1942 was to have executed eighty-two people altogether. What is your comment on this document.

A I have the following to say about this. The document itself shows-special Kommando 7-B at the time of your responsible leadership in March, 1942, execute eighty-two people?

B during this period covered by the report more so than in any case thus far extended to the field of partisan reconnaissance. The entire paragraph about the police activity in this document is concerned with the partisan situation and with the fighting of the still active Communists. The report names a period of time during March which is not mentioned in any report, namely, from 6 until 30 March. All Kommandos of the Einsatzgruppe B had the order to make reports every 1st and 15th of the month. It is striking that this extraordinary period, namely, from 6 to March, refers to all Einsatz Kommandos of Einsatzgruppe B so that it is easy to assume that this is an arbitrary compilation of reports of a longer period of time, and that a superior agency, either Einsatzgruppe B or the RSHA had compiled reports about events of the period further back in this particular report. Favoring this assumption is the fact that since December a large number of situation reports of Einsatzgruppe B were not submitted at all and that since December not a single execution is mentioned in those reports.

DR. KOESSL: May I mention here, Your Honor, that in Document Book No. I of Ott's I shall submit appropriate excerpts of documents and I shall prove thereby that from December until this month no executions were reported.

THE PRESIDENT: From December until when?

DR. KOESSL: From December 1941 until this report in April, 1942 no execution is reported.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, how does that prove that there were no executions between 6 and 30 March? The fact that no executions occurred between December and March, how does that prove that there were no executions between the 6th and the 30th of March?

DR. KOESSL: To prove that no execution took place between the 6th and the 30th of March is not possible for us, nor do we seek to prove this, and the defendant has already named a few executions.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I am merely drying to get, Dr. Koessl, your reasoning in the matter. You show us that between 1 December and 1 March it did not rain. Therefore, it couldn't have rained between 6 March and 30 March, and I don't get the connection there. It doesn't follow.

DR. KOESSL: In connection with the other matters in the report which have already been established, and in connection with the recollection which the witness has and has already confirmed here, furthermore in connection with the other evidence which we shall present, the possibility is absolutely probable that in the previous months for which no reports are available executions took place which were arbitrarily compiled in a central agency and only reported in April. The details how we arrive at this conclusion will be mentioned by the defendant and partly it will be my job when I discuss the evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Proceed.

THE WITNESS: In the Situation Report No. 180 in my document book on page 37 and page 39--.

DR. KOESSL: We shall submit this document, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, is it Document Book I?

DR. KOESSL: Document Book I for Ott.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. Well, I have it. All right, let us have it. Let us have the reference. I have the book.

DR. KOESSL: Pages 37 and 39 contain the passage which Ott wants to bring up. I do not have the English document book, and I assume they are the same pares.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed. Proceed.

THE WITNESS: At this place reconnaissance actions of special Kommando 7-B against partisans and against NKVD network of agents is reported during the course of which an agent by the name of Seyditz in Orel was a rested. It is expressly noted here that the investigations have not yet been concluded.

DR. KOESSL: This is the last sentence on page 39, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. "The investigations are still in progress".

THE WITNESS: That is correct. In the Situation Report No. 183 of 20 March 1942-

DR. KOESSL: This Situation Report is in the same volume, page 42, but it can also be found in Book 3-A of the Prosecution. BY DR. KOESSL: tion which was detected between January and February. In this connection the names Dimitry of the NKVD, Stepano, Scwczenko and Kesanova are mentioned. The report concludes with the sentence, "The investigations are still in progress". In these two reports, too, nothing is said of an execution. If in March eighty-two people had been executed, I would, of course, have to remember them, because just during the very first few wekks of my responsibility such an event would have made so much more of an impression on me.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, is it your statement now that there were no executions in March?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, we had heavy snow in March.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, now, please answer the question. You are telling us now from what you have read to us that there couldn't have been any executions in March and you add to it that there was a big snow. Is that right?

THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: All right now, you refer to your own document book on page 33 and read the last paragraph on that page.

THE WITNESS: Is this in Document Book 2-A or 2-B?

THE PRESIDENT: No. No, your own document book. The one that you have presented on page 33, taken from Operational Report No. 178 dated 9 March. I will read it for you. It begins at the top of the page with a description of the situation and mood of the people in Bryansk. Then it ends up. "In Kursk, too, the population has calmed down noticeably. It looks as if proceedings against rumor mongers as well as the liquidation of some of these people had contributed substantially to this."

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I believe this translation is not quite correct. May I read it in the original text, that is, in the German version?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: And there it reads after the previous paragraph which describes how the situation and morale of the people in Bryansk is quiet, and "In Kursk, too, the population has noticeably quieted down. It looks as if the proceedings against rumor mongers as well as the elimination of part of these people has contributed essentially to this."

THE PRESIDENT: Well, how do you eliminate people? Do you make a distinction between elimination and liquidation?

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, so, therefore, there were some executions during that period.

THE WITNESS: But this report, Your Honor, dated 9 March, can, therefore, refer to an incident which happened several weeks before, because the report was made out in Berlin and my experience with these reports shows - and I point to the Operation Eisbaer - that the report in this case was made out seven weeks later. By this I mean to say that what Berlin reports here in its report of 9 March normally took place two weeks before.

THE PRESIDENT: Two weeks before would take it into the latter part of February.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Would you say that it would be prior to February 22?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I cannot give you a definite date. I can only assume so as a result of the usual handling of these reports.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if you will look at that report, you will notice that there is a reference already made to a report on February 25 so that the incidents described in this report of 178 would necessarily have had to occur following February 25, wouldn't they?

THE WITNESS: Yes sir.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. Proceed, Doctor.

THE WITNESS: It says here, Your Honor, that the garrisons and communications as of the report of February 25 remained unchanged. Therefore, this report was probably written a few days after the 25th and it must have been written two weeks before, but in the operation Eisbaer the report shows that it was written seven weeks later.

THE PRESIDENT: How, but this present report shows that some executions occurred in the latter part of February or the early part of March, doesn't it?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor, I said so before.

THE PRESIDENT: So, therefore, it is not so extraordinary that this other report says that there were killings between the 6th of March and the 30th of March.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor. On the 6th of March I was already with the Kommando and I took over the responsible leadership on the 15th of March or the l6th when Neumann was there, but without a doubt I could well remember an execution of this extent if it had taken place.

BY DR. KOESSL: period before your first absence from the Kommando, that is to say, until you left for the Reich? Up to this point you mentioned the execution in Bryansk which is mentioned in the affidavit and which was not carried out under your responsibility. You Mentioned the execution of six partisans and of one partisan. What other executions took place? period of my responsible command. These were six or seven people who belonged to a larger partisan and sabotage organization and this organization was to a large extent captured in the preceding months. The investigations had been carried out very carefully and took very long because it was a matter of trying to apprehend this organization totally, all of them. These partisans also had mines and had made attacks on Army vehicles during the night.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, when the witness explains that there was a partisan action, is it necessary to go into so much detail as to what the partisan action was?

DR. KOESSL: I would be very glad if he wouldn't have to describe all this, but I considered it necessary that he would try to give his recollection to the Tribunal about the executions and the reasons for that.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, very well. BY DR. KOESSL

Q You don't have to be so extended, witness. cerned which took place after I took over the responsible command and which was the first one that I saw when I was the responsible commanding officer that I can recall this so very well because the snow had begun to melt and we had to look for a long time to find a dry place near Orel.

arrested and five or six days later were shot in Bryansk.

Q Wasn't there an incident about arson?

A This arson case was in Orel. These were three perpetrators who set fire to a part of the Army Supply Dump which was situated right near the railroad in Orel, and these men were apprehended because they were denounced by others. during your absence in May?

A I described these to Mr. Wartenberg, too, during my interrogation. There were about twenty to twenty-five.

Q What executions do you remember from the summer months of 1942? at Karatschew delivered about fourteen to sixteen persons on a truck and that they brought these people who belonged to a sabotage organization to the commando in Orel.

Q Why do you remember this incident?

A Because I remember a woman who was very ugly and brutal. She was a fanatic Communist and she had been photographed by one of my non-coms with all her weapons end explosives in her home and I put this in my souvenir album.

Q How many people were executed of this group? seven were shot. The others were brought to prison. The transfer to Orel took place because parts of this organization were also in Orel and because the perpetrators were to be confronted with them.

THE PRESIDENT: Suppose we have our afternoon recess now.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. KOESSL: I ask to be permitted to go on.

THE PRESIDENT: Please. BY DR. KOESSL: executions. a few more executions took place in Orel, with the Kommando as well as with the sub-Kommandos. The events are similar to each other and, therefore, I do not exactly remember-the numbers fluctuated between approximately two or three and more executees.

Q Do you remember this or the other case more exactly perhaps? after a lot of Searching with the aid of the OD, that is the Russian Regular Service, two or three saboteurs were apprehend who had caused a supply train to be blown up between Orel and Witzensk, toward the front line. Two or three days after the attack I was in the neighborhood of this village myself and I saw the actual place where the ruins of the whole train, including the locomotive, were next to the railway tracks. Approximately shortly before or after this time a number of perpetrators were apprehended who had attacked a column of Army supply trucks and shot at a gun of the Wehrmacht.

THE PRESIDENT: I do not think that the Prosecution, and if I am in error Mr. Ferencz may correct me, charges the defendant with any offense in the execution of partisans, saboteurs, and looters. He is charged with murder. The execution of partisans comes within the rules of war. To go into a great deal of detail as to what each one of these partisans did does not help the solution of the Very grave issue before the Tribunal. The defendant remembers with a great deal of particularity every little incident connected with partisans, saboteurs, and looters. We trust that he will recollect with as much particularity when you direct his attention to the question of the Court No. II, Case No. IX.

business of liquidation under the Fuehrer order.

DR. KOESSL: I presume that the Prosecution affirms this question.

Mr. FERENCZ: The Prosecution concurs in the statements made by the Tribunal. However, we have also charged the defendant with violations of the laws and customs of war and war crimes and if defense counsel intends to go into the question of partisan warfare to show solely that it was done as legitimate warfare we have no objection to his proceeding briefly along those lines.

THE PRESIDENT: Once the defense indicates that certain partisans were shot because of violations of the rules of war and that is not challenged by the Prosecution then that should dispose of that episode without going into so much detail. Certainly the defendant has the right to show, as he has been showing, that he was engaged in what he regards as legitimate warfare, but it seems you are going into too much unnecessary detail. BY DR. KOESSL: were executions of partisans and saboteurs carried out also during the last period of your activity in your Commando? Please give a general answer to that. active in this particular manner? Did you order that - that is what I mean - people wars to be shot only because they belonged to a certain race? seized and do not belong to a partisan movement or sabotage organization must be shot on the basis of the Fuehrer order. That is, the sub-Kommandos worked Court No. II.

independently. I would like to say the following. I was lucky enough, owing to the fact that I only joined the Einsatzkommandos in 1942, that in my own area this order had been practically carried out, that the cities, after the Kommando had been stationed there for five months, were free of Jews. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Did I understand him correctly? I merely want to be certain. Kommando leaders that if they found Jews they were to seize them and shoot them in accordance with the Fuehrer order? Is that what you said? I merely want to be correct in my notes here. DR. KOESSL:

Q Then you seized Jews who were not partisans? been seized without belonging to a sabotage or partisan organization or a Communist organization. findings? who had been arrested had not only to be proven guilty and had to be investigated in this connection but also because one had to get information from his interrogation what people, what extent, and what size this organization had of which he was a member. PRESIDENT: are telling us. In each instance where a Jew was apprehended it developed that he was a member of a partisan or sabotage organization. Is that what I understand you to tell us - that you were lucky never to have found a Jew that belonged to an organization which entitled him to be shot?

that in my area, when I arrived in 1942, the Fuehrer order had already practically been carried out.

Q Well, this is what I have in my notes. Let's see if I took it down correctly. "I do not remember a single case in which Jews were seized without it being proven that they were members of a sabotage organization." Now, that is what you said? your organization belonged to a sabotage organization.

Q That's right. So, every Jew which your organization seized was shot because he belonged to a partisan or sabotage organization? within the grasp of your organization were shot?

Q Were there any nationals who were not shot? Were there people of other nationalities who were seized, cases investigated, and released?

A Yes, naturally. I said so in my examination. that he belonged to one of these organizations and was therefore shot?

A Yes. He would have been shot even, your Honor, if he had not been a member of one of these organizations. shot anyway? rators but if for some reason he had merely been hiding with the group because he had to be seized in accordance with the Fuehrer Order.

Q That's right. So that whether ha belonged to an illegal organization, that is, partisan or saboteurs, or not, he was bound to be shot becauseif he wasn't shot as a saboteur, as an active partisan, Court No. II, Case No. IX.

he would be shot under the Fuehrer Order? That's correct, isn't it?

A He was shot in accordance with the Fuehrer Order - yes. I would like to add, your Honor, that of course an interrogation was carried out in this particular case to see "is he a member of an organization or is he not". tion, an illegal organization? of these illegal organizations, saboteur or partisan or a resistance movement, you would have shot him anyway because he was a Jew and fell under the Fuehrer Order, that's right, isn't it?

Q Just a moment. The Tribunal asked you very specifically how many Jews were shot because they were Jews and you replied "20". Is that correct? Fuehrer order?

Q Well I don't quite comprehend Dr. Koessl's questioning.

DR. FOESSL: The contradiction in the statement of the witness is that on one hand he says that Jews were always proven to be members of an organization

PRESIDENT: They were always seized and questioned - but he said in some oases they refused to talk and then they were shot because they were Jews. That's what he said.

MR. FERENCZ: I object to defense counsel pointing out a contradiction in his client's testimony unless he intends to impeach his client.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, that's a rule of law.

DR. KOESSL: I think I can clear up the inconsistencies in the statements of my client which the Tribunal refers to. I don't think it is hardly a matter of the Prosecution to prevent that.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, you are permitted to question him but you are not supposed to suggest any answer.

If you want to go into that field again, of course, you will be permitted to do so but it is not for you to contradict your own witness.

DR. KOESSL: I did not want to do so. I only heard two contradictory statements.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if you want to go over the field again you may do so.

DR. KOESSL: I only want to address one question to him and that will settle the matter.

THE PRESIDENT: But don't put it in a leading form. BY DR. KOESSL: not established that he was a member of a partisan organization?

MR. FERENCZ: I object to the question. The question has been asked twice by the Tribunal and answered twice clearly by the defendant.

BY THE PRESIDENT: Witness, I will repeat what you said which the Tribunal directly called to your attention and which you confirmed. Now did you say, "I do not remember a single case in which Jews were seized without it being proven that they were members of a sabotage organization." Did you say that? said, " Yes, they were interrogated for the purposes of determining what they knew about these illegal organizations." which led to the arrest of others? ation and you were unable to arrest anybody else?

Q Then you were asked whether then he wouldn't be shot because he was a Jew and as we recall it you said "Yes." organization or not was bound to be shot because if it was not established that he belonged to a saboteur or partisans organization then he fell into the category of the Fuehrer order and was shot for that reason, is that correct? under your order by your Kommando, because they were Jews and as we have it written down here 20 Jews -- is that correct?

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. KOESSL:

Q Were women and children shot, witness?

A Children were not shot in any case. Women were among these people here and there. I have already mentioned this Communist woman functionary with all these many weapons who came from Karatschew. That was one of these cases. mention all the other cases which have come up, and I would like to put my last question to the witness. Did you participate in the deportation of Eastern workers to the Reich?

A No, I did not participate in this. On the contrary, I contributed to having the deportation of Eastern workers to the Reich stopped. I refer to a document which has been submitted in this matter and which makes this quite evident.

Q I shall submit this part of the document later. It does not become evident from the excerpts which I have at the moment. Did you, during your assignment in Russia, meet the leaders of those Einsatzkommandos which were stationed in the surrounding territories? ferences at Einsatzgruppe B in Smolensk, I met the leaders of commandos, as far as they were members of the Einsatzgruppe B.

Q Where did you meet?

Q That is with the chief of the Einsatzgruppe? Einsatzgruppen in the vicinity? and to sort out certain categories of prisoners and execute them?

Q You had a very low party number. Do you hold the golden party badge that was given to all party members who held a number under 100 ,000?

A My membership number was 2433 which I obtained in autumn. 1922, when I joined the Party. I left the Party in '27. In September, 1931, I rejoined the Party, and I automatically got back my old membership number, 2433.

Q Did you receive the golden party badge?

THE PRESIDENT: Why did you leave the Party, Witness, in 1927?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, in the fall of 1922 I was a member of the Party, and I had become a member of the Party and an SA man. I want to explain why I left the Party. In 1923 after the Munich Putsch the Party became illegal, and it was illegal until 1925. After this tine our small local group could not re-establish itself properly any longer, and owing to personal differences concerning the leadership of this local group, a. number of comrades and myself left the Party.

THE PRESIDENT: You didn't leave it because you disagreed with its ideology?

THE WITNESS: No, the ideology as such I regarded then and ever as the right one. I only left because of the incompetence of the local leadership.

THE PRESIDENT: I see. BY DR. KOESSL: you joined the Party and the SA?

A No, that was of no significance to me. What was of major importance to me was the social question, and the concern for the existence of the Fatherland.

1942, and which became known as the so-called final solution of the Jewish question, the final solution in this case being the elimination of the Jews?

A This Fuehrer Order I first learned about here in Nurnberg. I can assure the Tribunal that not a single member of my commando, just as little as I, myself, ever knew anything about this Fuehrer Order before.

Q Witness, of course you can't really assure us of that. for hours the Jewish question and the Fuehrer Order.

Q Do you mean at that time it was never discussed?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I don't know whether I understood correctly. Did he say he did not hear the Fuehrer Order or of it until he arrived in Nurnberg?

DR. KOESSL: Your Honor, as for that Fuehrer Order which decreed the so-called final solution, he only heard about that here. The other Fuehrer Order, however, which has become the subject of this trial, concerning the elimination of Jews in the East, that, of course, he knew, but he did not know the Fuehrer Order concerning the extermination of the entire Jewish population in Europe. I think this latter order was decreed in April, 1942.

THE WITNESS: This is the one that I only found out about in Nurnberg. BY DR. KOESSL:

Q Did you servo in the SS during the war?

A Only within the SD, otherwise never. Of course, the SD is part of the SS.

Q Did you receive any decoration for your assignment in Russia? in Russia received after having been there for some time in Russia, especially in the winter, no matter whether he was a clerk in the office or he was a cook in the kitchen or a soldier in the field.

Q Did you receive no other decorations?

Q When were you promoted last?

Q That then was before the Russian assignment? order to hush up your activity with the Special Commando 7b and your activity in the SD?

A No, after the capitulation on the l6th of May, 1945. I voluntarily turned myself over to the English secret service in Rendsburg, and in my first short interrogation I mentioned the fact of my Russian assignment.

DR. KOESSL: This ends my direct examination, Your Honor.

My colleague, Dr. Gawlik, wanted to put a few questions to the witness, but he happens not to be here. If Your Honor agrees, I shall put the questions to the witness which my colleague Gawlik wanted to ask him.

THE PRESIDENT: We will certainly permit you to do that, and when Dr. Gawlik does actually return to the Courtroom, if you have not covered what he desires that you put to the witness, we will permit him to put those questions.

DR. KOESSL: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: May I say something? Your Honor, I have one request. I would like to point out two mistakes in the documents, and I would like to clarify them.

THE PRESIDENT: All right.

THE WITNESS: They are only two short statements which I would make. In Document 3943-PS. page 261, it says: "In the report -- "

THE PRESIDENT: Which book? Which book, do you know?

THE WITNESS: I am not in a position to say, Your Honor.

DR. KOESSL: Which is the report concerned here?

THE WITNESS: It is the report of my recall, which is wrongly stated in there. It is in the report of events of July 1942, report of events, No. 13, of 24 July 1942.

DR. KOESSL: Which is the place which you want to point out to us?

THE PRESIDENT: Have you found the book?

DR. KOESSL: No, I haven't found the book, and I can't imagine what the witness can mean. It is the location report.

THE PRESIDENT: We ought to have the document before us so we can follow his explanation. Is it your personnel record; is that the one?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, a short while ago I copied that from the files, and I unfortunately forgot to mention the document volume in my notes.

DR. KOESSL: Which is the report of events?

THE WITNESS: No. 13 of the 24th of July, July.

DR. KOESSL: No. 13. It is possible that it is a situation and reports of events, a situation and operation report. This is the kind of report which was only issued after April and was sent to Berlin. It is on page 261.

THE PRESIDENT: But which book? That is what we are trying to determine.

DR. KOESSL: I think I can clarify this mistake, Your Honor, myself. I don't think we need the clarification.

PRESIDENT: It couldn't be in a document book with that page number because it is doubtful that there is a document book that goes as high as page 261.

DR. KOESSL: I think it has not been submitted, Your Honor. I would like to clarify this, and I would like to correct it tomorrow morning.

THE WITNESS: It is the collective volume--the collective reports from the occupied eastern territories.

DR. KOESSL: The volumes concerned have only been submitted in the original, and the excerpts at your disposal do not contain, of course, the entire reports, and for this reason the witness seems to be thinking of a particular point which is not contained here. I shall clarify it tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT: Very well.

WITNESS: It says here-

PRESIDENT: Witness, we will be able to follow you much better if we have the document, and perhaps by tomorrow morning we will have it, and then you can tell us about it. You may proceed with the questions for Dr. Gawlik. BY DR. KOESSL: Document Book IIB, you state that the chief of the Einsatzgruppe B, Neumann, ordered that valuables which had belonged to executed people should be turned over to the Einsatzgruppe D. Did you receive this order from Naumann himself?

A No. I have already pointed out on one occasion that my predecessor, Obersturmbannfuehrer Rausch, told me that the chief of Einsatzgruppe B had ordered that all valuables be turned over via the Einsatzgruppe B. Involuntarily I thought of the name, Naumann, because at that time when I was told this, Naumann was the chief of the Court No. II, Case No. IX.

Einsatzgruppe B. I didn't think of the fact then that Naumann had not been there from the beginning but that before him Obergruppenfuahrer Nebehad been in charge.

Q Did Naumann ever give you any order for any execution? the carrying out of an execution. make the measures of your Commando more severe and to increase your activity?

Q Did you ever receive a proof personally of Naumann's activity as chief of Einsatzgruppe B and what the general judgment was? Oh, there is Dr. Gawlik.

A Yes, in a very curious manner. In the fall 1944 Einsatzgruppe B, I think it was in Eastern Prussia, was dissolved. The personnel files which had arrived at Einsatzgruppe B during the war were sent off to the home stations of the commandos concerned or to the members of the group staff.

PRESIDENT: Dr. Gawlik, are you aware that Dr. Koessl is putting these questions for you?

DR. GAWLIK: Yes, I am aware of it.

PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: The man in charge of administration of Einsatzgruppe B in Smolensk was the administrative chief of the state police office in Saarbruecken. And my original office had been the SD Department Saarbruecken. Therefore, when these files in the fall 1944 were sent to the home stations, I, in my own office, received the personnel files of this administrative chief and my papers want to the chief of police in Saarbruecken. They thus got mixed up. Since it was an ordinary open letter, not a secret of any kind, I, of course, took the liberty to read the file, especially as I knew the man and his activity. And this file contained a correspondence between the Third Chief of Court No. II, Case No. IX.

Einsatzgruppe B and, therefore, the successor of Naumann, Boehme, and the Chief of the Security Police and SD, Kaltenbrunner. Boehme had written a lengthy report to Kaltenbrunner concerning Naumann's leadership of the Einsatzgruppe. The copy of this report was in this file because this report dealt to a large extent with this administrative chief from Saarbrucken. I remember perfectly and I told Neumann that when I saw him here that among other things, Boehme had said in his letter to Kaltenbruhner that Naumann's leadership of the Einsatzgruppe had not been severs enough, Naumann had not given his officers enough leeway and had watched them like a sergeant. A copy of this report by Boehme was the answer to an original inquiry by Kaltanbruhner, included in these files.

PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, do you want all this, or are you just taking it just because you can't get out of it?

DR. KOESSL: It only was supposed to give us a picture of Naumann's activity as seen, from his immediate vicinity and by his superior at the time. The witness could express it a little more briefly.

PRESIDENT: We do not say that it is irrelevant if it refers to the defendant Naumann. He certainly has the right to have the witness tell this episode, but perhaps it should be related under the control of either you or Dr. Gawlik because obviously the witness is telling it in a very rambling fashion and not getting directly to the point which perhaps you desire.

DR. KOESSL: Then, witness, be a little more brief and tell me how was the activity of Naumann regarded by others.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I can express this in one single sentence.

DR. KOESSL: Please do that.

THE WITNESS: In the second copy of the letter from Boehme to Kaltenbrunner it said that Naumann's leadership was not severe enough and that he did not give his officers enough freedom of action. The Court No. II, Case No. IX.

report furthermore dealt with the conditions in the Einsatzgruppe, with the personal changes requested by Boehme, and also dealt with the relationship to the Wehrmacht. BY DR. KOESSL: the Jewish question, that is, that his measures were not severe enough? report.

DR. KOESSL: I have no other questions.

PRESIDENT: Does any other defense counsel wish to cross examine the witness?

DR. BLUME: Dr. Blume representing Dr. Lummert for the defendant Blume. BY DR. BLUME: the manner of reporting of the first chief of Einsatzgruppe B, SS Brigadefuehrer Nebe? to Berlin and was about to return from Berlin to Russia, I went to Prinz Albrecht Strasse Number 9 where a certain official, Schreefelt, issued my travel orders. manner of reporting of Nebe? the first time. He asked me concerning the conditions in the commandos and in Einsatzgruppe B, and he asked me whether Einsatzgruppe B i ny opinion sent out modified reports because Nebe had written a number of so-called modified reports. He said a few more things, I don't remember what, but I think he said that he had exaggerated his figures and had overemphasized his own capability. Men and officers who had arrived from the front had told him that. That is all I have to say Court No. II, Case No. IX.

on that.

DR. BLUME: I have no further questions, Sir.

PRESIDENT: Any other defense counsel wish to cross examine? If not, Mr. Ferencz may begin the cross examination for the prosecution.

BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q Ott, when did you join, the SD? collaborator for the SD Sector in Munich. At that time, however, I was still a member of the General SS. I joined the SD on a full-time basis on 1 October 1935. not? is that correct? ination that on 15 or 16 March when Naumann came to see you, you discussed with him the Fuehrer Order for the extermination of the Jews, is that correct? about the Fuehrer Order because I asked Naumann whether the manner in which it had been reported to my by my predecessor, Bausch, was correct. and had to be carried out. That is correct, is it not?

A I have made a statement to this effect before, Mr. Prosecutor. Naumann said to me - I think I remember it almost literally, although it is five years ago. He said, "This Fuehrer Order gives me misgivings, and as far as my own feeling is concerned I object to it, but we have to carry it out as soldiers, and nobody will be able to help us. on to you?

A That is completely mistaken. The order was passed on to me by my predecessor who was Obersturmbannfuehrer Rausch. Naumann merely, three weeks later, confirmed the existence and the content matter of the order to me, upon my own request.

Rausch was correct or was not, and it was correct.

Q And your conclusion is that Naumann confirmed the order?

DR. GAWLICK: I object to this question, Your Honor. The witness only has to give us the facts but cannot draw conclusions. He has made a statement concerning the facts, that is, the discussion between Naumann and the witness, and the legal validity of the conclusion to be drawn is a matter for the Tribunal and not a matter for the witness.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, I asked the witness if as a subordinate to Naumann be considered it a fact that Naumann had passed the order on to him. He said that was not quite accurate. My present question to which the objection has been raised is whether Naumann then confirmed the order which he had already received. I am just trying to clarify the witness' answer.

THE PRESIDENT: Ordinarily this question could not be objected to because it is cross examination, but the cross examination in this instance is a little bit different from the ordinary cross examination because the question does not refer only to the witness but to someone else, and someone else should not be made to suffer from a question put to the witness when he is not able to control that question or answer. In other words, Dr. Gawlick's observation, we believe, is a just one, because you were putting in the form of a leading question which tends to damage Naumann, and this witness is not in any way representing Naumann.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, I would like to point out that this witness was asked by a defense counsel representing the defendant Naumann questions concerning Naumann and that I am simply trying to clarify on cross examination questions and matters which have already been raised on the direct examination of this defendant.

THE PRESIDENT: If in the examination put by the attorney for Naumann the witness stated something to which you take exception, you may cross examine on that.

MR. FERENCZ: Yes, Your Honor. As I understood it, the defense counsel was trying to elicit from this witness the statement that Naumann did not order any executions to be carried out as a result of the Fuehrer Order. I am questioning him directly on that point to try to refute that point inasmuch as on his direct examination he stated that he discussed the question with Naumann on 15 and 16 March and at that time Naumann told him it had to be carried out.

THE PRESIDENT: Try to put the question, Mr. Ferencz, perhaps a little more objectively so that in it you do not have a conclusion. BY MR. FERENCZ: him tell you that the Fuehrer Order had to be carried out?

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Dixon makes the observation that it would appear that Naumann had reiterated the order from what the witness stated, and if that be true, then you don't need to go into whether it was confirmed or not because when you say "confirm" it implies so many other things.

MR. FERENCZ: I asked the witness first whether Naumann had passed on the order.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. FERENCZ: He said that was not quite accurate. Perhaps the word "confirmed" is also a bit vague.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. FERENCZ: And I thank the Tribunal for the correction.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q I will use the wording of the Tribunal. Did Naumann reiterate the Fuehrer Order to you?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I should like to say the same as I have said on 21 February in my interrogation at a time when my comrades and I generally believed that Naumann was dead. I was here for three months last year as a witness, and everybody said, beginning with the former Higher-SS and Police Leader Dr. Martin, that Naumann had taken poison after the capitulation. Therefore, there was no reason for me, if I was of the firm belief that Naumann was dead, to withhold anything about about him and that is how it was; and as I have stated now, after my arrival on 17 or 18 February in Bryansk, Rausch told me about the Fuehrer Order. I believed him because all the leaders of the Kommandos confirmed to me that they had been working according to this order for seven or eight months, and when Naumann on 15 or 16 March came to see me in Orel in order to turn over the Kommando to me, I told him Rausch announced this order to me in this and that form; is that correct? And he said, "Yes, that is correct", and that is how it was, and that is how I stated it in my interrogation. He said, "I have serious misgivings about this order, but we are soldiers; we have to carry it out, and no God will help us." He furthermore said, "Please work in a correct manner; be a good leader to your men. I do not chase after high execution figures."

Q Do you remember the interrogation by Mr. Wartenberg when he asked you about the collection of the valuables of the victims of executions? these valuables in so many words? "What happened to the valuables of those people?" I was surprised because the term "valuables" was a little exaggerated considering Russian conditions. The old junk that they had could hardly be called valuables. I told him that Rausch had informed me that by order of the Einsatzgruppe B these objects had to be turned over via the ordinary channel of command.

he asked you about the collection of valuables? Did he say, "Were these collected upon the order of Naumann?" received at the time from Rausch in which Rausch talked about this chief of the Einsatzgruppe B, and because at that time it happened to be Brigadefuehrer Naumann, I involuntarily thought at the time that this could be correct. collection of valuables was "yes", isn't that correct? had ever had a predecessor in Russia. you repeated the statement that Naumann had ordered the collection of valuables, and in which you stated that eighty to one hundred executions took place under your command, do you recall the circumstances under which that affidavit was taken? signed it? opportunity to read it and study it before you signed it?

A Mr. Wartenberg, whose name at the time I did not know, handed to the affidavit, I think including five copies, across the table. He gave to a fountain pen and he also gave me a cigaret, and he said, "Sign it". Of course, I read it first and what seemed to me the most obvious was that he added - and which was taken out of thin air concerning the operation Eisbaer, - that men were shot and that Partisan suspects had been shot.

That was the most striking point for me.

Q what was it that he had added specifically? bands and people suspected of belonging to bands had been shot. If you look at the original, you can confirm that I crossed out this sentence and that I put my own initials in front of this.

Q Now would you please answer my first question? Were you given an opportunity to read and study the affidavit before you were asked to sign it?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Mr. Ferencz, it appears that there were two affidavits, one which was submitted and the witness corrected, is that right?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, on the 21st of February I was interrogated and on the 24th of April an excerpt of my interrogation in the shape of an affidavit was shown to me.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Otherwise there was nothing.

THE PRESIDENT: That is right. Now this affidavit which was given to you in April, is that the affidavit which we have before us here?

THE WITNESS: Yes, that is the one. The interrogation was in February, and the affidavit was made in April.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, With the elimination or the cancellation which you referred to not actually reproduced in this document which we have before us; that was omitted bodily.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: I see.

THE WITNESS: It is only contained in the original.

THE PRESIDENT: That is right.

Mr. Ferencz, would you want to suspend until tomorrow morning, or de you have a question or two which you would prefer to put right now?

MR. FERENCZ; Well, I just have one or two questions in a few minutes and then I will be through with the question of the affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. Will you please answer the question then? Did you have time to read and study the affidavit which is now before the Court before you signed it?

A. Mr. Wartenberg gave me the fountain pen and gave me a cigaret, a he thought I would sign blindly. I said I would like to read it, and immediately this distortion struck me about thus Eisbaer (polar bear) operation. I said I would. not sign it. You've invented this; I have already described the operation Eisbaer to you for about a quarter of an hour with all details. I think I made a remark to the effect that this was too clumsy a remark and I asked him to cross it out. He made no further objection and laughed.

Q. Would you please answer my questions, and I would appreciate it if you would answer them briefly. Did you have time to read it and did you : fact read the affidavit before you signed it, "yes" or "no"?

A. Yes, sir, I reread it.

Q. And you have just told us you made certain corrections, is that correct?

A. Yes, It was quite an extensive job because I took great care to cross it out in the copies. There were about five or six copies. The whole desk was full of papers.

Q. And you initialled each of those corrections on all five or six copies, isn't that so?

A. Yes.

Q. And Were you reminded before signing this paper, this affidavit, that you were under oath?

A. This I had been told during the interrogation two months previously, and it said so, I think, at either the beginning or the end of the affidavit, I believe so.

Q. You recall having been reminded by Mr. Wartenberg that you were still under oath before he gave you this affidavit?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And there is another oath at the end of the affidavit, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, that is what I said.

Q. And there was no throat or force used in any way or any promise of immunity, isn't that correct?

A. No. I already mentioned, Mr. Prosecutor, that no pressure or duress was used against me. On the contrary, he was very nice to me. He offered me a cigaret repeatedly, but I was still under the suspicion all th time that he was trying to cheat me. After all, I had to be very careful, but I did not suspect that he would cheat me two months after the interrogation, in that he put in there.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, witness, he handed you the document with his fountain pen and a cigaret. You read over the document. You made there eliminations on all the five copies. You signed with his fountain pen. You lit the cigaret. You gave him back the fountain pen, and that ended the transaction. Is that the way it was?

THE WITNESS: That is the way.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. thirty.

defendants, sitting' at Nuernberg, Germany,

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. Tribunal.

DR. GAWLIK: Gawlik for Seibert, Your Honor, please permit me to have the defendant, Seibert, excused this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon, because I want to prepare the Document Books with him.

PRESIDENT: The defendant, Seibert, will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon. And also for tomorrow all day?

DR. GAWLIK: In the afternoon.

PRESIDENT: He will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon.

DR. KOESSL: Koessl for the defendant, Schubert. I would like the defendant, Schubert, to be excused tomorrow the whole day in order to be able to prepare his defense with him.

PRESIDENT: The defendant, Schubert, will be excused from attendance in court tomorrow in accordance with the request of his counsel. You may proceed, Mr. Ferencz.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. FERENCZ: defendant, Blume?

A Is that right -- do I understand Blume? No.

Q Did you ever meet the defendant, Steimler?

Q Did you ever meet the defendant Six?

Q Did you ever meet the defendant, Klingelhoefer?

Q Under what'circumstances did you meet the defendant, Klingelhoefer? B, for the first time, I think in June or the beginning of July 1942, and we had on this occasion a discussion - a service discussion. After that I met him a second time when on the occasion of the supply trip on the second or third of June I returned and I spent the night in Smolensk. when you spoke to him in Smolensk? was sitting at the same table with all the other leaders who were present for the Conference. If I am not mistaken, he was at the far corner of the table with the administrative officers. When I was in Smolensk again the second time, that was on a morning Klingelhoefer was sitting in a room and took excerpts from a Russian book. Klingelhoefer? first time, I did not discuss any official matters with him, but I do know that when I met him again for the second time upon my return from my trip, I sat with him for quite a long time, in the evening and on that occasion we discussed matters explicitly for about two hours, particularly the problems of the Russian territory.

It was only on that occasion that I learned that Klingelheefer had been born in Moscow and had been living in Russia for some time. Fuehrer Order?

A No. I did not discuss it with him.

Q Did you discuss with him the executions of partisans?

A I don't think so because the subject of discussion was mainly the political, economical, and cultural structure of the Soviet Union. time?

A Neumann's deputy? No, certainly not. 15th of February 1942 you reported to Naumann at Smolensk, is that correct? commando leader of Commando 7B, is that correct? and 19th of February? to that time, Rausch, remained with you to acquaint you with the tasks until the 15th or the 16th of March, is that correct? the 16th of March, who was actually in command -- were you in command, but he remained to familiarize you with the tasks or did he still retain the title of Commander of Commando 7B? to be in charge of the commando.

The decisions concerning this were up to him. He conducted discussions with the Wehrmacht authorities. He signed the reports. On the 15th or the 16th of March the then Oberfuehrer and police chief, Naumann, arrived at Bryansk which at that time was the H.Q. of the commando; he had a social evening with us and the next morning, I think it was a Sunday, before lined-up the men, he dismissed Rausch and turned the commando over to me. the 15th of February, does that mean that there were two commanders between February and March?

A No, not two commanders. I had been detailed from Berlin, and Naumann had orders that Rausch should familiarize me with my tasks for about three weeks, because this was my first independent and responsible assignment in a commando and because it was my first work in a police assignment, Rausch in any way?

A No. I could not do so. what the commando should do, whose order controlled, yours or Rausch's, during 15th of February and the 19th of March 16th of March? fact. did you ever oppose the fuehrerorder by word or by deed?

A How am I to understand this, what you mean "object", "oppose"?

Fuehrer Order should not be enforced?

A No. The members of my commando were, since the beginning of the Russian campaign, that is since June 1941, acted according to the fuehrer order, as it had been made known to them in Pretzsch or Dueben. Even the subcommandos worked in accordance with this order and quite independently at that.

Q Did you ever do anything to oppose the order?

A Yes, and I said in my interrogation to Mr. Wartenberg in February on one occasion, it was I think in June, I gave the orders to my three subcommando leaders in writing that they, on their own responsibility and independence must no longer work as they had worked up to then, I made it the duty of the subcommando leaders to submit all the documents pertaining to investigations, my commando in Orol for review. or to hinder the carrying out of the fuehrerorder? because when in 1942 I arrived in Russia, the fuehrerorder had already been carried out for five months in my territory, and it was, therefore, no longer topical. unable to, and did not do anything to oppose the fuehrerorder, is that correct?

A I cannot deduce that. Not having had a possibility, I had other tasks to deal with. because of the circumstances, do anything to oppose the fuehrerorder? upon my arrival did not necessitate the execution of the fuehrerorder any longer.

PRESIDENT; I think, Mr. Ferencz, he answered the question right at the very beginning. Now, if he wants to amplify on that or if you want some further specification, that is another matter, but that question, it seems to me, was spoken in this language, "Did you ever oppose the fuehrerorder by word or deed." It seems to me that is the way you put the question, and I heard the defendant reply in the German "Nein", then translated, "NO".

MR. FERENCZ: Is that correct, Witness?

THE WITNESS: I said that I saw no point any longer in doing anything because the fuehrerorder was no longer topical in my territory. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q Then you answered that question with "No", is that correct? thereupon I said that I gave my subcommandos the order that they could not independently carry out executions any longer but the document pertaining to these masters should be sent to the commando for investigation. That is what I said. question the Tribunal just put. I asked you -- the first question was "Did you ever oppose the fuehrerorder by word or deed", did you answer "Nein", Yes or No?

A Thank you. To the best of my knowledge, as a commando leader, you would say, wouldn't you, that all the commandos regularly carried out the executions?

DR. KOESSL: I object to this question, Your Honor, because the defendant cannot possibly state what other commandos did.

This is different in time and locality. This is a question which cannot be answered for one particular period, and certainly not for all the commandos.

PRESIDENT: Well, Dr. Koessl, in the first place, this defendant was the company commander, he was the leader of the commando and, therefore, chargeable with all activities of the commando. In the second place, Mr. Ferencz included in his question, "to the best of my knowledge and belief", did his subcommandos conduct executions. There can certainly be no objection to a question put in that form. It seems entirely fair and reasonable. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q Would you answer the question, please?

A I think we do not meet on this point. The prosecutor did not ask me concerning subcommandos, but he asked me about the activity of the commandos, that is how it was, wasn't it?

PRESIDENT: Well, then answer it with regard to the commandos.

THE WITNESS: This question I am unable to answer clearly and explicitly. From March '42 until January 1943, I saw the leaders of other commandos only twice during official discussions in Smolensk and as a result of those meetings I have no clear impressions about the activities of the other commandos. After all, one must consider especially concerning the bad conditions of roads and transport in Russia, that my neighboring commando, 7A, was for instance about 500 kilometers distant.

PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, apparently I made a mistake. Did you ask whether he know that other commandos had carried out the executions?

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, my question was, "To the best of your knowledge as a commando leader, you would say, wouldn't you, that all the commandos regularly carried out such executions ?"

PRESIDENT: Well, I misunderstood that. I thought you were asking him to express whether his commando carried out the executions; but I see now what it is, and you may proceed along that line, and I can understand more thoroughly now, Dr. Koessl's objection that certainly he wouldn't be charged with knowledge as to what other commando leaders did; however, if he does know, then certainly he can answer it, if he doesn't know, then he doesn't know, then that answers that.

carefully. My question is, however, that now as you look back upon what occurred in Sonderkommando 7-B under your command, do you have any feeling of regret or remorse? Do you feel that something wrong was done? wrong happened. I have pity for those people who during the course of the war have lost their lives, somewhere and I was convinced that our opponents in Russia had also their own ideology as well as I had my own ideology, and if in accordance with the Fuehrer Order and in accordance with the necessity for the security of the troops we had to shoot people here and there, than it was certainly not an easy task for us. These executions were not only very serious for those people concerned, but without the slightest doubt also for those who had to carry them out.

MR. FERENCZ: We have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Any redirect examination, Dr. Koessl?

DR. GAWLIK: Gawlick for the defendant Naumann. the cross examination, concerning the relationship with the defendant Naumann.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed. BY DR. GAWLICK: yesterday whether the defendant Naumann confirmed the Fuehrer Order. In accordance with this I have the following question: Can you make statements as to whether the defendant Naumann attached particular attention to the Kommandos under his leadership developing a special activity in the carrying out of the Fuehrer Order? following: I do remember that Herr Naumann told me on 15 or 16 March Court No. II, Case No. IX.

when I asked him to confirm to me the accuracy of the Fuehrer Order as it was handed to me by Rausch, "I am not a hunter for high figures." That is what he said, and that is what I remember, and Herr Naumann knew then very well that in the area of the Second Panzer Army, which was also my field of activity, there were a number of sectors which we had not dealt with because they were practically impossible to deal with.

Q That is sufficient, witness. Is it correct that the reproach was made by the superior of the defendant Naumann that in the carrying out of the Fuehrer Order he showed too little activity and that he mainly tried to develop activities concerning another field, which has nothing to do with this. Do you remember that? in your absence, Dr. Gawlick, my defense counsel, Dr. Koessl, asked me concerning these particular points.

Q Perhaps you can answer the question "yes" or "no". Is it correct that the superiors of the defendant Naumann reproached him that in the carrying out of the Fuehrer Order he did not develop enough activity?

A I can neither answer the question "yes" or "no". This reproach was not raised by Kaltenbrunner, who was his superior, but Naumann's successor, Boehme, and that is what I said yesterday, I think. fendant Naumann was active in another field. It wasn't quite clearly expressed, witness, yesterday. Please, therefore, repeat it, will you? personal file -

Q What was it that became evident from this file, witness?

A Well, please let me tell you the story. There were two copies of letters from Naumann's successor filed and in this the reproach was made that Naumann had not sufficient power of command over his Einsatzgruppe and his officers, He was not strict enough with his officers, and, therefore, he should contact the officers of the Rear Army Territory concerning partisan activity and partisan combat.

DR. GAWLICK: Thank you. I have no further questions.

DR. KOESSL: Yesterday, Your Honor, the witness wanted to make a statement concerning an alleged mistake in a document. I now have obtained the document from the office of Mr. Niebergall, and perhaps it would be the best thing if the witness would point out the place that he wanted to object to.

THE PRESIDENT: Let him have the document.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, before the witness points out any objection to the document, I would like to ask whether the document has been offered in evidence here either by the Prosecution or the Defense.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Koessl, is the document in evidence?

DR. KOESSL: It has not been submitted yet, Your Honor, In my Document Book 2 there are excerpts from it, but I am not quite certain whether the defendant wanted to refer to one of these excerpts. I had no occasion to speak to him last night because he was being cross examined. I, therefore, would like to show him the document, and it will immediately become evident.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, if the document has not been offered in evidence and the defendant does not propose to offer it at this time,I object to any comment being made on the document and ask that the correction be made at the time it is offered.

THE PRESIDENT: We can't very well, Dr. Koessl, go into a discussion of a document which is not before the Tribunal. It would only be in the nature of a private conversation.

DR. KOESSL: I don't deem it necessary for this document to be discussed. What seemed necessary to me I shall submit, and I only wanted to comply with the order of the President in ascertaining the document concerned.

THE PRESIDENT: If you desire, we will gladly give you whatever time you desire, right now. It is only a question of,two or three minutes, five minutes, to take that to the witness and, off the record, discuss the matter with him, and then if because of what you learned from him you wish to introduce a document, then you may introduce it and then he can make whatever statement he desires about that document, but your discussion with him cannot be a part of the record because there is no document before us for discussion.

DR. KOESSL: I thank you very much for your kindness, Your Honor. I think I can do this in two minutes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Please do not talk into the micro

DR. KOESSL: Yes.

THE WITNESS: May I say something else, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, after you have conferred with your counsel, you may.

DR. KOESSL: Your Honor, what the witness wanted to say appears in my Document Book 4 Ott, and will be submitted later. His statements deal very briefly only with one particular point in connection with the probative value of the documents themselves, and therefore I would like him to make a brief statement.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, the probative value of any document is a matter for the Tribunal, and I repeat my objection to any discussion of a document which has not been offered in evidence.

DR. KOESSL: Your Honor, in that case I shall not hear the witness make this statement, but I can assure the Prosecution that it would have been to their advantage if the witness had made the statement.

BY DR. KCESSL: voluntary?

A You mean in Russia?

A Yes. Repeatedly the executions carried out by other units were also reported about, but certainly with a remark saying that these were other units or other detachments which had carried than out. I dealt briefly yesterday with the existence of the self-administrative detachment Lokot. That was an administrative district which was under a Russian leader and which also upheld quite an extensive militia. This particular militia unit carried out operations independently and also executions,

DR. KOESSL: Thank you, Your Honor. I have no further questions. BY THE PRESIDENT: on page 58. Yesterday you stated that under your orders and instructions your Kommando executed twenty Jews because they were Jews. In the report which appears on pages 57 and 58 you will find on page 58 the phrase, "specially treated by Sonderkommando 7-B", and then the enumeration of the people who were killed. The last item is "twentyseven Jews", Now you said yesterday that you only killed twenty because they were Jews. This report indicates that there were twentyseven Jews killed because they were Jews. How do you account for the difference in numbers?

did yesterday during my direct examination. In the preceding months and that is during a period of three months no reports were supplied concerning executions and other police activities of the Einsatzgruppe B. This report deals with a period from 6 to 30 March. That covers a period of reporting which did not exist for us at the time, because according to orders our reports were made at the deadline of the. 1st and 15th of each month. The compiling of reports from the 6th to the 30th is something so unusual that doubtlessly one of the superior agencies either the Einsatzgruppe or RSHA, to whom these reports after all went, an arbitrary compiling had been made. This I presume even more so since in this document all Kommandos of the Einsatzgruppe B are combined in this period from the 6th to the 30th. My neighboring Kommando, if this report would be assumed correct, would have executed two weeks after the happenings described therein occurred, This report is dated 21 April. Therefore, the executions would have occurred still in April, in the first week of April, when you were actually in the field with the Kommando. So, therefore, why wouldn't this enumeration be correct? necessarily as a basis. I remind you of the document containing the report about the operation "Eisbaer" which only appeared seven weeks after the actual operation. Therefore, one cannot always say it is two weeks. I can remember that on occasions four or five weeks passed and then a report was made. Now are we to understand that the report was delayed in each instance just long enough to get beyond the time that you were involved? apparently made after a few weeks, apparently two weeks, but another report was made after seven weeks, I do not want to say that it was Court No. II, Case No. IX.

Q Did the Jews also speak Russian?

Q Yes. What designating characteristic proved that a Jew was a Jew? a Jew were not very difficult to establish, whether they be White Ruthenians or Great Russians or whatever they were, The Eastern Jew especially in Russia in his appearance is so characteristic that you cannot mix them up for anybody else. Furthermore, the people concerned when asked did always volunteer to give us their race or nationality. They never denied that.

as contrary to humanity, could you not have "salved " your conscience and your sensibilities by having released one helpless, piteous, defenseless Jew?

A Your Honor, first of all I didn't see a defenseless Jew, because wherever we captured Jews it was in the territories of the Partisan groups, they were rather militarilly fit , but even if a defenseless Jew had been sent to me and I would have to reach a decision and I could not have made an exception. and because of the Fuehrer Order which you felt compelled to follow? shot them down? defenseless. That is correct, isn't it?

Q Yes. How, witness, you spoke yesterday of executing a Jewess. On page 45 of your Document Book a reference is made to Jewesses. Did you kill more than one woman Jew?

A Your Honor, this is a report of 23 March 1942. This matter is unknown to me.

Q Very well, we won't waste any time on it then. How many executions did you witness, Ott?

Q How many people were involved in those executions? rogation was discussed. This was in Bryansk during my training period -

Q I just want to know, how many?

Q Six. The second execution how many were killed? near or at least in the vicinity of Orel -

Q How many were killed?

Q The third execution, how many were killed? to my recollection there were eleven people involved. I remember the incident why they were executed.

Q Yes. You indicated that when you went into Russia, that you didn't know the object of your mission. As we recall your testimony, you went to the RSHA in Berlin, and asked for on assignment; you indicated you wanted to go to the front; at any rate, later on you were called and you were given this assignment in Russia. In view of the fact that you had particularly asked for an assignment, why is it that you did not learn what the assignment was to be? I received by writing, and in this decree it merely said, "You are detailed to Einsatzgruppe D, and you will be in charge of the Special commando VII-B", and it said a little more there, "You will have to report to the chief of Einsatzgruppe" in Smolensk or something to that effect. would be?

Q You, at no time, denounced the ideology of the Nazi Party? National Socialist at heart.

Q Yes, You took the oath to Hitler?

Q You took it voluntarily? oath to Hitler? to me that Adolf Hitler said, in 1933, in the Braune Haus in Munich, during a training course, for the SA: "No SA man and no Party member need ever have any pangs of conscience - if he gives his oath of allegiance to me".

Q And you accepted that?

Q And acted according to it during all the time of your service?

Q Do you regret ever having taken that oath to Hitler? with just one word. I was a National Socialist, and until the very last days of this war I was convinced of this idea, and I was of the conviction that Hitler had wanted to do his best for his Fatherland, and, I believe if the and of this war had been different, than we had expected during good times, then those were not the ideas which were at fault but the bearers of the idea who were at fault.

A We, at the time, didn't think of it in that way as a conqueror of Europe, but as a protection to Europe.

Q Yes. You would have been satisfied to have see, all of Europe protected by Hitler?

Q Just as Czechoslovakia was protected; just as Holland was protected; just as Belgium was protected; just as France was protected; just as Norway was protected, and all those countries were protected, that is the way you would like to have seen it? completely different possibilities and conditions would have been obtained and that a satisfied and happy collaboration of all European countries could have been brought about. I was convinced of that.

Q Did you ever hear any of Himmler's speeches?

Q Did you also believe in Himmler?

A Your Honor, just I answer this question?

THE PRESIDENT: You do not. The witness will be returned to the defendants, dock and the defendant Klingelhoefer will be taken to the witness stand.

(witness excused)

JUDGE DIXON: Witness, hold up your right hand and repeat after me:

"I swear by God -- "

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, please. Can you hear it now. Do you hear that?

THE INTERPRETER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

JUDGE DIXON: "I swear by God, the Almighty and Omniscient, that I will speak the pure truth, end will withhold and add nothing." You may be seated.

(Whereupon the witness repeated the oath)

DR. MAYER: Dr. Erich Karl Meyer for the defendant Klingelhoefer. Your Honor, before I begin with the direct examination of the defendant, I would like something to be corrected in the records. In the German record of 16 October 1947, in the afternoon session, approximately 1330 to 1630 hours, during my examination of the defendant Naumann in the witness stand, it was established that the witness Naumann helped, recommended the defendant Klingelhoefer to receive a decoration of war merit cross,1st class; it is on page 855 and page 856 of the German record, and the English record concerning the same examination, on page 846, talks about the defendant Klingelhoefer having received the Iron Cross of first class "Iron-Cross (Eiserne kreuz)". I want to correct the records and show now that the English record shows a mistake in translation, and that the defendant Klingelhoefer only got a minor decoration, the War Merit Cross, first class.

THE COURT: Mr. Ferencz, do you see any reasons why that correction should not be made?

MR. FERENCZ: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Dr. Mayer's statement will be made a part of the record, and of itself will work the correction of the transcript.

DR. MAYER: Thank you.

BY DR. MAYER:

Q. Witness, before I put my first question to you, I shall remind you to speak slowly and take great care that the question is translated before you start answering it. The direct examination, your Honor, will be in three parts, the political activity, including the Russian assignment; part two I shall deal with discussion of documents, and in part three: The activity of his in Office VI of the Reich Security Main Office.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY MR. MAYER:

Q. Witness, please give us your full name.

A. My name is Waldemar Klingelhoefer.

Q. Please give us the date of your birth, your birthplace, and tell about your family.

A. I was born on 4 April 1900 in Moscow. Son of a Cemetery Director, Hans Klingelhoefer. I have been married since 1932, and I have bee married since 1932, and I have four children.

Q. What training did you receive before you joined the SS and the SD?

A. I attended school first of all in Moscow and then in Kassel the High School with a scholastic education, and in 1919 I passed my matriculation. After that I studied music. Then I became a concert singer, and a singing tutor. From 1933 until 1934 I was employed as en opera singer at the State Theatre of Kassel.

Q. Why and when did you join the NSDAP?

A. Through my relationship and connection in Russian circles in Germany, and my interest in my native country of Russia, I recognized the grave danger which Germany, and moreover Europe was threatened with by Bolshevism and its world revolutionary ideas; the development of conditions in Germany made me accept the conviction that the political opinions as held by the NSDAP were the only possible solution in order to fight the Bolshevist attacks on Europe which could be expected, and which was able to resist this attack.

This conviction made me decide to join the NSDAP as a member. On 1 June 1930 I became a member of the Party.

Q. When and for what reasons did you join the General-SS?

A. When in the Summer of 1932 I reckoned with a lengthy stay in Kassel, I applied for membership in the SS, the reason for the enlistment in the SS was due to the fact that immediately afterwards I was engaged in a concert tour, this enlistment didn't come into effect; but after I returned from this concert tour on 1 February 1933, I finally joined the General-SS.

Q. How and when did you go to the SD?

A. Through my membership in the General-SS, 1, as a native German, living abroad due to my linguistic capability was acquainted with the information service of the SD; when for reasons of health I had been forced to relinguish my profession as a singer, the suggestion was made to me to join the SD, which for reasons of my special knowledge was of great interest for the SD. As I had had no other training, and as I had to support my family, I accepted this proposal, and, on 1 December 1934 I joined the SD full time in the Kassel sector.

Q. What activity did you indulge up to the beginning of the war?

A. First, I became just an office worker without any special duties, as the SD sector in Kassel was only just being built up. From the Fall of 1936, I took in charge of the cultural department, and in 1937 I was confirmed a departmental expert for the department of culture in the SD sector of Kassel.

My assignment contained reporting, conditions the SD sector of Kassel.

In details there were the subjects ture. These reports served the purpose of information for the higher administrative authorities.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the executive?

A. No, my activity mostly consisted of compiling reports

Q. What kind of material was it then?

A. There were reports by the sub-offices which were re ceived for the individual subjects of culture.

These reports

Q. What happened to your reports?

A. Those reports were submitted to the chief of the SD

Q. Could your reports be used as the basis for persecu tion of any people, by the Gestapo?

A. No, these reports, in shape and content matter, dealt

Q. Did your activity change when the war broke out?

A. Yes. With the beginning of the war in September 1939, the population; and to the evaluation of propaganda end film government and conditioned by the war.

This reporting was a matter of two or three times a week.

Apart from this, from the middle of 1940, approximately, I translated Russian material concerning the Russian emigration in France, which was submitted to me from the agency of the Reich Security main Office in Paris. This work I continued until May 1941, that is, until I was detailed to Pretsch.

THE PRESIDENT: I think that seems a very likely point at which to stop for recess, Dr. Mayer.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I have two questions to ask before I start on a new subject. There questions are very brief. May I put them to the witness?

THE PRESIDENT: Certainly.

Q. Witness, these situation reports which you issued after the outbreak of the War, could they be used against people on the part of the prosecution authorities.

A. No. The whole nature of these reports about morale was the same as the nature of the reports which I had issued before the War.

Q. Your Honor, thank you. I think the next question can be put after the recess.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer proceed. DR. MAYER for Klingelhoefer: Einsatzkommando? order from the RSHA according to which I was to be sent to the Police Training School in Pretsch immediately. The purpose of this order was not given.

Q What happened in Pretsch?

A Nothing of importance happened in Pretsch. I was merely uniformed and equipped suitable for a frontal campaign. I was taken to the neighboring village of Schmiedeberg where I was injected against typhus, cholera and pox. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Witness, before you wont to Pretsch were you already in uniform? field uniform?

A Yes, in Pretsch I received a new uniform. When I received the order it said expressly I should go there in civilian clothes and that I would get a new uniform in Pretsch.

Q Did you sometimes wear civilian clothes during the war?

Q I see. Thank you. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Witness, was the purpose of these measures made known to you? Pretsch were called for a roll-call. On that occasion Streckenbach appeared together with a number of SS officers. There the officers and men who were lined up were divided into groups end Kommandos.

I myself came to Kommando VII-B as an interpreter. During this rollcall the officers and men were told by Streckenbach that this was an assignment which required from all officers and men their utmost in duty and the utmost in discipline. The Reichsfuehrer expected everyone to do his duty to the bitter end. After this roll-call the Einsatzgruppen were distributed. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q How many men were at this meeting, please?

A Your Honor, this was not a meeting. This was a roll cell in the open air. All the men were lined up there who were assigned to all the Einsatzgruppen A, B, C, or D, and during this roll call all the men were subdivided into Kommandos or Groups.

Q Well how many men in all were at this roll call?

A Your Honor, it is very difficult to estimate this. I cannot do that. gruppen A, B, C and D?

Q And who made speeches, only Streckenbach?

A Only Streckenbach spoke at this roll call. He just stated general instructions to the men for this assignment, without further instructions.

Q Did he go into details of any kind?

A No. Not at all. It was just e general speech.

Q Yes. Did Heydrich appear at this meeting?

A No. Heydrich arrived later.

Q I see, and do you remember the date of this roll call?

A No, Your Honor, I cannot remember that. That was about - well, I was ordered from Kassel in the end of May or the beginning of June and about two weeks later this roll call took place - about the middle of June.

BY DR. MAYER: Bad Dueben in the following time.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Mr. Mayer. BY DR. MAYER: kommandos were going to perform; what did Streckenbach say about this? the Einsatzkommandos. The speech was merely limited to general orientation about the duties of officers and men as soldiers during an assignment.

Q What tasks were carried out in Dueben? Sonderkommando 7b, and subdivided it. It was split up into two executive platoon and one SD platoon.

Q What tasks and orders did you yourself receive? of the Russian language, as an interpreter in the commando. The Commando Leader Rausch, however, gave me, being on SD man, the special order to organize the SD platoon. From the men I had. I selected those men who had come from the SD, or who because of their ability and their previous training seemed suitable for intelligence tasks. take place? before the Einsatzgruppe left Dueben to go to the Russian border, my Commando Chief Rausch made a roll call of his commando on which occasion he announced that Russia was the destination of the assignment. chief?

the security of the territory in the rear of the fighting units and the reporting on of important material, and also the usual reporting of the SD. Concerning the manner of warfare with Russia which was to be expected, Rausch said that Russia neither has recognized neither respected international law nor the Geneva Convention nor The Hague hale of Land Warfare, and therefore are had to expect that the enemy would conduct this war by all means possible and ruthlessly. Therefore, we would have to combat them in the same manner, and in the came ruthless manner. Therefore, the war laws and the courts martial were rescinded for this assignment by an order of the High Command of the Army as to the treatment of this enemy.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, may I have that again? I didn't quite catch it. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Witness, would you please repeat?

A From the beginning? consisting in the securing of the rear Army territory, reporting of all important material, as well as the general reporting of the S.D. Concerning the manner of warfare with Russia which we had to expect, Rausch said that Russia disregarded international law and the Geneva Convention or The Hague Convention of Land Warfare, and therefore, it had to be expected that the enemy would conduct this war ruthlessly and by using all possible means to achieve their end.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, now I did get that much of it. It is from this point on that it was a little difficult to grasp. How, state what you are going to state now a little slowly, please. BY DR. Mayer:

Therefore, the war laws and the courts martial were not to be applied concerning the enemy. These laws had been given by the Sigh Command. and they were to be disregarded as far as the enemy was concerned.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, here is where the difficulty arises. You say these laws had been given by the High Command and were to be disregarded so far as the enemy was concerned?

THE WITNESS: Yes, the commando leader said this, that this military law and this martial law should not be applied concerning the enemy in this case the USSR at the order of the High council.

THE PRESIDENT: Oh.

THE WITNESS: In this case this means Russia.

THE PRESIDENT: Could I state it this way, that the laws concerning the treatment of the enemy did not need to be followed in the fight against Russia because Russia itself was disregarding those some love?

THE WITNESS: Yes, that is the meaning.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Since great activity on the past of the opponent had to be expected in the rear of the fighting unit, all officers and men must be prepared to do their duty to the end. BY DR. MAYER:

Q What did Rausch say about the manner of securing the territory? Einsatzkommandos because of the fact that the Fuehrer had given an order to the effect that the Jews in the USSR were to be shot as being the strongest bearers of Bolshevism in Russia. The commander of the Security Police and the SD realized fully how hard this would be for the officers and men psychologically to execute this task. An attempt had been made to revoke,this order, but nothing was of avail, the order must be carried out by the commandos because of its necessity for the security. He refusal can be allowed because it is en order from the Supreme Command.

For he same reason, according to this Fuehrer Order, all political functionaries and Gypsies were to be shot as factors of danger in the occupied territory, women and children should also be shot?

A No, women and children were not mentioned expressly. It merely said, "Jews, functionaries end Gypsies". the Einsetzkommandos? his opinion that his commando, as a Sonderkommando, would have nothing to do with these measures. The Sonderkommandos would follow the advance troops without delay and would merely have to carry out the first security tasks; while carrying out the measures contained in the Fuehrer Order would be dealt with only by the following Einsatzkommandos who had been especially assigned to do this, and who would be stationary. the orders for the Einsatzkommando? beginning was that something extremely severe end sinister was to come about, My inner reaction was immediately to evade this as far me possible, although I fully realized at the time that the special situation raising from this war, this war again Russia, required special measures, and although I fully realized that the Jewry in Russia in its entirety as convinced followers of Bolshevism would constitute a great danger in the rear of the German Armies, my inner attitude however objected to this, that people should be killed without prowled any guilt. On the other hand, there was the order by the Supreme Commander of the State, and no one could contradict it, and not understanding the higher conceptions and ideas behind this, which the higher political and military Leadership of the state had, I had to assume that this measure was absolutely necessary in the interests of the successful ending of the war in the East, and therefore in the interest of the people and the State.

In this dissension of my feelings I avoided discussing this, and therefore did not mention it to anyone so as not to let anyone see too much of my reaction. I also noticed that the other officers and men felt similarly. The Fuehrer order was hardly mentioned, therefore, and was hardly ever discussed. Everyone knew that he would be forced to carry out this order if the situation should arise, and therefore, considered all discussions about it as useless.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, after this inner conflict that you have described, your feelings as against your conception of patriotism, your sensibilities as against your obedience to your superior officers, including the Chief of State, did you finally come to a conclusion?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I Came to the conclusion that the order had to be carried out, and that I also would have to carry it out if the situation should arise for me, but that I would use every opportunity in order to evade this order as for as possible.

THE PRESIDENT: You felt that your sense of duty was stronger than your aversion to the nature of the deed you were culled upon to perform?

THE WITNESS: My sense of duty, of course, was stronger.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. BY DR. MAYER: task I had been given as an expert in the SD, would have nothing to do with these executive tasks and therefore I would not be forced to carry then out. In fact, during my entire assignment in Russia. I never was given an order to carry out the Fuehrer Order.

Q Could you have objected to your being ordered to Pretsch? known to me. Beyond that, this was a military order in wartime which I could not disobey, for that reason alone. to staying in the Sonderkommando? Police and the SD, and was under military laws.

Q When did you cross the Russian border? Brest-Litowsk.

Q what road did it take? The advance on this route Jested from 25 June until about 9 July, 1941. Russian border? into an executive platoon end an SD platoon. I as chief of the SD platoon, merely had to deal with the reporting. At the locations where the commando stayed for a short time while advancing, I searched the offices of the YKWD, the party and the state organization, and looked for important documents, and I inquired from the population about any questions which might be of importance for the information services. Also the members of my SD platoon who were partly new to this task I introduced Into these tasks, and I gave lectures about the people and the country in Russia.

Q In Sonderkommando 7b, did you have anything to to with executions? and to name them?

Q How long were you a member of Sonderkommando 7b? July, 1941, in Minsk.

Q Why were you transferred to the Advance Kommando Moscow? local knowledge and my knowledge of the language.

Q Who was the chief of the Advance Kommando Moscow?

A The then SS-Standertenfuehrer Professor Dr. Six.

Q What were the tasks of the Advance Kommando Moscow?

with the troop behind Moscow or in Moscow, and to secure important buildings and material that might be of importance concerning information, culture, politics or science.

Q What was your took and your work? country, was limited to this: I determined which objects in Moscow were to be secured.

Q What route did the Advance Kommando Moscow take? they remained without any verb for sometime. On 21 July, 1941, Six sent me to Smolensk to arrange for billets where I arrived the same dry and arranged for billets for the Advance Kommando Moscow in the NKWD building in Smolensk.

THE PRESIDENT: In Moscow?

THE WITNESS: In Smolensk.

THE PRESIDENT: You never got to Moscow, did you?

THE WITNESS: About five or six days later the entire Advance Kommando Moscow left. BY DR. MAYER:

Q What was the situation for the Advance Kommando Moscow in Smolensk? work because Smolensk was still being attacked by artillery. After the situation had calmed down, the Advance Kommando Moscow first searched the MKWD offices of the "Soviet House" and other objects for any remaining material. Apart from that the general conditions in Smolensk were considered.

Q What was the result?

A The city was badly damaged and void of any people. A provisional city administration had been set up which the Army had appointed, but they could not handle matters. They asked the Advance Kommando Moscow to support them end to give them instructions for the work.

Moscow for this support? German troop in Smolensk who had personnel knowing both languages and being familiar with the country. Particular?

A The cultural equipment like museums, collections, etc., which were left in Smolensk were secured from looting. The cathedral, where there was a Pagan museum was opened so that the population could attend service, was a pagan museum.

THE PRESIDENT: I din't catch that word, a museum of what?

THE INTERPRETER: A pagan museum. I said atheists.

THE PRESIDENT: A pagan museum. Very well.

A (Continuing) The search for important material was continued.

Q What was your personal work there? suitable for evaluation and to evaluate it, and to obtain and work on in this connection by questioning the population a survey about all spheres of public life and to make reports about this.

Q What happened with the material you found? in more detail was prepared to be sent to Berlin. in Smelensk?

Q Where did the group staff take up its quarters? where the advance commando Moscow already was stationed. arrived? work of the advance commando Moscow. arrived? of this. I simply dealt with the so-reporting and evaluation of material, as I have already explained.

Q What happened when your chief, Dr. Six, went away?

A When on 20 August 141, Dr. Six left Smolensk in order to return to Germany, the chief of Einsatzgruppe B, Nebe, on instructions from Berlin, took over personally the Command of the advance commando Moscow until the new commando chief arrived.

Q Did this change affect you personally?

advance commando Moscow, in case Nebe should be away from the garrison.

Q Did you carry out this function as deputy? this pending period Nebe was continually in Smolensk. The case never arose that I had to act as deputy, therefore, the individual departments of the advance commando Moscow worked quite independently reporting immediately to Nebe, so that I beyond the tasks of the SD, was not informed about the activity of the other departments except for the work done in my section. Also Nebe gave his orders immediately to the persons he had personally appointed. Nebe never made a differentiation between 'Group Staff' and "VKM". The VKM at that time, until the now chief arrived, was practically an independent unit. this with the summary expression "VKM" and "Group Staff" as meaning the same thing or working on the same field? departments of the VKM were sent by Nebe immediately as chief and, therefore, the advance commando Moscow was closely connected with the Group Staff, the reports of the different departments were immediately sent to Nebe or to the competent departments in the Group Staff. This explains the fact that the reports submitted as documents contained formulations like Group Staff and VKM as one unit. arrive? advance commando Moscow, SS Obersturmbannfuehrer Koerting, arrived about the middle of September 1941 and was in charge of the advance commando Moscow after that.

that?

A No. I myself at the same time, that is, about the middle of September 1941, transferred to the Group Staff of Einsatzgruppe B, to the SD Deportment as expert for Russian captured material and as interpreter.

Q How long worn you in Advance Commando Moscow then? July 1941 until the middle of September 1941. '41 onwards you worn transferred to the Einsatzgruppe B Group Staff to the SD as export on Russian captured material and as interpreter. How long did you work in that capacity? October 1941.

Q After the end of October 1941, what did you do? Moscow, about 9 October 1941, at the and of October 1941, Nebe set up a small advance commando, the advance commando group staff, and I was put in charge of it. This Advance Commando Group Staff went to Gshatsk together with me where I reported to the competent army high command.

Q Did Nebe recognize anything else?

A Yes. About the middle of October 1941 people from the group staff and various exports in the advance commando Moscow were formed into another subcommando, the so-called Sonderkommando Moscow, that is, Special Commando. This was under the charge of the up till than SD men of the staff of the Einsatzgruppe B, the SS Hauptsturmfuehrer Dr. Buchardt.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, in order to illustrate the following questions,I have made a sketch, and in order to make it easier for you to understand it, I would like to submit it.

PRESIDENT: We would be very happy to receive it.

DR. MAYER: There are three sketches, Your Honor, each sketch for a certain period about which the witness will speak now. BY DR. MAYER: situation -- the development after taking over the subcommando -- advance commando was taken over by Koerting -please describe to us what happened chronologically. Commando Moscow in the middle of September 1941;apart from the advance commando Moscow of which Koerting was in command, Note created in the middle of October 1941 the Sonderkommando Moscow, and at the end of October 1941 he created the advance commando group staff of which I was in command. At the end of October 1941; therefore, three different commandos existed -- simultaneously, which were under Einsatzgroup B. Apart from those commandos known; namely, first, the Advance Commando Moscow; second, the Sonderkommando Moscow; third, the Advance Commando Group Staff. new commandos? Group Staff had the same tasks, namely, to occupy important buildings in Moscow immediately and to secure all documentary material. Nebe had the ambition that if Moscow should be taken that he and his office should establish themselves there.

as soon as possible, so that the destruction of document material which can always be expected when a town is captured, be reduced as far as possible. He, therefore, created the two commandos I mentioned, attached each one to a different army and, therefore, he felt guaranteed that one of the commandos would certainly be on the spot when Moscow was captured. Therefore, every commando was given the special task to look for quarters for headquarters of the staff of Einsatzgruppe B immediately. The advance commando Moscow, which originally had been intended for those purposes, I just mentioned, retained its name, but at the period last mentioned it had lost its original purpose. Its Moscow experts had been taken away, when the Sonderkommando Moscow was set up and the Advance Commando Staff, and its task was only that of a normal Sonderkommando. This may sound strange, but it was like that. The designation "Advance Commando Moscow" was retained for reasons of convenience. Commando Group Staff of which you were in command. the mission to go with the combat unit, or immediately behind them, to Moscow and there to deal with the tasks of the security police and the SD and to secure all the buildings and equipment important for this; apart from that, to set up headquarters for the group staff.

Q Where was the advance commando Moscow when you loft Smolensk? Commando Moscow was in Spass-Demenskt cast of Smolensk, As far as I can remember, the advance commando Moscow under Koerting at the end of September 1941 left Smolensk, therefore, it left Smolensk before me, Q Where was the Sonderkommando Moscow? middle of October 1941, marched from Smolensk via Roslawl to Malojareslawez and remained there.

Q How long did you stay with the Advance Commando Group Staff? of October 1941 the end of December '41. At that time I wont on leave.

Q when did you return from leave? Smolensk to the Group Staff.

Q What was the situation when you returned? Naumann, told me that the Advance Commando Group Staff in the meantime had been dissolved and that I was to remain with the Group Staff.

PRESIDENT: Just a minute, please, so that we don't got into a confusion in the record, Nov, the Advance Commando Group Staff was dissolved, then he became a member of the Group Staff. You have the same phrase there. I presume you mean Group Staff of the Einsatzgruppe?

THE WITNESS: Group Staff of Einsatzgruppe B.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, which would be in the nature of Headquartersthe Headquarters Staff?

THE WITNESS: Yes. BY DR, MAYER:

Q Why had the Advance Commando Group Staff been dissolved?

Moscow would be delayed for an indefinite period. you were waiting for Moscow to to captured? for further advances of the Army, I prepared myself for my work in Moscow. I particularly studied the local conditions.

Q Did the Advance Commando Group Staff carry out any executions?

A While I was in command of the Advance Commando; it did not carry out any executions. other units of the Einsatzgruppe there? of the Einsatskommando 9 which was competent in that area, and which dealt with all security police tasks and all SD tasks. Group Staff? Germany in December 1943, December 1945 in the Group Staff? of the language and my experience in Russia. I dealt with reports on the immediate orders from the chief of Einsatzgruppe B. Naumann. Einsatzgruppe B after the Advance Commando Group Staff was dissolved in December 1941? after Christmas 1941 consisted of making reports. The Chief of the Einsatzgruppe, Naumann, gave me immediate instructions to do this. These reports soon became a kind of evaluation medium for captured Russian material, which constantly and continually was turned in by the commandos to the Einsatzgruppe staff, or was handed over by the army.

I looked through this material. I translated it and I used it for reports. Any unclear points which might have been contained in it or anything that might have been missing in those documents was supplemerited by making special inquiries. This evaluation office consisted apart from the SD Department of the Group Staffs. I did not deal with the daily reports which the Commandos gave to the Group Staff in the SD sector but I made comprehensive reports about the large organizations and problems of the Russian Bolchevist life, In details the reports calt with detailed explanations about the various political, cultural, and governmental forms of organization of the USSR, the history of their development, their manner of working their sphere of influence, and the effects on public life. Since these explanations were always made in great detail, making them took a long time because we had to tudy documents and literature, question Russians of various professions and of various classes, and interrogate reports of the various organizations. Moreover, Naumann gave me the assignment that a detailed plan of the assignment should be worked out by me for the entire Einsatzgruppe in Moscow, but since the existing material was only incomplete and completions and corrections had to be made to a large extent. it took a lot of time to work out this plan. A completely new register of streets had to be worked out alphabetically because we did not have any such register. For the work in Moscow, a large city of four million inhabitants, this was absolutely necessary; in order to speed up the printing of this list and in order to correct any possible mistakes, I had to make a special trip to Berlin, This is only an example to show how many difficulties we had to overcome. Preparing this assignment plan took up three months. It took almost as long for me to give detailed explanations about the NKVD and other political organizations in the USSR. During my two years' activity, from December 1941 until December 1943, five or six such large reports were made out by me. Apart from that, I continuously dealt with small translations. When the attitude of the Russian people towards the German occupation authorities became noticeably Worse, I received the order to organize a special Russian information service which had the task to find the causes why the reactions and the attitude of the people had become so much worse in regard to the German occupation forces and to report about this in current reports.

As part of this reporting, for example, in summer 1943, I collected extensive material about the excesses of the administrative office, when recruiting volunteer workers to be sent to Germany. The then chief of Einsatzgruppe B, Standartenfuehrer Boehme, handed this on to the chief of the Einsatzgruppe center of the Army Group Center. When I wanted to submit some more material on this later on, the chief of the Einsatzgruppe told me he did not think that I should continue to work against our own German offices and agencies.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, do you wish to offer something?

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, I didn't want to interrupt the defendant's reading of his carefully prepared answers, but in order to save time, we are prepared to concede that the defendant wrote reports without going into all the details.

THE PRESIDENT: I do think, Dr. Mayer, that those reports are perhaps too much in detail, his report of the reports. Might you during the recess see the defendant and determine if you can't abbreviate a little bit of this long story on his reports and get right down to the essential parts of the indictment.

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor. The witness has finished replying to this question, but since this activity extended over two years for which he has to account, in my opinion, we cannot avoid going into detail about this, but the question has been replied to now.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but I was only thinking about what he might still have further to say, and it would not be necessary to go into any greater detail on the matter of reports which he was making.

DR. MAYER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

(A recess was taken until 1345 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. GICK: Dr. Gick representing Dr. von Stein for the defendant Sandberger. excused from this afternoon's session because Dr. von Stein needs him in order to conclude a document book which he is preparing. I would like your Honor to rule that he be removed and brought to room 57 immediately, under guard to room 57 so he may there consult with his attorney.

DR. MAYER: Mayer for the defendant Klingelhoefer. examination of the defendant Klingelhoefer.

THE PRESIDENT: Please do. BY DR. MAYER: until December, 1943, you described your intelligence activity in Smolensk. I now ask you what tasks you had to deal with after Smolensk was evacuated. the staff of Einsatzgroppe B was transferred to Minsk, In Minsk I was ordered to collect the well-working indigenous Russian police forces which were in good working order and to reorganize them for Ninsk; They were to be assigned to reconnaissance against partisan activity and to fight the partisans and other rioters who were becoming very dangerous in the vicinity of Minsk. After these units had been reorganized, I was relieved, and on 20 December 1943 I returned to Germany, 1941, until December, 1943, receive any mission from Neumann, outside your own sphere of activities?

A Yes. At the end of May approximately or the beginning of June, 1942, I was assigned by Neumann to go to Krassniy which is about forty kilometers to the west of Smolensk and to carry out a reconnaissance activity against partisans. order? as this was a very urgent mission for the Army Group and he did not have another officer who could deal with it at the moment. It was only a very short period so that my current assignments would not be delayed too much.

Q What exactly was the mission in Krassniy? activity and movement of a partisan group in the forest territories near Krassniy in order to give the Wehrmacht the necessary information for the fight against this partisan group. I had to deal with this mission in close collaboration with the local Kommandantura of the Wehrmacht in Krassniy.

Q How long did this take you? out against the partisans, and who carried it out? of the Wehrmacht together with a police unit.

Q Were executions carried out on this occasion?

had been warned and evaded the blow. of his successors? late in the evening I received the order from the Chief of the Einsatzgruppe B, Naumann to go to the estate Wissokojo which was in the vicinity of Smolensk, and which was run by the Einsatzgruppe B, as apparently mutiny had occurred with the Russians of the enterprise "Zeppelin", As I knew the Russian language I was supposed to carry out the investigation of this matter. I did so according to orders within the next three days.

Q What was the result of your investigations? following result. The Russians housed on this particular estate who had taken part in the operation "Zeppelin", after they had been trained in Germany for their espionage and sabotage activity, had been sent to Smolensk where they were equipped, end after a short stay they were to be brought by airplanes of the German Luftwaffe to the Hinterland, the rear territory of the Russian Army. Owing to bad weather conditions, this was delayed so that these Russians -- they were about fifteen or sixteen men -- had to be kept in this estate for two to three weeks, In the meantime some of these Russians had smarted to persuade their comrades not to carry out the mission to which they had consented and to influence them to commit treason. Especially, two or three of the Russians were found guilty of trying to give away some of their comrades who had been anti-Bolshevists all the time to the NKWD after the landing. As a result of the investigations I established the fact that apart from these two or three Russians which I mentioned, who, pretending to be loyal without the slightest doubt had smuggled themselves into this operation "Zeppelin" from the very beginning with the intention of sabotaging the work, but that the others had remained faithful in their attitude and in their work and were absolutely blameless as far as this matter was concerned.

I gave a report to the Chief of Einsntzgruppe B, Neumann, to this effect. particular case? the subsequent action in this matter after I left; as my own activity was thus concluded, and I went to Germany on leave immediately. in Krassniy and Wissokoje which were outside the actual program of your assignment, have any other assignment of this kind?

A Yes. Already before those events which I just mentioned took place -- before Krassniy and Wissokoje -I received at the beginning of September 1941, the order from Nebe to obtain winter clothing for the unit, that is, furs and fur lining,, He told me on that occasion that it was not possible to supply the necessary clothing for the winter from Berlin, and his attempt to this effect with the first quartermaster of the Army Group had had no result. Nebe furthermore told me that he had received a directive from the Army to requisition the necessary winter clothing in the territory. Several agencies and Army units had done the same thing.

Q Why did Nebe choose you for this task?

AAlthough as it was a task of the administration. I had nothing to do with assignments of this kind Nebe regarded merely the fact that I know the Russian language as sufficient reason for entrusting this to me, Furthermore he thought this would be a good opportunity for mo to collect more information for my SD reports. out of his assignment? Jews from the large Justice had fled to these two places, as the Einsatz Group had found out and it could on assumed that the Jews owing to their good living conditions which they had in the USSR possessed winter clothing. in fact, so much of it that a seizure for the purposes of the occupation forces would not matter to them very much, Simultaneously Nebe asked me to institute a ghetto in both of these places for the Jews, which up till then, bad not been done, I, however, evaded this part of the mission, pointing out than I had had nothing to do with these matters up till then and had had no experience whatsever. I did not know how a ghetto was to be instituted and what directives I had to pass on to the Jews, I, therefore, suggested to Nebo to entrust SS-Hauptsturmfuehr Noack with the carrying out of this task, who as a departmental expert for the Jewish question was competent to deal with such matters. Thereupon Noack received the order from Nebe to carry out the antiJewish operation in Mstislawl and Tatarsk.

Q How did you carry out your own assignment? been allotted to us for these tasks went to Mstislawl. After our arrival in Mstislawl -- that was in the afternoon of the same day -- I immediately took up contact with the mayor while Noack carried out his assignment with the local Russian police chief, I ordered the mayor to inform the Jews living in Mstislawl to deliver the furs and fur clothing which they had in their possession to him for selection purposes.

I told the mayor that I was ordered to requisition winter and fur clothing against a receipt, The redeeming of this requisition slip would have to be done at the Wehrmacht offices and the amount had to be used for the supply of the Jewish population of Mstislawl. Raids of houses ware neither threatened nor carried out. In the meantime I had myself informed about general conditions in the Jewish section of Mstislawl by the mayor, and I asked him for details concerning the inhabitants of the place who would be in a position to give us information concerning the conditions before the occupation by the German troops. I discussed matters with these people in detail. In the meanwhile the fur clothing was delivered into the mayor's place.

Q Do you know anything about Noack's mission and how he dealt with it at the same time? Noack had not finished his mission, I went in search for him. My investigations revealed that he had left Mstislawl in a southerly direction with his Kommando. As it was wellknown that the territory around Mstislawl was invested with partisans, I decided to follow Noack in my car and in case there might be any incidents, I thought I could support him. I took the remainder of the Kommando consisting of six men and found him about two kilometers from Mstislawl in a scrub land where he was just carrying out an execution.

Q Had he concluded the execution when you joined him?

A No. When I arrived ten Jews had just been lined up in front of a grave, a ditch. Behind them there was the detachment. This consisted of about twenty men who were firing rifles.

Q How was the execution carried out? which I have just described. I had arrived immediately before the order to fire. I saw the fire and I also saw the Jews falling with their fronts into the grave. After they had fired, the medical officer who had been present, an SS noncommissioned officer who in civilian life had been a medical student, went into the ditch and convinced himself that the people were dead. As far as I remember, apparently everybody was dead, as I heard no further shooting.

Q Did you return with Noack to Mstislawl then?

A No. The reason why I went to see Noack at the place of execution was the worry that through some unforeseen incident he might have come into difficulty with the partisans, On account of my attitude against such matters, the execution as just described, moved me so much that I immediately went back to Mstislawl, after I had made sure that no danger threatened Noack and his men in the way I have just tried to explain.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, you have related this episode with some detail. Are you aware of the fact that it differs from the affidavit which you singed about five months ago, four months ago? Are you aware of that fact, that it differs from that affidavit?

THE WITNESS: I am aware of that, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Which is correct, the narrative which you related to Wartenberg or the story which you have now related today?

DR. MAYER: I beg your pardon, Your Honor. May I interrupt here and say that when the documents are discussed, we can come back to this question because the defendant has written another affidavit which has not yet been submitted but which is contained in my document book and will be submitted.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, yon intend to take up this discrepancy between accounts?

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor, when the documents are being discussed.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. MAYER;

Q Witness did you go to Tatarsk as had been ordered by Nebe?

Q What happened there? Tatarsk, as Nebe had ordered, where things happened in the same way as in Matislawl, Here again I worked on collaboration with the mayor while Noack carried out his mission in collaboration with the Russian Police. In Tatarsk I didn't visit the execution place. and I never saw any executions being carried out there.

THE PRESIDENT: You say when you arrived at this next town, the same thing happened again. De we understand that you got there just as the execution was to take place?

THE WITNESS: No, that is now when I meant, Your Honor, On the contrary what I mean to say is that at Tatarsk I did not visit the execution place, I merely dealt with the task which I had to deal with, which was the obtaining of winter clothing.

THE PRESIDENT: Of course, that also differs from your affidavit, and I presume you will explain that later, is that right?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor. BY DR, MAYER:

Q Please proceed, witness, with your answer? and I didn't witness any executions carried out there. Later on Noack informed me that he had shot about twenty Jews in Tatarsk, and thirty in Mstislawl. Apparently they were old men, and I do not know whether women or children were shot in those executions in Tatarsk.

carried out executions in Tatarsk and Mstislawl? insofar asfrom now on only those Jews would be shot, who were not able to work;for this reason he had acted accordingly in Tatarsk and Matislawl. I heard about this modification later on during my activity in the grou-staff. the advance commando in Moscow? entrusted me with -- the requisitioning of this clothing.

Q Was this requisition within the program of the Fuehrer Order? were carried out in Tatarsk and Mstislawl? to Noack concerning his mission, and, therefore. I did not order Noack to do so. he had Jews shot in Tatarsk and Mstislawl? to him.

Q Were you engaged in this activity, as Noack's supervisor? Noack wasonly responsible to Nebe insofar as these orders were concorned. upon whose orders?

A Yes, on Nobe's order.

Q For what reason? messenger of the Mayor of Tatarsk arrived at the office of the Einsatzgruppen in Smolensk with a message that in Tatarsk the Jews had begun to leave the Ghettos to which they had been confined, and had taken up contact with the Partisans who infested the forests in that visinity. The Mayor had been threatened by the Jews, that they would eliminate him and his police with the aid of these Partisans. The layer asked for immediate help and support, as it was not possible for him to master the situation thus created, and that his security was threatened by these conditions. order you again to deal with the situation? had mentioned before as pertaining to the field of tasks of Hauptsturmfuehrer Noack, who at the time instituted the Ghetto in Tatarsk, and who was no longer in Smolensk but had shortly left when called back to Berlin as a possible candidate for another job in the executive service, and Nobe gave me this order; as I was the only officer in the group staff who had some knowledge of the locality and area of Tatarsk and who had knowledge of the language which in this case was particularly necessary. This condition was emphasized by Nebe as it was an operation in the Partisan infested territory, and it was also a matter of carrying out investigations and interrogations, in which knowledge of the language would be of decisive value. For this reason the whole unit of Waffen-SS and Police of about thirty men was put at my disposal.

Q What detailed order did Nebe give you in this case? of Tatarsk, which had been delivered by the messenger, and find out whether it was accurate.

In case it was, to carry out ruthlessly the punishment the Jews had been threatened with in case they left the Ghetto.

Q What do you mean by the term: to proceed ruthlessly in accordance with the punishment provided for such deeds?

A By this I meant the following: the prohibition for all the Jews in these Ghettos installed by Noack, according to which they were not allowed to leave the Ghetto under death penalty was given largely for the reason that the Security Police wanted to prevent the Jews from taking up contact with the Partisans. This prohibition was a supplement of the Wehrmacht directive for all indigenous civilians which imposed death penalty for such deeds. Therefore, it was my task to investigate which Jews had left the Ghetto in order to contact the Partisans. As far as I could establish some Jews were guilty of these offenses and they had to be shot.

Q What then did you establish when you arrived in Tatarsk? males just going into the woods. I, therefore, had the forest surrounded and had it combed thoroughly. Furthermore, I also established that the Ghetto of Tatarsk was empty, and that part of the Jews had returned to their former homes. Then, after all the Jews who were still in Tatarsk, and also in the woods, had been arrested, they were brought to the market place, I established that only a small part of the original population of the Ghetto had been found, while by far the larger part apparently had joined the Partisans. Thereupon I had the events and facts described to me by the Mayor and by the Russian Police Chief. message? leave the Ghetto the morning before. When the Mayor wanted to take action in collaboration with the Russian police, pointing but the punishments to the Jews concerned, he was threatened, abused, and the Jews said they were going to fetch the Partisans, and they were going to hang him and the police.

The Mayor was not in a position to prevent the exodus of the Jews from the Ghetto, and he found out that a very large number of men immediately had left Tatarsk and fled into the surrounding woods. Therefore, he made up his mind, as he saw himself and his man threatened by the Jews to send off the message with an appeal for help to Smolensk, which, arrived there in the evening of the same day, and was received. Mayor? former Jewish Council was no longer in existence in its full number, and my extensive questions to the elders of the Jews brought forth an admission that the missing members of the council had joined the Partisans in the forest, as well as all the missing male Jews, and that the Jews had taken up contact with the Partisans in the forests where they were promised help and support by them if they would leave the Ghetto. As that locality of Tatarsk was almost off the map, and as it had no connection with a railroad or road, and was in a wooded territory, the Jews had relied upon these promises on the part of the Partisans. When investigations were made to find the liaison men between the Partisans, and the individual Jews, it was established that three Jewish women were the inspirers of this mutiny. interrogation of the Jaws? apprehended male Jews had acted contrary to the instructions not to leave the Ghetto which they had been given at the time and apart from that, that they had taken up contact with the Partisans, and that these happenings and events were in accordance with the facts, which, according to the order of Nobe and the Wehrmacht directive, constituted a case requiring the death penalty.

I, therefore, issued the directive to shoot these thirty male Jews whose guilt had just been proved. This investigation, however, also revealed that women and children were not guilty of having taken part in these activities.

Partisans. I, therefore, decided not to have the woman and children shot but to have them put back into the Ghetto. This was done . In contrast to this, the already mentioned three women had been shown to be particularly active in this mutiny, and as Partisan agents constituted even for the future a tremendous danger to the Security: therefore, I had to treat them as I was treating the men, and as I could not take the responsibility of sparing their lives in accordance with the facts which I had established, I had them executed.

Q Who carried out that execution? police under the leadership of a NCO, I was only present at the beginning of the execution, because I was called away, and I had to go back to Tatarsk where during this resettlement of the Jewish women and children riots had broken out and disputes arose between the Russian and the Jews regarding some property, and they had asked for my presence to make a decision. The execution of the three women, upon my especial directive, was carried out separated from the execution of the men. These women were, as confirmed to me by the NCO who was in charge of the execution, were shot while standing there about ten paces from the detachment, and were immediately buried. The clothing and any valuables were not taken from any of those executees. This directive I gave expressly to the man in charge of the execution. THE PRESIDENT: which you have described as having taken place at Mstislawl?

A I don't understand Your Honor, how was this question? town, which name I can not pronounce, but it looks like Mistislawl. You told how the executees faced the grave and were shot from the rear, then fell face forward into the grave. Is that the way the women were executed also?

A Your Honor, that I don't know, because I was not present at the execution in Tatarsk. The execution which I described, and which I myself witnessed; had happened a month earlier, that was another different operation. the women should be executed?

Q Very well. Then what instructions did you give about the graves, about the guns, about the places, about the burial. Just tell us what directions you gave in regard to the execution of these three women?

A I didn't give a detailed directive how it was to be carried out, because that was the task of the NCO in charge of the execution. The only directive I had given to the NCO was to shoot these thirty Jews. about ten paces away. You went into that. Didn't you, just a few moments ago?

Q All right, well, did you see the execution?

A No, I didn't witness it.

Q Why do you give this detail as to how they were shot, then? three woman.

Q Alright. Now, you tell us just what directions you gave for shooting the three women? from the men to be shot, and to carry out the execution in an orderly manner. I asked the NCO to have them blindfolded, and that the women should be shot blindfolded, and, then they should be taken to a separate grave. rear of them, as they were shot?

A No, the grave was not behind them. They were shot next to the grave, not so they fell into the grave. I gave a special directive concerning this, and that they be shot with their fronts to the squad, because they were shot blindfolded. I was not there myself. I only gave the directive, and I asked for an orderly and correct execution.

Q And they were shot at ten paces? expressly whether he had followed my directive concerning the shooting of these three women.

Q And how many men were on the firing squad?

Q How soon after the execution did you leave?

A. I was only there when it was prepared. I spoke to the NCO that the Jews should he lined up, five men in each group. When the first five men were led in a message arrived from the Mayor saying that in Latarsk Jewish women were having trouble with the Russian women and that I should come immediately because they were beating up each other. I immediately had to leave as I was the only one who could settle the matter.

Q. Who were beating up each other? Russian women?

A. The Russian women and the Jewish women - they were squabbling over their property.

Q. And you regarded that of more importance - a fight between women, pulling each other's hair. I imagine, than the execution of three women and thirty men? You regarded that of more importance, did you?

A. Your Honor, the situation was such that the Mayor sent a messenger and asked that I should come immediately because a fight had broken out between Russian and Jewish women and it wasn't possible to create order. I had to leave. There was no other man who could speak Russian and could handle the situation. I also knew that the NCO had received the orders to carry out the executions in proper order and he certainly was a man who was serious and correct, and therefore it was guaranteed to me that these executions would be carried out in a correct manner.

Q. How far away was the town from the scene of the execution?

A. One kilometer approximately.

Q. Did you go back after you had settled the fight between the women to the scene of the execution at make certain that all had gone well?

A. No, no, I didn't have the opportunity to do so because I had to be careful that no new fights should break out.

Q. You were the guardian of the peace in this town to see that the women didn't fight with each other?

A. Well, your Honor, after all if women fight one has to do something, hasn't one?

Q. Well, I don't think so. I think I would let them fight. What certainly isn't of more importance than a matter of life and death. Did you conduct an investigation yourself into the cases of these thirty men and the three women?

A. Yes, your Honor. I have stated to this effect that I carried out extensive investigations.

Q. You said that they had been in contact with the Partisans?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, how did you seize them if they had already gotten in contact with Partisans and were cooperating with them?

A. I arrest them. They were the men who had remained in Tatarsk and on these I could establish the fact that they were in contact with Partisans and had caused the mutiny.

Q. Well, they had not joined the Partisans?

A. They had contact with the Partisans and they had declared themselves prepared to spy for the Partisans, a so-called reconnaissance service. They confessed that to me. Therefore, they had remained in Tatarsk in contrast to those Jews who had left.

Q. Where did they contact the Partisans? Right in the Ghetto?

A. Yes. May I give an explanation of the whole event. First of all - -

Q. Did they contact the Partisans in the Ghetto?

A. The Partisans had taken up contact with the Jews via these three women.

Q. Did these thirty men contact the Partisans in the Ghetto?

A. Yes.

Q. The Partisans came right into the Ghetto and talked with the Jews?

A. No. These three women, these three agents, established connections between the Jews and the Partisans and cited the Jews to leave the Ghetto.

Q. The three women left the Ghetto and talked, with the Partisans, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then came back.

A. And then they came back.

Q. And they talked with these other thirty man that were left in the Ghetto?

A. No, they spoke to all of the men in the Ghetto.

Q. Well, you sh thirty. I am talking about these thirty. These never left the town. Now, when these three women came back did they talk to these thirty?

A. To these thirty and others.

Q. But these thirty did not join the Partisans they were there?

A. They remained, They remained with the intention to Work for the Partisans, these that remained - otherwise they would't have been there.

Q. Wouldn't have been, where

A. If they had had the intention to escape into the woods and work actively as Partisans, rifle in hard, then they wouldn't have been there. They would have been in the woods but they had expressly remained to do work for the Partisans in the Ghetto.

Q. They remained in the Ghetto - they were not armed?

A. Then were not in the Ghetto when I came.

Q. Well, they were in Tatarsk.

A. They were in Tatarsk and they had come back into their former apartments to hide themselves as there.

Q. They were living in their homes? The homos in which they lived before you arrived, is that right?

A. Yes, they had unrightfully returned to their apartments although it was forbidden.

Q. They returned home and you regarded that as being illegal, were they armed?

A. No, they were not armed. That they wouldn't hare dared in the town to show arms.

Q. So that the evidence you had was that these three women had left the Ghetto, gone into the woods and conferred with Partisans and cams back and talked with these thirty?

A. That is the fact but not only those so but also the other men.

Q. Yes, I know, they talked to others but we are talking about the thirty you shot. The evidence you had against them was that these three women had gone into the woods, spoken with the Partisans and returned and spoke in these thirty, We will forget about the others for a report.

A. I did not quite understand this question.

Q. The three women, the Jewesses had left the Ghetto, gone into the woods, contacted the Partisans, and then returned to Tatarsk and had talked with these thirty men?

A. Yes.

Q. And because of that contact that the 30 man had had with these three women you regarded them as having committed a crime which could only be expiated by being shot?

A. No, your Honor, not because they had spoken to the women but I had proved, based on these investigations, that through these three women contact had been taken up with Partisans and they had declared themselves prepared to work with Partisans in Tatarsk and had remained there for this express purpose.

Q. The only evert act which they had committed was to leave the Ghetto, return to their homes, speak with the three women, and for what they did they had to expiate this offense with their lives, is that correct?

A. No.

Q. What did they do overtly which was criminal?

A. They had taker, up contact with Partisans which by a directive of the Wehrmacht was punishable by the death penalty.

Q. But this had been done through the three women, that's right isn't it? The 30 men themselves did not leave Tatarsk?

A. No.

Q. So that they personally physically had had no contact with the Partisans?

A. Not physically but mentally, your Honor.

Q. Mentally, yes and the only contact they had was through these three Women?

A. Yes, through these three women.

Q. All right. So, therefore, the evidence which you had upon which to kill these thirty Jews was that they had mentally communicated with the Partisans and they were in their homes mentally determined to resist you. That's the evidence you had, isn't it?

A With the promise to do agent service for the Partisans. This was an important element, your Honor. They had confessed in the interrogations that they were about to conduce espionage acts. This in itself was sufficient to identify them with the Partisans and there was a Wehrmacht regulation for the death penalty no matter in whatever shape this contact was established. act of an agent, had they?

A This was not necessary according to regulations. your Honor. The fact itself that the people had been proved guilty of having taken up contact with the Partisans was sufficient for the death penalty according to the Wehrmacht regulation. In view of the special situation in which we found ourselves in in the Eastern territories the Partisan danger made this measure necessary. their homes where they had been living for years and you isolated them in a ghetto, you forbade them to have contact with the rest of the world. then they left the Ghetto. three women went away from the Ghetto. and returned and these thirty and the three women and in accordance with information which you obtained you believed conscientiously chat they deserved death? Does that distinctly tell the story? into the Ghetto. That was carried out by others and was in accordance with a special order. It was merely for me to establish who had left the ghetto and who had taken up contact with the Partisans. That was what I had to carry out, and there was nothing else, your Honor. Once for all the order had been given to Jews that leaving the Ghetto was punished by death. There was, in addition, the Wehrmacht directive that contact with Partisans was punishable by death and I had to act according to these directives and orders given by higher authorities.

to impose the death penalty on Jews leaving the Ghetto. work for Partisans.

Q Just what do you mean by contact with the Partisans?

Q Well repeating the same word doesn't help us a bit. That is like asking what is a cook and saying a cook is one who cooks. Tell us what you mean by contact with Partisans. You told us before that it was a mental contact. a man is prepared to work for Partisans. That then in itself is a contact with them. He makes himself guilty of being partisan and is thereby treated as a Partisan in accordance with regulations. If these men furthermore had contributed through their attitude to the fact that the others had the possibility to escape into the woods and to reenforce the partisan gangs for the combat against the Wehrmacht...

Q If a Jew in this town said "I will work with the Partisans" and nothing else happened would that be enough to bring about the death penalty?

A If there was evidence to his saying "I will work with the Partisans", or if he........

Q No, please don't add to it. This Jew says to you. "I intend to work with Partisans' and that's all you have in the way of evidence. Would that be enough so shoot him. Partisans-- and I cannot produce evidence against him....

Q No, it isn't a wish. So says. "I intend to work with the Partisans". Those are the words - would you shoot him? intention to work with the Partisans?

Partisans. They had not ....

Q What did they do? Tell us what they did. Tell us what they did more than express an intention to work with Partisans. Tell us what they did? or an least had evidence of. Partisans had left the Ghetto and carried out espionage acts for Partisans. act in time. work with Partisans? Partisans it was more than just more intention in my opinion it was already beyond that.....

Q Had these thirty actually contacted face to face Partisans? Had they gone into the woods and talked with them?

A No. But they.... partisans....

Q Very well. You found them in their homes. You arrested them and according to what you say they confessed that they wanted to act with the Partisans, is that right?

Q Now witness, isn't the real turth of the matter that you executed these thirty because of the Fuehrer order because they were Jews. isn't that the reason you executed them?

Q Did you know the Fuehrer order?

Q Where you executing the Fauhrer order? order which said you has he execute Jews and they hadn't done anything. with 30 Jews who were to be shot in accordance with the Fuehrer order, but with 30 Jews there were allies of the partisans. investigation and you come to the conclusion that they are absolutely innocent of any contact with Partisans and you have this Fuehrer order before you or in your pocket or in your head, certainly in your mind, that you must kill Jews, would you release these 30 Jews?

Q What would you do? You would shoot them? have reinstalled the Jews in the Ghetto.

Q And then you would have shot them later?

Q What did you do with the Fuehrer order? Jews in accordance with the Fuehrer order then I would have shot them but in this case the Fuehrer order did not necessitate this action. Partisans, whether they had contact with Partisans or merely remained innocently in their homes they were Jews and under the Fuehrer order they were to be shot, that is correct isn't it? that time those people who were able to work were not to be shot and as a matter of fact an Anti-Jewish action on the basis of the Fuehrer order had already been carried out a month earlier by Noack. As I 11 Dec 1947_A_MSD_19_5_Gross (Hildesheimer) have already said, at that time the Jews were settled in the Tatarsk ghetto that had also been based on the Fuehrer order.

Jews now living in Tatarsk did not practically come under the Fuehrer order as it was formulated at that time where it says that only old Jews who could not work any longer were to be shot. Therefore, I would have had the possibility in case of their established innocence to reinstall them in the Ghetto.

Q How many old Jews did you shoot?

A You mean among those 30?

Q No No. How many old Jews did you shoot because the order said you should, shoot only old Jews, according to what you now tell us, how many old Jews did you shoot? enough to flee into the woods, Did the older Jews also go into the woods?

A No, there weren't old Jews, as far as I can remember no Jew was more than 55 years old.

Q Were they any old Jews in Tatarsk at all?

A Not at that time any more. They had been shot by Noack before.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess for 15 minutes.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, I am sorry I interrupted you in your examination of your client. You may take it up, of course. There is just one question I would like to ask. You say that the ablebodied Jews were not to be shot immediately, and the natural implica tion is that they were being saved for working purposes. What work were they doing?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, as I had nothing to do with the Jewish question I cannot say anything from my personal experiences. I only know that able-bodied Jews were assigned for labor generally, in what way and in what capacity I do not know.

THE PRESIDENT: Here you are in this town carrying on a very extensive investigation. Certainly in that investigation it must have come to your attention and knowledge what work they were doing.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, it wasn't really a city. It was only a larger village, and during the time of my presence in this place I did not actually see the Jews work. I never asked the mayor what labor they were allocated to. That had nothing to do with my original assignment. I merely knew that Jews were used for labor.

THE PRESIDENT: You may continue Dr. Mayor, please.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. MAYER: I have to put one question. which is. whether you were a commando chief?

Q What authority, therefore, was missing in your case? Order as I had no executive power, without having received the express order by my superior.

Q Did you ever receive his order?

you arrived in Tatarsk you saw Jews who were just about to vanish in the woods, and you had the woods surrounded and combed through. Did this combine operation have any result whatsoever?

A Yes, in this wood five or six Jews were caught. They were Jews trying to escape when they saw my column approach Tatarsk.

THE PRESIDENT: How many men were in this column?

THE WITNESS: Dive or six men, Your Honor. BY DR. MAYER: shot? that he would he handed. Who uttered this threat? who had remained in Tatarsk and now were guarding the place.

Q I see. Yes, now proceed with the direct examination, Witness.

THE PRESIDENT: I am sorry, I didn't catch that statement, that the threat was expressed by the Jews and they were now guarding the place. There must be something wrong there.

THE WITNESS: These Jews had threatened the mayor, and, of course, they remained there.

THE PRESIDENT: The phrase, "guarding the place", who was guarding?

THE WITNESS: The Jews who had remained in Tatarsk were supposed to guard the mayor so that he would not vanish, or watch him. BY DR. MAYER: The next question, Witness, is: was this operation an undertaking of the Advance Kommando Moscow? was again independent and was stationed in Spass-Demensk. That was not in Smolensk.

contradiction of your attitude toward the Fuehrer Order as you had stated before? matter to be discussed, and because I had no order to this effect it was here merely a matter of an acute danger which threatened the security of the rear Army territory. The severity of the order as passed on to me by Nebe was conditioned by the very dangerous activity on the part of the partisans , and it was here not a matter of an anti-Jewish action in accordance with the Fuehrer Order but solely and merely a necessary military measure in order to maintain security of the Army for whom the Einsatzgruppe B was responsible to the Wehrmacht.

Q. I now come to the documents. Witness, the Prosecution has submitted an affidavit of 2 July 1947 which you have signed. It is in Document Book III-B. It is on English page 57, German page 112. It is No. NO-4235 Exhibit 124. I would like you to look at this. Have you anything to add to this? whole statement which I made on the 1st of June, 1947. When, before I signed, I complained about some distorting remarks which I had made, the interrogator, Mr. Wartenberg, informed me that this did not mean very much and that any rectifications and corrections I could make at a later point. Upon this statement I took the opportunity to make out a new affidavit, on the 17th of September, 1947, using the necessary supplements, additions and corrections which I then submitted to the Prosecution, which was accepted by Mr. Wartenberg and signed. This affidavit of the 17th of September, 1947, contained the exact statements concerning events and developments, as well as my own position within the Advance Kommando Moscow, or at least the staff of the Einsatzgruppe B. But the Prosecution did not submit it to the Tribunal.

My counsel, however, will submit it in his document book.

THE PRESIDENT: When did you receive a copy of the indictment?

THE WITNESS: I received a copy of the indictment, Your Honor, at the beginning of August. I don't remember the exact date.

THE PRESIDENT: This affidavit was made out -

THE WITNESS: I beg your pardon, Your Honor. I now remember it was during the last day s of July.

THE PRESIDENT: So that this affidavit of which you speak was written about two months after you received a copy of the indictment?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, Dr. Mayer.

THE WITNESS: Because I had no opportunity to do so before.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. MAYER: Moscow, and at no period whatsoever I held any executive power within the formation. After Dr. Six was released in August, 1941, the Chief of Einsatzgruppe B, Nebe, upon directives from Berlin, took over personally the leadership of the Advance Kommando Moscow as this group consisted of special experts.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, is your document book ready. I don't have a copy of it.

DR. MAYER: It is not ready yet. It is just being translated, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you have this affidavit ready?

DR. MAYER: Only in German, Your Honor. May I, therefore, suggest perhaps. Your Honor, that the witness should deal with the essential point which the Tribunal wants to know, the points out of the affidavit of the 17th of September.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, we thought for your own benefit it might be well if you could get that affidavit before us while the witness is still on the stand.

DR. MAYER: I don't think there will be time enough as far as translation is concerned.

THE PRESIDENT: You asked him about the differences. Now, by all means you can proceed just as if you do have that affidavit before you, which you do have in the German.

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. FERENCZ: If Your Honors please, the Prosecution has had the affidavit translated and mimeographed, and I am sure I can have it for the defense by tomorrow morning.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes. You nay proceed to have the witness make any explanations that he believes are in order with regard to what is contained in the affidavits which are actually before the tribunal, whether you have another one or not.

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor. BY DR. MAYER: was put to you. absence. This case, however, never happened as early as the middle of September, 1941, the new chief of the Advance Kommando Moscow appointed in Berlin, Obersturmbannfuehrer Koerting, arrived in Smolensk and took over the command of the VKM. At the end of October 1941, the small advance commando group staff which was leaving in the direction of Moscow was a completely new unit which had nothing to do with the actual Advance Kommando Moscow.

The advance commando Moscow was at that time under Koerting in Spass Demensk, a locality, about 100 kilometers to the east of Smolensk. in Mstislawl and Tatarsk mentioned in the prosecution documents against you?

Q Can you say in what document it is mentioned?

A Yes. It is mentioned in the document which I have just received, No. 4809. It is Exhibit No. 125; English page 116-I am sorry, 161; it is in Document Book IIIB.

Q Yes, but I don:t mean the affidavit itself, but the documents which have been submitted concerning Russia, that is, the Reports of Events. is contained. second affidavit? operation in your first report independently, without the prosecution material to the effect having been shown to you, and used against you? mutiny in Tatarsk contained in the Reports of Events?

A Yes. The Tatarsk mutiny is mentioned in the document. your assignment given by Nebe to carry out investigations in Tatarsk? affidavit before the indictment was served you described this action-this operation in Tatarsk? as it actually happened?

Q I now come to the next question; the prosecution charges you, that is in Document Book IIB, English page 22; German page 22, document No. 2344; Exhibit 61; Report of Events Number 73 of the 4th of September 1941, in order to prove two things, first, your participation as a member of the Special Commando 7B and, secondly, your participation in the Advance Commando Moscow. As far as Special Commando 7B is concerned, the total figure of executions until the 20th of August 1941 are on page 7 of the original document is 886. I now ask you, did you participate in these executions carried out by Special Commando 7B? Commando 7B, that is, from the 22nd of June until the 10th of July 141, that is, during the first three weeks of its existence, Special Commando 7B as it was a constantly advancing, according to my knowledge, never carried out any executions, as there was no possibility to do so. Executions that resulted in these figures can only have been carried out in my opinion after the Special Commando 7B had left Minsk. Since Minsk, I was not in Special Commando 7B, and I can, therefore, not say anything about its further activity. the same document, it is stated that Advance Commando Moscow had to load 46 people to executions, and on page 17 of the document it says that the total figure of people executed of this staff and the Advance Commando Moscow until the 20th of August 141 is 144. Can you comment on this? and the VKM. During my activity in the Advance Commando Moscow from the 10th or 11th July 1941 until Six left, neither of the Group Staff nor of Court No. II, Case No. IX.

the Advance Commando Moscow, did I know about any executions, nor did I participate in any form whatsoever in such executions. on page 47, and German page 42, Document No. 3143, Exhibit Number 64. That is Report of Events Number 92 of the 23rd of December 1941. On page 6 of the original, the total figure of executions of the staff and Advance Commando Moscow, according to the statistics of 13th of September, 141, the number 312 is mentioned, in contrast to the former figure of the 20th of August, it is 168 more. Can you explain this increase?

PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, you gave us the page of the original, but it doesn't coincide with -

PRESIDENT: Then you said page 6 of the original, but page 6 of the original doesn't appear. It begins with page 14, page 15, page 24, page 32.

DR. MAYER: It is 6 within the document book; it is page 53 of the English Document Book.

PRESIDENT: Oh, I see, thank you. Proceed. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Witness, can you explain this 168 increase? it was raised. The Advance Commando Moscow was at that time together with the Group Staff, under the chief of the staff of the Einsatzgruppe B, Nebe, who, therefore, combined the execution figures of these two groups. Since Smolensk, I know that the Group Staff of the Einsatzgruppe B carried out their own operations and executions, which, in detail, I am equally unaware of, as well as the operation and measures Carried out by the individual departmental experts of the Verkommando Moscow, who ware assigned by Nebe for their special functions and received their directives and orders from him, and reported to Nebe independently. I can merely assume that the figures which I directly learned of execution in Mstislawl and Tatarsk, which I was informed about by Hauptsturmfuehrer Noack, are contained in these.

Q The next document will be in Document Book IIB. Please take that out. Page 16 in the English, page 15 of the German, No. 3156; it is Exhibit 60, Report of Events 108 of 9 October 1941. On page 7 of the document it states in contrast to the preceding figure, 312, and it contains 2029. That is an increase again of 1717. Did you participate in these further executions?

A. These increased figures of executions refer, as is proven by th date it bears and regarding the preceding reports, to the period of time from 13 September 1941 until 28 September 1941. As I have already mentioned, the Advance Kommando Moscow was taken over by Koerting in the middle of September 1941. I personally was transferred from the VKM to the group staff in the SD department where in the period of reporting I was only dealing in intelligence matters. Since during my activity in the Advance Kommando Moscow, as far as it comes under this period of reporting, I neither had any executive power in this formation nor had I actively taken part in executions or anti-Jewish operations in any shape or form, it is not possible for me to comment upon these execution figures or to find myself responsible for any of these figures.

Q. On page 3 of the same document it says furthermore that the VKM Advance Kommando Moscow, liquidated 114 Jews in Choslawitschi. Can you comme on that?

A. As a member of the Advance Kommando Moscow, of course, it was known to me as it was generally known that since the taking over of the Advance Kommando Moscow by Nebe until his release and the transfer of Koertin anti-Jewish operations were carried out. The individual places and times and the numbers of people executed were not known to me. According to directives by Nebe the figures were only given to him in the shape of reports. From the circumstances as described, it was not made known to me that an anti-Jewish operation took place in this mentioned locality Choslawitschi. I, however, left the Advance Kommando Moscow in the middle of September, 1941. and I do not know if, and if so, what, actions were carried out under Koerting. It is qui possible that the operation Choslawitschi was carried out by Koerting.

Q. Now will you please look at Document Book 2-B, page 54 in the English and 48 in the German. It is Document 3160, and it is Exhibit No. 65 It is a Report of Events #24 of 25 September 1941. On page 1 of the original an operation of the group staff and Advance Kommando Moscow is mentioned agai the Jews in Tatarsk. Does this refer to the operation which you have just mentioned to the Court in the preceding session?

A. Yes. I described the happening.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, this report says all male Jews and three women were shot. Now he has specified thirty. Does that constitute the entire Jewish population of Tatarsk?

DR. MAYER: Will you answer the question, witness?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, those were the only thirty male people left in Tatarsk. The others had all joined the partisans, and those were the men who had remained in Tatarsk as I had explained. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. So that you shot all the Jews that there were in Tatarsk?

A. All remaining Jews in Tatarsk -- those were the thirty male members who had been left.

Q. You explain -- and Judge Speight reminds us of this -- that after you made the investigation that some were acquitted of any complicity in the partisan action and were returned to the ghetto. Now you tell us that you shot all the Jews. How do you reconcile those two statements?

A. Your Honor, I do not remember having said that I found some of them innocent and led them back into the ghetto. I only said that of the thirty male Jews which I apprehended in Tatarsk, I found them all guilty and convicted them because they were guilty, -- those were the thirty men whom I had shot. I never spoke of innocent men remaining in Tatrsk. Only woman and children who could be proven innocent, those I led back into the ghetto.

Q. Well, then you did not find any of the men innocent?

A. The entire male population, as I have already said, in some way or other were active participants.

Q. So, therefore, you did not find any of the men innocent?

A. No.

Q. Did you find some of the women and children innocent?

A. From the investigation carried out together with the Jewish Council I established that in the whole mutiny and the taking up of contact with the partisans the women could not have taken part except, of course, t three who had been employed as direct agents with the partisans.

Q. Well, why couldn't they have taken part? Why couldn't the othe women just like the three who were shot have taken part in this?

A. Because I established this fact through the investigations which I carried on. Conditions were such that in fact the women could not ha taken part in this mutiny in any active capacity.

Q. Now, you keep calling this a mutiny. What is a mutiny? A mutiny is a rebellion, is it not?

A. Mutiny is a riot against a directive or an order which has been proclaimed.

Q. Yes. Well, now were these Jews rioting in the streets, tearing down buildings? Was there turmoil and tumult in this little village when you arrived?

A. The Jews using force, had loft the ghetto and had threatened th mayor that they would hang him with the aid of the partisans, hang him and hi police force: that is what they threatened; and I established that all men took active part in it added to the contact they had taken up with the partis

Q. Of course, when you say "taking up contact with the partisans" the Tribunal understands that it was only a mental contact, so that your repeating the contact with the partisans does not add anything to what you said before, namely, that they did not physically soc the partisans or in an way communicate with them directly.

A. I did not understand the question, Your Honor.

Q. Well, I was coming to the question. You keep repeating that those thirty had had contact with the partisans, and we remind you that you said that you found these thirty in their homes, that they had in no way actually spoken with the partisans, that the only contact they had with the partisans was through the three women and that the only contact they had was a mental contact. That is correct, isn't it?

A. No, that is not quite correct, Your Honor. By contact through these two women -- or at least these three women were active partisans and agents -- through the fact that these men spoke to these three women, there was direct contact, not only mental contact, and that had been established, Q. Very well. We understand what you mean. Now in this report to which you have called our attention, indicate to us one reference to partisans.

A. Your Honor, I was just about to explain that.

Q. Well, explain it now.

A. I don't know it, as Nebe made out this report personally and changed it as he did all other reports. I reported to him verbally on the evening of my return immediately. The explicit report with all documents and records was submitted only two days after that as all the records and under lying documents which were in the Russian language had to be translated first.

Q. Why did Nebe falsify the report which you gave him?

A. I was just about to go on, Your Honor.

Q. All right, go on.

A. I can only assume that in the meantime Nebe in accordance with my original first short report had already made out his own report which he sent to Berlin.

Q. Well, did you make out two conflicting reports? Did your first report differ from your second report?

A. No, Your Honor, but I made a very brief report the first time: it was an oral report, and,.

Q. And what did you say in the brief report?

A. In this brief report I reported that I conducted the investigatio that I confirmed that all Jews had left the Ghettos, that they had taken up contact with the partisans, and that for that reason I had had thirty men and three women shot.

Q. Well, show us that in the report which you have before us.

A. Well, no, Your Honor, it doesn't say anything about it.

Q. Well, then please explain why N ebe made up a report which is absolutely a fabrication insofar as the report which you made to him is concerned? Why did he falsify what you told him?

A. I can't give you any information about this, Your Honor, because I do not know it. I made a verbal report and, based it on this oral report which I made to him, he probably made out some report to Berlin -- probably.

In Berlin this was edited. It was probable that some lines were left out, It was chan ged, and that is how it might have come about. The fact is that I gave a verbalreport first and two days later I made out a very extensive report giving all the necessary underlying documents, and I do not know why he did not make use of my second report. It is probable that he presumed the this first report was probably sufficient for him and that it would not be necessary to -

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, witness, your first report does not coincide with this; if Nebe had filed your first report, he could not have written this, because in your first report, your oral brief report, you told about the investigation, and you told about contact with the Partisans?

Q Yes, and that is not in this report; why would Nebe ignore what you told him in the first report, and in the second report not only ignore it but absolutely construct something out of the whole-cloth entirely different from what you told him. Why would Nebe do that?

A Well, I can not find another reason. I can not find another construction. I only find what it says here that they have left the Ghetto and had gone to the woods, that is what I reported to him.

Q What does it say about the Partisans?

A I don't know why he omitted the Partisans. Perhaps he had mentioned them and perhaps in Berlin, as the conditions in the East were not so well known there, and in order to make it a little briefer, it was just omitted. I don't know that. I neither made out the report myself in Smolensk, nor did I have any influence on happenings in Berlin. I only made my oral report, and based on this short oral report, this report went through three or four hands to Berlin, and these people on these three or four stages had formulated it in a different manner, and therefore, that formulation is quite different than what I made myself.

Q Why did they omit the business about threatening the Mayor?

A I don't know.

Q That certainly would be a very important item. Here were Jews in the Ghetto who rebelled, mutiny with violence, break out, threatened the Mayor, and, yet, not a word of it in the report. Explain that? found his own terminology, and found his own wording, which did not contain this essential thing because these less important matters had already been known before, because of the message of the Mayor, which had arrived, and which said that the Jews had threatened him, and that they wanted to hang him, and, therefore, he had asked for the protection of the Einsatzgruppe Staff.

He had known about these circumstances before.

Q It is not a question of what Nebe knew. It is what Nebe reported; in the making of the report of this very vital operation, why does he omit all these facts which you tell us with such drama, the breaking out of the Ghetto, running into the woods, three women running back and forth, conspiring, threat to kill the Mayor, and not one single word in the report. Why was it all omitted? reported, and what was crossed out in Berlin. I can't know what Nebe reported.

Q Why would they omit it in Berlin? Certainly it would be of great interest to those in Berlin who were conducting the campaign to know just how the population was reacting, and mutiny and rebellion threatening a constituted authority was a menace; and to hang a Mayor is certainly a matter of importance, Why would they omit that in a report?

A I could not tell you, Your Honor. Probably it was just the fault of the office machinery in Berlin. I know conditions there. Perhaps, also, they were overworked, and somebody had to deal with the matter, somebody very much overworked, who didn't know much about the conditions. copy what came in, rather than to change it. Here they changed it?

Q Let me read it: "As punishment for not following the orders of the German Security Police, all male Jews and three women who were in Tatarsk at the time were shot." If these clerks were overburdened, and they wanted to cut down their work, it would be simpler to copy what game in there rather than to pick up something fictitious and put it into the report, wouldn't it.

Explain that? reporting, and therefore, I can give no explanation why this very important and necessary formulation was left out.

Q Not only left out but changed. Keep that in mind, there was a change, an alteration in that report. Can you explain why they would alter it?

Q I'll read for you again, and please listen to it attentively. You told us that the reason that you executed these thirty Jews was that they were in contact with the Partisans; that they had threatened to kill the Mayor; that they had become a menace. Now let me read to you what the report says: "As punishment for not following the orders of the German Security Police, all male Jews and three women who were in Tatarsk at the time were shot." Now, that is different, isn't it? Nebe sent this in the way you told him? for the reason that the Jews had broken out from the Ghetto; as long as I was in Tatarsk -

Q Just a moment, we are talking about the report now. We have gone into the business of how you were notified. I am only asking you why, if Nebe sent in the report correctly, as you gave it to him, why it was changed in Berlin. If you can not explain so, say you don't know. Do you know why they changed that?

A I am unable to explain. I don't know whether it was changed, or whether it was Nebe who made it as it is now.

punishable by death, on whatever it was, I don't know. I don't know according to what principles Nebe made out this report. and Nebe because he wanted to falsify or because he was careless, or because he wanted to convey a different story, did not transmit what you told him, that is one possibility? Berlin for some reason which you can not fathom they falsified the report, is that correct?

Q They changed it, they changed it for reasons you can not tell us?

Q They changed the report, that is your explanation?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Proceed Dr. Mayer. BY DR MAYER: complete, and that the word "Partisans" was missing in this paragraph. It said in that report that Jews were in the woods, What does it mean, that Jews escaped to the woods? were afraid of being arrested.

Q Where were the Partisans, then, generally staying?

THE PRESIDENT: I'll have to give you credit for trying hard there, but let the witness testify.

DR. MAYER: I have no more questions, Your Honor, as to this subject matter. I'll proceed with the witness. BY DR. MAYER:

this action was that the Jews independently, and on their own, started to leave the Ghettos, and went into the surrounding woods, You partly answered this question when asked by the President. But, I would like to take this up again in its proper context? tions was the contact with the Partisans which constitut ed a special danger. your own report?

A That I don't know, as Nebe personally modified or changed the report, as he did with all the other reports. I reported to Nebe immediately after my return in the evening when I gave him a brief oral report. The detailed report in writing was submitted by me giving all the underlying details and documents as the underlying documents, and records, which were in Russian, had to be translated. I can, therefore, only assume that Nebe in accordance with my original oral report had already made his own report, which he sent to Berlin, and, in Berlin these reports were even more abbreviated and expurgated. It is a possibility that in the report of events on the 24th this inconceivable formulation has been brought about. that you didn't have Jews so treated because they were Jews, but because they had made contact with the Partisans, and been guilty of mutiny, and, therefore, had evaded the regulations imposed upon them?

THE PRESIDENT: Doctor Mayer has not he been telling us that now for about thirty-five minutes. Why is it necessary to repeat it. He has said over and over again that the Jews mutinied; they escaped into the woods; they were contacting the Partisans; they were going to kill the Mayor.

He has told us all that.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I only wanted to make sure that it was taken in the record, that is the answer. But I withdraw the question.

THE PRESIDENT: I think it is adequately in the record, you need not worry about that.

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: If it is not in the record, we will get after these court reporters. BY DR. MAYER:

Q In your two affidavits, which were made by you before Mr. Wartenberg, you mentioned these executions in Tatarsk, but you didn't say that three women were also shot, as the document showed. Can you explain to the Tribunal why you didn't speak of these happenings? memory somewhat, when I gave the first and second affidavits. It was only when I looked at the documents submitted by the Prosecution that I suddenly remembered about the three women. These three women whom I has shot in Tatarsk, I had forgotten, because of my own personal attitude which was against the shooting of innocent people, and, of course, especially against the shooting of women and children. I constantly had in my mind the two-hundred women who were re-installed in the Ghetto in Tatarsk.

Q What was the guilt that was proven against these three women? Jewish Council, and they were found guilty of having established connection with the Partisans, and having taken active part in the mutiny.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, you say that when you made up this affidavit, or when you signed it, after you had read it, that you forgot that you had killed three women. Now as difficult as it is to believe that one who had sent to their death three women could forget so horrible an episode in his life, it seems even a little more difficult to understand how you could make reference to women in your statement, and then not mention that you had killed three women, because your statement contains, "Although I had orders to shoot women and children too I did not comply with this part of the order."

It is not a matter of forgetting, it is a matter of distinct negation. Explain that? was so nervous and excited that I had no proper perspective of what had happened at the time, and even later, I can not explain, but I am now stating it quite openly and honestly and frankly that I had not remembered these three women. It was only when I saw this document, it immediately struck me that there were also three women among those people executed at Tatarsk, and , that at the moment I suddenly remembered the further details of the whole affair. evidence of the fact that you saw three women mentioned, that then you suddenly realized that you had shot three women, was that the reason?

Q The interrogator, Mr. Wartenberg, must have asked you, did you shoot any women and children? Did he ask you that question?

A He asked me whether I had shot any women and children; thereupon, I told him at the time that on principle my attitude was against the shooting of women and children; in this connection I said that I led them back into the Ghetto, because I remembered, as I said, this picture of the two-hundred women and children. these ten men out in the woods, ready to go to their Creator, with their graves dug close by; did you remember that picture?

A I didn't take part in the execution, Your Honor. them at ten places, to blindfold them; don't take away their clothing, Do you remember that picture?

A No, I didn't remember it at the time. I didn't remember any of these details.

Q Now this happened in 1942, didn't it? shooting of the three women. Now many years had to go by before your brain finally revolved and came to the point where it could recollect this picture of three women about to be shot. How long did it take you to recall that?

A I can not state that, I don't know.

Q When did you first remember that you shot the three women? me this document to the effect that in Tatarsk, apart from those thirty men were also three women who were shot; at the moment I remembered these three women. Before that it had all disappeared from my memory, I didn't remember it. I cannot explain it.

Q Six Years later you remembered it? you said, " By Joe", that is right, they killed three women? you had killed three women , and how did you acquaint him with the fact that now you remembered that you killed three women. What was your reaction?

Q You were shocked that they had made the report?

to tell the truth, had omitted to tell that originally, that I had forgotten these three women, and, therefore, I was suspected of having made a false affidavit and embezzled these three women, as it were, that was the shock that I had.

THE PRESIDENT: Is that the right word,"embezzled"?

THE WITNESS: That was I didn't name these three women. That this can be regarded as my bad intention, that is what I meant, that was my reaction when these three women cropped up. false statement to Mr. Wartenberg?

AAn incomplete statement. Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, thank you. Shall we recess, Dr.Mayer, or is there something you want to say?

DR. MAYER: No, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow morning at nine-thirty.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is in recess until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 0930 hours, 12 December '47) Court No. II, Case No. IX.

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II.

Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

DR. SCHWARZ: (Attorney for the defendant stein) I would like the defendant Sandberger be excused from attendance in court this afternoon. I ask this for Defense Counsel Stein, who is not here. He wants to prepare his document books.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Sandberger will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon.

DR. KRAUSE: Deputizing for Ridieger for the Defendant Haensch. Your Honor, I have the same request concerning the Defendant Haensch. He needs him also in order to prepare document books and ask him to be excused from attendance in court this afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Haensch will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon.

DR. MAYER: For Klingelhoefer.

THE PRESIDENT: Would you mind awaiting just a moment or two, Dr. Mayer, until a member of the prosecution arrives?

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

You may proceed, Dr. Mayer. BY DR. MAYER (Attorney for the defendant Klingelhoefer): page 41 of the English, page 39 of the German, Document NO-3403, Exhibit No. 63. It is the Report of Events No. 125 of 26 October 1941 and on Court No. II, Case No. IX.

page 4 of the original for Staff and VKM, a figure of shootings of 2457 is mentioned, an increase of 428 shootings, as compared with the Report of Events No, 108, discussed before. What can you tell us about this. Staff and the VKM I have to say the same as I have said before. At that time I was not a member of the VKM any more but belonged to the Group Staff. In the Group Staff I belonged to Department SD where I had nothing to do wit other tasks, except the three missions which I have already mentioned in detail which I carried out on orders from Nebe or from Naumann because of this special situation and the special circumstances. The figures of shootings I can merely explain this way: That I assume that the persons executed in Tatarsk, these 30 Jewish men and the 3 Jewish women are contained in this total report. participated or which you witnessed? other executions, nor did I have them carried out, nor did I witness them. Naumann was questioned on the witness stand. You know that the Defendant Naumann, after he arrived here in prison, gave you a sheet of paper. What did you do with this note? Mr. Wartenberg, without reading it and enclosed it in an envelope, with a letter.

Q What way was the accompanying letter worded? the following, approximately: "Enclosed, I forward to you a note given to me on 3 July, after the evening walk, handed to me by Erich Naumann." I refuse to do such things. I did not open it and did not know its contents.

Q Why did you act in that manner?

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, the witness has been purporting to give us the contents of a note he sent to Mr. Wartenberg. He said he has given it to us to the best of his memory. I have the original of that note here and request that the witness, if he intends to give the contents, he give the complete contents and not that part of it he recalls and that is a very small part, be admitted into the record.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Mr. Ferencz, you will have the opportunity to cross-examine him on that very statement, on that letter. Proceed, Dr. Mayer.

Q (By Dr. Mayer) What was your motive in acting that way? I tried to say the pure truth and describe everything as it actually happened. It is my opinion that when Naumann gave me such a note this was in order to induce me to make certain statements which did not conform with the truth. I could not answer for such action which are in conflict with my conscience. BY THE PRESIDENT: jure yourself without seeing the note? has sent you a note that he was going to try to induce you to say something which was not the truth. Why should you come to that conclusion without reading the note?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, may I interrupt here. I think there was a mistake in the translation. Perhaps the reply could be repeated and retranslated.

Q (By the President) Yes, Witness, you started that when you received this note from Naumann , you refused to read it because you Court No. II, Case No. IX.

assumed that Naumann wanted you to tell an untruth. How could you determine that Naumann was endeavoring to persuade you to perjure yourself without seeing the note? note is given to me secretly, I must assume that somebody is trying to induce me to do something.

Q Well, had Naumann ever lied to you before? to lie in this note.

A Well, because of the general situation, I thought so. I had never met Naumann in such a situation. any sign or any indication that he was going to transmit a message to you? which I had to read.

Q And what more did he say?

A He said nothing else. He merely said he had written a note for me and I absolutely had to read it.

Q Did he tell you what he was going to put in the note? Did he indicate the subject matter of the note?

A No, he did not tell me that. There was no possibility to talk during that time. and you received a note from someone, who had never been unfriendly to you, you concluded that he was going to ask you to do something wrong? order to induce me to make false statements. That was my personal assumption.

Q Is that the only reason a note is written?

A I thought so, Your Honors. In the state I was in at the moment -I was very nervous at the time --, of course, I reacted to this in that manner, that I objected to it.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Dr. Mayer. BY DR. MAYER: were ordered back from Russia on 20 December, 1943. When did you start to work in Office VI? after my leave from the Russian assignment had expired.

Q What did you do Office VI?

A In Office VI, I was assigned to Group VIC. This Group Detachment dealt with the subject of Eastern Europe; the so-called "Operation Zeppelin" was part of it, which included Department VI-C, 1 to 3. I worked in the Department VI-2. In this department we worked on evaluation of the information material, namely, concerning Russia. After starting to work there for the "Operation Zeppelin" at first, I remained there in Berlin for a few days for general information and after that, as far as information work was concerned, I was ordered to Special Department VI-C2, in a special camp. This special camp had to cope with the first systematic work on the incoming Russian material which was received at Berlin, sent to the camp and then it returned to Berlin where work was continued. This utilization work was done by Russian specialists of all departments who were under the charge of a German expert who spoke Russian. These Russian specialists mostly were formerly POW's who on account of the "Operation Zepplin" had been selected from POW camps. Recruiting of Russian POW's was done on a voluntary basis. The Russians thus selected were released by the Army for the Operation Zeppelin and were released from captivity as POW's. There were not considered POW's any more in working for the "Operation Zeppelin" but they were considered foreign co-workers of the RSHA. They were paid according to a special day order. They had free housing, free clothing, and free food. They were allowed to move about freely and apart from the neutral uniform for work, they received civilian clothes for their spare time and they could move about freely without supervision. Roll calls or any measures of a military nature were not held, as there was nothing similar to a military manner at all, because that work was purely scientific so that these Russian xco-workers would not feel they were forced to work. of this special department, being instructed that questions of war economics and armament were going to be dealt with by this special de partment and that it was to be extended to all other domestic spheres in Russia.

That means from then onwards cultural, inner political and other problems of public life in Russia were to be dealt with. At that time the department was called Sonderlager L, Special Camp L. This "L" here stands for "Lebensgebiet," which is domestic sphere. camp was to be transferred from Breslau to Upper Austria in a camp of the Labor Service near Gross-Hollenstein, where I continued to work until it was dissolved in April 1945.

Q What happened to the Russian experts when the camp was dissolved? the Labor Office in Linz, or, at their own request, they were given an opportunity to volunteer for the Zlasow Army. a question. In a document the locality Zadrudub is mentioned. This is Document NO-316, Exhibit 65 in Document II-B, English page 54, German page.48, page 1 of the original. This locality Zadrudub is not mentioned on any map. You yourself know the Russian language; could you tell me from what this name originates?

A The word, "Zadrudub" appears to me to be a remnant of a word, because the word makes no sense. "Dub" in Russian means "oak", but a word on the basis of "Zadru" does not exist in the Russian language, but I know that the word "Starudub" or "Starudubsk" exists as a Russian town name. The meaning of thiw work in both cases would mean "Old Oak". "Zadrudub" I consider a corruption of "Starudub" or "Starudubsk."

Q "Starudub" actually is between Gomel and Orel; Would you know which kommando operated in this territory? Special Kommando 7B was the only one operating there.

DR. MAYER: Your honor, this concludes my direct examination.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, in connection with your last question, do we understand that the witness says that in his opinion there is no such town called Zadrudub, and that in his opinion the town referred to is "Starudub?"

Is that what his explanation was?

DR. LAYER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Any other defense counsel desiring to cross-examine please advance to the podium. BY THE DR. KINNERT (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT NAUMAN):

Q Witness, where did you get to know the Defendant Nauman first?

Q When was this? this particularly? an accident and therefore I had to remain in Smolensk for six days for medical treatment. Therefore, I remember this time so exactly.

Q During that time, was Naumann's predecessor, Nebe, still in Smolensk?

Q Did you see Nebe yourself during those days?

Q Do you know when Nebe left Smolensk?

A I don't know exactly, because those six days which I stayed in Smolensk I had to stay in bed and did not know anything of events happening outside my room. I therefore must assume he left during those six days.

Q Do you have any further recollection confirming this period? Nauman to Gshatsk, that is, Nauman only went as far as Jasma and the following day he followed me to Gshatsk.

Q And when did Naumann visit you in Gshatsk?

Q When and why did you see Naumann again? leave, and went to the Group-staff in Smolensk.

Q When did you start your leave?

A I started this leave immediately after Naumann's visit in Gshatsk, on 2nd of December 1941.

Q The read from Gshatsk goes right by Smolensk, doesn't it? When going on leave while passing through Smolensk, did you visit Naumann's office?

Q Did you meet Naumann on that occasion?

Q And why not? told that Naumann was on a journey visiting commanders.

Q What day was this?

Q One further question. Did you ever receive any execution orders from Naumann?

Dr. KINNERT: Thank you. I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any defense counsel desires to cross examine? If not, Mr. Ferencz may conduct the cross examination for the Prosecution.

CROSS_EXAMINATION BY MR. FERENCZ: a typewritten sheet, is that correct?

Q Who wrote the answers for you?

Q And did you type out the copy you now have in front of you?

A No, I didn't type it. I didn't have a typewriter.

Q Who typed them out for you? you brought them into the courtroom?

A The answers? Well, of course, he showed the questions to me, of course, and, I answered as I would answer naturally, of course.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't think that he understand the question, Mr. Ferencz.

MR. FERENCZ: I am having a little difficulty in getting the switch on. BY MR. FERENCZ: Naumann before you read them to the Tribunal? I wrote down the questions -- no, the answers as far as I could remember them, and then had then had them copied.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't think he still got your question correctly. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q I am not referring now to those questions which Naumann's counsel directed to you, but to all the questions which were put to you by your counsel on direct examination, Did you show him all of the questions, and all the answers that you were going to make in court?

THE PRESIDENT: Did you sow whom, ought you to say in order to make that clear. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q Did you show the defendant Naumann?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I Object to those questions because I myself discussed the questions with the defendant, and, therefore, had an opportunity to discuss that examination with any other defendant.

The only question that can be put, is whether they have been discussed before.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, the Prosecution counsel certainly has the right to inquire as to whether the witness discussed his answers with the defendant Naumann. There is nothing wrong about that question, especially in view of the fact that this witness has already testified at some length about the note he had received from Naumann. The objection is overruled. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q I repeat my question. Did you discuss with the defendant Naumann the answers which you read in this court before you came into the court to testify?

A I didn't really discuss them with him. Probably I just told him what I would answer to his questions. put by Naumann's defense counsel, or are you trying to say that Naumann gave you all the questions and all the answers?

A I don't understand the questions, Mr.Prosecutor. your counsel of direct examination were read by you from a type_ written sheet, which you have before you. I am sking you if you discussed all these questions and answers with the defendant Naumann before you took the stand? went into the witness stand. additions to your answers?

DR. MAYER: I beg your pardon, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

DR. MAYER: It is like this. The defendant Klingelhoefer does not understand the question.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, but just a moment, please, the witness must answer this. It is not for counsel to indicate what he did. You will have an opportunity in redirect examination if there is something which must be cleared up because of the cross examination, but Mr. Ferencz, now, is conducting the cross examination on a certain feature of the case, which is certainly amenable to cross examination. It is not necessary for you, Dr. Mayer, at this point to make any statement. The Witness can do that. You, of course, will have the right when Mr. Ferencz finishes to clear up anything which you believe needs to be cleared up.

DR. MAYER: Yes, I merely want to point out that the defendant does not understand the questions as they are put.

THE PRESIDENT: I see, all right, now, Mr. Ferencz, in putting the questions don't use any pronouns; repeat the names of the individuals involved, and perhaps that will make it very precise and incapable of any ambiguity. BY MR. FERENCZ: you read them to the court?

A The replies to Naumann you are referring to? direct examination?

Q You stated that you were a member of Sondercommando VII_B from June to 10 July 1941, is that correct? when the Commando was set up, approximately, until 10th or 11th of July, yes.

Q Didn't you say in your affidavit that you were a member of the VII_B until August 1941?

Q I call your attention to Document Book III_B, page 57 of the English, page 105 of the German. You will notice there in your first paragraph you state that is Document NO_4235, page 105, of the German copy, Document Book III_B.

A I don't find it here.

Q Well, never mind. I shall withdraw my question if you are having difficulties. That is page 112 of the German? on page 57 of the English copy, where you are describing your duties, and, your say that "Dr, Six was recalled to Berlin in August, and you were then transferred from VII_B to the Vorkommando_Moscow, which Six had just left."?

A No. that is not right, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q What did you mean by your statement in your affidavit?

A It says here, "After this unit had reached the city of Minsk," that is 7B and the sentence before that: " Nebe transferred me to the Vorcommando_Moscow, Advance Commando Moscow." The commander of the unit at the time, Professor Dr. A Six, was recalled to Berlin in August 1941, and already in Minsck, I was transferred to Advance Commando Moscow. transferred to Vorcommando_Moscow?

A I belonged to the Vorcommando_Moscow, and I prepared myself for work in Moscow, and afterwards when we had rested at Smolensk and were stationed in Smolensk for sometime, as I have already explained, I made search in the NKWD offices, and Soviet houses to evaluate material, as Six had ordered me to do. with him in Vorcommando_Moscow, is that correct?

Q Returning now to your activity in Sondercommando VII_B, you stated in your direct examination that Rausch, the commanding officer addresses the Commando before you went into Russia, and told you that the rules of war will be disregarded, is that correct?

Law, didn't recognize the Hague Rules of Land Warfare and the Geneva Convection, and, therefore, we wanted to conduct our war in a ruthless manner, and would have to expect the Soviets to conduct it in a ruthless manner. He also said that the Military Law and Material Law as used by the High Command of the Army were not going to be applied. disregard the rules of war, isn't that correct?

A That was not ordered, no. It was merely said that the Soviet Union didn't keep to the rules of war of the Geneva Convention and the Hauge Rules of Land War are, and, therefore, would not recognize them, and would not apply them.

Q At that time, you were not really at war with Russia, were you?

A Well, at the time when this was announced, I don't exactly remember that date, but it must have been on the evening before the war started. you would have to conduct your war ruthlessly, because Russia was not following the rules of warfare, is that correct?

A. I don't know whether this was on the eve before the war started. I don't remember the exact date when this happened. That might have been one or two days earlier, or later. We left, I believe, the day after the German troops had crossed the border. On the 21st we left Dueben, and later in the evening before this was announced to the Commando that we were going to declare war on Russia, just as the units at the border had also had this drawn to their attention, that we were going to wage war against Russia.

Q. So that all the troops had had announced to them before the war, that the rules of war would be disregarded?

A. Yes, this was announced to us. We were not told that we would not have to keep the rules of war, but that we were told the Soviet Union would not keep the rules of war, because they didn't recognize these three agreements.

Q. You told us yesterday that Rausch told you that the Army courts martial were to be disregarded, and that the rules of war were to be disregarded. Do you now change your testimony?

A. No, I merely said that the war would be conducted severely and ruthlessly.

Q. Let me read your answer to you inasmuch as you have apparently forgotten it. Your counsel said to you, following the question by the President of the Tribunal: "Q Please continue slowly" and you answered, quote: "Therefore, we had to fight them just as ruthlessly. Therefore, the war laws and courts martials were not to be applied concerning the enemy. These laws had been given by the High Command, and they were to be disregarded as far as the enemy were concerned." End of quote. Now do you intend to change your testimony on that point at this time?

A. No.

Q. You deny that you said that?

A. Yes.

Q. You, therefore, deny that you said it?

A. I didn't say that. I didn't say it like that.

Q. Yes certainly intend to change that statement at this time then?

A. No, not at all. What I said, once more, was not that martial law was not going to be adhered to, as far as I remember, I said that the enemy, that is, the Soviet Union did not recognize the argeements, and, therefore, we had to expect a ruthless manner of warfare, and that, therefore, the Germans would have to conduct their war accordingly, very ruthlessly.

Q. Now I have just read to you where you said specifically, the rules of war were to be disregarded, and you have stated that the transcript is wrong in that respect, that you didn't say that. Therefore, isn't it true, that you intend to change your testimony, and say the rules of law were to be followed?

A. No, I do not want to change my testimony at all, but I never said we would not keep to the regulations of war. I merely said that we would fight severely and ruthlessly if we were to conquer our enemy.

Q. And he didn't tell you to disregard the rules of law?

A. No, that was not said.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, may I interrupt just a moment and thus let's clear this up whether he did or didn't say what you have read to him. I have in my notes an answer as follows: "Now witness please listen to this, and tell us whether you said this or not: "we had to fight them just as ruthlessly; therefore, the war laws and the courts martial were not to be applied concerning the enemy. These laws had been given by the High Command, and were to be disregarded so far as the enemy was concerned." Now all we want is an answer as to whether or not you did or didn't say that yesterday?

THE WITNESS: I said words to that effect, your Honor, that is what I meant. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. I read the said question just a few moments ago, and you said specifically, "no, I didn't say that."

Now you say you did, which one is the truth?

Q. Well, I said, as I expressed it before, I said that Rausch said ---

Q. No, no.

A. --that the Soviet Union -

Q. I am just asking you --

A. --that the Soviet Union rejected all these laws, and, therefore, we would have to conduct the war very ruthlessly, and that the Wehrmacht -

Q. Just a moment. I am not asking you to repeat the whole story. I read the question to you. You said to me, "I didn't say that." The President of the Tribunal read the same quotation to you, and asked you if you said that, and you said, yes, you did say that, Now your answer is, well --

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I believe that question is settled, through the reply the witness made to the President's question.

Mr. FERENCZ: Your Honor, there are two contradictory replies. I am just trying to find out which one the defendant intends to rest.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, let's ask him it direct. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. Your answer is correct in the reply to the President, that you did say that, or the reply that you gave me, that you didn't say that, which is it?

A. Well, the reply that I made to the President is right.

Q. Thank you. You were also told at that time that Hitler had ordered that all Jews, Gypsies and Political functionaries were to be shot, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you take an oath of allegiance to obey the orders of your Fuehrer?

A. Yes, I swore an oath like every one else.

Q. You also stated that you noticed that all the persons who heard the order had a certain conflict in their feelings, just as you did, is that correct?

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I believe I can clear up this misunderstanding. It is due to a translation mistake. The witness said -

MR. FERENCZ: Pardon me, Your Honor, sofar there has been no misunderstanding. I just put the question to the witness, and if the defense counsel intends to read me his answer which the defendant read yesterday to the Tribunal, I object to it.

DR. MAYER: Well, no. I don't intend to read the reply, but to say that the witness spoke of material law and military law, and the translation was " Rules of warfare." That means rules of war, and the witness didn't talk of rules of war in general, but of the military and martial law.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I think that the phrase "courts martial" was incorrectly used anyway. I don't know what it is in German, but we understand from all that has been said by the witness that he was informed that the rule of warfare as laid down by the custom of war, and also as established by International Conventions, were to be disregarded, because it was anticipated that Russia would disregard those rules. That is what I gather there by what has been said about this. That was the witness understanding. Isn't that what it amounts to?

DR. MAYER: Perhaps it it possible that the President ask the witness in view of this misunderstanding between rules of and martial laws.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness, you have heard what your counsel has stated. Now tell us very briefly, just what you understand when you went into Russia with regard to ruthless warfare?

enemy but it did not mean that the rules of war are going to be disregarded. I only said that the martial law was not to be applied towards the enemy but that the rules of war were not going to be applied by the Germans, I did not say.

THE PRESIDENT: I think we need to have a little orientation on these phrases. Unaware of the phraseology actually being employed by the witness in German I am unable to make the correction myself if a correction is in order. But, I would suggest to the interpreter that in translating what I am now about to say that the phrases "military law, and courts martial" be used in the English with whatever explanation will be necessary later one. Armies, the actual forces in the field. an Army that has taken over a designated territory. the inquiry and disposition of a case involving a transgression or an alleges transgression by a member of the military and the Tribunal inquiring is the military itself. So, that I don't think that courts martial enters into the discussion at all. A courts martial is handled by German officers over German soldiers. A Russian courts martial is handled by the Russian military over Russians. with regard to the manner in which the enemy would fight. Now, keeping in mind these distinctions which we have drawn, tell us very briefly now what you heard and what you did in following out those orders concerning the manner in which you were to fight the enemy. Army for the assignment in the East excluded applying martial law and Court Martials as far as the enemy was concerned. Then we were told that the enemy, as I have already said, disregarded the agreement about the rules of warfare and, therefore, it had to be expected that they would fight ruthlessly in their warfare and that the Germans on their part would have to deal accordingly but it was not said that Germany on their own were going to disregard the rules of war.

THE PRESIDENT: I think you had better go on now, Mr. Ferencz, BY MR. FERENCZ: received the order that the Jews, gypsies, and political functionaries were to be killed you had a certain conflict in your feelings and you noticed that all who heard the order had a similar conflict, is that correct? is that correct?

A I was very reserved. We talked about it but we did not discuss it. It was sad the Fushrer order would be difficult in general but --

Q What do you mean, you talked about it but did not discuss it? Either you talked about it or you didn't talk about it. opinion about it. Everyone wanted to keep his opinion to himself. why didn't they discuss it?

A I don't know. My personal attitude was to settle the matter within myself. Whether the others did it in a different manner I don't know. In my small circle I did not see any one who started a lively discussion about this order. in opposition to the order why were you afraid or why didn't you discuss the order with them?

it could not be changed. That was my personal opinion. order would have to be carried out, is that correct? a matter came to my attention which made it necessary. formed three groups out of Sonderkommando VII-B, is that correct? Two you called executive groups and one group was to write reports, is that correct? people, isn't that correct?

A No, not at all. These are groups who have State Police members and of the Criminal Police who carry out the task of security. I said that the Kommando was given two kinds of missions. First of all, security in the rear of the Army territory and secondly, to make reports and seize material, etc. VII-B would it be these two executive groups or would it be your group which was supposed to write reports, you tell us. by the 2 Troop Kommandos which had members of the State Police and the Criminal Police. have to carry out any executions which were carried out by Sonderkommando VII-B, is that correct? VII-B is two groups carrying out executions and your group writing reports, is that correct?

Q And was it that way actually in practice or was it just a theory?

was changed because of experiences during campaigns because individual departments had to be formed where executive tasks and reporting had to be made by them. Therefore, this arrangement which Rausch made at the beginning was not regarded later on. and those who were to carry out executions only could write reports, is that correct?

A No, that was not possible, Mr. Prosecutor, because .... report afterwards?

A No. There were special experts, State Policemen for example, could never make SD reports. They were not able to do so as they..... groups, executive groups, that would have to carry out any executions there would be and one group to write reports. You said that in the beginning this was not only theory but practice and later it changed. Now the only way it could have changed is that either the executive groups would start writing reports or the reporting group would start executing people, or all would start writing reports, or all would start executing. Now which of those alternatives was_it? cutive groups and the SD troops, in time were mixed up so that in the three detachments, the troops, the executive people, and the SD people, were all mixed up.

Q All three groups then had the same function?

Q When did the changes take place?

A Well, I didn't know that, at the time in Minsk the Kommando was active as Rausch had planned it because the Kommando was always en route.

Q Did those changes take place while you were still there?

Dr. Mayer: I beg your pardon, your Honor. I would like to point out to the defendant Klingelhoeffer that he should talk a little slower. I don't think the translation and the court reporters can keep up.

THE PRESIDENT: You have heard that, witness, please be governed accordingly. BY MR. FERENCZ: time in Sonderkommando VII-B there were three groups in theory and in practice, two groups carried out executions and your group wrote reports?

Q. How many officers were there in Sonderkommando VII_B?

A. Officers? There were 1,2,3, - about 8, I estimate.

Q. What was the highest ranking officer's grade?

A. The highest ranking officer was SS_Sturmbannfuehrer Rausch, the Kommando chief.

Q. Would the interpreter please give the rank in English?

A. SS. Sturmbannfuehrer - A captain.

THE PRESIDENT: Let the witness himself indicate what the appropriate rank would be in the military.

A. That was major. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. And what was your grade at that time?

A. I was also major at the time.

Q. Were there more than two majors?

A. Not in the Kommando.

Q. So that next to the highest ranking officer or the Kommander of the Kommando you were next in line.

A. Yes, I was the next one in that sense.

Q. Now, tell we, during the time that you were a member, or second in command, of Sonderkommando VII-B how many people were killed by that Kommando?

A. When I was there I did not hear of anything while I was in the Kommando.

Q. You mean that in all this time you were so busy writing reports that you didn't even hear about executions?

A. Well, Mr. Prosecutor, it is like this. In Brest-Litowsk we crossed the border - - - -

Q. Witness, you just stated that you didn't hear about executions. I am not interested in what you did in Breat-Litowsk.

A. I did not hear anything about executions.

Q. How do you explain the fact that you were the second highest ranking officer in Sonderkommando VII_B and you never heard about executions in that Kommando?

How do you explain that? Did you speak to other officers? Did you speak to the men or were you in the hospital all the time? How do you explain the fact that you didn't hear anything about it?

A. In the time when we were in Brest-Litowsk - I want to explain this in more detail - I, together with my SD Troop, separate from the rest of the Kommando who were in Brest-Litowsk for a few days, were in the NKWD building and there carried out investigations of material and documents, while the rest of the Kommando was at some distance in some nn or somewhere on some farm. What happened there I don't know. I just went there sometimes. Nothing else. Apart from that I was in the NKWD building.

Q. So your answer is the reason you didn't hear anything about executions was that the rest of the Kommando was in an inn or on a farm or somewhere and that you went there some times but that you were very busy in the NKWD building.

A. All furing those days I made investigations in the NKWD building of documents. I did not deal with anything ----

Q. So you never spoke to any of the other officers in Sonderkommando VII-B or men in Sonderkommando VII-B about anything else except the documents you were busy just reading in the NKWD building?

A. Well, of course I talked about the things I was working on, of course.

Q. And while you were in that NKWD building were you looking for lists of Communists or Party functionaries?

A. No, I looked for the material I found. I found some lists as well. Whether these were execution members of the NKWD I don't know. I simply utilized and compiled the material and handed it over to the chief for further evaluation.

Q. So, therefore, you found some lists giving you the names of all the Party functionaries in that area and you just gave that list to Rausch, is that correct?

A. Yes, that was my duty.

Q. Now, you knew that Hitler had given an order that all Party functionaries were to be exterminated, did you not?

A. Yes, I knew.

Q. So you took the list of names and gave it to Rausch. Didn't you know at that time he was going to exterminate all those people he could catch?

A. I only knew that I had the order to utilize the material and pass it on.

Q. I asked you, witness, didn't you know that when you were giving him these lists of Communist Party functionaries that he was going to exterminate all those he could? You either knew it or you didn't know it.

A. Of course, I did.

Q. Therefore, your share in this murder enterprise was giving him the names and his share was to shoot them.

A. I only did my duty as a soldier and did what was expected and nothing else. What happened with them I do not know.

Q. So the picture you are trying to give us of your activity in this, is a very busy major writing reports. Of course, you gave the list to other people who had to do the shooting but you never discussed anything about shootings of heard anything say anything about executions? Is that correct?

A. I did not hear anything of shootings in Brest-Litowsk, and never .......

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, I don't know that there seems to have been a contradiction or perhaps I am in error - you asked one question as to whether he knew what would be done with this list. As I recall the answer he said, "Well, of course, I had to know." Then just now you asked, two or three questions back, whether he knew and he says he didn't know what was to be done with the list. BY MR FERENCZ:

Q. Witness, as I understood, you said you know what was to be done with list but didn't know about the execution. Now did you say you didn't know what was to be done with this list which you gave the Kommandofuehrer?

A. Yes, I knew, owing to the Fuehrer order, I knew that functionaries were to be shot. Of course, I knew that but it was my task to utilize and to look into the material which I found and to hand it on and I did this. What happened with the list and whether Rausch, the chief of the Kommando, evaluated them I don't know because I heard nothing about shootings. Whether Rausch later handed on the list I don't know and I didn't hear.

Q. So you never heard anything about shootings by Sonderkommando VII-B during the time you were there, is that correct?

A. In the time until I arrived in Minsk, that is 9 July 1941, those were the first three weeks when the Kommando existed and I did not hear anything about shootings then.

Q. I want to draw your attention to Document Book II_B, page 25 of the English, page 26 of the German, document NO_2844. Here near the top of the page in the English copy it discusses the activities by Sonderkommando VII-B and it says among other things that 20 Jews who had been active as Communists were also executed. It is on page 26 of the German, witness.

A. Where is this, please?

Q. Page 26 of the German, page 25 of the English, top of the page of the English copy. How, so you know anything about those executions?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor, it says here that a unit of Sonderkommando VII-B in Tschautzy carried out search actions for Communist functionaries. As far as I can remember Sonderkommando VII-B was in Tschautzy after the time in Minsk. Therefore, on that occasion I could not have been in Sonderkommando VII-B anymore. The report is dated 4 September 1941.

Q. You mean at that time you were in V.K. Moscow, is that correct?

A. Yes, at that time. That is correct.

Q. Please now, turn to the next page, page 26 of the English, page 28 of the German, and you will see that Vorkommando Moskau was executing people, too.

Now you have just told us that at this time you were in Vorkommando Moskau. Here the report says that 46 persons were executed, 38 people among them being intellectual Jews by V.K.M. Do you know anything about this?

A. In my direct examination I made statements as to this - that I did not hear anything about these executions, because I had nothing to do with these executive tasks.

Q. So you don't know anything about this?

A. I do not know that 38 intellectual Jews were shot in Smolensk.

Q. Do you know that any Jews were shot by Vorkommando Moskau while you were there?

A. While I was in Advance Kommando Moskau of course I know that executions were carried out by the Department for Jewish Affairs. Of course, I know that. I said that I know that the groups staff and also the Advanced Kommando Moskau constantly carried out executions, and operations. I never denied that. But I do not know the details.

Q. We will come to the details shortly as concerns this particular execution. However, you say you know nothing. is that correct?

A. No, I did not know anything.

Q. But you were in Vorkommando Moskau at that time, were you not?

A. Yes, I was in Advanced Kommando Moskau.

Q. Who was the commanding officer of Vorkommando Moskau at that time?

A. That was Brigadefuehrer Nebe.

Q. Were you his deputy?

A. I was appointed deputy but never carried out that function

Q. What were the dates when you were with Vorkammando Moskau?

A. I belonged to Vorkommando Moskau, (Advanced Kommando Moskau,) from the day it was set up, that is 10 or 11 June 1941, until the middle of September 1941, until that time when the new Kommando leader came and took it over from Nebe. Then I was released.

Q. Now on page 27 of the same document you have before you, that is document No-2844, it says that Vorkommando VII-B killed 886 people as per 20 August and staff in Vorkommando Moskau killed 144.

That's on page 29 of the German. You were during that time either in Vorkommando VII-B or in Vorkommando Moskau, is that correct?

A. Until 9 June 1941 I was in the I was in Sonderkommando VII-B.

Q. So that up to the 20 August you were in either one of these two groups?

A. Either/or, yes.

Q. You have told us --

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, Judge Dixon calls attention to a matter of Chronology here. The witness stated that he was with the Kommando VII-B from June 22 to July 10 1941. Then another occasion that he was with Vorkommando Moskau from June 10 to September 15, of to the middle of September; from June 20 to September 15 - oh, June 10 or June 11 - which is correct?

A. From the beginning, 22 June when the Kommando VII-B was set up until 9 July I was in VII-B and that in Minsk on 10 to 11 July in Minsk I came to Advance Kommando Moskau and was in Advanced Kommando Moskau until the middle of September.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, that clears it up.

groups and between the two of them they killed over one thousand people. Of about how many of these executions did you have knowledge?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I have already explained during the direct examination that in the time when I belonged to Sonderkommando 7b I did not hear of any executions. It, therefore, can be assumed that the figure of the total executions of the Sonderkommando 7b occurs during the time between Minsk, when they were active in Minsk, until 20 August. after you left the kommando, Sonderkommando 7b?

Q I see. Then the two executive sections of Vorkommando 7b, or Sonderkommando 7b, did nothing while you were a member of that kommando, or were they writing reports too?

A Well, they didn't do it and didn't have time to do it because the kommando was always en route until they came to Minsk. Those were the first three weeks of the assignment. to carry out executions, one to write reports, that this was the theory and the practice during the time you were there, but now you say they didn't actually carry out executions during your time, they were always marching, so it was just a theory then? for those three days in Brest-Litowsk, and there in Brest-Litowsk I did not hear anything, that any executions occurred there.

Q Now, Witness, you have just contradicted yourself. When I asked you a few minutes before whether the organization of two to carry out executions and one to write reports was theory or practice, you said it was theory and practice. Now you have told us that the two who were supposed to carry out executions were marching all the time instead and therefore it was only theory and not practice. Now, which of these two answers do you now hold to be correct?

A Well, I don't know; I didn't say that. had said previously? route and, therefore, had no opportunity of being stationed anywhere for any length of time. That is what I said. it theory and practice that two were to carry out executions, and you answered to that question, yes, it was both the theory and the practice that they carried out executions. Now you change your answer and say, no, it was just a theory, they never got down to it because they were marching, is that correct? of any executions. That is all I can tell you.

Q That is not my question; that is not my question. My question is, do you now change your testimony to say that it was just theory about the organization of these three groups in Sonderkommando 7b, that they didn't actually carry out executions during your time? time.

Q You have just told is a minute ago that they didn't carry out executions, and your explanation for these 886 people killed was that it happened after you left. Now, are you saying again that it did happen while you were there? start at the time when the kommando had left Minsk. That is when they came to the territory of the action.

THE PRESIDENT: What I think the prosecution desires to learn from you is whether these executions did take place before you left 7b. You say that you didn't hear of them. Do you exclude the possibility that they may have occurred without your being aware of them?

THE WITNESS: That possibility I do not exclude, your Honor. It is possible that executions occurred, might have occurred in Brest-Litowsk, for example, where the kommando was stationed for three days, but I personally did not hear of any executions.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you think that so extraordinary a thing as the killing of eight hundred people could happen and you would not know about it, be done by your own organization and yet you be entirely ignorant of it?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, these are not 886 people. What I mean is that possibly from Brest-Litowsk the executive troops possibly carried out a few executions. They might have done this, but not that 886 people were shot in Brest-Litowsk. I merely maintain that the executions were apparently carried out after I was relieved from the kommando because while belonging to Sonderkommando 7b in the time from 22nd June until 10th or 11th july - first June, then July - I did not hear of any executions.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1130 hours. )

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. Klingelhoefer, I draw your attention to Document Book IIB, page 53 of the English, page 47 of the German, Document No. 3143. There we have the total of liquidations as of 13 September 1941. You were with the Vorkommando Moscow from the 20th of August until the 13th of September 1941, were you not?

A. I was in the Advance Commando Moscow during the period covered by the report, Yes, from the 20th of August until the 13th of September.

Q. Do you remember the 20th of August report gave the total number killed as 144, whereas up to the 13th of September it had advanced to 312? Now, of these additional persons killed, how many did you receive knowledge of?

A. Out of this number I had direct knowledge, as I have already said in my direct examination, of those executions in Matislawl and Tatarsk which were carried out by Noack. Once it was 30 in Matislawl, and 20 in Tatarsk. These are the only direct numbers which became known to me.

Q. In other words, of 168 people killed, you only had knowledge of about 50, is that correct?

A. 50, Yes.

Q. And did anyone ever discuss with you the more than 100 others who were killed?

A. Of course, it was known to me, as I have already said in my direct examination, that the Group Staff as well as the Advance Commando Moscow carried out executions currently and, of course, shootings took place. This is in general, but in detail, I know nothing but these two figures.

PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, the witness has stated that there were 20 killed in Tatarsk. Yesterday he said 30. I don't know if there is just a slip in transmission, but I would like to keep these records straight from my own book here.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, we will go into detail in the Tatarsk executions very shortly. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. It is true, isn't it, Witness, that you just stated that there were 20 killed in Tatarsk?

A. In the first case, Yes, but there were two executions in Tatarsk.

Q. But you just said that there were two executions, one in Matislawl, and one in Tatarsk--Matislawl 30, and Tatarsk 20. Now, do you want to add another?

A. For the period covered by the report to the 13th of September 1941, this is merely the figure of 312 executions which we are discussing. For this period I only know these two executions which were carried out by Noack in Tatarsk and Matislawl. These were these Jewish actions by Noack on the basis of the Fuehrerorder.

Q. Very well. I draw your attention now to page 48 of the English, the same document, the same Document Book, page 43 of the German. There you have enumerated the killing of Jews by Vorkommando Moscow in the different places. The report says that, "A commando of the Vorkommando caused all Jews in these villages to be marked, transferred into a ghetto, forced to work and registered by names; it also shot the existing Jewish council and another 20 Jews."

A. May I ask where this is?

Q. On page 43 of the German, page 33 of the original.

A. Yes, I have got it.

Q. You were in the Vorkommando Moscow at that time, were you not?

A. Yes, I was in the Advance Commando Moscow.

Q. Do you know anything about this particular action or these two actions?

Page 3,910

A. No. I do not know anything about it.

Q. Did you ever hear about it from anybody in the commando?

A. I heard--I know that Noack, as I have already mentioned, was the expert for Jewish questions for which Mebe had appointed him and that he carried out these executions and I assume that he carried out these actions, too, in Choslawitschi.

Q. So your answer to this document is, "Noack did it", is that correct? Your explanation to this particular document is that Noack did it, is that correct?

A. Yes. I have no idea about this.

Q. Incidentally, where is Noack?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether he is dead?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you hear testify in this court that he is dead?

A. No.

Q. Were you here when the defendant, Naumann, was testifying?

A. Yes, I was here.

Q. And you don't recall him saying that Noack is known to be dead?

A. I do not know, No.

Q. I would now like you to turn to Document Book IIB, page 18; it is page 17 of the German; it is page 13 of the original document. There again you have an action by Vorkommando Moscow in which 114 Jews were killed. Do you know anything about this particular actions?

A. No, I know nothing about this action either since, as I have already mentioned, I was only in the Advance Commando Moscow until the middle of September. As for the few days which fall into this report beyond this period, I must say the same, I have said before, that I had nothing to do with these matters and that only Noack was competent for this matter. I did not know in detail who carried out this action, and where and how it was carried out, therefore, it can also be assumed that this action in Choslawitschi already took place under the leadership of koerting and at this time I did not belong to Advance Commando Moscow any longer.

Q. Well, you said you were a member of Advance Commando Moscow until the 15th of September 1947?

A. Until the middle of September, Yes.

Q. And this document is dated the 9th of October.

A. Yes, 9th of October.

Q. You have heard many of the defendants explain that the date of the reports was always a few weeks after the actual event, so that this particular event would have taken place in September, is that correct?

A. Yes, but may I point out that when compiling the total figures, the deadline of the 28th of September is given at the end, therefore, this must be the period between the 13th of September 1941 and the 28th of September 1941, since the preceding compilation is mentioned as of the 13th of September. Therefore, I conclude, as I must conclude, that this action took place within this period of time.

Q. In any event, you say this was done by Noack, is that correct?

A. In any case, I must say if Noack didn't do it, it must have been Koerting.

Q. Now, I raw your attention -

A. I had nothing to do with actions.

Q. I draw your attention to page 21 of the same document--page 21 of the German, which gives the total killed as of September 28. Now, you say that you were with the Vorkommando Moscow from the 20th of August through the middle of September. We have the total here of over 2,000 people killed during most of that period or just a few days over. Of these 2,000 who were killed, how many of them did you assist in killing?

A. I didn't assist in any of them.

Q. You had knowledge about how many killed during that period?

A. In the period of what?

Q. From the 20th of August.

A. Yes. I have already mentioned that I had direct knowledge for this entire period of time of the two executions in Matislaw and Tatarsk by Noack, one is 30, and one is 20.

Q. That would mean that of these 2,000 or more people killed you had knowledge of only 50, is that correct?

A. Directly, Yes.

Q. And indirectly?

A. Indirectly, I knew in general that the group staff itself, as well as the advance commando Moscow continually carried out executions. Of course, I knew this.

Q. You say "continually carried out executions", you mean by that as long as they existed they were busy killing people in accordance with the Fuehrerorder, is that correct?

A. Yes. Well, by "continually", I meant during this period of time. I don't know whether it happened every day. Other executions were carried out, too, outside of the Fuehrerorder.

Q. Now, let us turn now to your affidavit which is in Document Book IIIB, page 57, page 105 or 112 of the German copy. Do you remember the circumstances under which you gave this affidavit on the 2nd of July?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there any duress in connection with the taking of this affidavit?

A. No.

Q. Was there any threat made in connection with the taking of this affidavit?

A. No.

Q. Was there any threat made in connection with the taking of this affidavit?

A. No.

Q. Was there any promise of immunity made in connection with the taking of this affidavit?

A. Promise for reward--No. May I add something?

Q. Yes.

A. But upon my objections against certain phraseologies which I made, Mr. Wartenberg told me that I would have the possibility of correcting these incorrect formulations at another day. I was told this. And after I had objected to these formulations, I gave my signature because I had this statement by Mr. Wartenberg.

Q. Were you reminded before you signed this statement that you were under oath?

A. I was put under oath before, Yes.

Q. And was the oath administered to you just before you signed it, and doesn't it appear at the end of the affidavit?

A. The oath was administered to me as soon as I entered the room, without anything being told me before I entered the room, and Mr. Wartenberg was standing and immediately administered the oath to me. That was the first thing that I heard Mr. Wartenberg say.

Q. Were you given the opportunity to make changes and corrections in the statement?

A. Of course, I did, but only in the small details. But as far as more important objections which I made, I was told that this was not necessary now, and I would have an opportunity to make these corrections later. This was told to me. Thereupon, I said, "Well, under these circumstances, I am prepared to sign this affidavit in this form, if I will have an opportunity to correct it later.": and I got this later. Of course, I was very excited.

Q. You swore at that time when you signed the affidavit that the affidavit was true, did you act?

A. I signed this affidavit, of course, because I tried to tell the truth to the best of my knowledge and belief, which I then had. I was interrogated so quickly that I had no time to think over these matters and really to remember all these things. Thus, I said whatever I remembered at the moment.

Q. Was this affidavit given to you to sign the first time you spoke to Mr. Wartenberg?

A. No. The first time I saw Mr. Wartenberg before, the day before, the 1st of June.

Q. So, at least one day elapsed between the time you spoke to Mr. Wartenberg and the time you signed this affidavit?

A. Yes, and on the second day I even made additions, after I used this interval to think the matter over and think about what I might have forgotten.

Q. Now, we have just gone over the reports which show that the Vorkommando Moscow between August and September, together with the Group Staff killed about 2,000 people. In this affidavit which you made and swore to, you stated, and I quote from paragraph 1: "Professor Dr. A. Six, who led this unit at that time, was recalled to Berlin in August 1941, and during August/ September 1941 I acted as his deputy and led this unit".

A. Yes, and that is just one of the points to which I objected, Mr. Prosecutor. During my interrogation I stated that I did not command the unit, but Nobe commanded It, and that I had been designated as his deputy, but that all orders and instructions were given by Nobe. These were my words. It was formulated in this way, and I said that this isn't correct, I was never commander of Advance Commando Moscow, I was only his deputy, therefore, I was told that this was not so important, so essential, and that I could correct this later on, and I did that in my second affidavit.

Q. In other words, your statement--your sworn statement of this affidavit is which you state that you led the Vorkommando Moscow is false?

A. It is incorrect, and I corrected it accordingly or objected to it.

Q. Yet you signed this affidavit knowing that it contained an incorrect statement, is that correct?

A. I signed it with reservations on the basis of the promise given to me.

Q. And you did have the opportunity to make corrections, however?

A. I had the opportunity to make corrections, but not this correction.

Q. Are you trying to say that you said to Mr. Wartenberg, "Here, I want to correct this mistake because this mistake would mean that I killed 2,000 people", and Mr. Wartenberg said, "No, don't correct that, you will do that some other time", is that what you are trying to tell the Tribunal?

A. It is not a matter of the 2,000 people, Mr. Prosecutor, it is merely about the commando of a unit, which I was to have led allegedly, but which I did not command, and I clarified this, that I never personally commanded the commando, but I was a deputy without performing its function. I corrected this in my second affidavit.

Q. Your second affidavit was made after you had received the indictment, is that correct?

A. The second affidavit was made after I got the indictment, Yes, because before that I had no opportunity.

Q. Didn't you state in your interrogation, that is before you received the indictment, that you led the Vorkommando Moscow until September--Yes or No, then you can explain it?

A. It says here, Yes.

Q. But you also stated it in your interrogation the day before-

A. No. In my interrogation I described the matter differently.

Q. Allow me to read to you a question to refresh your memory. I will read it in the German from the transcript:

"Q Thus you headed it from August until when?

A Until September."

Do you remember that?

A. Yes. the deputy leadership--as long as I belonged to the Advance Commando Moscow, I was the deputy, but I did not perform my duties as a deputy. That is that point which I objected to in the affidavit.

Q. Why did you sign the affidavit, which stated that you had the opportunity to make corrections, that you swore that it was true when you knew that on a vital point that it was false?

A. I called his attention to this very important point, and I was told that it was not so important, I would get the opportunity later to correct these mistaken formulations and errors.

Q. So that on that simple statement-

A. I was in such a state of mind at the time that I relied on this, and I signed it under the--with the reservation that I would later be allowed to correct this, and I did so at the next occasion which I had.

Q. Isn't that a little naive?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I was at that time is a state of mind which one could not call naive.

Q. Why were you in such a state of mind?

A. Because I was very excited, and that is very clear. I had had so many experiences in these two years I had been interned after the collapse, and I experienced so many disappointments and misfortunes that I was so excited, and when I was transported to Nuernberg I did not know what was coming, and after I arrived here, one hour later I was called to interrogation. I was immediately brought into a room. Immediately they said, "Raise your right hand and awear", and I was so mixed up that I didn't have all my logical thinking in order.

commanded the Vorkommando Moscow, you gave him the dates, and you didn't change the testimony between then and the next day when you -dates so that the prosecution had to make a correction. where you state concerning the executions in Tatarsk, the first one, the executions proper were carried out by Noack under my supervision. vision and I discussed this concept with Mr. Wartenberg in detail. I said right away I had no mission to supervise. that it was under your supervision. After you thought it over, and, particularly, after you got the indictment and the documents, you discovered it is a false statement. the first moment and I always said, "This is not correct. I did not supervise" and that's the same thing -- I got the same answer. I could correct all these matters later on. make corrections. You stated here on the stand that you had had the opportunity to make corrections. Why didn't you make that correction?

A Because I was told that these corrections were not necessary. I could make these corrections later, at a later date. I signed it with this reservation.

Q What corrections did you make?

A I do not know. I do not have the copy here.

A You mean, objections made which were not corrected?

Q No, no. I mean, which corrections did you make actually in the affidavit?

changed, as far as I remember. when you came to the important parts as to who supervised the executions, and who was in command during the time that these thousands of executions were carried out, you didn't make changes, you signed it, saying you had the opportunity to make corrections, saying that it was correct and waited for a later chance, is that who you want us to believe?

A Yes, because Mr. Wartenberg expressly told me that I would have an opportunity to correct these matters later, that I would get a chance to do so.

Q Now turn to Paragraph 4. This discusses your second execution in Tatarsk. In it you stated that "I had the remaining Jews, approximately 30, shot. I carried out this order to prevent these people from joining the partisans. Although I had orders to shoot women and children too, I did not comply with this part of the order." Now, you are going to tell us, aren't you, that this again is wrong and here you wanted to change it, but Mr. Wartenberg said "Some other time", and you said, "Yes, Sir", and you state everything in this affidavit is false. Is that what you intend to say?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor, I did not object to this point. Jews shot?

A I had the 30 men in Tatarsk who remained shot. It was for the reasons which I mentioned yesterday in my direct examination.

Q Didn't you say yesterday in your direct examination that you didn't have all of them shot? You just had the guilty ones shot. Jews remaining in Tatarsk were guilty.

Q Then all the Jews were guilty. There were none innocent and therefore you had them all shot, but all after a careful trial, of course?

guilty, of course. Hitler had ordered all Jews to be killed? I had the order to examine the messages of the Mayor of Tatarsk and after investigating the matter to execute the guilty ones. That was my mission. I did not have an assignment to carry out a Jewish execution on the basis of the Fuehrer Order. killed and that order was given to all Einsatzkommandos, did you not? had you not? Hitler had ordered that all Jews were to be killed and you had sworn to follow his orders? I was not a commando leader. I could not give the order on my own initiative. That was only a matter of a decision for a commando leader. I was a member of the Group Staff at the time. My chief of the Einsatzgruppe only gave me the order to investigate this subject carefully and then to shoot the guilty ones.

Q It's just a coincidence, isn't it, that they were all guilty?

A No, that is no coincidence. That was exactly determined.

Q What would you have done to an innocent one?

A I have already said that yesterday. If I had found an innocent one, I would not have shot him. I would have put him back in the Ghetto, the same as I did with the women and children.

Q Now, the same as you did with the women and children. You stated in your affidavit that you did not shoot any women and children. Let me draw your attention again to Document Book II-B, page 54 of the English, page 48 of the German. Let me read you "As punishment for not following the orders of the German Security Police, all male Jews and the three women who were in Tatarsk at that time were shot." Now you told us that you studied reports for a long time; while everybody was killing Jews you were busy studying reports. Now study this one and tell us what your interpretation of that report is.

A I never studied the other reports, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q You are trying to apalogize for making your affidavit?

A I don't understand your question.

Q I am just asking you: Study this report. Here it says that "all male Jews and the three women who were in Tatarsk at that time were shot". You stated that no women were shot. Here it says that three women were shot. What is your explanation for the discrepancy?

A I have already given this explanation yesterday, Mr. Prosecutor. I had forgotten all about these three women. I cannot give you any other explanation. have mentioned these three women, because I had no reason to keep it from you. There was an investigation. According to the instructions, the women were found guilty so why should I have some reason to keep this from you? remember it in great detail that the women were very ugly, that they had been the contact between the males and the partisans, isn't that correct?

able to shoot the others, is that correct?

A No, that was not the case. The women did not give me any information. I got the information on the basis of interrogating the Jews concerned or the Jewish Council of Elders and the men. partisans when their only contact was through the women and forget all about the women?

A Well, Mr. Prosecutor, that's it. I cannot give any explanation for this. In this six years I completely forgot about it. I did know that the men had contact with the partisans, but I had completely forgotten about the three women. At the moment when I first saw the document, when I gave my second affidavit, when I read there that three woman were also shot, I, of course, remembered everything, but actually it was missing in my memory and I have no explanation for it. were in Tatarsk, that is, all the Jewish women, were shot, and is just happened that there were only three. Isn't that the way you read the report? children, but whom I sent back into the Ghetto.

Q What does this report men then, "Three women who were in Tatarsk at that time were shot"? Why do they say, "The three women who were there were shot"?

A Here it says,"as well as three women", not, "the three women".

Q Did you say it is an error in the translation?

A There must be a mistake in the translation, yes. It only says, "As well as three women", not, "just these three women." get a translation at this time. Don't leave out any words.

A "As punishment for not complying with the orders of the German Security Police, all male Jews being in Tatarsk, as well as three women were shot."

Q What happened to the children?

A Well, the children remained with the women. Women and children were sent back. there, the fathers, plus these three women.

A I shot no fathers, Mr. Prosecutor. I shot people who had come into contact with the partisans and who thus violated the instructions of the Army and the directives of the Security Police. that they left the Ghetto and, second, that --or they did not leave the Ghetto - they all remained in the Ghetto, but they had some mental contact with these partisans, is that correct?

basis of this contact they had left the Ghetto. When I arrived in Tatarsk they were no longer in the Ghetto. For the most part they had fled into the forest. That is why there were only 30 men left in Tatarsk. With definite intentions they had all left the Ghetto when I arrived in Tatarsk.

Q So the crime then was this: You ordered them to stay in the Ghetto where as Jews they had to wait until you could carry out the Fuehrer Order and murder them and because they left the Ghetto and tried to seek some refuge, that is the crime which justifies your killing them. Is that what you are trying to say? By trying to evade your murder, that justifies your killing them. Is that correct?

A Mr. Prosecutor, first of all, I did not send the Jews into the Ghetto. The Jews were sent into the Ghetto on the basis of the Fuehrer Order, by the men who had this order, second, they were obliged to adhere to some directives which were given for security reasons. If, for some reasons, they would leave the Ghetto on their own initiative they violated the directives of the Security Police and thereby the security of the rear Army area. That was one point. The second point, as I have already stated, is that this leaving of the Ghetto happened at the instigation of the partisans and that for the most part the men immediately had left Tatarsk in order to join the partisans and that those 30 had been left over with the express intention to work for the partisans. Thus, they had practically allied themselves with the partisans. These were the reasons, the one and the other. The one was the forbidding to leave the Ghetto for security reasons and the other was the violation of the general prohibition which the Army had decreed: to join the partisans or to support the partisans any way or to establish contact with them in any way. These were the reasons which caused me to have these 30 men and these 3 women shot.

Q Aren't you then saying in substance, that the crime which you regarded as punishable by death , was the failure of the Jews to wait where they had been ordered to wait until they could be killed in accordance with the Fuehrer Order?

orders which said that thed were all to be murdered? killed? there for the purpose of being killed?

A No, I don't know this. The Jews were collected in the Ghetto in order to guard them.

Q To protect them, are you trying to say? To guard them against what? To guard them against what? in the sense of the security of the rear Army areas.

Q What happened to the Fuehrer Order? limited by this time, so that the able-bodied Jews would be used for labor. I knew this. That is all what I knew. out about that limitation?

A I do not know when it was limited. I heard about it the first time when I was in Mstislawl with Noack; that is when he told me about it and I later gathered it from the conversations of the group, but when it was issued, I don't know.

Q And even with the limitation, didn't it mean that all Jews who were unable to work were to be killed, isn't that so?

A I don't understand the question.

Q What was the limitation on the Fuehrer Order? far as it concerns the old, the woman and the children, the sick, who were unable to work until the Einsatzkommando could get around to shoot them in accordance with the Fuehrer Order, even with the limitation.

Q They were guarded by units under your command?

Q They were guarded by German units?

Q By when were they guarded? Jews, put them in the Ghetto, and said, "Now you wait here." the Security Police, who were competent for this, but when they were once in the Ghetto then they were under the supervision of the local mayor. put the Jews in the Ghetto who were too old or too week to work?

A I do not know, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q Did you ever hear of the Fuehrer Order? Jews?

Ghetto You don't know. Did you suddenly have a lapse of memory? because they were being used for labor.

Q How about the old ones and the sick ones who couldn't work? was limited at that time, so that only those not able to work would be shot. until you could get around, or the Einsatzkommando could get around to shooting them, is that correct?

A I don't know, I do not know what to answer.

Q I know you don't know what to answer, because the answer is "Yes, it is correct", now, isn't that true?

A I don't know.

Q Why don't you know?

Q Your answer then is "Yes"? they were shot afterwards, well, it probably happened on the basis of the Fuehrer Order.

Q You say, "it probably happened". Do you think the Fuehrer Order was not carried out?

Q Then They were killed?

Q So then, what we have is this: The Jews are put into the Ghetto for the purpose either of working or for the purpose of being killed if they couldn't work and because they leave the Ghetto and try to escape or contact the partisans in any vagye way, that justifies your killing them afterwards, is that correct?

the investigations, others, non-Jews, because the directives were there to be obeyed and especially during war.

Q You regarded it then as a crime to try to save your life?

A I don't know whether that was the reason, to save their life. After people established contact with partisans and wanted to go outside, I don't know whether that could be considered as saying one's life.

Q Now, just a moment. If a Jew left the Ghetto, what happened to him? When a Jew left the Ghetto what happened to him?

A If a Jew left the Ghetto without permission, I don't know, I do not know what measures were taken then. killed. Now, if he left the Ghetto, was he then set free? given.

Q So that he was killed anyway?

Q So, actually, it didn't matter what a Jew did, whether he stayed or whether he went, he was killed.

Q You told us that if he stayed he was killed. You told us that if he went he was killed. Now I asked you if he stayed or if he went he was killed, you say you don't know. Why is it you don't know? Is the question -was killed.

he was killed. If he stayed in the Ghetto and if he left the Ghetto he was killed. If he contacted the partisans he was killed. If he did not contact the partisans he was killed. No matter what a Jew did he was killed, is that correct? you defense, is it?

A Which investigations? There was a big fuss and interrogations. You determined if they were contacting partisans. What was the purpose of this if Jews were killed any way, as you have just told us. Did you have so much time to waste that you could go around making all kinds of useless investigations and trials?

A Only once I was given an executive measure. This was in Tatarsk.

Q Just a moment, Witness. Before you proceed, let's classify a term. By "executive measure" you mean the murder of the Jews, is that correct?

A No, executive measures are not the execution of the Jews. These are investigations of some kind of violation of the directives given, That is, generally, an executive measure as contrasted to an informational measure.

Q When you say "executive measure", isn't that always connected with executions?

A Not necessarily. If the investigation shows that the man is innocent, or did not commit a very severe violation, then he is either released or he is imprisoned for a certain time.

Q Continue with your explanation. Continue with your explanation.

A I don't understand the question.

Q You mean you have nothing more to say on the subject?

A I did have something to say, but I don't know what it was.

Mr. FERENCZ: I will come back with some more questions for you then after the noon recess.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

(A recess was taken until 1345 hours.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 12 December 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Mr. Ferencz. BY MR. FERENCZ: Jews than they were in the Ghetto, or out of the Ghetto, were all shot?

A I didn't get the question. the Ghetto or out of the Ghetto, were all to be killed, and were killed. You also told us that you has conducted an extensive investigation to determine whether the Jews were Partisans, or what they had done. Now the question is, in view of the foot that all Jews were killed simply because of the Fuehrer Order, why was it necessary to have any investigation at all?

A First of all, Mr. Prosecutor, I said that all Jews were outside the Ghetto, not that Jews were inside the Ghetto. That was in Tatarsk. In the second place, I didn't carry out the execution based on the Fuehrer Order, but because of the order given to me by the Chief of Einsatzgruppe-D to make investigations, and to shoot persons or those guilty. were in the Ghetto, or out of the Ghetto, that just because they were Jews they were to be killed under the Fuehrer Order. If that was true, and you told us that it is true, why was it necessary to have any kind of investigation to prove any crimes on the part of the Jews?

A I didn't have the order to carry out the Fuehrer Order, Mr. Prosecutor. It was my order in this special case to stop this mutiny and not to carry out the Fuehrer Order.

Q What mutiny are you referring to?

had left the Ghetto, making their way out by force thus violating the instructions which had been given. tions, or not, and you told us that was the case, that you knew it was the case, why was it necessary in the case of Jews to have any kind of investigation to prove any kind of a crime, if because of the fact that he was a Jew he was to be killed anyway?

A Mr. Prosecutor, at the beginning I said that I made every attempt to evade being forced to have to carry out the Fuehrer Order, because inwardly I objected to and against this measure of killing innocent people. In this case it was not a matter of carrying out the Fuehrer's Order, but this was a violation of the regulations issued by the Security Police, and of orders by the Wehrmacht.

Q I know that witness. But we have this situation. There is an order that all Jews are to be killed, the Einsatzkommandos received the order, and carried it out. Why should Nebe, or any Einsatzcommando leader tell you to conduct an investigation as concerned Jews, and to see whether they were members of the Partisan band, or whether they had violated anything the Wehrmacht directed when they would have been killed simply on the Fuehrer Order. Why was all of that necessary. It does not make sense to me. Can you explain it?

A I can not explain it. I can merely say that I received orders from Nebe to find out what I could, and then to act rigorously, with the sharpest means in the most ruthless manner, that is what he told me.

Q Did Nebe anticipate, do you know, that you would kill all the Jews?

A I didn't get the question. whether the investigation was just a matter of form?

A No, Nebe didn't tell me I could kill all the Jews. Nebe merely said I should go there and investigate the matter, whether it was true what the Mayor had reported, and then I was to act accordingly.

that is the order he gave me.

Q Witness, isn't it true, that Nebe already carried out the Fuehrer Order in other cases? tell you to carry out the Fuehrer Order instead of going through all this useless investigation, which according to you might mean that some Jews might escape the death penalty?

A Well, I don't know why he didn't give me the order. Why he didn't tell me to carry out the Fuehrer Order. He just didn't tell me to do it.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Ferencz, will you please clear up in his affidavit a matter, because you are right on the very subject, and I don't know whether you now are coming to it, or not, or intend to come to it, of Nebe giving an order to establish an example, as he just said now that Nebe told him to conduct investigations. That is paragraph 4 of the affidavit.

MR. FERENCZ: Will you please explain that, witness?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, that is the affidavit of 2 July, In this affidavit I formulated it in that manner but it is not complete, and, at the time I gave my testimony under psychological pressure, and I was nervous, and, therefore, my testimony was not as complete as when I completed it afterwards.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, proceed, Mr. Ferencz. BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q To come back to this situation. Nebe received the Fuehrer Order, and Nebe carried out the Fuehrer Order. That has been established here by several witnesses, and by the documents. Now, we have a situation in Tatarsk where there was a group of Jews, and in accordance with the Fuehrer Order they should all be killed. You told us that they were all killed, whether they were in the Ghetto, or out of the Ghetto, that all Jews were to be killed.

It does not make sense to me that he would then say, go out and make a big investigation; see if you can find out whether they had intimidated the Mayor; find out if they had violated the Wehrmacht regulations; find out if they had contact with Partisans. And on the basis of your findings take such ruthless action that is necessary; why was that all necessary, why did not he just tell you to go and kill all Jews in accordance with the Fuehrer Order, in accordance with everything we have been doing up to now. Can you explain that, please? this limitation really existed, and that, therefore, he didn't give the order to shoot all Jews as mentioned in the Fuehrer Order, buy only those who had not been shot because being fit to work, but now, if they violated regulations, were to be executed just because they had violated the regulations issued by the Security Police and the Wehrmacht.

A That is the only explanation I can give. I don't know why Nebe didn't give me the order to shoot all Jews rigorously, because in that case he would have given me the order to shoot women and children because they were included, buy I didn't do that because I could very well see that this was not necessary; that the mission was not such that I had to carry out the Fuehrer Order, but said, that those persons who had left the Ghetto and those persons who had threatened the Mayor were to be punished, that I had to investigate this matter and to proceed accordingly. Ghetto, whether they had left the Ghetto or whether they didn't leave the Ghetto, were to be killed, and that this was the fact, generally?

A No, I didn't say that of all those who were in the Ghetto. This was not possible, because the Jews were not in the Ghetto any more, not there in the Ghetto in Tatarsk.

Q Were not all Jews to be killed?

A I beg your pardon?

Jews were to be killed? Order was not decisive. didn't make any difference as concerned Jews. The mere fact that they were Jews was sufficient. Isn't that correct? for the purpose of being shot?

AAt the time, Mr. Prosecutor, I certainly didn't think this, or know it.

Q You heard about the Fuehrer Order, had you not?

Q Why do you think they were collecting these Jews. You had an order that all Jews were to be killed, and you put Jews into the Ghetto. Why did you think they were there? then they partly were not killed, they were used for work, every kind of work. the women and children, the old persons and the sick persons?

Q Let's limit our discussion to those under the Fuehrer Order, either in its full context, or as modified, these people were to be killed, is that correct? that correct?

Q Then why did they put the Jews into the Ghettos?

work. into the Ghetto?

A Well, I don't know that. were supposed to be killed by the Einsatzcommandos. Now I ask you, why did they put them into the Ghetto, and you can not figure out the particular answer?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I never had anything to do with this Jewish affair. I never arranged the Ghetto, or set it up. I am not very familiar with this matter; that is why my testimony might have contained contradictions. I don't know exactly which Jews were brought into the Ghetto, and which were not brought into the Ghetto; whether sick people and old people were kept in the Ghetto; or whether they were shot, in whatever manner the policy varried greatly in this matter. I say I don't know. Really, I don't know how this was done. I never had anything to do with bringing Jews into the Ghetto, and shooting of Jews, because of the Fuehrer.

Q How long were you a SS-major on the Eastern front? December 1943, that is two and one-half years. or to hear or learn that Jews were collected in the Ghetto for the purposes of being killed? Jews were in the Ghetto to be assigned for work. unable to find out in all this time that you were a high ranking SS officer, when millions of people were killed by the Einsatzcommandos; you were unable to find out what was happening to these people? Do you expect us to believe that thing, Klingelhoefer?

A Well, I knew that Jews were being shot of course. Of course, I knew that from the Fuehrer Order, and also that some of the Jews were being saved in order to do the work. for the purpose of being killed in accordance with the Fuehrer Order, isn't that a fact?

Q Now, I am asking you, isn't it a fact? Why do you say "probably?" You were there for two and one-half years as a high ranking SS-officer?

Q Didn't you know as a fact that Jews were collected in the Ghettos and killed if they were unable to work? them to work.

Q How about the children?

Q They were put to work, too? were killed? Jewish people fit for work were killed.

Q And that it was what happened generally. Those were the orders, and that is the reason they were brought together, so it would be easier for the Einsatzcommandos to kill them, that is correct, isn't it?

A Well, that can be supposed. I don't know whether it was like that.

Q How was it then? brought Jews back into the Ghetto in order to utilize them for work, and, that later on at the end the Fuehrer Order was and had to be carried out, that is quite possible, and I said I personally had nothing to do with this matter, and didn't know anything about these things which happened.

I didn't bother about it. Purposely, I didn't take any interest in these cases because I felt uncomfortable to talk about that problem.

Q But you do admit that you knew?

A Please? and in the Ghetto were killed in accordance with the Fuehrer Order, not by you, but by others? ren and put them into the Ghetto? them back to the Ghetto, yes. into the Ghetto were going to be killed by some one else, and you took care of the men yourself, that is true, isn't it?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor, at the time when I carried out the action, and I brought the women and children back to the Ghetto, I didn't do that with the idea and awareness that these Jews, these women and children were to be shot. That never occurred to me. in the Ghetto, and who were unable to work, were killed in accordance with the Fuehrer Order? inwardly didn't think of it, and didn't expect it, that I brought these women and children into the Ghetto, especially so they could be shot later on. I didn't think of that.

Q You didn't think if for the purpose of having them killed, but you know at the time you shot the male Jews in Tatarsk that you put the children and females into the Ghetto, that they would be killed, or some, and that all of those were killed in the Ghetto who were unable to work, that is correct, isn't it?

Q Is that correct, or is it not correct?

AAs I already said at the time I didn't think of that, Mr. Prosecutor. I can not say anything else.

Q You didn't give it any thought? knew that a modification existed, not to shoot people, because during the action at the time which I knew was carried out based on the Fuehrer Order, the women and children were not shot. I assumed that at the time these Jews were not to be shot, but that perhaps they were going to be subjected to a resettlement at a later time. I believe that was my idea. I never thought that the Fuehrer Order and this final solution should be carried out in such a radical manner. I only learned about it much later.

AAt the moment when I carried out the action in Tatarsk, I didn't have that idea.

Q You told us you knew that all Jews were to be killed? You knew there was a modification later on, that those Jews who were able to work didn't have to be killed. You told us that you knew that all Jews in the Ghettos who were unable to work were killed, and you told us that you took a group of Jewish women and children into a Ghetto. Now are you saying that you did it without giving it any thought; you just put them in there to save them? Ghetto according to general instructions. That was all.

Q Do you know what happened to those women and children?

A Pardom me?

Q Do you know what happened to those women and children?

A When they had been brought back into the Ghetto? I don't know, no.

never heard about them again? of the German, I have this description: "The action in Tatarsk" and it says that the village was combed very systematically, and the Jews were herded together in the market square. Some of them had fled and had to be driven out of the nearby woods."

Q Who carried out that action?

A Pardon me? that the Jews had left the Ghetto, and I had to come out the woods. were beaten when they were herded back to the Ghetto?

A No, Not so far as I know, I didn't see any Jews being beaten. years as a SS-major in the Einsatzgruppe? beaten, certainly not.

Q What happened to the Jews that resisted arrest?

A I beg your pardon?

Q What happened to the Jews tried to resist arrest?

A Well, I don't know. they marched nicely down to the Ghetto. Never resisted, there was not beating, it was all a very nice affair. Is that what you are trying to say? course.

Q Give us some particular cases?

A I can not generalize here. It can, of course, happen, that someone does resist arrest.

Q You ever knew of any case, and you don't know of any case in which the Jews were beaten, generally. Why were they brought together. What was it, that they were herded together in the Market square and driven out of the woods. What does that mean? Nebe and treated in the manner indicated there, just as it is usual during raids, when people are taken out of the forests and houses and the guard make them walk in front of them. I can not explain it in a different manner.

Q Were any of them shot on the way?

A On the way? the market square?

A No. I don't know. Certainly not in Tatarsk. who were able to work were not shot?

A That wasn't my order to look after that - not to shoot those fit for work. My order was that I had to carry out the investigations and put those in the ghetto and not to select people.

Q Didn't you ever tell Noack that he shouldn't shoot those who were able to work? carried out.

A Noack did not have to say anything here. He merely received the order for his action from Nebe. I could not interfere. This was an order by the Fuehrer which had been passed on to him by Nebe. I had no influence whatever on this matter. that only those -- or to save those who were able to work? acted according to the order by the Fuehrer. And he actually did not shoot those suitable for work, according to what he told me. He told me that, at Tatarsk, he once shot twenty Jews unfit for work because at the time this modified order existed.

Q Did you ever discuss this question with Mr. Wartenberg.

A Which question?

who were able to work?

A I did not tell Noack anything to this effect. Noack knew this himself because he was an expert of Jewish affairs. I myself did not know about it. It was Noack who told me about the fact that only Jews unfit for work were to be shot after he had carried out this action in Tatarsk. matter with Mr. Wartenberg during your interrogation?

A Which question? everybody or only kill those who were unable to work? with him. I believe I only made general statements about the anti-Jewish action, I do not remember having gone into details. your recollection. I will read it through in German. Q. "How many men approximately were brought together? A. In Tatarsk all Jews were brought together. However, I insisted on it that if he wanted to shoot these people and had to do it the old people and the sick people were to be shot and the others were not to be shot." Do you remember that now?

A No, I did not say that. I don't know that. statement to the interrogator Wartenberg? because I had no influence on these matters. I had explained to Mr. Wartenberg that I was neither in charge of or had supervision over Noack nor could I give him any instructions.

execution which you had ordered when suddenly you were called away because there were some Jewish women having some dispute with some Russian women, is that correct?

Q What did you do to those Jewish women?

A I did not do anything with these Jewesses. It was like this. The Jewesses wanted to bring back their property into the Ghetto which they had brought out the previous day and the Russian quarreled about their property claiming it was theirs, and I saw to it that the Jewesses got their property back and could take it back into the Ghetto. women to see that the Jewish women got their property back and it was safely taken back into the Ghetto?

A Yes, that's what I said. had ordered all Jews to be killed? this action in the Tatarsk occurred it never occurred to me that these Jewesses were to be shot later on. I did not think of that. I said so before. and you took them back into the Ghetto and you knew there was a general order to kill all Jews and you had been a Kommando leader in an Einsatzgruppe but it never occurred to you that these women might all be shot; is that what you say? objected to all this. I cannot express it differently. It repulsed me. It never occurred to me.

occurred to you that somebody might be killing the Jews, is that what you are trying to tell us, Herr Klingelhoefer?

A I don't get the question. want to kill these Jewish women. If you didn't know it then, you see now in the reports that millions of Jews were killed. You were a commando leader in an Einsatz you were an SS-major, you had heard about the Fuehrer order, and now you say it never occurred to you that these women might be killed. not occur to me, Mr. Prosecutor. Later on, of course , I knew that women and children and all Jews were to be killed, but at that time when I sis this - what should I say - from a humans impulse I acted in that manner and protected the property of the Jews. This was purely a humans idea without thinking about it until later on.

Q You say at that time you didn't know these women were to be killed? When did you first learn of the Fuehrer order? Give us the date as boat you can remember. Dueben during the roll call which Sturmbannfuehrer Rausch carried out and conducted. This roll call took place shortly before we left for the Russian border.

Q That was on what date approximately?

Q 1941? take place? end of September or the beginning of October 1941.

this execution of the Jews and in June you had the order to kill all Jews. What do you mean when you say that you never heard about it, that up until the time of the Tatarsk action you didn't know that all Jews were to be killed? Did you forget it from the time you heard it in June and the time you had to marry it out in September? Nebe in Tatarsk to stop munity and to act severely and to investigate the cases of disobedience and I did not get the order to carry out anti-Jewish action according to the Fuehrer Order. and to act severely. As were discussing this secret of the return of the Jewish property to the jewish women and your taking them back into the Ghetto. I am trying to understand how it is possible for a Kommando leader to prior, to return Jews, goes out of his many to return property to them and to escort them back into the Ghetto where they would later be killed.

A Mr. Prosecutor, first of all I wasn't in charge of a Kommando. I was merely assigned by the Einsatz Group chief and the Einsatz chief did not give me the order to carry out anti-Jewish actions. Ghetto where they had left unlawfully and so I did according to orders. confused and I would like to give you the opportunity to clarify them. You say that you took the property away from the Russians and that you gave it back to these Jewish women in view of the fact that you know that there were orders to execute all the Jews.

Why sis you go to the trouble of giving them back the property? that was the only reason I did this. I did not have any other thoughts. killed, why did you go to the trouble of having investigations to determine whether they were Partisans or had violated Wehrmacht orders?

Q Do you find any sense in such an order. Can you find any justification in giving an order and wasting a lot of time when Jews were going to be shot anyway?

You said all male Jews were found guilty. It might have been a fortunate coincidence. It might have been unfortunate. But you say on investigation all were found guilty. I don't understand why if all Jews were to be killed why anybody should bother with investigations to determine any facts. Can you explain that? of regulations and I said that especially I personally evaded or tried to evade the execution of the Fuehrer order. order. Perhaps there is something in particular that hasn't been brought out but we have - -

THE PRESIDENT: I think you have exhausted this episode pretty thoroughly. Now he has given his explanation whether you accept it or not is up to you. But he said he got these orders, he want there, he investigated them, He knew of the Fuehrer order and does not know why he took the women back when he knew they were going to be killed.

He said all that and I don't think there is any use going over it again.

MR. FARENCZ: Yes, your Honor.

BY MR. FARENCZ: make false reports showing the killing of Jews without any indication of investigation?

A It says here because they disobeyed orders. Why other explanations are not mentioned I already explained to the President yesterday - that this is a report based on a verbal report which I made personally to Nebe. He didn't know hoe he formulated this report. Why he wrote it this way I don't know. I did not write the report in that manner. It does not originate from me.

Q How long were you on the Staff of Einsatzgruppe B? middle of September 1941 until the end of October 1941. Then I was in charge of Advanced Kommando Group Staff until 2 December and then finally 25 December 1941 I returned to the Group staff and ever since I have constantly been in the Group Staff.

Q Until when?

Q Therefore we have this as dates: you were a member of Einsatzgruppe B. From the middle of September to the end of October 1941 and from 25 December 1941 until December 1943 - is that correct? two years. of Einsatzgruppe B staff how many executions took place? Approximately?

A I cannot say that. I don't think that executions occurred, in any case I did not hear of any in the staff.

Q During these two years? gruppe B?

A In Einsatzgruppen B in general, yes. Of course. But in the staff itself I did not hear anything of executions. that was not the job of the staff to carry out executions. by the units under the command of Einsatzgruppen B?

A I don't understand that. Units under the command of the staff. What units are you referring to?

A I don't know that. I never had anything to do with that. doing?

A No, I did not hear that. They did their own duty as SS Police. I had to deal with a very special work. I worked quite independently and had no connection at all with the other work of the Einsatzgruppen. staff, who had higher rank than you did?

A That varied very much because people changed. In general, in the staff, apart from the chief himself there was his deputy. That was Obersturmbannfuehrer, Senior Government Councillor. Then there were various departments, this is department chief for personnel matters -

Q What were their ranks?

those two years had a rank higher than your rank in Staff Einsatzgruppen B?

A I can tell you that. In the staff there were mostly the chief, his deputy and the department chiefs. Those were the people who if they had the rank of Sturmbannfuehrer, or major, that was my rank, they had higher ranks because they were department chiefs in the Einsatzgruppen B. Just like the Kommander of the Einsatzgruppen they were all required to have been in charge of an office in the Reich. gruppe B?

Q Think about it. Approximately. It doesn't have to be very exact. 20. Something like that.

Q Naumann commanded all of these officers? various departments, in administration there was an administrative chief. power to order the activities of all the Sonderkommandos as shown on that chart?

A The staff did not have to give any orders. Instructions were given by the chief. responsible for all of the Sonderkommandos and Einsatzkommandos which comprised the Einsatzgruppe B? responsible for his own work and the chief of the Einsatz gruppen Naumann was in charge, to whom all the Kommando leaders were responsible.

was in charge of all Einsatzkommando chiefs but the rest of the staff, namely you, had no responsibility?

A No. The command channels went directly from the Kommando leader to the group leader, who gave his instructions to the Kommando chief. All other - -

Q Didn't the staff in Einsatzgruppe B Headquarters assist him in carrying out his duties or were they just remaining there independantly? military channels of command. The department leaders were subordinate to the chief of the Einsatzgruppen and the members of the staff were experts within that staff who worked on material coming from the Kommando but according to orders of the Einsatzgruppen chief. That is an organization for military and administration purposes. headquarters with Einsatzgruppe B did you ever hear about executions being carried out by units of Einsatzgruppen B. Einsatzkommando carried out these executive tasks, that is, security police tasks were carried out in the course of which executions took place. Of course, I knew that. It was our assignment to guard the security of the territories. communists just because they were Jews, gypsies or Communists? that is what you are referring to, was being carried out by the kommandos.

get out of Einsatzgruppen B during those two years?

A Yes, I tried once. But Naumann would not let me go.

Q Why did you try?

A I did not immediately go to Naumann because I didn't feel comfortable, because I did not like the whole job of Einsatz, that is why I tried but did no succeed. tried to get out of your assignment?

A I did not go directly to Naumann. I was in Berlin and in Berlin talked to a leader of Office VI of the Operations "Zeppelin" and he told me he would try to get me free for Office VI and then he sent a teletype to Naumann which Naumann showed me, and said: "Obersturmbannfuehrer Grefe at the time asked for you but I can't release you. You have to deal with these tasks - I can't do without you." That is what Naumann told me. out of Einsatz Headquarters, did you? it. He would not have released me.

Q How do you know he would not have released you?

A I knew that he would not release me. I knew that quite well because I was a special expert speaking Russian perfectly and knowing the conditions. Therefore he could not do without me. Naumann regarded you as indispensable and didn't want to release you, is that correct, particular task and considered me indispensable.

Q Therefore, you would say, wouldn't you, that Naumann regarded you as indispensable to the successful functioning of Einsatzgruppe B?

A What? functioning of Einsatzgruppe B?

A I don't get the question. interpretor and because I knew Russian conditions. That is why he needed me. operate successfully without you? Is that correct? on me but the department I worked in considered me indispensable but this was not connected with the entire Einsatzgruppen. reports and had nothing to do with killings in any way?

A What?

A No, I was alone in the department. I had no assistance. I was sitting on my own and I evaluated documents and printed material, I interrogated people and talked to them when I wanted to hear something for my extensive reports.

Q. Why did you feel uneasy in that job? It sounds pretty good to me.

A. It was the general impression I had of the entire assignment that depressed me so much.

Q. Were you depressed when you thought about the activities of Einsatzkommandos and Einsatzgruppes when you sitting here in the jail in Nurnberg?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. You say you were depressed about all this activity of the Einsatzgruppe. I am asking you, were you depressed when you were here in Nurnberg in the jail and you had plenty of time to think about it?

A. I was depressed, of course, but not only about my work in the East, and about the whole atmosphere there, but in general I was depressed about the collapse of the German Reich and about the things that I heard later on which I did not know anything about before. Those were the things that depressed me particularly.

Q. Did you attempt to commit suicide while you were down here in the jail?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. That was as a result of sending the letter to Mr. Wartenberg. I had such an inward conflict that I no longer realized whether I had acted in the right manner. On the one hand, I was trying to say the truth as far as possible, knowing the catastrophe which had happened and my responsibility for the development of things; on the other hand, I felt that I had to give away here a comrade, a former superior, In this state of excitement and in this conflict I found no way out, and my nerves were in such a bad state that I tried to commit suicide. I thought I could not live honestly this way. That was the reason I tried to commit suicide.

Q. You say, knowing your responsibility for the development of things you tried to commit suicide, is that correct?

A. No, I tried to commit suicide because I had such conflicts that, on the one hand, I surrendered this smuggled note, because I did not want to give somebody else away, but, on the other hand, I felt that I gave a comrade away, and my honor was lost, and the thing upset me so I didn't know what to do.

Q. You did not think you lost your honor when you shot Jews, did you?

A. I shot Jews, Mr. Prosecutor, because during the war

Q. We have gone through all that already. Tell me, did you feel that you lose your honor when you took these Jews out and shot them in the back?

A. No, in that case I acted according to orders to look after the security of the rear Army territory of the German Wehrmacht.

Q. You told us this morning or yesterday that you gave this note which Naumann had slipped to you, you gave it up without reading it because you didn't want to be coerced into telling an untruth, that you were afraid that Naumann was trying to coerce you to say something that wasn't true, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Why should Naumann try to conceal the truth?

A. I thought so, I assumed so at the moment. When I got this note I assumed that Naumann would try to persuade me to camouflage something. That was my immediate reaction to his giving me this secret note in prison.

Q. But why, The question is, do you know of any facts that would lead you to believe that Naumann would attempt to conceal the truth, and for you to be so much convinced of that, that without even reading the note you betrayed your comrade, as you put it? What facts do you know about Naumann which leads you to believe that he is attempting to conceal the truth?

A. I did not quite get the question.

THE PRESIDENT: You did have quite a number of questions thrown in there, Mr. Ferencz.

I think the last one would probably sum up everything.

Q. (By Mr. Ferencz) What facts do you know about Naumann which convinced you that he was attempting to conceal the truth?

A. I do not know any fact from Naumann. This was merely my instinctive reaction because a note was being handed to me. I would not only have treated it in that manner because it came from Naumann, but if it had come from anyone else. I consider a clandestine note which is granted to me in prison, an attempt to persuade me to do something which is not correct.

Q. Naumann testified that he just did that from a comradely attitude.

A. Well, that is true. I can't quite explain it perhaps. That was the one reason why I reacted in that manner and therefore tried to commit suicide, that he perhaps did not want to make me say a lie, but merely wanted to help me. That was the idea why my conscience was so troubled, but instinctively, in the state of excitement, I had acted in that way, and later on when I thought about it, I realized that thus I had perhaps betrayed a comrade and had lost my honor.

Q. You started to tell us this morning what you had written to Mr. Wartenberg, and you told us part of it.

A. Yes.

Q. I am now going to give you the note that you wrote to Mr. Wartenberg, and I am going to ask you to read it out loud to the Tribunal.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a photostatic copy of the note which you sent to Mr. Wartenberg upon receiving the message from Naumann?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Would you please read it slowly and carefully?

A. Yes. "Nurnberg, 4 July, 1947." Addressed to the interrogator, Mr. Wartenberg.

"I am handing over the enclosed note which was given to me secretly by Erich Naumann on Thursday, the 3rd of July, 1947, in the evening hours after the walk. I have not opened it and have no knowledge about the contents. I refuse to have anything to do with things of this sort. Already in peacetime and even more in the course of the war, when observing the measures and their results, I have had doubts about their moral and ethical advocability, doubts which estranged me with ever growing intensity from the atmosphere in which I lived and worked in good trust and in a discipline born of long training. Too late, unfortunately, after the collapse I gained complete insight into the full extent of the horrible blasphemy which was carried out here. Nevertheless, I ask that this stop of mine not be interpreted as an attempt to excuse myself in any way or to ask for good weather. I am fully conscious of the fact that I must bear the consequences completely for my personal attitude and my acts. But, I will not burden my conscience with acts which are in complete contradition to the attitude I have now again achieved. Waldemar Klingelhoefer," signed.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor, I would now like to offer this statement by the defendant as Prosecutions Exhibit -- I believe the number in 190. I will distribute it at this time to the Tribunal and to the defense council.

THE PRESIDENT: The exhibit will be accepted.

MR. FERENCZ: Klingelhoefer, I am going to ask you some questions about this statement and about your attitude concerning the activities which took place in the East. I want you to think about it and read your statement over again during the recess. recess, in order to give the defendant the opportunity to consider his questions carefully.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. The Tribunal will be in recess fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1515 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDENT: Proceed, Mr. Ferencz.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. FERENCZ:

Q. Herr Klingelhoefer, in this statement you gave Mr. Wartenberg before attempting suicide, you spoke about the horrible blasphemy which had been carried out; you said there was no attempt being made to excuse yourself, and that you didn't want to burden you conscience with acts which were in complete opposition to the attitude you had again achieved. Do you still have the same attitude you had achieved when you wrote this message?

A. Yes, of course.

Q. Do you have any feeling of regret or remorse about what happened under your command in the East?

A. I actually never led the commando in the East, Mr. Prosecutor; I never led a commando. The only commando which I led was the small Advance Commando Group Staff, and whatever was done by it does not cause me to have any remorse. That was just destined for the assignment in Moscow. Everything else I did on order, which I have described and mentioned. And as far as I know, that whatever I did, I did it in a manner that I could not consider as a burdening of my conscience.

Q. Do you have the feeling that you did anything wrong while you were with the Einsatz in the East?

A. No.

Q. And do you still contend that everything you have told us in this courtroom has been ture?

A. Yes, to the best of my knowledge.

MR. FERENCZ: We have no further questions, Your Honor. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. One point I want to clear up. I understood you to say that you knew of 50 who had been executed. Does that constitute the maximum number of d oaths of which you were personally aware--deaths by execution?

A. That is the figure of the executions which I personally knew about. Outside of these 30 Jews and the 3 Jewesses whom I had executed, that is the figure which I personally got to knew about.

Q. Then, in all, you know about 83?

A. Yes.

Q. I wanted to clear that. This affidavit of yours was signed on July 2, 1947?

A. Yes.

Q. Then on August 27, 1947, you made a supplement to the affidavit, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. When you made this supplement which consisted of a correction in the date of the period that you were in charge of a certain commando, why did you not make the other correction of which you now complain?

A. Your honor,it was just on this day when I was called upon to make those corrections by Mr. Wartenberg when I explained to him that after I had now had the time to think matters over,and also pointed out that those various corrections existed that I would like to make those corrections and Mr. Wartenberg told me it would be the best thing if in the case of extensive corrections we would make a new affidavit, and thereupon he explained to me that I should prepare the new affidavit and the facts for it,and he would call me at a later date and then he would accept from me the new and corrected affidavit. That is what he told me. Of course, I visited him with my attorney who heard and listened to all these negotiations. Then Mr. Wartenberg called me on the 17th of September and I gave him the second affidavit.

Q. This affidavit of November 27, was it written up on your own initiative?

A. This second affidavit was made out by me on the basic of the first affidavit, together with the corresponding corrections and additions. Yes, I did that myself. Mr. Wartenberg then read through it and accepted it.

Q. Did you write it out in your own hand?

A. No. I did not write this in my own hand. First, I wrote it down by hand and then my attorney typed it.

Q. This is the one of August 27 -- the one of August 27?

A. Not the corrections. I did not write the corrections. Mr. Wartenberg prepared the corrections and he then filled them in. I was called to see him. you mean the correction of the date, is that what you mean, Your Honor.

A. Yes. The one, it was made up on August 27, was this made on your own initiative?

A. No. I was asked to go to see Mr. Wartenberg because Mr. Wartenberg had determined the mistakes of the first affidavit which I had overlooked.

Q. And that is when you called his attention to these other mistakes, is that what I understand you to say?

A. At this occasion I immediately told Mr. Wartenberg that I was referring to the conversation I had with him about the first affidavit. While pointing out that many developments and conditions as they were described there were not quite according to the truth, and that I new had had the time to think about all these matters thoroughly and that I recalled many things again, and now I would like to make these corrections and additions.

Q. When you signed the affidavit on July 2, 1947, did you at that time believe that the facts which you expressed in that affidavit were correct?

A. I didn't quite understand.

Q. Just a minute. You have explained to me that on August 27, 1947, when you spoke to Mr. Wartenberg you said to him that now that you had had an opportunity to reflect on what you had stated in your affidavit of July 2, things were clearer to you and, therefore, you wished to make some corrections.

Now, am I correct in that, or am I not?

A. Yes.

Q. So when you signed the affidavit on July 2, 1947, you believed that the facts written up in that affidavit were correct?

A. When I signed it, I thought that that was true, but at the same time, as I have said repeatedly, Your Honor, I made the reservation which Mr. Wartenberg gave me, namely, he told me that I could make the corrections at a later date, as far as the formulation is concerned and with this reservation given to me orally, by him, I signed the affidavit.

Q. Did you, or did you not believe the facts stated in the affidavit of July 2 to be true when you signed the affidavit?

A. Not quite, Your Honor, because I made this reservation and I signed it with this reservation.

Q. You permitted yourself to sign a paper in which you went into the description of executions with reservations that you anted to make some corrections, is that what we are to understand?

A. Pardon me, Your Honor, as far as the facts given by me in this affidavit are concerned, I did not want to deny these or correct them, I merely wanted to correct the fact about my position and clarify it. I never wanted to deny the incidents and events as such.

Q. Well, then, the facts contained in this affidavit of July 2nd are correct?

A. The facts are correct, that as far as the two actions are concerned, I undertook the Tatarsk action independently and I attended also the other action, Matislawl and that I was a witness to this action, of course; these are the two actions which I experienced, and which I listed in the first affidavit and which I confirmed in the second affidavit and completed them there.

Q. And do you confirm this statement, "The executions proper were carried out by Noack under my supervision"?

A. No. I do not confirm that.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Wartenberg this?

A. I spoke about it, of course.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Wartenberg that the executions were carried out by Noack under your supervision?

A. I told Mr. Wartenberg that I did not have the order to carry out the supervision thereupon Mr. Wartenberg told me that I was the senior officer at the place and automatically it was up to me to carry out the supervision, and this formulation was put into the affidavit by Mr. Wartenberg. It was not put in by me.

Q. Did you see that particular statement when you signed the affidavit?

A. Yes, Sir.

Q. And you approved it?

A. Yes.

Q. You describe the execution in some detail. You explain how the executees would fall into the pit, then "in case it was noted that someone in the pit was still alive, he received a coup de grace". How did you determine whether a person was alive or dead, only by observing whether there was still movement in the body?

A. Your Honor, I personally never had anything to do with this matter. I merely gave this description on the basis of what I saw or heard at this execution of these 10 Jews by Noack. That is what I have described, that's all.

Q. This statement says "approximately 50 Jews were shot during these two executions". Then you saw two executions and observed the manner of death, is that right?

A. That is what can be gathered from the affidavit. That is how it was put in, but it doesn't refer to the 50 Jews when I saw, but as I later explained, it refers only to the 10 Jews when I saw.

Q. Well, you saw these 10 Jews shot?

A. I saw how the 10 Jews in Matislawl were shot, Yes.

or not since, they had fallen into a pit?

A No. That was not my business. I had nothing to do with that. I later explained that a medical noncom was there who had to take care of this matter. pulse of each executee?

A I do not know; I was too far away.

Q How far away were you?

Q You saw this execution? by the bullets, didn't you? in that instance?

A No. I don't know how to explain it. I was about 100 meters away, and I could, of course, see how the Jews fell in, but what the medical noncom did in the pit, I could not see.

Q You were 100 meters away when this execution occurred?

Q Did you talk to Noack?

Q What did you do, talk to him by field telephone?

A NO, NO. He came to see me when I approached it.

Q Where was he standing at the point of execution? noncom. Noack had the supervision.

Q How far was Noack away from the actual scene of execution?

supervising? he was supervising? about. scene of the execution? that what you are telling us?

Q Well, that is exactly what you said. Now, explain it. Noack is supervising the execution. Tell us how far he was away from the execution squad. moment when the shots were fired he was 100 meters away from the execution place. He was standing with me.

Q That is the way he supervised? when he was supervising the execution, he was a hundred meters away talking to you, is that what you want the Tribunal to believe?

Q And from a hundred meters' distance you observed what this noncommissioned medical officer did at a hundred meters' distance? from a hundred meters away before, for you can recognize him a hundred meters away, I saw that he stepped into the pit, but what he did, I could only imagine, that is he would go in there to establish whether the victims were dead.

Q And did he deliver the coup de grace to any of the victims?

Q Why did you say here, "in case it was noted that someone in the pit was still alive he received the coup de grace"? tion in order to refer to this incident, and when I was asked about this, I said it was customary that the victims would receive the coup de grace. accustomed to executions, aren't you? who weren't killed outrightly received the coup de grace? You knew that was the custom, didn't you, from experience? living gets a coup de grace. I didn't find that out from my own experience buy from the general usage. I did not mean to say that.

Q How do you understand "general usage". Not everybody knows that. I don't know; I never saw it; how does one know that in the event the victim is not killed outrightly and is still squirming and screaming on the ground that then someone comes along and shoots him down--how does one know that--how did you know it?

A I don't know what you mean by the question.

Q Well, I will tell you what I mean by the question. How many executions did you actually witness? reported.

Q And how many were killed there?

Q Did you see the 10 fall into the pit?

A Yes, I saw it. I saw it from the distance how they fell in.

Q Yes. How many were there in the execution squad?

Q And how many shots were fired?

A Every man shot. I just could see the shots. I couldn't see from the badk. I merely saw that the order was given by the noncom and that they fired.

Q Were the victims blindfolded or not?

A No. They were standing there with their back towards it.

Q Were they standing or kneeling--you say they were standing?

Q Were they facing the grave?

Q Did they have their outer clothing off?

A No. They were dressed, as far as I saw, they were all dressed. that right?

Q Then the NCO leaped into the pit, is that right?

Q How deep was the pit?

A I do not know, Your Honor, I wasn't at the pit. the NCO's head?

A No, I could not because the men were surrounding him. I could not see the sergeant himself. I just saw when he jumped in and when the other men surrounded him.

Q How did you know he was a sergeant?

A Because I knew him personally. He was the medical noncom of the group staff. the sergeant at a hundred meters?

people there.

Q You could recognize this man at a hundred meters?

Q And were there any shots fired when he was in the pit?

A No, I didn't hear any.

Q Well, then no one received the coup de grace? noted that someone in the pit was still alive, he received the coup de grace? was customary. I did not mean to refer to this special case, but I said that as a general statement. I didn't think of any special case.

Q Because in other executions you had seen that done?

Q That is the only execution you saw in three years in Russia? weren't ordering it? long, and I wanted to see what had happened because I heard that Mstislawl had been disturbed by partisans, and I thought that Noack had trouble with partisans. That is why I drove out there, in order to help him. About how many partisans were in that area? Mstislawl. The mayor told me about it.

Q. You told us that the place was infested with partisans generally. About how many did you assume were in that area?

A. I cannot say.

Q. Well, do you assume that there might be hundreds?

A. It might be 50; it could be 100; it could be 200. No figures were kept.

Q. All right. 50 from 200. How many men did you have?

A. Under my command there were six men whom I had with me and Noack had about 30 men.

Q. You started out to relieve Noack with a column of six men when there might be 50 to 200 men to oppose, is that right?

A. Yes, of course, Your Honor, because at that moment I didn't think of that, whether these were five or six men, so I feared that a comrade of mine had got into trouble with his men and then I must assume that even with my six men I could help him. These were my thoughts.

Q. Were you trained as a soldier?

A. I was a soldier in the first World War, yes.

Q. Is that the reason you were taken into the Einsatzkommando because of your military training?

A. No, I was sent to the Einsatzkommando because of my linguistic knowledge. My military training was not so thorough that it would warrant this.

Q. When Nebe sent you to Tatarsk to execute Jews, to conduct an operation which in your affidavit you say was to establish an example and you knew that it would result in a killing of people, if you were so conscientiously opposed to killing, why didn't you say to Nebe, "I was brought in as a translator, not as an executioner."?

A. Your Honor, in this case I was the only officer in the Group Staff who knew the conditions and the roads in Tatarsk, because I had been there once before.

Nebe told me this expressly. This was a territory which was evidently in danger of partisays and at the same time my Russian linguistic knowledge was always important, but at this moment it was only important that the only leader who was in a position to do anything was Noack and he was already in Berlin. That was the reason why Nebe gave me this special mission.

Q. Did he order you to establish an example?

A. He didn't say this. He didn't express himself in that manner. He merely said that in all severity and ruthlessness I should act, after it had been determined that the message of the mayor corresponds to the truth.

Q. Why did you sign the affidavit with this phraseology after you knew what Nebe told you; your affidavit says, "Nebe ordered me to establish an examply." Did you tell that to Wartenberg?

A. These were my words. That is what I said at the time. Yes, of course.

Q. Oh, you did say that? Very well.

A. Yes, one moment. I said that. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. All right, now, one thing I didn't quite get clear. Mr. Ferencz asked you if you had discussed with the Defendant Naumann the answers which you read here in court, whether you discussed with him those answers before you actually delivered the answers in court. It didn't become clear to me whether you answered that in the affirmative or not. You did answer it in the affirmative and then your attorney made an objection and it was left not too clear. Did you discuss your testimony with Naumann before you delivered it here from the witness stand?

A. Naumann just gave me the questions, Your Honor, and thereupon I formulated my answers, of course.

Q. Naumann gave you the questions? The Defendant Naumann?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, you collaborated with your co-defendant before you came in to testify?

A. Well, I didn't collaborate. I got the questions from him and to the best of my knowledge I answered them without collaborating.

DR. MAYER (Attorney for the Defendant Klingelhoefer): Your Honor, there is another misunderstanding here. The witness is mixing up the questions asked of him by the defense counsel for Naumann and the questions put to him by me.

Q. (By the President) You are not referring then to the testimony which was elicited by your own attorney, Dr. Mayer?

A. No, no. I refer to the questions which I was asked by Naumann, or by the defense counsel of Naumann.

Q. And you received these questions from Naumann and then you formulated your answers?

A. I received those questions from Naumann and I formulated the answers to the best of my knowledge, yes.

Q. Did he suggest the answers to you?

A. No, I made them up myself.

Q. Did you talk with him at any time about the answers you were going to make?

A. Yes, I told them to him, yes.

Q. Why is it that on this occasion you were on the most cordial terms with Naumann, received his questions, formulated the answers, talked with him about what you were going to say, where several months before you were so disturbed over a note that he sent you that you wanted to commit suicide? Why was there this vast change in attitude?

A. There is nothing different in the attitude, Your Honor. I said I had tried to commit suicide because I had respect for Naumann as a comrade and that was the conflict which I developed, that on the one hand I had to do my duty and on the other hand I had respect for Naumann as a comrade whom I had to bestray in this manner.

Thus I did not think of Naumann purely in personal terms.

Q. One final question on this affidavit, Witness. Your affidavit of July 2, 1947, do you confirm the statements made in that affidavit?

A. Of the 2d of July?

Q. 2d of July, yes.

A. I confirm the statements in this affidavit with the addition that I have supplemented and made statements in the second affidavit , according to the possibility granted me by Mr. Wartenberg.

Q. I am speaking only of the affidavit of July 2 divorced completely from any other statement with the exception of the affidavit of August 27, in which you change one date. This document standing alone, do you confirm it or not?

A. The document as it is, I cannot confirm without reservations.

Q. Why did you not tell Wartenberg the whole truth when he interrogated you and why did you give him statements which you now seem to refute? Why did you tell him things which according to your statements now are not true?

A. Your Honor, at the time I was interrogated I was in a very excited state of mind.

Q. Very well.

A. And I was very briefly interrogated so that I had no possibility to think thoroughly of these matters, which had happened so long ago.

Q. All right, let's look at this affidavit. You say that you were excited and that the events discussed happened six years before and therefore they were vague in your mind, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, how is it that you recall that back in 1923 you worked in a bank for nine months, is that statement correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you excited when you said you were a banker for nine months?

A. Your Honor -

Q. Answer that question. Were you excited when you said that you had worked in a bank for nine months?

A. Yes, of course, I was in the same state of mind; that was quite clear.

Q. But you told the truth, didn't you? Even though excited, you did state the correct number of months you worked in a bank?

A. Yes.

Q. Then you told Wartenberg that in 1927 you started on a concert tour, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you excited when you said that?

A. I was in the same state of mind.

Q. But you told the truth?

A. Yes.

Q. In 1928 you received a State Certificate as a voice teacher. Were you excited when you said that?

A. Yes.

Q. But the statement corresponds with the truth, doesn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. In the Spring of 1935 you became an opera singer in Kassel?

A. No, that was in the Spring of 1932, 1932, 1933.

That's a mistake in the affidavit, which I also overlooked.

Q. So you were too excited to indicate when you became an opera singer in Kassel?

A. No, no, Your Honor. That is a typographical error, evidently.

Q. A typographical error? All right. In 1935 you became a co-worker of the SD in Kassel and two years in 1934 you took over the Department Culture III-C in Kassel and you held all this until September 1939, That's all correct, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. And you gave that statement also under the stress of excitement?

A. Yes.

Q. So that everything in this affidavit which has nothing to do with the Russian operation is correct?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. And you only made mistakes when you told about these operations in Russia?

A. Your Honor, that's quite clear. May I explain that?

Q. You have explained it. You were excited and this excitement did not prevent you from telling the truth about your whole life up until 1939 or until 1941, but the excitement was such that you constantly fall into error after 1941?

A. I remembered my biography so well, because I already had to report about it from ten to twenty times before, but as for the events in the East were concerned, they were mentioned practically for the first time in this form in this interrogation. That is why I still had some lapses when I was interrogated in this respect.

Q. Do you want the Tribunal to believe that you remembered more vividly all the facts of your scholastic career then you did the facts which involved blood and death in Russia.

A. Your Honor, I don't know what to answer. These events in my life were, of course, very impressionable and they were firmly in my memory, but, as for the events in the Russian assignment, I tried to forget them and to get over this period and this is the reason why I perhaps did not remember all the details.

12 Dec 1947_A_MSD_Gallagher (Juelich ) 23_1_ the Reich had collapsed? its aims of the conquest of Europe?

A Your Honor. I don't know whether the aims of the Reich were to make conquest of Europe? I don't know that. But of course, I would have been happy if Germany had won the war. That is quite natural. the expense of its present condition, two million Germans killed, the nation in utter ruins, all of Europe devastated. You would have still been happy if Germany had won the war?

Q Would you?

A Yes. Well, that is quite natural. That is a matter of course.

THE PRESIDENT: Maybe it may be a matter of course for you, but I don't think it is for the rest of mankind. Dr. Mayer, any other questions?

DR. MAYER: Yes, Your Honor.

RE_DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. MAYER: (Dr. Mayer for the defendant Klingelhoefer) tion prepared by Mr. Wartenberg to the witness, and the witness has stated at the time that he told Mr. Wartneberg there were detailed facts which were not taken into the affidavit. It seems that this interrogation also contained exonerating points for the witness. After the Tribunal has expressed that the Prosecution must also submit the exonerating circumstances, I would like to suggest that the interrogation of Mr.

12 Dec 1947_A_MSD_23_2_Gallagher (Juelich) Wartenberg in its entirety be submitted, or be read.

MR. FERENCZ: Your Honor I shall introduce the interrogation because it has been asked for. However, I would not like to see a ruling that it is a matter of law or a requirement that every interrogation be introduced. The defendant is on the stand, he can be asked about the interrogation, he can be asked by the Tribunal and by any of the counsel about the interrogation. The interrogator was on the stand, and has testified, and could have been asked at the time. There is no necessity why an interrogation will have to be intorduced. However, I shall voluntarily introduce the complete interrogation as an exhibit in the Prosecution's rebuttal document book to show that the defendant made false statements on the stand both this morning and this afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: No ruling is required in this case, and even if it were every ruling pertains to the particular set of circumstances before it, and it could not be expected that because a certain thing is done in one instance, it necessarily would have to be done again in a similar buy yet vitally different set of circumstances.

MR. MAYER: In this case, Your Honor, where the contradictions in the first and second affidavits, and testimony have been repeatedly pointed out, it would be useful if I could ask the defendant about this; if the interrogation will be submitted later, then I won't have any opportunity to ask him, or I shall ask the Tribunal to reserve the right for me that in case this interrogation is submitted, I may again ask the witness questions.

THE PRESIDENT: We will never close the door on relevant and vital facts, and if it appears when you get the interrogation, that it is entirely fair that you should be allowed to call the defendant for a few questions, that privilege will be accorded you.

DR. MAYER: I thank the Tribunal. BY DR. MAYER:

12 Dec 1947_A_MSD_23_3_Gallagher (Juelich) I think I can gather that it has not been clarified that twice, at different times, you were in Tatarsk. Please tell us in what connection that you were in Tatarsk that first time, and when was this? on the occasion of the requisition of winter clothing. At this occasion Noack received the order from the Chief of the Einsatzgruppe, the then Chief of the advance Commando to undertake a anti_Jewish action in Tatarsk and Mstillawl, and during this drive to Tatarsk and Mstislawl I was in Tatarsk for the first time. Tatarsk?

Q What happened the second time in Tatarsk?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, he has told us the second time what happened. He has told what happened the second time at Tatarsk at great length, hasn't he?

DR. MAYER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: You certainly don't want him to tell us that whole story again?

DR. MAYER: All right. BY DR. MAYER: to Tatarsk the second time?

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, now you have gone over that, the Tribunal has questioned him on it, and the Prosecution at great length. If there is still some outstanding complexity which must be cleared up, then, of course, a question will be in order.

DR. MAYER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: But to ask what order he received is going into the whole episode again.

DR MAYER: I shall go right to the next question, and I shall come to those question which are still in doubt.

BY DR. MAYER: in regard to the Jews, as it had existed previously, still to be carried out?

Q Then what purpose did the preceding action of Noack have? on the order of the Chief of Advance Commando_Moscow, with the limitation that at that time only those Jews unfit to work were to be shot, while the others were to be sent to a Ghetto.

Q Yes, did this order still exist when you came to Tatarsk?

A I don't know exactly. the execution on the basis of the Fuehrer Order? alive any longer. opinion? Tatarsk with the intention to work for the Partisans, and to be "stoogies" for the Partisans. interrogation, were in the Ghetto in Tatarsk before the Munity? hundred and twenty, about at that time, and that was the figure before they left the Ghetto. if you would have come to the conclusion that none of the Jews apprehended by you in Tatarsk, and in the vicinity, was in contact with the Partisans? because I had an order.

THE PRESIDENT: Now you told us that. He already said that. Now is he going to tell the whole story again. He would send them back to the Ghetto. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Why wouldn't you have shot the Jews anyway?

Q Did the thirty Jews participate in threatening the Mayor? part in your decision? the Partisans, because the promise of help by the Partisans encouraged them.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, now don't you agree that it is unnecessary for him to tell the story all over again. The purpose of redirect examination is not to re-emphasize facts, it is only to clear up what may have been obscurated by the cross examination.

DR. MAYER: I am afraid, Your Honor, that in the excitement of cross examination, it was not possible for the defendant to describe the events correctly. By a few individual questions I would like to clarify it once more.

THE PRESIDENT: Well then put it this way, Dr. Mayer. Ask the witness if he wants to make any correction in a statement he has made because to repeat what he has already told us two or three times serves nobody at all. Ask him if he wants to make any correction or to point out where you think a correction is in order. BY DR. MAYER: been shot regardless of the result of the investigation. What did you mean to say by this? Was this also true of the time while you were busy with investigations in Tatarsk during your mission? the special assignment of the investigations about the sentences. time? Nebe had intended such an action?

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, you see the difficulties you are going to get into. Now he told us only ten or fifteen minutes ago that the only reason Nebe sent him out there was that he had no other officer. Now he is telling you that if it had been purely an action of execution that some other officer would have been sent, some other officer who didn't exist.

Witness, didn't you say to the Tribunal that the reason you were sent out was because no other officer was available? and the road to Tatarsk.

THE PRESIDENT: Now why do you tell counsel that if it had been a different king of an action one purely involving executions they would have sent another officer. It would still have been the same roads, wouldn't it? You would still have to go over the same roads?

necessary because this action on the basis of the Fuehrer order had already been carried out in Tatarsk in the beginning of September by Noack. There would have been no reason to send me for an execution action.

THE PRESIDENT: You see the circle you get into. He now says it would have been impossible because there wouldn't have been such an action. do with the execution of the Fuehrer order would you have been sent there. You replied "No, they would have sent another officer."

THE PRESIDENT: Well I think it is simpler if you just go right ahead, Dr. Mayer. BY DR. MAYER:

Q Witness, didn't you also say that your linguistic knowledge was the decisive thing because Nebe knew investigations had to be carried on? been necessary if the mission was carried out purely according to the Fuehrer order?

Q Now I come to another point. You said that the leader of Kommando VII-B Rausch held roll call in the moment of the Russian assignment and he reported that the leadership assumed that the Russians would not adhere to the rules of war. From what did they conclude that Russians would not adhere to the rules of war? recognize the Geneva Convention and the Hague rules of land warfare.

Q And what was the reaction of the German leadership to this fact? carried on ruthlessly and therefore had to act accordingly.

Q What did the German leaders revoke?

Q Thus the rules of war were not revoked on the German side? assignment the Kommando was distributed in such a manner that two execitive detachments and one SD detachment were set up. When did this organization occur? departments were evidently mixed up. When was this change? belonged to Kommando VII B because afterwards, as I knew as a member of the staff, the tactics of the Kommandos was completely changed. Kommando. as a member of Kommando VII B.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, my attention is called to the fact that "stangericht"is translated by jurisdiction. I assume that the correct translation for "standgericht"is emergency military law.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't know the German word.

INTERPRETER: I think it is court martial, your Honor.

DR. MAYER: I beg your pardon, Your Honor, I do not know the English language so well and another defense counsel may clarify this. May I suggest Dr. Leist.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't think it can mean court martial because court martial only comes into play when a member of a military organization is accused of having committed an offense and then officers of that same military organization try him. It is not international. It is purely national. So it cannot be court martial.

DR. MAYER: Well, I think so, too, your Honor. The translation court martial doesn't translate the word "standgericht".

THE PRESIDENT: Of course, if the member of an Armed Force, let us say, A German soldier violates one of the international rules of land warfare then he could be tried by German officers for this offense against International law and that would be a court martial. Is that what you had in mind?

DR. MAYER: No, not a court martial buy a summary court.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, a military court set up by the Germans, by German officers, to try German soldiers? Well, no, well you see there's where the trouble comes. If a German court made up of officers tries a German soldier or a German officer that's a court martial. If a German court tries a civilian of another nation then it may be called a Military Commission. Well, that's what you are referring to, I see. BY DR. MAYER: Yes. who were identified from lists or other material which you found in the NKVD building could be shot if they were considered to be endangering the security and if they were apprehended. Do you know of any case that on the basis of your capture of material a man was apprehended and shot?

Q Another point. Witness, when did you try to commit suicide? letter off to Mr. Wartenberg. first affidavit through Mr. Wartenberg?

A No that was after the first affidavit was made out. I signed the first affidavit on 2 July and I sent off the letter to Mr. Wartenberg on 4 July as far as I remember.

Q Did you repudiate the first affidavit in you second affidavit?

A Yes, I repudiated the first affidavit in your second affidavit?

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Mayer, suppose you call that the third affidavit so as not to get this confused. We have the first affidavit of July 2, then we have that very fragmentary correction of 27 August and there was the third affidavit.

Of course, if you call it the second large affidavit that might cover it.

DR. MAYER: Yes, I mean by second affidavit the one of 17 September whereas the one of 27 August is merely a correction of a date.

A final question, witness. During the noon recess today did a member of the Prosectuion speak to you?

A In the recess?

Q Before the beginning of the afternoon session?

Q What was discussed?

A Nothing special was discussed. Mr. Ferencz merely admonished me to tell the truth. Thereupon I told him that I was doing that to the best of my knowledge. That was all. That was about the content of the discussion.

DR. MAYER: Your Honor, I thank you. I have no further questions and I am at the end of the case until I submit my Document Book.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will now take a recess until tomorrow morning and we will be in session all day. Everyone will remain in their seats at the present moment until the judges have actually left the bench then the defendant will be returned to the defendant's box and then the Tribunal will actually be in recess.

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II, Military Tribunal II is now in session.

God save the United states of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal has been informed that the Defendants Braune, Ott, Nosske, Seibert, and Six were taken ill yesterday evening and for that reason will not be in court today. The record will show this.

It was reported that you were ill. I am glad that you are better.

LOTHAR FENDER, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows:

JUDGE SPEIGHT: Witness raise your right hand and repeat after me: pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

JUDGE SPEIGHT: You may be seated.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

DR. FRITZ (Attorney for the Defendant Fendler): Your Honor, the Document Book of Fendler has already been submitted for some time, both in the German and in the English versions. Therefore, it is my intention to use the documents during the direct examination of Fendley, partly to refer to their contents and to read several important passages to the record.

THE PRESIDENT: You may do so. BY DR. FRITZ (ATTORY FOR THE DEFENDANT FENDLER)

Q. Mr. Fendler, give me your personal data.

A. My name is Lothar Fendler. I was born on the 13th of August, 1913, in Breslau. My father was a dentist. I am married.

Q. Briefly describe your education.

A. In Breslau I attended primary and high school and in 1932 I graduated.

Q. What profession did you choose?

A. I started the study of dentistry and in the fall of 1934 I took my examinations as a dentist. In order to do that I served one year in the Army voluntarily. At the end of 1935 I was released as a sergeant in the Reserve.

Q. Why did you report voluntarily at that time during your studies?

A. My financial means had been exhausted and I had to interrupt my studies. Furthermore, it had been announced at the university that one had to count on a law requiring military service of two years. After I had passed my first examination, I was able to interrupt my studies at that point for the period of my military service and this also freed my parents from supporting me. Therefore, I voluntarily reported for military service.

Q. Did you continue to study dentistry after you were released from the military service?

A. No, because of an illness of my father, the financial situation of my parents had become worse. Therefore, I had to try to earn my money by working part time. A comrade in the Army called my attention to the fact that the SS Agency in Breslau was looking for people. Through one of his relatives I came to the South East Sector of the SD in Breslau.

Q. What did you know about the SD at that time?

A. Nothing. I did not even know it existed.

Q. When did you join the SD?

A. In January 1936.

Q. Did you continue to study dentistry later?

A. No, when I joined the SD, it was my intention, as I have already said, to earn my own expenses in order to continue my studies. In August 1936 my father died. My mother remarried behind without any resources and I had to support her. I could not save enough money to continue my studies at that time, because I only earn ed 115 Marks a month, Therefore, I remained with the SD.

Q. What was your first activity in this SD Sector South East?

A. In the beginning I was a guard, a telephone operator, and I worked on the files. Later on I worked on the files and in the office in the then Department 3 of the SD Counter-Intelligence, After that I was used in the Department 321 -- that is Counter-Intelligence -- where I issued messages and prepared reports to the then SD Main Office. In April 1937 I was sent to the then SD Sector Breslau as an expert for Counter-Intelligence

Q. What do you mean by this, "Counter-Intelligence"? Do you mean the protection of industrial plants?

A. Yes, we had to support important industrial plants in their prevention measures against sabotage and espionage and we had to advise them in this work, This was done practically by organizing a kind of plant protection unit order to guard the plant and the organization of technical controls.

Q. Did you have any executive powers in this respect?

A. No, the work was done as result of voluntary agreements with the responsible managers.

Q. How long did you remain in this position?

A. Until the spring of 1939, with one interruption, during the time that the Sudetenland was occupied. At that time I was called upon to organized the department for Counter-Intelligence for a few weeks in the newly organized SD Sector in Troppau.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, at this point I would like to offer two affidavits: First of all, Fendler Document No. 2, Affidavit Schoenborn on page 3 of the Document Book. I want to offer this as Fendler Exhibit No. 1. I would like to read the second paragraph of this into the record and I quote:

"From 1936 on, I was in charge, in an honorary capacity, of legal question for the SD in Breslau. Through this I often saw Mr. Fendler privately. H e was active in the SD Sector Breslau in 1937 in a full time capacity He worked in the Department III, Counter-Intelligence information Service."

Furthermore, I would like to offer Affidavit Hanke. This is the next affidavit in the Document Book Fendler. I would like to offer this as Fendler Exhibit 2. From this affidavit I would like to read paragraph 2 an part of 3. I quote:

" In the year 1935 I became an employee of Security Service Administration East District Breslau through the Labor Exchange Breslau. I worked in the "Counter Intelligence Department" and, to be precise, in sub Department "Intelligence from abroad," where information of a political and economic nature or intelligence material from the southeastern States was evaluated, i.e., dispatched to the Security Service Main Office in Berlin through business channels in the form of a news report. Questions of "Plant Security" were handled in the other sub department.

"I learned to know Herr Lothar Fendler approximately at the beginning of the year 1936. He was born in Breslau, if I remember correctly, and started to work at that time in the same Security Service Administration District "Southeast". At first he worked in the capacity of an assistant for the guard in the file-room and as a sideline worked as a coach for sport activities. Later on he worked in the Sub-Department "Plant Security" which activity was, just like the "Intelligence from Abroad", purely reportorial, and did not extend to executive and police measure as executive authority was in any case not proper to a Security Service employee. Fendler was transferred to the Security Service Sub-District Breslau approximately a year later where he also worked in the Plant Security Sector. Fendler has to my knowledge not displayed any political activity for the Party, by giving talks or by writing articles."

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Fritz, it is entirely probable to call our attentions to the essential parts of affidavits submitted but I do not believe it is necessary for you to read such material as where the defendant was born and it certainly isn't necessary to read the curriculum vitae or the man who has given the affidavit, because now that first paragraph you read told about the affiant. Then it isn't until you get into the second paragraph that you began to talk about the defendant and much of you read is known already. He has mentioned he was born in Breslau and so on.

Now I don't want to curtail you in the presentation of any material but we will lose a great deal of time if you are going to read matters which can't be or much assistance in the disposition of this case. necessary for you to emphasize as that the defendant worked in the Sub-Department Plant Security and his work there did not extent to executive and police measures. Then the fact that according to the party by giving talks or by writing articles.

I only call this to your attention now because if we didn't say something about it now you might follow the same procedure in other affidavits and you would be emphasizing what is not of great essential value in the final appraisement of the questions involved in the indictment.

Q. (By Dr. Fritz) Dr. Fendler, what activities were you given in March of 1939? Olmuetz of the SD with an Einsatzkommando. It was the job of this kommando to organize SD agencies and to take up the work of the SD. At that time, I was Scharfuehrer. That is the same as a sergeant.

organize a local agency together with the confidence men. I became the director or this agency. This agency had to do the same jobs as the SD Office III. Thus I had to gather material and reports from all domestic spheres about the morale of the population and from that material I had to make out reports for my superior agency. or was your agency active as a Counter agency of the Gestapo?

A No, neither I nor my assistants had any executive powers. The agency was completely independent. It had no connection with the Gestapo.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, at this point I would like to offer the affidavit of Remmers, Fender Document 21. This is the last document in Document Book Fendler on page 66. I offer it as Fendler Exhibit No. 3. Remmmers was also the director of an agency in the Sudetenland. He describes the work of the SD in the Sudetenland and he essentially confirms everything which the Defendant Fendler has just stated about his activity.

Q (By Dr. Fritz) Mr. Fendler, how long were you the Director of this agency in Olmuetz? examination, I became a candidate for the so-called "Executive Service" and thus I got the possibility of studying law.

Q And how did your training proceed? attended my first semester there. Until the end of 1940 I continued to direct the agency at Olmuetz. Then I left the professional work of the SD and was transferred to the Office of the RSHA, that is to say, the Personnel and Training Office. Then in the beginning of 1941 I attended the University of Frankfurt on Main for one semester and then moved to Berlin where I finished my studies at the university.

Q How did you come to be assigned in the East? confidants for the Executive Service by the then chief of Office I to interrupt my studies at once and to go to Pretzsch on the Elbe River.

DR. FRITZ: One moment. At this point, Your honor, I would like to offer Fendler Document No. 4 on page 6 of the Document Book. I would like to offer this as Fendler Exhibit No. 4. This is the affidavit Hotzel. I do not want to read anything from this. Among Hotzel's jobs was the care for the candidates for the Executive Service. In this affidavit he describes how these candidates for the executive Service came to be assigned to the Einsatz.

Q (By Dr. Fritz) Continue, please, Mr. Fendler. to arrive and members of the Waffen SS and SD, both officers and men. Companies were set up. The man were clothed and given a brief course of military training. Finally Einsatzgruppen and Einsatzkommandos were set up. I personally was sent to Sonderkommando 4B as its Commanding Officer. The then Government Councillor and Sturmbannfuehrer Hermann was then designated as the leader of the Kommando.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Fritz, how long did that training last, this military training he spoke of?

DR. FRITZ: Witness, did you understand the question, how long did this military training last in Pretzsch?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, the military training was very brief. It was limited to firing of weapons. The men and the NCOs had the possibility to go on a range and fire their weapons. At that time no intensive military training was possible, because the physical condition of the men didn't permit this in most cases; as already had been mentioned here, all the men intended to be sent to Einsatz were innoculated, and the results of this innoculation brought fever and weakness in its wake, so that a military training was not possible. BY DR FRITZ: you to go to Pretzsch?

BY THE PRESIDENT: Witness, how long were you in Pretzsch when you had this limited training on the firing of the weapons?

THE WITNESS: I was in Pretzsch from the end of May until the beginning of June - - I mean, the beginning of the war, that is, 22nd of June, or 23rd of June.

Q A matter of two or three weeks? on a target on a range?

Q Yes, you didn't receive any training in map reading, and in tactical movements?

Q In strategy?

Q None of that regular military training?

were just sent out to the target range and allowed to shoot small arms?

A I can not say. The men gathered at Pretzsch were distributed over several localities. I personally came in contact at Pretzsch only with a limited number of people. I heard that the NCOs and men who were in companies received a short training in the regular service. I don't know whether this means anything to the President, this expression.

Q A short training in the service. You mean there in Pretzsch? ing because of these innoculations which they received?

A Well, I did not mean it so exclusively. I don't mean to say to such an extent at the time the innoculation was performed, but the next innoculation was to take place one or two days later, and this days was used to train the men, to teach them how to behave themselves as soldiers in uniform. Most of the men had had no military training thus far.

Q You say this training period lasted two or three weeks? be used for training.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Dr Fritz. BY DR FRITZ: order given when you had to go to Pretzsch. Was the SD under military law at that time?

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, at this point I would like to offer the affidavit of Alfons Pfoser. That is Fendler's Document No. 5, which is page 8 of the Document Book. I offer it as Fendler's Exhibit No. 5. It was one of Pfoser's jobs to take care of candidates for the executive service, and in the second paragraph of this affidavit he confirms that the candidate for the executive service didn't voluntarily report to this Einsatz, and refusal would have been prosecuted under military law.

BY DR FRITZ: there? We assumed that it would be against England. Only immediately before the breaking out of the war against Russia was the purpose of the objective and the destination of the assignment known.

Q What mission did you expect to get in this assignment? missions, as I knew them from the Sudentenland and Czechoslovakia. That is, the mission for security of the area, and the customary SD work, as well as the work of the organization of stationary SD agencies. to liquidate the Jews and other groups of people was made known?

Q As it was made known by Heydrich or Streckenbach? Russia, that outside of the usual Security Police tasks, the Einsatzcommandos had been ordered to execute Jews and other people from the East?

A. No.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, at this point I would like to refer to several affidavits. First of all, the affidavit of Haefner as Fendler's Document No. 6, on page 10 of the Document Book, which I am offering as Fendler's Exhibit No. 6. Haefner was also a candidate for the executive service, and he confirms in his affidavit the description which Mr. Fendler has just given.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr Fritz, can you tell us just a few words just what "executive service of the Security Police and SD" consisted of?

This affidavit says, they were candidates for the executive service. Just tell us in a few words what is meant by that, what kind of service that would be?

DR FRITZ: Yes. Your Honor, I don't know very much about it myself, this field, but during this trial I think I have learned the following in this respect. The SD tried to get new people for its leading agencies, from persons who had academic studies to their credit.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't think I made myself clear, Dr. Fritz. Several of these affidavits point to the fact that the witness was a candidate for the "executive service" of the SIPO and the SD. I want to know very briefly what is meant by "Executive service of Security Police and SD." Can you tell us that, witness?

THE WITNESS: Yes. There were three careers within the Security Police, and within the SD also, a lower one - a medium, and a leading one. The prerequisites for admission into the leading career was completion of a university course of studies.

THE PRESIDENT: Now witness, we are going into it too deeply. What is "Executive service"? Let's suppose we have a man in the Executive Service of the Security Police and SD. What does he do? Or maybe he does not sit at a desk, maybe he is up in a balloon somewhere. Tell us just what he does? was the function of the leader of a SD Sector.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, what did you do? We still don't know what this man in the Executive Service does. In the Reich it would include normally the area of a government district. He had the job in this district to gather material in all domestic spheres.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. I would like to have that with a certainty.

DR FRITZ: Herr Ohlendorf just called to my attention that the translation of the word "Leitender Dienst" had been translated "Executive service" but that it would have to be translated "Leading service".

THE PRESIDENT: Then the affidavit to that extent is not translated correctly. This affidavit on page 10 reads: "There from Spring until the Autumn of 1940 election camps for candidates for the executive service of the Security Police and the SD took place."

DR FRITZ: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Do I understand now that what was really meant is "Candidates for the lending service?"

DR FRITZ: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: I see, very well.

THE WITNESS: If I may make another addition to this, Your Honor. It is the same as a career of a higher administrative official.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, that is very clear, Thank you.

DR FRITZ: At this point I would also like to offer an affidavit of one Johannes Feder. Fendler's Document No. 7, page 13 of the Document Book. That is Fendler's Exhibit No. 7. Feder was also a candidate of the Leading Service. In paragraph 2 he describes how he came to Pretzsch, and I would like to read the next to the last paragraph into the record. I quote: "It was announced to candidates for the Leading Service mission, that outside of the Security Police measures Einsatzcommandos would have the job also to liquidate certain population groups in the East. I didn't hear about this in Pretzsch, not even through rumors." I would also like to offer the affidavit of Otto Heyer. That is Fendler's Document No. 11, page 26 of the Document Book. I am offering this as Fendler's Exhibit No. 8, I point out especially paragraphs 2 and 3, and I would like to read the beginning of paragraph 3 into the record. "I can state with certainty that neither in Berlin nor in Pretzsch were we informed of the task of Einsatzgruppen in the East was the solution of the Jewish problem. I was of the opinion rather that we SD people in this Einsatz would have to perform intelligence tasks such as fell to the lot of the SD, otherwise, that is, investigation and screening of the economic, cultural and food position, prevailing political feeling, relations in the sphere of law and administration, taking into consideration military requirements and necessities." I shall come back to this affidavit later. It is Fendler's Document No. 9, on page 19 of the Document Book. I am calling it Fendler's Exhibit NO. 9. This affidavit is of special interest, Your Honor, because Koenig was also an SD expert under Fendler in Sondercommando IV-B. I shall point to the fourth sentence which confirms what Fendler has just testified about what was made

THE PRESIDENT: That is the fourth paragraph, Dr. Fritz,

DR. FRITZ: The fourth paragraph, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. Herr Fendler, what did Lommando Leader Herrmann tell you about the jobs of the commandos in Pretzsch, that is, your Kommandoleader. What did he tell you?

A. The Kommando-leader announced it would be the job of the commandos to look after the secrity of the rear areas, and to investigate the various domestic fields in the manner of the SD report. Finally, he announced that the Special-commando for Einsatzgruppe-C, to advance with the combat troops.

Q. What did the Sonderkommando IV-B consist of?

A. The Sonderkommando IV-B consisted of officers, of non-coms and of men who had been taken from the Gestapo, the Criminal Police, the Waffen-SS and the SD. There were also people on the emergency war status, such as drivers and interpreters. The commando had about sixty men altogether.

Q. Who were the officers?

A. The commanding officer Herrmann was, as I have already said, the SS-Sturmbannfuehrer, that is, Major. There was also the Police Inspector with the rank of an SS-1st Lt., and a SS-2nd Lt., who came from the Gestapo, that is, three altogether. A Police Inspector with the rank of 1st Lt. came from the Criminal Police.

A. SS-2nd Lt., and I, who was the Captain, came from the SD. An Interpreter in the emergency war status had the rank of a 2nd Lt.

Q. The Commanding Officer, Herrmann, also came from the Gestapo?

A. He belonged to the three offices from the Gestapo, of which I spoke. Maybe it was a little unclear.

Q. Were the various fields distributed among the various people in the commando according to previous carreers?

A. Yes, at Pretzsch already I was appointed Expert-III, that is for the SD work. The others from the Gestapo and the Criminal Police; those officers coming from the Gestapo and the Criminal Police were designated for the Security Police mission. The Senior Police Inspector who came from the Gestapo became Expert-IV.

Q. That is the executive?

A. Yes.

Q. During the entire duration of your assignment in the East, did this arrangement remain this way?

A. Yes.

A. How was this possible?

A. The Kommando Leader Hermann kept the whole of Kommando 4-B under his leadership all during this time. Therefore, he did not subdivide it into independently operating sub-Kommandos as has been reported frequently about other Kommandos in this Court. This, of course, does not exclude that small parts of the Kommando were used to carry out definite missions and that in this they were separated from the Kommando for a short period of time. Since the Kommando was essentially always together this sharp determination of the various fields of work could be maintained as the work required.

Q. Did the Kommando officer Hermann always have complete power of command during your time?

A. Yes.

Q. Please describe to the Tribunal what your various missions were in the Einsatz?

A. As I have already said I was designated as expert III in Pretsch, that is, for the SD work. At the beginning of the assignment the Kommando leader assigned liaison officers to the Third Army Corps belonging to the 17th Army. I personally was sent as liaison officer to the 49th Mountain Corps. Finally there were also jobs which I had to do, as well as the other officers, which resulted from the necessities of our military advance, for example, as Kommando officer of an Advanced Kommando.

Q. When did this assignment begin? When did you get to Russia. I just want to establish the date.

A. I cannot tell you exactly whether it was the 22 or 23 of June that we left Pretsch. We crossed the Russian border in the last days of June.

Q. Now we must briefly concern ourselves with these various missions. What work did you have to do as department leader III of Special Kommando 4-B? Just limit yourself to describing you own practical activity because general statements about SD work in Russia have already been made here in the course of this trial.

A. After the Kommando took up its new activity at a new garrison the first thing to do was to sift the captured material, documents, etc., and to pick out that material which was important for the SD work, to evaluate this material and to pass it on to the agencies concerned with it. That might be the Army, but usually the group. Secondly, liaison had to be established with the town Commandant and especially with the indigenuous personnel working for him. These were the Commissar Mayor, technicians, teachers, so-called agronomists. With their aid it was attempted to get a survey of the various domestic spheres, together with information about the morale of the population. This information was complied in situation and morale reports. After this survey had been established important individual problems were investigated more thoroughly and in a more extensive form and for this work indigenous experts were used. Usually this information was then utilized for individual reports.

Q. And where did these reports go?

A. As I have already indicated these reports were usually sent to the group, that is, via the Kommando leader. They were passed on, if the courier service would permit, usually once a week. At the same time the Army was informed either in a written form or orally. The Kommando leader would decide this and he usually informed the Army himself.

Q. Perhaps you can give a few examples briefly about your reports in the SD field?

A. One would have to add generally that during the advance, and that's true for the entire time of my assignment in Russia, that the SD work which would threat all spheres equally was not possible. The work had to be improvised and had to be started all over again at every now place. Reports were made about the expectations and about the morale of the population. The situation reports emphasized economic facts from subject matters including the care and the food situation, the supply situation of the population, the reconstruction of the industries and services, the bringing in of the harvest, the distribution of the land, the lack of agricultural machinery.

Furthermore we were concerned with questions of administration. Investigations were made of the strength of the organizational activities, National groups, about autonomy ambitious, about school questions, questions of the medical care of the population. Finally individual problems were discussed such as the research about the planting of the Russian rubber plant, cocsacis, and the compilation of reports about the Bolshevik industrial centers on the other side of the Ural Mountains.

tivities, National groups, about autonomy ambitious, about school questions, questions of the medical care of the population. Finally individual problems were discussed such as the research about the planting of the Russian rubber plant, cocsacis, and the compilation of reports about the Bolshevik industrial centers on the other side of the Ural Mountains.

Q. Your Honor, within the next few days I shall submit a document which will describe the manner of reporting which the defendant Fendler has just described.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. What assistants did you have in the SD work?

A. As I have already said there was another officer next to me who came from the SD, a 2nd Lieutenant Koenig who has already been mentioned, We were the only experts with the Kommando. There were no NCOs or men who came from the professional SD service. This 2nd Lieutenant and an interpreter were always at my disposal to assist me. And, according to requirements, members of the Waffen-SS were added and another interpreter if he was available.

Q. Your Honor, as far as the SD work is concerned which the defendant Fendler performed and which he described I would like to refer to a few affidavits. I first offer the affidavit of Henicke. This is on page 31 of the Document Book, Fendler document #12. I offer this as Fendler Exhibit 10.

Henicke was chief of Department III with Einsatzgruppe C. Thus he had the same activity in the Einsatzgruppe that the defendant Fendler had with the Einsatzkommando 4-B. record, your Honor, because of its significance. This is the 4th paragraph I quote:

"From the beginning of the Einsatz to the end of October 1941, I myself was with the staff of Einsatzgruppe C as Referent III. As such, I had to perform purely intelligence work, reports on public opinion and the situation in all spheres of Russian life, for instance, economy, culture, administration, etc. Fendler as SD-Reference for Einsatzkommando 4-B had the same tasks. It did not come to my knowledge that Fendler performed works other than SD work. Since the groups and Kommandos were poorly staffed by SD people and Fendler was the only specialist in the SD department in Einsatzkommando 4-B, SD people were used only as specialists. Fendler was fully occupied with SD tasks for his Kommando. Reports drawn up by Fendler were sent to me as his technical superior. In the Einsatzgruppe I did not receive reports about executions of the group and am of the opinion that Fendler also in his Einsatzkommando had no insight into these reports. On principle, the Referent III in the Einsatz, that is technical Department IV, performed no informers services for the Executive either."

Q. Your Honor, at this point I would once more like to refer to the affidavit of Heyer, which has already been offered, on page 26 of the Document Book. This is Fendler document #11, Exhibit #8, on page 27 and 28 of the Document Book, in the second half of the last paragraph on page 27, he also describes the SD work and he makes statements about the composition of the Kommando. I would like to read one passage into the record, page 27, the second paragraph, last sentence:

"Traveling back also were Obersturmfuehrer and Kriminalkommissar Bussinger and Kriminalkommissar Kaerger. Bussinger told me he was IV Referent, therefore, was in charge of the executive. The fact was also discussed that enough specialists were available for the Executive while Herr Fendler in his specialized sphere was the only expert and therefore extremely overburdened with work. From conversations with Herr Fendler and other commanders of Einsatzkommando 4-B it was clear that Herr Fendler was the SD-Referent (III) with Einsatzkommando 4-B and, apart from that, Liaison Commander with 49th Mountain Army Corps, and to that extent, had the same task as I had. I gathered from the conversations that Einsatzkommando 4-B did not operate split up into subsidiary kommandos as was the case with same Einsatzkommandos, but always operated as a whole. Therefore, there was a clearly defined distinction from the point of view of work. Herr Fendler told me about his work and his reports which he prepared about the provisions situation, supply of the people, setting in motion of industry, strength and organization of national groups, condition and care of ethnic Germans, religious life, that is, concerning the 4 spheres of live about which in general the SD reported." ler Document 10. At this point I call attention to the second paragraph of this affidavit of Martens.

THE PRESIDENT: Exhibit number?

DR. FRITZ: 11, your Honor. Martens was in the same Einsatzkommando 4-B. I shall come back to this affidavit later on.

fidavit Koenig. This is Fendler Document #9, on page 20, page 21 of the Document Book on top. And from page 20 I would like to read the second paragraph. I quote:

"The executive tasks of the Kommando came under category IV. During the entire period of our assignment, Fendler and I never handled this category. Many specialists from the Secret Police and Criminal Police-officers and NCOs-were available for category IV. On the other hand, Fendler and I were the only ones who worked on category III (Security Service matters). Category Iv - that is, the executive part was handled completely separately from category III. These working on it were subject exclusively to the directions of the Kommando commander, but not to these of the specialists working on category III. On the other hand, the executive department did not have the right to give technical directions to the specialists of category III. The intelligence work of the Security Service branch was in no way connected with the executive side.

"It also never happened, while we were there, that technical directions of the Kommando commander for the Executive Department were perhaps issued through those working in category III." Koenig who made out this affidavit worked under Fendler in Special Kommando 4-B. BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. Herr Fendler, you have described your SD work in the assignment. What job did you have as liaison officer to the 49th Mountain Army Corps?

A. The Kommando leader Hermann at the beginning of the assignment told the liaison officers who had been designated as such about the general mission. First of all, the establishing and maintenance of continuous contact with G-q. Secondly, mutual exchange of political and military intelligence material and third, clarification of the questions concerning the advance garrison and supplies of the Kommando.

Only that liaison officer would handle these matters who was designated for the particular Army Corps and in whose operational area the Kommando was just stationed at that time. In my capacity as liaison officer to the 49th Mountain Army Corps I only was active once. The 49th Mountain Corps was at that time 40 kilometers east of Tarnopol in Trembowla. I took up contact with this G-2 and carried out the orders of the Kommando leader to secure the approval of G-2 for the advance of the Kommando. Thereupon I prepared quarters in Trembowla for myself and a small detachment. The Kommando advanced on Trembowla from Tarnopol two days later. About a week after the Kommando arrived in Trembowla I had another discussion with G-2 about the move of the Kommando, at that time into the area of Proskurow. I don't recall that later during my assignment I have spoken again with G-2 of the 49th Mountain Corps and I did not receive any orders later as liaison officer to another Army Corps of to the Army Headquarters and to perform any function in this capacity.

DR. FRITZ: YOUR Honor, this would be a nice point to recess.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess for 15 minutes.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. KOESSL: Dr. Koessl, deputizing for my colleague. Dr. Gawlik. I would like to ask the high Tribunal that the Defendant Naumann be excused from attendance in court this afternoon so that he can assist in getting the document books ready.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Naumann will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon Proceed, please.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. FRITZ: work as SD referent and also your work as liaison officer. Were you then given any other tasks during your assignment in the East?

A Yes, for example, as chief of an advance kommando. As I described already before the recess, I was in charge of an advance kommando on two occasions in Trembowla as well. I was assigned in these advance kommandos because the experience in the first weeks of our advance in the East had soon proved that the intelligence material which the Bolshevists had left behind could only then be secured if we succeeded to advance with the front troops and to occupy these offices before the material was taken away by the advancing German Wehrmacht members who used these rooms as staff quarters and scattered the documents in a number of cases. As far as I remember, during the whole time of my assignment it was not possible, to achieve a good cooperation of the entire kommando. It was necessary to operate with small advance kommandos. The advance kommandos of which I was in charge had each about sic to eight men. The mission given to me was; first; securing material left behind by the Bolshevists, any document material or information material; secondly, securing billets and the supplies of the kommando which was following us. other tasks except those you just described?

any other tasks.

Q In particular then, you did not carry out any police measures?

A No, never. The Security Police work and the SD work only started when the kommando arrived at this new garrison. In both cases I just mentioned the kommando followed already the day following my arrival. That is, their work started then under the command of the commander of the kommando.

Q But the prosecution maintains, and I quote, "that repeatedly you carried out the function of a deputy chief of this unit".

A No, this was never true. While I was assigned I never had full authority of command over the kommandoo not even in the case that the kommando chief was absent. Even when the commander of the kommando was absent. Even when the commander of the kommando was absent I could not give any instructions to the executive and certainly could not give any orders for executions.

Q Your own affidavit which is contained in Document Book III_C in the English book Page 55, in the German, Page 89, it is the Document No_4144, Prosecution's Exhibit 142, says on Page 2 of the original under number 3, I quote: "I have never been officially designated as a deputy to Hermann. I have, however, taken charge of official matters during his absence." How am I to understand this? However, I want to explain in more detail, why it was formulated in that manner. While signing the affidavit in the presence of Mr. Wartenberg, I asked to add something at this particular point according to the statements I had made concerning these problems. Mr. Wartenberg told me that there would be no point in it, and he refused to have this addition made. My statement on this point I had made in sufficient detail during the interrogation.

trying to put into it. At that time Mr. Wartenberg did not tell me what this affidavit was going to be used for. He persuaded me to sign it; had I known I would have insisted on these supplements.

Q. Mr. Fendler, another question. Do you believe that the record of the interrogation shows that explanations were made which must now be in the hands of the Prosecution?

A. I am not sure of that at all. During my interrogation I had to find repeatedly that the secretary either on instructions of the interrogator or simply because she could not keep up with the speed, did not keep up and I had to repeat some matters. I don't know, therefore, whether this particular passage was included with all the clarity and detail necessary in the record about my interrogation. I can only say that I described this point to Mr. Wartenberg in great detail as I shall try here myself now in order to clarify any misunderstandings.

Q. Please, do so.

A. During my assignment, as I emphasized before, I was never fully authorized deputy of the Chief and in practice I was never responsible for all the functions of the Kommando. During the whole time of my assignment, the Kommando Chief Hermann, was never absent for any length of time from the Kommando. I myself remember only one occasion when he was absent for more than one day from the Kommando. At that time the Kommando was in a village because they could not move on because of heavy rains which made the roads unusable. The Kommando chief himself at the time was with a staff near the Kommando. While the Kommando Chief was absent for a few hours or a day there was no deputy appointed by him. For the work in the various fields the expert on each field acted as his deputy in their field and had to make their decisions on their own, independently. They were responsible for these decisions, for what the Commando Chief did. That is how it was handled in the Reich office as well when no permanent deputies had been appointed. The senior officer, if it became necessary, represented the Kommando to others and and in case of an emergency he was in charge of the Kommando.

Except Chief be handed on.

The senior officer present in such a case did not have full commanding power then.

I must add here that very often I

Q. Your Honor, at this point I would like to refer to a few graph and page 29 of the top. This is the affidavit by Heyer who at this point confirms the explanation given by the witness.

Also I would the paragraph before the last on this page; I quote:

"It is not known to me that Fendler was deputy of the Kommando Commander; he did not appear as such in reports or group conferences."

I also want to refer Beginning on page 24, the last paragraph, I would like to read.

I quote:

"Sturmbannfuehrer Hermann was the Commanding Officer of the Einsatzkommando.

So far as I remember, he was never absent from the this time he was neither ill nor on leave.

Hermann never had a deputy Hermann."

I would like to mention here that Martens was in the same third paragraph on this page.

I must correct myself, your Honor, the is, Department 4?

A. No, the departments were independent. Department 4, in order

Q. Who made out the reports about the entire activity of Commando 4 B which was sent to Einsatzgruppe 4 C?

A. This task was handled by the Commander personally on the basis of the reports which his experts gave him for this purpose.

Q. Do I understand you correctly that you had nothing to do with the drafting of the reports on the overall activity of the Einsatzkommando?

A. Yes.

Q. Were these activity reports which the Commander Hermann made brought to your knowledge?

A. No.

Q. Your Honor, at this point I would like to refer to paragraph in the affidavit Koenig on page 22 of my document book. I would like to read the first paragraph into the record; I quote: "The Security Service reports or other information collected and assembled by Fendler and myself went, through Kommando Commander Hermann, to the official in charge of Security Service matters at Einsatzgruppe C. On the other hand, Kommando Commander Hermann made up the general activity reports of Einsatzkommando 4 B himself, without exception. He did not, however, make these reports available to the specialists, so that these did not know their content." As Chief of 3 could you give instructions to Department 4?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever receive an order to carry out an execution?

A. No.

Q. Did you yourself ever give an order to carry out an execution?

A. No.

Q. Not even as a Liaison Officer to the Wehrmacht?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever attend an execution?

A. No.

Q. Did you find out in the assignment about executions which the Commando 4 B carried out because that executions occurred in 4 B you will not doubt since you have seen reports of events here in the meantime.

A. When we were in Lemberg at the end of July 1941?

Q. Yes, 1941.

A. The Commander Leader announced that orders had been given to the Commando when carrying out the general security tasks to proceed in the severest manner against the bearers of Bolshevism and if necessary to execute them. Similar directives for similar treatment of Commissars, agents, looters, saboteurs were allegedly given to the Wehrmacht. It was also said that for the East military law did not apply and in its place it was left to every officer to make his own decisions. He, the Commander Chief, reserved the right for Einsatzkommando 4 B for all executions which might become necessary. During the assignment I heard that Sondercommando 4 B did carry out executions, but I did not get any information how many persons were involved or what king of persons they were.

COURT II CASE IX BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. You say you did not get any official information. Did you get any unofficial information as to the number of people executed?

A. I learned from hearsay that executions occurred. I remember at the moment only one case that a figure was mentioned to me. It is possible that I know at the time, that I heard about it, that I have forgotten in the meantime.

Q. How many people did they say were executed?

A. In that one case, to which I just referred, 20 to 30 persons were mentioned. BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. Herr Fendler, do you refuse to confess that people were executed merely because of their race or because of their political convictions?

A. Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: I don't understand the phraseology of your question, Dr. Fritz. You sounded almost like a prosecuting attorney with that question: Do you refuse to confess.

DR. FRITZ: No, no. What I asked the witness, Your Honor, was whether he himself declined to believe, whether he agreed to it that persons were executed in the East merely because of their race or political convictions.

THE PRESIDENT: Why put it in such a complicated way? Just ask him directly, did he know that people were being executed because of their race.

DR. FRITZ: There is a difference, your Honor. I want to hear about his attitude concerning these executions.

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't quite grasp the question the way you put it the first time. We will see what happens now.

COURT II CASE IX BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. Herr Fendler, did you agree that in the East at the time people were executed by the Einsatzkommandos only because of their race, because they were Jews or, for example because of their political convictions. What was your inner attitude?

A. No, I deny this.

THE PRESIDENT: No, it isn't clear Dr. Fritz because the question mingles the factuality with the spirituality of it. Why not find out first if he knew that Jews were being executed because they were Jews; then find out if he approved of that policy; then you can go into his inner soul. BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. Herr Fendler, you heard the question the President asked. Did you hear about the fact that persons were executed in the Eastern territory merely because of their race, or political convictions? A. I heard about it after the assignment. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. You knew of the Fuehrer order?

A. No, your Honor. BY DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, I shall come to this in my further examination. Your Honor, in this connection I would like to refer to the affidavit Koenig on page 22 of my document book. It is in the third last paragraph and I quote:

"In the executions which were carried out on the order of Kommando leader Hermann by the Executive Department (category IV), as far as I know Fendler never participated; nor did he ever arrange any of these. He would, furthermore, not have been either authorized or empowered to do this."

Q. Herr Fendler, in the afternoon session of 30 September 1947 when the Prosecution talked about your case, they referred to the following documents. First of all in Document Book 2-A, NO 2938; that was on page 81 of the English text, page 79 of the German text, Prosecution Exhibit No. 44. The passage concerned is on page 14 of the original. Also in Document Book 2-C, document NO 2934, page 49 of the English text, page 52 of the German text, Prosecution Exhibit No. 79. In the original the passage referred to is on page 5; and also in the Document Book 2-A. NO 3155, page 44 of the English, page 40 of the German text. Prosecution Exhibit No. 38. The passage concerned here is on page 4 of the original. In these documents, Herr Fendler, the executive activity of Sonder kommando 4 B in Tarnopol and Krementchug is reported on. Your own affidavit shows that you were in those locations. I now ask you, did you take any part in the executions and excesses which took place about which the document reports?

A. No; I had nothing at all to do with it; these events, just as well as all of these events mentioned by the Prosecution I have seen here for the first time. I don't know either what the Kommando leader reported at the time about the events in Tarnopol and Krementschug. I heard at the time that in Tarnopol and Krementschug. I heard at the time that in Tarnopol and Krementschug executions were carried out.

Q. Did you hear about the extent and the reasons for these executions in the reports shown of the events?

A. I can only say that I heard about it in Krendogla, which I mentioned before that the Kommando in Tarnopol shot 20 to 30 persons. I cannot give a more detailed COURT II CASE IX explanations about figures?

A. I only know that in Krementschug shortly before the Kommando left for Poltawa an execution was carried out. What kind of persons they were and how many they were I can't say. The Prosecution on 30 September as well as also on the 3rd, in Document Book 2-G, Document No. 2830, which is on page 25 of the English and page 23 of the German text, Prosecution Exhibit No. 72; on page 18 of the original it says, and I quote:...

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't get the English page, Dr. Fritz.

DR. FRITZ: Page 25, your Honor. I will read the quotation:

"The garrison of Sonderkommando 4b is stationed at Poltawa, according to a report dated 16 October 1941." paragraph soon after the passage just read that the Kommando 4b from 4 October 1941 to 10 October 1941 executed 186 persons.

Q. Were you still in the Einsatz during that time?

A. No, on 13 September -- it must have been 1941, that is -in Sonderkommando 4B the Einsatzgruppe received an order from Berlin that the candidates for the leading service including myself were to report back in Berlin on 1 October. The order had been delayed obviously at the gruppe and I left the kommando then on 2 October and travelled via Kiev and Lemberg to return to Berlin where I arrived on 6 or 7 October.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honors, in order to support the statement of the defendant Fendler, I would like to refer to affidavits again. The first one is the affidavit Heyer, page 27 of my document book. There it, says in the second paragraph from the second sentence -and I quote: "I met him again in the East in Poltawa on 2 October 1941. At that time Herr Fendler and I, as well as other candidates for the leading service, had been ordered back from the Einsatz and we were on the return journey, on 2nd to 4th of October. I travelled by express coach back to Berlin while Herr Fendler went on into Reich territory by train." graph in the affidavit Koenig, page 22 of my document book, which also confirms that at the end of September 1941 Fendler had been relieved from the Einsatz assignment -- document 9, in the last paragraph of the affidavit.

I also offer at this point the affidait Brass, Document No. 13 on page 34 of my document book. I offer it as Fendler Exhibit No. 12and I refer to the second paragraph whereat the witness says that Fendler at the beginning of Octoner visited him. That was 1941. which I have already submitted, also the last paragraph of 32. It is on page 32 of the document book. This last paragraph shows the same, what Fendler has testified at this point.

Q. What did you do after you returned from the Einsatz assignment?

A. After my return from the assignment, I continued to study law at the university in Berlin. In the year of 1942 I passed my Referendar Exam. After that, as a Referendar, in order to do my duty and practice, I came to the county counselor in Waldenburg in Silesia to the government of the Liegnitz. In August 1943 I passed the major State Examination and became government counselor, government assessor.

Q. Where were you active after passing this final examination and having passed the training you just mentioned?

A. In September 1943 I was transferred from Office I of the RSHA to which I had belonged until that time to Office VI in the RSHA

Q. How long were you there?

A. Until the collapse.

Q. In Office VI you dealt with the political information servie from abroad, was it?

A. Yes.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honors, the tasks of Office VI have already been explained by other defendants. Apart from that, Schellenberg in his affidavit of 12 July 1946 in the IMT gave explanations about this. to assist the Tribunal. I have included Schellenberg's affidavit into my document book. The affidavit has the document number SD-61 and I offer it as Fendler Exhibit No. 13.

THE PRESIDENT: What page is that on?

DR. FRITZ: 636.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, the prosecution would like to object to this document in this connection as entirely immaterial. This document is going to be introduced obviously to show that the Department, No. VI, of the SD was not a criminal organization.

According to the judgment of the International Military Tribunal, Department VI is precisely named among the departments of the SD which were considered by the International Military Tribunal to be criminal organizations. The verdict of Control Council Low No. 10 makes it absolutely clear that in this respect the decision of the International Military Tribunal is binding. Therefore, it seems to me that defense counsel for defendant Fendler tries to introduce proof as to the criminality of this special department and this seems to be immaterial in this case. Only the membership of the defendant Fendler to Department VI can be contested by the defense. It can be further contested that he had knowledge of criminal acts committed by the organization but the fact that Department VI was criminal cannot be contested before this Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: What have you to say that, Dr. Fritz?

DR. FRITZ: Your Honors, I limit myself exclusively to the person of the defendant Fendler.

THE PRESIDENT: You can show that he was either not amember of that organization or that being a member of the organization he was entirely ignorant of its criminal operations, but you cannot contest what is now res judicata, that that organization has been declared a criminal organization.

DR. FRITZ: I do not intend to do that by introducing this documtnt, Your Honor. I only wanted to talk about the general activity of Office VI, for the convenience of the Tribunal. That is why wanted the affidavit to be introduced in my document book. It has nothing to do with the question whether Military Tribunal No. II is bound to the decision of the IMT.

THE PRESIDENT: We will permit the document only for the purpose of enlightening the Tribunal on the knowledge of the defendant that this organization was conducting criminal operations.

BY DR. FRITZ:

Q. Since other defendants also talked about the tasks of Office VI, I ask you. Herr Fendler, just to describe briefly your arm activity in Office VI.

A. With the assistance of confidential non, I had to obtain secret and official matters in time by means of a certain information service about the political and economical situation in the countries Spain and Portugal and about the other foreign countries inasfar as such information could be obtained in these countries. Also it was my task to make the necessary technical arrangements and to maintain them, which was necessary in order to get this information. The information obtained inas far as it concerned Spain and Portugal, they revaluated in my department and were compiled into reports, according to periods or as required. These reports I submitted to my group leader and he handed them over to Office VI; that is, Schellenberg. These persons decided how these reports were going to be used.

Q. You were only responsible, then for obtaining and working on reports?

A. Yes, I had to give a picture of the situation as objectively as possible and about the symptoms of the development of the political and economic development in those countries.

Q. Did you have anything to do with Keeping a check on foreigners or Germans in Germany and abroad in order to persecute them by the police?

A. No, my assistants had no executive power, nor did I.

Q. Did you have the task to organize the NSKAP abroad?

A. No.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honors, at this point I would like to introduce three more affidavits. I offer the affidavit of the witness Neubourg on page 49 of the document book as Fendler Exhibit 14. I would refer to the contents.

I also offer the next affidavit in the Document book page 51. That is Fendler Document No. 15, an affidavit by Elizabeth Custodius. I offer it as Fendler Exhibit No. 15. I also refer to the contents and, finally, I offer the next affidavit, page 55 of the document book by the witness Bernhard, Document No. 16 Exhibit No 17. I refer to the contents as well

Q. How long were you in Office VI, Herr Fendler?

A. Until the collapse, May 1945.

Q. While you were working in the SD did you ever have to fulfill missions or did you have to carry out acts which violate the internationally recognized rules of warfare or which might be considered inhumane?

A. No.

Q. Was your membership in the SD after the war broke out -voluntary?

A. No, I had been deferred for service in the SD; that is, at the beginning of the war I had received a note. In my pay book a note was contained that in case of war I was to serve in the SD. Not obeying this order would have been punishable by court martial; I beg your pardon, military law.

THE PRESIDENT: That is one time where court martial is correct. I think that is the first time it was used correctly and now you don't want to keep it.

A. Because at this service I could not leave this job voluntarily as has been described reportedly; your application to be released to the fighting forces was subject to punishment.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honors, the personnel file of the defendant Fendler in the Document Book III-C -- that is Document NO 4958, page 56 of the English, page 92 of the German text, Prosecution Exhibit 143 -- this persnnel file shows on the first page of the original some incorrectness concerning dates.

Inasfar as these inconsistencies are of importance here, I would like to address a few questions to the defendant Fendler.

Q. In the German Document Book the date of joining the SS is given 15 April 1947. In the English text they give 15 April 1933. In the photostatic copy of your personal file I cannot see any such entry. In your own affidavit, which is in Document Book III-C, Document NO-4144, Exhibit 142 of the prosecution, page 55 of the English text, page 89 to 90 of the German text, there it says on page 1 of the original under figure 2 -- and I quote: "In the year 1933 I joined the SS."

What is the truth of the matter concerning your entry in the SS?

A. May I correct the figure of a year here which was just given incorrectly? It says in the document book in German here not 1947 but 1937. In the year 1933, in the Forst/Niederlausitz I applied to be allowed to join the General SS. In the fall of 1933 I was tranferred into the SS Reserve as a candidate in Breslau because I had resumed my studies there in the meantime. As I have already mentioned, from 1934 until 1935 I served as a soldier. When I was released from the army I heard that my application for admission in the General SS had become obsolete because I had not done any service since 1933. I, therefore, was never a member of the Allgemeine SS, only when admitted into the SS formation called the SD in the Spring of 1936 I was admitted into the SS. The date of admission, therefore, is wrong both in the English and German; in the German document books and in my own affidavit it is missing and I want to add here that in 1944 I joined as a canidate.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, inasmuch as the date can be ascertained only from the exhibit, neither from the German nor from the English mimeographed copy, I would respectfully request that the Tribunal advise the secretary-general to bring the exhibit into the courtroom after the recess.

THE PRESIDENT: The secretary-general is so informed.

Q. Concerning your promotion to SS Sturmbannfuehrer in the German document book, this is not mentioned at all. In the English document Book this promotion is mentioned as 9 November 1944. In the photostatic copy of your personal file I also cannot find any such entry. I, therefore, ask you when were you promoted to SS Sturmbannfuehrer?

A. On 13 January 1945.

Q. Why did you apply in the year 1933 for admittance in the SS? A. At the time I was 20 years old and I had no political experience. I shared the hope of many Germans that the German people would be led towards better times and as a young person I decided to join this movement, being an idealist. Therefore, like many of my other sport comrades in those days, I had applied for admittance in this affiliation of the Party.

Q. Your were a member of the NSDAP since 1937?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever hold any office in the Party?

A. No, I was only a nominal Party member.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honors, I have finished my direct examination of the defendant Fendler.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until one-fortyfive.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 1345 hours.)

(The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 13 December 1947.

DR. KRAUSE (DEPUTIZING FOR DR. RIEDIGER FOR THE DEFENDANT HAENSCH): witness Fendler concerning the fact that the witness belonged to the same Sonder-kommando, which later on, that is, in the year 1942, was under the command of Haensch for a time.

THE PRESIDENT: Please do. BY DR. KRAUSE (DEPUTIZING FOR DR. RIEDINGER FOR THE DEFENDANT HAENSCH):

Q. Witness, I understood you to say tat you belonged to the kommando right from the beginning of the Eastern campaign.

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And you went with the kommando as far as Poltawa, is that right?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. When the kommando advanced, did they also pass the places, Shitomir, Rowno, and Vinnitsa?

A. The Kommando 4B, while advancing in the time while I was with the kommando, only passed across Vinnitsa.

Q. When was this? If you do not know the exact time, please tell me approximately.

A. It must have been about the last week of July when the kommando arrived there.

Q. Did the kommando stay there?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell us approximately how long they stayed there?

A. As far as I remember -- the Reports of Events could not help me to reconstruct this -- it must have been the matter of eight to ten days.

Q. Do you know whether detachments of the kommando while advancing further stayed behind in Vinnitsa or in the vicinity of Vinnitsa?

A. No, certainly not. I know that the entire Sonderkommando 4B left Vinnitsa.

Q. Did Sonderkommando 4B while advancing to Poltawa, as you told us, did they always stay together?

A. How do you mean that, did they always stay together?

Q. At no stage of the advance were any detachments of the kommando left behind at any localities.

A. No, I do not know of that.

Q. At a later time, when they advanced further, were parts left behind in the rear Army territory?

A. No, I do not know that.

Q. In Vinnitsa or the vicinity of Vinnitsa, did the kommando have any connections with that town at a later time?

MR. HORLICH-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, it would be necessary to specify this question a little bit more as to the time. I do think it is clear that the witness can only testify as to the time he was there and if he has information other than at the time he was there, he may state how he got it.

DR. KRAUSE: A moment please. The translation did not come through.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, what Mr. Hochwald has said is that you should indicate the period of time that you are asking about.

DR. KRAUSE: It always only the period until October 1941; that is about the time when the witness was with the Kommando SK-4B. I am not asking him about any other period.

THE WITNESS: Until the 2d of Oct. 1941, that is the day when I left the kommando in Poltawa.

Q. (By Dr. Krause) Yes, of course. The question was whether the kommando during your time, that is up to 2 October 1941, during their further advance, kept in contact with locations left in the meantime, Vinnitsa in particular.

A. I only remember that from Poltawa, which you just mentioned, an officer once travelled back to Kirowograd in order to talk to a confidential agent there with whom he had worked for a long time, in order to contact this man. A certain personal relationship had developed and that is the only case I remember. I cannot say anything concerning Vinnitsa.

Q. Thank you. Now a final question to you: Can you tell us to whom the tasks of the kommando were handed over as soon as the kommando left a certain garrison and went further cast?

A. Well, I cannot make a general statement about this. As I already said in my direct examination, the only person who had full command over the kommando was the kommando leader himself. Of course, it could occur that when the kommando was being transferred from one locality to another the kommando leader travelled in advance and that he gave a mission to one of the other officers to be in charge of the kommando while on route from one locality to another. That happened.

Q. The question which I put to you was this: If the entire kommando moved from one location, say, Vinnitsa, and if no one remained behind form the kommando there, who took over the tasks which the kommando had dealt with until then, in the location Vinnitsa which had been left, the security tasks in particular?

A. Vinnitsa is a special case. On the whole it was like this: When the kommando moved, no new forces followed who took over the tasks. If I may say so, a vacuum remained for the work, that is, during the time of my advance. This was general experience which I had in the assignment, there were two exceptions: One concerns Lemberg where Kommando 5, as has already been said, and Kommando 6 moved in after us. When they had moved in, we left Lemberg again and the second case is Vinnitsa.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel, is this what you want?

DR. KRAUSE: Yes.

A. (Continued) The second case in Vinnitsa. Sonderkommando 4B was relieved by Einsatzkommando 6 in Vinnitsa.

Q. Thank you.

A. Or say I just add that I don't know whether it was the entire Einsatzkommando or whether it was only a detachment of 6. I don't know.

Q. A final question. Do you know whether, in the locations which you left, very soon commanders of the Security Police and the SD followed, or how much time elapsed before these commanders arrived there?

A. I cannot say anything about this from my own experience.

DR. KRAUSE: Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: Does any other defense counsel desire to crossexamine the witness? If not, Mr. Hochwald will proceed with the crossexamination for the prosecution.

MR. HORLICH-HOCHWALD: If Your Honors, please, before I start with the cross-examination, I would like to present to the Tribunal and to Dr. Fritz the photostat of the document which was in question this morning, the personal file of Fendler.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. HORLICH-HOCHWALD: I shall ask Dr. Fritz to look through the magnifying class and tell the Tribunal whether he can read the entry.

DR. FRITZ (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT FENDLER): Yes, Your Honor. My photostatic copy is so poor that I cannot see anything at all, but here I can see with the magnifying glass the date 15 April 1933. The figure "33" however, can hardly be seen.

MR. HORLICH-HOCHWALD: Does that satisfy the Tribunal?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, very well. The record will indicate what has transpired.

BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD:

Q. Herr Fendler, you have just testified that in Vinnitsa Einsatzkommando 4B was replaced by Einsatzkommando 6, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell the Tribunal when that was?

A. I cannot tell you the exact date, unfortunately. It must have been in the last days of July, 1941.

Q. Thank you very much.

A. Or the beginning of August, possibly.

Q. When you entered the SD, that was in 1937, was it not?

A. 1936.

Q. 1936. Your decision to enter this organization then was entirely voluntary, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. Am I correct in assuming that you were deferred for SD service when war broke out?

A. Yes, I believe that I was drafted even before the outbreak of the war. I do not have this any more and therefore cannot give the exact date.

Q. Is it correct, Herr Fendler, that you were deferred for this SD service for the simple reason that you already had been previously a member of the SD, is that correct?

A. That is possible.

Q. You do not know that?

A. I was never told this. I could only say concerning the general situation, the situation at the time. Even now when I look back at it, I believe that I an justified in drawing that conclusion because the Security Police had a lack of personnel and especially in war time the were interested in retaining and keeping their trained experts at their disposal.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal whether other people who had not been active in the SD as voluntary members were deferred when war broke out to the SD service or whether that was only a measure which was taken in cases of people who already had been active in the SD?

A. I don't quite get that.

Q. Whether you know a case in which somebody was deferred for SD service when war broke out without having been a member of the SD previous to that time?

A. I heard that at the outbreak of war so-called honorary assistants existed, who were deferred for the SD because they could not be spared in the future work.

Q. But they had, as a matter of fact, already been honorary collaborators before that time, hadn't they, I mean honorary collaborators of the SD?

A. That was not necessary, Mr. Prosecutor. It wasn't necessary, If I may explain this, after the outbreak of war, it did occur that a man was declared indispensible from the SD. An economic chief, for example, could be accepted after war broke out. They were interested in has further colaboration and saw to it he was not sent to the front but would be at their disposal to work in the SD.

Q. That is not my question. The question was: Do you know if somebody, when war broke out or before war broke out, was deferred for SD service without having been a member or honorary collaborator of the SD previous to the outbreak of the war -- do forget what happened during the war. I am only asking what happened before the war, when you were deferred, at that time when you were deferred to the SD.

A. I did not hear of any such case, but I do not want to exclude the possibility.

Q. You have told the Tribunal that actually you never were a member of the General SS. You do not want to say by that that you never were a member of the SS, I presume, is that correct?

A. I merely wanted to say, Mr. Prosecutor, that I never was a member of the Allgemeine SS, the General SS, as you just said. When joining the SD, that is, the joining of the SS Special Formation called SD, I be came a member of the large organization SS, in that way only.

Q. When you were a candidate for the leading service, did you go to the training school of which the Defendant Schulz was the commander?

A. No.

Q. You never were a member of this school?

A. May I explain this briefly? I cannot answer just yes or no to the question. As a pupil I was never a member of his training school. The course for the candidates for the leading service had nothing to do with the general training at the officers training school. Only officials for the intermediate and lower service were being trained there, but it is like this that a few members of the leading service, while studying at the university in Berlin simply did not find an apartment. Therefore the Officers Training School used another building, which was not attached to the school, it was an apartment house. They put apartments at their disposal. If I may so say. we lodged there.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal whether when you were sent home from your assignment in the East, whether it was with other members of the school at the same time and on the basis of the same order?

A. I believe so, yes, However, I must add immediately that apparently the date for reporting, 1 October, could not always be met because the individuals concerned heard about it too late, sometimes on purpose and sometimes accidently. Sometimes on purpose, because, as I have already said, the Einsatzgruppen kept the order back because they did not want to release the persons before they had been replaced.

Q. But it was on the basis of the same order, wasn't it?

A. Yes, on the basis of the same order about which the Defendant Schulz has already spoken.

Q. Herr Fendler, can you tell the Tribunal when did you hear first about the Fuehrer Order?

A. After the collapse, Mr. Prosecutor, in connection with the publications in the press concerning the proceedings in the IMT I heard about it that the Einsatzkommando were supposed to have killed certain groups of persons.

Only then after the indictment had been served when Mr. Ohlendorf indicated it and testified to that effect in the witness stand here in court I finally became certain that such an order did in fact exist and what the contents of this order were.

Q. During this time in the East and afterwards when you were in Department 6 of the RSHA you never heard, neither officially nor privately about the Fuehrer Order, is that correct?

A. Yes,

Q. You heard about an order which was given to you in Lemberg, if I understood your testimony correctly, by Hermann, who told all the officers in the Sonderkommando?

A. Yes, he did not hand it on, he announced it, if I may say so.

Q. He informed you about it?

A. Yes, he informed us about it

Q. He did not tell you at that time that there was an order by the highest commander who fixed the tasks of the Einsatzgruppen as to the executions of Jews and Gypsies, and A-socials. He did not tell you that?

A. No, not in that form, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q. What exactly did Hermann tell you during this meeting about the execution of Jews?

A. He said that as part of carrying out the general security tasks, of which the commandos in the East were in charge the severest measured would have to be applied against the bearers of the Soviet System. Here in particular I would like to say in the civilian sphere concerning the Einsatzkommandoes, the Bolshevist functionaries and the Jews were considered the most important bearers of Bolshevism.

Q. That was all he said?

A. In this connection he also explained several Wehrmacht regulations and that martial law would not be applied any more. I beg your pardon, there is something important I left out here, he said that mass executions would have to be carried out if necessary but in Sonderkommando 4B he would make all the decisions.

Q. What did you understand when you heard what would happen then to the Jews and the Communists on the basis of this order. Did you understand on the basis of this order that the Jews and Communists were to be killed?

A. I understand it to mean that they could be killed if the situation required it. In this case the situation meant the security. It was never intended nor did I understand it to mean that everyone of them was going to be killed, without examining individual cases.

Q. What did you understand, that the great part, or the greater Part of the Jewish Population was to be killed on the basis of this order?

A. No, I don't understand it to mean that, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q. What did you understand then by the word "necessity" which you used just now in your explanation. You must have had some idea what would make it necessary to kill these people, under which circumstances it would be necessary to kill these people?

A. At the time I didn't have a general conception of this fact. I thought that according to the circumstances, according to the local situation which the Sonderkommando found, orders which the commandoleader might receive from other agencies, would then have to be decided upon by him, and he would decide which of these persons would have to be killed. Q. I understand that. What I want to learn form you is whether you ever did entertain any idea under which circumstances the circumstances would and could make it necessary according to this order to kill the people. Did you ever have in mind if that or that would happen, it would be necessary to kill the people? Did you understand the order in that way, that they would have to have committed first a crime against the security of the German Wehrmacht before it would be permitted to kill them according to the order -the officer had to decide, that is what you said, but, I would like to know whether you had an idea under which circumstances an officer was entitled to order an execution of these people?

A. At the time I thought that a definite state of affairs would have to exist to justify the execution of the groups of persons concerned. That is what I thought.

Q. You mean by that, an investigation of a suspected person which resulted in the proof that he was guilty?

A. Yes, I had that conception.

Q. But you knew as a matter of fact that there was no trial contemplated; that on the contrary, any form of trial was excluded by this order?

A. I knew that, Mr. Prosecutor, but I may add here that there were two elements which caused strong reaction when we heard about this order. The first fact was that it would be the teak of the commando, as part of the Security Police tasks which they had to handle, to carry out the execution of persons captured who endangered the security, and the second fact was the realization that the procedure itself was considered too summary.

Q. Do I understand you correctly that you were of the opinion that there was an insufficient safeguard for the suspected person, as there was no trial, that his rights as a defendant were not sufficiently safeguarded. Is that what you want to say, that that was your opinion; was that your opinion?

A. That was my theoretical opinion, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q. This order about which we spoke just now you received in Lemberg, it was at the end of June, was it not?

A. In Lemberg, yes.

Q. It was the end of June?

A. Yes, approximately.

Q. Sometime later, during the other three months you were in the East, it was the general practice of the Einsatzgruppen to kill all Jews?

A I can not say this quite like that. I would like to give an explanation about this. During the assignment I heard, it must have been about the middle of August, when the Commando-leader returned from a discussion with the Einsatzgruppe Shitomir, at the time that he was rather shocked and depressed, and said that he had been reproached because the Einsatzcommando IV-B had carried out too few executions, and he, the commando-leader, when being thus reproached, had had the feeling that they judged the efficiency of a commando according to the figures of persons executed by the commando. efficient commander of Einsatzcommando, or Sondercommando, if many executions were carried out by his unit. Is that what you want to say, is it not? Einsatzgruppe. Herrmann. Was it the commander of Einsatzgruppe C?

A I am not quite sure of this. I don't know whether I just don't remember it, or whether he didn't even tell me at the time. I only know and I can only remember generally in that connection that he described the government expert Hoffmann as a savage who held such an opinion. alone, without the support of the leader of the Einsatzgruppe - that is right - to live such information to a Sonderkommando-leader, when Hoffmann was subordinate to the leader of the Einsatzgruppe, or would he have to have had the approval and even the order of the commander of the Einsatzgruppe. Do you think that Hoffmann alone could have done such a thing? gruppe Chief, nor Hoffmann talked to me about that sufficiently on the subject.

Am I correct in assuming that from that time on you knew the Jews and other undesirables were indiscriminately killed by the different units of the Einsatzgruppe and Einsatzgruppe C?

A No, I didn't know that much. tion you received from Herrmann in August? What did you think he wanted to convey to you?

A He didn't have any special intentions in this. He mereley expressed his worry.

Q How did you understand his expression? What did you understand by that when he told you that it was his impression that only such a leader was considered a good leader of a Sonderkommando who executed many people? Didn't you find out then that it was not a question whether somebody was builty or not in order to be executed. It was rather a question that somebody was for some reason undesirable, that would have been the reason for execution? Did you find it out then?

A No. May I explain this in more detail. I said already that the procedure as such was considered rather summary insofar as for the officer who decided in special cases had only the alternative either, the man is going to be shot, or he is not going to be shot, and I said, when Herrmann informed us of the order in Lemberg, it was said very unambiguously, or at least that is how I understood it, that it would have to be decided in each individual case. It was, therefore, up to the commando leader, and such an explanation by Herrmann I could only understand to mean that this scope of decisions was being handled in too generous a manner. form Shitomir, up to the time he returned to Berlin, which was in the beginning of October 1941, did you learn, as a matter of fact, that Jews were killed deliberately, and that there was no decision in any single case; that these people were just killed for the simple reason that they were Jews and for no other reason, and that there was, of course, no decision on the part of the officer necessary in the individual cases.

Did you learn that sometime during the time that you in the East?

A No, I'll just describe to you briefly what I heard after leaving the commando and returning to Berlin. During my trip back I stayed in Kiev for one right, and there I heard at the group - I can not say any more who told me, certainly it was not Hoffmann, that during those days in Kiev large scale executions had taken place, mostly of Jews. At the time this was based on the fact that this was a retaliation measure against the large dynamiting actions and arson which hand occurred after the Bolsievists left Kiev. Later on I heard in Lemberg where I also spent one night that a large scale shooting of Jews had taken place. At the time these shootings were also connected with another event, namely, the murders the Bolshevists had committed before leaving, about which the defendant Schulz has spoken. At the time I think there were 7,000 persons concerned who had been murdered in the prison by the Bolshevists, at the time. from Poltawa, or when you came to Lemberg on you way to the East with the group?

Q That must have been then one of the last days of June?

A Or one of the first days of July. The first days of July. Unfortunately I could not reconstruct this from the report of events, and I didn't have any other calendars.

executions according to you memory, which was in Tarnopol, is that right?

A No, I didn't say that, Mr. Prosecutor.

Q What was it?

Q Yes? more executions during the time that you were with Sondercommando IV-B but only in one case you knew how many people approximately were killed, is that correct?

A I remembered that, yes. I still remember the figure.

Q How you can remember that? carried out by Sondercommando IV-B in the time when you were with the commando, can you remember?

A May I think about it for a moment. I have had no time to prepare myself. There must have been six or seven instances. tely the three months you were with the commando? least some of these executions?

A Yes. I heard that these were saboteurs and looters. I also heard that Communist functionaries were being shot. I also heard that Jews were being shot, but I didn't hear that Jews were shot mereley because they were Jews.

Q Did you learn way these Jews were shot?

A No, not in each individual case. I assumed at the time they were shot because they had been connected in some events which endangered the security of the Army in the operational territory.

Q How many instances was it that Sonderkommando IV-B had done that?

A Seven. Seven, including the commando-leader.

Q Did you have personal contact with these officers?

A Well, I don't know to what extent.

Q were you on friendly terms with them?

A Not particularly friendly. It was a correct comradely relation.

Q Were you on friendly terms with Herrmann?

A No, certainly not. If I may explain this, the commando-leader Herrmann was a very secretive person, and rather a hermit who didn't look for company in others but avoided them. the time together with the seven officers, is that correct?

A One can not say this so briefly, Mr. Prosecutor. I travelled a great deal in order to deal with the jobs I had been given as an SD Expert. I had to contact as many persons as possible in order to receive the necessary information. It occurred that I was absent for one or two days, for example, on an occasion that I mentioned, as chief of an advanced commando; it also occurred that the others officers who were absent, because they were in charge of advanced commandos. other commandos, that Sonderkommando IV-B kept very much together. That you were not divided up into sub-units, and part-units, and, if such a sub-unit was formed for a special task, they immediately again returned after having carried out this special task, but if I understand you correctly the quarters of the whole commando was in one place, is that right? Either in Poltawa or in another place you have mentioned here?

A Yes; in general it was like that. often. Did never one ever tell you that it was the official duty of the Sonderkommando to kill Jews indiscriminately. I am not asking you now whether you got any official information about that. I ask whether you learned from one of your fellow officers, any one of them, if it was that way, was that the way?

Q No?

A No. No. different reports, you learned what the population was doing, didn't you?

A That depended. I would have been satisfied if I had been able to hear everything the population thought.

Q But you know more than other people, didn't you?

A I would like to say the following here. That it was very difficult in Russia to hear anything at all. The Russians were used to keeping very quiet about certain things, even more than it was the case in Germany. held about the activities of the Einsatzgruppe?

A no, I can not remember. If I may explain this. It really would have needed unusual courage by the Russians to tell us, after we had been there for about eight days, that they didn't like the way we treated them. had informers form the civilian part of the population, did you not, and they certainly told you what the other civilian part, who were not the informers, said about the Germans; did they not?

A May I say something about that, Mr. Prosecutor. In my SD work I could not use informers. An informer is a person who says something bad about another person or group. That is not what I wanted. Such a man goes to the police but does not go to a person who wants to gather information, say about economics or the administration of a city. I do think that part of the morale of the population is, undoubtedly, this part of their opinions. You must have known how the population reacted to the killings of Jews. There were people who certainly had an impression. It was a kind of terror and we know that in the Ukraine there were many anti-Semites. They were very likely happy that Jews were killed. There are documents before the Tribunal that show that, for instance, in the Crimea. So you would have learned how the population reacted to these killings, favorably or unfavorably. You never heard anything about this?

A I did not hear of any such cases. If I may explain this further, Mr. Prosecutor, I think this is owing to the fact that our general information was too incomplete. I do not doubt that these reports would have come to my knowledge, if I had remained in that locality some weeks or months and conducted regular information service with a permanent staff and confidential agents. But, in the eight days one may have stayed in one location this was not possible except for coincidences or chance but this did not occur as far as I know.

Q May I ask now something else. You were the second highest ranking officer in Sonderkommando IV-B, is that correct? not represent him, you were not this deputy, but that in everyone's sphere of work the designated expert had to decide for himself when the commander was not there. That means, in other words, you in SD matters and the men who was in charge of Department IV, in Gestapo matters, executivematters?

Is that right? that Herrmann was away either for hours or for a day. in charge of Department IV were away at the same time? executive field, in the field of Department IV, the order to shoot somebody or people, or the order to arrest some people, or an order regarding executive measures, to whom would it have been left to order this measure? the other SS-Obersturmfuehrer who present who acted as deputy for executive measures because he was an expert on such matters.

Q That was an Officer?

Q Would not that have been your task?

A No. Apart from the face, Mr. Prosecutor, if I may add thisyou talked about executions. I doubt here whether this is a case which we can consider as an example - a person who was to be shot, say it is quite obvious in that case and would not depend on waiting until the Kommando leader would return in two hours or the same evening.

Q Might well have happened? It would have been against security measures to take the boy with you. You have told the Tribunal yourself that it happened that the Kommando leader sometimes left the Kommando and left the marching orders to a deputy.

It could have happened in such a time that such a case would arise - anyhow it is a hypothetical question and it would not have been your task so I do not think you need to go into that much further. I to Department VI of the RSHA?

Q Can you tell us why this transfer was carried out? training as candidate for the leasing service. Therefore, I held the lowest rank as a member of the leading service. Therefore, I returned to the expert field of the SD which I left during the time of my training and study. At the time inquiries were being made which tasks the individuals would like to work on. I myself was interested in the information from abroad. I therefore asked that I would be assigned to this, Office VI at that time needed people for this particularly and, therefore, I was sent to office VI. ties of the Einsatzgruppen which, as you have told the Tribunal in direct examination, did not like very much. You have also told me just now that you were shocked by the fact that it was a summary procedure and that your units were to carry out executions themselves. Did you ever, after having returned from the East, try to leave the SD service? forces. In every case I was refused, After 1944 it wasn't possible any more because having been ill I was no longer able to do service in the fighting forces. the SD and go into the Wehrmacht? Was it for the reason that you wanted to fight on the front or was it for the reason that you considered that your work with the SD was not a work you wanted, for instance?

I considered myself too young, before 1943, just to study while the others were fighting. And, secondly, after 1943, I considered myself too young to work in the staff in Berlin and not to be with the fighting forces. sidered the SD to be an organization which did things you did not like? You just wanted to leave the SD for patriotic reasons as you wanted to fight on the front, is that right? tion, if I may use that expression in this connection. and so on. Did you consider these measures about which you had learned in the East to be justified?

Q Did you consider them to be humane?

Q Nevertheless you did you not want to leave the SD for these reasons? Is that correct?

A Yes. If I may just explain this in one sentence, Mr. Prosecutor. I did not consider these things to be the affair of the SD. If I may explain this - in the Einsatzkommandos there were members from all parts of the SS working together. The SD itself held the smallest number among this. It was once worked out. I think it was only 38 and I knew from my own experiences, from my work until then, that executions and executive tasks were not being handled by the SD, that they merely handled information.

Q You have said that only 3% of the members of the Einsatzgruppen were members of the SD, is that correct, approximately?

A Yes. To explain this, not in the entire organization, but in the reporting section, that is a formation of the SS. members of the SD, most of the officers in the Einsatzgruppen?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor, if I may express it in that manner. Please excuse officers of the SD, were drafted into these Einsatzcommandos through unauthorized military power which actually had nothing to do with the SD as it had existed until then. It wasn't the initiative of these individual men and the work of these men in the Einsatzgruppen which is the subject being debated in this trial which resulted in the work done, but I don't know quite all the connections, whether Himmler or Heydrich were responsible for it.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will now take its afternoon recess for 15 minutes.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed.

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: documents in evidence which show that in a time when you were second highest ranking officer in Sonderkommando 4b, people werekilled in great numbers by this unit, and I would like you to lllok now at Document Book II-A. This is on page 81 of the English, your Honor. Document NO-2938, Prosecution's Exhibit No. 44. The quote to which I refer is on Page 81 under the heading, "Page 14 of the original". It reads: "The Einsatzkommando 4b is at work at present in the Tarnopol area. It is planned to have the Kommando proceed to Preskurow. Out of the 54 Poles and Jews who had been working as agents for the NKWD, 8 persons, two of them being Jewish woman, could be arrested and executed, the remainder having taken to their heels apparently." It goes on: " At Tarnolop also 10 soldiers were found to be among the murdered in the prison, one of them being a lieutenant of the air force, 6 pilots and 3 soldiers off the mountain troops. Of the Jews assigned to the excavation of the corpses, about 180 were slain, partly in the prison court, party in the streets. Moreover, Jewish residences were destroyed by members of the Waffen-SS with hand-grenades and set on fire." Did you know anything about the things reported in this situation report?

A May I clarify something about your introductory statement? I wasn't the second in command of the kommando.

Q You were second highest ranking officer, weren't you? kommando.

THE PRESIDENT: Who was the second in command?

THE WITNESS: There was no on in general.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if you are the second senior officer, who would be the second in command?

THE WITNESS: The second in command was that person who was appointed by the commander in each individual case.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, suppose he didn't appoint, suppose that the commander were killed, who would take over?

THE WITNESS: The senior officer present at that moment.

THE PRESIDENT: That would be you, wouldn't it?

THE WITNESS: That might have been me, yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, proceed.

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) Did you know, Herr Fendler, about the happenings which are described in this report? Paragraph 5, on Page 14 of the original of the 54 Poles and Jews who worked for the NKWD as agents, I heard about this here for the first time. assigned to the excavation of the corpses of the members of the German Wehrmacht and were killed partly in the prison court and partly in the streets? and the Ukrainian militia, directed against the Jews in Tarnopol.

Q Did you hear how many Jews were killed during these excesses? correct? by the Ukrainians, mostly by those who guarded this excavation work, that is the Ukrainians, and secondly, in the first hours of the occupation of Tarnopol, excesses also occurred done by the German troops against the Jews, because among the few hundred corpses, the figure of 500 is given in the reports, several German prisoners were found, which the Bolshevists, before they had left, had killed in a cruel manner.

The mutilated corpses were found. these excesses were Waffen-SS units? macht, particularly the Mountain Corps had taken part, because they were found as corpses in the prison. to supervise the excavations? Am I correct in assuming that that was a German agency who ordered these Ukrainians?

A In this particular case I cannot give you any information. I can only make a general statement and draw a personal conclusion. This Ukrainians militia or the regular police, they were called different names in various localities, were always under the command, as far as I heard, of the competent local town commandant to whom they were subordinated, who employed them as provisional police. about these happenings here, so may I assume then that you knew that Jews here were deliberately killed either by members of the German Wehrmacht or by members of the German Waffen-SS or by members of the Ukrainian militia which was nothing else than a submit of some German agency in these places, is that correct? are described here in this report, is that right? occur. out by agencies either of the German Wehrmacht or of the German WaffenSS or of the SD? and you knew that the killers of these 180 Jews were Ukrainian militia which were active under German supervision, did you not?

inally and whether actually somebody instigated this action. At the time I heard that spontaneous actions occurred which are to be regretted and I was sorrowful about that.

Q Who were the people who acted spontaneously? They were Germans and people who had authority from the Germans, is that correct? That means the Ukrainian militia, is that correct?

A No. As I just said, at the time when I heard about these things, I gained the impression, that no authority existed, but that these were merely excesses done by individuals who then, as it is usual on such occasions, increased, because they were not conducted and not corrected. Jews were killed, is that right?

A I did not hear of a great number. I did not hear any figure concerning this or concerning these excesses. The figures mentioned in the reports of events here I saw for the first time when I read these reports here, during the trial. you the story about these excesses, approximately how many Jews were killed during these excesses? about this.

executions. You have told us now a story about excesses so I would ask you whether you know or whether you were told how many Jews were killed during these excesses?

A I beg your pardon. It appears we have been talking on different subjects all the time. I only talked about the excesses. excesses.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: You will see in document book IIC, the document I am referring too your Honors, on Page 49 of the English. It is Document No-2934, Prosecution's Exhibit 78.

THE PRESIDENT: What book?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: II-C, on page 49. It is the first paragraph under the heading, "Einsatzkommando 4b". This is an operational situation report which is dated 16th of July - no, I am sorry, 11th of July, 1941, and it is reported here that Einsatzkommando 4b has finished its activity in Tarnopol. 127 executions. Parallel to that, liquidation of 600 Jews in the course of the persecutions of Jews as induced by the Einsatzkommando.

Q (BY Mr. HORLICK-HOCHWALD) Of about 127 executions, if I am not mistaken, you have told the Tribunal that you know only about twenty to thirty, is that correct? You do not know about the--

Q You don't know about the others, approximately one hundred? course of the persecution of Jews as induced by the Einsatzkommando? excesses referred to the statements made in this report here as well. I cannot make any statements about this.

were by no means spontaneous, as you have said, but that they were induced by the units of which you were the second highest officer, isn't that right? Prosecutor. I personally can only doubt its credibility.

Q Why? You have just told the Tribunal that you have no personal knowledge of it, so either you change this statement or you have no reason to doubt the correctness of this report. I have questioned you at great length, and you have said, "I do not know a thing, I do not know who carried it out; I do not know whether it was instigated; I do not know how many people were killed." Why, then, do you doubt a report which gives all the details about which you profess, just now, to have no knowledge? It can be right; cannot be right, because according to what you have said just a minute ago, you do not know it. Am I mistaken in that?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I don't think that the one testimony excludes the other one. I said that looking back at it now I doubt the correctness.

Q Why? cannot imagine it according to the character of the kommando chief, that he should have given such instructions or that he should have approved of such a thing if he had heard about this in time and could have stopped it, and secondly, I heard that the kommando leader expressly prohibited members of the kommando to take part in the excesses at all.

Q When did you learn that?

Q Why did you give this order?

Q Why did he give it?

in these excesses. Nevertheless, he issued an order telling them that it was not permitted to take part in it. Wouldn't it be more logical to assume that some, at least some of the members of the Einsatzkommando, the Sonderkommando, participated in them, and that the result, of this participation was the order by Hermann?

A No, I don't think so. This was how he cared for it.

Q Can you tell the Tribunal whether Hermann was in Pretsch? of leaders where Streckenbach handed down the order about the killing of the Jews? an order?

A During the time of my assignment "I heard nothing about it, which might have given me reason to assume this. he did know about the Fuehrer Order? If a kommando leader had received this order in Pretsch, then he did not have to hand on, of course.

Q But is it not very unlikely that he was ignorant of this order? You think that he --- Was he a priest?

A Please?

Q Was he a minister? Or was he an officer?

A Officers; by description I would call him an officer. He was not a soldier.

were to be killed, why should he have been a safeguard for you, that this order which is in accord with the Hitler Order, was not carried out? Why should he have reluctance to kill these 600 or 180 Jews? It was a part of the order to instigate pogroms, to instigate such excesses. The Defendant Ohlendorf has testified here on the stand that he was requested by the RSHA to instigate such pogroms, and that he refused to do so. Why should the person of a Sonderkommando leader be a safeguard, if that was not carried out in contradiction to this document?

A No, this would be a conclusion going too far. Mr. Prosecutor but I would like to add something here. If a kommando leader in this case - these are assumptions and conclusions of mine if a kommando leader had received the order in Pretsch, then he personally could have decided not to carry out this order to its full extent, but to limit it to that extent which he considered necessary in each individual case. His announcement in Lemberg was therefore accordingly. I shall also talk about this now because you indicated indicated it. If in Berlin, I bog your pardon, or rather in Pretsch, he received the order to instigate pogroms, I cannot say this from my own knowledge, because he did not talk about it, at least not with me, and if he did not want to do it, then the possibility existed for him that he reported to Berlin the fact that a pogrom had occurred in Tarnopol and described it in such manner as if it had been done on his initiative.

Q But from personal knowledge you don't know anything about it?

Q Will you turn now to Document Book II-A. This particular quote, your Honors, is on Page 44 of the document book. It is Document NO3144, Prosecution's Exhibit 38. It is said here that Special Kommando -

THE WITNESS: I beg your pardon, what page of the original, please?

Q (By Mr. Horlick-Hochwald) Under the heading "Einsatzgruppe", "Security Police Measures." Page 44 of the English, your Honors. The next to the last paragraph form the bottom, it says "Special Kommando 4b, in the period between 13 and 26 September, executed 103 political officials, 9 saboteurs and looters and 125 Jews were killed for the simple reason that they were Jews? Otherwise they would have been either labeled as political officials or as saboteurs or looters, or I do not know for what crime, but is it not patently clear from this report that these 125 people were killed for the simple reason that they were Jews? the possibility exists that these were Jews who actually connected with matters and events which would have listed them in the other categories as well, or classified them as such, but they were classified individually because perhaps it was required for the reports that in each individual case the Jews were to be classified separately.

Q. Did you participate in the drafting of the reports which were sent from your Sonderkommando to the Einsatzgruppe?

A. No, I talked here about an assumption.

Q. How did the reports from the Sonderkommando to the Gruppe, how were they drafted, how were they made? Am I correct in assuming that you made the SD reports to the Gruppe?

A. I made my reports to the Kommandofuehrer and he decided that they were used after that. In most cases he handed them on himself, that is, he handed a note to the Gruppe, or he handed them on to the Wehrmacht.

Q. Did you ever see such a report, that was made by the Kommanda Fuehrer?

A. An SD report?

Q. A complete report which was entered.

A. No, I don't think he made complete reports buy that does not cover individual reports so that he saved work; that material submitted by theexperts and the reports submitted by the experts he handed on was just a note or a covering letter or else he would have to require everything.

Q. If I want to sum up your testimony though, is it correct that you know and know that at a time when you were in the East the Jews were killed there in great numbers?

A. What do you mean by in great numbers?

Q. I understand you to have said the killing of 20 to 100 people is already a great number of people. Of course if you compare it with other numbers of situation reports we have heard here it might be possibly a smaller number but I just want to say approximately 50 or approximately 100 at a time?

A. I heard that Jews were being shot in the East at the time when I was with Sonderkommando 4 B.

Q. I want to turn now to your affidavit which is in Document Book 3-C, your Honors, on page 55, document NO 4144, Prosecution Exhibit 142.

Did you sign this affidavit, Mr. Fendler?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you swear to it, after reading it through?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have the opportunity to make changes in this affidavit?

A. Yes, and no, Mr. Prosecutor. A few important minor matters I think of corrections in typographical errors --were allowed me but a few additions which mattered to me and certain impressions which I wanted to clarify unfortunately I was not allowed to make.

Q. May I ask a simple question then. Why did you sign the affidavit?

A. Because I was no native.

Q. Were you under duress when you signed the affidavit?

A. Not while signing, no.

Q. Do you now want to say that you were under duress before the signing of the affidavit during the interrogation by Mr. Warterberg?

A. I would almost like to say that; not a physical duress.

Q. What kind of compulsion was it then?

A. Two kinds. Mr. Wartenberg first threatened me with more severe arrest, and secondly, he threatened me with extradition.

Q. Extradition to whom?

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. To whom?

A. He threatened to extradite me to the Czechs.

Q. Did you have a fear the extradition to the Czechoslovakian Government?

A. No, I told him that.

Q. So that was no duress?

A. I was not so sure whether I would be extradited even if I was not guilty at all.

Q. If you are not guilty and not extradited you are better off than here.

Here you are under indictment?

A. At the time I was not indicted; I only assumed that I was called here to be used as a witness. When signing this affidavit I did not know, as I have already said during my direct examination, that this would be used as evidence against me.

Q. Would you have changed your testimony in your affidavit if you would have known that you were to be indicted?

A. I would have completed it and clarified it in order to avoid misunderstandings.

Q. Did your counsel know about this fact which you have told the Tribunal just now when Mr. Wartenburg was interrogated here as a witness from the 6th to the 7th of October?

A. I don't know for certain whether at that time I had talked about it to my defense counsel Dr. Fritz; he only took over my defense a few days before the trial started.

Q. That was considerably later and it was made clear by the Tribunal to all defense counsel that Mr. Wartenberg would be at the disposal of defense counsel for cross examination just for one reason, in order to find out all the interrogations were conducted by him and how the affidavits were made out. I have checked the record today and I did not find any question which was put by your counsel to Mr. Wartenberg, the only competent witness present. Can you explain to the Tribunal when Mr. Wartenberg was at the disposal of defense counsel for cross examination?

A. If I remember correctly at the time I believe the Tribunal established that corrections or supplements on the contents could be made during the proceedings by each one of the defendants. I, on my part, had no reason to have Mr. Wartenberg questioned about this because at the moment I was satisfied telling myself there are no obvious mistakes or errors contained in the affidavit, but there are only a few explanations necessary in order to clarify matters and that I would have the opportunity to make the supplements finally as I tried to do during my direct examination today.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, may I give an explanation about this, since it is my duty as defense counsel. I don't know any more why whether I was absent on a journey - I didn't know that Mr. Wartenberg was being questioned and I wasn't present; secondly, these matters which Mr. Fendler just mentioned, I only heard about afterwards.

A I only heard about them afterwards.

He only told me he wanted to make

THE PRESIDENT: You have given an explanation as to why you weren't here when Mr. Wartenberg was ready for cross examination, BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD:

Q. Did I understand you then corectly that you say that tents of the affidavit are correct?

A. Except for a few supplements which I wanted to add, yes.

Q. You have been in Czechoslovakia, have you not?

A. Yes.

Q. You were in Olmuetz, is that correct?

A. Yes

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal where your office was located there?

A. Yes, in the first days the Commando was housed or rather Richard Wagner Square.

Then they were billeted in the building at the

Q. Is it true that in the same house of the Moravian Sugar factory there was also the Gestapo?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever learn while you were in Olmuetz what the Gestapo was doing there?

A. First I have to explain the following, that the small kommando of the SD, at the time as I said was in the same house under the same roof as the Gestapo, but they had a separate set of four rooms. This was some apartment with a separate entrance.

Q. You did not know anything about the activity of the Gestapo there in spite of the fact that your offices were actually in the same house?

A. I know and I heard about it, that investigations were made about persons who endangered or might endanger the security. These kommandos had been given a screening book for that purpose.

Q. Is it known to you that in Olmuetz when the Gestapo came in most of the Jews were arrested?

A. I can say the following here. I know that a great number of the Jews had escaped and therefore were not present any more. Whether most of them were arrested I cannot say. I know that Jews were arrested at the time; the ratio between the two groups, which I just mentioned, I can't say about exactly.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal that most of the Jews who did not flee, who were still there, were arrested?

A. Whether the Gestapo arrested them or whether they already were arrested I cannot say.

Q. Then when did the Gestapo come in?

A. I don't know exactly any more whether it was 15th or 16th March 1939.

Q. When did the German troops come in?

A. The German troops arrived the same date.

Q. Who could have the Jews arrested before the Gestapo came?

A. That would have been possible by the Home Guard units of the ethnic Germans.

Q. Do you want to tell the Tribunal that this German Selbstschutz was in charge of the city before the German troops and the Gestapo came in?

A. If I remember correctly it was like this: That for a few hours no other authority existed in the city insofar as I recall because of unexpected snowfalls the coming in of the German troops was delayed, for many hours.

Q. And you presumed that during these few hours the German Selbstschutz arrested all the Jews?

A. I don't assume that they all were. I don't know the ratio of figures.

Q. Do you know what happened to these Jews?

A. I know that some of these Jews for some time were in the so-called camp Stefanau. This was an internment camp.

Q. What happened then?

A. I know then that this camp was dissolved. What happened to the individual inmates I cannot say.

Q. Were you in Olmuetz when war broke out?

A. You mean in September 1939?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know most of the Jews who had returned either from Prague or were unable to flee were arrested, and then sent to Buchenwald? Is that known to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know by whom these people were arrested?

A. That must have been done by the State Police at the time.

Q. Is it known to you that these people were arrested and sent to a concentration camp only for the simple reason that they were Jews?

A. No, I did not know that at the time.

Q. What did you think why they had been arrested?

A. For general security reasons as a precautious measure. That's how I heard people talk about it at the time, pointing out as they said at the time during the first World War the Home Front had been disintergrated because of Jewish elements.

Q. Did you believe that that was correct?

A. I cannot say anything about that; at the time I was still too young.

Q. I possibly made myself not enough clear. I, of course, wanted to say if you considered it correct if these people were arrested and sent to concentration camps just in order to clean the Heimatfront from the Jews.

A. Do you mean my attitude to the question at that time or now?

Q. Not today; then, when you did see how the people were sent to the concentration camps, and you knew about it.

A. At the time I did not know that they were sent to concentration camps. I only knew that they were sent into camps. I assumed that those were some kind of internment camps.

Q. Did you know that concentration camps existed in Germany?

A. Yes.

Q. How many did you know about in 1939?

A. In 1939 I should have heard of two, one was the socalled Camp Sachsenhausen near Berlin; and the other one was at Dachau.

Q. Did you learn about Buchenwald during your activity in ---

A. I don't think so. The existence of the Camp Buchenwald I think I only heard about later.

Q. There is an affidavit in your document book which was not submitted by your counsel. If the Tribunal pleases, on pages 60 and 61 of the document book Fendler. The affiant here tells the story that you assisted here Frau Suessmuth and her Jewish husband in the camp of Stefanau, the existence of which you have here testified just 15 minutes ago, and she goes on to say that her husband died in 1940 in the concentration camp at Buchenwald. Did she, meaning herself, an Aryan, get arrested by the Gestapo in the same year and did you make an intervention that she got out.

Did she not tell you ever that her husband was later sent to Buchenwald?

A. I do not remember that. Probably Frau Suessmuth at the time did not even know where her husband was; she probably only knew he was in a concentration camp, or at least he was not with her any longer. She only heard afterwards that he had been brought to Buchenwald at the time.

Q. Was it known to you that Czechoslovakian citizens were sent for forced labor to Germany at that time?

A. At this time I don't think so. At that time, if I am correctly informed, people were asked to work in Germany voluntarily.

Q. I think there is also an affidavit in existence which shows that you might have known at least something about that and this is on page 64 of the document book Fendler. I do not want to take the time of the Tribunal to read that into the record buy it is clear from the document that you, Mr. Fendler, were of some assistance to Czechoslovakian citizens when they were not sent to Germany, so you must have known by then that arrangements were not so voluntary?

A. Mr. Prosecutor, may I give a brief explanation here. This assistance took place after I left Olmuetz. Until the collapse, I must say now, unfortunately, I retained my apartment at Olmuetz and stayed there occasionally. This event to which this refers as far as I remember happened in the year 1944.

Q. But you knew then before the collapse of Germany that Czechoslovakian citizens were forcibly sent to Germany for work?

A. Of course. My denial only referred to the time that I was active in Olmuetz until the end of 1944.

Q. You have given the Tribunal information about your knowledge, what happened in the East, about your knowledge as to what happened in Czechoslovakia; about your knowledge as to what happened or did not happen to the Jews.

Did you consider during the time you were a member of the SD, of the Party and of the SS, these measures were justified?

A. To this rather general question unfortunately I have to give a general answer. I must say that collective measures of that sort are rejected by me on principles and that I regret them for these persons who are concerned buy this applies to all such things and for all times.

of law so you would know something about international law. Do you think the orders as they were known to you about the summary procedure, where people could be executed at the discretion of the officer, where no procedures according to martial law -- that would be the right word -were held -- did you consider these orders correct according to the laws and customs of war according to the law valid in Germany and common to all civilized nations? Did you consider them in accordance with these norms? this question with "yes" or "no." Then you explain; but this question would be nice if you could answer it first with "yes" or "no." question was too complicated and put in a too general way.

Q I can possibly make it a little bit more specific. Do you think that the order which abandoned procedure according to martial law and gave discretion to an officer, who must not have any legal training, who must have only had a commission, to shoot people and to order executions was in accordance with the laws and customs of war and the Hague Convention? but please, may I give further explanations on this? During the time of my assignment in the East I was shocked and moved by the impressions I received there, about the manner of warfare by the Russians. I don't want to say now afterwards, nor do I feel called upon to do this, that I want to justify any German measures; I can only say that in the condition that I was at the time I could not arrive at any ambiguous decision above the necessity and justification of the measures ordered by the German leadership. I can only say that concerning the orders given I was shocked.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I have no further questions.

BY THE PRESIDENT: voluntarily. was it now?

Q You say that Mr. Wartenberg threatened with sending you back to Czechoslovakia. Now, do you stand on that statement? Honor, not when signing the affidavit.

Q Very well. During the interrogation did he threaten with sending you back to Czechoslovakia?

Q Why should you worry about going back to Czechoslovakia? With all the people you helped there they would probably have received you with open arms, wouldn't they? you returned to Czechoslovakia harm would visit you? What did you do there?

A Please, may I explain the situation?

Q Please answer that. What did you do in Czechoslovakia that, if Mr. Wartenberg threatened be put into effect, would have caused you harm?

A I myself did not do anything there, buy Mr. Wartenberg told me: "You know how your kind of people are dealt with there. You can expect to hang two hours after the verdict is pronounced." That is what Mr. Wartenberg said so I replied to him: "I am not afraid of facing any Czech authorities." Of course, all that matters is if they would give a just verdict on my attitude in Olmuetz. which were not true?

no way affected the truthfulness of what you told him? of interrogation by Mr. Wartenberg rather excited me and it is possible that in that state my recollection failed me partly but, none the less, in spite of these threats, I tried, to the best of my knowledge and belief, to speak the truth as far as possible.

Q Did you tell him in fact the following: "I have never been officially designated as a deputy of Hermann's. I have, however, taken charge of official matters during his absence." Did you tell him that?

Q Is that true? today affirm, is there? affidavit, your Honor. I merely asked that some supplementary remarks should be inserted in order to make the meaning of that what I had said quite clear.

Q Very well; so far as it goes, it is correct. as the truth and the actual facts as I related them at the time. between 13 and 26 September, were you? 133 political officials, 9 sabateurs and looters and 125 Jews. Did you know of that execution? either.

Q Please answer my question. Do you know of this execution?

by the Kommando. There might have been several executions. As I said in my direct examination, I heard about it in Krementschug that one execution was carried out, shortly before the transfer of the Kommando to Poltawa. Whether those persons were excuted on that occasion mentioned in this report here now, I cannot say. done by Special Kommando 4-B in the period already indicated and that execution brought about the death of the individuals I have mentioned. Do you know of that execution -- yes or no? I know that an execution took place in Krementschug.

Q Why don't you know of this execution which occurred while you were with the organization which performed it? Explain why you, the senior officer in command of an organization which only consisted of 80 men or a hundred at the most, always one compact unit, why you would not know of an episode of this gravity? been carried out I should probably have heard about it or possibly I assume so, but I cannot say in detail whether this execution occurred. I only know -- I don't know whether the persons mentioned here were executed then; I only know that some execution took place. ing occurred at this time?

A In Krementschug? You mean in this time we are now discussing, your Honor?

Q Do you remember the execution? carried out or was carried out. numerous execution?

A I cannot say that. I do not recollect the preparations on that I would have noticed them.

THE PRESIDENT: Between now and Monday morning you try and recollect just box many were executed at that execution and all other relevant facts.

of America; against Otto Ohlendorf, et al., 15 December 1947.

0930-10.00. Justice Musmanno,

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

DR. SUSS: Dr. Suss, representative for the attorney Dr. Linck for the defendant Ruehl. Your Honor, I ask that the defendant Ruehl be excused from this afternoon session, and from tomorrows session the entire day, in order to prepare his defense.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you want him sent to Room 57 this afternoon?

DR. SUSS: Yes, I would like to ask for this.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Ruehl will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon, and tomorrow all day. This afternoon he will be taken to Room 57 where he may confer with his counsel.

DR. SUSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You are welcome. adjournment, we were discussing the action which occurred while you were with Einsatzcommando IV-B, which resulted in the execution of 103 Political officials, 9 saboteurs and looters, and 125 Jews. Now tell us about this action. You were with the Einsatzcommando at the time, you were the next senior officer in rank in the commando, and it is inconceivable that you would not know about this operation?

my assignment I had nothing to do with the executive jobs, that is, the arrests, investigations, and finally with the carrying out of the sentence which led to the executions. In addition, I didn't know about the files of these cases -

Q Just a moment. Did you know about this particular action which occurred between 13th and 26th of September which brought about the execution of 103 Political Officials, 9 Saboteurs and Looters, and 125 Jews?

A I don't know, Your Honor, whether this was one action - it in Kremenchug that one execution took place, but I don't know what people were concerned there. you were with the IV-B? of which I heard.

Q And how many were killed in these six executions?

A I can not say, Your Honor, as I don't know.

Q For what were the executions? to the document, or, rather to the report to which the president has just referred, if I may refer to this, that is in Document Book II-A, Document No. 3155. There are two paragraphs after the passage which Your Honor has cited, and, in this it is stated in general that the following motives are at the basis for the execution carried out by the commando: Political functionaries, looters, saboteurs, active Communists, carriers of such political ideas.

is why they were being executed; that these various things which you are now enumerating to us are the reasons why the individuals were executed, is that right?

Q Very well, proceed with your answer. Continue to read. Continue to read. prison camp under false pretenses, agents, and assistants of the NKWD, people who had participated in the deportation of Ethnic Germans, of making false statements, a socialists, and Jewish and the search for the undesirable elements.

Q Whom do you mean by the "Undesirable Elements." That is a rather large and broad category, and wide, so who would be "Undesirable elements. "Would they be Jews?

A I can not say, Your Honor, I don't know what they mean by this. members of the Russian Partisan bands. epidemics?

A I think I mentioned it, yes. I beg your pardon. Russians with food, agitators, and instigators, juvenile delinquents, Jews in general.

Q Yes. Now tell us about this last phrase, "Jews in general. "That means all Jews, doesn't it?

A I don't know, Your Honor, whether they mean all Jews.

Q What does "Jews in general" mean?

Q Yes. Now you have on your own volition called out attention to this list of people who were killed, so it must be assumed that you are familiar with this. You were advancing this as an explanation of the operation which resulted in the death of 103 Political officials, 9 Saboteurs and Looters and 125 Jews. You knew then, didn't you, that Jews were being killed because they were Jews? didn't know this. categories of executees? kind of people were concerned.

AAnd here in this report these people are listed? before, not only in Commando IV-B, but also of V and IV-A, that is to say, they refer to the activity of all commandos of the different Einsatzgruppe-C. were Jews? at Pretzsch?

A I didn't command in Pretzsch personally.

Q When you arrived in Pretzsch weren't you for a few days in command of Einsatzcommando IV-B?

Q We had understood something to that effect? not the case.

Q When did you first learn of the Fuehrer Order? with the Press Report at the IMT. That is, after the collapse, after I was in camp.

Q When did you first learn that Jews were to be executed?

A Were to be executed, Your Honor?

Q Yes. You know it.

A I don't think I understood your question correctly? the Einsatzgruppen?

Q What did Herrmann tell you in Lemberg? to take action against the bearers of the Bolshevist System, within the security mission of the commandos, and to take very severe actions against these.

Q What did he say about the Jews? Bolshevist System, or as Bolshevist functionaries, that is, rather, Jewish Bolshevist functionaries, as the Jews who were to be considered as bearers of Bolshevist system. as bearers of the Bolshevist Doctrine?

A If the security demanded it. He didn't say at the time that all Jews were to be executed, Your Honor.

with Jews who were among those who were active in carrying on the flag of Bolshevism, isn't that what he told you? should or should not be executed?

Q Well, how was the decision reached?

Q And how would they decide it?

A I personally, Your Honor? whether a certain number of Jews were to be executed or not?

A I don't think that I can answer this question so very generally. a certain number of Jews, didn't he? One-hundred Jews were brought before him, he knows of the one-hundred Jews, he must decide whether they were to be executed or not, How does he decide?

A I don't know, your Honor. the unit was never separated. You were the Senior Officer in command, and if you are a man of intelligence, you knew how Hermann finally decided whether to execute or not to execute; either you knew, or you are trying to make us believe you are an ignoramus, which you certainly do not appear to be. Herrmann made.

in the same mission. You were there for the same purpose, that is the reason? didn't bring them over, then they were brought to him because he had given an order for that, and he would not have given this order to me, but he would have given this to a member of the Department IV. That is why I can not say what he would have done in a theoretical case, because the one-hundred Jews would be brought to him.

Q It is not a theoretical case. It is a natural case in this very incidence of the killing.

Q No, it is not theoretical, you were there. While you were there, while you held the High Office in this commando were there 230 people who were killed in one operation. Now, how did Herrmann come to his conclusion as to whether he should kill these people, and did kill them, how did he arrive at his decision to kill these people? just said, kill these people? Maybe something happened in this period which led to this. Maybe he had an order from the Army to do it. tell us? gations?

A I can not say, I don't know.

Q You were there?

A I was with the Commando Your Honor? commando?

Page 4,077

A I don't know, Your Honor.

Q Give us an estimate? right? many were killed. An execution is not an abstract thing, It is a very tangible material thing?

Q All right. How many were executed?

Q Now don't give us "maybe". It is an actual thing. How did you find out about these executions, and how many were executed?

Q How many were executed in each execution? Ten?

A I don't know.

Q Fifteen?

A I don't know. were killed. How did you know that?

Q Were you present at that execution?

Q How did you know twenty or thirty were killed? the men were excited about the fact they had to carry out an execution.

Q They talked about it a great deal, did they?

A I beg your pardon? About this first execution, yes, they talked a lot.

twenty or thirty? said why they killed those twenty or thirty; what was charged against these twenty or thirty; what did they say as the reason why these twenty or thirty were killed?

A I don't know.

Q Did they talk about it?

Q Did they say they were Jews?

Q Did they say why these Jews were killed? these twenty or thirty? the murdered prisoners who had been found, whom the Bolshevists had left behind; that these were people who had something to do with these incidents.

Q Then you did know why they were executed, don't you?

Q But you didn't tell us that when I first asked you, did you? people were killed.

Q And you said, no?

Q Yes, now you tell us you did know why they were executed. Where did you get your knowledge?

Q Upon what do you base your conclusion?

Q And what is your knowledge based upon? in the prison -- pardon me, were found. because one-hundred bodies were found there?

A No one told me that, Your Honor. This is a conclusion I drew myself.

Q Did you talk to any men about that?

Q All right, and what did they say?

AAbout the question of the motive, I don't know that.

Q Tell us exactly what did they say about the motive for the killing? found out that there were people who were executed. Did you ask any one as to whether these two events were connected with each other in any way? Honor. which to base your conclusion?

A Yes, as I said. Your Honor, I had heard that five-hundred murdered prisoners, among them German prisoners of war, had been found in the prison. it to five-hundred, which is correct?

A Pardon me, the translation must have been wrong. I spoke of several hundred.

Q How many is it now? You have given one-hundred, several hundred, and five hundred. How many were there?

Q Five-hundred. All right now. Did they tell you that they had executed these twenty or thirty because the five-hundred prisoners who had been murdered?

Q Then how did you come to that conclusion? murder of the German prisoners of war had been carried out.

of German prisoners of war had been carried out.

Q Well, someone must have said something to that effect. Suppose they were killed because they had done something else? Suppose they had been killed because they were looters? You had to have some facts upon which to draw your conclusion which you have now given us. What fact did you base it upon? discussed - that there was great excitement on the part of the German Army among the troops stationed there and that there were excesses on the part of these troops because they found members of this unit brutally murdered in this prison. said "We have killed 20 to 30 people because of the murder." Is that what you want us to believe? No one ever made that statement?

A I can not say. In general maybe somebody did.

Q Well, then some one did tell you why the executions took place?

A He wouldn't have had to give this explanation to me.

Q Well, you said everybody was talking about them. You did hear someone say that men were executed because of the murders which had occurred in the prison, is that right? said why these 20 to 30 had been killed, is that right?

Q Now you will have to remember. You heard these people talking about executions, it was the first execution. The men were quite disturbed over the fact that they had to conduct these executions, shooting down defenseless people. The Army was tremendously excited about it, everyone was talking about these executions. Now, in all this talk no one said why these 20 to 30 were killed? You want us to believe that?

A Perhaps they didn't talk about it because it seemed obvious that it was in connection with the murder of German soldiers. right on the spot that that's the reason why they were shot?

Q Did you, right at the time it happened, know that that was the reason?

A I don't quite get the question. therefore, it wasn't necessary to make any inquiry. Did you know right at the time of the execution why these 20 or 30 were killed? that was the reason the men were executed? killed, why didn't you immediately give that answer instead of requiring about 15 to 20 minutes of talking back and forth to have you give what to you was so obvious immediately when you heard about the execution? Why didn't you tell us that at once? said no, didn't I? what I assumed at that time. and read to us the first part of the interrogation, when the witness was being questioned as to why these individuals were executed. Were you here at that time?

(Reporter indicates "no")

THE PRESIDENT: No, it was before that. And who was the reporter proceeding you, Gallagher?

Would you please have call Mr. Gallagher and tell him what we are seeking and whether he can find it in his notes?

Q What did your work consist of with Einsatzkommando IV-B?

Q And what did the SD work consist of? life in the area in which we were stationed and to report about it.

Q You were to gather intelligence, weren't you? economics, administration, etc.

A You had to make reports on conditions among the population? the Germans, weren't there? looters, and there were bearers of Bolshevism? And all these were scheduled for execution when it was determined that they were such?

Q Yes. So, therefore, you had to make reports on the potential enemies of the German forces?

Q Well, why not? questions which concerned the enemy. All such questions were already handled by the police in Germany and the same was done in the assignment.

Q You were liaison officer with the Army, too, weren't you?

Q And you conferred with them on intelligence, didn't you?

A I only functioned as liaison officer once. And, at that time I conferred with G-2 of the Army.

Q And what is G-2 of the Army doing? It gathers intelligence with regard to the enemy, doesn't it? to the German Army, didn't you?

A No, Your Honor, this is the way it is. The "Barbarossa" order, which was the basic order and it has already been cited here, had ordered that the liaison from the Einsatzkommandos to the Army would run via G-2. That was the man who was the liaison agency of the Army. activities in Russia, is that correct?

A In what field prepared myself - in what field? did in Germany - SD work?

Q And that included counter-intelligence, did it not?

A No, not at that time any more. Counter-intelligence, if I remember correctly, since 1938 or the beginning of 1939 was taken away from the SD completely.

Q So you were trained in counter-intelligence work, weren't you? rity, not about the entire counter-intelligence field. The SD intelligence was only of an informational nature, not connected with police or executive missions. Police prosecution of sabotage and espionage, which are the main components of counter-intelligence, were completely in the hands of the State Police from the very beginning.

enemy which may be of assistance to ones own forces. That's right, isn't it? I can only speak of what we called SD work. That's what I did in the assignment. SD work means that I would have to gather intelligence about the situation in the various domestic spheres within the indigenous population, that is, Russian population - questions of law, administration, culture, science, and economics, especially economic problems were uppermost during the advance in Russia. the population, wasn't there? about that. I was never able to determine that. you. I only asked you whether when an execution occurred if there wasn't some reaction among the population to it?

A That depended on two matters, Your Honor. First of all how the execution was carried out. I am speaking theoretically ' whether there was the possibility that the large population learned about it. And, second the question of information service. If such a reaction existed on the part of the population it doesn't mean that I heard about it or had to hear about it.

it and the question hasn't been put to you. this assignment I did not know of any reaction of the people to these executions or, rather, I was not able to determine any such reaction. I heard nothing about this through my intelligence channels. them it would be known in the town if it wasn't too large a place, wouldn't it? of the population you would have to make some reference to the fact that there was terror and fright in the town because of the execution, wouldn't you?

A Well, your Honor, I didn't hear about the fact that Kommando 4-B marched into a town and then seized the Jews.

Q Were you in the town of K-l-o-c-z-o-w?

Q What happened in that town? How many did 4-B kill in that town?

Q Well, was it a large number of a small number?

A I didn't spend any time in Kloczow. I drove through it. How many did the Kommando kill in Kloczow?

A In Kloczow?

Q Yes, how many did the Kommando kill in Kloczow?

A I do not know. I assume that they killed none because I think I read in some situation report that the group staff of Einsatzgruppen C was active in Kloczow. And in this connection it is mentioned that the Kommando 4-B - I hope I am repeating this correctly - that is had passed by Kloczow.

If I understand this expression correctly in the report then this refers to the fact that Kloczow was by-passed by the forces of Kommando 4-B or rather that Kommando 4-B searched the town of Kloczow for material left behind by the Bolchivists.

Q You are trying to adjust your explanation to the report. I want you to tell me what you know that 4-B did in Kloczow.

A I can't tell you anything about that, your Honor.

Q Did the group staff conduct any executions in Kloczow?

A I do not know. I just referred to the group staff because I saw this incident in the report. When I went through Kloczow I did not come into contact with the group staff. The Group staff must have come to Kloczow after the Kommando because the group staff was still in Lemberg at that time.

Q What did 4-B do in Kloczow? just quoted.

Q Don't tell me about the situation report. I want you to tell me what you know. I can read the situation report. What did you do in Kloczow? other --

Q And what did the Kommando do in Kloczow?

Q Well you were with the Kommando, weren't you? I drove through Kloczow.

Q Didn't the Kommando stop at all? that parts of the Kommando did stop there.

Q And what did they do? What did they do when they stopped there?

Q What did you do in Kloczow?

A I do not know. I wasn't there.

Q The Kommando always remained intact did it not?

A On the march it often fell apart. That was unavoidable and there were interruptions of hours between various parts so that parts would come up later. I just want to give you an example, When we crossed the Djnepr River in order to get near the bridge there was a distance of 4 kilometers and I needed ten hours for this while others immediately able to cross the bridge.

Q Didn't you tell us in the early part of your direct examination that 4-B was a unit which did not separate? your Honor. the Kommando remained there and that you went straight on, is that right?

A No. That's not the way it was. Your Honor.

Q Well, tell us just what happened in Kloczow? Did any part of your Kommando remain after you went through? Kloczow?

A Your Honor, may I briefly describe this? it was in Kloczow?

A Parts of the Kommando came through Kloczow before me. That is to say the first parts must have come through Kloczow about a day before me. The advance took place in groups and I came with the last few vehicles.

Q Then 4-B did separate occasionally, didn't it?

the conditions of War made it necessary that the Kommando would separate temporarily for hours or days. But it was not so - - formed executions in Kloczow before you arrived, wasn't it? had been ordered by the Kommando leader. for hours and some times for days, is that what you tell us now?

Q Well, you said days just a moment ago, didn't you? Hours and days. Did you say that?

Q How many days?

Q Well, days would be more than one day, wouldn't it?

Q Well, when you say days you mean more than one day, don't you?

Q So, therefore, you didn't tell us the truth when you said in the very early part of your examination that the unit never separated, did you? as I think I remember them, this does not exclude the fact that small parts of the Kommando in order to carry out definite missions were briefly or temporarily separated from the Kommando. tion. At the time you were describing this other situation it was to your benefit to say that the unit did not separate. Now, since you assume it will be to your benefit to say that it does separate, you said it did separate. That's the way you are answering these questions, isn't it?

A No, one does not exclude the other. The situation has been that it was reported that other Kommandos were separated into two or three sub-Kommandos which operated independently, that is, one Kommando was hundreds of kilometers away from another Kommando. This was not the case in our Kommando. We were not separated that way. weren't you? Kommando? to arrive at the new garrison as quickly as possible.

Q How many men did you have? any situation weren't you?

A Yes, I was prepared. Whether my forces would have sufficed I do not know.

Q If you met Partisans you would fight them, wouldn't you? wouldn't have looked for it with the strength of 8 men. was in the town, not a large group, would you try to locate them? and they were in a house, would you send your eight men there and try to capture them? to set fire to some houses, four people. Would you go and try to arrest them?

A My own house in which I was staying?

Q No, a house in the town. They were saboteurs and they assumed you were going to take over this house for your quarters and they were going to burn it. Would you go and arrest them?

A I can't decide this generally.

Q Well, no this isn't general. This is a specific question. You are marching through a town with six to eight men and you learn that there are some saboteurs contrary to German regulations and against the German forces and you know they are going to blow up a house and you know where these four men are. Would you go and arrest them?

men in charge of the Communist Party, four of them, and they are about to hold a meeting in a house, and they are going to preach to the population and ask them to oppose the German forces, there are only four, would you go and arrest them? competent military commander about it, the local commander. a town and you know of this Bolshevist meeting, four men are going to Call the population together and to sell them the Communist doctrine, they are going to spread Bolshevism, would you go and arrest these four men?

Q Did you take an oath to Hitler?

A Please?

Q Did you take an oath to Hitler?

Q Did you take an oath as a soldier in the German armed forces?

Q Did you believe in the German cause?

A In what connection, your Honor?

Q Well, the German cause. You were in the German armed forces, you were marching into Russia. You know that you had marched into other countries. Did you believe generally in the policies of the Reich? threat of Europe by Bolshevism. threat of Europe by Bolshevism. some people who are going to blow up a house in which German soldiers are going to be quartered, you know that four Bolshevist functionaries, who are listed to be executed according to the orders, are about to attempt to proselyte the whole population against the German forces, and yet you do nothing?

What kind of a soldier are you? danger and in which I myself had only eight men at my disposal, I would inform the competent military commander about this case.

Q Let's suppose there is no competent military commander around. This is a town and here are these four men standing on the corners asking the people to come into this great mass meeting, and these four are going to make speeches against Hitler, against the German armed forces to resist the invasion, would you arrest these four people?

Q If there was such a case, would you arrest them?

A --for the men that I led, then I would do something about it; I would have arrested the men.

Q Well, there is no acute danger to your men. These four are merely standing on the street corners telling the people to come in, they are going to listen to a fiery speech against the German forces, no danger to you but this very active political resistance. Would you arrest the men, the four men? I would not have had time so I wouldn't have had any opportunity to do so.

Q You wouldn't have any opportunity? You have eight men, and they are armed.

A Because I didn't have the forces to do this. four on the other side. Two Germans to one Bolshevist are certainly ample, aren't they, especially if you subscribe to the master theory?

Q All right. Well, you believe that two could overcome one, don't you, especially if two are armed. That is why I couldn't arrest four men.

Q Very well. Then your answer stands.

A I wouldn't have arrested them. uniform of the German Army, although you have sworn allegiance to the Fuehrer, although you are engaged in a war, yet you come across a force only one-half the size of your own, it is preaching sedition, it is preaching resistance, and you wouldn't even arrest them, that is the way you want your answer to stand? my forces. military commander who had better forces for such actions, and it would have depended upon his decision what he would have done to protect the German Army. that although you had twice as many as those who would be opposed to you, yet you would do nothing. All right, we understand how you feel about these things.

A I wouldn't have done anything because I had other missions to perform with my men. blow up a building, you still would not do anything, because you had other things to attend to. Did you consider the measures in the East justified? After you got back to Berlin and you reflected on what your kommando had done in the East, were you satisfied that those measures taken were justified?

A What measures, your Honor?

Q Well, the measures which the kommando took, the executions. You answered that question once before, why can't you answer it now?

A I beg your pardon, your Honor. I didn't quite understand it completely.

Q All right. This very same question was put to you on Saturday: "when you returned to Berlin after your service in Russia, did you consider the measures taken by the Einsatzkommando in the East to have been justified?"

Q What was wrong?

Q Did you consider it was wrong to shoot Jews?

A Please?

Q Did you consider it was wrong to shoot Jews?

Q Then you did know they shot Jews, didn't you?

Q When did you learn that?.

Q How far away was that from your organization which you had left?

Q How many miles or kilometers was that?

Q All right. Nov, you were with an organization for three months the commander, and you didn't know--You were with Kommando 4b for three months in constant daily association with the men who were doing the shooting, in daily contact with the commander, and you did not know that Jews were being shot because they were Jews, but then when you were five hundred kilometers away, then you knew they were shooting Jews because they were Jews, is that correct?

Perhaps I didn't express myself quite clearly, your Honor. In Kiev I heard that in the days preceding, that is in the last week of September, or it must have been around that time, mass executions of Jews had taken place in Kiev, and that in this case there were executions of Jews just because they were Jews.

Q And these executions were done by kommandos of the Einsatzgruppen?

A The Higher SS and Police Leader Jeckeln was mentioned. Which units he had used for this I only saw in the reports.

Q Well, what units were they; were Einsatzgruppen involved?

Q So that you had to travel five hundred kilometers and two days' distance from the very heart of this execution district before you learned that executions were being performed upon Jews because they were Jews, is that right?

Q All right. Now, we call your attention to Document Book II-C, Page 49, referring to Einsatzkommando 4b. It says: "The Einsatzkommando 4b has finished its activity in Tarnopol. 127 executions. Parallel to that, liquidation of 600 Jews in the course of the persecutions of Jews as induced by the Einsatzkommando. In Zborow, 600 Jews liquidated by the Waffen-SS as a retaliation measure for Soviet atrocities." All this is under the heading of Kommando 4b. Did you know about these executions and this liquidation of 600 Jews?

Q You don't know the figure, but do you know the incident?

living in Tarnopol had occurred, first of all excesses on the part of the Ukrainian population, and secondly, unfortunately, on the part of the German Army. you know about them at the time they occurred?

A Your Honor, it says here only 127 executions. The report does not clearly show that these were carried out by the Kommando 4b, Did the kommando conduct these 127 executions? thirty people were shot by the kommando in Tarnopol.

Q These were included in the 127, were they?

Q. Did you make up any report on the excesses perpetrated by the population on the Jews?

A. No, I did not make any reports about this.

Q. Well, why wouldn't you? That was certainly a matter involving the population. Why wouldn't you include that in your report?

A. I personally only spent half a day in Tarnopol in order to go on to Trembovla to join the Army corps.

Q. You were there long enough to find out about these things, and it didn't matter how long you were there, once you got the information, then it was part of your knowledge. Why didn't you report this?

A. That was not my business, your Honor. As I said, this whole reporting about the enemy, and that included the reports about the Jews, was the business of the police executive.

Q. Well, it was your job to report upon the morale of the population, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. Well then, why wouldn't you report on the fact that a good portion of the population had participated in a pogrom?

A. That might have been mentioned in a morale report, yes.

Q. Well then, it was mentioned.

A. I don't think so; I cannot remember, your Honor.

Q. Was it or was it not mentioned by you that a part of the population participated in a pogrom?

A. I cannot remember to have made out a morale report about Tarnopol because I didn't get a chance to do so in Tarnopol. I arrived in Tarnopol, found the great number of COURT II CASE IX and I looked at that material when I was there.

Then I went on to Trembovla.

Q. Did you or did you not make a report on this excess which resulted in the killing of 600 Jews, 600 people, 600 human beings, did you include that in your report or not?

A. No.

Q. You did not consider that of sufficient importance?

A. I did not consider it unimportant, I did not knew at that time.

Q. Well, you told us that you did know it.

A. Your Honor, this report shows the basis of the situation report was made out by the kommando leader.

Q. We are not talking about this report; I am talking about your reports. Here you are the export of Department III, the SD, which has to do with giving reports on the morale of the population. You come to a town and you find that 600 people had been murdered in he streets by part of the population. In making your report on the morale of the population in that town, did you include this fact?

A. If I had known about it, your Honor, and if I would have made a morale report at this time, I would have possibly included it.

Q. Well, did you know about it?

A. I merely knew that excesses had taken place in Tarnopol, which I regretted.

Q. All right. Then you knew about it so that part of the condition is satisfied. You knew about the excesses, is that right?

A. I learned that excesses had taken place, yes.

Q. All right. Then did you make an SD report on conditions?

A. No, I already said I made no report.

Q. Why didn't you make a report? Here you are an expert. Your commander depends upon you for information; the Einsatzgruppe headquarters depends upon you for information; and in Berlin they depend upon your direct channels for information. Why didn't you make a report on these excesses which you learned about?

A. Because I personally did not get a chance.

Q. Why didn't you get a chance to make a report?

A. Because I was busy with another task, namely to evaluate the documents which had been captured.

Q. And you didn't consider the matter of a mass murder of 600 people of sufficient importance to write a report on, is that what you are telling the Tribunal?

A. Your Honor, if I got the order from the kommando leader to evaluate the material which is available there, then I have to do so.

Q. Well, how much time would it take in an SD report, which you were compelled to make, and which it was your job to make, to say that there were excesses in Tarnopol to the extent that 600 Jews were murdered, or you didn't want to say murdered, were killed by the population. How much time would it take to include that, with your fingers on the typewriter, into a report? How much time would it take to say that.

A. Two seconds.

Q. Well then, why didn't you have the two seconds to write that?

A. Because I made no report.

Q. Why didn't you make a report?

A. Because I was given the order by the kommando leader to evaluate this material.

Q. Very well, we will let your answer stand, and it will COURT II CASE IX be evaluated later.

Now, you had time to be interested in the politics of the Ukraine, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now you had time to consider, to take part in the desire of the Ukraine population to achieve independence, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. But you didn't have time to write into a report something which would take only two seconds to write?

A. If I did not make such a report, your Honor, because I had a different order, then, of course, the prerequisite is not existant.

Q. Did your order say that you should participate in Ukrainian politics and help them to achieve independence, was that part of your orders?

A. Yes, a part of my general order.

Q. That you were to work for the achievement of Ukrainian independence, is that part of your orders?

A. No, this was not my order. The order read as follows: "To determine what autonomy ambition existed within the Ukrainians."

Q. But you were interested in seeing them get independence, weren't you?

A. Yes, it interested me.

Q. And you helped where you could?

A. I had no opportunity to help at that time, It didn't become effective. I would rather put it that way.

Q. Did you or did you not help the Ukrainian population in their desires to achieve independence?

A. In this, insofar as I had a positive attitude towards the autonomy ambitions of the Ukrainians, in this respect I did, because this positive attitude was expressed in my reports.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Gallagher, will you please come forward? I am sorry. I didn't know you were sitting there. I would have called you before. I would like to have you speak into the microphone here, and first in the early part of the examination of the witness he was asked if he knew why a certain execution occurred. Would you please read what appears in your record on that? I want you to read that into the record. Read it aloud; read it slowly.

COURT REPORTER GALLAGHER: Court Reporter Gallagher reading from the record.

"THE COURT: Q. Just a moment, did you know about this particular action which occurred between the 13th and the 26th of September which brought about the execution of 103 political officials; 9 saboteurs and looters; and 125 Jews?

"A. I don't know, your Honor, whether this was one action.

"THE COURT: Well, proceed.

"A. As I have already said on Saturday, I heard about it in Kremenchug that one execution took place, but I don't know what people were concerned up there.

"Q. How many executions occurred during the time that you were with 4b?

"A. As I said on Saturday, it must have been about six of which I hoard.

"Q. And now many were killed in these six executions?

"A. I cannot say, your Honor, I don't know.

"Q. What were the executions for?

"A. I cannot give you details, but if I may refer to the document, or rather to the report to which the President has just referred, if I may refer to these, which is in Document Book II-A, Document No.--"

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, Mr. Gallagher. The question which we wish to decide is whether a question of this nature was put to the witness: "Do you know why these individuals were executed?" Now, I am not referring to the long answer which he gives enumerating certain categories on Page 45, but why the 103 political officials, 9 saboteurs and looters, and 125 Jews were executed. I think now, Mr. Gallagher, that you know just what the Tribunal desires to obtain. Would you please look a little more carefully through your notes during the recess period and perhaps you can put your finger on that very question and answer if it exists.

Yes, Dr. Fritz, you want to say something?

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, the Tribunal evidently intends to read the English transcript and thus to examine the credibility of the witness. Since this is first of all a matter of what the defendant has heard in the German language, because it was translated, I make the motion that the German transcript be read also, because I understood it just the way that the defendant did.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. By all means we want to have it in the German. The only reason I asked Mr. Gallagher first was that I thought we could locate it and then by comparison find it in the German transcript, but if you can, during the recess, Dr. Fritz, locate it in the German, we would be very grateful for your pointing it out to us. Specifically we want to know if the Tribunal asked the witness if he knew why these twenty or thirty were executed.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. WISSTIAN: Assistant of Dr. Schwarz for the Defendant Jost. this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon's session, as he wants to prepare the remainder of the document book.

THE PRESIDENT: That's for this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon?

DR. WISSTIAN: This afternoon and tomorrow afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: The Defendant Jost will be excused from attendance in court this afternoon and tomorrow, Tuesday, afternoon.

DR. WISSTIANN: Thank you.

DR. BELZER. (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT MATTIAS GRAF): afternoon because I want to prepare his defense with him.

THE PRESIDENT: Which defendant?

DR. BELZER: Mattias Graf, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: For this afternoon?

DR. BELZER: Tomorrow afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: Only tomorrow afternoon?

DR. BELZER: Yes, only tomorrow afternoon. Not today.

THE PRESIDENT: You are very modest in your request. The defendent Graf will be excused from attendance in court tomorrow afternoon.

DR. FRITZ (ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT FENDLER): Dr. Fritz-

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, Dr. Fritz, were you able to find that in the German transcript?

DR. FRITZ: No, Your Honor, the two ladies who took the transcript this morning are present at the moment, but unfortunately the crossecamination was so fast that they could only concentrate in putting down the answers of the Defendant Fendler, but not the questions. The questions they did not take.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, well, suppose then because of that fact that we wait until the transcript is prepared, both the English and the German and then we can arrive more quickly at a precise determination of just what was said.

Is that satisfactory?

DR. FRITZ: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes? Very well.

DR. FRITZ: Of course, we have to note here that apparently the German stenographers have to wait for the English Transcript and only then they con translate the questions from the English transcript into the German, so that a precise examination is not possible.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, how about the film, the sound film? Wouldn't that give it to them precisely?

GERMAN COURT REPORTER: The film is only in English, the questions in English, and the answers in German.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, at any rate, I presume we will need to wait until the transcript is prepared. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. I have a final question, Witness. Now, you know of six to seven executions in the three months that you were with Einsatzkommando 4B?

A. From twenty to thirty, if I remember correctly, Your Honor.

Q. No, the number of executions. You knew of six to seven executions?

A. You mean actual proceedings? Yes.

Q. Actual executions.

A. Yes, execution proceedings.

Q. Well, I don't know why you add the word, "proceedings; I mean. The executions, the killing of people, you know of six or seven of these?

A. Your Honor, I can clarify this, I think. It is a matter of translation. In the German at the moment when 20 people are executed we speak of 20 executions, but we also speak of 20 executions if there are execution procedures and in each one of these procedures a number of people are concerned.

Q. I used the term "executions" in the sense of collective killings.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. New, you know of six or seven of these collective killings?

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. How did you know about them?

A. Through conversations.

Q. With whom?

A. With members of the kommando.

Q. And in those conversations did they tell you why they had executed people on six or seven different occasions?

A. No, that I never found out, Your Honor.

Q. You conversed with your comrades about the business of killing people and they never told you why they were killing them?

A. Quite by accident I learned that executions had taken place, Your Honor, but I did not try to find out what people were concerned, six or seven different occasions these people had been killed en masse?

A It could be celled an accident. I myself had nothing to do with it. the merest chance that on six or seven different occasions the kommando had gone out and killed people. What was the accident which brought this to your attention?

Q No, now, no "perhaps". Tell us what you did. You found out about six or seven executions. How did you find out about them? kommando leader was not present, because an execution was just "being carried out at which he had to be present.

Q And who told you about these executions? officer.

Q Did you have headquarters? speak with the commander and he is not there. you say,"By the way, where is the commander?" and he says, "Oh, he's out killing some people". Is that the way it happened?

A No, I don't think it was in this form. Your Honor.

Q Now, tell us how it happened. You are sitting in your office and you suddenly need the counsel or advice or guidance of the commander. Tell us what transpires.

A I looked for the kommando chief. I did not find him. Therefore, I asked this man where the kommando leader is.

Q Who was this man?

Q The sergeant? All right.

A So he said, "The kommando chief has just gone out in order to be present at the execution."

Q And that is the way you found out? the sergeant and say to the sergeant, "I report to you I am about to go out and kill some people and if anyone asks for me, let them know that I am out conducting an execution." Is that what he told the sergeant?

Q Did this happen this way in all the six cases: that you always had to turn to the sergeant and ask him where the kommando chief was? kommando leader in one or two cases what was going on. I do not remember the details. He could have said to me, "I am now leaving. I have to conduct an execution." did the kommando chief tell you?

A That I really can not say; if I tried -learned about the executions. Do you call it an accident if the commanding officer of your organization says to you: "I an now about to go out to perform an execution." Is that what you call in the classification of "accidental knowledge"? kommando leader, shall we say, in the afternoon to grant me an interview of half an hour because there might be something which I wanted to discuss concerning my reporting and he might have said, "No, it is impossible; I will not be present this afternoon because I have to go out to supervise the carrying out of an execution."

Q How many times did it happen that way?

A I couldn't say, Your Honor, this information come to you via the kommando chief himself?

AAfter six years I couldn't tell you precisely. I would have to estimate that and it night be wrong. The reasons would he mostly

Now, what was this accident which caused you to learn of these executions? form an execution, was your interest aroused?

Q He was going out to kill some people end it didn't interest you a bit? It didn't interest you at all that he was going out to send to their creator a number of human beings? That was of no interest to you whatsoever?

A I wasn't curious to find out the details about this. There may he people whose reaction is entirely different in such situations, who are very anxious because they like sensation, to find out each little detail and to delight in such details, but this was not the case with me, tells you he is going out and kill some people. Tell me whether you have any reaction whatsoever.

Honor.

Q Then you did have a reaction; you had an emotional reaction when he told you he was going out to kill some people, didn't you?

Q All right. Did this emotional reaction go to the extent of wanting to know how any were going to be killed? how many were going to be killed? end death a man, tells you on six different occasions that he is going out to kill people and you pursue your curiosity no further. He tells you, "I am going to go out and perform an execution and you, in effect, say, "OK, I'll see you tomorrow". Is that what you are trying to have the Tribunal believe? is possible. been killed during this war and with this basic attitude of mind I was not interested to learn even more which would be more of a burden to me even than the fact that I had already learned that men were executed.

Q You wanted to do your duty, didn't you?

Q You were the senior officer, next to the commander, weren't you? Your Honor.

Let's say the Einsatzgruppe Chief or a representative from the Army command had wanted to know where he was, where the kommando chief was. He turned to you, as the senior officer present, for information, wouldn't he?

Q Hot "he could". "He would". You know militarily that's what would happen. That's right, isn't it?

A It depended on whet his questions were, Your Honor. If he only wanted to know whether the kommando leader was present, for instance, the ordinary guard outside at the gate could give him that information. In any case, he would hove seen that the kommando leader had left. He probably would have left immediately and he would have said he would come hack when the kommando leader was there.

Q This is quibbling, Witness. Someone arrives from Army headquarters. You are in a war. You are in the field. He asks to see the kommando leader. The sentry tells him he's away and so he says, I will come back some other day. He would demand to know the senior officer present and that would he you. gone to them. in order to fight some partisans. That is what he has come for. Whom would he see?

Q He would ask you where the kommando chief was, wouldn't he? you are at all eager to let the Tribunal know just what you know about these situations, Please be very frank. When you answer a question so frivously in that manner, it doesn't cast any credit upon you as being one who is sincere and eager to acquaint the Tribunal with the facts. I have stated a situation where a man comes from the Army command and the kommando chief is not there and he asks to see the senior officer and you are the senior officer. Then I say to you, he would ask you where the kommando chief Is any your answer is "possibly". Do you call that being honest with the Tribunal?

A Your Honor, Your Honor, I beg your pardon. I do not want to he frivolous. Your Honor, and I do not want to give frivolous answers to the Tribunal.

Q You tell me if that isn't a frivolous answer: Here's a high ranking officer on a very important mission; he calls on you and asks for the kommando chief and where is he, and I ask you if this wouldn't be the most natural and normal inquiry and you said, "possibly;" isn't that a frivolous answer? I would have to give you a further explanation of course, and, the possibility, of course, should have to be explained.

Q Answer me. Answer me. Here is someone -here is someone from the Army command. He is seeking the kommando chief. He calls at your office. He asks for the senior officer and he is presented to you and he says, "Major I want to talk to the kommando chief. I don't see him about where is he?" Would that be a natural inquiry? the kommando chief has told you that he has gone to perform an execution?

A In that case, I would have said, "I very much regret to tell you that the kommando leader is not here. If I can do anything for you, or if I can bring a message from you to the kommando leader, I am at your disposal". the execution? He told you where the executions were taking place, didn't he? didn't know where he was, where the kommando chief was? personally to tell me or that I found out in another way that he was not present.

Q And he didn't tell you where he was going?

A He did not say so in each case. Sometimes he just left and said he would he back in one hour. the execution would be performed and where he could be founds in the event it would be necessary to locate him?

Q And you weren't, as a senior officer, interested in finding out where your commanding officer would be? about this matter, but, if he does not regard it as necessary, then, of course, I am not informed. in all?

Q Why were they killed?

kommando, you learned of six or seven executions. Then you left, and you don't know to this day how many were killed in these six or seven executions or why they were killed. could reconstruct this from the reports of events, but not from my own knowledge and experiences.

Q And you don't know why they were killed? security of the operational area.

Q You only assumed that. You don't know from your own knowledge?

A I did not investigate, Your Honor,'

Q You don't know then why they were killed. Your assumption is that they were killed because they threatened the security, is that right? been killed just because they were Jews? days, of course, I did not assume so. because they were Jews?

Q And, you stand on that answer?

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Fritz, any further questions?

DR. SUESS (Attorney for the Defendant Schulz): Your Honor, I should like to put a few questions to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Please do.

DR. SUESS: Thank you. BY DR. SUESS (Attorney for the Defendant Schulz): return from Russia to Berlin you learned that in Lemberg mass executions of Jews had taken place.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: As far as I recall, this question was answered by the witness in direct examination. Dr. Suess would have had to ask the witness this question before the cross examination by the prosecution took place. This is not a question which came out during cross-examination or during direct examination, or subsequent examination of the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes you can only question on matters which have come up after the direct examination terminated because you had the opportunity when the direct examination ended to put questions,

DR. SUESS: Your Honor, in my knowledge, as far as I remember, there was no opportunity for the defense counsel of the remaining defendants to put questions to the witness immediately after the direct examination, The questions by the President began.

THE PRESIDENT: There was no opportunity for you just because you weren't here.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, Counsel for Defendant Schulz is certainly not correct in this respect.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, he's correct. He didn't have any opportunity because he wasn't here.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If Your Honors please, that doesn't change the ruling.

THE PRESIDENT: Were you here, Counsel, or not?

DR. SUESS: I was not here, Your Honor, No.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, well, why do you say that no opportunity was allowed defense counsel?

DR. SUESS: I asked my colleagues because I assumed that I would be in a position to put these questions.

I therefore now withdraw my question. am just told that these questions which refer to Lemberg and Olmoetz, I want to mention them as key words, that these questions only came up during the cross-examination. That is, not before that.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If Your Honors please--

THE PRESIDENT: Now we will make our ruling, Mr. Hochwald. The ruling is that Mr. Hochwald is absolutely right in his examination, hut we are going to pay no attention to Mr. Hochwald's objections and we are going to let you put the questions.

DR. SUESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q Witness, I repeat: In your direct examination you said that upon your return from Russia to Berlin you heard that in Lemberg mass executions of Jews had taken place. At what period were you in Lemberg at the time.

Q Who carried out these executions you heard about? office of the commander of the Security Police and SD in Lemberg. the prosecutor that you heard about the arrest of Jews who had remained-this could create the impression that at that time'

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Just a minute I do not like to raise the point, Your Honor, but it is absolutely clear that the impression which can be caused by this answer -- this is a question of argument, but not a question to be put to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes this is not the time for argumentation. You can ask him any question which will elicit an objective answer, but to argue with him is not within the province of cross-examination.

DR. SUESS: Yes, Your Honor, I think you for pointing this out, I shall put the question in another form.

15 Dec 1947_M_MSD_10_6_Arminger (Hildesheimer) Q (By Dr. Suess): Witness, were all Jews, the entire Jewish population that is, arrested in Olmuetz?

A I don't know, I saw Jews in the street.

Q A further question: Did you know the Defendant Schulz in Olmuetz?

A Yes, I saw him in Olmuetz. He was the Chief of the Einsatzkommando. Einsatzkommando in Olmuetz?

A I couldn't tell you exactly, I am afraid. According to my memory it could only have been a few weeks. sent to concentration camps. This was a subject that the prosecutor discussed two days ago? concentration camps?

MR. HORLICK_HOCHWALD: This question is obviously inadmissable; as the witness has said he can't say when these people were sent to the concentration camp, how can he say whether it was done by Schulz or not?

DR. SUESS: I withdraw the question, Your Honor. Thank you very much.

DR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I have one question only in connection with the question put by Dr. Suss. BY DR. HOCHWALD: out of executions in Lemberg, and you answered the executions in Lem berg, they must have been carried out under order of the local commander of the Security Police find SD, is that correct, did you say that? spent the night. this execution, do you? carried out during those days.

Q That is all you know? participated in it, that is what I heard.

Q In the beginning of October, is that right?

Q At what time did these killings take place? place during the days before I arrived, which is during the previous weeks.

Q All during September 1941?

A Yes. That is how I understood it.

Q It was not then at the end of June or the beginning of July 1941?

THE PRESIDENT: Did you find out who the local commander was?

MR. HOCHWALD: Your Honors, I do not think that this question is of importance here, as in September 1941 the Einsatzcommando was under the command of the defendant Schulz who had already left Lemberg, hut I asked this question as the impression was created that the killings which happened at the end of June, or at the beginning of July, 41, were carried out by the local commander, and I have elicited a note from the witness that these killings he heard about are not in connection with the killings with which the defendant Schulz is charged.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. All right.

MR. HOCHWALD: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Fritz, any further questions?

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, I had only one question, this was to correct something which has been discussed repeatedly on Saturday. The defendant Fendler answered to a question which Mr. Hochwald put to him, that in June 1941 in Lemberg he learned of mass executions.

Q That is what you said on such a day, isn't it?

MR. HOCHWALD: I think that I asked the witness whether he heard about executions when he was there in June 1941, or when he returned in October 1941, and he answered that he heard about it when he returned at the beginning of October 1941. I think that is clear.

THE WITNESS: My remark also refers to the finding of the corpses in prison of Lemberg. There were 7,000 about which I learned in June when staying in Lemberg. This perhaps caused a misunderstanding that these two events are mixed up.

DR. FRITZ: I have no more questions, Your Honor, on re-cross examination,

THE PRESIDENT: The witness will be returned to the defendants' dock, and the defendant von Radetsky will take the stand.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor -

THE PRESIDENT: I am sorry.

DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, I have not quite concluded the submission of my document book, and I would like to use this opportunity. There are only a few documents I would like to offer now.

THE PRESIDENT: You -don't need the witness on the witness stand?

DR. FRITZ: NO.

THE PRESIDENT: the Marshal will please return the defendant to the defendants' dock.

(Witness excused)

DR. FRITZ: I offer as my next document, the first document in the Document Book of Fendler's on pages 1 and 2. It is an affidavit of Dittrich, as Fendler's Exhibit No. 18. I do not want to read from its' contents, Your Honor, but it certifies the statements that the defendant made concerning his activity in Breslau, also in Sudentenland, and concerning his activities in the Einsatz, and, later in the Office VI, of the Reich Security Main Office. I furthermore offer the document on pages 15 to 18, of Document Book, Fendler's Document No. 8, the affidavit of Wilhelm Waneck. I offer it as IT Fendler's Exhibit No. 19. It is en affidavit again which I am not going to read. The witness Waneck was group chief, and Obersturmbannfuehrer in Office VI, of the Reich Security Main Office, and here described the creation of the Einsatzgruppen, or Einsatzcommandos. In the paragraph before the last of this affidavit he deals with the personality of the defendant Fendler. Furthermore, I offer another affidavit by Schellenberg, which is on pages 57 to 59 of the Document Book. It is Fendler's Document Not 17. I offer it as Exhibit No. 20. In addition, the next three documents in the defendant's document book, that is, Fendler's Document 18 on pages 60 to 61, I offer it as Fendler's Exhibit No. 21; the affidavit of Richard Brass, on pages 62 and 63, that is Fendler's Document No. 19 as Fendler's Exhibit No. 23, and, affidavit of Marie Bartl on pages 64 and 65, Document 20. 20, I offer as Fendler's Exhibit No. 24. These last four affidavits, that is, Schellenberg, Susmuth, Bartl, Brass, Your Honor, consist of personal opinion of character. I do not want to read them into the record, but I should like the Tribunal to take note of their contents, as, especially the affidavit of Sussmuth and Bartl -

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Fritz, did you purposely skip No, 22? You gave Exhibit Nos. 21 and then Exhibit No. 23. DR. FRITZ: Your Honor, I think I made a mistake. In this case I offer Bartl's affidavit, that is Fendler Document No. 20 as Exhibit Fendler No. 22.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. What page is that? DR. FRITZ: Pages 64 - 65. These affidavits show that Fendler while he was a member of the SD, supported and helped prosecute people, even Jews, so that these affidavits bear out his statement on the witness stand that he did not participate in and didn't possibly give orders for executions in the East and that he kept away from them, Finally, I point out that a number of those affidavits which I already submitted on Saturday also-contain statements concerning the conduct of the defendant Fendler, and again I would like the Tribunal to take note of these statements contained in the affidavits. With this I have submitted all the documents contained in the document Book No. I of Fendler's and this for the time being concludes my case for the defendant Fendler. I should like, Your Honor, to submit a few further documents at a later date, for which I still an waiting at the present time.

THE PRESIDENT: You may submit them when you are able to Set them into your hands.

DB. FRITZ: Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant von Radetzky will be taken to the witness box.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant von Salt sky will be taken to the witness stand. follows:

JUDGE DIXON: Defendant, raise your right hand and repeat the oath after me. I swear by God, the Almighty and Omniscient, that I will speak the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing (The witness repeated the oath). You may be seated.

TEE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, please.

DR. RATZ: Dr. Ratz for the defendant von Radetzky.

BY DR. RATZ:

A My name is Waldemar von Radetzky. I was born on 3 May 1910 in Moscow. My father came from Riga, and my mother came from Bremen. Our family had emigrated to the Baltic States in 1730 Q. Where did you spend your childhood? Black Sea, and in Riga. The First World War surprised us when we were in Moscow where we escaped deportation to Siberia as Germans but our stay in Moscow was restricted, while relatives of mine were actually deported to Siberia. In 1918 we succeeded in escaping to my ancestral city Riga. Moscow had already been occupied by the Bolshevists. My father had died in the meantime. city of Riga? bourgeois we lost everything. Many of us went to prison, were deported or shot.

THE PRESIDENT: You say "Many of us were deported or shot"?

THE WITNESS: By that I mean the Germans who lived in the Baltic the population.

BY DR, RAZZ: later? groops who drove out the Bolshevists and Latvia became a newly established State. The new State could only build up its existence from the arailable resources and these were largely in German hands. I must briefly discuss the historical development of the Baltic States and I would like the Tribunal to be patient for a few minutes while I do so. That is, the situation as regards the States as they are today, Estonia, and Latvia. At the beginning of the Thirteenth Century the then Livonia was populated and colonized by Germans and at that time in those centuries, the Germans emigrated to this country, and they administered the country under German, Swedish, Danish, Russian and Polish sovereignty, all according to the developments even though they were never more than six percent of the total population. I say and I emphasize this because only this shows my personal attitude towards other national groups with whom we always lived together, end we supplemented each other in many respects. The first translation of the Bible, the first grammar, all churches and public institutions, were erected by the Germans. The rest of the population was admitted to the State University just as the Germans were and during the three last centuries we also had to suffer from the Russian domination. This was especially the case when Bismarck declared in 1882 that Germany was not interested in the Baltic States, and from 1890 a ruthless Russification took place which affected everybody. There were only Russian schools from then on, a Russian administration, although the percentage of the Russian population was minimal, because Latvians, Estonians populated the country. Only the World War put an end to this development, and after the post-war chaos in my home country, the independent States of Estonia and Latvia were created.

of these countries?

A Yes. In my home country Latvia, we had six of the one-hundred deputies, and a number of ministers, but it could not be prevented that the entire German real estate property was expropriated without compensation, although we had contributed our share in liberating the country from Bolshevism, This expropriation robbed the German community of its material basis, but this didn't prevent-

MR. HOCHWALD: Your Honors, I hate to interrupt the witness-but the witness has been lecturing now about, things which he absolutely can not testify to. All these happenings about which he spoke and which I believe are completely immaterial for the case before the Tribunal, happened either before he was born, or when he was an infant. Everything which he told the Tribunal here may be so or may not be so, but the Prosecution in any case does not want to offer evidence that his information in this respect is incorrect, and the Prosecution thinks it is immaterial in the case before the Tribunal but there are two things: First, the witness can not testify to facts which he has not experienced himself, and, secondly I do not think that what the witness says here is material for the case.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ratz, the big mistake the witness made was that when he began to testify on this subject, he said, I hope that the Tribunal will be patient, but he didn't hope that Mr. Hochwald would be patient. Now there is the big mistake he made. The Tribunal was patient, but Mr. Hochwald was not. So suppose that we have a recess and during that time Mr. Hochwald will get over his impatience, and the witness will resolve to be just a little briefer, and then I think we will all be happy. The Tribunal will be in recess until 1: 45 o'clock.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until 1345 hours.

(Recess taken until 1345 hours, 15 December 1947) (The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 15 December 1947) THE MARSHAL:

The Tribunal is again in session. BY DR. RATZ: Your Honor, may I be permitted to say something to the objection of the Prosecutor. Of course, while preparing the examination of the defendant I saw to it that the statement would be as concentrated as possible, and does not become too diffused. In the case at issue here it is necessary however in my opinion for the defense of the defendant that he is allowed to make certain statements about his background before 1939 since he was a foreigner until 1939 in Germany and since he comes from a background which is completely different from any type of background prevailing in Germany. But, I shall try to limit myself only to what is necessary.

THE PRESIDENT: You will proceed, Dr. Ratz, BY DR. RATZ: Germans participated in the construction of these Baltic States and you answered this question in part. Now you wanted to say something about the expropriation of property which happened to the Germans?

A Yes. I said that our property was expropriated and that this expropriation robbed the Germans of their material foundation. Nevertheless they cooperated in the welfare of the country because Chauvinistic motives were strange to them. influence on your development?

start from the beginning. My family had furnished for the country officers, farmers, intellectuals and was used to a high level of life. It was a matter of getting back to this level and it was decided, against my early tendencies, for me to become a farmer, that I should become a business man, a career which determined my schooling. I spent the summer in the countryside and during the winter I went to school.

Q What did you do after completing your schooling? managed an export department. Later, after I completed my military service, in the year 1933 I joined an import business as an employee in Riga and became a Prokurist. I succeeded in this firm which dealt with Germany, England, and Czechoslovakia despite difficult economic conditions to help this firm get started. I held this position until 1939 when the resettlement of Germans to Germany took place and when the firm where I was to become a partner in 1940 was dissolved. Furthermore, I worked at the Herder Institute. Riga? lectures of economics at the Herder Institute which was under the direction of the Latvian Ministry of Education. I was requested then to take over the direction of the economic research agency because they needed someone who was trained both in theory and practice. The job of this research agency was to introduce practical tasks to the young students as they had to be performed in the daily business life, in order to base their theoretical knowledge on it.

Q What were your extracurricular interests?

A Sports and art. I was a member of a sport club and liked to sail in the Riga Yacht Club where in the year 1936 I passed an examination as a navigator.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ratz, I think you are commencing to ruffle the sails of Mr. Hochwald again. He is beginning to show a little impatience about this yachting trip. If he could sail with somebody else aboard a yacht I think he would feel much happier than he is right now.

DR. RATZ: I shall come to another more important question, your Honor, right away, but perhaps the defendant may add one other sentence which concerns his extra-curricular interests. and of the Goethe Organization and the Herder Organization.

THE PRESIDENT: That pleases Mr. Hochwald much more. BY DR. RATZ: at that time? Socialism, from that moment on when it seized power in Germany, because this did not remain without effect on the countries near Germany, from Estonia down to the Balkans and on the two million Germans living there. A number of countries answered the seizure of power in Germany by measures of suppression against the Germans and these Germans were put in a position of defense which was neither desired nor looked for by them. Germany started to get concerned about its suppressed peoples abroad, but in our country it limited itself to a cultural taking care of the schools and the public institutions. Whatever came to us by way of ideology had to go through the State censorship. Thus, for example, the books "Mein Kampf" and the "Mythos" were forbidden.

Travels to Germany were limited and the contact with the old mother country had become very loose. But, what prejudiced me in favor of this was the "Maxim", the love of ones own country as conditioned by respect for another country, Since I saw a new possibility here of mutual respect and thus a new order of the completely chaotic minority -

THE PRESIDENT: Don't you think, witness, that the exclusion of the book "The Myth" by Rosenberg was of great benefit to everybody? was of great benefit? THE PRESIDENT: Yes, don't you think it was a great benefit, because don't you think it would have added greatly to the chaos?

A Your Honor, I don't think that the effect of this book could have been very great. I later tried to read from it and I didn't understand anything of it. THIS PRESIDENT: Well, that's the reason I say it was of great benefit to keep out a book like that. I haven't yet found anyone who understood it.

A Well, that is why I don't think it was important. In any way, I merely meant to express by that that a number of ideas did not reach us. THE PRESIDENT: Well I assure you you were better of not to get those ideas.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, please. BY DR. RATZ:

Q Will you then continue with your contacts to National Socialism? religious basis. There was no so-called time of struggle because there was no one against whom to struggle. From abroad too it was tried to bring matters to an extremity when on the instigation of a foreign power an effort was made to disturb the peaceful economic conditions prevailing between Germany and Latvia, in the year 1936, arrests of Germans took place indiscriminately, and during the course of which I was also arrested. After I was released I protested to the Senate, the supreme court of the land in order to achieve my rehabilitation and I was granted this in full measure. In order to conclude this, I never did understand the Fuehrer principle and the race theory, But one thing did result from this development: That was the possibility to do justice to my social conscience on the one hand and my position as merchant on the other. After a lengthy period of co-operation, I took over an office for vocational-guidance and furtherance with the German Community of the country and I made the attempt to extend this and make it into an economic agency.

Q What do you mean by German community? cognized by International Law and had partly autonomous powers.

Q What did you do within the German community, witness? was most important. I helped found a fund with which craftsmen were given a possibility to make a living, and with the help of industrialists whom I knew I founded homes in which families of small workers and employees could find recreation. I can say that this was the happiest time in my life because every day I was able to look into grateful eyes. Thus, when the resettlement to Germany took place I had achieved my economic and social position by my own power.

and the Fuehrer principle. See why such a principle, outside of the purely military field, could do any benefit because necessarily it excludes any competition; but as far as the race theory is concerned I grew up in daily contact with other peoples. I saw that without distinction of race or position successes and lack of successes were registered and I explained how a young people in my country registered considerable achievements in the social and cultural spheres even though first by using foreign materials but this was a question of development. In school I had many Jewish comrades because their parents were glad to send them to our school and I used to visit Jewish homes in my own home town. If we had not been as tolerant as we were in our home town we would have long disappeared from there. As the measures of suppression effected each one of us, we tried to overcome them with patience and conviction. I experienced myself what a national intolerance would bring with it and that it always comes from a weakness, not a strength of national selfreliance. gained an insight into motives and conflicts of other races. How do you mean this? cribed to me as such. Due to the free manner of our education at home and the church, the Bible had always been interpreted as national history of the Jewish people. But I not only mixed with socially but also in my business for 50% of my customers were Jewish firms; I often discussed this matter with them. We were all sitting in the same boat. We had the same cares and worries and the State, whose minority we were, had consideration for the Geneva minority protection decrees of Geneva only in as far as it concerned the worship and schooling. As part of a nation they overlooked us; when then from 1936 the expropriation Court No. II, Case No. IX.

also extended to commerce and industry by which every property of minorities was equally effected, we helped each other and the rise of my own firm in these difficult years I do ascribe to this circumstance. I never noticed any trace to support Goebbels' propaganda in what it said about the Jews. position and still you settled in Germany? speech in which he announced that because of the continuous conflicts with ethnic Germans abroad agreements would have to be made once and for all with States in which these Germans were living in order to bring all Germans into one area. After a short time negotiators from Germany arrived and with the aid of the German ambassador they started negotia tions to this effect with the government concerned.

Q Were you in agreement with this resettlement? one else and I didn't want to go to Germany - Germany was strange to me.

Q. But then you did resettle, and even were active in this resettlement?

A. Yes, when the rumor turned out to be the truth, that on the basis of the negotiations between the Soviet Union and Estonia and Latvia the occupation of these countries by the Bolshevists was imminent, I had no other choice, and the more so as thus, my existence now, my firm would be dissolved. Latvia also demanded that with this intended resettlement the minority statute for the Germans would be considered as revoked, since all Germans had to leave the country. I was now asked as a co-worker of the German community to make an account of the economic values, which were to be settled and I did this with a commission in the German Legation.

Q. Was the resettlement then a compulsory one in your opinion?

A. It was not a compulsory one as far as the treaty is concerned which was signed on the 30th of October, 1939, between the two states, for no one was herded into ships by Rifles, but it left us no choice insofar as the treaty of assistance, concluded between the Soviet Union and Latvia, opened the country to Bolshevism, and on the other side the treaty about the resettlement, at the request of the Latvian Government, provided that every German was considered outlawed because he belonged to the German minority. Thus there could be no such thing as German property any longer, apart from all other considerations.

Q. What was your activity during this resettlement?

A. On the basis of my exact knowledge of the economy I had to advise in the restitution of the German property of such firms as estates, companies, insurance, etc., and to see to it that the resettlers would be resettled in Germany with a legal claim and with the prerequisites mentioned in the treaty, to be compensated for the property they had left behind.

Q. How long did you do this work, and when did you yourself resettle?

A. I did this work for about a month. I had to conclude all the business affairs in my firm, and in the middle of November, 1939, I myself resettled, I had been informed that the resettlers who had already left had been housed in various towns, but only temporarily, and as refugees, and that it was necessary to care for them from an economic viewpoint, because the competence of the German Office for the Repatriation of Ethnic Germans, which was responsible for the resettlement, had ceased to be effective at the German border, and no one knew his way around the chaos of the directives which contradicted each other.

Q. Thus, do you think that the Baltic Germans left their country voluntarily, or not?

A. They did not leave voluntarily because they fled from Bolshevism which was approaching, and because of the fact that their fate was decreed by treaties without their being asked about it.

THE PRESIDENT: Where did you go to, Witness? I don't think that you have told us.

THE PRESIDENT: Your Honor, I went to Posen.

THE PRESIDENT: I see. Very well. Did you go there because you chose that place, or did this organization for resettlement indicate where you were to go?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, it was prescribed exactly who was to go where.

THE PRESIDENT: I see.

THE WITNESS: The population of Riga had to go to Posen. There was no free choice of where one wanted to live.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q. (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, you said that you resettled to Posen. Can you say on the basis of what directives the Baltic Germans were sent to Posen?

A. I learned about this later, that Himmler, as the Commissar for the Strengthening of Germanism, had issued a certain decree according to which the various people were to be transported on trucks, I was asked to work along in an advisory capacity at a Baltic agency since I had a lot of economic information at my disposal which I had learned in the brief activity at home, and in order to help take care of the economic interests of my fellow Baltics who, like myself, did not know the conditions inside Germany, and to advise them on this.

Q. was this agency an institution of the Party or of the State?

A. No, this advisory gency was founded by the r esettlers themselves, On the part of the State there were very many organizations who were all competent for us in some way, and we were only able to find cur way through them very slowly. Because of these many various agencies, an agency for the Baltics was not provided, and apart from a few Reich agencies, they put obstacles in its way.

Q. Witness, will you please tell the Tribunal what jobs t is advisory agency had in detail.

A. The jobs were as follows: A thorough investigation of the economic problems of the resettlers had not been possible in the homeland because time was short. This was done subsequently. The second job was that of getting hold of the property of the resettlers, that is about more than fifty shiploads of cattle and all sorts of property, machines, to help them in transporting this matter, and to see that they were recompensated for any damage for which the Reich was responsible. As the third job I must list the address register; as the fourth, a general human advisory council, and finally the protection of the funds of the German Association in Estonia and Latvia and of the cultural property we had brought along.

Q. what was the personnel composition of this agency; were there any Reich Germans in it?

A. No Reich German participated, and it was composed of businessmen, industrialists, craftsmen and employees who had already worked on this resettlement problem in the homeland.

Q. How were you received in the new home?

A. while the Office for the Repatriation of Ethnic Germans had done everything in order to relieve the fate of the homeless people, the competent district leader received us with a speech in which he told us that he would drive our ideas of mastery out of us and he would teach us National Socialism, which he didn't achieve though in the sense in which he indicated, but he enlightened us in good time, and thus conditioned our actions by what he said.

Q. Did you expect such a reception personally?

A. In no sense. I developed a conflict under which many decent Germans suffered; on the one hand, tohelp the old Fatherland in its most serious war, and, on the other hand, to have to refuse its ideology in most essential points.

Q. Did these events change your attitude towards National Socialism?

A. It confirmed my opinion that good and decent people want more things, the more I saw, that there were enough people of my own circle and old National Socialists, drew the same conclusion. But this resulted in the fact that I became self-absorbed, especially when I established the fact that neither I nor myself could change anything in the matters as they existed.

THE PRESIDENT: That answer is a little involved, Dr. Ratz. Could he state it more succinctly? Your question was very relevant. The answer seemed to have rambled somewhat. If he could put that a little more briefly and a little more objectively.

Q. (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, you heard what my question said.

It said whether through the events which you experienced at the time the resettlement was accomplished your attitude towards National Socialism changed any?

A. Well, it changed in a very essential point. I was able to see how that there was no concern about individual phenomenon within the people but that everything had to be brought on a common denominator which, in my opinion at the time, had to bring about a lower and not a higher level.

THE PRESIDENT: Would you say that your conclusion was that National Socialism was not genuinely and sincerely interested in the individual but was interested more in an ideological program involving munbers which did not effect or did not concern itself with the individual?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor. The general policy of making everything uniform in all variations had the final goal of making everything equal, and this was completely incomprehensible to me, which I had not expected.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, please.

BY DR. RATZ:

Q. You said before that you could not change anything in the development as it existed and that, therefore, you became introverted to a largo degree. Could you work undistrubed in your advisory agency?

A. No, In the middle of December, 1939, Himmler made an appearance in Poson in order to inspect his agencies. He was immediately informed about the existence of our own advisory agency. He decreed its dissolution. The head of this department for the repatriation of ethnic Germans who was escorting him - succeeded in having this decree revoked by suggesting that he would take over this advisory agency in its entirety, and I must frankly admit, we had to be grateful and happy about this at the moment, because this solution helped many people for now their material interests could be taken care of to an even greater extent, by the fellow-country men

Q. Did the fact that this agency was taken over into the Office for the Repatriation of Ethnic Germans change anything in the character of your activity or the type of the agency?

A. No, it regained an advisory agency, had no powers, whatsoever and merely received a new designation. It was as follows: Office for the Repatriation of Ethnic Germsns, Advising Resettlers in the District of Poson. I no longer was the representative of this agency for advising resettlers, since the reorganization was carried out according to German models I received a per diem salary of 12 marks and continued to recieve this salary until the end of the war uninterruptedly, even after I was put on an emergency war status for the RSHA. I had no contract. Everything continued as before, apart from the 1 letterhead which was of good use to us, and apart from the fact that in March of the coming year when I reported to the Army this was answered by deferring mo, against which I protested without success.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, did they pay you even when you weren't working at that job?

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor; until the end of the war.

THE PRESIDENT: What did they do, just forget you were on the payroll and continue to pay you even though you weren't working?

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor, in this emergency war status there are two types. The first type of emergency war service was with a position and one was without a position. The Emergency war service with a position includes the full salary, but on the service without a position, or without a contract, the agency with whom I worked thus far had to continue my salary.

I personally was always interested in not changing my emergency war status with the RSHA, into the other type, because this would have been equivalent to the position of an employee, and I would have had no prospect of ever getting out of this emergency war status.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Q. (BY Dr. Ratz) Witness, if I understood you correctly, you said that your emergency war orders to the RSHA was a service without contract. This would mean then that your contract thus far with the resettlers agency continued?

A. Yes.

Q. And thus this is the reason that this agency continued to pay your salary until the end of the war, is that right?

A. Yes, Beyond that, during the time of my furlough, I had to work in this agency, and I always worked there again.

Exhibit 139, page 39 of the German text, page 22 of the English.

MR. HORLICIK-HOCHWALD: Your Honors, this document starts on page 22 of the English.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, thank you.

DR. RATZ: It says there: SS Untersturmfuehrer von Radetzky was admitted to the SS Schutzstaffel by the Reichsfuehrer SS personally at the occasion of his visit in Posen on the 12th or 13th of December, and was promoted to SS Untersturmfuehrer.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Your Honors, the quote is on page 26 under the heading of page 4 of the original.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I see it now. BY DR. RATZ: the dissolution of this Advisory Agency for Baltic Germans. After, however, the Director of the Office for the Repatriation for Ethnic Germans had incorporated this agency into his office, Himmler gave the order to take the employees of this advisory agency into the SS and at the same time to express a recognition of the services already rendered for the resettling work. These negotiations were supposed to have lasted for two whole days while Himmler was in Posen, since in any case he did not want to see this advisory agency. That's how I suddenly got into the SS. I neither made an application for admission nor was I asked about it.

Q Could you at that time object to being taken into the SS?

Q How did you get into uniform? put in uniform. At this occasion I heard the expression "wearer of the uniform" for the first time. I was told I was to consider myself as such and that I would incur no obligation.

At this occasion I wore the uniform for the first time. oath for the SS or did you obligate yourself to do any duty for the SS? such obligations or myself nor did I take an oath. I did not have to show any so-called proof of my Aryan descent, did not have to ask for any marriage permission, did not have to leave the church, did not have to join the Lebensborn, did not have to pay any membership fees and never attended a rally of the SS. Therefore, I, could never assume, on my part, that my membership in the SS was anything but a nominal one. since the conditions for such a membership were not met. circumstance to be especially careful, since I never contested a formal membership. This would be absurd, but I don't see why I should be called to account today for obligations which to avoid I never had the rights to.

Q Witness, I come to a new point: When did you come to Schmiedeberg? old homeland, where I was employed for the subsequent resettlement of the Baltics, when I had come back frommy furlough, an order by the school for Border Police in Pretzsch called no to duty, and I had to comply with this order within 24 hours. This was in the middle of May. about your mission?

this was a war assignment which would be concluded by December at the latest. I was not told anything further.

Q As what were you being called to duty for? office for the repatriation of ethnic Germans, since December of the year 1940, I was not even allowed to wear any insignia of rank and did not wear any such. Book III-C, page 45 of the German text. It is Document NO-4771 (i), Exhibit 139.

THE PRESIDENT: Page 22?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: It starts on page 22 but Dr. Ratz wants to read from a later date, 1 will try to get the page.

INTERPRETED: The letter "i" is on page 29, your Honor.

DR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: It is on page 29, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. BY DR. RATZ:

Q. There it says, "Under cancellation of his assignment to the BdS Ukraine, the SS Sturmbannfuehrer (NDV) Waldemar von Radetzky was transferred." Will you the Tribunal what the initials "NDV" mean?

Q Who put you on such p status? of personnel for the performing of missions of special state political importance on 15 October 1938. This status was immediately announced by the regional office, by the Mayor of the City of Posen, who was competent according to an announcement which said that government agencies could demand emergency service. This was on the 8th of July 1939. During my war emergency status in May 1941 I was busy with the advisory agency for Baltic Germans in Posen.

this emergency status or of evading it?

Q What effect did this have? order to be drafted which had to be complied with. Whoever refused to comply with this had to expect the same consequences as one who would have refused to do any war service. The compulsion of this war emergency status can be seen from the fact that this was announce, even though the office for the repatriation of ethnic Germans, who had incorporated the advisory agency for resettlers, had deferred me.

Q Would you please explain what the designation "UK" means, to be deferred? man power and means that the person concerned can not be drafted for the army. became a member of the SD? of the SD, either in full time capacity or in an honorary capacity. The war emergency status merely started an activity in the SD and this activity had to last as long as this status was effective.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ratz, would you went to suspend now for the afternoon recess? The Tribunal will be in recess 15 minutes.

(A recess was taken) Court No. II, Case No. IX.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed.

Q (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, we spoke of your war emergency status. Could you on such a status, object to your call to report to Schmiedeberg? on that basis, I came under the jurisdiction of the Chief of the RSHA and apart from that I was subordinated to the SS and Police court. As I have already said, war emergency service had the same effect as a military draft. Blobel on the 19th of October, 1947, -- it is in the transcript, German text page 1751 -- in connection with your own person, witness, the question was raised whether it was true that those on a war emergency status were supposed only to serve in the Reich Security Main Office, but they would not serve in an Einsatzgruppe. Would you please comment on this? in the RSHA and not for service in the Einsatzgruppe. I would like to clarify this again. The war emergency status is imposed by the Department I, Personnel Department of RSHA, for service in the Einsatzkommandos. Only based on the war emergency status could I begin my activity in the SK 4A. Until the end of my activity in the SK 4A and after that, up to the end of my activity in the Reich Security Main Office, I was on this war emergency status.

Q When did you first learn of your war emergency status?

AAbout two weeks after I had arrived in Schmiedeberg. I received a temporary registration card, in which my war emergency service for the Department I of the RSHA was explained, and a certain Hauptsturmfuehrer Ulrich in Schmiedeberg informed me that I, in accordance with my recruitment, was due to have war emergency status for the Reich Security Main Office and would have to take part regularly in military training.

and did you also receive a police training? consisted of exercises and weapons training and than regularly physical exercises and games. ever discussed at that time?

Q Witness, we are now coming to the SK 4A. When did you join the SK 4A? of June, 1941.

Q Who was the chief of SK 4A? often mentioned here, with Streckenbach or in Berlin? learn anything about the discussions having taken place, except here in Nurnberg.

Q What ware you told when you were detailed to the SK 4A? as expert on the country. Furthermore, I had to take part in a discussion at which general directives for reporting were given and I had such a discussion with an officer of the Office VI of the RSHA. reporting? Dept III on the Staff of Einsatzgruppe C, in Schmiedeberg at the beginning of our activities. The Departmental Chiefs were present and were informed about the character of their futura work. It was explicitly pointed out that the Departmental Experts for reporting would work in their own sphere of activities.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD : If the Tribunal please, it seems inadmissible that the witness testifies to facts which he does not know. He told the Tribunal very explicitly that he did not know a thing about these meetings in Schmiedeberg, but now he is going into great detail in order to explain to the Tribunal what happened there.

THE PRESIDENT: The observation is entirely a logical one. What do you have to say to that, Dr. Ratz?

DR. RATZ: I believe that the witness is testifying from his own experience, and he has said this remark only concerns the name of this chief who was discussed, Hennicke, of whom I shall submit an affidavit and whose name the witness probably did not know at the time.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, if Dr. Ratz has some proof for these facts from Hennicke it seems to be entirely immaterial that the witness testifies what Hennicke told him here in the jail or what are the contents of the affidavit. The affidavit is the proof before the Tribunal, but what the witness says he heard here from Hennecke generally, meanwhile, after the trial here started, is no proof at all, no proof whatsoever. An affidavit of Hennecke is available. The witness is available for cross-examination, but I do not think that this is the proper subject for the interrogation of a third person, in this case, the defendant, who does not know anything from his own knowledge about this fact.

DR. RATZ: Your Honor, it is here a matter of two discussions. One is the discussion with Streckenbach and one is the discussion with Hennecke. As for the discussion with Hennecke, the witness can tell us about it from his own experience. I should like to ask the witness whether he himself can state facts about this discussion according to his own experience or only by way of the affidavit, Witness, will you please comment on this?

THE WITNESS: I answered your question whether I took part in any discussions with Streckenbach or in Berlin, by saying that I did not take part in these discussions. I further went on to say that I took part in other discussions, for instance, one discussion concerning Court No. II, Case No. IX.

reports and reporting and then another discussion with an officer from Office VI. In those days I was new and I do not know the names of these people who had these discussions, but I made sure that this discussion about reporting was presided over by Hennecke at the time in Schmiedeberg and therefore I said, "As I know now."

Q (By Dr. Ratz) But you know from your own memory about this discussion? don't know whether it was Hennicke or somebody else from my recollection of that time, but when I attempted to clarify matters now, I found out that Hennicke must have actually preside over the discussion then.

Q A further question. What special subjects did these reports include? education, theatres, religion, and so on.

Q How were the reports actually issued?

A The work was of a reporting nature. First, the material for the reports had to be found. This was done by contacting the population and by looking for the sources for reports. Then reports were made out of this material. Responsible for this were the departmental experts of Office III,

Q To whom did these reports go?

A That depended. They went to the Chief III who was with the Staff of the Einsatzgruppe.

Q Was executive activity mentioned in these reports? and they were issued by experts, that is, the Departmental Experts IV, but I had nothing to do with that, because I was Departmental Expert III, time?

Q When did you leave Schmiedeberg and where did you go? went via Liegnitz, Gleiwitz, Cracow, to Rubirshow Here, Blobel, who had left the kommando meanwhile, rejoined it and with one part of the kommando he went to Sokal, while the remainder, including myself, followed him.

Q Did you on that occasion have discussions with Blobel? that ruthless security measures against Communist functionaries had been ordered by the Fuehrer, I asked that my activity to be outlined because I did not want to have nothing to do with this kind of police task. When this order was proclaimed, Blobel said that in this, Jewry had to be regarded as the essential bearer of Bolshevism. Healso said that when the security of the unit made it necessary, collective measures were possible too, however, these could only be ordered by the battalion commander or a higher-ranking officer. Blobel then ordered me, after I had objected to deal with the documents and utilize them for my reports for the SD as the Departmental Chief of Office III and to report to him and to the Einsatzgruppe about Ukrainian affairs. Further directives I did not receive from him concerning this activity. He only said that I would not be employed in the same manner as all the other officers of the commando as I did not fulfill the necessary conditions.

Q What conditions were these? of the kommandos? SD insignia, the distinction perhaps be comes most evident from the fact that I received a daily payment of One Mark Twenty, that is the price of a pack of cigarettes, while a Hauptsturmfuehrer or one of the officers of the RSHA in those days received Twelve Marks for his personal expenses. That is about ten times as much.

Q You said, "apart from a few external insignia." Did you wear SD insignia on your sleeve, or did you not? the course of time?

A No, no, and I had to use my own money occasionally. Later I received 75 Marks on one occasion when I was no longer in a position to pay my debts at the Officers Club. officer in the SK 4A?

A No, no. I was and I remained under war emergency status. I brought along my uniform from the Volksdeutsche Mittelstelle. Neither the uniform nor the rank would give any cause to think that I was an officer in the Security Police and SD. For this, other conditions were necessary; by that I mean, membership and previous training. executions? fact that I had an officer's rank did not alter this fact. My executive power did not go beyond my field of activities. This field of activities was the field of interpreting and reporting, and, later on, I became a liaison officer, as well. commander of SK 4A, Blobel, of 6 June 1947. It is contained in Document Book I, page 129 of the English text, page 163 of the German text, No 3824, Exhibit 31, and it says:

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I do think that Dr. Ratz will quote from para. 9, which is on the top of page 132.

Q (By Dr. Ratz) There it says, and I quote: "During the period of my absence the kommando was taken over by Dr. Rasch, Hauptsturmfuehrer Waldemar von Radetzky and Hauptsturmfuehrer Dr. Beyerp and under their direction a jumber of mass executions took place too." I now ask you, Witness, were you appointed by Blobel as his deputy or were you given the leadership of SK 4a in any form? ing this question when he was on the witness stand and he said that I was not his deputy, just as little as, according to my knowledge, Dr.

Rasch and Dr. Beyer were his deputies, and I wasn't either.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ratz, will you refresh my memory? Perhaps my colleagues recall it, but at the moment I don't recall whether the Defendant Blobel was questioned by you on this statement of his that the present defendant von Radetzky conducted mass executions.

DR. RATZ: Your Honor, I asked the Defendant Blobel on the 29th of October in detail about this matter. This is on page 1660 of the German transcript and it goes on to page 1667.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, can you give us the reference in the English transcript?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I do not have the English transcript with me at the moment, but tomorrow morning I shall be glad to inform the Tribunal,

THE PRESIDENT: I should like to know this afternoon so that I can read it tonight and tomorrow morning I will know what it's all about.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If Your Honors please, I will have it ready about five o'clock this afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: Fine. Thank you very much.

DR. RATZ: It was the afternoon session of the 29th of October.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

Q (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, you said that you moved on to Sokal. What happened in Sokal? Kommando to Luck.

Q In what capacity did you join the kommando in Luck? written material which was an activity within the general acitivy of an interpretar and as a departmental expert III.

Q What did you have to do in this assignment? material in the interest of the Reich, as the term was then used, and to safeguard such material. For this purpose I received a packet of confiscation posters which I had to affix to the buildings for this purpose. Then I was given the order on the way to Luck to pass by the Army Headquarters and to obtain general staff maps of the advance area and to take care of them in the future. Apart from that I was supposed to take care of the reporting.

Q Who was in charge of the kommando that proceeded to Luck? kommando. Funk was in charge of the kommando, as I found out later, that is, in Luck. He had to prepare the quarters for the SK 4A which was due there and Janssen was in charge of the executive activities.

Q To whom were you responsible in the fulfillment of your task?

Q And who gave you the order? othar officers in the Kommando were concerned?

Q What did you do in Luck? quarters. Then with the aid of the inhabitants, I searched public buildings and inspected them briefly. Wherever I thought there would be files I put up these confiscation posters in order to safeguard them in this way. Then I recruited some Poles and Ukrainians who knew Russian as well as German, and with the six men, who had been put at my disposal by the kommando and those inhabitants I started working on these files. The main task had to be done by myself as the German members of the kommando were vary difficult to train. For this purpose, I had to make many changes in the personnel. The files thus seized were always transported to the main building and there they were stacked up. Then I looked carefully through these files. In this activity I was helped by Counter-Intelligence officers, who also deposited their files in my office. We worked day and night in this activity and we managed to secure extensive material of which one part was sent to the Army. submitted concerning the responsibility of the Defendant Radetzky, in Document Book III-C, on page 20 of the English copy, it is page 28 of the German text, there is Document NO-4438. It is Exhibit 132. It is the affidavit of Radetzky of the 25th of July, 1947. In the summary it is said that you were in charge of an advance kommando in Luck. Did you ever make such a statement?

A No, in my affidavit of the 25th of July, 1947, under No. 3, I said the following, and I quote:

A. (continued) I quote: "First I went to Hrubgoschow with the Special Kommando and from there to Luck, where I was assigned to a subunit of Sonderkommando 4-A."

THE PRESIDENT: What are you reading from there, witness? You say this is what you said.

DR. HOCHWALD: This is the affidavit of the defendant in Document Book III-C page 20, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: I know, I have that affidavit before me but he indicates that the affidavit is in error and he says that he said something different from what appeared in the affidavit and then he read a statement.

DR. HOCHWALD: As far as I could understand he wanted to say that the statement of the Prosecution that he was a leader of a sub-kommando is in error and that he has said in his affidavit only that he was in this sub-komnando. That is how I understood the testimony.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, then the affidavit remains as it is before us.

DR. HOCHWALD: He did not contest the affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: I am very sorry, I had misunderstood that. BY DR. RATZ:

Q. Your Honor, I merely showed the witness the summarization of the Prosecution documents concerning the affidavit of the defendant Radetzky and in contrast to this I showed him his own affidavit. On the basis of this affidavit it is confirmed that he was not the leader of this advance Kommando Luck. 21 August 1947, Document Book III-C, page 30 of the English document book, page 47 of the German text, NO-4765 which is Exhibit 137, made a statement where it says, and I quote:

"The Vorkommando had three officers, namely SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer Waldemar von Radetzky and two Obersturmfuehrers whose names I do not remember any more. I remember that one evening a conference was held during our stay at Ludsk, in the course of which Waldemar von Rudetzky as senior officer gave orders to the assembled non-coms safeguard documents and other important materisl in certain buildings.

At that time I had the impression that Radetzky was the head of the Vorkommando although he had never been pointed out to me as such."

Will you comment on this?

A. I have already explained that I was not the chief of Vorkommando Luck, and that it could not have been so. I have already mentioned that I was not familiar with Security Police tasks and for this purpose there were special experts in the advance Kommando who had to deal with these assignments. If the witness Kraege believes that he had gained the impression at the time that I was in charge of the Advanced Kommando then this impression can only have been created because I had a higher rank than the two actual officers of the Kommando. This fact itself, however, does not justify the assumption that I was the responsible officer, especially for exective measures. The chief of Sonderkommando 4-A, Blobel, stated who the officer was in charge of Vorkommando Luck when he was on the witness stand.

Q. Your Honor, I shall submit this statement from the testimony of the defendant Blobel immediately to the Tribunal. Perhaps I can meanwhile proceed. Witness, what rank did you hold at the time and what rank did the other officers hold?

A. I was Hauptsturmfuehrer, or Captain, and the two others were Obersturmfuehrer, or 1st Lieutenants.

Q. The witness Kraege in the affidavit which has just been mentioned also said that in Ludsk one evening there was a discussion in which you, as the highest-ranking officer, gave instructions to the other officers. Now, what did you discuss on that occasion?

A. Soon after my arrival in Ludsk I had a discussion with the non-coms, that is with those people who had been assigned to me for the carrying out of my mission. I gave them directives for securing of enemy documents but no officer of the Kommando was present here because this discussion concerned my particular sphere of activities which was the securing of documents.

Q. Your Honor, I would now like to show you this particular passage from the Blobel statement. It is the transcript of 28 October 1947. It is the morning session and is page 1549 of the German.

Witness, what kind of documents did you then find and secure?

A. There was a great mass of material which had been left behind by the surprising withdrawal of the Russians. I had to pay particular attention to those documents which were of a basic and general significance. I now only remember the following spheres. First of all, documents dealing with the mobilization of the Russian armed forces in case of war with Germany; secondly, documents dealing with the line of advance of a Russian Army; third, purely military files; 4, material concerning activities of Russian agents in non-European states. I remember distinctly I was most surprised to find these documents at Luck of all places covering a period of five years. The remainder were economic files, land distribution schemes, food quotas, taking over of industry by the State, and State decrees to that effect.

Q. Witness, I may show you Document Book II-A, page 76 of the English text, page 84 of the German text, NO-2938, Exhibit 44, "Report of Events No. 24" of the 16 July 1941, and it says, I quote:

"In Luck, furthermore, in the buildings of the Soviet Administration and in various Communist centers, important material was seized in safes, among other things, a list of agents in various countries."

That's the end of the quotation, Please comment on this.

THE PRESIDENT: Let us find it, please, first. What is the original page number?

DR. HOCHWALD: Page 14 of the original. If I am not mistaken your Honor, it's on page 81 of the Document Book.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, we found it.

DR. RATZ: May I perhaps repeat my quotation. "In Luck, furthermore, in the fuildings of the Soviet Administration and in various other Communist centers, after the safes had been forces open, important material, including, among other things, records relating to Russian agents in various countries, could be discovered."

THE PRESIDENT: Well I don't find that.

MR. HILDESHEIMER: Middle of the page, page 81, page 14 of the original.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, yes, I find some of it but I don't see the reference to "In Luck". There is one paragraph which begins "Moreover, important material, including, among other things, etc," but I don't find this reference to Luch.

DR. HOCHWALD: In the German mileograph it says "in Luck", your Honor. But, it says a little later in the next sentence "buildings of the Luch authorities".

THE PRESIDENT: Well, the phraseology differs between the German and the English.

MR. HILDESHEIMER: Well, I am afraid I just translated it as the defense cousel said it, I didn't have the document. I didn't read it from the document.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, that explains it. BY DR. RATZ:

Q. What did the remainder of the Kommando do during this time as far as you know?

A. The Kommando had secured a number of Wehrmacht camps and was guarding these, otherwise it was occupied with finding quarters.

Q. When did special Kommando 4-A arrive in Luck?

A. I don't remember today exactly. It arrived with Standartenfuehrer Blobel after 4 to six days it arrived in Luck and took up quarters in the quarters that had been prepared.

Q. Were there any other Kommandos in Luck?

A. Yes, one Kommando of the Security Police and SD of the Commander of the General Government and after that the Higher SS and Police Leader Jeckeln arrived with his staff and subordinate units in Luck.

Jeckeln took up quarters in the billets of the Kommando.

Q. The Prosecution, witness, in their submission of evidence on 30 September 1945, has made you responsible for the killing of 1460 Jews, 20 saboteurs, and deputized for the chief of Sonderkommando 4-A. I refer to Document Book II-A, page 76 of the English document book, page 84 of the German document book, NO-2938, Exhibit 44. It is the report of events No. 24, of 16 July 1941.

MR. HOCHWALD: That's page 80, your Honors. The second to the last paragraph on the bottom.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, we have it.

Well, it's the same document that he has been quoting from.

DR. RATZ: There it says and I quote: "We succeeded in arresting 200 Jews as well as 20 plunderers who were shot on 30 June. As the corpses of a total of 10 German members of the Wehrmacht had been found on 2 July, 1060 Jews were shot as reprisal for the assassination of the German soldiers and the Ukrainians with the help of one platoon of the police and one platoon of the infantry. Finally on 6 July, it was possible to disciver altogether 50 Polish agents and spies who were liquidated also."

Did you find out anything about these executions?

A. Yes one or two days after my arrival in Luck Janssen informed me that the local commander or the responsible division commander had ordered a retaliation measure for these 3000 Ukrainians who had been shot by the Russians, If and when such an operation took place I don't know because neither I nor any of the men who were subordinated to me for this particular operation took part in such an action.

THE PRESIDENT: Who did you say ordered the execution?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I heard that it was the town commander of Luck who had ordered a retaliation measure.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, there is nothing in the report to suggest that.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I can only say what I heard then.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, all this is listed under the activities of Einsatzkommando 4a, isn't it?

THE WITNESS: Yes, that is so. It says so in the report of events.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, do you attack the reliability of that statement, that all this was done by Einsatzkommando 4a?

THE WITNESS: That I cannot doubt, your Honor, I have no exact knowledge about who carried out this execution, and I can only say what I know about it, and I know that I was informed at the time by Janssen that the town major had ordered a retaliation measure to take place.

THE PRESIDENT: Who is Janssen?

THE WITNESS: Janssen was an officer of the kommando who had the order for the executive activity. He was in charge of executive measures in the Vorkommando Luck.

Q. (By Dr. Ratz) Do you mean one of the officers of SK 4a?

A. Yes, an officer of SK 4a.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, proceed.

Q. (By Dr. Ratz) What else did you learn about this?

A. When Blobel arrived in Luck he informed us that Field Marshal Reichenau, the Supreme Commander of the Sixth Army; had issued the order to eliminate an equal number of Jews for the murdered 3,000 Ukrainian members of the intelligentsia. Blobel had arrived in Luck and he was ill. According to my memory, a physician was called immediately who wanted to take him to the field hospital. As far as I heard, Blobel resisted this and agreed with the physician on intensive treatment. The officers of the kommando met, and discussed what to do next, Hauptsturmfuehrer Karlsen to whom Blobel had transferred the command of the Einsatzkommando presided over this meeting. At the end of this discussion my advice was sought. Nobody knew what was to be done, and I suggested to take Blobel to the field hospital in any case, as on the one hand the physician thought he had dysentery, and on the other hand this would be a good opportunity not to carry out the order. I said that I would be prepared to take over the job of taking Blobel to the field hospital. I went to see the chief of the Wehrmacht field hospital in Luck. I described to him what it was all about, and I went to see Blobel, together with him. He was the Oberstabsarzt, Dr. Braeuer, chief medical officer of the hospital. Blobel had a high temperature and was delirious. The physician was most upset about the state of health of his colleague. He made out an admission card for the field hospital in Lublin, and he treated Blobel. Blobel was taken to his car, and I went to Lublin with him the same evening, where we arrived in the morning and took him to the hospital there. I took a disinfecting bath the next day in Lublin, and I returned to Luck the day after that where I confirmed the task of seizing documents which I have already dealt with.

ated the execution that had been ordered, and the liaison officer of Group C to Jeckeln, Sturmbannfuehrer Meyer, had taken over the kommando. I cannot make any statements concerning figures because I was not informed about them, and I only know that it was a large-scale execution.

Q. Witness, did you, as far as the ordering or carrying out of the execution was concerned, have anything to do with this execution?

A. No.

Q. This was the first case in which you found out about an execution. In this connection, therefore, I want to put a few questions to you which have cropped up in these proceedings repeatedly. My first question is, what was your attitude to the Fuehrer Order as passed on to you by the Chief of SK 4a in Sokal, the order, that is, of ruthlessly proceeding against Communist functionaries?

A. As I have explained, when this Fuehrer Order was made known in Sokal, I immediately approached Blobel, and asked him for an exact delimitation of my assignment. I told him on that occasion that I was ordered to join the SK 4a as an interpreter and I only wanted to be used in this function. I cannot remember the exact wording of that particular discussion, but I remember that I added that I did not want to be used in security measures of the kommando.

Q. Why did you not want to have anything to do with such measures?

A. I had a different idea of a future German Eastern policy than the one I now found in its severity. At the beginning of the war I was put into these conditions, and I had no clear picture of the aims of the German Eastern policy at that time.

In my naive way, at the time, I thought that with persuasion and with clever political activity one could perhaps break Bolshevism.

Q. What was your attitude concerning, especially, the so-called Fuehrer Order?

A. First I regarded the possible measures to be carried out in compliance with the Fuehrer Order as purely military necessities for the security of the German Wehrmacht. At that time I could not tell to what extent these measures were regarded as necessary by the Army as military measures in the face of an enemy who in his ruthless and brutal attitude would use any means of combat, leaving out any basic principles. But I was not absolutely clear about this or the other necessity; the extent of these measures later on, but especially the extension of the measures to anti-Jewish operations was against my attitude towards other nationalities who had grown up with me in a centuries-old cultural environment.

Q. If I understand you correctly, your attitude, therefore, was against the effects of the Fuehrer Order?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And how did you react to the happenings in Luck?

A. I asked the leader of the kommando about the possibility of my leaving. He said that I could only be relieved if I was prepared to go to a concentration camp from which I would not return.

THE PRESIDENT: Who said this?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, he was one of the leaders of the kommando. I think it was Janssen. I don't remember exactly today.

Page 4,164

THE PRESIDENT: When you say one of the leaders, what do you mean? How many leaders were there of the kommando?

THE WITNESS: In the kommando there were seven officers.

THE PRESIDENT: Were they all leaders?

THE WITNESS; Well, they had an officer's rank. They did not lead the kommando, but they had an officer's rank. I mean officers.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, you had an officer's rank too, didn't you?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Then were you a leader of the kommando?

THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow morning at nine-thirty. (The Tribunal adjourned until 16 December 1947, at 0930 hours.)

Page 4,165

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal II. Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Ratz. BY DR. RATZ:

Q Witness, my last question to you yesterday was: "how did you react to the happenings in Luck?" You talked about the discussion with an officer of the kommando - then you did not conclude your report concerning this yesterday. from the service, and if one would want to do so it was only possible via a concentration camp. The only possibility would be to have myself recalled by the office I had been working with up till then. Thereupon I sent an urgent request to the office for the repatriation of ethnic Germansim in Berlin and asked to be released from this assignment and to give another task to me. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q You don't recall the name of the officer with whom you spoke?

A I can't say exactly, your Honor. I think it must have been Janssen.

Q This was in Pretzsch?

the duties to which the Kommando would be assigned? not know the tasks of the Kommando. be required to execute Jews?

A No, your Honor. That I learned only in Sokal. I stated yesterday that these discussions mentioned here with Streckenbach and Heydrich in Berlin I did not take part in and that I did not know about these discussions. The Proclamation of the Fuehrer order was only made after we had arrived in Russia in Sokol before the Kommando had started its activity and after Blobel had returned from his first visit to General Field Marshal Reichenau.

Q Very well, proceed, Dr. Ratz. BY DR. RATZ:

Q When did you leave Lutzk? for the seizure of documents. I spent an afternoon there and then went back to Lutzk, as in Rowno I had convinced myself that this had been evacuated according to plan and that any important material as we had gathered in Lutzk could not be taken. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Dr. Ratz-----Of course, witness, you are not responsible for what any other defendant says, but since your name is mentioned very specifically in this interrogation, or rather examination of Blobel on the witness stand, it is certainly relevant to call it to your attention. Blobel was questioned by Mr. Hochwald and the questions and answers ran something like this:

"Q All right, Did you ever speak with Radetsky about the Fuehrer order as the order was handed down by Streckehbach?

"A The general information about happenings in Pretzsch or what had been said by Streckenbach in Pretzsch was in the presence of all the leaders and they, of couse, were immediately informed about it.

"Q So Radetsky knew about this order?

"A Why, the leaders knew the order, the leaders were aware of the order.

"Q Did you ever speak to him about this order?

"A It was in fact discussed by us in Pretzsch.

"Q Did you, Mr. Blobel, speak to Hautsturmfuehrer Radetsky about the Hitler order?

"A Yes, and then so on. Now you heard, what I have just read and you see what Blobel said. Do you contest the correctness of what Blobel said? assume, then, I have to contest it, I understood Blobel to another effect when he gave his testimony because I did not learn of this order in Pretsch and I don't think that another Kommando officer had knowledge about it at that time because otherwise it would have been discussed publicly. Personally two days before we left when the Kommando had already been set up, I joined the Kommando. It is possible, I don't know when, this discussion with Streckenbach had taken place but it is possible if Blobel informed the officers at that time simultaneously that this Information was given before I joined the Kommando, but I believe I can exclude this possibility because other wise I would have heard something about it. I do not believe that such an important and essential question would not have been discussed in any shape whatsoever or not mentioned. were to execute the order? You have heard many defendants speak here about receiving the order in Pretzsch.

A No, your Honor, it was not discussed. The order was proclaimed to us in Sokal when we reached the Russian border.

Q Well, but you don't say that it wasn't proclaimed in Pretzsch also, do you?

Q Proceed, Dr. Ratz. BY DR. RATZ: after a short stay in Rowno you returned to Lutzk. What did you do then in Lutzk? I went on going through the documents again and sifted them until an order reached me to come to Rowno, in order to join another advance Kommando which was supposed to go to Shitomir. In Lutzk before I left I equipped a truck with material which was going to Berlin. stay there?

A No. I arrived late and I immediately joined the Kommando which was advancing to Shitomir. text.

MR. HOCHWALD: Page 48 of the English, the last paragraph from the bottom, your Honor.

DR. RATZ: 2934, Exhibit 78. It is a report of events #19 of 11 July 1941 and it says: I quote:

"Einsatzkommando 4-A still in Rowno where executions took place of 240 Bolshevist, predominantly Jewish functionaries Officials, agents, etc. Vorkommando of 4-A set in march via Cudnow to proceed to Shitomir as soon as that area is secure to some extent. Another section of 4-A, in accordance with a wish expressed by Army Headquarters, takes over the area south of Rowno, in a width of 20 kilometers to the Fast as a security measure, One section of the Sonderkommando from Lublin has arrived.

Did you have anything to do with this execution mentioned here? joined the Kommando which was advancing to Shitomir.

BY DR. RATZ:

Q Did you over learn anything about this execution?

Q When did you arrive at Shitomir? Shitomir, as the front had been broken meanwhile and we had to take a number of detours covered by tanks and had to push through to Shitomir.

Q What did the Kommando do and what did you do in Shitomir? become sort of an alarm unit as the military unit in the place. Then I searched the buildings for documents and secured them and I found billets for the Kommando, secured these billets and I equipped them.

Q Do you know when the group staff arrived in Shitomir?

A No, I do not know when the group staff arrived. I only know that it arrived from the road between Rowno and Shitomir a few days after the Kommando. I was informed that the Adjutant of Rasch the commander of the Einsatzgruppe had been killed when the unit had been transferred. Document Book.

DR. HOCHWALD: Page 16 of the English, Your Honors. That's the third paragraph from the bottom under the heading "page 7".

BY DR. RATZ:

Q No.-2952, Exhibit 71. This is the report of event #37 of the 29 July 1941 and it says, I quote:

"In Shitomir itself Gruppenstab and Vorauskommando 4-A in cooperation have up to date shot, all in all, approximately 400 Jews, Communists, and informants for the NKWD." Do you know anything about this execution? I informed about anything concerning it. Personally I assumed, but as I say it is only an assumption, that if the Einsatzgruppe ordered such an execution, it must have been responsible for the carrying out of the execution itself.

Q What did you do then in Shitomir? addressed to the office for the repatriation of ethnic Germans to be released from the Einsatzgruppe and since it could not he expected very soon I dedicated myself intensively to my actual task of reporting. I had to do this the more as the additional assignment tive of the Einsatzgruppe, Dr. Beyer, had been turned over to the interpreter Mueller. Mueller had spent all his life in the Ukraine and knew the Ukrainian language which I did not know. Ukrainian questions?

A The situation was the following. In 1917 after the Russian Revolution -BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Witness, just before you go into that, please. Do you say that you did not understand the Ukrainian language? your linguistic talents. knew where the Kommando was going to operate, and if they took you as in interpreter certainly they would assume that you would speak the language of the territory in which the unit was to operate. because I know Latvian and I know a little Estonian and it would have been the most natural thing to do to send me to my old home country, but this was not done but I was assigned to the Kommando which went to the Ukraine.

language?

A To the Kommando officer?

Q Yes. When you were being considered for this post did you have them believe, because of what you said, or because of your attitude, did you lead them to believe that you were familiar with the Ukrainian language? the Ukrainian language, couldn't they? ge? nil in this Kommando?

A No, Your Honor. There is a great distinction between the Ukrainian language and the Russian. The difference is one of dialect. One can make one self understood in emergency cases.

Q Well, did you then know the Ukrainian language? Ukrainian language? speak the Ukrainian language, and I understood your question to the effect whether I know, whether I was aware of the Ukrainian language, whether I knew its consistance, whether there is a distinction between the Russian and the Ukrainian, I knew the distinction.

asking him?

Q whether he can understand it and speak it. That is what is understood by knowing a language, isn't it?

Q You wouldn't ask a person if he knows a language end expect him to give you an etymological discussion on the language, would you?

A I am sorry I didn't understand your question, Your Honor. obvious that I was not asking you to give us the history of the Ukrainian language and all the theory of its creation and development. That was obvious, wasn't it? I did not master the Ukrainian language. and now you tell us you do know it. badly. I could not speak Ukrainian but I understood your last question to be whether I knew whether the Ukrainian was different from. Russian, whether I had knowledge at all of the Ukrainian language. In its distinction and in its spoken form and that I know, later on I learned Ukrainian and I could converse in the Ukrainian language. stand it and to speck it. ignorance of the language to a complete possession of the language, to speak it.

Ukrainian language you said no. Then a minute or two later you said, Well, you understood it, now you tell us that you could speck it.

A Your Honor, may I clarify this which I had misunderstood? When I arrived in Russia I only spoke Russian. I knew that the Ukrainian language was different from the Russian and only later, during my stay in Ukrainia I gradually learned to speak the language.

Q When I asked you if you knew the Ukrainian language why didn't you say yes, I didn't know it when I went to Russia but I learned it. That would be a forthright simple answer, wouldn't it? knew the Ukrainian language.

Q Well then, let's sum this up, when you reached the Ukraine you could understand the Ukrainian language, but could not speak it, is that correct? then could speak it? familiarity with the language which permitted you to converse in it?

Q Well, how long were you in the Ukraine? speak it?

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. RATZ: questions, Witness?

A The situation was the following: In 1917. after the Russian revolution, the Ukraine proclaimed their independence, and defended this independence against the Soviets for four years until it was overpowered.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: If your Honor please, I do think that the witness goes again into a lecture on Eastern politics starting in 1917 at a time when he was seven years of age.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, if it isn't too long, Mr. Hochwald, we will hear it. Very well, the Ukraine declared its independence and defended if for four years. Then what?

A (Continuing) When the Eastern compaign began the Ukraine Government proclaimed their independence again in Lemberg, after all authorities in question, like the OKW, Eastern Ministry, and so on, had declared themselves prepared to agree to it.

In spite of this an order was issued that the Ukraine administration would be taken in so-called honorary custody, and all attempts for independence would have to be stopped. I had a discussion concerning this with Dr. Beyer who was the departmental expert for Ukrainian questions in the Einstazgruppe, in the course of which it was decided that he would immediately go to Berlin to the Reich Security Main Office in order to achieve a revocation or pacilitation of the proclamation. I personally saw myself not in the position to participate in a matter which had been negatively decided from its very beginning. In addition to this there was the fact I did not master the Ukrainian language because I had been employed as an interpreter for the Russian language. The Interpreter Mueller, however, believed, supported by the moderate party in the Ukraine, to achieve a success in time. He became interested in this question, especially as he was hoping that Beyer would he successful in his attempts in Berlin. My assumption, however, did not cheat me as Beyer came back not having achieved a thing.

THE PRESIDENT: Did Mueller speak the Ukrainian language?

THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

THE WITNESS: Therefore I never dealt with Ukrainian nor did I ever deal with the Jewish question as far as reporting goes.

Q (By Dr. Ratz) why did you not deal with the Jewish question?

AAgain on the same occasion I had a discussion with Dr. Beyer. In this Question, as well as in the Ukrainian question, he wanted to report to Heydrich in order to try that another attitude toward Jews in the Ukraine would he effected. This again he did not achieve. I, on my part, had to fear that if any reporting whatsoever on these two questions should be done by me I would automatically drift into executive activities as the whole dealing with the Jewish question went via Chief IV of Einsatzgruppen C, and the whole dealing of the Ukrainian problem went via the Ukraine expert, Dr. Beyer with this, my reports, as It actually happened in the future, would not only go to the Chief III of the Einsatzgruppe and then, as I have already said, I would have to come into contact with those who ordered executions, which I wanted to prevent and which I managed to avoid.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q I didn't quite catch that, you managed to prevent executions? tact with the authorities who were responsible for executive activity, that is the whole Security Police activity. If I had reported to them about a question which, on the other hand, would have been dealt with by the Security Police authorities, I might have been employed in some further Security Police activity. Perhaps I may give an example to clarify this.

Q Well now, wait there, now what did you do? You were not an interpreter, and you had nothing to do with executions. Why did they carry you along in this outfit? Now, we have that settled. What did you do with this Einsatzkommando? You didn't interpret; you had nothing to do with executions. Why did they carry you along? documents. If I had the time, I mad out reports, and then I was employed as the liaison officer with the Wehrmacht, first of all because that was my express wish.

Q What did you report on? You say, if you had the time. When you had the time, what did you report on? and then I reported about cultural questions. My main attention went to questions of economy because that was something I knew something about.

Jews, wouldn't you? who were being executed, didn't you? affect the economy of that territory, wouldn't it? state, at that time.

Q Please answer that question. If the Jews were executed in-any given territory, that mere fact would have a very grave effect on the economy, wouldn't it? because of the depletion of the labor supply due to the execution of Jews, a certain situation has resulted, You would have to say that, wouldn't you? sphere of activities of Departments 3 and 4, and I did not report about these activities.

Q You did not answer my question. Making a report on the economy you would naturally have to talk about labor, and if a great number of those constituting the labor element were executed, that would affect seriously the economy of the country on which you were reporting, and you would need to include that in your reports, would you not? economy had been ruined and had to be built up. There was no shop in which you could buy anything.

Q The economy wasn't helped by shooting off further labor supply, was it?

Q Did you report this in your reports?

A I may say the following: were being killed and thereby the labor market being affected adversely that the economy was made worse? Did you report that? in the Ukraine constituted an essential part of trade.

Q And did you report that Jews were beint decimated?

Q You didn't put in any report that Jews were being killed and this affected the economy of the Ukraine?

A No, in this shape I did not report about it. I only reported about the fact that the Jews were an important economic potential, but I did not report to the effect as you mention it.

Q.- Well, you say that you reported that the Jews were an important economic potential. Did you then say -- You say that you did include in your report the statement that the Jews constituted an important economic potential. Did you then add that this important economic potential was rapidly disappearing because of the executions?

A.- No, your Honor, I did not report that.

Q.- And yet you want to tell the Tribunal seriously that you made a report on the economy of the Ukraine?

A.- Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Dr. Ratz.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. RATZ:

Q.- Witness, did you do anything in the Ukrainian and the Jewish question outside your kommando?

A.- Yes, in the discussion with Dr. Beyer we had agreed upon my writing two memoranda to the Eastern Ministry. I sent these memoranda from Zhitomir, and after about two months I received the information from the ministry that the minister would submit a few of the points which I had mentioned, to Himmler who was competent to deal with such questions at an opportune time. In other words, that meant that this step that I had taken was of no avail.

Q.- Did you these reporting activities which you mentioned take up your full time?

A.- Yes, the more so as I came in close contact with the competent Army agencies, and, mainly with the economic agencies. I made large and extensive reports concerning the agricultural situation, trade and commerce, and I attempted in these reports, as I have already said in answering the questions of the President to have an objective point of view. I believe I may say that my reports, in the manner in which they were made out at that time, were the only way to bring about a change of the basic attitude of the German Reich towards the Eastern problems, and I found this confirmed on repeated occasions.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q.- Witness, do you consider that your reports were very objective when you failed to indicate that a certain segment of the population was being wiped out?

A.- Your Honor, in the answer to the next question, which is in my notes, I want to come back to this.

Q.- Well, come back to it right now. You said that your reports were very objective, and I asked you if you consider a report objective when you fail to mention that a segment of the population is being exterminated?

A.- Your Honor, may I come back to what I wanted to say in my next answer? Towards the Army agencies I expressed this. Towards the Einsatzgruppe C who received my reports this was not necessary because it knew about these conditions better than I did.

Q.- Well, these reports were going to Berlin. Berlin had to know, and the Einsatzgruppe headquarters could only send in such reports as came from the field, and if you did not include any reference to the execution of Jews in your report to the headquarters, how could the headquarters send on a complete and reliable report?

A.- But, your Honor, the Einsatzgruppe simultaneously received reports from the executive authorities, about executions which were to take place and which had taken place.

Q.- You say -

A.- And these as well as Berlin had the possibility to formulate their opinion according to these.

Q.- Now, you say you did report executions to the Army, is that right?

A.- I expressed this to the army economic agencies, but I admit, your Honor, that personally, in order to keep away from the whole question I avoided this topic in my reports to the Einsatzgruppe because I believed that the Einsatzgruppe knew about these matters in detail.

Q.- Let's come back to your report to the Army agencies. You said you did notify them about the executions, is that correct? Do you affirm what you just said a minute ago?

A.- About the effects of executions, yes.

Q.- Did you deplore the execution of Jews because they were Jews to the Army agencies?

A.- I did it in the following manner, and this seemed to me the only way, your Honor. I tried to point out that the economic power of the Jewish sector of the population, especially in the Ukraine, would have to be maintained because the whole trade was in their hands. I was not authorized according to the secrecy rules as they were made known to us in RSHA to report about details which had come to my knowledge.

Q.- Did you or did you not know that Jews were being executed by your kommando because they were Jews?

A.- Yes, I learned about that.

THE PRESIDENT? Proceed.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. RATZ:

Q.- witness, you spoke just now about Army authorities whom you were indulging in further activities as a reporter, did you?

A.- Yes, in agreement with the subordinate Army Offices, I dealt with the setting up of independent administrations, in order to have a body of independent administrators, or independent as far as possible, in order to, put the civilian population before a fait accompli when the army advanced. I tried to support the Army in their attempts to this effect.

Q.- How did your assignment as liaison officer come about, witness.

A.- From the Office for the Repatriation of Ethnic Germans in Gerlin I only received an answer to my letter which I had sent them to the effect that they would try to have me released from the Reich Security Main Office in order to employ me in the Resettlement Office. A few days later I received the notice that the Reich Security Main Office would not release me. As I want to leave the kommando, the only position which I could take up was the position of a liaison officer which now I quite consciously tried to get. At the beginning of August, I managed to be assigned as such, which was made simple insofar as, on account of my close collaboration with Army staffs, I could go on with my reporting activity/

Q.- That was the beginning of August of what year?

A.- 1941.

Q.- Of what nature was your activity as liaison officer?

A.- I was assigned to the G-2, AO-III, and I had to take care that supplies for the SK4a were brought about without difficulties. My special official assignments were the following: Information concerning the military advance, the course of military advance, the front, information to the front, of the front and Army borders. This information was currently passed on to the SK-4a. BY THE PRESIDENT?

Q.- Witness, when you were concerned about having supplies brought in to your kommando. What supplies were involved?

A.- Food and fuel, your Honor.

Q.- How about ammunition?

A.- No, ammunition I do not remembers I do not remember having requested ammunition.

Q.- Now, listen, Witness, you either remember or you don't remember. If you remember food and fuel, you can remember whether you ordered ammunition or not. Did you order ammunition?

A.- No, your Honor.

ammunition?

Q Why did you say just a minute ago that you did not remember? the wrong way. I said I did not remember ever having requested ammunition.

Q Well, that is the way it came through. How, do you, or do you not remember having ordered ammunition for your commando?

Q Do you say definitely that you did not order ammunition?

Q Do you say now definitely that you did not order ammunition? obtained ammunition for the commando.

Q And you say you did not order ammunition? that you were ordering supplies and you said that you had ordered food and fuel, then I asked you "Did you order ammunition", you said, "I do not remember". You said that, didn't you?

Q Now, why didn't you say then, "No, I did not order ammunition"? Why did it require three or four questions for me finally to get your negative answer? more clear, in a more precise manner.

Q It isn't that I am concerned about how you answer the questions please don't believe that. I want to get at the truth, and when you tell me that you don't remember so important an item as ordering ammunition and then just a minute later you say you are sure you did not order ammunition, the question arises as to whether you are attempting to conceal something or not.

That is the only reason I am concerned.

A Your Honor, nay I spy it again. I feel-that if I had obtained end requested ammunition, I would remember it today, but I do not remember having done so and, therefore, I am of the conviction and of the belief that I never obtained ammunition. a way which could include that you did order ammunition.

That is right, isn't it? If someone says. "I do not remember", it means he may have done it but does not recall it - that is logical, isn't it? commando? officer.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Dr. Ratz. BY DR. RATZ: officer, and you said just then that among other things your task was to inform authorities about the advance of the army units. What further tasks did you have as a liaison officer? out from the interrogation of prisoners of war about the Russian Hinterland and evaluate them for the RSHA, Office 6. The commander of the SK 4A, Blobel, himself, independently maintained contacts with the Supreme Commander, Field Marshal Reichenau. this man?

A If I may correct this, it wasn't the G-2 of the AOK III, it was G-2, AO III, that means counter-intelligence officer. The then counter-intelligence officer of the 6th Army was Captain Luley, who came under the G-2 of the army. Luley himself was asked by the army to maintain contact with me. When I started my activities, the army was stationed in the vicinity of Shitomir. I was in close contact with Luley.

Q Well, if you were reporting on activities, wouldn't that be a very important item of the activities of the commando? situation reports dealt with the whole situation in the army territory, the political situation as it became evident in various spheres, but detailed activities of the commando were not given in these reports. THE PRESIDENT: Proceed. BY DR. RATZ: activity of the Special Commando?

A I can not give details about this. I know that the Army decided on the transfer of the Sonderkommando, or at least of parts of it. special commando?

A No, I do not know. The special commando or parts of it operated in the territories to which they had been assigned, and were under the command of the competent divisional commander. As far as I could see the so-called sub-commandos received their directives from these agencies under which they operated.

Q Did you, as a liaison officer, pass on any such directives?

A No. I was with the G-a, AO III, that is, counter-intelligence officer, and as I said, no such orders for executions went to this office.

Q Did any further activity result out of this for you? agriculture, a sub-department of the army staff, and through my reporting activity, we took an important part in the bringing in of the harvest and, of course, members of the commando were employed in the harvest. Book, page 74 of the German, Document Number 2947, Exhibit 82. It is Report of Events 47 of the 9th of August 1941. There it says, I quote:

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I do think that Dr. Dr. Ratz will quote from page 69 of the English under the - or it will be 68 - sorry, 67 -- under the heading "page 8 of the original".

DR. RATZ: I quote, "Particular attention, especially in the villages, is given to the gathering of the coming harvest. The population is in a helpless situation, since the Russians have carried away or have destroyed, respectively, the most needed agricultural machines. The individual labor-squads are therefore working systematically on the preparation of the harvest. Since no Buergermeisters have so far been installed by the Wehrmacht, especially in the remote villages, this has been taken in hand everywhere, subject to later regulations, by the Kommandos and with great success." BY DR. RATZ:

A The situation as it is partly described here was as follows: It was my task to negotiate with the group agriculture and the commando and to arranger that the commando put a number of people at the disposal of the agricultural group in order to repair the agricultural machinery.

I mention here that, for instance, in the vicinity of Shitomir, of 3,000 tractors, 2,700 were partly or wholly destroyed "by the Russians when they left and that one machine was constructed from many which were out of use in order to use it for the harvest. answer, did you undertake any further steps in your personal matter?

A Yes. When the entire kommando moved into Shitomir, a company of the Waffen SS consisting of two platoons had been assigned to it for the military security in the northern territory of Shitomir in the band-infested area. One day in the beginning of August, the CO of this company came to my office and asked for a confidential discussion. He said that the Einsatzgruppe to which he was subordinated had ordered him to disperse his company and to put the men at the disposal of other Einsatzkommandos. He feared that these could then be used for executions and that they would no longer be under his control and supervision as from then. I supported the company commander in his attempts to keep his unit from the activity of the other Einsatzkommandos and the success we achieved was that the Waffen SS company was released. In the course of this procedure, I, together with this above-mentioned company commander, went to the officer of the Einsatzkommando 6, as we wanted to ask him to intervene at the Einsatzgruppe and it was at that time in the vicinity of the Einsatzkommando 6. On this occasion I described to him my personal situation. He warned me very urgently not to take any direct steps concerning my release. Shitomir. How long did you remain in the Shitomir sector?

Then I received the assignment, not to proceed with the stiff of the army, that is, the operational department which was to by-pass Kiev with the advancing troops -- but to go to Kiev immediately in order to seize documents and secure them and then to rejoin the army staff which intended to take up quarters in Kiev.

Q Witness, when did you arrive in Kiev?

However, I didn't find them, and contacted the combat troops.

THE PRESIDENT: What question did you ask, Dr. Ratz?

DR. RATZ: When did you arrive in Kiev?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, now why can't you tell us when you arrived? Why is it necessary to start with the beginning of the World to tell us when you arrived in Kiev? Give the precise answer, and then if it's necessary to explain it, then you can explain, but you keep us in suspense for a long time before you tell us what your counsel has so clearly asked, isn't that right?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Now, answer the question directly, and when it is necessary to tell us about all of Germany, and how you got there, all right, then we will have it, hut let's have the answer directly.

THE WITNESS: I can not give any date for this, because I have no possibility of reconstructing this.

THE PRESIDENT: Then your answer is, I don't know when I arrived in Kiev.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Now put your next question, Dr. Ratz, and I presume it is, why don't you know, then he will tell us why he does not know. Or maybe, it will be, I don't know why I don't know, and then we will get into a very nice discussion on why he does not know, why he does not know. BY DR. RATZ:

Q Did you come to Kiev with an Advance Commando? However, I didn't find them, and contacted the fighting troops, namely, the Division of General Obstfelder in the City of Kiev when the city was captured.

Q In Kiev did you join the SK IV-A and its advance commando again?

Q What did the advance commando do in Kiev?

securing NKWD buildings as billets for the Einsatzgruppe and SK IV-A.

Q What did you do in Kiev? documents, as usual. This activity was made more difficult because lots of buildings had been destroyed, and the results were small because the Soviets had had sufficient time to clear everything away according to plan. Nonetheless, here in the capital of the Ukraine where the central authorities existed, I looked in the institutions concerned for such material.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Ratz, while, of course, the defendant has stated he does not know when he arrived in Kiev that settles it; still we ought to have some general idea as to the year, as to the season, the month, if possible, but some general idea, so we can chronologically fit it into the general picture. Q How long did you stay in Kiev? department of the Army staff was not coming to Kiev, I received the order to go to the Army staff, and simultaneously to set up a liaison between the Army group and the Einsatzcommando. I travelled to the Staff of the Army, which was stationed in a small locality northeast of Kiev, but about twenty-five kilometers from Kiev, I had to turn back because my car broke down, and the car had to be towed away.

Q At that time did any changes take place in SK-IV-A?

A In the meantime the command had changed in Kiev. Together with the Group Staff arrived a great number of new officers who were to be distributed among all the various commandos in exchange for officers who were ordered back to Berlin. These new officers partly were stationed at the garrison of SK IV-A, and some were with the Groupstaff, and some were with Einsatzcommando-V, and participated in the work of the various commandos to which they had been distributed. I myself was temporarily given the job of supervising the work within SK IV-A until my car had been repaired.

Q What do you mean by work within the unit? the kitchen down to the incoming and outgoing mail, in fact.

Q How long did this temporary work last?

A This lasted until my car had been repaired. This was about four to five days. in SK IV-A, did you also make an attempt to try to be released? deal with this in the Group and asked him for my release. He told me that this was impossible, that I could not be relieved either, because there I had no central office in the Homeland to which I could he sent back.

THE PRESIDENT: With whom did you speak, witness?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, with he competent personnel department chief in Einsatzgruppe-C.

Q Now wait here. With the competent personnel chief. With whom was that, tell us with whom did you speak?

Q All right. And who was he?

A I don't know his name. I can not remember.

Q What was his rank?

Q And when did this happen?

Q. What year?

A. 1941.

Q. And where did this take place?

A. That was in Kiev.

Q. Now you had told us about an attempt of this character sometime before. Where was that, and when was it?

A. Your Honor, this was a letter to the Ethnic German Resettlement Office, which I wrote in Luck, at the beginning of July 1941.

Q. Did you get a reply to that letter?

A. Yes, about a month later I first got a semi-approval, and a few days later I received a final rejection.

Q. The first letter said that possible you would be released?

A. Yes.

Q. And then a few days later, another letter came saying that you would not be released?

A. Yes.

Q. Then wrote two letters on the same subject?

A. Yes, In the first letter it said they would try to release me from the RSHA, and to return me to the Ethnic German Resettlement Office, and the second letter said that they had not succeeded in this.

Q. All right, Now this was in the beginning of July 1941 when you made your effort to get out of Einsatzcommando?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you tried again in September?

A. Yes.

Q. 1941, by talking to the competent personnel chief of Einsatzgruppe-C?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did he say?

A. He told me that I could not be released because I had been assigned to an assignment in the East on an emergency war status, and he also told me that I could not be relieved either like other officers, because I had no domestic agency to where they could return me in such a case.

Q. That I don't understand. You had no domestic agency to which you could be returned. Just what does that mean?

A. Your Honor, the individual officers of the commando came from the various agencies in the Reichs Security Main Office in the Reich.

Q. I see?

A. They were put on TDY and were returned to these agencies but I was on an emergency war status for an assignment in the East, and I could not be sent back, I could only be released.

Q. Did a replacement always have to come from the office which had ariginally supplied the officer?

A. Later on it was handled in that manner. I don't think it was that way at the time because the officers of the leading service returned to their studies, and other officers were brought in from other agencies. Later on it was handled in that manner in practice, that officers who wanted to be released contacted an officer in their home agency in the Reich, and if he was prepared to go out in his place, then they could try an exchange in that manner.

Q. Well, I asked you, did the regulations provide that a replacement could only come from the office which had originally supplied the officer involved?

A. I presume so, but I cannot say anything definite about this.

Q. Suppose that some one had originally been supplied by Office II of the RSHA, and then this officer was killed in the field, and Office II could not supply a replacement. Well, they would try to get an officer from somewhere else, wouldn't they?

A. I assume so.

Q. But in your case they said that he had to come from the Ethnic German Resettlement Mission, and there was no one there to take his place?

A. Yes, the RSHA had no influence over the Ethnic German Resettle ment Office, and the Ethnic Resettlement Office would probably not have requested a replacement for me.

Q All right. Then that was two occasions while you were with the Einsatz Kommando that you tried to be relieved? Office in July, 41, and another occasion with the Einsatzgruppe in September, 1941. you were with the Einsatz Kommando? 6.

Q When was that?

Q Whom did you speak to there?

Q And what was his position?

Q And what did you ask him? East, and he told me that this could not be done in a direct manner and that he would not advise me to try; that I should wait until there is an opportunity to be relieved and this opportunity came at the end of September or the beginning of October in Kiev.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. Proceed, Dr. Rats.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. RATZ: involuntarily because of the breakdown of your car. This stay lasted how long?

A It took until the car had been repaired. That was about four to five days.

Q. Where did you go after that time elapsed? time in Perjaslaw because in the meantime the Army staff had been trans ferred there.

THE PRESIDENT: How many days did you say you were held up because of the repair of the car?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: I say how long did it take to repair the car?

THE WITNESS: I can't say exactly. It might have been four or six days.

THE PRESIDENT: Just about the same length of time it takes to repair a car in Nurnberg. I think you had better service in Kiev than we have here. Very well, proceed, Dr. Ratz.

Q (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, I give to you document book 2-C, page 49 of the German text -

MR. HOCHWALD: Page 43 of the English, your Honors, the first paragraph on the top.

THE PRESIDENT: You are a pretty good mind reader, Mr. Hochwald.

MR. HOCHWALD: The assistant of Dr. Ratz told me your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Oh, I see. I was giving you credit for clairvoyance.

MR. HOCHWALD: And there is no other quotation in this particular document which refers to the case of the defendant von Radetzky.

Q (By Dr. Ratz cont'd) Document NO-3137, exhibit number 76, report of events number 101 of 2 October 1941. It says here on the first page, and I quote: "Sonderkommando 4 in collaboration with the group staff and two Kommandos of police regiment South executed 33,771 Jews in Kiev on the 29th and 30th September 1941." When did you hear something about this execution? through Blobel.

Q Do you know in how far the Kommando took part in this?

Q Do you know which other units took part in the execution?

A I do not know exactly. I did hear that the execution was carried out by police units under the supervision of Jeckeln.

cution?

A I know nothing from my own knowledge concerning this either. I merely know from hearsay that the Higher SS and Police Leader and the Einsatzgruppe had ordered the execution and taken part in it.

Q Who told you this? like to address to you the unambiguous question, did you personally in any manner take part in this execution?

A I did not participate in the execution. As I have already said, only through official channels did I hear about it. which was necessary to have your car repaired, you again rejoined the Army. Why did you again go to the Army? Army as liaison officer. I had to do this as soon as possible.

Q Where did you rejoin, the Army? That is why I went there. In Perjaslaw I only met a rear-guard Kommando of the Army. I reached the Army Staff which was on the way to Poltawa in Lubny then.

Q Did the activity you already described as liaison officer continue? situation, that is, the changes in the front lines as available at the G-2 department of the Army, to the Einsatzgruppe and to the Kommando. Army Group in general? visited the G-2 of the Army perhaps two or three times, every time I needed the large situation map for which I needed special permission from him.

The competent office for me was the G-2, AO III, counter-intelligence officer. Neither the Chief of the Staff nor Reichenau himself ever received me; the first one because he did not want to hear of me, and as for the latter, I had already introduced myself to him on the road from Sokal to Luck. At the Army Group I met a man from the same district when I was with the G-2, Lt. Col. Freytag-Loringhofen, with whom I became friends. Group? visits of officers who had been assigned for that job. document NO-3405, exhibit number 42.

MR. HOCHWALD: Page 57 of the English document book, but Dr. Ratz will quote from page 65 under the heading, "Activity of Teilkommando, Sonderkommando 4-A at Poltawa."

Q (By Dr. Ratz) It is the report of events number 156 of 16 January 1942. There it says about the activity of the Sub-Kommando of SK 4 A in Poltawa: "A major Jewish action took place on 23 November 1941, after the Jewish population had been requested by means of posters to report on the previous day. Altogether 1,538 Jews were shot." Did you have anything to do with this action?

A No. In Poltawa while I was there, a Kommando of Sonderkommando 4B was there, also the advance Kommando Charkow, and a Subkommando of the SK 4 A as well as the remaining Kommando passed through Poltawa. Also a subkommando of Einsatzkommando 5 was there during that time. The Einsatzkommando 4 B had their quarters in the center of the city, while I, with the Army department with which I was, lived outside of Poltawa. The Kommandos that passed through always took up their quarters with Sonderkommando 4 B, and I know about their presence because they had to turn to me if they wanted to have orders to advance or if they wanted supplies from the Army, because the economic and administrative offices of the Army sent them to me as the competent liaison officer.

the time when the SK 4 A was under Blobel's command, you did not take part in the executive tasks of the SK 4 A?. training, and only in time got used to the SD reporting. Concerning the first, the Commander of SK 4 A, Blobel, had given me the limits of my work as interpreter. Two possibilities existed here, either to be active as interpreter during interrogations or to assist in making reports, since the mission of seizing documents alone could not take up my entire time of work, in particular at the time when the front was not moving and no new localities were captured. Work as interpreter during interrogations would necessarily have brought me in connection with the executive work. That is why I tried repeatedly to avoid this. I never carried out interrogations. My activity as liaison officer right from the beginning excluded the possibility of executive work. My position in the Kommando as non-member of the RSHA made me appear not suitable for this. BY THE PRESIDENT: interpreter during interrogations? beginning of the assignment I had been intended for work in the reporting service and could withdraw to that field. interpreter? commanding officer assigned you to interpret at an interrogation, how could you refuse to follow his order?

Q Well then, how did you avoid interpreting at interrogations?

Q. Well, how did you become an expert in department III? You had not had SD training.

A No, I did not have that, your Honor. I said -

Q Well then, how did you become an expert so quickly? and my knowledge of languages.

Q Well now, we come back to languages again. If you were appointed because of your linguistic accomplishments and your commanding officer needed an interpreter why wouldn't he naturally turn to you who was already known to be a good translator and interpreter? the Commander used these interpreters.

Q Then you were not used as an interpreter?

A I was never used as interpreter by the Commander. I was never used in interrogations as interpreter either. directed your attention, and observe the last item on that page which says: "On 18 October 1941 the Teilkommando of SK 4 A at Lubny took over the evaluations of the NKWD files left behind by the Vor-kommando and the handling of current correspondence." Did you do that work?

Q Do you see the item?

Q Well, why didn't you? You were qualified to make this investigation, this evaluation rather?

A That was not cart of my task. It says here a Subkommando of the SK 4 A, a Teilkommando. I was not in charge of a Teilkommando, a Subkommando, but I was merely liaison officer with the Army Staff. evaluating them. You have told us that.

Q Yes. Well then, why wouldn't you, in October, 1941, be engaged in the evaluation of files taken but your own Kommando?

A No, your Honor, at the time I was liaison officer already. I was with the Army Staff and it would have been quite impossible that the files would have been put at my disposal to work on them there, Evaluation of files by myself when seizing them in Wtek, or Shitomir or Kiev only occurred to that extent that I looked through them, I made a list of them, where it said what the contents of these files were and got then ready to send them to Berlin. I had the mission only to collect documents of basic nature and the question of languages may be cleared up at this point. Russian is the official language in the Ukraine as well, and all documents and decrees throughout the entire Soviet Union which are valid there, were written in Russian.

Q But always with 4-A?

Q And how long did that last, from May 1942 until when?

Q Then what did you do?

Q Always with Kommando 4-A?

Q All right. And how long did that last?

Q Now wait there. You said from December 15, 1942 you were liaison officer with the 8th Hungarian Corps. For how long?

Q For one year? So that takes us up to December 1943.

A No. From October until December 1943 I was liaison officer with the 2nd Army and the 8th Hungarian Corps.

Q Well, now just a moment. You told us that you were liaison officer with the 2nd Hungarian Army from May 1942 until the middle of December 1942. Then from December 15, the middle of December, 1942 you were liaison officer with the 8th Hungarian Corps operating with Einsatzgruppe C. You did that for one year? Now, what followed that?

A No, your Honor, there is a misunderstanding. I was liaison officer for the 8th Hungarian Corps from March 1943 until September 1943. In between I was on leave. Army, from August 10, 1941 until May 1942 there were certain exceptions, certain interruptions?

Q Well, when was that?

Q What year?

Q And how long did you do that? work with the Einsatzkommando and for the 12 to 14 days in Kiev at the end of September 1941 you did not at any time do this work of seizing and evaluating files? in Russia you were used only for about 21/2 months for this very important work of seizing and evaluating files? that was my main work.

Q Proceed, Dr. Ratz. How far is Lubny from Kiev?

this activity, into the Einsatzgruppe, generally, because of your linguistic attainments. Yet, in a period involving about three years, you were used for this work for which you were especially gifted only for 21/2 months. liaison officer with the 6th Army.

Q Yes, I know. You have told us that but we come back to this proposition that you were taken into the Einsatzgruppe activity because you were an interpreter, because you knew the Russian language, because you could read documents in the Russian language, and you could evaluate them. In spite of this qualification, highly vital and important to any military organization, you were used for this work for only 21/2 months? That's what you tell us? BY DR. RATZ:

Q Witness, about the turn of 1941-42 did you go on leave? the middle of March 1942 from my leave.

Q Why did you take this leave? told him about my attempts to be released from my war emergency status. We discussed together in what manner I could be, or rather would be transferred to an assignment in the Wehrmacht and we agreed that I should go on leave while the G-2 settled this matter in the meantime, The plan was that through intermediation of the superior office of G-2 I should be released from the RSHA and I would then be transferred to the regular army unit.

Q Did you go home then?

A Yes. I made reports accordingly and returned to my family awaiting for a reply from G-2.

Q Did your attempts succeed?

A. No. At the end of January I received Information from Colonel Freytag Loringhofen that his suggestion had been rejected by his superior office and he could not help me for the time being.

Q Were you satisfied with this?

A No. I went to the labor office who sent me to the office of the Mayor who had put me on the War emergency status. Here I was told that the war emergency status could only be cancelled by the office who imposed it and only they could release me. I then went to the office of the RSHA in Berlin and asked the department chief competent, Sturmbannfuehrer Trautmann, to release me. I mentioned the emergency and the need in my family, and I said that I wanted to volunteer for the Army. Trautmann listened to me and asked me to come back after two days. After a short discussion in the doorway he talked to me in a very brief manner which could not be misunderstood.

Q One more question to supplement this. You said you went to the Mayor. In which city was this? rescinded? understood and I should not do this in the future.

Q What did you do after that? Agency on the one hand and with the attempt of setting my domestic affairs. This is what I did until I received a telegram that I was to go to Charkow. Immediately, I travelled to Charkow in the beginning of March.

Q Your Honor, I now come to a new sector. This might be a good place for the recess.

THE PRESIDENT: I would think so. The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:45.

(The hearing reconvened at 1345 hours, 16 December 1947)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. BLUME: Dr. Blume, assistant for Dr. Lummert for Defendant Blume. Your Honor, I would like the defendant Blume to be excused tomorrow morning and tomorrow afternoon as his defense has to be prepared.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant Blume will he excused from attendance in Court all day tomorrow, Wednesday.

DR. BLUME: Thank you, Your Honor. BY THE PRESIDENT: which we would like some enlightenment. These documents, enemy documents, would naturally contain information regarding activities against the German forces, activities which would call for executive measures. Would you make a report on these activities which would result in executive measures being taken against the authors of those activities?

A No, Your Honor, I did not report about such matters. The task of seizure of documents as it was assigned to me was the following: The basic and general material which enlightens on the structure and activity of the various Soviet institutions, this has to be seized, and by the first possible way has to be transported to Berlin. All these dispatches either went directly or via, the Einsatzgruppe to Berlin, and I had to deal with this. I had to pack them, either in cases or in reams, and each case or ream had to have a register and a list pertaining to the documents giving their content matter, but these documents did not serve the purpose to combat the enemy locally, but, as far as I know, they served the purpose of elucidating the Reich Government as to the structure and government of the Soviet Union.

individuals who were actively working against the German Armed Forces, what would you do with this list?

A I would have passed it on to Berlin. This was according to my assignment, but I can not remember -

Q Allright, let's suppose that you find in Kiev, you have seized the files, and in these files you find a report on a meeting which took place in a certain building, and in these reports there was an indication that a conspiracy was forming, a conspiracy already had been formed, that explosives were to be brought in, dynamite was to be brought in, and that certain roads were to be mined so that when the German forces traveled over them they would all be killed. This report gives the names of conspirators. Would you send that off to Berlin without doing anything? inform the competent authority immediately. The simplest thing would have been to inform the kommando itself about this state of affairs.

Q And then executive measures would be taken? evaluate them?

A I don't think so, Your Honor, This would have been done be the executive authority or those who dealt with executive activities. These would have to start their work then. Communist Party who according to the Fuehrer Order were to be executed. You find this list of Communist functionaries. What would you do with the list?

A Your Honor, I don't know. Such a case never happened.

Q What would you do with such a list?

because, contrary to the example you mentioned before, there was no acute danger here; but I am not able to answer this exactly, what I would have done in such a case. as resisting the German Armed Forces, what would you do with that list, would you still send that on to Berlin? ins of the list?

Q And you would have done nothing further? have translated it for them? translators who had to interpret it or translate it.

Q You take a list to them. It is drawn up in Russian and you hand it to them. Wouldn't you explain that, "Here is a list of individuals who are dangerous. They are resisting the German Armed Forces. They met at a certain place. They have certain plans." Wouldn't you tell them what the report was about?

Q Now, how many times did you do just such a thing?

A Such matters I did not carry out. As I said, the material seized by myself I regularly sent to Berlin in all the cases which I have mentioned. I think that I also read this in reports - I can't exactly remember that - this is also being confirmed by these reports of the local situation. seizing files, did it never happen that you found in those NKWD files names of individuals who were opposing the German Armed Forces or who were in the category of those listed to be executed under the Fuehrer Order?

Did that never happen once? buildings were always empty because the NKWD had no reason..... enemies of the German Armed Forces?

A That is possible. I do not remember a special case, but it is absolutely possible that that happened. those who were to be in some way made the subject of summary action on the part of the German Armed Forces? some of these seizures, find documents which gave information on persons opposing the German Armed Forces, you said that, didn't you? certain individuals, certain organizations opposed to the occupational forces? were seized by me I sent off to Berlin. opposing the German forces, what did you do with those lists?

A Your Honor, I do not remember any case. I have already said that I never found such lists. have found some documents which called for action, for executive action on the part of the commando or on the part of the Wehrmacht. You said that, didn't you? fore include it? cases where you would find something which called for executive action? what would be the primary condition for an executive measure and what was not. I acted according to my assignment, and personally I saw no reason to go any further than this particular assignment. It was my task to seize documents and to transport them to Berlin, and this is what I did.

Q Now you can getting away from the question. I said, what did you do in those cases where you did find information acting upon which would call for executive action? did not know about such cases. I said that I did not exclude

Q Therefore, you include the possibility? executive action?

sion on your mind, that you can't recall it? thing, but it is that I do not know of any case in which I passed on a list to anybody on the basis of which -Russians, you immediately been to look for papers, is that right? department and leave the others to another department? the time, had to be secured in the interest of the Reich. those which pertained to your department of agriculture, economy, and so forth? activities. I remember one particular case in which later -only documents which you would pick up, those which referred to your department?

Q You would leave the others there? which after I had been there, officials - and by officials I mean members of the Security Police - arrived and organized another supervisory control for their own purpose. glancing at the filing cases, those which contained information of interest to your department? set a proper perspective, and then I decided upon what I would take with me and upon the material which I did not need and which should remain there.

Q And you would look at everything, wouldn't you? at the material which seemed important end of special significance to me. it was of importance to you, wouldn't you? whole material, out with a glance I can establish what I need for my own purposes, I took that material, and at the office I looked at it and made the registers and lists. if a tomato plant was growing in there then you knew that referred to agriculture and you would take those papers, You looked in another file and if there was some indication of economy in the way of a toy train or something, you would like that file? Witness, to reduce it to its very simple element, we indicate to you that it seems very unlikely that someone charged with the grave responsibility of seizing, enemy papers would not take every paper and evaluate every paper end report to his kommando leader. tremendous in Russia, I have already said that from Lutsk itself I sent a whole truckfull of material to Berlin. I had to work day and night on this together with men and officers of the Wehrmacht, and so it was impossible for me to busy myself with material which I regarded as of no consequence for my own purposes. referred to the security of your own comrades and of the armed forces in Russia just because it didn't fall within your department. That is what you are telling us, isn't it?

A This wasn't my task in this particular case.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed, Dr. Ratz.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. RATZ:

Q Witness, when did you arrive in Charkov?

Q Who had meanwhile been appointed commander of SK 4-A?

A The commander was Obersturmbannfuehrer Dr. Weinmann.

Q What was your new assignment in this kommando? liaison officer with the Army and the Army groups.

Q Where were they stationed?

A The Army was in Poltava then in Charkov. The Army group was in Poltava.

Q Did you have any further tasks to deal with? ing with cultural questions. tion in Charkov? my stay in Charkov as I saw that the Russian municipal administration could not cope with feeding the 3 - 400,000 inhabitants and I, knowing the economical structure of the Army, could support them. your own activity? kommando for too long. He had learned that I had not been ill but that I had been seen in Berlin. I described my futile attempt to be released to Weinmann and he, on his part, tried to convince me of the contrary of my attitude. In this discussion I asked for my release, which he refused. Security Police and the SD?

A Yes. Starting from the point that he as a former physician had never thought himself of joing such a service BY THE PRESIDENT: the Teilkommando of SK 4A, how did you answer that question--you said "No", didn't you? davit, "I went with the Sonderkommando to Rutkoschow and from there to Lutsk where I was assigned to a Teilkommando of Sonderkommando IVA. How do you reconcile those two statements? to a subcommando of the SK IVA. With that I did not say that I was in charge of this subcommando. IVA? reading from Document Number 3405? when asked whether I was with the Suncommando. IVA at Lukni, and you said you were never a member of a Teilkommando of IVA a member of the subcommando in Lukni, and to this my answer was in the negative, but yesterday in my direct examination I have stated that I was with the subcommando in Lutsk, and I said so in my affidavit.

Q Very well, I might been mistaken. Proceed. BY DR. RATZ: concerning your appointment in the security police and the SD?

A Yes. Starting at the point that he as a former physician never had thought himself to change into such a service and only when he had joined he had been convinced of its necessity and thus he also wanted to persuade me to give up my futile--or at least he regarded them as futile-attempts to leave the RuSHA and to have himself transferred. I refused his offer, as I have alreadu said. I asked for my release.

Q Were there any other agencies in Charkow?

A Yes. I said Dr. Kranebitter was his kommando. There was also the term SK IVA as in the army territory--there were not supposed to be any commanding agecnies as they were in the territories of civil administration. And on the part of the Einsatzgruppe the solution was found in this manner, that Kranebitter, was appointed the deputy of Weinmann in special districts in order to legalize him.

Q What did you do in this army group? another attempts to join the army group direct, for the setting up of a partisan combat unit. Furthermore, I received the order-in discussions-concerning the taking up of reporting activities, for Office 6, but all counter intelligence agencies of the army resisted so that the discussions took weeks.

Q What did you do in the army? for the population of the town Charkow with the aid of the army supply officer, Lt. Col. Meyer and the counselors of the Supply Office IB.

Q What did you do in the self-administration?

A I found the following situation. In the course of a very severe winter, the population had hoarded their supplies, but they had used them up, and they had nothing to eat. The rear territory was only in the west of the city, and the counter-intelligence wanted to limit the transport to the country in the rear territory to a minimum to have to cutt off supplies therefore, I suggested that consumers' associations should be formed who had their own territories for purchases which, as there were no transport possibilities could not be seized by the army.

In this way 60 cooperative societies came into being and checks resulted in the fact that daily on the average 300 tons of food supplies were taken into the city. Simultaneously with the investigations of the secret field police, the misgivings of the counter-intelligence were allayed. In order to regulate the prices, price committees were established, and it was achieved by the army that daily 100,000 hot meals could be supplied to workers and their families from army rations.

MR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I do not want to interrupt the witness again, but I do not think that this line of questioning will inform the Tribunal very much about the indictment, about the counts of the indictment and about the case before the Tribunal.

PRESIDENT: What are you trying to show by this line of questioning, Dr. Ratz, that they took care of the workers who were providing munitions for the German armed forces?

DR. RATZ: I want to clarify with this the activities of the defendant at that time in Charkow, what he did.

PRESIDENT: Well, do you want to establish by this line of testimony that the witness was concerned only with humanity ' with the feeling of the population, and that he was not at all concerned with the execution of Jews and saboteurs and looters and a-socialist and all those listed in the fuehrerorder. You are attempting to establish that contrast?

DR. RATZ: Your Honor, I shall question him immediately as to his other task he had in Charkov. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Did you have this 300 tons of food supplies brought in yourself? food would be regulated, otherwise, the population of the town would have starved.

Q Did you see that some of this food went to the Jews? therefore, it went to the Jews also.

Q Did you see that some of it went to the Jews? of the food. soup from this 300 tons of food which you brought into Charkow?

Q You don't know where this food went ti, do you?

Q Did any of this food go to any Jewish family?

Q Did you see it being served to any Jewish family?

Q Well, how do you know that any Jews received this supply?

Q Well, you know also that Jews were being killed, don't you? You know that, don't you?

Q You do not know that Jews were being killed? them and then shoot them?

A I don't know anything about it, Your Honor, therefore, I can't say anything about it. was killing Jews, don't you? naturally follows, would you feed them and then shoot them?

Jews. I only took care that the civil administration, the municipal administration via their cooperative societies would receive food supplies. the Jews, did you?

Q No. Would you say that you are a person of humane impulses?

didn't you? body else, didn't you? I do not know. I would doubt that because the town was near to starvation. as much as you can do to a person, isn't it?

Q And you knew that they were being driven from their homes' you knew that didn't you?

A. No, that I did not know.

Q. You knew they were being put into ghettos in some instances, didn't you?

A. No, Your Honor, there were no ghettos in this sector.

Q. There were no ghettos because they were being executed right off the bat, is that the reason?

A. I cannot give any judgment as to this.

Q. well, then you stand on the statement that you yourself made no effort to see to it that any of these 300 tons of food went to any of these Jewish families?

A. I took care, Your Honor, that the cooperative societies were supplied with food and every citizen of this town could go to these; that this food was distributed in a just manner so that the town would not starve.

Q. What was the population of the town?

A. Three to four hundred thousand inhabitants.

Q. And you saw to it that every citizen of this 300,000 to 400,000 citizens got food, is that what you are telling us?

A. No, Your Honor.

Q. Isn't that what you just said, that you saw to it that every citizen got food, isn't that what you just said?

A. Your Honor, I urged the municipal administration that these foodstuffs should be distributed justly to everyone, but I did not supervise each individual receiving his share of it. I did not have the possibility to do it.

Q. No. Nor did you say to them, "Now, I want to make certain the Jewish people also are beneficiaries of this largess of the German armed forces". You didn't say that either, did you?

A. That I did not emphasize.

Q. No. You didn't even mention it?

A. In one meeting, we held we discussed a just distribution scheme and, whether, in this, there should be any additions or exceptions, and it was decided in this meeting that nobody should receive an additional ration or nobody should be omitted. This is what I mean, and this is what I mean when I speak about a just distribution.

Q. When you made your report to Berlin, did you say that you helped to feed Jews in Charkow?

A. No, Your Honor.

Q. Did you say that Jews were being fed in Charkow?

A. No, Your Honor.

Q. Can you honestly say today that you know of your own personal knowledge that one Jew received any of this food that you spoke about in Charkow from your own personal knowledge?

A. According to my own personal knowledge and experience, I cannot say that, I can only say that I urged the administrative bodies that the whole population should receive this food.

Q. It wouldn't have been very difficult for you to get into your vehicle and go to the Jewish section to see whether they were included as beneficiaries of this food distributing policy, would it?

A. Your Honor, I only went to Charkow temporarily for a very short time, and I always was very busy as people saw me about admin istrative functions and I wanted to see that I should achieve the best results with this distribution scheme.

Of course, I admit that I didn't do enough, but as it was not my task to deal with such matters at all, I believe that I did my utmost in this particular case. If I did not do enough, then it is not my fault.

PRESIDENT: Proceed. Dr. Ratz. BY DR. RATZ:

Q. Did you, during your time in Charkow, have any other assignments?

A. No. I did not have time to make out reports or hardly any time because the Russians took up all my time and I had to deal with a number of problems for the army and with the army. BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Were you with IVA as of November 30, 1941?

A. Yes, I was a member of Special Commando IVA. I was liaison officer with the Sixth Army.

Q. Did you know that by November 30, 1941, this commando had killed 59,318 people?

A. No, I did not, Your Honor.

Q. Do you know that that is in the report?

A. Yes, Your Honor.

Q. Do you know whether any of these 59,000 were given free food by the German armed forces before they were shot?

A. I don't know, Your Honor, I don't think so.

Q. Why was it necessary to feed these 300,000 when your commando was on the job of killing people--what difference did it make whether they lived or not, some of them were going to be shot anyway?

A. Your Honor, all I can say is that I arrived in Charkow then, and I saw the situation and found it my duty that I should help them. The Russians came and saw me about it, so I did.

Q. Did you help in any other Russian town to help to feed the population?

Page 4,229

A. No.

Q. And you helped here because the Russians asked you, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Well were you now allied with Russia?

A. No, Your Honor.

Q. You were helping the enemy out of a chivalrous nature?

A. I don't think, Your Honor, that that Was the reason I was confronted with the situation. I was asked this request, and I helped,

Q. Why did you do it, just because they asked you?

A. Because I was asked for it, and the hardship of the inhabitants of this town was described to me.

Q. You were very much moved by the condition of the people of the city, is that what you are telling us?

A. Yes. I saw that this town sooner or later....

Q. But you figured that some might die of starvation, that is right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever help any Jew to escape execution just because you were moved by humane impulses?

A. Yes. I can mention an example.

Q. Give us the example.

A. In Shitemir I told the self-administrative authorities that the passes without which one could not move about freely or at least not go from one town to another without which one could not go from the town to the villages, for example, that these passes should be given to Jews who were asking for them without further ado, because the Jews would thus have the possibility to visit the country, and, there, to obtain food or to remain there, even. It was the mayor of Shitomir, a certain man called Gsatzenuk to when I repeatedly told this and who complied with this at least as long as it was under my supervision. Your Honor, it was only by such an indirect method that I could help at all, in any way whatsoever.

Q. Did you include this in your report to Berlin, that you urged that passes be given to Jews so that they could go out into the country and enjoy the fresh air? Did you include that in your report?

A. No. Your Honor. I certainly did not do anything of the sort.

Q. Did you tell your Kommando leader that you did this?

A. I certainly did not.

Q. Do you know whether the mayor actually did this or not?

A. Yes, he did comply with it, Your Honor.

Q. Were any Jews shot in Shitomir?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you help any of them not to be shot?

A. Through this measure, in this manner, numerous Jews could escape or leave the town.

Q. Did they escape?

A. They just left the town and did not return.

Q. Do you know that they actually left?

A. Yes, Your Honor, I know that.

Q. This mayor, what nationality was he?

A. He was a Ukranian.

Q. How did he feel about the Jews?

A. His attitude was altogether very humane.

Q. Well, that's the one instance you give us where you helped Jews? You got passes for them so that they could leave the city?

A. Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. Proceed, Dr. Ratz.

DR. RATZ: I want to put a question, Your Honor, concerning the activity of the defendant in Charkow. I do not put this question in order to emphasize his activity as a special merit for the defendant, but only in order to clarify the fact of what he did during the time and to support the credibility of his statement that he did not take part in executions. BY DR. RATZ(Attorney for the Defendant Radetsky):

Q. Witness, you said that you took special care of the civil administration, especially concerning food supplies and that you thus supported the civilian population. Can you give us another example, Witness, of whether you also helped the population in other matters.

A. Yes, I also interested myself in the institution of agricultural societies because in my opinion that was the only way to help the farmers to regain their land.

Q. I now want to show you Document Book III-.C, page 51 of the German, -

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Page 34, of the English, Your Honor. That is in the middle of the page, I think, above the heading "Page 16 of the original".

Q. (Continued) It is Document NO-3237, Exhibit No. 138, Report of Events 187 of the 30th of March 1942, under "Einsatzgruppe C, Garrison, Kiew," and under the caption, "Communists." It is said there that "Within the framework of the defense measures ordered for the city of Charkov, and in order to prevent the increase of dangerous Bolshevist influence, security police measures have been taken against members of the Communist Party in those districts of the city which are particularly affected.

At this occasion 236 persons could be arrested and interrogated. 193 persons were established as being agitators and dangerous, disintegrating elements, and were shot. In the same way 64 Jews were treated who were equipped with falsified passports, were hiding, or could be established as carriers of disintegrating rumors in connection with the enemy propaganda." Do you know anything about these events?

A. No, I do not know anything about these shootings nor did I have anything to do with them, I want to point out that the commander of the Security Police, Dr. Kranebitter was also in Charkov at the same time, and, as far as I can see the situation, he was responsible for police measures at that time. The defense state of Charkow had not started in March, as mentioned here, but it was not in effect when I was there and the front was absolutely quiet at that time and the actual operations only began againat the beginning of May.

Q. When did you leave Charkow?

A. At the end of May or beginning of June, 1942, after the Timoschenko offensive had failed. We advanced and the kommando got the sector.

Q. What was your assignment?

A. I was assigned as a liaison officer to the Second German and Second Hungarian Army.

Q. What were the objectives of this Army?

A. The Upper Don River.

Q. Did you hold any special assignments on this occasion?

A. No, everything had been settled.

Q. When was Weinmann released and who was put in his place?

A. Weinmann was replaced in 1942 in the middle of August and Steimle was put in charge of the kommando.

Q. What did you do when Steimle was commanding?

A. Under Steimle's command I was liaison officer with the Second Army. Also it was my assignment to maintain liaison with the Second Hungarian Army.

Q. The prosecution asks Steimle on the 6th of November 1947, -it is in the record, German text page 2072 ' the question whether the reason for your wanting to leave the kommando was because you were bored with the activity. Will you please comment on this.

A. This assumption is without any basis. I have repeatedly wanted to leave the kommando. Also I have explained that this had been my attitude from the very beginning.

Q. In Document Book III-B on page 69 of the German, it is NO-3842, Exhibit 119, Affidavit Steimle, it says that you, Witness, were held in high esteem.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I am sorry, Your Honor. I do not have the English Document book.

THE INTERPRETER: Page 39, Your Honor, I believe.

THE PRESIDENT: That's where it begins.

Q. (Continued) It is the last page of the affidavit Steimle. It is page 4 of the original-How am I to understand your utterance? -It is page 42.

A. I cannot say of myself whether I was liked or whether I was disliked, but I was held in esteem by the Army, because it was well known that, if I was able to do so, I was always with the front unit and that 1 had destroyed a tank on one occasion and that I was held in esteem by the officers as a soldier as they knew that I would have liked to join the Wehrmacht.

Q. When did you leave the SK 4 A?

A. When Steimle left; Sturmbannfuehrer Schmidt, the man who had been his deputy until then, took over the kommando. I had meanwhile seen that Schulz had become Personnel Referat in the Reich Security Main Office and therefore he had been appointed my superior chief in Berlin.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you give us the date, please?

THE WITNESS: That was in the middle of January, 1943.

A. (Continued) I entertained hopes of having myself released from the war emergency status. In addition, there was another factor: That was my promotion. I joined the Einsatzgruppe where I spoke to Gruppenfuehrer Thomas and asked him to be released. We had a heated dispute in the course of which he kicked me out. On the next day he asked me to come to see him again, as I had expressly asked him to receive me again. He released me as far as he was concerned, but he also warned me that I should not go too far in Berlin in order not to contract the wrath of the Chief of the Security Police and the SD.

Q. Could you then ask for your release in Berlin?

A. Yes, I made out a request and I went to see Schulz who had meanwhile been appointed Chief of Office I. I could expect him to see my point. Schulz told me that he would support me. However, he told me that according to the regulations in effect nobody could be released from his war emergency status and that the decision was with the Chief of the Reich Security Main Office to whom he would send my request with his own personal approval.

DR. RATZ: Your Honor, I questioned the Defendant Schulz concerning these matters on the 20th of October, 1947, page 1061 of the German record.

Q. (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, did you take any other steps?

A. Yes, Office VI had wanted to employ me even before that time and a discussion was held with Schellenberg in the course of which he, Schellenberg, promised me that if my request for release would not be granted, he would arrange to take me over in his office for a job in the Foreign Information Service.

Q. Were these interviews successful?

A. No, my request was refused and Schellenberg did not get in touch with me again. Thus in the middle of March 1943 I had to return to Russia.

THE PRESIDENT: Just before he goes back to Russia suppose we have a breathing spell of fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. SUESS (DEPUTIZING FOR DR. DURCHHOLZ FOR THE DEFENDANT SCHULZ): The Witness, August Haefner of the prosecution on the 13th of December at twelve o'clock was asked to come, for a discussion on Wednesday the 17th of December at 1300 hours. Captain Reiz from the Defense Center has affixed to the bulletin board for the defense counsels a publication with the date of 16 December, according to which witnesses of the prosecution may not be asked to come for discussions after 1600 hours. This witness Haefner is supposed to be taken away from the court house on the 18th of December -- that is the day after tomorrow- and will not be available to us any mere after that date. I would like to ask politely to make it possible for us that we may talk to this witness at 1800 hours, as an exception, tomorrow, the 17th of December.

THE PRESIDENT: That is the Witness Haefner.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: H-a-e-fn-e-r, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: For whom?

DR. SUESS: For Durchholz for the Defendant Schulz.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

DR. SUESS: I have the request here which was given back to me. I would like to give a copy to the prosecution.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: Possibly Dr. Suess can tell us whether it could not be possible to talk to the witness at an earlier hour We have no interrogators and no personnel at our disposal at that late hour. It is extremely hard to get them transportation to go home and so on and so on. We, of course, have no objections that the witness may be interrogated by Dr. Durchholz. We only would suggest whether it would not be possible that an earlier hour nay be chosen for this interrogation.

THE PRESIDENT: Why couldn't you make the hour earlier?

DR. SUESS: we have to book the witness a few days before hand Your Honor, and, at the moment, Herr Durchholz works as defense counsel in Case VIII where his client is on the witness stand now and therefore he cannot get away during the session and cannot talk to the witness during court hours, but he would like to talk to him personally. While court is in session, it is difficult to ask the witness to come earlier.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I do think, Your Honor, there would still be a possibility to start the interrogation at 4:30; that means at 1630, instead of 1800 hours which would make it very much easier for us to provide an interrogator for this interrogation.

THE PRESIDENT: How about 1645, allowing him time to leave the court room.

DR. SUESS: I am very much obliged; thank you very much, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: That would be satisfactory then to you, 1645?

DR. SUESS: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Hochwald, will you take care of the mechanics of it?

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: I do think, Your Honors, that I cannot give any orders to the Defense Information Center. I do think it would be necessary that the Secretary-General informs them.

THE PRESIDENT: The Secretary-General is informed that the Tribunal approves of Dr. Durchholz interrogating the Witness Haefner for the Defendant Schulz on December 17 at 1645 and the Secretary General will please make all arrangements necessary to see that this recommendation of the Tribunal is executed.

DR. HORLICK HOCHWALD: I thank you.

MR. HOCHWALD: I take this as the official information to the prosecution that the interrogation will take place at that time.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, you are correct.

DR. SUESS: Thank you very much, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You are very welcome.

Q (By Dr. Ratz) Witness, you just said in the middle of March, 1943, you had to return to Russia what kind of instructions did you get then? had to make reports about the Partisan situation in collaboration with the G-2 of the Corps, and the office of the Commander of the Security Police in Chernikov, and also I had to make SD reports.

Q When did you leave there? 1943. I was assigned as part of the 12th Tank Army, and I was wounded in the head. I was sent to the hospital and from there into an Army recovery home.

Q How long were you in this A., my recuperation home?

A I was there for about ten days. Then I got my orders to go home in order to have special treatment there. I received a teletype message here that I was to go to Lemberg immediately. There I received an order from Sturmbannfuehrer of Office I to report to Einsatzgruppe B to be utilized as liaison officer with 2d Army and the 8th Hungarian Corps, I asked for my release again. Also, I had not yet completely recovered and I was told again that according to the regulations I could not be released.

Q What was your work there and how long were you active there? Partisan situation I had to make reports, as in my previous work and forward these reports to the G-2 of the Einsatzgruppe. These sources were those agencies of the 2d Army and the 8th Hungarian Corps. I continued this activity until the beginning of January, 1944

Q Did you have to carry out any other functions as well? administration remained the same. The officers of the Security Police and the SD and the District Commissar's offices worked in the same manner as before. My task, the Partisan reconnaisance and seizure of reports of the enemy, completely took up my time. Sonderkommandos?

Q Where did you go then? was assigned to the Group 6 C. I remained there until the end of the war. I once made a report for American agencies about this work. I think it would lead too far to talk about this here in detail. It is at the Tribunal's or the prosecution's disposal at any time if they should be interested in it. SS and did you work there? might have prolonged the war in Austria.

A Whether the latter would have come true I cannot judge. In any case, in March of 1945 I saw to it that a Russian regiment in the Karawank mountains would gain contact with the Western Allies and in the upper Austrian territory I saw to it that a volunteer corps was prevented from being set up, which was supposed to be 15,000 men strong, after I had heard that they were going to fight against the Western powers. from your war emergency status?

were refused, and my superior said that I was a defeatist.

Q When did you become a prisoner of war in American hands? over of the Russian staff to which I was attached, I received an order, from a supplementary office of the Waffen-SS, to report to the LHA, and an entry in my pay book was made accordingly. I reported on 10 May 1945 in Mauerkirchen in Austria to the first American camp which I came across. officially.

Q what did you do in internment? since about June, 1946 approximately, I worked as apprentice in the carpenter's workshop, and in November of this year I wanted to pass an examination as carpenter. ment in the East from December, 1941 until March, 1942 and from January until March, 1943, what did you do then? tried to be released from my war emergency status and also during that time I worked in the resettlement advisory office to which I belonged until the end of the war. Here I tried to help a -number of families and individuals who had been endangered for racial or political reasons and had saved them from persecution. I did this because at the time I had taken care of these people already before my call up and did not want to leave them to their fate. My connection with these people had the eventual result that I myself got into trouble. But, I can say today that not even one of this comparatively large group of of persons was ever sent to a concentration camp because of their race or because of their political attitude.

My attitude can be shown from this. you tried to be released from the war emergency status?

THE PRESIDENT: It is enough if he gives us the number of times. He doesn't need to relate each particular attempt again.

A I tried this eleven times; in July, 1941; beginning of August, 1941; end of September, 1941; in December, 1941; in February, 1942; in March, 1942, in January, 1943; in February, 1943; in October, 1943; in July, 1944; and in March, 1945.

Q My final question in the direct examination to you, witness: did you do anything in order to oppose consequences as you had become aware of them beyond your personal interests. in a strong rejection by Himmler, and my memoranda to the Eastern Ministry at the time, in my economic reports to the Army Offices I tried to influence in an indirect manner the general attitude. Beyond that, since the fall of 1941 I looked for contact and found it in human beings who seemed willing to avoid a political catastrophe and to look for a connection with the Western Allies. Because of this and my work for persecutees for racial and political reasons, I personally had difficulties which increased towards the end of the war. I could not use my influence beyond a small circle, but I tried in my situation at the time to do everything I could possibly do.

DR. RATZ: Your Honor, my direct examination is now concluded.

THE PRESIDENT: Does any member of defense counsel desire to cross examine? Mr. Hochwald, you may proceed with the cross examination. Oh, just a moment, Mr. Hochwald.

KRAUSE for the defendant Haensch:

Q. Witness, you said that at the time when you came to Charkow the commander of Sonderkommando 4-A was the Obersturmbannfuehrer Dr. Weinmann?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know when Obersturmbannfuehrer Dr. Weinmann took over the command of Sonderkommando 4-A?

A. I cannot give the exact date but it must have been the middle of March.

Q. The middle of March?

A. In any case he arrived a few days before me.

Q. And when did you arrive?

A. I arrived about the 15 or 16 of March.

Q. As you said you were on leave and then you returned?

A. Yes.

Q. Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed Mr. Hochwald. BY MR. HOCHWALD: which was just put to you. When did you leave Berlin to go to Charkow?

A. I did not leave Berlin but Posen the beginning of March.

Q. First of March?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor, I cannot give you an exact reply to this.

THE PRESIDENT: Let us always have the year especially when you initiate an inquiry.

Q. It was 1942, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. I am sorry, your Honor. How long did your journey take?

Page 4,242

A. About six to seven days.

Q. And when you arrived in Charkow Weinmann was already for several days there, was he not?

A. Yes, he arrived just before me. 3. Where from do you know it vas a short time?

A. I heard that.

Q. Who told you that?

A. A member of the office or he himself told me.

Q. Will you turn to your SS personal file. This is Document Book III-C NO-4771 and I want to quote from page 25 of the English, your Honors. Unfortunately I have nobody here who could show the witness the German. I shall try to do that myself.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

A. Mr. Prosecutor, I have got it.

THE PRESIDENT: He has found it, Mr. Hochwald.

Q. Thank you very much. This is a life history of yours for the SS, written by you. May I assume that this life history is correct?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

Q. I am especially referring to the paragraph under the heading "page 2" and to the paragraph under the heading "page 3 of original". May I assume that what you have written here in this life history is correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Here it is stated that from 15 December 1938 -oh, no, I am sorry. That you were entrusted with the preparation for an economic reconstruction of the community and you were a member of the Main Commission of the German Embassy at the discussions concerning the Option Contract. That's the Option Contract for the resettlement of Baltic Germans, is that correct?

It was an act that gave the Germans the right to change their homes, to be resettled, is that right? Posen in order to act as deputy of the director of the Advisory Office for Ethnic German Immigrants. That's correct, too?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did you act in this capacity?

A. Which ones are you referring to Mr. Prosecutor, the first or the second one?

Q. The second one.

A. The second one is a representation which lasted until the end of December, then it was reorganized. Here representatives no longer existed and I only worked in my own special field.

Q. Well I can assume that you have been with this resettlement activity from the very beginning, up to when? Up to May 1941, is that right?

A. Yes, except for an interruption from the beginning of February until the beginning of May 1945 when the renewed resettlement of Baltic Germans was cause for my returning home.

Q. You said 1945. I can assume May 1941?

A. 1941.

Q. So you are well acquainted with the whole matter are you not as to have been working there a long time?

A. Yes.

Q. Where were these Baltic Germans resettled? What was the place where they were to stay or where they were resettled, as a matter of fact.

A. The fact of the resettlement is indisputed. As I testified in my direct examination, regulations of the Reich Commissar for the strengthening of Germandom existed.

Q. I only wanted to know where they were to be resettled, in which place; in which province?

A. To Danzig and to Posen.

Q. Is that in the Wartegau?

A. Yes.

Q. And these places were populated - - Danzig and the Wartegau? How many Baltic Germans were sent from Latvia to the Wartegau?

A. I estimate about 40,000. There might have been more.

Q. Can you tell the Tribunal whether it was not necessary to deport first people from the Wartegau in order to settle these Baltic Germans in Posen and in Danzig.

A. Yes, that is what happened.

Q. Was that known to them when you were working in this Advisory Agency?

A. At the beginning we did not know about this. It, was said that we would be sent to quarters from where Poles had escaped. Later on I personally learned that Poles had to leave the Wartegau and to go to the Government General.

Q. But you knew as a matter of fact that that was the official policy of the agency in which you worked, did you not?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor. It wasn't the official policy of the authority for which I worked.

Q. I possibly can refresh your memory on that a little bit. If your Honors please I am not going to introduce this document just now. It is a document which was admitted in the Race and Settlement case but I would like to read only one of the paragraphs into the record. I shall read it in German as I have no perfect English translation. I will try to read it very slowly.

"Copy -- General Instructions and Directives of the Reich Commissar for the strengthening of Germandom."

"1. The first period of our activity will cover the following matters:

"Deportation of about 55,000 Jews and of the leading anti-German Poles as well as of Polish intellectuals, starting from Danzig and Posen across the border of the German Reich into the district of the Polish Government General. In this action Jews will be sent to the territory to the east of the Vistula River, between the Vistula and the Bug River." you were working in this Advisory Agency?

A. No, Mr. Prosecutor. This document is a document of the Reich Commissar for the strengthening of Germandom and we outselves were subject to his directives insofar as we forcably had to go to Danzig, West Prussia, and Wartegau. We were not allowed to go to Berlin and Cologne and live there, as you may perhaps assume, I merely want to point out the difference.

Q Witness, I do not ask about your personal resettlement. All that I have been asking you was your activity in the resettlement agency. I know that you were resettled yourself, but you have told the Tribunal at great length that you have been actively working on this resettlement, end I am asking you whether you, having been active with these agencies, were aware at that time that more then half a million Jews were deported from the places where the Baltic Germans, for whom you arranged the immigration there - whether these Jews were deported just for the simple reason to make room for your fellow countrymen who came from Riga to this area? I do not speak about your personal resettlement.

A I did not hear that, Mr. Prosecutor; I did not hear about these restrictions.

Q. How do you explain to the Tribunal that you, having been active quite a long re, should have been completely unaware of this fact? These are not ten people; these are not fifteen people; it is more than half a million Jews and a great number of the Polish intelligentsia. You have been in Posen yourself. You were familiar, as you have told the Tribunal, with the whole affair. How do you explain, that you just did not know?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I said that I heard that our interests to advise the resettlers, the resettlers from the Baltic countries, I said already that only Baltic Germans worked for us....

THE PRESIDENT: It doesn't help you to move the chair if you still keep your head for away from the microphone. It is your head that is to move, not the chair. There, I think that will be better.

THE WITNESS: I beg your pardon.

THE PRESIDENT: Certainly. BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: had to tell them where to go and what to do., so if you told them where to go you must have known that they just went to pieces which had been made free for them by the Polish people, did you not?

A Mr. Prosecutor, there is an error. We did not tell the people where to go, but Himmler and his officers in the Reich Commissariate for the Strengthening of Germanism, who had a large agency in Posen, told them where to go. fellow countrymen, you ever found out they were settled in places where from Poles and Jews had been deported, is that what you want the Tribunal to believe? apartments from where Poles had escaped, and that I heard myself later on that people were deported, I learned that people were deported.

Q When did you learn that?

A Why did you not leave the agency when you heard about that? to help your fellow countrymen resettle in places where other people were deported from, is that what I take from your answer?

A Mr. Prosecutor, this was not up to me, where the people were sent to and how they were housed, but the advisory office merely had to see to it, and this was my field of activity, that their economic claims be founded to such an extent that a recompensation could be made by the Reich at a later time, I would like to say here expressly that at the time we told all our clients that they should not take over any property from other people, and if they could do nothing else they should act as trustees, and the result is that now, as I heard, 85 percent of the property of the resettlers actually can be claimed in a legal manner because they did not take over any property.

know that people forcibly were deported from their homes in order to make room for these settlers?

A No, I already said that they were resettled. In how far this was done forcibly or voluntarily I did not know and don't know enough about it to judge it.

Q You were of the opinion that these people were going voluntarily?

A I don't think so. If I say they were resettled or deported, I mean that something happened here which had been planned, and I myself saw of my own-self how unpleasant it is to leave one's home and, therefore, cannot imagine that they went voluntarily, but I personally don't know anything about forced measures. not so voluntarily so that you knew that they were forced, do you not? You have just explained that to the Tribunal. into the SS by order of Himmler as the entire advisory agency for Baltic Germans was taken over by the Department for the Registration of Ethnic Germans, is that correct?

Q When exactly was that?

Q You were a civilian then, were you not?

Q How was your health at that time?

Q Would you have been fit for military service?

Q When you were taken over by the SS in December, 1939. did you voice any objections against this assignment?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor, I did not do this at the time for two reasons. First of all I did not understand the whole business, and secondly I only heard about the effects in February of the following year, 1940, when I was asked to go to Berlin and got my military equipment, Secondly, an objection would have been impossible as this was not only directed against me but against my ethnic group because Himmler would have considered this to be an impudence, and it would have had bad results. But I would like to say again here, as I emphasized during my direct examination, that in February, 1940, I received information that I was a wearer of uniform and, therefore, was not under any obligation. At the time this reassured me, perhaps mistakenly, and in March, 1940, I made an application to the Wehrmacht, and this application was replied to with the statement that I was indispensable.

Q To your reason No. 1, do you want to tell the Tribunal that in December, 1939, you did not know that you became a member of the SS, is that what you want to say?

A No, Mr. Prosecutor, in that form, as I heard, it later, I did not know it at that time. national Socialist movement from, I think it was 1936, is that correct? movement from 1936 must have known in December 1939 what the SS was? Isn't it a fair assumption?

A Mr. Prosecutor, the conditions in Germany we did not know much about, and there was no connection with the SS as such, therefore one did not know much about it.

Q Did you know that the SS was a Party organization? were not drafted into the SS by the German State? a No, I was appointed to become an SS man by Himmler. that correct?

A But the command was in the hands of Himmler. At the time who was in charge of the strengthening of Germanism. advisory agency, would you have still become an SS man?

A I don't think so. could you not? a Yes, but I could not know that at the time.

Q That was not my question. You had the choice, did you? a I did not have the choice because I did not apply for this. I did not ask to be assigned; I did not ask to join; I was appointed here. I had no choice. membership in the SS was entirely voluntary. Will you tell the Tribunal whether you were drafted into the SS by the State so that you had no other choice, or whether you had a choice by leaving your position and so would have evaded to become a member of this organization? a Well, if I had known that Himmler would carry out this action, then I would have had to leave my job one day earlier, but since I did not know it I did not leave my job and therefore had no choice. ship of the SS by Himmler, is that what you want the Tribunal to believe? a Later in the summer of 1940 I wanted to volunteer for the Wehrmacht.

know, Witness, not what you did in summer 1940, about that we will speak later. for you to leave this position? SS, is that right?

A Mr. Prosecutor, I cannot say anything else than what I have said before, I did not have this choice insofar as I was appointed that is, I was not asked. If I have a choice, I have to be asked. member of the SS and a member of an organization which belonged to an "S" formation, did you try to leave the SS - did you do that, "Yes" or "No"? request?

Q So you would have had the choice, would you have not? that time I did not realize the full importance of it because it would not have had effect against me but against the resettlers.

Q Why? himself and I have always stood in awe of him. that correct, you stayed there on your own free will?

A Yes. I only made one attempt to go to the Wehrmacht.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, my curiosity was peaked by his last answer that he always had a great respect for Mr. Himmler.

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Did you have a great admiration for Himmler - Heinrich Himmler?

Q What did you mean that you had a great respect for him? Your Honor, it was like this, Himmler as Reich Commissar for the Strengthening of Germany practically laid down our manner of life for us. He gave all the regulations and made all the laws, and in 1942 or 1943 he issued a secret order in which he said that the Baltic Germans were politically unreliable and gave certain measures, I believe I have every reason to say that I have a certain amount of respect for Himmler, but what I mean by respect is a certain precaution towards a man who had absolute power.

Q You mean by that a certain fear, don't you?

Q Well, there is a vast difference between a "respect" and a "fear", isn't that right?

A I beg your pardon. Your Honor, I may have expressed myself incorrectly.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

BY MR. HOCHWALD: that you were prevented from joining the Wehrmacht as you were deferred for your position in this SS agency?

A Yes. That was in March 1940. with the RSHA? is that correct?

Q In which capacity were you drafted for the RSHA? that is what I was told at the time. for this service on the basis of the decree of 15 October 1938? a Mr. Prosecutor, I don't know the details of the regulations, I will have to read again what I told you.

Q A part of the decree is in your counsel's document book. I do not know if Your Honors have the document book before you.

THE PRESIDENT: Oh, yes.

MR. HOCHWALD: It is on the pages 21 to 23. Are you familiar with this decree?

THE WITNESS: Yes. Mr. Prosecutor, may I only add here that I have read them, I have seen them sometime ago, but I am not a lawyer to be able to compare all the paragraphs.

BY MR. HOCHWALD: the last time?

Q When did you see it for the first time? beginning of the year 1940 or during my second leave. did you say? yourself, is that correct? rights you had according to this decree to object to this draft? a I inquired about it and I was told there were no regulations in writing concerning this and that there was no point to object to the war emergency status as I was drafted by the RSHA.

I only read the actual paragraphs of the war emergency status during my leave, when I gathered information about this at the labor office. you had no right to make objections to this draft?

AAt the time I was told, I don't know exactly what the exact expression was, that there was a right to object, and as I have explained during the direct examination, I went to the appropriate office, which was that of the mayor of the city of Posen, and he sent me to the employees department office of the RSHA on behalf of which the war emergency status had been decreed and there Sturmbannfuehrer Trautmann refused to release me from my war emergency status. that, and I quote "This emergency war status had the same effect as a military order, it had to be complied with, whoever refused to comply with this had to expect the same consequences as the one who would have refused to do any war service." Is that what you still maintain? will find out whether you are still of the same opinion when you are reading the decree.

MR. HOCHWALD: Your Honors, I would like to quote from the German official law gazette, volume I of 1938, page 1441 I am sorry I have again to quote in German, "Third Decree for the Securing - -"

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Hochwald, are you now going to quote from a law - a statute?

MR. HOCHWALD: From the decree on the basis of which the defendant maintains that he had been drafted into it.

THE PRESIDENT: That is not what I am concerned about. I have the greatest admiration for the linguistic ability of our interpreter to expect her to translate extemporaneously a statute. It is really asking a great deal, don't you think so?

MR. HOCHWALD: I think so, Your Honor. Perhaps we can make it easier. I just refer that this is the same decree of 15 October 1938 which partly is in the document book of Dr. Ratz. I would like to read one article of paragraph 1 which is not in this document book.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, read it slowly then.

MR. HOCHWALD: It is Article 3 of paragraph 1 "Services due on the basis of the Reich Defense Law within the custom's border police."

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Mr. Hochwald, I think that is asking too much to expect a translation of a document which is phrased in the most technical terms. Why don't you -

MR. HOCHWALD: It is only two sentences, Your Honor, but I will have it tomorrow.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I think so.

DR. RATZ: Your Honor, I believe the prosecutor is arguing about the results of a refusal to obey this call-up, the draft. I believe that this argumentation here is not at the right place as part of questioning the witness. I will have to comment on this in my argumentation as to whether in the regulations which the prosecutor has talked about penalties are contained, penalties which would justify the witnesses testimony.

MR. HOCHWALD: If the Tribunal please, I have only been referring to a decree which was quoted by the witness himself on the stand. I do think I am entirely within my rights to ask him whether another part of the decree which is not in the document book of Dr. Ratz but is a part of the same decree is not in contradiction to what he said on the stand.

He is at liberty to say that it is not in contradiction, but I do think this question is perfectly admissible.

THE PRESIDENT: Let me make it very clear on the record that there is no doubt in my mind that Miss Juelich, the interpreter, is thoroughly capable of translating this statute, but I think it is a heavy burden to put upon her at this hour after the examination which you have given us now for some time, so that the Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow morning at 9:30.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 17 December 1947 at 0930 hours) 0930-1630, Justice Michael A. Musmanno, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

Military Tribunal II is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

DR. ROHR: Dr. Rohr, deputizing for Dr. Gawlik for the Defendant Naumann. Naumann be excused from attendance in court tomorrow, Thursday, all day, in order to prepare his document books.

THE PRESIDENT: The defendant will be excused from attendance in court all day tomorrow, Thursday.

DR. ROHR: Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: You are welcome. Mr. Hochwald.

MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: May it please the Tribunal, I have tried to secure translations of the parts of the decree which I want to read to the witness but unfortunately I haven't got the translation yet in the courtroom, so if the Tribunal please, I shall proceed with another line of questioning, and as soon as I get the translations I shall come back to the subject.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. HORLICK-HOCHWALD: 4a from the beginning of the Russian campaign until when?

is that correct?

Q What was your duty in Sonderkommando 4a during the war? a reporter. In my work as interpreter I mainly dealt with documents. Then I became liaison officer and reporter. I would like to interpolate here that, temporarily, I was liaison officer for Einsatzgruppe C. were informed by Blobel about your tasks?

Q What exactly did Blobel tell you? deal with the evaluation of documents and to make reports and also observations of all the Ukrainian questions. He also told me that I did not have those qualifications which the other officers had before joining the kommando and I would not be assigned like the other officers.

Q He did not appoint your chief interpreter, did he?

A No. He merely told me that I was to take care of the other interpreters and supervise them, but this never happened.

Q Blobel has not appointed your interpreter at all? seizing and evaluating of documents on one hand, and reports on the other hand. kommando as such, about the Fuehrer Befehl?

He just talked about the Fuehrer Befehl in general, which he announced. that all Jews and undesirables were to be killed in accordance with the Fuehrerbefehl?
